Simpson jury to hear racial slurs

Tapes of Fuhrman saying the 'N' word will be played in court

Michael Fleeman
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — In a major blow to the defense in the final days of its case, O.J. Simpson's judge ruled Thursday that jurors can hear just two of 41 instances in which Detective Mark Fuhrman uses a racial epithet for blacks.

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito ruled the defense can play two excerpts for jurors in which Fuhrman says the word "nigger." Fuhrman testified earlier at Simpson's murder trial he hadn't used the word in the past decade. The tapes were made from 1985-94.

Ito ruled North Carolina screenwriting Professor Laura Hart McKinny, who recorded the tapes for a screenplay project, can testify Fuhrman used the word "nigger" in a disparaging manner 41 times during the interviews.

But he said only two excerpts from the tapes can be played for the jurors. In one of them, Fuhrman says, "We have no niggers where I grew up."

In the second, McKinny asks, "Why do they live in that area?" Fuhrman responds, "That's where niggers live."

Ito rejected the 39 other examples offered by the defense.

"The court finds the probative value of the remaining examples to be substantially and overwhelmingly outweighed by the danger of undue prejudice," Ito said.

But the judge barred the defense from offering any statements Fuhrman made

"The specific racial epithet at issue is perhaps the single most insulting, inflammatory and provocative term in use in modern-day America."

about police misconduct, mostly on grounds the statements are too inflammatory and the defense had failed to prove the incidents actually happened.

Ito also refused to let the defense play statements in which Fuhrman describes himself as a "key witness in the biggest case of the century" or in which he calls defense attorney Robert Shapiro an expletive.

In explaining his ruling, the judge said the jury should hear evidence which relates to Fuhrman's credibility as a witness.

"Just as a defendant with prior felony convictions testifying before a jury is not entitled to a false aura of credibility, neither is Fuhrman," Ito wrote in a 10-page ruling.

"The specific racial epithet at issue is perhaps the single most insulting, inflammatory and provocative term in use in modern-day America."

ADEQUACY OF SEARCH QUESTIONED

Minority candidate has yet to be revealed

Ann McGlynn
The Daily Iowan

With few undisclosed presidential candidates remaining, students and university officials are wondering if a minority will be a part of the pool of approximately six.

"No one has indicated to me that any one of them will be a minority," said Susan Mask, assistant to the president and director of affirmative action. "It would seem to me that the search committee could have found a minority."

Mask questions the "adequacy of the search," and said having a minority in the pool should be a priority. However, even if a minority is not chosen for the presidency, the person should understand the issues surrounding minorities.

"I hope the person who is selected is well-versed on the issues, has some history in implementing programs and takes a leadership role," Mask said.

The individual should have a demonstrated commitment to diversity, not just general support, she said.

UI PRESIDENTIAL SEARCH

Finding someone who gives the right amount of attention to diversity issues is more important than finding a minority to do the job, UI junior Rakhi Roy said.

"We need to find someone who's qualified," she said.

If a minority is hired, that individual should bring solid intellectual and moral leadership as well as good management, said Philip

The person who could succeed Hunter Rawlings as the UI president came to campus Thursday, impressing those who saw her as a woman with a lot of experience and vision.

UI PRESIDENTIAL SEARCH

At her public appearances Mary Sue Coleman, provost and vice president for academic affairs at University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, repeatedly drew from her past to answer questions asked by UI employees.

During the undergraduate symposium, one panelist asked Coleman what she thought about some people's belief that an undergraduate education can be "the best five or six years of your life."

She said she was very concerned about graduation rates, and spoke of her experience at University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

"At UNC we discovered students were taking fewer and fewer hours to make a full load," she said.

Hitchcock's leadership criticized by associates

Ann McGlynn
The Daily Iowan

At least one individual who used to work under UI presidential candidate Karen Hitchcock was unhappy with the way he was treated.

Barry Barrington, now retired from the University of Illinois at Chicago, was promoted to technical director in 1988 under Hitchcock.

"It was roses, candy, cakes and champagne when she got there," he said. "She didn't use her sword on all of us at first."

But James Stukel, who was the academic vice chancellor and chancellor at UIC during Hitchcock's career there and is currently the president of the University of Illinois at Champaign/Urbana, said his relationship with Hitchcock was always positive.

She understands education issues and is bright, he said.

During Hitchcock's four years at the university, Barrington said she weakened positions and did not renew the contracts of 19 men she oversaw. Several others, mostly women, were then promoted, caus-

CADET ALREADY HAS MILITARY TRAINING

Woman seeks to fill Faulkner's boots

CHARLESTON, S.C. — The next woman who wants to march in the all-male corps at The Citadel is a military academy student and star athlete who has a brother in the college and a father who is an alumnus.

Nancy Mellette, a 17-year-old senior at a North Carolina military boarding school, is asking to intervene in the Shannon Faulkner case, according to federal court papers filed Thursday by lawyers who also represented Faulkner in her quest to become a cadet.

Mellette wants to join The Citadel in the fall of 1996.

"I think she could do the physical part of it ... but I'm not too sure how they would treat her," Catherine Mellette, her twin sister, said outside the family home in suburban Columbia.

Her mother, Connie, said she admired her daughter for "having the courage to even try to take this step."

Faulkner fought a 2 1/2-year court battle to become a cadet at the state-supported military college. She became ill during the day of rigorous training known as hell week and quit five days later, saying the stress of the court battle and her isolation at the college

Mummy Horseman to trot the globe

Candice Hughes
Associated Press

MOSCOW — He's more than 2,000 years old and they call him the Horseman. When Russia's master embalmers get through with the ancient nomad, he'll be ready to hit the road again.

After several millennia locked in the frozen earth of Siberia, he now lies in a thick glass tank in Moscow, soaking in a chemical cocktail much like the one that preserves Lenin.

In about a year, scientists hope, the Horseman will be ready to go on display throughout the world with another well-preserved ancient from the same corner of Siberia, an elaborately tattooed woman called the Princess.

The Horseman had been given a ceremonial burial in his fur coat and high leather boots alongside his horse in a log-lined chamber in the Altai Mountains. He also had his ax, quiver and dagger.

For someone who died about 2,500 years ago, the Horseman was in great shape when archaeologists found him last month under more than 7 feet of ice near the Chinese and Mongolian borders.

More than 6,500 feet above sea level, the Ukok Plateau is blanketed by a thick layer of rocks that helps keep the ground frozen year round.

"It's like a natural fridge," said Anatoly Derevyanko, head of the Russian Academy of Science's Institute of Archaeology and Ethnol-gy in Novosibirsk.

The area is rich in ancient burial mounds, and teams from the institute have worked there for the past five summers. In July 1993, the plateau yielded the Princess, its first major mummy. She, too, is estimated to have died some 2,500 years ago.

The Princess was a spectacular find by any standard. But they almost lost her. Her flesh, fair and firm when she was found, began to darken and shrivel when exposed to heat and light.

The desperate archaeologists turned to the Biological Structures Research Institute, which tends Lenin's preserved remains, even though back then the lab's unique embalming process was reserved for communist leaders.

"It was still considered half-secret at the time," recalled Derevyanko. "It wasn't so easy to persuade them to tackle a job so new to them."

It took almost a year, but the embalmers saved the Princess. They reversed some of the thaw damage and even managed to lighten her skin so the ornate tattoos of winged dragons, deer and goats were clearly visible.

The Princess is now on tour, most recently appearing in an exhibit on ancient Asian cultures in Seoul, South Korea. It is likely the Horseman will eventually be exhibited with her, a prospect that moved several tabloids to dub him "The Bodyguard."

