'Dr. Death' oversees 25th suicide in Mich.

Yuri Kageyama
Associated Press

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — Dr. Jack Kevorkian was present Monday at the death of a seriously ill woman, at least the 25th he has attended since 1990, his attorney said.

Esther Cohan, 46, suffered from multiple sclerosis and had been counseled for months by Kevorkian, a retired pathologist who advocates doctor-assisted sui-specific. Most of the deaths have come after the person inhaled carbide for the terminally ill, attorney Geoffrey Fieger said.

Fieger said the woman died in a manner consistent with other deaths attended by Kevorkian, but he refused to be specific. Most of the deaths have come after the person inhaled carbon monoxide from a canister. Cohan's illness left her "nearly quadriplegic" and riddled with bed sores, Fieger said. She lived in Skokie, Ill., a Chicago suburb.

Her sister, Judy Cohan, also was with her when she died, Fieger said. He said some friends also had accompanied her Sunday on her trip from Illinois. Fieger said Cohan was unmarried.

Cohan had been an executive

MARIJUANA SCATTERED THROUGHOUT ROOM

Roommates busted for drug possession

Sara Lueck
The Daily Iowan

UI Public Safety officers arrested three UI students after allegedly finding marijuana stashes throughout their Mayflower Residence Hall room.

Andrew Hansen, Ryan McKee and Brad Ohland, all residents of Mayflower Residence Hall, were charged with possession of a schedule I controlled substance Saturday at 2:01 a.m. Jeremy Weggen, of Davenport, and an unidentified juvenile also were charged.

Weggen "produced a plastic bag containing a green, leafy substance from his right pant leg," according to police reports.

When the police found marijuana scattered in several places throughout Ohland's room, both McKee and Hansen admitted to police they owned the substance, the report stated. The two declined to comment about the charges.

Assistant County Attorney Rich Westphal said the maximum penalty for marijuana possession is six months in county jail and/or a $1,000 fine, and the minimum penalty is a $250 fine. The defendants are awaiting trial.

Residence hall officials would not comment on the UI's punishment for possession of marijuana, saying each case is different.

STUDENTS TACKLE ASSIGNMENTS EARLY

Dedicated scholars hit library on first day

Maira Crowley
The Daily Iowan

Many UI students eager to start another academic year found the cool, quiet and sweat-soaked atmosphere of the UI Main Library the perfect place to spend the first day of classes.

No sunlight beamed onto the table where UI graduate student Sara Adams sat, quietly reading "Intro to Reference Work." Adams said she needed a place to study until her 2:30 p.m. class, and the library provided the perfect sanctuary.

"I don't feel bad about being in the library now, but I probably will later," she said.

One floor up, more students littered the tables with textbooks in front of them, reading and jotting in notebooks.

"I don't feel bad about being in the library now, but I probably will later."

UI graduate student Sara Adams

UI senior Andrew Parcell said he feels incredible about studying at the library on the first day of classes and marvels at his own diligence.

"I also really enjoy the quiet," he said.

Parcell said he had been reading the first chapter of his linguistics textbook for the past hour and planned to stay for another half hour. Parcell said he didn't plan to go out for a celebratory beer after

Pfc. Norberto Midgett, of Dallas, holds his 7-month-old daughter Marcella as he prepares to leave Fort Hood, Texas, Monday morning. Troops from Fort Hood are scheduled to depart to Kuwait. The soldiers will take part in military exercises to deter Iraqi aggression.

U.S. troops return to Kuwait

Associated Press

About 300 U.S. Marines and sailors left California's Camp Pendleton today and several hundred soldiers waited to fly out of Fort Hood, Texas, for Middle East military exercises to deter Iraqi aggression.

The Fort Hood deployment was troubled for the second straight day by delays the Army would explain only vaguely. A flight was canceled Sunday, and Monday 270 soldiers stood by waiting to board a DC-10 that had been scheduled to take off at 8 a.m., Staff Sgt. Christian Mulvey said.

"Part of the coordination required en route still needs to be completed to ensure a smooth arrival," Mulvey said in identical statements on Sunday and Monday. "It is impossible to predict the length of the delay, but it doesn't appear it will be long."

Eighty soldiers in battle-dress uniform left Fort Hood aboard a C-141 cargo plane Sunday. Besides the DC-10, two 747s were scheduled to leave by Monday afternoon for training in Kuwait.

The four- to six-week exercise called Operation Intrinsic Action was planned for October but moved up because of increasing instability in Iraq.

A son-in-law of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein who defected to Jordan said Sunday that his departure foiled an Iraqi plan to invade Kuwait and Saudi Arabia earlier this month.

In a separate U.S. show of force against Saddam, members of the 1st Marine Expeditionary Force left March Air Force Base in Riverside County, Calif., today for the Persian Gulf, said 1st Lt. Dave Griesmer. Camp Pendleton Marines will prepare combat equipment aboard ships.

Their departure is the first of a planned three-phase operation that would deploy 16,500 Marines from Southern California bases, including Camp Pendleton, Griesmer said.

A similar deployment last year never reached the third phase because U.S. officials thought Iraq was backing down from a military threat.

WAITS FOR BUYING BOOKS ALWAYS BAD

Campus bustle back, but long lines bearable

Rima Vesely
The Daily Iowan

It was the mob scene most students expected.

Lines of students flowed from the registers to the far wall of the University Book Store in the Union at times during the Monday rush.

The lines moved relatively fast, bookstore employee Amy Morris said.

"This is just wild," she said. "It comes in spurts. Sometimes you can't even walk in here. It was pretty bad earlier. Then people got pissed, and they leave all their stuff in a pile and decide they're going to come back another day."

"I didn't expect (the lines) to be this long, all the way over here," she said, referring to the second room of the bookstore where people continued to line up behind her. "I didn't think it was this bad last year."

However, some students thought book-buying was better this year. UI sophomore Eric Marler said he got through the line in 10 minutes.

"I was pretty amazed," he said. "Last year the wait was definitely a lot worse. I feel pretty giddy."

University Book Store Manager George Herbert Jr. said the prior week was fairly consistent, but the busiest days are always the first Monday and Tuesday of classes.

"Our goal is to provide a book for everyone who wants one," he said. "Our largest goal for busy days is for students to wait in lines (at most) 10 minutes. Over the years, there have been times that because of equipment and space for registers, we've had long lines,

'I'M SORT OF NERVOUS'

Opening day jitters follow UI freshman

Matt Lanzdorf
The Daily Iowan

Erin Ryan was one of the thousands of nervous UI freshmen who finally met their big moment Monday — the first day of college.

Monday wasn't filled with as much nervous anxiety as Ryan anticipated, but she was still relieved to make it through the day.

After soaking in Iowa City's nightlife over the weekend, Ryan was ready for her classes to begin.

"I know we're not really going to do much in the classes, but I know that college is hard — and that's not good."

UI freshman Erin Ryan

"The weekend was OK, but I was kind of bored," she said. "I was ready for classes to start up."

So ready that Ryan selected what to wear Sunday night and set her alarm to wake up an hour and a half early. Even knowing her wardrobe was set and she would have extra time to get ready, Ryan's expectations on how the big day would go were mixed.

"I'm sort of nervous, I guess," Ryan said that morning. "I know we're not really going to do much in the classes, but I know that college is hard — and that's not good."

Ryan admitted she scoped out the campus over the weekend to find all the buildings in which she was scheduled for classes. But she knew finding the actual rooms would still be a challenge.

"I checked out where my buildings are, but I also know finding my classrooms isn't going to be fun, either," Ryan said.

So off to Macbride Hall she went, not exactly knowing how to use e-mail or her phone or what in the world a "Vine Stein" was.

"Where the heck do we cross?" she asked.

Restaurant busted for serving pooch pasta

Citation follows inspection of sanitary conditions

BRINDISI, Italy — Police seized the evidence — a plate of pasta — and cited the trattoria owners for serving animal food to diners.

The citation followed the discovery of 67 11-pound bags of dog food during a routine inspection of sanitary conditions at a restaurant in Ostuni, in the southeastern region of Puglia, the ANSA news agency said Monday.

The bags contained a type of dog-food pasta which is popular in Italy. Pasta for human consumption uses higher quality ingredients.

Cans of tomatoes and salmon dated for use by 1993 were also found in the restaurant's stockroom, the report said.

Tainted dog food sparks FDA fear of same toxin for people

NEW YORK — Scores of dogs were sickened recently by pet food made with tainted wheat, and the government is investigating whether the same naturally occurring toxin is in food destined for human consumption.

The Food and Drug Administration, concerned by reports of fungus invading wheat fields in Kansas and elsewhere in the Midwest this year, plans to collect samples of flour and bran from mills and screen them.

Government officials stressed there have been no recent reports of people getting sick from the toxin, called vomatotoxin for the stomach upset it can cause. The dog food was contaminated by wheat grown in 1994; the FDA's concern is this year's crop.

In July, Nature's Recipe Pet Foods recalled most of its dry dog food amid complaints from hundreds of owners that their dogs lost their appetite or threw up.

Vomatotoxin, or deoxynivalenol, is one of the milder toxins produced by a family of fungi that tends to flourish during a wet growing season, such as one experienced in the Midwest this year. Cases of people getting sick from vomatotoxin have been reported in India and China.

Turner Broadcasting drops plans to acquire 'Wheel,' 'Oprah' syndicator

NEW YORK — Looks like Ted Turner won't woo Oprah. Or Vanna.

Turner Broadcasting System Inc. said Monday its board had decided against pursuing the acquisition of King World Productions Inc., a move that could have helped it finance a rival bid for CBS Inc.

However, a source said Turner continues to explore other possibilities for assembling a bid for CBS, which has already accepted a $5.4 billion buyout offer from Westinghouse Electric Corp.

The Atlanta-based cable company's directors held a telephone conference to hear what progress Chairman Ted Turner had made in financing a bid for CBS.

"The board has determined it has no current plans to pursue an acquisition of King World," the company said in a statement. King World is a TV program syndicator that distributes "The Oprah Winfrey Show" and "Wheel of Fortune" with letter-turner Vanna White.

Turner had been considering buying King World for stock, and could have used its $500 million and its cash-generating potential to raise money for a CBS bid.

The company didn't say why it broke off talks with King World, and a call to King World was not immediately returned.

Turner has sought a broadcast network for more than a decade.

He unsuccessfully bid for CBS in 1985 and more recently had discussed buying NBC from General Electric Co., which wanted to keep controlling interest.

Stock prices Monday indicated Wall Street was anticipating Turner or someone else will assemble a better offer than the $81-a-share deal the CBS board struck with Westinghouse three weeks ago.

CBS rose 37 1/2 cents Monday to close at $81.37 1/2 a share on the New York Stock Exchange, above the amount Westinghouse had offered. Trading ended before the Turner announcement.

Former 'Taxi' star gets violent after being recorded on beach

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — Tony Danza knows how to show who's the boss.

Danza smashed a car window and grabbed a video camera from two men who had taped the actor and his kids on the beach, authorities said Monday.

Chris Williams, 25, and Alan Zasi, 24, told deputies Danza pursued them Sunday and got them to pull over by bumping their car with his Cadillac.

Danza kicked and broke the window and made off with the camera after a struggle in which Williams received several scratches, the sheriff's report said.

Danza wasn't arrested, but the case will be forwarded to prosecutors for possible robbery and battery charges, Deputy Fidel Gonzales said.

Calls to Danza's publicist Kate Chester were not immediately returned.

Simpson defense attorney's Cadillac to hit auction block

AUBURN, Ind. (AP) — O.J. Simpson's white Bronco isn't available, but devotees of his televised trial can bid for Johnnie Cochran Jr.'s Cadillac.

