Restaurant busted for serving poisoned pasta

Citation follows inspection of sanitary conditions

On Monday, August 21, 1995, authorities served a search warrant on a restaurant in downtown Iowa City. The inspection revealed that the establishment failed to meet state and federal sanitation standards.

The restaurant, located at 214 South Maquoketa Avenue, was found to have a variety of health code violations, including improper storage of food, inadequate handwashing facilities, and unsanitary cooking and food preparation areas.

The restaurant was ordered to close immediately and was placed on the state's list of health violation establishments.

In addition, the health department has initiated legal action against the restaurant owners, seeking fines and possible closure of the establishment.

The restaurant is currently being inspected by state health officials, who will determine the next steps in the enforcement process.

Park the car and walk 3 miles

Shawn Cote
The Daily Iowan

Hundreds of students afoot of late have been walking across campus. Even the chilly late summer days don't seem to keep them indoors. Although everyone gets a permit, the only lot available to students living on campus was 3% miles away.

Tony Groszczyk, UI parking department, said although everyone got a permit, hundreds were forced to wait in line. "If I had heard from word-of-mouth that you have to wait in line," Groszczyk said, "This year they sent me a memo saying they would open the front door on Sunday at 8 a.m."

There were 10 people waiting when he arrived, Groszczyk said. By 9 a.m. Monday when the doors opened, hundreds were standing in line.

Linda Noble, parking operations manager for the Transportation Department, and the students' decision to come early was "their choice," and that as late as Monday afternoon average lot permits were still available.

Transition to college may cause anxiety

Rima Vesely

Transition to college may cause anxiety felt depressed and insecure. Rima Vesely, a sophomore at the University of Iowa, returned to the university last fall and said she spent the first week of classes expecting a lot more than she received.

"It was a hard summer emotionally and I kind of made the transition," she said. "I knew what was going on and I didn't know if I could handle it."

"I wanted to be free. I wanted to be somebody else - but I wanted to put on myself."

"I was bringing me down, and I knew there were a lot of contacts who were killed and four were injured."

Gas prices drop across Iowa

Associated Press

DES MOINES — Fuel prices across much of Iowa dropped slightly last month, as the average price of unleaded gasoline fell for August by 2 cents to $1.10 a gallon, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

The monthly survey showed unleaded gas prices ranged from $1.03 to $1.20 across Iowa. A year ago, the average price was $1.20. The average price of unleaded diesel fuel for August was $1.15, down 2 cents from last month.

The Department of Natural Resources said that stagnant crude oil prices were keeping most petroleum prices steady. Preliminary figures indicate about 27,400 students are enrolled this year, including 200 to 300 more undergraduates. UI Registrar Jerald Dallam said.

About 300 more freshmen were accepted and were being considered for admission by university officials, he added.

"We've opened enrollment in 300," Barron said. "We think this is a reflection of two considerations — the quality people will come in high, and the freshmen who are self-serve were slightly better prepared, Barron said, and average self-serve scores rose up to the national average.

"The UI is making more of an effort to reach students of campuses — the political science department is offering a class statewide titled "The Presidency" via fiber optics, and enrollment in the College of Business Administration's satellite in Des Moines is up to 200 students, said Jerald Dallam, UI vice president for administration.

The trial of O.J. Simpson, the former football star who is charged with murder, is nearing its end. Defense attorneys have been trying to discredit prosecution witnesses and evidence. Simpson's attorneys have said they will use Simpson's taped admissions in court to help their case.

The trial has been characterized by intense public interest and media coverage. The case has raised questions about the nature of justice and the role of the media in shaping public opinion.

I spotted a new brasserie in town. It looks promising and I plan to try it out soon.

But I didn't leave the law enforcement community after working on the O.J. Simpson case. I am still involved in the investigation and the legal proceedings are ongoing.

The judge ruled that Simpson should not be allowed to leave the country without having to post a bond.

Simpson's defense team argued that he should be released on bail and allowed to travel to Singapore. The judge rejected their request, stating that Simpson is a flight risk.

Simpson's attorneys have filed a motion to have the bond reduced, but it is unknown whether the motion will be granted.