For a mummy, the Horseman is in even better shape than the Princess.

Most of the flesh on the exposed parts of his body — his face and hands — is gone, but the rest of the Horseman is still there, right down to his toenails, muscular legs, long braids and elaborate tattoo of a deer draping over his right shoulder.

The Horseman was buried lying on his right side, with his knees bent, on a platform covered in black felt, Derevyanko said. He was dressed in a heavy coat of lambskin-lined marmot fur, trousers and high leather boots.

His horse was buried in a harness richly decorated with figures of griffins and animals carved in wood and covered with gold foil.

The Horseman's internal organs, like those of the Princess, had been removed. Both had been embalmed by a method scientists do not yet understand.

Derevyanko believes the Princess and Horseman were Scythians, an ancient nomadic culture that flourished along the Black Sea but vanished without any written record. The legendary Amazons are said to have been Scythian warrior women.

Russia's master embalmers hope the Horseman and the Princess will attract worldwide attention — and new clients.

After decades in the shadows, they are ready to take on anyone who can afford the very best in a semblance of life after death. But, warns the embalming institute's director, Dr. Yuri Denisov, "it won't be cheap."

Rich and famous save despondent bridge jumper

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — In the "I swear it's true category": the ocean rescue of a suicidal man by Michael Jackson's plastic surgeon as Heidi Fleiss ran for a phone to call 911.

The surgeon, Dr. Steven Hoefflin, said he and Fleiss were in a group walking off dinner on Santa Monica Pier early Thursday when they saw a man with his hands cuffed behind his back jump into the water.

"I just went right in. He was going to drown if I didn't do something," said Hoefflin, who had been at the same fashionable restaurant as Fleiss but had never met the woman convicted of running a call-girl ring for the rich and famous.

Hoefflin struggled with the man in 56-degree water for 30 minutes, joined by a second person in their group.

A harbor patrol boat was used to fish the three out. Hoefflin's hand was cut but all were otherwise unhurt.

Fleiss called 911 as the struggle went on in the water.

The identity of the suicidal man wasn't released. Police said he was despondent over financial matters and hospitalized for psychiatric evaluation.

Fleiss, 29, was convicted earlier this month of conspiracy, tax evasion and money laundering. She was released without bail pending her sentencing Nov. 13. She already had been sentenced to three years on state pandering charges.

Olympic gymnast stresses practice, not talent, for youth

MATTHEWS, N.C. (AP) — Nadia Comaneci urged a roomful of aspiring young gymnasts to hit the mat regardless of skill.

"You may be a talent or you may not be a talent," she told about 100 children Wednesday at the International Sports Center. "You're still going to accomplish more than any normal kid who stays home and watches TV."

Comaneci, a 1976 Olympic gold medalist, is 33 now and engaged to another Olympic champ, Bart Conner. They live in Oklahoma and run a gymnastics camp.

The couple were in suburban Charlotte for an exhibition.

Garcia rests 'so at peace'

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Garcia died smiling.

"It's strange to say, but he looked so peaceful," Deborah Koons Garcia wrote in the Sept. 21 issue of Rolling Stone.

"I said to the guy at the funeral home, 'Look, he's smiling. Did you do that to him?' And he said, 'No, that's exactly the way I found him.' His face was so at peace."

The magazine invited Koons to write a column after Garcia died of a heart attack Aug. 9 at a drug rehabilitation clinic at age 33.

The Grateful Dead leader decided last summer to confront his heroin addiction, his widow wrote. "It's a pain in the butt. ... I don't want to do it for the rest of my life," she quoted him as saying.

Garcia checked into the Betty Ford Clinic in late July, spent two weeks there and checked himself out, she wrote.

He then checked into Serenity Knolls near San Francisco when "he found himself drawn back, wanting to do drugs again because his body hurt so much." He died at that clinic.

Garcia had used heroin shortly before his death but hardening of the arteries killed him, a coroner said.

Arts festival loses another leader

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Milton Rhodes resigned as general manager of the Spoleto Festival U.S.A. following a season that left the arts fest $900,000 deeper in debt.

Rhodes will remain as a consultant for six months, drawing his regular monthly pay of about $10,400, said Homer Burrous, chairman of the festival board.

A consultant's report earlier held Rhodes responsible for $900,000 in excessive expenses, but Burrous would say only, "Milton Rhodes has done some very good things for the festival. We wish him well."

Rhodes, who was hired early last year, didn't return phone messages left Thursday at his Spoleto office or home in Mount Pleasant.

He replaced composer Gian Carlo Menotti, who left the festival in a dispute over finances and artistic control.

The festival has a total deficit of $1.8 million.

Wilson wreck disappoints Iowans

Jay Dee
The Daily Iowan

WALCOTT, Iowa — California Gov. Pete Wilson's presidential campaign took a double hit in Iowa Thursday. Wilson's motorcade was involved in a multi-car accident in Des Moines, and although no one in the motorcade was injured, Wilson was forced to cancel an appearance in Scott County.

Wilson was scheduled to appear at the Richard and Mary Gollinghorst farm near Walcott, Iowa. Wilson did address the more than 50 Republican activists via telephone.

Wilson's visit to Iowa was part of his official campaign announcement tour. State Senate minority leader Jack Rife, R-Durant, said this was the start of Wilson's efforts to increase his visibility in Iowa.

"The budget is settled now in California," he said. "You'll be seeing a lot more of him."

Those gathered on the Gollinghorst farm will have to wait to see Wilson, though. After the accident Wilson returned to San Diego.

Republicans at the farm were disappointed Wilson had to cancel his appearance. Wilson's phone comments weren't much of a consolation, either.

Joan Martz of Blue Grass, Iowa, said she had difficulty hearing Wilson's remarks. She had hoped Wilson's appearance would help her decide which Republican candidate to support.

"I couldn't hear real well. It was hard to understand," she said.

Martz is undecided as to whom she will support in the caucuses and was looking forward to seeing Wilson.

From the Des Moines airport, Wilson spoke of family values.

"I define the family as a mother and a father. Too many young men are defaulting on their responsibilities," he said.

He said current federal laws penalize work, discourage marriage and encourage births out of Supporters hoped to hear California Gov. Pete Wilson speak at a farm near Walcott, Iowa, but due to an accident in Des Moines, he was unable to make the trip. With help from campaign worker Jason Gross, Wilson spoke to his supporters via telephone.

Wedlock. Wilson said private organizations can deal with social problems better than can the public sector. "Government is too large, too expensive and too intrusive," he said.

FORMER HEAD WILL VISIT IOWA AGAIN

Rawlings feels at home in top spot at Cornell

Shawn Cole
The Daily Iowan

With the search for his replacement in full swing, Hunter Rawlings III, UI president for seven years, has one piece of advice for his successor.

"Recognize early on what a fine university Iowa is and immerse yourself in the academic programs," he said in a phone interview Thursday afternoon.

What struck him tremendously, he said, was the similarity between Cornell and Iowa.

"The universities have many similarities and it's very helpful to have had experience at Iowa," he said. "I would say Ithaca is quite similar to Iowa City, but there are a lot more steep hills."

Rawlings said he was surprised at the number of Iowans at Cornell.

"A lot of Iowans simply walk up to me and say 'hi'. I guess I'm pretty noticeable," said Rawlings, who is 6 feet 7 inches tall and chose academics over a career in professional basketball.

But Rawlings also brought some people to Cornell with him. His personal assistant, Anna Huntzinger, made the move with him. Dianne Murphy, assistant director of women's athletics at Iowa, will take over women's athletics at Cornell.