The defense attorney's 1985 Eldorado Biarritz will be among the celebrity vehicles up for sale at the Auburn Collector Car Show and Auction on Sept. 4.

"We know there has been someone out there watching the trial every day who would be proud to call this car theirs," said Julie Rosoff, a spokeswoman for Kruse International, an auction company.

The white luxury car with a stainless steel roof and burgundy interior is in mint condition, Rosoff said.

"The value of the car is estimated at $15,000," Rosoff said. "Considering who owns it, though, it could double or triple in value."

Former 'SNL' star finds humor in battle with cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former "Saturday Night Live" comedian Julia Sweeney has learned to laugh in the face of death.

She has made her bout with cervical cancer the subject of a stand-up comedy routine.

"They took out everything — lymph nodes, gall bladder, anything that could be there that could have it, 'cause it was spreading," Sweeney, 35, said in an interview last week. "Then I went through about nine weeks of radiation, so that's what the year's been like — a nightmare."

The "nightmare" had absurd moments, though, that provided comic material about doctors, dates and family members.

After a performance, the actress best known for her gender-ambiguous character Pat said she was approached by a relative of "Saturday Night Live" comedian Gilda Radner, who died of ovarian cancer in 1989.

"This guy came up," Sweeney recalled, "and said, 'I'm Gilda Radner's cousin and I was very close to her, and I just want to say that had she lived, she would have done exactly what you're doing. She would have gotten up and she would have talked about it.'"

Real-life 'Dangerous Minds' program may suffer funding slash

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The inner-city school program that inspired the new movie

"Dangerous Minds" with Michele Pfeiffer may wind up on the budget-cutting room floor.

Federal funding is shrinking for programs combining academics with job training, as Carlmont High School's Academy does for 125 hand-picked students considered very bright but in danger of dropping out.

The San Jose Mercury News reported Sunday that there might not be enough money to sustain the program's annual cost of $100,000.

LouAnne Johnson, the Marine-turned-teacher who wrote the book on which the movie is based, said the story of dwindling funding for successful school programs is all too familiar.

"They start chipping away at it until it's gone," she told the newspaper.

As many seasoned students have learned through the years, there are a few essential components that make study time bearable.

For some, it's a gigantic Quik-Trip mug of coffee or a favorite pair of ripped sweats. But many students said it's not necessarily the how or the why of studying — it's the where.

Perkins Restaurant, Coralville, and Country Kitchen, 1402 S. Gilbert St., are also great places to study because they're open late, Pundzak said.

Both restaurants are open 24 hours daily, while residence hall lounges are only open until midnight.

Although many students spend extensive amounts of time searching for a perfect study spot, breaks in the studying process are just as crucial to keeping your sanity, Conradt said.

"Have a snowball fight in the winter, get a beer or throw darts," Conradt said. "Just get away from your books for a while."

After studying for two hours at a time, UI sophomore Michele McDonnell agrees that study breaks are necessities.

"It's easy to get burned out," McDonnell said.

"Take a walk or sit outside, get out of the study environment."

Able crowd stands idle as woman is beaten, drowns in river

DETROIT — As dozens of onlookers cheered, three men pulled a woman from her car, ripped off her clothes and chased her until she either jumped or was forced off a bridge to her death.

None of the 40 or so passersby tried to help Deletha Word during the confrontation that began with two minor traffic accidents early Saturday on the Belle Isle bridge, said police Sgt. John Morel.

A man who arrived late tried to rescue her from the Detroit River but couldn't reach her. The 33-year-old woman's body, missing a leg, was found several miles downstream later that morning.

"My baby was down there all by herself. I know she was scared to death," the woman's mother, Dortha Word, said as she cried Monday. "How could they be so cruel?"

Trouble started around 3 a.m., Morel said, when Deletha Word was involved in two minor traffic accidents on Belle Island. One car with three men inside chased her onto the bridge connecting the island to the city and rammed her car, forcing her to stop.

One of the men smashed her car with a crowbar and pulled her from the car, ripping off some of her clothes, Cmdr. Gerald Stewart said. The man pushed her against the car and beat her, he said.

One of the men weighed nearly 300 pounds, according to a police source quoted in The Detroit News. Word, who was 4-foot-11, weighed 115 pounds, her mother said.

When Word tried to run away, police said the man with the crowbar chased her. What happened after that is unclear.

Park the car and walk 3 miles

Shawn Cole
The Daily Iowan

Hundreds of students afraid of not receiving a parking permit braved the chilly darkness Sunday and won a Pyrrhic victory — although everyone got a permit, the only lot available to students living on campus was 3½ miles away.

Chris Groszczyk, a UI junior from Oswego, Ill., said he went to the Union at 2 a.m. Sunday to wait in line.

"I had heard from word-of-mouth that you have to wait in line early," Groszczyk said. "This year they sent me a notice saying they would open the doors earlier, so I decided to go at 2 a.m."

There were 50 people waiting when he arrived, Groszczyk said, and by 8 a.m. Monday when the doors were opened, hundreds were standing in line.

Linda Noble, parking operations manager for the UI Parking and Transportation Department, said the students' decision to come in early was "their choice," and that as late as Monday afternoon storage lot permits were still available.

Students like Groszczyk who live in residence halls and want to store a car to travel home can purchase a year-long $72 permit for the Hawkeye Storage Lot.

Changing demographics as well as parking needs have pushed student parking farther from campus, but the parking department makes student parking as convenient as possible, Noble said.

Undergraduates seem to be on the bottom of the parking totem pole — most spaces in the center of campus such as under the Pappajohn Business Administration Building are reserved for faculty and staff — and Groszczyk said he was upset student parking keeps getting pushed farther away.

"Last year we had a choice of lots," Groszczyk said. "Now I can park in the Hawkeye Storage Lot, which they said is 3½ miles from campus."

Although students may be upset,

"This year they sent me a notice saying they would open the doors earlier, so I decided to go at 2 a.m."

Noble said control is often out of the parking department's hands.

"(Parking) is always changing because of construction," Noble said. "We lose our close-in lots to buildings, like the (Iowa) Advanced Technology Laboratories and the Pappajohn building."

Linda Elliot, a secretary for the parking department, said other lots were closed to students when the Hawkeye lot was built, and added that the lot was for people to store their cars during the week.

"The Campus goes out to the lot, and we provide them with tickets for Iowa City Transit," Elliot said. "These are people who live on campus and say they need their cars to go home on weekends."

Students who live far from campus can qualify for commuter permits, which allow them to park in the Hancher parking lots, metered spaces on campus or in the parking lot by the Main Library. Those permits are sold-out, but Noble said there is a waiting list.

While students may expect the lots to serve their needs first, Noble said the parking department receives no money from tuition or the state — its operating budget comes entirely from permit sales, parking tickets and ramp revenue.

UI engineering employee, son die in car crash

Anne McGlynn
The Daily Iowan

A UI College of Engineering employee and his son were killed near Knoxville, Iowa, early Monday morning.

Jeffrey McGlothlen, 42, and his 6-year-old son, John, were killed when McGlothlen was distracted, misjudged a curve and struck a utility pole, according to the Iowa State Highway Patrol.

McGlothlen's daughter, Kelly, 10, received massive head injuries and was airlifted to a Des Moines hospital, where she is listed in critical condition, the state patrol said. McGlothlen's wife, Donna, 38, was treated and released from the Knoxville hospital with an injured knee.

McGlothlen was an electronics technician in the electronics shop at the College of Engineering, said a UI official.

All passengers in the vehicle, besides Kelly McGlothlen, were wearing seat belts.

When UI junior Amy M returned to the UI last fall, she felt depressed and insecure.

Unprepared emotional deal with the transition, M said she spent the first weeks overwhelmed with new responsibilities and commitments.

"It was a hard summer transitionally, and to make the transition I just didn't feel ready back here," she said. "I knew what was coming, I knew classes were going to demand me and I didn't know if I could handle it."

"Any big life transitions can be stressful for people, and stress does make people vulnerable to depression. We have a lot of contact early in the semesters. Sometimes suicide is an issue."

Julie Corkery, staff psychologist at University Counseling Service

"I didn't feel suicidal, but like I wanted to run away, guess, from the expectations put on myself. I wanted — to be somebody else — but I was bringing me down."

11 people d in bus crash

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Eleven people were killed and four injured when a bus went off a road after the driver fell asleep, said Monday.

The accident occurred Sunday morning in the foothills of the Andes Mountains near the mental capital of Huanca, 145 miles southeast of Lima.

The bus, belonging to the Cristobal transportation company, was traveling from Huanca to the neighboring department of Huancayo.

Transition to college may cause anxiety

When UI junior Amy Miller returned to the UI last fall, she felt depressed and insecure.

wanted to let go, forget it all and start over," she said.

Julie Corkery, a staff psychologist at University Counseling Service, said extreme transitions in life bring people down emotionally.

"Any big life transitions can be stressful for people, and stress does make people vulnerable to depression," she said. "We have a lot of contacts early in the semesters. Sometimes suicide is an issue."

The National Center for Health Statistics reported suicide is the third leading cause of death among people ages 15-24. Several studies by John Westefeld, an associate professor of psychological and quantitative foundations of education and director of the doctoral program in counseling psychology, reveals a depression trend in students coming to college for the first time.

A study of 962 college students surveyed by Westefeld in the late 1980s showed 4.5 percent of students questioned had attempted suicide and about 30 percent had contemplated suicide.

Resident Assistant and social work major Katie Pundzak said first-year students are particularly susceptible to depression.

"On my floor last year, I had quite a few women who were homesick," she said.

"They were all freshmen, and I think it had to do with change. They were very close to their parents. Being away was really hard."

Pundzak said more than five of her 45 residents were depressed.

"I thought one might have been suicidal," she said. "I think at universities this large, people from small towns really get lost. They're social-security numbers instead of people."

UI sophomore Rachel Harnagel, a former resident of Pundzak's, said she was extremely homesick when she came to college last year.

"It takes awhile to adjust," she said. "I sat in my room a lot; I put a lot into my studies. I cried a lot. I talked to my RA a lot. She was one of the things that pulled me through. The first month was absolutely the worst."

Corkery said counselors may aid a depressed student by helping them structure time, talking to them about making relationships and friendships, taking care of their bodies and assessing whether they want to stay at the UI.

"It depends on the level of threat that person is experiencing," she said.

"Ultimately, what's most important is that the student is safe."

Pundzak agreed interaction with people is especially therapeutic.

"I tried to get them involved a lot, tried to help them assimilate more easily, tried to keep in touch and give them responsibilities so they felt like they were doing something here," she said.

Wal-Mart display to help state's missing children

Nationwide Wal-Mart project to aid in finding state's missing kids

Customers at Wal-Mart Discount Cities, 1001 Highway 1 West, will now see a display of some of Iowa's missing children as they leave the store.

The display, located near the exit doors, will be dedicated at 9 a.m. today. Iowa City Police Department Chief R.J. Winkelhake will be on hand for the event.

The project, organized by the Wal-Mart risk control team, began in July and is part of a nationwide campaign by all Wal-Mart stores, said risk control team leader Marnett Meier. Each store will work with its own state and update the display monthly.

"We figure with 2,000 stores all over the country, we'll get a lot of exposure for missing children," Meier said.

Gas prices drop across Iowa

Associated Press

DES MOINES — Fuel prices across much of Iowa dropped slightly last month, as the average price of self-serve regular unleaded gasoline was $1.10 a gallon, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

The monthly survey showed unleaded gas prices ranged from $1.00 to $1.20 across Iowa. A year ago, the average price was $1.20. The average price of self-serve diesel fuel for August was $1.17, down 2 cents from July.