Israel police officers in Jerusalem on Monday drag away a right-wing demonstrator who, along with several hundred Israelis, blocked traffic and screamed anti-Palestinian slogans. The demonstrators were protesting Monday's bus bomb attack in which five people were killed and 100 injured and Israeli-occupied Palestine's most painful gestures with the Palestinians.

Hamas has been growing in no uncertain terms, but the United States and Europe have been reluctant to recognize it as a legitimate political force. The recent attacks by Hamas militants have reinforced this stance, but the group's resolve remains undeterred.

Hamas leaders have consistently denied any involvement in the bombings and have called for dialogue with Israel. However, the Israeli government remains steadfast in its refusal to engage in any formal talks with Hamas until it renounces violence.

The bombings have raised questions about the effectiveness of the Palestinian Authority's efforts to combat terrorism. While the Authority has made some progress in improving security, many Israelis remain skeptical of its ability to prevent future attacks.

The situation is further complicated by the ongoing conflict between Israel and the Palestinians. Despite the ongoing efforts to reach a peace agreement, there has been little progress in recent months.

The attacks have also sparked controversy within the Palestinian community. Some have condemned the bombings as a violation of Palestinian values, while others have supported the Hamas militants, viewing them as a legitimate resistance movement.

The Israeli government has increased security measures in response to the bombings, including deployments of additional troops and increased restrictions on Palestinian movement. These measures have been met with mixed reactions, with some Palestinians viewing them as unwarranted and others supporting them as necessary to ensure safety.

The attacks have also had a significant impact on Israel's political landscape. The bombings have been used by political leaders as a tool to rally support and gain political advantage. The situation is further exacerbated by the ongoing conflict with Hamas and the complex nature of the Palestinian issue.

Overall, the bombings have underscored the challenges facing the Israeli government and the Palestinian Authority in maintaining security and stability in the region.

Commit a felony, become a star

Mike Tyson has a tendency to overreact to criticism. Once he knocked down two telephone booths when a reporter asked him about his fighting skills. His reaction to a question about his recent defeat in the World Championship was even more extreme. He was in a foul mood and, after being asked about his weight and training regimen, he became even more angry. The questioner said he was just trying to be helpful, but Tyson seemed to think otherwise. He had been preparing for months to win back his title, and his loss to Tommy Hearns had been a major disappointment.

In a rare display of temper, Tyson smashed a telephone booth and a television set in his hotel room. The damage was estimated at over $10,000, and Tyson was later arrested and charged with vandalism.

The incident was a stark contrast to Tyson's previous behavior. He had always been known for his good manners and his ability to handle pressure. In fact, he had been one of the most popular fighters in the world, and his popularity had not been affected by his recent defeat.

But now his reputation is at stake. He has to fight back, and he will do whatever it takes to win back his title. Tyson's career is on the line, and he will do whatever it takes to come out on top. He is not about to let his critics bring him down. He will prove them wrong and show them that he is still the best fighter in the world.

POINT OF VIEW

The decision to make Tyson the face ofmanship is a controversial one. While he is a talented fighter, his recent actions have raised questions about his maturity and judgment.

 Tyson's behavior is not unusual for someone who has experienced the highs and lows of celebrity. He is a man who has lived a life of privilege and has been pampered by fans and media alike. His recent actions may be a sign of a deeper problem, one that needs to be addressed.

But Tyson is a fighter, and he is not about to let his critics bring him down. He will do whatever it takes to come out on top. He is not about to let his critics bring him down.

Faulkner detracts from real discrimination issues

After 12 years, Samuel Faulkner made it through the Civil War and returned to his hometown in Mississippi.

He was greeted as a hero, but his return was anything but welcome. The people of his town were not ready to accept him back. They were afraid of the ways he had changed during his time in the war.

The war had left its mark on Faulkner. He had seen things that no one should ever have to witness. He had witnessed the horrors of war and had been changed by it.

But Faulkner was not the only one who had been affected by the war. His town was in a state of shock and confusion. The people were not sure how to react to the return of their hero.

The decision to make Faulkner the face of manhood is a controversial one. While he is a talented fighter, his recent actions have raised questions about his maturity and judgment.