Rawlings said he feels comfortable in his new home, and even the notoriously cold Ithaca winters don't frighten him.

"I couldn't imagine them being much colder than Iowa winters," he said.

Bindiya Patel, a Cornell junior from Iowa City, said Rawlings mentioned Iowa in his convocation.

"I've seen him here — he's kind of hard to miss," she said. "He's putting in an effort to get to know all the students, and my roommate's met with him."

Don Randel, provost of Cornell University, said Rawlings has fit in well at Cornell, although he may have gone a little overboard in his enthusiasm to meet new students.

"He went down to Cascadilla (student housing) and knocked on doors," Randel said. "But it was 10 a.m. on a Saturday morning and he woke up a lot of students."

The only controversy on campus is a lawsuit by a professor who was found guilty of misconduct for sexual harassment, said Seth Stern, a reporter from The Cornell Daily Sun. Rawlings has stayed out of the conflict.

"He's had a busy schedule," Stern said. "He went to New York and met with Governor George Pataki, met with the editors of The New York Times and met with educational officials in Washington, D.C."

The Daily Iowan

Record breaking numbers were set by the Rape Victim Advocacy Program, 17 W. Prentiss St., from January 1995 to March 1995, making students aware of the need for their personal safety.

Crisis calls and office visits leveled off a bit from April to June with 231 phone calls and 82 office visits, following a record-breaking third quarter. From January to March, 359 phone calls and 113 office visits were reported.

RVAP officials said high numbers are not expected from July to September or from April to June, which both contain significant periods of time when the UI is not in session and the population decreases.

"The RVAP often experiences a time of the year when they level off," Meredith Jacobson, director of crisis services said. "A big part of our population is UI students and when they leave, there is a low demand for our services. This happens most years."

About 99 individuals used RVAP's rape crisis services from April to June 1995.

For the fiscal year, crisis contacts for RVAP's Rape Crisis Services were up 35 percent from 1994, and 18 percent more rapes were reported.

"Our first priority is the crisis line and talking to those who call," Jacobson said.

Although the increase in crisis-line contacts makes it appear there are more sexual assaults happening on campus, Jacobson said the truth in those numbers is that RVAP's services are being used and not ignored.

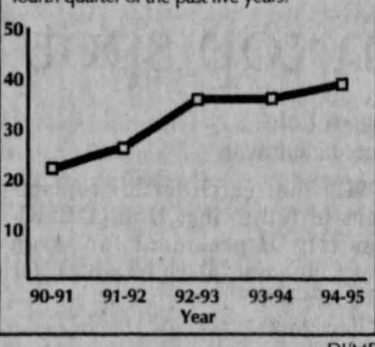

"It shows that the education part of our program is working and that they are making a big difference in the community," Jacobson said.

Over the last five years there has been a 73 percent increase in the number of individuals who either called the crisis line, received in-person advocacy or came to RVAP for peer counseling or a support group.

In the fiscal year 1995, 79 percent of assailants were known to

Rape Crisis Line Reports

The number of rapes reported to the Rape Crisis Line during the fourth quarter of fiscal year 1995 increased by three since last year. The number of rapes reported during the fourth quarter of the past five years:

the victim either as an acquaintance, relative or partner.

"Our statistics are fairly consistent with the national average and that proves that there are people who are close to us and that would hurt us," Jacobson said.

RVAP experienced growths throughout all departments for the fiscal year which runs from July 1, 1994 to June 30, 1995, according to the Annual Report of the Activities of the Rape Victim Advocacy Program.

On June 29, 1995, after 48 hours of training, RVAP welcomed 10 new volunteer Rape Crisis Line advocates.

MANY SAY THEY BUY THEIR OWN

Water myths blamed on chlorine smell

Sarah Lueck
The Daily Iowan

The water dripping from UI taps and spurting from fountains is not a flavor favorite with UI students, and some worry it's harmful to their health. But local experts say the water is safe for all.

UI freshman Rahni Spencer keeps two jugs of store-bought water in her residence hall room.

"Don't drink (the tap water); buy your own," she said.

Spencer said she heard pregnant women aren't supposed to drink Iowa City water in the summer.

"I think the water's dangerous when people say that," she said.

Contrary to the fear of many UI students, water officials from both the UI and the city say the water is safe for everyone to drink, even pregnant women.

"We test the water all the time ... Our operating permit requires the monitoring of pesticides," said Ken Lloyd, the water utilities manager for the UI and a lecturer in the department of civil and environmental engineering.

UI junior Monica Michailidis, a Resident Assistant in Stanley Residence Hall, also purchases her drinking water from a bottled water company.

"For drinking, (the campus water) tastes bad," Michailidis said. "I've heard pregnant women can't drink it."

However, she did say her plants thrive on the residence hall water.

UI water samples are sent regularly to the Iowa Department of Natural Resources, Lloyd said.

Although UI water does not go through the same treatment plant as the Iowa City water supply, both use the same basic sources: the Iowa River and the Jordan Aquifer. Because Iowa City is located in an agricultural basin, the composition of the water supply changes over the course of the year.

"We find that pesticide and herbicide levels rise and fall throughout the summer," said Carol Sweeting, public information coordinator for the Iowa City Water Division.

Because of the fluctuation, the treatments used must also be adjusted. For example, there is often chemical run-off after a dry spell.

"Our way to deal with this is to dilute the river water with groundwater to reduce levels (of chemicals)," Sweeting said.

For both the UI water and the municipal water supply, chlorine is the primary disinfectant, and many people complain about the chlorine taste of their water.

Lloyd said people aren't tasting chlorine as much as smelling it. Water drinkers can expect to become less sensitive to water's qualities over time, Lloyd said.

"Most people, after drinking water — no matter where it's from — will get used to it," he said.

Sweeting said the amounts of chlorine are not harmful, and the chlorine is present only in the form of a gas.

"The water has to carry chlorine to be safe," she said.

Sweeting does have advice for people who are still unable to enjoy the chlorine taste in their water.

"Take a pitcher and refrigerate it," she said. "The chlorine will dissipate in a couple of hours."

Sweeting also recommended allowing the chlorine gas to dissipate before using it to water plants or to fill fish tanks.

Despite outsiders' complaints, Lloyd said he enjoys the UI water, and so do many other UI employees.

"Yes, very much so. I'm very proud of it. We have people that work (at the university plant) who like university water so much that they collect it and take it home."

Cedar Rapids tests weekend of 'Taste'

The first "Taste of Iowa" in downtown Cedar Rapids will feature more than 70 food items from local businesses this Labor Day weekend.

Nightly fireworks are planned, and the fireworks Saturday and Sunday will feature a synchronized musical show sponsored by area radio stations.

The celebration, produced by The Renaissance Group, will also feature live music throughout the weekend. Four headline acts are scheduled: Cheap Trick at 9 p.m. Saturday; Pirates of the Mississippi at 8:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sunday; Three Dog Night at 1:30 p.m. Monday; and the BoDeans at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

Festivalgoers may also choose to use food tickets at the River Hole-in-One Golf Classic, a contest challenging golfers of all levels to shoot a hole-in-one on a floating green in the Cedar River. The winner will receive a $15,000 gift certificate good toward any car at Bob Zimmerman Ford in Cedar Rapids.

"Taste of Iowa" will be held on the Second Avenue Bridge from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily, Saturday-Monday. General admission is $5 for adults and free for seniors and children under 12. FirstStar Bank is also sponsoring First Day/First Hour Free on Saturday from 11 a.m. to noon. Tickets to be used at individual vendors are $5 for 10, with food prices starting at $0.50.