The Department of Natural Resources said that stagnant crude oil prices were keeping most petroleum prices steady.

Number enrolled on the rise at UI

Shawn Cole

The Daily Iowan

If the Pentacrest seemed especially crowded for the first day of classes, it may be because UI enrollment is up for the first time since the 1988 fall semester.

Preliminary figures indicate about 27,400 students are enrolled this year, including 200 to 300 more undergraduates, UI Registrar Jerald Dallam said.

About 200 more freshmen entered the UI this fall, because more applied and yield rates were higher, said Michael Barron, director of UI Admissions.

"We're pleased enrollment is up," Barron said. "We think this is a reflection of two considerations: cost and value. The cost of UI education is the lowest of the Big Ten schools, but the quality people will have is high."

Incoming freshmen were slightly better prepared, Barron said, and average ACT scores were up marginally.

The UI is making more of an effort to reach students off-campus — the political science department is offering a class statewide titled

"The Presidency" via fiber optics, and enrollment in the College of Business Administration's satellite master's programs in Cedar Rapids, the Quad Cities and Newton, Iowa, has risen considerably.

The numbers could fluctuate as students drop out and enroll late, Dallam said, but should remain fairly steady.

Students tackle lounge living

Shawn Cole

The Daily Iowan

Moving from her own bedroom in Hong Kong to a 10-bed, second-floor lounge in Burge Residence Hall was quite a change for UI junior and transfer student Ellen Chan, but she said she doesn't mind.

"The environment is OK and the air conditioning is good," she said. "But I think there is a lack of privacy; it's a big adjustment."

Only seven women live in the lounge now, but Chan said more are scheduled to enter, and the three dressers provided for the students are already full.

While most entering students have to cope with only one roommate, those in temporary housing will get to know up to nine others, which can be a mixed blessing.

"I would like to be in a double, so I could meet one person," she said. "I'm concerned about having a desk for homework. The room has just seven desks and it was originally intended to be a study lounge for second-floor residents."

Luckily, Chan has a Walkman, so she doesn't involve herself in the negotiations of which music to play — a potentially contentious issue in a room with seven people.

There are about 200 UI students like Chan, most of whom are transfer students or entering freshmen who didn't apply for housing early enough, said Margaret Van Oel, acting director of UI Residence Services.

At $2 per night, the room is quite cheap, but Van Oel said students looking to save money can't stay all year even though every attempt is made to make students as comfortable as possible as long as they're there.

"They are entitled to the same services and facilities (as those students in residence hall rooms)," Van Oel said. "They are issued keys to the lounge and can make their own local and long distance phone calls. We are even in the process of air-conditioning our lounges."

In fact, a sort of temporary culture exists among those in temporary housing, including the newspaper The Temporary Times, published by the UI Housing Office and featuring articles such as "Dealing with Loungemate Conflict."

Sometimes, said Van Oel, entire groups of loungemates will move into an apartment together, but generally students are moved into residence hall space as it becomes available.

"We've done a bit of moving already," Van Oel said. "And we certainly hope to have everybody out by Oct. 1. We will identify who the no-shows are in the next couple of days."

UI sophomore Nicole Scott said she was glad she got into temporary housing.

"It's good they offered temporary housing," she said. "I was accepted at the University of Arizona, but in the acceptance letter was a note saying no housing was available."

Scott was not upset she ended up in temporary housing because she said her mother didn't send in her application until June. In fact, Scott said she was pleased by the carpeting, air conditioning and kitchen.

"I really didn't know what to expect," she said. "I thought it might be in a gymnasium or something."

Like all those in temporary housing, UI junior Bridgett Hauert, a transfer student from Cornell College, is waiting patiently and hopefully for a room.

"My first choice was a single with a shared bath," she said. "It hasn't been too bad so far, but no one knows if they are going to get a room. I'd like to live on campus, so I'm not going to look for a private room."

Plane crash kills 3, injures 26 in Georgia

Dan Sewell
Associated Press

CARROLLTON, Ga. — A commuter plane flying from Georgia to Mississippi crashed in a hay field and cracked open Monday, killing the pilot and two others and injuring 26, many of whom fled the wreckage with their clothes on fire.

"I thought I was going to die and I was just hoping it was going to end real quick," a passenger, Chuck Pfisterer, told Atlanta television station WSB.

"And the next thing I knew, after sustaining bumps and bruises, I opened my eyes and saw that, hey, I'm alive, and the plane is in pieces and I'm hanging by my seat belt."

The Atlantic Southeast Airlines turboprop went down around midday about five miles from Carrollton, breaking into three large pieces as it plowed across the green field.

The pilot had radioed that he was having engine problems, and may have been trying to land at West Georgia Regional Airport, six to eight miles from the crash site, said Christy Williams, a Federal Aviation Administration spokeswoman.

But a passenger, Air Force Maj. Chuck LeMay, told WSB that, after passengers heard a "loud bang," they were told the plane would try to return to Atlanta for an emergency landing.

Polona Jeter, who lives nearby, said she saw the front of the plane "rolling and tumbling and on fire" as the aircraft came apart.

"I could see about 10 people getting out," she said. "Some were burning. They were running. People were trying to get them down and get it out."

One injured man arrived on her front porch and used the phone to leave a message for his wife in Maine. "His clothes were burned off. His undershorts were all that was left," she said. "The skin just rolled off his body."

The pilot and a passenger were dead at the scene, the FAA said. Atlanta Southeast Airlines President John Beiser said the pilot was from Macon, Ga., but would not release his name. The passenger who died at the scene was not immediately identified.

Another passenger died later at Erlanger Medical Center in Chattanooga, Tenn., hospital spokeswoman Carolyn Peak told WTVF-TV.

Peak identified the victim as

The 26 survivors were all hospitalized. At least 10 were in critical condition with burns.

The plane left a scarred path in the field indicating it barely cleared trees before hitting the ground.

"We were all lucky to get out of that," LeMay said. "There were some people who came out of the aircraft that were sitting behind where I was at. As they came out, they were on fire. People were telling them to roll, you know, on the ground."

The two-engine Brazilian-made Embraer 120 was about 15 minutes and 50 miles into a flight from Atlanta to Gulfport, Miss., a popular Gulf Coast gambling resort 362 miles away. It had 26 passengers and three crew members.

Ito scolds Simpson defense, rejects paperwork

Linda Deutsch
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The anxiously awaited disclosure of tape recordings in the O.J. Simpson trial was mired in confusion Monday. The judge rejected defense paperwork as incoherent and a prosecutor said some of the most volatile material had been destroyed.

Although the judge turned away the bungled defense motion, his ruling included quotations confirming that Detective Mark Fuhrman repeatedly used a racial slur, advocated police brutality and said one of his superiors "should be shot."

In an unusual written ruling heaping scorn on Simpson's high-powered defense team, the judge said he searched the transcripts for 10 incendiary Fuhrman statements that were cited in the motion by their page numbers.

But when Superior Court Judge Lance Ito tried to correlate the recordings with transcripts, he couldn't find the quoted passages and eventually gave up. He blasted the defense for submitting such shabby paperwork.

"Given the fact that there are more than a dozen attorneys working for the defense, it is not too much to ask that there be some basic correlation between the quoted proffer, the reported transcript and the audio tapes," Ito wrote. "The proffer is incoherent. It will not be further considered by this court in its current form."

A proffer is a written offer of proof to support the admissibility of evidence. The defense has said it offered Ito 30 separate racially charged statements by Fuhrman, but the judge sealed the documents.

Ito left an opening for the defense to refile its papers — which Simpson's lead attorney said would be done — and warned sequestered jurors yet another delay might be looming.

To complicate matters further, prosecutor Marcia Clark asserted the reason the judge couldn't find some cited passages was because some taped material had been destroyed. Those passages, she said, are some of the most inflammatory because they involve racial epithets.

Clark is expected to oppose use of any passages unavailable on tape. She will also fight to keep large sections of the tapes away from the jury.

The defense wants to use the tapes to discredit Fuhrman, who testified about finding a bloody glove on Simpson's property that matched one near the slashed bodies of ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Gold-

Bus bo Hamas

JERUSALEM — An militant, possibly a woman, suicide bomb Monday through two crowded Israeli buses headed for University. The blast shattered the bus into a twisted metal and killed five people, including an American tourist.

The police investigation on two mutilated and unidentifiable bodies. Police Chief Amichai Eliaz said the condition of the body suggested she could have been holding the TNT bomb.

"I think it's about time the government does something to stop this killing."

Avi Shlomai, 28-year-old protester

"I could see body parts where," said Judy Shulman, a Cornell University student who was one of at least three others wounded in the blast. "There was blood all over the place."

The Muslim militant group Hamas claimed responsibility for the blast, which injured 100 people during morning rush hour in Jerusalem and suspension of Israel-Palestine talks.

In a leaflet issued Monday, Hamas said: "The Israeli government will pay for the war against Islam and Muslims." Hamas, which opposes Israel's occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, in settlements, and a big victory in representing Palestinian interests.

The dead were identified as Davenney, a Hebrew scholar from Woodbridge, Conn., and a 26-year-old Israeli, Noam Eizenman, an Israeli man.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said the Israeli government will pay for the war against Islam and Muslims.

The time has come to end the suffering of the Palestinian people, those who wish to find a peaceful solution," Rabin said.

"With those who want peace, we shall continue to fight. And with those who want war, we shall fight with strength."

Bus bomb kills 5, Hamas responsible

Hilary Appelman
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — An Islamic militant, possibly a woman, set off a suicide bomb Monday that tore through two crowded Israeli commuter buses headed for Hebrew University. The blast shredded one bus into a twisted metal cobweb and killed five people, including an American tourist.

The police investigation focused on two mutilated and unidentified bodies. Police Chief Arieh Amit said the condition of the woman's body suggested she could have been holding the TNT bomb.

"I think it's about time the government does something to stop the killing."

Avi Shlomai, 28-year-old protester

"I could see body parts everywhere," said Judy Shulewitz, a Cornell University student who was one of at least three Americans wounded in the explosion. "There was blood all over the place."

The Muslim militant group Hamas claimed responsibility for the blast, which injured more than 100 people during morning rush hour in Jerusalem and forced the suspension of Israel-PLO talks on expanding Palestinian self-rule.

In a leaflet issued in Syria, Hamas said: "The Israeli government will pay for the war declared against Islam and Muslims." Hamas, which opposes the peace talks, has demanded a complete Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank and Gaza Strip, including all settlements, and a bigger role for itself in representing Palestinians.

The dead were identified as Joan Davenny, a Hebrew school teacher from Woodbridge, Conn.; Rivka Cohen, a 26-year-old Israeli; and Noam Eizenman, an Israeli policeman.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin suspended peace talks with the PLO and ordered the West Bank and Gaza Strip sealed, barring Palestinians from traveling to Israel.

Rabin said the talks would resume after the Israeli victims' funerals which, according to Jewish tradition, must be held as quickly as possible.

"The time has come to distinguish who are the murderers among the Palestinians and who are those who wish to find a political solution," Rabin said.

"With those who want a political situation, we shall cooperate. ... And with those who murder Israelis in order to murder the peace, we shall fight with all our strength."

Foreign Minister Shimon Peres

said the suspension of peace talks with the PLO would not delay an agreement, which negotiators have said they hope to reach by early September.