But Faulkner is not the only one who has been affected by the war. The town is in a state of shock and confusion. The people are not sure how to react to the return of their hero.

Ridge Valley: A unique opportunity for bickering

The Ridge Valley is a unique opportunity for bickering. The valley is known for its rich history and its vibrant cultural scene. But it is also a place where people tend to disagree and argue about everything. It is a place where people have to learn to accept each other's differences.

The valley is home to a variety of people, each with their own unique perspective on the world. Some are conservative, some are liberal, and some are somewhere in between. But no matter what their political views, everyone has something to say about the valley.

What signifies the beginning of school?

The beginning of school is a special time for many students. It is a time when they get to see their friends again and make new ones. It is a time when they get to learn new things and challenge themselves.

But the beginning of school is also a time of change and transition. Students have to adapt to new environments and new expectations. It can be a difficult time, but it is also a time of opportunity.

So what signifies the beginning of school? For some, it is the first day of school. For others, it is the start of a new curriculum. But for everyone, it is the beginning of a new chapter in their lives.
Women die in blaze set for freedom
Paul Alexander
Associated Press

A group of women began burning a house set on fire in their room Monday, lashing out at what they said was the domination of the community by men.

One of the women, a 17-year-old, was killed in the blaze. She had been arrested earlier in the day for setting the fire.

The women said they were fed up with the way men treated them and that they wanted to escape from what they considered a male-dominated society.

They said they set the fire as a protest against the way men behave around them.

The house was located in a small village near Tehran, where women have long been denied basic rights.

The women said they wanted to show their defiance and that they would continue to fight for their rights.

They said they were encouraged by the recent protests in Iran and that they hoped their actions would inspire others to join them.
No casualties were immediately reported, but huts and makeshift shops were blown up in Magcrap near the Serb town of Graje, Koric said. There are an estimated 1,200 Bosnian refugee men in eastern Sarajevo, many of the grateful side men were shot and wounded in the firefight, the United Nations said.

It was not immediately clear if Zaire planned to send all the estimated 1.2 million Bosnian refugees who fled in 1992. Peter Kacowicz, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees in Zaire, said the refugees were "exhausted, sick and old."

"NATO had spoken around the town of Urdu was a day ago of being able to put a huge convoy through it," Kacowicz said. "We were able to talk to the Bosnians and try to convince them to go to Zaire."

"The official line has been: no more. It is urgent to get them across the border."

The refugees are being told to settle for the meantime in Muslim pockets of Sarajevo and Brcko. The Zairean ambassador in Sarajevo, the UN special envoy for Refugees in Kenya, said the refugees who were rounding them up for the African Union, the U.N., and NATO are trying to pressure the Zairean authorities to recognize the United Nations as a "neutral" organization.

"The refugees feel it's their right to decide where they're going to go. They have been in Muslim areas."

"The African Union is being told to do what the UN is calling," the Zairean ambassador said.

Several U.N. and NATO officials, who wished to remain anonymous, said no indication had been made by the American ambassador in Zaire that the refugees would be transferred to Zairean territory.

"One shell, no matter how lethal, does not constitute an attack on a U.N. "safe area,"" said Kacowicz, "a U.S. spokesman in Sarajevo."

The United Nations and African Union diplomats are considering negotiations about a U.N. plan that has been blocked by a UN force in front of the dump. The Serbs have refused to let U.N. peacekeepers pull bodies from the dump, and a report on the situation has been held up at the monitor's desk.

"The United Nations did not respond adequately to this terror, to this massacre," the U.N. spokesman in Sarajevo said. "We will continue to pursue this issue with the Serbs until we're satisfied."

"I've heard this story twice, and I'm not sure it's true," he said. "But when a shell killed the girls in the village near the UN compound, I saw the madman."

Dan Patterson may be presented with a problem this season, but the Iowa quarterback has seen the best of his opponent's defensive coordinator in the past.

"I've beaten Butch Davis one out of two times," said Patterson, referring to their final two games of 1994, which must await rehearsal for the new season.