Regents confident as presidential search continues

Holly Reinhardt
The Daily Iowan

The next permanent president of the UI may not enter office until the end of the fall semester — almost one year after former president Hunter Rawlings announced his departure.

Marvin Pomerantz, president of the Iowa state Board of Regents, said if a candidate is selected from outside the UI, it will probably be several months before he or she takes office.

Rawlings announced he would leave the UI in December of 1994; he assumed the presidency of Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., on July 1. Peter Nathan was named interim president of the university at that time.

Pomerantz said there is no need for concern over the amount of time the search has taken because the UI is under strong interim leadership.

"I don't have a real sense of urgency," he said. "I'm very comfortable with President Nathan and Provost Becker. The university is in good hands."

Although the Presidential Search and Screen Advisory Committee began announcing candidates last week and anticipates concluding the search by October, Regent Tom Dorr said he expected new leadership to be in place this summer.

"I assumed it would have taken less time," he said. "But I am comfortable with the search committee's process."

While Dorr said he thinks there may be other, faster ways to execute a presidential search, he didn't think the board should discuss the search process until after a new president has been named.

"I'd assume there are other ways to facilitate searches, but I don't think it's appropriate to discuss it at this time," Dorr said.

Steve Collins, head of the search committee, said there is a "good possibility" the search will be completed within three or four weeks.

"We are working," he said. "We're working as diligently and quickly as we can."

Currently, the committee is scheduling interviews with candidates. Of the approximately six candidates the committee will interview on campus, three have been officially announced.

After the on-campus interviews, Collins said the search committee must reduce the pool to four candidates. Those candidates will be reviewed by the regents. The regents are responsible for the ultimate decision, Collins said.

The UI's search has not taken longer than most other research university's presidential searches, Collins said.

"It's quite typical," he said.

FBI siege investigated while in internal inquiry

Marcy Gordon
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Despite their narrowed focus, upcoming Senate hearings on the deadly FBI siege at Ruby Ridge, Idaho, still could undermine a federal criminal probe of an alleged FBI cover-up, a top Justice Department official said Thursday.

In a settlement, the Justice Department recently agreed to pay white separatist Randy Weaver and his children $3.1 million for the killing of Weaver's wife Vicki and son in the August 1992 shootout.

And the department is conducting a criminal investigation into whether five top FBI officials, including recently demoted Deputy FBI Director Larry Potts, covered up their approval of controversial "shoot-on-sight" orders given to FBI snipers at Ruby Ridge.

Both Randy and Vicki Weaver grew up in Iowa. After his release from an Idaho jail in December 1993, Randy Weaver was reunited with his three daughters. The family now lives in Grand Junction, Iowa.

Last month, in response to concerns expressed by the Justice Department, Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., chairman of the Senate Judiciary terrorism subcommittee, offered to tailor the hearings to avoid jeopardizing the criminal investigation.

The three-week hearings are scheduled to begin next Wednesday.

Labor Day Weekend

Home for the holiday

After being back in town for two weeks, many UI students are using the three-day weekend to return home

Evelyn Lauer
The Daily Iowan

Today marks the beginning of Labor Day weekend and many UI students choose to leave the bars, booze and homework behind, as they venture back home to enjoy a relaxing three day weekend.

Although many UI students have spent the past two weeks settling back into Iowa City life, they're now packing their bags again and heading home. Many students said they feel the holiday weekend gives them the opportunity to see their family and friends one last time before the school year really kicks in.

Tim Dreyer, a freshman from Northbrook, Ill., said he is excited to see one of his best friends. "I'm going home to see my family and one of my friends who goes to West Point Military Academy in New York," Dreyer said. "This weekend is one of the few breaks he has. We're going to the Bears' game on Sunday."

Additionally, Dreyer said the weekend will be a chance to pick up some things he left at home. "I just want to see my friends and get some stuff (from home) that I left behind," he said. UI freshman Jenny Keairns, from Sioux City, Iowa, also said she wasn't feeling homesick quite yet, but is going home anyway. "I don't miss (home) too much, but it will be nice to see my friends," Keairns said. "Most of my friends from here are going home too, so I might as well go home."

Many students said a three day weekend provides them with the chance to take advantage of the luxuries of home. Dave Johnson, a freshman from Lake in the Hills, Ill., said he is "going home on business."

"I need to get money and get my laundry done," he said. "I just got out of temporary housing. So I need to pick up my stereo and TV."

UI sophomore Sarah Golz, from Arlington Heights, Ill., is "road tripping it" home this weekend with a friend, UI sophomore Kate Socks, from Brookfield, Wis.

"We're leaving (today) after class," Golz said. "Then we're going to Dubuque for a football game and then to Brookfield Saturday night."

Socks said she is anxious to go home and see her family. "I'm excited to go home. I like being home a lot," she said.

UI senior Kari Buck, from Arlington Heights, Ill., has been in Iowa City since the beginning of August, and like others who have been in town longer than the past two weeks of classes, wants some new scenery.

"I'm going home to relax and try not to do homework," she said. "I'm getting sick of Iowa City. I feel the need to leave."

UI senior Tonya McNabb, an Iowa City resident, is also leaving the city to see new sights.

"I'm leaving (today) afternoon to go to Chicago to visit my boyfriend and go out," McNabb said. "I took summer classes here this summer. I definitely am ready to leave this town for a while."

While many students are discovering ways to enjoy their Labor Day weekends out of town, others are finding themselves stuck in Iowa City.

UI freshman Beth Collison, from Yankton, S.D., said she won't be able to go home because of the distance.

"I'm not going home because I live seven hours away," she said. "I might go to the beach, but I'll most likely just study this weekend."

Collison said she doesn't really mind staying in Iowa City this weekend, even though most of her Iowa City friends are going home. However, other stranded students said they are disappointed that they can't get home.

UI freshman Sarah Gudmundson, from Edina, Minn., has had a "ride needed" sign up on a bulletin board at Burge Residence Hall for weeks and has yet to find a ride home.

"It's real frustrating," she said. "I wasn't planning on going home, but no one else is going to be around."

Gudmundson said she will probably spend her weekend in Iowa City. "It looks like I'm going to have to stay," she said. "I'm still working on it though."

What are your Labor Day plans?

Eunjoo Kang, UI graduate student

"I will visit an older American couple my husband used to live with. We'll eat together and have fun."

Heidi Kirkwood, UI freshman

"I'm the only one in Iowa City that's staying in Iowa City. I'm going to study, but don't write that — it's so lame."

John Mosley, UI senior

"I'm going to throw a party because my birthday is the day after ... so it's kind of a special holiday for me."

Amanda Clarke, UI freshman

"My little brother and sister called me. My little brother just started school and my little sister misses me. And (I miss) my friends, too."

Josh Ewen, UI freshman

"I'm going home to party with my friends. It's the last big time to party with my friends before Christmas."

'I'm stranded!': 4 innovative plans for getting home

Carrie Crumbaugh
The Daily Iowan

As hoards of students head home packed in cars for Labor Day weekend, many stranded travelers scurry to find a way home for their last hurrah before the semester gets under way.

UI senior Cathlin McCullough sat by the phone Wednesday evening waiting for someone to answer her plea for a ride to St. Louis for the weekend. She made her request by running around campus placing "ride needed" posters in residence halls and the Union.

"It's a lot harder to find a ride home to St. Louis, let alone meet anyone from St. Louis," McCullough said.

McCullough's problem is not uncommon for UI students without cars or access to mom and dad's mini van. Although many students see a friend's car as the only solution for a trip home, several stranded travelers have discovered a variety of transportation methods.