But the break in talks was certain to make it more difficult to resolve differences between the two sides by next month. It was the latest in a series of postponements plaguing efforts to reach agreement on the second phase of Palestinian autonomy. The delays also limit the extent to which a troop withdrawal can be implemented before Israeli elections, scheduled for November 1996.

Public anger at the bombing will also make it more difficult for Rabin to make concessions to the Palestinians.

Hundreds of people protested near the bombing site immediately after the blast and again Monday night, yelling, "Rabin is a murderer!" and "Rabin is a traitor!"

"I think it's about time the government does something to stop the killing," said Avi Shlomai, 28.

PLO chief Yasser Arafat denounced the bombing and accused Iran of funding Islamic extremists in the West Bank and Gaza. "I will chop off every hand that gets money from outside the Palestinian arena, or orders from Iran or (elsewhere)," he said.

A statement issued from President Clinton's vacation headquarters in Jackson Hole, Wyo., sent "heartfelt condolences to the families of the victims of today's bombing."

"These enemies of peace will not succeed," it said, adding: "The president, in the name of the American people, joins with the people of Israel in renewing our determination to work together in the cause of peace."

The bomb exploded in the back of a bus in the northern Jerusalem neighborhood of Ramat Eshkol as it was passing another bus during morning rush hour. The explosion set fire to the second bus and blew out its windows.

Both buses were headed for Hebrew University's Mount Scopus campus, passing police headquarters along the way, and many of the passengers were students and policemen riding to work.

Police were investigating whether the unidentified woman killed in the blast was Alia Abu Ghalya, 20, from the West Bank village of Bethany. Family members told The Associated Press she left home secretly in the middle of the night Sunday and did not return.

The Hamas leaflet said the bomber would remain anonymous, but used the masculine form in referring to its "martyr."

In the leaflet, Hamas also claimed responsibility for the first time for a July 24 bomb attack in the Tel Aviv suburb of Ramat Gan that killed six Israelis and the suicide bomber.

Israeli police officers in Jerusalem on Monday drag away a right-wing demonstrator who, along with several hundred Israelis, blocked traffic and skirmished with Israeli police. The demonstrators were protesting Monday's bus bomb attack in which five people were killed and 100 injured and Israel's peace negotiations with the Palestinians.

Hussein backs down as diplomats defect

Jamal Halaby
Associated Press

AMMAN, Jordan — Saddam Hussein's regime in Iraq has abandoned its confrontational stance toward the United Nations following the defection of several key officials to Jordan, the top U.N. weapons inspector said Monday.

The defectors, in interviews with The Associated Press, predicted a popular uprising was imminent in Iraq and said Saddam had been planning to invade Kuwait and Saudi Arabia this month. They said he backed down only because of the defections.

Since the defections, the Iraqis have turned over documents detailing their secret biological weapons program.

Rolf Ekeus, who heads the team of U.N. weapons inspectors assigned to Iraq, said he was surprised by the size of the germ warfare program and sophisticated delivery system disclosed in the documents handed over in Baghdad last week.

"We are talking about a very dangerous capability which had been assembled and which had been concealed," Ekeus said Monday on CNN.

He did not say when the weapons were developed or whether they were still in existence. Experts were still sifting through the documents, he said.

Ekeus will meet in Jordan with the top Iraqi defector, Lt. Gen. Hussein Kamel al-Majid, who headed Iraq's secret weapons programs.

Despite their history of close involvement in Saddam's regime, the defectors have sought to portray themselves as the new vanguard of Iraqi opposition.

Ekeus said Monday in Amman that since the defections, Iraq was moving "in the direction of cooperation with the Security Council and ... away from the type of threats, confrontation and making offenses it had previously adopted."

Error corrected during 'ABC's World News Tonight'

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — ABC News settled two multimillion-dollar libel suits Monday by apologizing to Philip Morris and R.J. Reynolds for reporting the companies manipulated the amount of nicotine in their cigarettes.

ABC's "Day One" newsmagazine reported in February and March 1994 that tobacco companies including Philip Morris Cos. and R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. "spiked" cigarettes with extra nicotine to addict smokers.

"ABC News agrees that we should not have reported that Philip Morris and Reynolds add significant amounts of nicotine from outside sources," Diane Sawyer, one of the anchorpersons of "Day One," said midway into Monday night's broadcast of "World News Tonight."

"That was a mistake that was not deliberate on the part of ABC but for which we accept responsibility and which requires correction," she said, quoting most of a statement issued by ABC. "We apologize to our audience, Philip Morris and Reynolds."

The statement was to be read in its entirety during the telecast of a National Football League preseason game Monday night, and again during prime-time hours Thursday — the night "Day One" airs.

Sawyer's reporting on the settlement on Monday's news broadcast was not part of the settlement, said ABC spokeswoman Patricia Matson.

R.J. Reynolds and Philip Morris denied adding nicotine for any reason during manufacturing, and said their finished cigarettes have less nicotine than in the raw tobacco from which they are made.

Space program to contract shuttle launch operations

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA expects to hand over operations of its space shuttles to a single business within a few years in an attempt to reduce costs and increase responsibility.

"We have a safe program. We have checks and balances," NASA's space flight chief Wayne Little told industry officials Monday.

"But we don't have as much focus, the accountability, as we would like to have, and we're going to achieve that as we move into this restructuring."

NASA's four shuttles will be even safer once a single contractor takes over the $3 billion-a-year program and the space agency focuses more on research and development, Little said.

Little insisted it will be a "wide-open" competition even though shuttle-contracting giants Lockheed Martin and Rockwell International already have joined forces to compete for the prime job. Their newly formed venture is called United Space Alliance.

NASA expects to choose a single contractor within a year or so.

American automakers boost customer confidence

DETROIT (AP) — Consumer satisfaction with American cars and vans has grown since last year while satisfaction with Japanese brands has declined, the American Society for Quality Control said Monday.

The group's quarterly American Customer Satisfaction Index also shows the auto industry is better able to satisfy customers than the national average of 40 industries and services measured.

"These numbers show the auto industry is building a great financial asset," said Claes Fornell, an economist at the University of Michigan Business School, which cosponsors the index with the society. "But clearly, competition is tough and the temptation to increase short-term profits at the expense of customer satisfaction is very real."

Fornell said the nation's slowing economy can contribute to declining customer satisfaction by forcing companies to boost productivity at the expense of quality.

And declining quality, in turn, can be another factor in slowing the economy.

"Producing more with fewer resources doesn't necessarily mean we're better off, if that 'more' results in lower quality products and increased unemployment," he said.

The index, based on 50,000 interviews a year, measures Americans' satisfaction with goods and services from 200 companies and government agencies in 40 industries.

secretary until 14 years ago, when she was diagnosed with the progressive disease, which attacks the central nervous system, said her sister.

Judy Cohan held a brief news conference and read from two letters by her sister, one dated July 10, the other Aug. 9.

"As half my body has been dead for the past 14 months, I and I alone have decided to put the rest of my body at peace and my entire body out of the uncontrollable pain," she read from the first letter.

In the second letter, she said as "things went from bad to worse and I was nothing more than a bed veg, I knew it was time to say, 'See ya.' ... I know the people who care understand, and that's all that matters."

The Oakland County prosecutor's office refused to comment Monday, saying it would await the results of the police investigation.

Fieger wouldn't say where Cohan died, but said she was taken to William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak, a Detroit suburb, not far from where Kevorkian lives.

There, a security guard spotted the body in a car left parked near the emergency entrance in an area reserved for doctors, said hospital spokeswoman Colette Stimmell.

She said a doctor and a nurse declared the woman dead at 7:20 a.m., and the body was left in the car for investigators.

The body was removed about 11 a.m.

"As half my body has been dead for the past 14 months, I and I alone have decided to put the rest of my body at peace and my entire body out of the uncontrollable pain."

text from a letter written by Esther Cohan describing her illness

Fieger said there was a letter with Cohan "asking them to address her needs." No other information from the letter was immediately available. Stimmell said there was a note in the car, but no one from the hospital moved or read it.

The late-model car had a temporary paper license taped in the back window, but police covered that with cardboard.

Kevorkian did not attend Fieger's news conference, and the attorney would not say where he was.

The most recent previous death attended by Kevorkian, according to Fieger, was in June at an "obituary" he opened in a former hardware store. Erika Garcellano, 60, from Kansas City, Mo., died in the building after inhaling carbon monoxide. She had amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, also called Lou Gehrig's disease.

The building, named the Margo Janus Mercy Clinic after Kevorkian's late sister, was closed days after Garcellano's death after landlords said they hadn't known for what the building was to be used when they rented it out.

Kevorkian captured the world's attention when he first supplied a homemade "suicide machine" in 1990 that was used to inject lethal drugs into an Alzheimer's patient who had sought his help in dying.

Murder charges in early cases were thrown out because Michigan had no law against assisted suicide. When the Legislature responded by writing one, Kevorkian ignored it and was arrested several more times.

Kevorkian lost his medical license over his crusade.

but over the past few years it's been fairly consistent."

Sixteen registers and a staff of more than 150 people prepared to meet the UI's 27,000 returning students at the bookstore. Monday was definitely the worst day so far.

Students agreed last week was the time to buy.

UI junior Lisa Millonzi, who bought books Sunday, said she was surprised by how fast the lines moved.

"This is kind of strange," she said. "Last year when I came, you couldn't move, it was so packed. It's kind of nice not to dodge people and fight for books."

Lines at Iowa Book and Supply, 8 S. Clinton St., also moved quickly, UI freshman Tonya Zitterich said.

"I didn't think it was crowded," she said. "My friend said you run down every day and there are lines and lines, and your books are never there. I was scared."

Worries about buying books and settling in prompted some freshmen to arrive on campus last week.

"I moved in early to get settled in and avoid lines," UI freshman Michelle Rogers said. "I heard the lines would be long."

Iowa Book and Supply and the University Book Store are notorious for long lines and books selling out quickly, UI freshman Shafeeq Patel said.

"I heard that it would be packed," he said. "(But) I only waited a couple minutes in line."

Herbert would not estimate how much the University Book Store has made thus far from sales.

"We're dealing with 27,000 students, and every student spends $50 to hundreds of dollars per class," he said. "You can figure it out."

streets, Ryan and her fellow freshman friend, Catherine Maxse, found their class in 6 minutes flat — not bad for beginners.

After sitting down and scanning the auditorium for men, Ryan and Maxse watched the professor stride in to introduce the course: Judeo-Christian Tradition. The room of 450 students fell silent, and Ryan sat ready with her new "fat little notebook" and pen.

Entertaining and teaching Ryan in her first class was Professor Jay Holstein — and he was his traditional, witty self.

"... and my assumption is that none of you are Hitlers — and if I'm wrong, I'm in deep shit!" Holstein said.

Ryan said Holstein didn't remind her of the high school teachers from whom she was learning just a few short months ago, but it didn't faze her.

"I'm not scared of him; he's just pretty loud," she said. "He's a fanatic, but he's really cool."

After surviving the morning, Ryan had lunch courtesy of the Burge Residence Hall Food Service. She wasn't impressed.

"My roast beef was dry, and the salad was pretty bad," she said.

After landing a job at the Law Library, Ryan headed to Van Allen Hall for Modern Astronomy. It was there Ryan first discovered the fold-out armrest on which to write.

"Oh, cool," she said. "You know, these things are pretty darn handy!"

With that new piece of information topping off the school day, Ryan headed home with relief.

"Everything went pretty good," she said. "I feel a lot better about going to class, and I didn't get that much homework for tonight."

So with a few minor setbacks and an occasional attack of the butterflies, Ryan's first day was a success. Although she had her ears "blown" by Holstein, managed through a dry sandwich for lunch and still didn't know all the bar scene lingo, Ryan was lucky enough not to have been embarrassed too much.