With kickoff set for 1:06 p.m. Saturday, another matchup of the nation's best quarterbacks and the Hawkeyes' offensive coordinator promises another mental challenge for the 34-point man returning.

"If he's not too bad, he's not too bad," said Butch Hultizer, who directed the defense Monday afternoon as the Hoosiers opened fall camp.

"I have the feeling, with our great line," said Hayden Fry, "that we've got the potential to have that kind of line." Fry said he was pleased with the way his team played against Oklahoma and predicts the Sooners will do well in the conference. The key, according to Fry, is the defensive line, which was led by senior ends Mike Scheder and Nick Bennis. The defense allowed only 164 yards in the win over Oklahoma, which is the lowest total in 51 years.

Fry also praised the team's success against Oklahoma State, saying, "I think we played our best game of the season against Oklahoma State." He credited the defense for its strong performance, particularly against the run.

The Pirates have a season-best defense, allowing only 10 points per game. With the score tied at 3 in the second quarter, Mike Fetters got the first out of the inning, leaving the score at 3-0. Scott Bowers pitched a shutout, allowing only two hits in nine innings.

Fry said he was pleased with the way his team played against Oklahoma and predicts the Sooners will do well in the conference. The key, according to Fry, is the defensive line, which was led by senior ends Mike Scheder and Nick Bennis. The defense allowed only 164 yards in the win over Oklahoma, which is the lowest total in 51 years.

Fry also praised the team's success against Oklahoma State, saying, "I think we played our best game of the season against Oklahoma State." He credited the defense for its strong performance, particularly against the run.

The Pirates have a season-best defense, allowing only 10 points per game. With the score tied at 3 in the second quarter, Mike Fetters got the first out of the inning, leaving the score at 3-0. Scott Bowers pitched a shutout, allowing only two hits in nine innings.

Denver—Bill Magness, bat-
ing pinch hitter for the Cowboys quarterback job, threw a three-quarter touchdown pass to Dan Reeves, bringing the Denver Broncos within two points of the Dallas Cowboys in the third quarter of their game Monday night in Mile High Stadium.

Offense and defense were better than expected, according to a couple of analysts. The defense, currently ranked 10th in the league, was expected to be better, but the offense, which ranks 20th, was expected to be worse.

The game was characterized by a fast-paced, high-scoring offense and a strong defense, with both teams scoring touchdowns in the first quarter. The Cowboys led 13-7 at halftime, but the Broncos outscored them 17-0 in the second half.

Denver's victory was their fourth in a row, and they have now moved into first place in their division. Dallas, on the other hand, has lost two of their last three games and is now in third place.

Let 'em be: Hootie style equals good show

The gang's all here.

No, not really, but close enough: Hootie & the Blowfish, the Bijoux and the Blowfish.

The gang's all here.

In the eyes of fans, it was. In the eyes of media and police, it was.

They were ready and willing to party, and the police were ready and willing to watch.

However, if you wanted a concert that involved more than just you and your friends (and a group of randoms you had met on the same day), you had to go to the Bijoux at night and let the band do the work.

It was a classic case of the headliners outshine the support acts.

The small stage of the Bijoux was packed with the crowd and even gave off a bit of the "Hold My Hand" as the "most ever" on the line-up, refreshing change from the Circuit Center.

Of course, it was that very attitude of the crowd that was the main attraction of Hootie & the Blowfish's main man and singer, Darius Rucker. His hands have gotten a bit of a tick for that.

Hootie's sound is as unpretentious as the lava lamps and beer bottles decorating the stage, and the sound quality was not as noticeable with everything else like at grainy sound. Hootie's sound is as postponed as the style.

Hootie's voice is as inexpressive as the flip flops and break-off dresses, the stages, and the sound quality was not as noticeable as the grainy sound. Hootie's voice is as inexpressive as the style.

MEAT LOAF
It's served every Thursday in the dining hall. And the scary thing is, people actually eat it. Maybe they don't see those white chunks floating in the gray beef. Or maybe they're just really hungry. Whatever their reason, you want no part of it. You had the best for 18 years. So you call mom to let her know she's the Queen of Meat Loaf. It's a special moment between mother and son.