Buses

Cash-strapped students only have to look as far as the Greyhound Bus Lines, 404 E. College St., for a cheap and comfortable ride home, said ticket agent Janie Wiele. Greyhound Bus Lines offers fairly low rates to surrounding cities and towns with little hassle. For $34 to Chicago and $18 to Des Moines, it is a good mode of transportation for college students, Wiele said.

"It's close to campus, and we have Yellow Cab stationed in the same building, so students don't have to haul all their dirty laundry around on the Campus," Wiele said. "It's pretty convenient."

Car rental

Convenience is important to many students, and rental cars can supply that luxury, said Julio Johnson, a counter agent at Budget Car & Truck Rental, 1104 S. Gilbert St.

"Students are more in control of departure times and can stop whenever and wherever they want," Johnson said.

Budget Car Rental offers car rental to anyone over 21, adding a $5 fee per day for those under 25 — for insurance purposes. The normal rental fee for a standard compact car is $20 per day, with a daily mileage cap of 200 miles. Any miles over 200 cost an extra $0.20 per mile.

Hitchin' a ride

If students are under 21 and looking for a less expensive way home, UI senior Sebastian Contreras, a Resident Assistant at Burge Residence Hall, suggests putting up signs in the residence halls.

"I would probably put up a sign asking for a ride and pay half the gas," he said. "It's usually a pretty good idea."

Other than the residence hall bulletin boards, the Campus Information Center in the Union offers a free ride-matching service for students, said Rich Herrick, a UI graduate student and information desk employee.

"We have a filing system for students needing and offering rides in many regions," he said. "Students fill out a card stating where they are going including the date and time, and then try to find a match for the city they are going to."

Last-ditch effort

If buses, car rentals and ride boards all fail to suit a traveling student's needs, a nice bike ride home for the holidays, complete with a laundry bag cradled in the basket, is one final solution.

"I had to go home to Cedar Rapids last year over Labor Day to pick up a check for rent and the only mode of transportation I had was my bike," UI sophomore Adam Svatek said.

Serbs endure NATO strikes

Misha Savic
Associated Press

PALE, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Warplanes from NATO countries struck at Bosnian Serb targets for a second day Thursday in an effort to break the rebels' ability to wage war.

"We have done some air strikes today. I'm not going to get specific on when or where," said alliance spokesman Capt. Jim Mitchell in Naples, Italy.

Western military sources said the strikes occurred Thursday afternoon, but did not say where.

Asked if bombing continued this evening, Mitchell said only that "our operation continues."

In the largest attack in NATO's 46-year history, warplanes pummeled Serb targets in Sarajevo and elsewhere Wednesday to retaliate for a Serb mortar attack which killed 38 people in a crowded market. Big guns of the U.N. rapid reaction force hit Serb artillery and mortars ringing the Bosnian capital.

Associated Press

Bosnian Serb soldiers carry a wooden cross and coffin during the funeral of their comrade, 19-year-old Bosnian Serb soldier Aleksandar Milovic, Thursday in Pale, some 10 miles east of Sarajevo. He was killed during Wednesday's NATO air strikes on Bosnian Serb army radar and communication facilities on Mount Jahorina.

NATO said bad weather and low clouds had plagued operations for most of Thursday. But alliance jets were over Bosnia earlier in the day, assessing the results of Wednesday's air strikes and carrying out search and rescue operations for two missing French pilots. There was no word late Thursday on their whereabouts or fate.

Adm. Leighton Smith, the NATO commander overseeing the air strikes, released videotape of damage inflicted by Wednesday's bombing, reminiscent of footage allies showed during the Gulf War. He said 90 targets were attacked and the 300 NATO sorties hobbled the Serbs' air defenses.

U.N. spokesman Lt. Col. Chris Vernon said most of the Serb communications systems, radar and anti-aircraft systems near Sarajevo, and several command posts, were destroyed Wednesday.

Other officials said U.N. artillery fire destroyed 23 Serb guns and ammunition sites around the capital.

The stated goal of the attacks was to force the Serbs to pull heavy weapons out of the Sarajevo area and stop attacking the other three remaining U.N. "safe areas" in Bosnia.

Overall, the strategy is to weaken the rebels and force them to make peace.

Prosecutors may disclose Reynolds foul use of funds

James Webb
Associated Press

CHICAGO — On the witness stand at his sexual misconduct trial, U.S. Rep. Mel Reynolds may have caught a glimpse of his future: federal investigators taking notes for the next case against him. While Reynolds has spent the last year fighting charges he had sex with an underage campaign worker, the U.S. attorney's office has been examining whether he illegally converted campaign funds to personal use.

An assistant U.S. attorney and agents from the FBI and Internal Revenue Service attended parts of Reynolds' trial, which revealed the following:

- More than half the down payment on his $310,000 suburban home came from $15,000 in political funds;

- Reynolds' apartment was rented with funds from his campaign account.

SECURITY CAMERAS PREVENTED INJURY

Neurologist charged in revenge attempt

Steve Baker
Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Security cameras in the Vanderbilt University Medical Center parking garage spotted Dr. Ray Mettetal in a wig, false beard and shoes with lifts.

In the pocket of the neurologist's padded trenchcoat was a large syringe investigators say contained a lethal solution of salt water and boric acid.

Mettetal, police say, was bent on revenge: He was out to kill the department chairman whose refusal to write him a letter of recommendation more than 10 years ago destroyed his dream of becoming a brain surgeon.

Mettetal, 44, faces a preliminary hearing today on charges of attempted murder. If convicted, he could get up to 25 years in prison.

He has been held without bail since his arrest Aug. 22 by campus police who had been monitoring the garage's security cameras and got suspicious because of his shabby disguise.

The target of the alleged murder attempt, Dr. George Allen, chairman of Vanderbilt's neurosurgery department, was never harmed. Authorities said they don't know whether Mettetal had previously tried to contact him.

Mettetal's lawyer, Pat McNally, wouldn't discuss why his client, who lives in Harrisonburg, Va., was in the parking garage, but insisted Mettetal intended to kill no one. Police said the cameras caught him near Allen's parking spot.

Acquaintances say Mettetal had dreamed of being a neurosurgeon, a specialist who can perform brain surgery.

Women share tales of the gender war

Marcus Eliason
Associated Press

HUAIROU, China — In a tent at the world's largest women's gathering, Marnia Lazreg was describing to a silent, appalled audience the horror of being female in Algeria.

In another, a more boisterous crowd was attending, "O.J. Simpson: Black Women Speak on Black Men, Violence and Interracial Relationships."

They were just two of 300 workshops and seminars Thursday for more than 17,000 women who have come to Huairou, 30 miles from Beijing, to monitor and lobby the United Nations Fourth World Conference on Women.

Whether these exchanges have any influence on the official conference opening Monday remains to be seen. But they are, in a sense, the whole point of the Huairou gathering — a chance for the women of the world to share knowledge, form networks and exchange tales of the gender wars.

A multiracial group of about 100 women crammed an open air pavilion for the O.J. Simpson debate organized by Sisterlove, a women's AIDS support group in Atlanta.

It began with a straw poll, in which most of the women said they believed Simpson was guilty of murdering his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend Ronald Goldman. Most also said they believed he would be acquitted.

Rene Emily Dubose, of Charlotte, N.C., had heard the tape recording of Detective Mark Fuhrman's epithets about blacks on television the night before.

It didn't change her belief that Simpson is guilty.

"Now that it's verified, it doesn't take away the fact that O.J. murdered that woman," she said to whoops and applause.

The topic soon broadened. A Danish woman protested that in the furor over actor Hugh Grant's indiscretion, too little attention was paid to the hardships of women prostitutes.