However, tomorrow's another day.

"I'll study more tonight," he said. "Although this probably won't last more than a week."

Selfless UI graduate student Susan Reimensnyder said she plans on spending at least five hours in the library, even though it was her second home over the summer.

"I have a class in the morning and a class at night, so I'm doing some work for my friends right now," she said. "I'm a graduate stu-

Commit a felony, become a star

Mike Tyson has become a trendy subject for conversation lately. Should we cheer for him? How much respect should we give a convicted rapist who happens to be a great fighter?

The prevailing attitude among those who make up the "politically correct" view is that we should in no way root for Tyson. To many, he appears to be nothing more than a thug who raped an innocent girl. Why root for a rapist?

The reaction to Tyson's return has been overwhelming. He was greeted by 500 spectators in Harlem at a salute set up by Tyson's promoter, Don King. Meanwhile, 75 members of African-Americans Against Violence protested abuse toward women in response to the Tyson parade.

But perhaps most telling was the enormous TV audience that watched Tyson beat an embarrassingly inept fighter in a mere 89 seconds in his comeback fight on Saturday. Tyson earned $25 million for the fight. That's $280,898.88 per second.

Tyson's popularity had begun to fade at the time he was convicted of raping 18-year-old Desiree Washington. His skills as a boxer had greatly diminished, and many felt Tyson was finished.

Thus, it is amazing Tyson is now a bigger celebrity than ever. Apparently, his rape conviction has made him more popular than any fighter in history.

But the real issue is not Mike Tyson as a human being and his morality or lack of morality. In actuality, Tyson has become a metaphor for the problems of our country.

POINT OF VIEW

Mike Tyson is a bigger celebrity than ever—his conviction and grossly hyped return bout have made him the most talked about fighter in history.

He is a mirror for our times, representing the struggle between the sexes, the war between the races and the American myth of rags to riches.

A strange thing happens when a person is caught in the spectrum of the media. That person ceases to be a person to our media-hungry society and is reduced to an image.

Apparently, Tyson is trapped in this spectrum. As a human being, Tyson is a very complex individual. For much of his life he has been a victim. He was brought up in a terrible part of Brooklyn without a father to look up to. His life took on some form of meaning through boxing, which in turn used him for his immense talents (enter Don King).

He has also certainly been a victimizer. He brutalizes opponents in the ring and apparently treats women with the same lack of respect.

Many were surprised to learn of Tyson's conversion to Islam and his extensive studies in prison. While many were shocked to learn he indeed has some brains, those who have followed Tyson have seen his intelligence from the beginning of his career.

But now our fascination with Tyson has less to do with Tyson and more with ourselves. Indeed Tyson represents the core of our society. He represents the war between women and men. He represents the war between races. He represents violence. He represents the American myth of rags to riches.

White America is frightened, yet fascinated by Tyson. Certainly, white America feels threatened by any black man with Tyson's immense wealth and power. We are also mesmerized by his "larger than life" persona.

Concern for the rape victim has been minimal throughout this saga. She is a mere footnote in the Tyson story.

Instead, white America is obsessed with the symbol of Tyson. Many are waiting for Tyson to fall. Or, more appropriately, waiting for the black man to fall.

The facts of the rape case are no longer that important for our society. Did he really do it? Only Washington and Tyson know for certain. In addition, whether Tyson fails or succeeds isn't really that important either.

More important is the way we perceive Tyson. Because that is the way we perceive our society.

Mike Tyson is just a man. A flawed man? Certainly. Somehow, however, this man has brought out a flood of emotions on a number of issues.

Faulkner detracts from real discrimination issues

After 2 1/2 years, Shannon Faulkner made it through only one day of "hell week" at the Citadel before she dropped out.

She was quoted as saying, "I don't think there's any dishonor in leaving." There probably wouldn't have been if her travails hadn't received so much media attention. What started out as an ostensibly noble quest is now reduced to the fact that she — unlike most male cadets — couldn't hack the rigorous training.

This case should have been largely ignored all along. It diverts us from the real issues of sex discrimination. Gender equality should not be based on physical endurance.

The real issue of gender discrimination concerns matters of the intellect. For hundreds of years, women were assumed to be inferior to men in virtually every way, including mental capacity. Women were thought to be incapable of making rational decisions. They were refused the right to vote by the founding fathers on these grounds. It is from this and other precedents from the Enlightenment era that women have been denied equal opportunity in employment and education in America.

POINT OF VIEW

Sex discrimination cannot be eliminated in physical contest.

ty in employment and education in America.

The issue is whether women deserve equal treatment in endeavors that involve thinking, not trudging through swamps in 100-degree heat. Are women mentally sound enough to vote? Seventy-five years ago we decided that they were and now they vote more than men do.

There is little doubt that women are, in general, physically weaker than men. The Faulkner case ultimately regresses to this trivial non-contest. If the assumption were otherwise, then why would there be laws against beating women? Why not just say, "Well, missy, with proper exercise you might be able to at least make it a draw."

Many women are subjugated to demeaning, sexist attitudes and actions and are forced to put up with them to advance a larger cause.

Often their efforts involve just keeping a job. Recently in Washington, a Republican senator insinuated that a female employee who was forcibly kissed by Bob Packwood actually liked it. Then, in true sexist form, the Republican committee asked why she continued to work for him for six more years if she didn't like it. She responded, "Because he was the only pro-choice senator from my state, and I continued to care deeply about the advancement of women's rights."

We must not let the Faulkner case divert our attention from the recent Republican precedent of eliminating affirmative action. California Gov. Pete Wilson, champion of the "level playing field" fallacy, has tried to obscure the issue of gender discrimination. Women will undoubtedly be affected by these changes. Although women have advanced under affirmative action, the field is most certainly not level. Not unless you let the Bob Packwoods of this country kiss you.

7 hints for the hungry

So you're back from a summer at mom's, or maybe you've just escaped. Either way, you're at the UI, you're hungry and you don't know where to go. Well, we have the answers for every occasion:

Best lunch buffet: Godfather's Pizza, 207 E. Washington St. The best taco pizza in the world, dessert pizza, bread sticks and potato wedges are highlights of this quick and fairly cheap buffet.

Best dinner buffet: The taco bar (Tuesday nights) at Gringo's Mexican Restaurant, 115 E. College St. Hard and soft shell tacos and every kind of filling you could want constitute this popular buffet.

Best downtown entree: Chicken fettuccine at Vito's, 118 E. College St. Slices of chicken combined with fettuccine noodles and a cream sauce make this dish the big winner of Vito's menu.

Best post-bar snack: Gyros from George's Best Gyros cart in the Pedestrian Mall. The smell draws all the drunk, hungry bachelors in for the meat-filled pita.

Best between-class snack: Anything from Cookies & More, Old Capital Mall. The huge, cheap, delicious cookies will keep your stomach from growling during your chemistry lecture.

Best "healthy" fast food sandwich: Light grilled chicken deluxe from Arby's, Old Capital Mall. Unbreaded chicken grilled in a surprisingly good seasoning make this under-300 calorie sandwich a good alternative to hamburgers.

Best sub: A No. 4 from Big Mike's Super Subs, 20 S. Clinton St. Lots of turkey on an extra long, crispy bun. An added benefit is Mike's delivers.

Ruby Ridge hearings: A juicy opportunity for bickering

The klieg lights barely had time to cool in the wake of hearings on the conduct of officials serving a warrant to search the Waco compound, when a startling announcement came in a similar case.

Hearings on the FBI's 1992 siege of the Ruby Ridge home of white separatist Randy Weaver were set last week for Sept. 6, with the federal government agreeing to pay Weaver's three surviving children $1 million each. Weaver will receive a $100,000 check. Under the settlement's terms, the government admits no wrongdoing in the affair.

But there are solid indications that the operation at Ruby Ridge got out of hand. On Aug. 21, 1992, Weaver's 14-year-old son, Samuel, and Deputy U.S. Marshal William Degan were killed in an exchange of gunfire. Weaver's wife, Vicki, was shot the following day as she held an infant in her arms, when the FBI shot at an armed friend of the family outside the home. Their gunfire pierced the door behind which Vicki Weaver stood.

The marshals were there to arrest Weaver on weapons charges, operating under unusual rules of engagement: they were told to shoot any armed males on sight.

Those facts indicate a volatile situation. Still, the rhetoric filling the air around both the Waco and Ruby Ridge incidents is extremely inflammatory.

Militia members on the Internet label Attorney General Janet Reno a murderer (She was in no way involved with Ruby Ridge. It occurred at the tail end of the Just-Say-No Reagan/Bush regency). The deaths are also mysteriously laid at the feet of President Clinton, whose name most militia members sell with a "K."

The majority of those clamoring for hearings on Ruby Ridge and leveling charges are gun happy, to put it kindly. They are suspicious of government to the point of manifesting paranoid delusions. The fact is, Ruby Ridge has been the subject of four internal FBI investigations, and the agency is currently conducting a fifth. Larry Potts — the demoted deputy FBI director who allegedly gave the standing orders to shoot and then covered it up by destroying Bureau documents — has been removed from such operations. Five agents involved are currently suspended with pay while the investigation continues.

In short, it sounds as if the usual rules for cleaning one's house are being followed.

The support for another round of taxpayer-financed hearings in which federal agents and agencies will be ridiculed comes from the highest conservative ranks. Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., will chair the September hearings on Ruby Ridge.

In the wake of the settlement, Specter said it showed "some real government concern" and reiterated the need for hearings. There was none of the usual Republican revolutionary talk of the evils of lawyers running amok. There was only a nudge and a wink over the payment to Weaver, and what looked like the beginning of a trail of drool along Specter's chops as he contemplated the juicy opportunities for partisan bickering his hearings will no doubt afford.

Chances for peace diminish with attack near Grozny

Chris Bird

ARGUN, Russia — Russian forces stormed a Chechen town on Monday after dozens of rebels seized its police station, further dampening hopes for peace in the breakaway republic.

Russian planes, helicopters and artillery launched the assault on Argun, nine miles east of the capital, Grozny, sending columns of smoke billowing high above the town.

Troops, backed by more than 100 tanks and armored vehicles, stormed the burning police station. Shooting rocked the center of Argun for hours as combat helicopters circled overhead.

Tass news agency reported intense firefights two miles from the police station several hours after the attack.

The Russian military said late Monday its forces had retaken the police station, run by the Moscow-backed Chechen administration.

The claim could not immediately be verified, and Russian claims of military accomplishments often prove premature or false.

Four Russian servicemen were reported wounded. Some 200 rebels seized the police station late Sunday night — in defiance of a cease-fire signed July 30.

It was one of the most violent clashes in Chechnya in months and came just days after the long-debated pact finally appeared to be getting off the ground to end the 8-month-old war.

Chechen guerrillas began disarming last week, and on Saturday the first unit of Russian troops pulled out of Chechnya.

Sunday's attack brought new tensions to the southern republic. Monday morning, rebel gunmen took up positions on rooftops and dug a trench near the police station as Russian tanks rumbled into Argun.

The rebel operation was led by Alaudin Khamzadov, who authorities say was charged with eight murders — including that of his mother-in-law — before joining the troops of rebel Chechen President Dzhokhar Dudayev.

Women die in blaze set for freedom

Paul Alexander
Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — Young women desperate to escape from a church-run reform school apparently set fires in their rooms Monday, hoping to flee when guards unlocked the dormitory doors.

The early morning fires swept out of control, however, and 37 women died before the doors were opened to let firemen in.