In contrast to the scene at Sisterlove's pavilion, the mood was somber at Professor Lazreg's workshop, where 30 listeners were told of the hundreds of women who have been killed by Muslim extremists.

In the campaign to force women to abandon Western ways for Islam, victims have been raped, their throats cut, their bodies scarred, their breasts cut off, said Lazreg. "They are the only women in the Middle East who are being targeted for death simply because they are women."

Lazreg, 52, left her native Algeria in 1968 but visits frequently. She teaches sociology at Hunter College in New York, and runs a support group called the Association for Research on Algerian Women and Cultural Change.

Teen death may be linked to high-school infatuation

Rochelle Olson
Associated Press

WILLIAMSON, W.Va. — A dropout who may have been infatuated with his high school's homecoming queen has been charged with shooting her to death just days before she was to start college.

James C. Pennington, 20, told authorities he shot Michael Ann Koontz twice with a .22-caliber weapon on Aug. 25, when the 17-year-old girl left home to run an errand, police said.

Koontz's body was found in woods near a sewage treatment plant just north of this tiny town on Monday, the same day the Williamson High School cheerleader and homecoming queen was to start classes at Marshall University in Huntington.

Pennington, who dropped out of Williamson High in 1992, was arrested Wednesday and appeared at a hearing Thursday, where he was ordered held without bail. No plea was entered and his court-appointed lawyers had no comment.

"They were friends. They went to school together," Sheriff Gerald Chafin said. "I understand he might have been infatuated with her."

Chafin would not elaborate. Koontz had not been sexually assaulted.

LAUNCH SET FOR SEPT. 7

Bad O-rings kill Endeavour liftoff

Marcia Dunn
Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Space shuttle Endeavour's science mission, already delayed by O-ring repairs, was put off for another week Thursday when an electricity-generating unit overheated hours before liftoff.

NASA said the problem was probably caused by a stuck valve in one of the shuttle's three fuel cells, which burn liquid hydrogen and oxygen to generate electricity used by the spacecraft throughout a flight.

The 255-pound cells are so critical that the failure of even one in orbit would force NASA to order a shuttle back to Earth as soon as possible.

Endeavour had not yet been fueled and the five astronauts had not yet boarded when the launch was scrubbed with 7 1/2 hours to go. Thunderstorms probably would have delayed liftoff even if everything had worked properly.

"There are times when the hardware's going to stick its tongue out at you. The problem, you find it, you fix it and you get on with what the mission is all about," said shuttle operations director Bob Sieck.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration will try again Sept. 7 to launch Endeavour after replacing the failed unit with a used, $3 million spare.

The mission to release a pair of science satellites was already nearly a month late because of work to replace the thermal insulation surrounding O-ring seals in the solid rocket boosters.

Hot rocket gas singed O-rings in the boosters of two other shuttles earlier this summer, forcing the repairs on Endeavour.

It's a Disneyworld after all

Hello and welcome to Disneyworld.

In the second largest merger ever in the United States, Disney and Capitol Cities/ABC have locked arms and created a Red Rover chain to march across all aspects of our lives.

Now the "Magic Kingdom" and ABC promise to be your mass media everything. From the vacations you take, to the baseball games you watch, to the sheets you soil at night, Disney will be there deciding what you input. With the realization that size is no guarantee of creativity, but rather a cookie-cutter factory for bland culture, it's easy to see that the classic "Herbie Goes Bananas" story line may infiltrate more than just our theaters. Though synergy and diversity rhyme like the lyrics of a "Mary Poppins" song, they don't hold hands as well as Michael Eisner, Michael Ovitz and Tom Murphy.

According to Premiere magazine, Disney films accounted for half of total box office revenues in 1994. Seven of the 10 best-selling videos of all time are Disney flicks. It owns four production companies, two distribution companies, syndication companies, and large stakes in home video. In television, the Disney Channel is the No. 2 cable channel. Its television studios produce the hit "Home Improvement." Disney owns its own publishing company, four theme parks, a Broadway show, Disney on Ice, a hockey team, and $1.8 billion in merchandise.

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

The Disney-ABC merger leaves Mickey Mouse to replace 'Big Brother.'

For an empire that started innocently enough with a cute little mouse on a boat, this is quite a hold on the entertainment world.

With the merger, Disney now has its little paws on several other important lifestyle buttons. ABC owns ESPN and ESPN2 — now Disney does too. ABC has 20 television stations, including Lifetime and Arts & Entertainment, 21 radio stations and television production companies in five foreign countries. So does Disney.

Together, like two drug lords combining forces, the giants have quite a zippy-do-dah world planned for you. For one, Disney's getting into sports. Plans are in the works for ESPN sports bars in the theme parks. The 1997 Indy 500 will be raced on a new Disney track in Florida and broadcast live on ABC. Disney already owns the Mighty Ducks hockey team, and according to U.S. News and World Report, they've bid on the California Angels.

The Disney Cruise Line will open in less than 10 years. So will the Disney Institute — an adult education center. The mighty Mouse is even building an entire town in Florida called Celebration.

Does this all sound a bit Orwellian? Will Goofy be driving the winning car in the 1997 Indy 500? Will the people of Celebration be issued mouse ears to wear during roll call? Will our world be one of the have and have-nots — those who have shaken Mickey's hand and those who have not?

The entertainment industry is largely responsible for Western culture, and it's dangerous to use culture as an economic commodity. Many times, and specifically with Disney, we see very little new stuff and a whole lot of rehashing. Disney has been famous for all its movies having the same candy-coated-with-nougat-center view on reality. Even the Disney movie "Pretty Woman" about a prostitute turned her into a princess. What would Hugh Grant and Divine Brown think?

The Disney mystique is already overly written into our psyches. As other big media corporations play the merging game, we must pay close attention to what we're seeing.

Ethnic cleansing of Croats and Muslims is post-modern 'hyperreal'

The history of the Balkan region has been one of conquest, domination, division of ethnic groups and the subsequent coerced unification of those groups. The Yugoslav nation was created in 1918 from the union of the two kingdoms of Serbia and Montenegro with the Slavic provinces of Austria-Hungary. These provinces — Slovenia, Croatia and Bosnia — had long struggled against Austrian dominance.

Serbia finally threw off the yoke of four centuries of Turkish domination in 1878. For several generations the Yugoslav peoples were divided between two of the major European powers, trying to retain their ethnic identities, despite cultural imprinting by their rulers.

As the 1990's approached and European communism began to collapse, the individual republics recognized the opportunity to reassert their ethnic independence was at hand. The "South Slav" idea was dying and in 1991 Croatian President Franjo Tudjman seceded his republic from the union, precipitating the civil war which rages today.

Now the Balkans face another refiguring of the region, this time by a combined effort of U.N. peacekeepers and Serbian and Croatian leaders. As with the removal of gerrymandering in Georgia, the territory — most notably Bosnia-Herzegovina — and the people, have been reduced to percentages. Drawing a line on a map does not equate with drawing a line in people's minds. The connections of blood and ethnicity still exist, as is easily seen in the fierce nationalism of the groups in the region. No amount of wishful reconfiguration will be a resolution to the real-life problems of living next to a neighbor you hate, either because he's a Bosnian Muslim and you're a Bosnian Serb, or he's a former ally whose leaders cut a deal with the enemy to divide up your newly formed homeland.

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

Separatism is in the minds of the people, not in the borders.

Yugoslavia, like Poland and Hungary, was abandoned to forcibly established Communist regimes following World War II. Perhaps the United States and United Nations, along with Serb President Slobodan Milosevic and Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic, hope that creating a map which precedes the territorial reality will force the region into, if not a livable state, then at least a manageable state.

In the opening of his book, "Simulations," post-modern theorist Jean Baudrillard described a similar situation, concluding that "(it) is the generation by models of a real without origin or reality: a hyperreal." The ethnic cleansing of Croats and Muslims by Serb leaders was an attempt at just such a creation.

The true dividing lines do not exist on paper; they exist in the hearts and minds of the Balkan people, who identify themselves not by the cartographer's pen, but by ethnic heritages that run deeply through their history and their souls. Before we step into the morass we must try to understand the origins of the problem. We must understand the people before we cede 49 percent of Bosnia to the Serbs, a stop-gap solution that will inevitably lead to further conflict in the Balkan peninsula. Incidents like Monday's shelling of the marketplace in Sarajevo are not going to go away any time soon.

October celebrates oinkers

To get you ready to celebrate Pork Month (a.k.a. October, you'll need a month to prepare), here are some fun facts about Iowa's favorite animal — the pig:

- Pig Latin, a code language used by children, is an actual form of Latin that dates from the late 1500s.

- A study performed at the University of Kentucky, in Lexington, found that pigs are the most intelligent farm animal.

- Between 100 and 300 towns and cities in the United States start with the word "ham."

- In ancient times, the land that is currently referred to as Egypt was known as the "land of Ham."

- Ham was first originated in China between 2000 and 1500 B.C.

- The state of Kentucky used to use hogs in financial transactions involving real estate.

Little brown Buick - baby, you use too much gas

I've had a long and torrid relationship with Bessie. In the five years we've been together she has seen me through my greatest joys, my deepest despair and taught me one valuable lesson — freedom always comes with a hefty price.

Maria Hickey appears Fridays on the Viewpoints Page

Of course, Bessie is my car; a 1984 Buick Century that has seen better days. Her body is marred with age spots; she has trouble getting up hills; and like all females, gravity has taken its toll — leaving her roof with sagging material.

I can't really blame her for showing outward signs of hardship — after all, I've put her through a lot. There was the time I smacked a pesky fly and cracked her windshield. And the time I ignored her pleas to stop and we blew a rod in her engine. (Neither of us enjoyed being stranded on the side of I-80 at 3 a.m.) And the four times she's been towed have given her a thorough dislike of man-handling.

I just can't imagine getting into another automobile relationship for at least five years, maybe never, after all of the time and money I've invested in Bessie.

Although I prefer not to think about it, my family keeps reminding me that Bessie is not far from retirement, or even — gulp — the scrap yard.

But then, Bessie's insatiable appetite and constant need for attention are beginning to wear my patience thin. I just can't imagine getting into another automobile relationship for at least five years, maybe never, after all of the time and money I've invested in Bessie. Maybe I'm just kidding myself, but when Bessie's gone I plan to move where public transit will keep me from embroiling my emotions on another depreciating coupledom. On consulting a book that addresses things of this nature, "Car Trouble," it seems that there are a lot of good reasons for just such tactics.

It turns out that America's love affair with autos is a nationwide, maybe even worldwide problem. The authors of the 1993 book, Steve Nadis and James MacKenzie, cite that the 190 million registered vehicles in the United States account for 53 percent of carbon monoxide emissions and 25 percent of carbon dioxide emissions. In other words, this could be a fatal attraction.

It turns out that a basic comfort such as air conditioning is putting our environment in danger every day. The authors state: "In America, air conditioners installed in cars are the single largest source of CFCs that destroy the protective ozone layer of the stratosphere." Bessie makes a point to remind me daily that she doesn't contribute on that score.

I know, I know — you're thinking America is the country it is today precisely because of the automobile. We wouldn't have 44,000 miles of interstate highways or even suburbia without cars.

"But a worldwide problem?" you ask.

Let's think back to the Persian Gulf conflict in 1991. Although we all were reassured that President Bush's motives were simply that he couldn't stand by and watch a poor defenseless little country like Kuwait get invaded, it seems remotely possible that oil had something to do with it. After all, the amount of oil imported from the Persian Gulf to the United States has more than doubled since 1973, and in 1990 more than 40 percent of the oil used in this country was imported.

"Yeah, but I just want to get-in-and-go," you say.

I'm beginning to catch an air of indignation in your tone. Our culture has been built up around that very ideal. From Kerouac's "On the Road" to Tracy Chapman's "Fast Car," the auto and the images of freedom it symbolizes still pervade our thinking.

But unless we seriously begin to mull over and create alternatives, we're going to be faced with a crisis — energy or environmental — that will leave us without any of our much-savored freedom.

That's why when Bessie takes her last gasp, I'm going to look for transportation that gives more than it takes.

Until then I'll continue to serenade my radioless companion on those long drives we embark upon together. I like to sing to the tune of "Little Red Corvette" by the artist formerly known as Prince. It goes like this:

"Little brown Buick — Baby you use too much gas."

Little brown Buick — I hope that new fuel pump is gonna last."

I'm not sure she appreciates my voice, but then again, she's a captive audience.

Miss America voting proves shallow

This year the annual Miss America pageant is racked on the horns of a dilemma. Throughout the long history of the pageant, many have called for an end to the infamous swimsuit competition. Now the debate has finally come to a head. The solution: a 900 number during the live telecast for the viewer to vote yes or no to the skin display.

How utterly ridiculous. Every year the pageant comes and goes with little fanfare, unless some petty controversy springs up to briefly spark the public's interest. If there really is some politically correct faction out there trying to enlighten the beauty-contest world, then fine, let them get it out of their systems. But it seems this phone voting experiment is just a thinly disguised ploy to add some drama to the night's proceedings. Supposedly, the contestants won't know the deal until minutes before the event is scheduled. Doesn't that strike anyone as being cruel?

If anyone should be making the decision, it's the contestants themselves. It might even be vaguely interesting to hear how they feel on the matter. After all, they entered the contest knowing full well what it was about and what they will have to do. If they are willing to exploit themselves, that's perfectly fine. In our society, people use whatever they have to get what they can. It's just considered more noble to use intelligence or luck to get rich than to use looks.

Leonard Horn, former Miss America board president, once said, "This is a tradition and the swimsuit competition is so identified with our competition that it would be very difficult to find something to replace that." He's absolutely right. Without the swimsuit competition it wouldn't be Miss America.

It's hard to imagine anything sillier than a bunch of women in a contest judging who's the prettiest and the nicest, but it seems even sillier to freak out about how silly it is. The mindset that looks are everything infests this country like a plague and most of the time no one seems to mind. Movie stars and singers don't necessarily have a shred of talent but they are invariably beautiful.

The age of television and its total control of the way we think and act has changed the political system to the point where actual issues are irrelevant compared to charisma and good marketing. And things are only going to get worse as technology isolates people from the real world into our little cubes of quick pleasure and cool convenience.

Nobody is exploiting these women except themselves. And the moment of being crowned probably gives such an indescribable thrill that it would stick in their memories for a lifetime and that shouldn't be begrudged of anyone. Instead, take a step back and look at the art of being shallow and try to respect it as a survival mechanism.

UISG mystery unveiled:
office hides behind door #48

It was amazing. Over 800 students passed by our office door the other day. I guess 800 really is not a big deal considering thousands of students pass through the basement of the Union everyday. This occasion was special, however, because all 800 people were lined up outside of room 48 of the Union to get FREE ice cream. I'm not sure if it was the ice cream that enticed people to stop by or just the fact something was actually free. Whatever their reasons, 800 people got a chance to look inside.