Many of the dead were packed into restrooms, and news reports said bloodstains and fingernail scratches on the barred windows showed their frantic efforts to escape the flames.

The victims — all but three in their teens — either burned to death or suffocated. One was only 13. Sixteen others were injured.

The school had a history of escape attempts and was known for strict discipline of the women, most of them runaways caught working in brothels and bars. It was run by the Korean Presbyterian Church in Yongin, 35 miles south of Seoul.

Police questioned security guards on why it took so long to unlock the doors, after firefighters complained they could not get in before the victims suffocated.

Lee Yun-kun, the chief police investigator, said the fires were planned by a group wanting to escape the center where courts sent them for 10 months of vocational training as hairstylists or tailors.

Diaries found in the wreckage of the Kyonggi Women's Technical School told a bleak tale.

One girl wrote of beatings and said she wanted to escape or die.

Another wrote of exhaustion and fear.

"They beat me again today ... Life here is so hard that I don't think I can make it through. Sometimes I want to cry. I want to escape ... I want to go out. I thought again about killing myself," one teen-age girl wrote in her diary, which was shown on television.

"It's stifling here. I want to see my friends outside ... God, please help me! I am so tired. I want to tell it all to Mom next time she comes to see me, but I am afraid to worry her," another girl — whom the Hankook Ilbo newspaper identified only as a 17-year-old Kim — wrote in her diary.

Refugees resist removal

Chege Mbitru
Associated Press

NAIROBI, Kenya — An estimated 26,000 Rwandan and Burundian refugees fled their eastern Zaire camps to surrounding hills Monday to escape troops who were rounding them up for a forceful repatriation, the United Nations said.

It was not immediately clear if Zaire planned to expel all the estimated 1 million Rwandan refugees who fled to Zaire last year.

Peter Kessler, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees in Kenya, said the refugees who fled to the hills were around the town of Uvira, near the Burundi border.

Fernando del Mundo, a spokesman for the UNHCR in Geneva, said close to 3,000 refugees were expelled during the day.

Another 140 Rwandan prisoners were taken from a jail in Bukavu and handed over to Rwandan authorities, said Francis Kpatinde, a UNHCR spokesman in Geneva.

Kessler said close to 400 Burundians were taken from a camp at Uvira, which prompted the exodus to the forested hills. A hundred Rwandans in Uvira were expelled.

"The situation is very tense," del Mundo said. "The refugees have complained of being robbed and beaten by Zairian soldiers."

"(The refugees) have also said the soldiers torched their huts, though the soldiers say the refugees did so themselves," del Mundo said.

GORAZDE BOMBING KILLS 3 GIRLS

U.N. fails to retaliate for Serb shelling

Liam McDowall
Associated Press

SARAJEVO — The Bosnian government protested to the United Nations for failing to order airstrikes when Serb shells slammed into the center of the Gorazde "safe area," killing three girls.

Last month, after Bosnian Serbs overran two U.N.-protected zones, NATO vowed to make a "substantial and decisive response" to any Serb attack or threat against Gorazde. NATO ambassadors approved the contingency plans for allied bombing on July 26.

But when a shell killed the girls in the Muslim enclave in eastern Bosnia on Sunday, NATO did not retaliate.

"I wonder when the United Nations will stop closing its eyes and ask what must happen before the United Nations and NATO will respond adequately to this terrorism," Foreign Minister Muhamed Sacirbey wrote in a letter to the U.N. Security Council, published today by Sarajevo's main newspaper, Oslobodjenje.

U.N. officials said the attack was not enough to warrant airstrikes.

"One shell, no matter how lethal, does not constitute an attack against a U.N. 'safe area' which would merit a response from NATO," U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivanko said in Sarajevo.

A Western diplomat, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said no airstrikes were ordered in part because the United Nations did not want to endanger peacekeepers trying to withdraw from Gorazde.

Rebel Serbs have refused to let 90 Ukrainian peacekeepers withdraw from the enclave, and a convoy carrying their equipment has been stalled at the enclave's border for four days.

The United Nations ordered the Ukrainians to pull out for fear they might be taken hostage. The 180 British peacekeepers in Gorazde were to begin withdrawing in two weeks.

"One shell, no matter how lethal, does not constitute an attack against a U.N. 'safe area' which would merit a response from NATO," U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivanko said.

The troubles came amid increasing skepticism about a U.S. peace plan that last week had raised hopes of an imminent end to the war.

Those hopes were dashed over the weekend, after three of the U.S. diplomats negotiating the plan were killed in a crash outside Sarajevo.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke, who leads the team, had indicated talks with Serbia and Croatia last week were successful.

But on Sunday there were indications that the mission had fared less well than previously believed during talks with President Slobodan Milosevic of Serbia, the region's main power broker.

Sacirbey said Milosevic is refusing to commit to a U.S. demand that Bosnia, Serbia and Croatia recognize one another.

"One of the essential elements of the American initiative was three-part mutual recognition," Sacirbey said. "I think it's safe to say that we have not reached that commitment from President Milosevic."

A Western diplomat, who spoke on condition of anonymity, confirmed that Milosevic had refused to recognize Croatia, presumably because the political climate in Serbia has hardened since the Croatian army routed its rebel Serb minority earlier this month, sending more than 150,000 refugees into Serbia.

The Serbian leader also was upset because an earlier plan would have lifted U.N. economic sanctions on Yugoslavia in exchange for recognizing Bosnia, while the new plan would require him to recognize both Bosnia and Croatia, the diplomat said.

The American team headed back to Washington Monday with the bodies of their colleagues.

"No one can replace them, but we will reconstitute the team," Holbrooke said during a stop at Ramstein Air Base in Germany, adding that the new team would return to the former Yugoslavia on Aug. 28.

Indiana's Smith injures hamstring in practice

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana sophomore tailback Alex Smith pulled a hamstring Monday morning as the Hoosiers opened two-a-day practices.
Smith, IU's leading rusher last season with 1,475 yards, could be out for up to 10 to 14 days, IU trainer Kip Smith said.

Senior Sean Glover moves up to the starting tailback slot, with junior Michael Batts at the No. 2 position. Batts is returning from knee surgery after being injured in the opening game last season.

Also, IU announced sophomore wide receiver Brian Bruner has decided to give up football. Bruner, who caught nine passes for 82 yards last season, was expected to back up Ajamu Stoner and Eric Matthews this season.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — In a decision devoid of drama, coach Butch Davis selected fifth-year senior Ryan Collins as the Miami Hurricanes' starting quarterback Monday.
Collins beat out sophomore Ryan Clement and second-year freshman Scott Covington. He'll direct a new offense for Miami's new coach beginning with the season opener Sept. 2 at UCLA.

Sosa muscles up to earn NL's weekly honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago's Sammy Sosa, who hit five homers last week, was named the NL player of the week Monday.
The Cubs' outfielder hit .400 (12-for-30) in seven games last week with 14 RBI and nine runs scored. His slugging percentage was .933, and he homered in four consecutive games.

Sosa leads the Cubs with 24 homers and 84 RBI.

In Chicago's 26-7 victory over the Colorado Rockies last Friday, Sosa had four hits, including a home run that was the 10,000th in Cubs history.

Others considered for the weekly honor were Pittsburgh's Kevin Young, Los Angeles' Ismael Valdes and Cincinnati's Barry Larkin and Dave Burba.

Violent weather forces Georgia Dome repairs

ATLANTA (AP) — Thankful football fans had cleared out of the Georgia Dome before tons of rain and water came crashing down, engineers and officials worried Monday about making repairs before the Atlanta Falcons season opener Sept. 3.
"It's got to be safe," Falcons spokesman Charlie Taylor said. "They will have to come up with assurances."

The dome, which will house basketball, gymnastics and handball during the 1996 Olympics, was damaged by heavy rain and high winds early Sunday, shortly after the Falcons defeated Cleveland 19-10 in an exhibition game.

The storm, with winds reported as high as 51 mph, ripped holes in four Teflon-coated fiberglass panels of the stadium's roof between 1 a.m. and 1:30 a.m., said Dome spokeswoman Kelli Cannon.

Both sides essential for success

Hawks bring full deck to Big Ten table

Chris Snider
The Daily Iowan

Don Patterson may be presented with a problem this season, but you won't hear him complaining.

Iowa's offensive coordinator watched his unit score 98 points in their final two games of 1994, which must have had Patterson wishing for the new season. With kickoff for 1995 just a few weeks away, Patterson must really be excited considering the bulk of the offensive talent that exploded for the 98 points is returning.

With a list of stars including, Scott Slutzker, Sedrick Shaw, Tavian Banks, Willie Guy, Demo Odems, Tim Dwight, Rodney Filer, Matt Sherman, Ryan Driscoll and Derek Price all competing to touch the ball, Patterson knows distribution could get difficult.

"It'd be easier if we had a couple of footballs rather than just one," said Patterson, who isn't worried that this will become a problem for his offense. "These are some great young men and they're very team oriented."

"They understand that one game they may catch eight passes and you lose and you feel badly about the game, and the next week you may catch two passes and we win. It doesn't really matter how many you catch. The main thing is that you win. We really emphasize that. We're looking for the complete player."

Distributing the football to these players will be Matt Sherman's task.

Sherman started two games last season, throwing for 736 yards and six touchdowns. Most impressively, he completed more than 71 percent of his pass attempts.

Close behind Sherman is Ryan Driscoll, who started six games last season and threw for 1,018 yards before going down with a broken collarbone.

Hawkeye 'D' is a big question mark

Mike Triplett
The Daily Iowan

If the Hawkeye offense is the exclamation point, then the defense is certainly the question mark.

An injured and inexperienced defense surrendered 61 points to Penn State, 42 to Minnesota and 40 to Oregon last year. Iowa did win the Minnesota game, but the Hawkeyes can't count on 49 points from the offense every week.

"Defense, obviously, is the big question mark because of lack of experience, proven experience, and the fact that we had surgery on the two starting defensive tackles, Chris Webb and Lloyd Bickham," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said. "We also had surgery on Tommy Knight, the best defensive back we had last year until injured. And we got Bobby Diaco, who was our leading tackler and had surgery on his shoulder."

Fry isn't trying to imply that the defense lacks talent. They just have to prove their worth.

"We'll be all right," Bickham, a senior nose guard and co-captain said. "We've got some guys that really want to win, guys that have stayed here all summer and really worked hard. And I think we'll get some things accomplished."

Bickham said the defense doesn't feel the heat, despite some negative comments.

"I don't think we're really under pressure," he said. "We take it as a challenge when people talk about how terrible the defense is supposed to be and all that stuff. When you take on challenges, it builds character."

Junior cornerback Billy Coats appears even more confident.

"I think this defense is going to carry the team," Coats said.

Raiders lead pack in West free-for-all

Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

Before last season, the San Diego Chargers were considered a middle-of-the-pack team. So they went to the Super Bowl where they were embarrassed by San Francisco.

This year, however, the division is wide open. Denver has shored up its defense, the Raiders have gotten a lift by moving back to Oakland — and the Chargers are still seeking to prove themselves.

"I think everybody respects what we did last year," says quarterback Stan Humphries. "Everybody says you had a great season, congratulations and all that. But I don't know if everybody really respects us as a team. That's something we still have to earn, I guess."

Enter the Raiders, last year's consensus choice to win the AFC title. They never quite recovered from a 44-14 loss in San Francisco the opening Monday night and finished 9-7, out of the playoffs. Al Davis fired Art Shell and hired Mike White, a coach-in-waiting for more than a decade.

They may have added the running back they needed in Napoleon Kaufman, its first-round draft choice. But they'll still live on the vertical passing game — Jeff Hostetler to Tim Brown, James Jett and Rocket Ismail, although Jett and Ismail have been spotty.

The defense should be improved after a year adjusting to the retirement of Howie Long, both on and off the field. If Chester McGlockton, the massive tackle, keeps his weight down, he could be a disruptive force and Rob Fredrickson, the

No. 1 choice last year, looks like a future line-backing star.

What may help most is simply the move. "They never had a home field in Los Angeles," says Gene Upshaw, the Hall of Fame guard who played for 14 years in Oakland and ended his career with a final season in the southland. "We always felt the crowd was one reason we were so successful there."

Like the Raiders, the Broncos started slowly last season, losing their first four games and ending up 7-9. As with the Raiders, the coach got fired — Wade Phillips was replaced by Mike Shanahan.

But there was more too it than that. The Broncos, who beefed up their offense before the

DESPITE 300TH SAVE ...

Henke ponders his final pitch

R.B. Fallstrom
Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — The more he thinks about it, the more Tom Henke seems to like the idea of going out on top.

Henke, who became the seventh member of the exclusive 300-save club Friday, is 26-for-27 in save chances and has a 1.71 ERA for the St. Louis Cardinals. He could easily top the $1.5 million contract he's making this year.

Then again, baseball was never just a payday for him. And at age 37, he's wondering if it's time to settle down and be a father and husband. His four children, ranging in age from 14 to 6, are growing up fast and pretty much without him.

"Yeah, I could turn my back on this very easily," Henke said. "People don't understand that this game takes a lot away from your life. You're gone eight months a year."

The Cardinals hope he postpones

"He might have been thinking, 'Wow, this is a great way to finish,' but he's having such an outstanding year he's making the decision tough."

Mike Jorgensen, Cardinals manager

the inevitable at least one more year. Manager Mike Jorgensen, who had an 18-year playing career, said there was no way he would have retired after the type of year Henke is having.

"Absolutely not," Jorgensen said. But he also understands that this was initially the plan. One of the reasons Henke signed a free-agent deal with St. Louis is he lives in Taos, Mo., a town of about 800, about a two-hour drive from Busch Stadium.

He figured it would be a perfect way to go out, close to home and playing for the team he rooted for as a kid.

"He might have been thinking, 'Wow, this is a great way to finish,'" Jorgensen said. "But he's having such an outstanding year he's making the decision tough."

"I'm sure if he's interested, we'd be very interested."

Who wouldn't be? Henke converted a team-record 22 save chances in a row before finally blowing one July 25 at New York.

He has far surpassed last season, when he was hampered by back problems and had only 15 saves for Texas. He needs four saves for his sixth career 30-save year and he was named to the NL All-Star team.

Henke said this is not quite his best season, however. In 1992, he was 34-for-37 in save opportunities and added five saves in the post-season — three in the playoffs and two in the World Series for Toronto.

Diaco was the leading tackler with one good shoulder. That's a great accomplishment," Fry said. "Now he's healthy and he's got the other guys (Vernon Rollins and Tex Montgomery), plus a big guy you haven't heard anything about yet named Matt Hughes (6-3, 235), who could really be a big help at the linebacker position."

Junior Mark Mitchell (6-2, 230) rounds out the linebacking corps.

Rollins (6-3, 235) and Montgomery (6-2, 234) both suffered from academic problems last season which kept them off the field, but their arrival has been highly anticipated.

"They're just real fine athletes," Fry said. "They both can run, they both can hit, they love the game, they've got a great attitude and they're highly respected by their teammates. Even though neither one has played a down, you can just see during practice, this spring in particular, that they're quality football players."

Rollins turned heads in practice last season. Fry has referred to him in the past as one of the best natural talents he's seen at Iowa. The freshman is known for his speed and hitting power.

"He doesn't know his own strength," Fry said. "When he hits somebody, man, it hurts."

Iowa will feature just two linebackers in its 5-2 defensive alignment. Most of the experience in the front seven can be found on the line.

agent signee with San Diego Chargers.

Rodney Filer hopes to fill Kahl's shoes.

"Rodney has good speed and quickness," Hawkeye head coach Hayden Fry said. "He's tough. Rodney could be a real pleasant surprise."

But if Shaw and Banks both live up to their billing, the Hawkeyes might not even need a fullback that often.

Fry has already mentioned many times of his plans to feature both Shaw and Banks in the backfield at the same time.

But no matter how good the backs are, they would be nothing of the better pass rushers in the league over the last decade.

But the secondary is questionable, particularly with Gordon out with a shoulder injury and Stanley Richard defection to Washington. And the receivers — Mark Seay, Shawn Jefferson and Tony Martin — are decidedly ordinary.

Kansas City was ordinary last year, even with Montana pulling out a 9-7 record and playoff berth.

Montana's retirement is indicative of the state of the Chiefs — one reason he left is that he didn't think the team was capable of challenging for a conference title. So the job goes to Steve Bono, his longtime stand-in with the 49ers and the Chiefs.

"You always knew when you have Joe, he is going to make you look good," says Paul Hackett, the Chiefs' offensive coordinator. "Now the guys around Bono have to make Bono look good."

But can they? Some players think so.

"The main attraction is a good team — a team I think can win the AFC," Webster Slaughter said when he joined with the Chiefs to

NL ROUNDUP

Dodgers power past Montreal

Associated Press

MONTREAL — Ismael Valdes pitched eight strong innings, and Mike Piazza, Raul Mondesi and Delino DeShields all homered in the seventh inning as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Montreal Expos.

The Dodgers, who snapped a four-game losing streak, moved into first place in the NL West, one-half game ahead of the idle Colorado Rockies.

Valdes (11-7), who turned 22 Monday, scattered six hits, struck out six and walked none before Todd Worrell pitched the ninth. Valdes is 6-1 with a 1.74 ERA in his last seven starts.

The homers, off reliever Willie Fraser, gave the Dodgers a 7-1 lead. Piazza and Mondesi hit their 19th homers, Mondesi's being a two-run shot.

Phillies 3, Padres 1

PHILADELPHIA — Sid Fernandez allowed five hits in eight innings and drove in the go-ahead run as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the San Diego Padres for their fifth straight victory.

In winning his fourth straight decision, Fernandez (4-1) struck out seven, walked two and allowed only two hits after the second inning. Toby Borland allowed two hits with two outs in the ninth but struck out Brad Ausmus for his fifth save.

Andy Ashby (9-7) allowed four singles in seven innings and one earned run. In his last three starts covering 24 innings, Ashby has not given up an extra base hit.

Pirates 5, Marlins 3

PITTSBURGH — Carlos Garcia's two-run double in the seventh inning broke a tie and helped the Pittsburgh Pirates complete a five-game sweep of the Florida Marlins.

The Pirates have a season-best five-game winning streak and completed their first series sweep since they beat the Mets three times in New York from June 24-26, 1994. It is their first five-game sweep since July 12-15, 1984 against San Francisco.

With the score tied at 3 in the seventh, Jacob Brumfield and Al Martin singled off Mark Gardner (5-5). Garcia then hit an O-2 pitch that bounced off the warning track in left-center field to score both runs. Garcia also extended his hitting streak to 13 games.

Braves 5, Astros 4

HOUSTON — Ryan Klesko went 3-for-4 and hit an RBI-double that broke a seventh-inning tie as the Atlanta Braves beat Houston and extended the Astros' losing streak to five games.

The Braves trailed 4-3 entering the seventh. Jeff Blauser reached on Ricky Gutierrez's second error of the game, and went to third when Chipper Jones doubled off Craig McMurtrey (0-1).

Dean Hartgraves came on to face Fred McGriff, whose grounder to first scored Blauser with the tying run. Klesko's double scored Jones with the go-ahead run.

Atlanta reliever Mark Wohlers entered the game with runners on first and third and one out in the eighth, and struck out Tony Eusebio and Dave Magadan.

Mets 5, Giants 4, 11 innings

NEW YORK — The New York Mets rallied for two runs in the bottom of the 11th inning to win their fifth straight game Monday night, beating the San Francisco Giants 5-4 as Rod Beck blew a save for the 10th time this season.

The Mets fell behind 4-3 on a bases-loaded balk by rookie reliever Paul Byrd (1-0) in the top of the 11th, and Beck was one out away from his 23rd save in the bottom of the inning.

But Joe Orsulak doubled to the wall in left-center, scoring pinch-runner Damon Buford from first, and Jose Vizcaino followed with a game-winning RBI single off Beck (5-6), who also blew a save Sunday at Philadelphia.

Carl Everett hit two solo homers for the Mets, whose five-game winning streak is their longest since they won a season-high six in a row Aug. 6-11. The Giants lost their fourth straight.

Byrd relieved after Matt Williams and Mark Carreon opened the 11th with singles.

Cardinals 8, Reds 6

ST. LOUIS — Brian Jordan hit a three-run homer with two outs in the ninth inning off Mike Jackson, giving the St. Louis Cardinals a victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Cardinals have the worst record in the National League, but have won three of their last four against division leaders. They took two of three from Atlanta during the weekend.

The NL Central-leading Reds had a four-game winning streak stopped despite reaching double figures in hits for the seventh consecutive night, including home runs from Reggie Sanders and Hal Morris. St. Louis beat the Reds for only the second time in seven meetings.

Bernard Gilkey doubled off Jackson (5-1) with one out in the ninth and Ray Lankford walked with two outs before Jordan hit his 17th home run on a 1-2 pitch. In the eighth, Jordan extended his hitting streak to a career-high 12 games with a double.

none. He is 4-0 in his last five starts and 6-2 since coming off the disabled list July 7.

Alan Embree pitched two innings for his first save.

Edwin Hurtado (5-2) gave up six runs on just four hits in five innings. He walked seven.

Sorrento had an RBI double during a four-run second inning, making it 6-0 in the third.

PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Indians stopper breaks save mark

Chuck Melvin
Associated Press

CLEVELAND — When Jose Mesa finally picked a niche, he didn't pick an easy one. He just made it look easy.

"It's a lot easier for us to do our jobs, knowing that he owns the ninth inning," reliever Eric Plunk said. "That's still an awfully tough inning, the toughest of all."

Mesa, 29, signed his first professional contract at age 15, and it took him 14 years to find his calling. Against Milwaukee on Sunday, Mesa set a single-season major league record with his 37th save in 37 opportunities, breaking the record of 36-in-36 Dennis Eckersley set in 1992 with Oakland.

In one sense, there's nothing shocking about Mesa's sudden emergence as the game's dominant reliever. His fastball is frequently clocked in the upper 90s and he generally keeps it over the plate.

Desperation — they had no one else — led the Indians to try him as their closer again this spring. They first kicked around the idea of trading for a big-name reliever such as Rick Aguilera or Bryan Harvey, but their budget forced them to see if Mesa was up to it.

"I think it's the most improbable thing anybody can imagine," manager Mike Hargrove said.

"Jose has always been a strike-thrower, and he was always very durable as a starter. He was always good for six innings, and then he would start tiring and his ball would straighten out."

Now the Indians let Mesa pitch for one inning at a time.

The results have been stunning: — He hasn't given up an earned run since June 8.

— He hasn't allowed a run of any sort since July 14.

— He has more saves by himself than any other TEAM this year.

— He has twice saved both ends of a doubleheader.

— His ERA is 1.12.

Associated Press

Cleveland Indians reliever Jose Mesa pitches in the ninth inning against the Milwaukee Brewers Aug. 20 in Cleveland.

"When you are just getting ready for one inning, all you have to do is let it go," Mesa said. "I've surprised myself, because last year they tried to give me the job and I didn't do it."

Rangers shatter record with 11-run first inning

Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas — Juan Gonzalez hit a grand slam and RBI single during an 11-run first inning that included three home runs, powering the Texas Rangers past the Minnesota Twins 12-5.

Rusty Greer hit a three-run homer and Benji Gil connected for a solo shot as the Rangers sent 15 batters to the plate in the opening inning against rookie pitchers Scott Klingenbeck and reliever Oscar Munoz.

The big burst featured eight hits and three walks and came a day after Texas scored six runs in the first inning of a 6-4 win at Chicago. The Rangers, leading the AL wild-card race, won for the seventh time in nine games.

The Rangers' record for runs in an inning is 12, done in the 15th inning against Oakland on July 3, 1983. The 11 runs tied a Twins' mark for most allowed in an inning.

Brewers 3, Royals 1, 1st game
MILWAUKEE — Rookie Brian Givens scattered five hits in eight innings, and reliever Angel Miranda got a game-ending double play with the bases loaded to preserve the Milwaukee Brewers' victory over the Kansas City Royals in the first game of a doubleheader.

Givens (5-2), a former replacement player, struck out seven, including six in the first three innings, and walked two.

Mike Fetters got the first out in the ninth, but allowed Gary Gaetti's 27th home run and walked the next three batters.

Miranda relieved and got Jon Nunnally to hit into a double play for his first major league save.

Givens allowed just three hits through the first seven innings. Henry Mercedes and Edgar Caceras hit consecutive one-out singles in the eighth, but Greg Gagne hit into a double play.

White Sox 7, Tigers 3

DETROIT — Robin Ventura singled home the go-ahead run in the seventh inning and homered in the ninth, leading the Chicago White Sox past the Detroit Tigers.

Alex Fernandez (8-8) improved to 5-1 lifetime at Tiger Stadium and Kirk McCaskill got his second save. Mike Moore (5-13) lost his eighth straight decision and has not won in three months.

Cecil Fielder hit his 25th homer, highlighting a three-run sixth that put Detroit ahead 3-1.

The White Sox came back with three runs in the seventh. Ozzie Guillen singled and scored on a double by Dave Martinez, setting up RBI singles by Tim Lincecum and Ventura.

Indians 7, Blue Jays 3

TORONTO — Paul Sorrento homered and drove in four runs as Orel Hershiser and the Cleveland Indians defeated the Toronto Blue Jays for their fourth straight win.

Hershiser (11-5) pitched seven innings, allowing three runs while striking out eight and walking

Denver fullback Rod Bernstine (33) scores against Dallas on a 3-yard run Monday at Mile High Stadium.

Denver downs Dallas at Mile High

Associated Press

DENVER — Bill Musgrave, battling Hugh Millen for the backup quarterback job, threw a third-quarter touchdown pass to Jerry Evans, helping the Denver Broncos beat the Dallas Cowboys 20-17 Monday night at Mile High Stadium.

Musgrave's 1-yard TD throw to Evans produced a 17-17 tie, and Jason Elam's 27-yard field goal with 9:37 left accounted for the difference.

The Broncos' 455 total yards was the most in an NFL exhibition game this year.

Troy Aikman and Michael Irvin hooked up on two touchdown passes to stake the Cowboys to a 17-10 halftime lead.

Aikman and Denver's John Elway, who both played only the first half with the other starters, had identical 12-for-17 passing statistics, with Aikman throwing for 194 yards and Elway for 165.

On his first series, Musgrave drove the Broncos 76 yards in 13 plays for a 17-17 tie with 7:17 left in the third quarter. He completed seven passes on the drive, including a 22-yarder to Evans. On second-and-goal from the 1, Musgrave faked to a back into the line, then hit the wide-open Evans in the right corner of the end zone.

Early in the third quarter, Musgrave completed five straight passes and Elam kicked the deciding field goal.

Both Elam and Dallas' Chris Boniol missed short field goals in the second half.

In the final two minutes, Wade Wilson led Dallas to the Denver 38. But cornerback Ronnie Bradford stepped in front of intended receiver Jeff Thomas and intercepted with 17 seconds left.

Musgrave completed 14 of 23 passes for 155 yards.

The Broncos scored on their first two possessions while the Cowboys scored on their last three of the half.

Mike Pritchard caught a 17-yard pass and ran 24 yards on an end-around to set up Elam's 35-yard field goal barely five minutes into the game.

Denver then went 76 yards in eight plays, highlighted by Elway's 38-yard pass to Pritchard, and Rod Bernstine ran the final 3 yards for a 10-0 lead.

Aikman's 37-yard pass to Irvin got the Cowboys moving late in the quarter, but Irvin fumbled on a subsequent possession at the Denver 9.

With 9:33 left in the half, Aikman passed 36 yards to Irvin to cap a 68-yard scoring drive. A Denver fumble set up Boniol's 27-yard field goal for a 10-10 tie with 4:54 remaining.

Denver then drove to the Dallas 32, where Jason Elam's 50-yard field goal attempt was blocked by Leon Lett.

With 51 seconds left, the Cowboys began a 60-yard march that ended on Aikman's 18-yard pass to Irvin with six seconds to go in the half.

TYSON VS. FOREMAN?

Promoter foresees massive payday

John Nadel
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Bob Arum, the promoter for George Foreman, proposed Monday that Foreman and Mike Tyson meet in what he believes would be "the biggest fight by far of all time" with a neutral party handling the money.

The winner, Arum said, could conceivably earn $80 million or more.

Foreman said in an interview last May he wouldn't fight Tyson if Don King was the promoter; Arum and King have been bitter rivals for many years. King has been Tyson's promoter since 1988.

"Now we've found a solution for that," Arum said before boarding an airplane for New York. "My feeling is that anybody can say they're involved or not involved (in the promotion)."

"This is the proposition: We'll let some neutral party come in that everybody respects and handle all the money and make all the arrangements and that would eliminate George's concern."

"The guy that we would suggest does that is Henry Gluck, the former Chairman of the Board of Caesars World, who's recently resigned. Tyson knows him, Tyson's fought there, King knows him, George knows him. We would certainly accept him as the neutral party to handle all the finances."

Arum's proposal is that each fighter is guaranteed $15 million with the winner receiving whatever remains of the proceeds after promotional expenses are deducted.

"I say the fight will bring in at least $100 million, so the winner will earn $85 million minus expenses, about $5 million," Arum said. "The winner conceivably could get $80 million, without a doubt."

George Foreman shows off his belts after beating Axel Schulz to retain the IBF Heavyweight Championship in Las Vegas Aug. 21.

Although Arum and King have made clear their dislike for each other on numerous occasions, they have worked together at least twice, co-promoting Sugar Ray Leonard's first fight against Roberto Duran in June 1980 in Montreal and a doubleheader at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas that featured Tyson and Foreman 10 years later.

Tyson, 29, needed only 89 seconds to dispose of Peter McNeeley on Saturday night at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas when McNeeley's manager climbed into the ring, leading to his boxer's disqualification. McNeeley had been knocked down twice, but was on his feet at the time.

It was the first fight in more than four years for Tyson, who was released from prison last March after serving three years following his conviction of raping a beauty pageant contestant.

Foreman, who turns 47 next January, last fought April 22, scoring a controversial decision victory over Axel Schulz of Germany.

"Everybody's talking to us about a Tyson-Foreman fight," Arum said. "Let me tell you, Tyson is nothing. George Foreman would beat Tyson quicker than he did (Joe) Frazier."

Arum referred to Foreman's victory over Frazier in 1973, when Foreman floored Frazier six times before the bout was stopped in the second round to win the undisputed world heavyweight championship.

"If Tyson's a man, he's going to rise to the challenge instead of fighting guys who are not even professional fighters, like his last opponent (McNeeley)," Arum said. "Tyson really throws punches like a girl now."

"This guy can't beat a 47-year-old guy — by the time they fight, George will probably be 47. If he can't beat a 47-year-old man, who's he kidding?"

If you were looking for flapping, feedback and angst-ridden lyrics, the Hootie and the Blow concert at Hilton Coliseum in A was a big disappointment.

However, if you wanted a concert that was more a backyard party with a group of friends than a packed house in a huge arena, Sunday night's concert fit the bill.

Hootie, a one-time college band out of Columbia, S.C., has lost its ability to communicate a crowd, and hasn't forgotten it's the fans who brought the band the huge amount of success which they are now engulfed.

Between every song, lead singer Darius Rucker and guitar player Mark Bryan chatted with the crowd.

FAMILY EPIC ANCHOR

Reeves' cl

Mark Pittillo
The Daily Iowan

I'm starting to like Keanu Reeves. I first dismissed him as an uninteresting young actor coasting on looks. Then, as he started to appear in two or three movies a year, I changed my mind.

How did he keep getting called especially by directors like John Sant, Coppola and Bertolucci? In the last year, I'm proud to have reached a certain level of acquaintance. Reeves' performance in every one of them — a mix of suspense and, of course, comedy.

His best performance, in the year's "Speed," was a witty parody of his dim, surfer-dude persona. Alfonso Arau's new film, "A Walk in the Clouds," his "acting" is a subdued and sincere, but his demeanor and forced delivery provides a pleasingly calm center to this otherwise hysterical farce.

An aggressively old-fashioned romance, "Clouds" is the story of Paul Sutton, played by Reeves, who returns from World War II harboring doubts about his hasty marriage. He leaves for California to find himself.

O and digests more gristle meat can mean one thing: I've returned to the UI residential hall cafeteria. Encounter the UI Food Service for the time being, a welcoming, horrifying incoming freshman, so let me offer a guide for the most courageous and curious cuisine samplers.

For the more timid cafeteria lunkers unwilling to brave the course, the dining halls offer extensive salad bars, complete with hefty-sized sneeze guard. Avocados are the traditional favorites — toes and cucumbers, as well as shredded carrots that are grayer than the lettuce.

Once you've filled your bowl with your heart's content, UI dining offers a wide variety of salad dressings. The most popular dressings are red, brown, yellow, white — on special occasions — white chunks (pray it's bleu cheese).

Need a quick lunch? Hop on to the deli bar, where, if you're lucky, you'll encounter Iowa Nobody can pinpoint the contents of the mystery meat, but it's a great smothered in a pound of cal mayonnaise.

"To be honest, I'm not sure the Iowa Loaf even is," said Bowers, residence services assistant director in charge of Food Service.

To prevent freshmen from the same mistakes I made, here are a few items I tend to avoid:

- The Enchilada Platter: No should this meal come complete with a free sample of Pepto Bismol.
- I've actually seen UI maintenance workers use the meal's innards to remove paint from old buildings.
- New England Clam Chowder: The broth tastes like water.

MEAT LOAF

It's served every Thursday in the dining hall. And the scary thing is, people actually eat it. Maybe they don't see those white chunks floating in the gray beef. Or maybe they're just really hungry. Whatever their reason, you want no part of it. You know what great meat loaf is all about. You had the best for 18 years. So you call mom to let her know she's the Queen of Meat Loaf. It's a special moment between mother and son.

Hawkeye football star charged with trespassing

A UI football player was charged with criminal trespass Monday by the Iowa City Police Department.

Scott Slutzker, 22, 1840 Gilbert St., Apt. 3, allegedly entered an off-limits banquet room at the Holiday Inn, 210 S. Dubuque St., on August 5 a.m.

An employee of Holiday Inn saw Slutzker and asked him to leave. When Slutzker allegedly refused to cooperate, the employee called the police. When they arrived Slutzker had already left the banquet room, but the employee pointed him out as he was leaving the building.

Slutzker was unavailable for comment Tuesday.