All of the executives who helped put the event together were excited because all the people passing by meant there would be at least 10 people who knew our office existed. However, we discovered later this was not the case. When asked if they knew it was the student government office giving out the ice cream, many replied, "student government ... huh?"

This lack of exposure has been a recurring problem for the last few years here at the UI. When students call in with questions or want to drop something off for student government, they always ask how to get to the office. These students are almost always surprised when they find out the office is located right across from the Union Pantry and they pass by it everyday. People don't realize the amount of important decisions are made here that affect all UI students.

Now the mysterious office location has been revealed, "What does student government do?"

UI Student Government is a tremendous resource designed to accommodate student needs, fight for student rights and to create programs that help students in every way possible. We work on projects ranging from improving campus safety, to providing funds for child-care scholarships. UISG is either directly or indirectly responsible for all student activities that take place on campus. We also are the chief representatives of student issues to the UI administration and the Iowa state Board of Regents, as well as local and state governments.

When asked if they knew it was the student government office giving out the ice cream, many replied, "student government ... huh?"

Unfortunately, because so few people are aware UISG exists, these resources have not been utilized. It is difficult to improve UI student life when student input isn't there. One of UISG's goals this year is to get student attention (in a positive way, of course).

We want to make students more aware of what we are about because we are going to do a lot more than just hand out ice cream. The radio show, "Out of Order," will air on KRUI alternating Friday afternoons. Students are encouraged to call in and give opinions about any issue — whatever it may be — and discuss, battle, or complain about opposing views. The third Friday of every month we will keep students informed in a DI Viewpoints column. We have also planned several fun, free, movie events.

The more input we can receive from students through these events the more UISG can help.

So, you want to get involved? Special elections for UISG senate seats are now available in room 48 of the Union. If a senate seat is more than you're ready to handle right now, there are many other student government committees which may peak your interest, such as Homecoming, Bijou theater or maybe the student traffic court.

Right now we are involved in interviews for the new UI president. This needs student attention, but because few people know where we are located, few students have inquired about it.

Now that the secret UISG office location has been divulged, instead of passing by, students might actually open the door and say "Aha ... student government."

Tim Williams is the president of UI Student Government and is featured on the Viewpoints page every third Friday.

41 uses reveals not only the racial epithet itself, but a context that only adds to the insulting and inflammatory nature," Ito wrote.

A Fuhrman spokesman has said he exaggerated his comments to make a better story for the screenplay and he suffered a "mental block" when he denied using the epithet.

In discussing his ruling barring 18 other statements in which Fuhrman talks about police misconduct, Ito attacked the defense theory that Fuhrman moved a glove from the murder scene to Simpson's house to frame Simpson for the slayings of his ex-wife and her friend.

"This assertion is not supported by the record. The underlying assumption requires a leap in both law and logic that is too broad to be made based upon the evidence before the jury," Ito said.

In many instances, the judge declared Fuhrman's statements were irrelevant, would be a waste of time or were so inflammatory that the jury could be blinded by emotion.

The trial has been at a virtual standstill while lawyers awaited the judge's ruling.

In another development Thursday, Fuhrman's lawyer quit, citing reasons that are "personal but no doubt obvious."

"My heart is filled with grief and my thoughts and prayers at this time go out to the many, many people whose lives have been stung by Mr. Fuhrman's comments," said Robert Tourtelot, who represented Fuhrman in a libel lawsuit against Shapiro and served as his spokesman.

Tourtelot also has appeared on numerous national television shows proclaiming Fuhrman had been wronged.

But after hearing the tapes played in court, Tourtelot said he could no longer represent the retired detective.

"I was profoundly disgusted and horrified by the contents of Mr. Fuhrman's taped conversations," Tourtelot said.

Despite his strong feelings, the attorney said he remains convinced Fuhrman didn't tamper with evidence and the evidence points to Simpson as the killer.

For the past year, Tourtelot has served as Fuhrman's civil lawyer, handling the libel suit against The New Yorker magazine and Shapiro. The lawsuit claims the detective's reputation was damaged by a report which outlined the defense plan to attack Fuhrman as a racist.

Simpson's attorneys accuse Fuhrman of being a racist cop who tried to frame Simpson for the murders of his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

Tourtelot remains a lawyer for members of the Goldman family in their wrongful-death lawsuit against Simpson.

Another Fuhrman spokesman, private investigator Anthony Pellicano, wouldn't discuss Tourtelot's decision but said he was still with Fuhrman.

If Fuhrman is called back to testify, Pellicano said, he should tell the truth and not invoke his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

"At least he can walk away from the stand with dignity," Pellicano said.

"If he gets up there and says, 'Listen, I'm sorry, I'm sorry that this apparently put this major speed bump in the trial. Hate me if you want to. But I didn't lie about planting that glove,'" Pellicano said.

Fuhrman's denials about using a racial slur opened him to perjury charges, so he hired criminal attorney Darryl Mounger. When Mounger first appeared in court on Fuhrman's behalf in mid-August, he suggested Fuhrman might claim his Fifth Amendment right.

Also Thursday:
• The Justice Department said it was reviewing an NAACP request that it investigate Fuhrman's comments.

• Simpson prosecutors showed some crime scene photos to the defense during a private meeting in Ito's chambers. Simpson's attorneys had accused prosecutors of withholding the photos, which they claim support their multiple killer theory.

"We're not happy campers," Simpson lawyer Barry Scheck said afterward, complaining that the photo quality was poor. "We think that there are photos at the crime scene that are helpful to the defense."

MINORITY CANDIDATE

Jones, UI dean of students. Jones disputed claims that qualified minorities will not come to Iowa.

However, he said, a greater demand for minority leadership does exist because of the rarity of minorities in those positions.

Clifford Wharton, former president of Michigan State University in East Lansing, Mich., has been the only minority president at a Big 10 university, Jones said. Few major universities or corporations in the country have minorities at the helm.

"Diversity is still very difficult for society," he said.

Diversity in race, however, is different than diversity in gender,

Jones said.

Two female candidates, Karen Hitchcock and Mary Sue Coleman, have been officially announced as members of the pool. Judith Albino has yet to be announced by the university. UI Vice President for Research David Skorton is the only male the committee has announced.

In college administration, said Ann Rhodes, UI vice president for University Relations, "women are a minority."

As for the UI Presidential Search and Screen Advisory Committee, women are a majority, said Steve Collins, chairman of the committee. Twelve of 22 members on the committee are women; three members are minorities.

The committee was "given clear directions by the regents ... to take pains to include women and minorities" in the search process, Collins said. "We've succeeded."

Of the approximately 300 candidates, about 80 were women, Collins said. The number of minorities could not be determined because some candidates did not make their race known.

"We worked very, very hard and diligently that women and minorities were contacted," Collins said.

UI law student Reginald Harris said he would like to see a minority president. However, he questions what the appointment of a minority would really mean.

The university could then say it is committed to diversity by boasting a minority president.

COLEMAN

"What's happened is students are thinking 15 or 13 hours is a full load."

When she was in college, she said, students wouldn't consider taking fewer than 18 hours because they considered it necessary to graduate.

To solve the problem, she suggested better advising to prevent students from starting off in the wrong major, and added that although students may want to work to defray costs, dragging education out actually makes it more expensive.

Students said it was good Coleman was concerned about graduation time but said they weren't sure 18 hours was a reasonable workload.

"I'm taking 16 right now, and that's a heavy work load," said UI sophomore Theresa Surlis. "But 18 would be too much."

George Cain, UI professor of biological sciences, said he was impressed with Coleman's ability to tackle tough questions.

"We really got to know what she thought and got enthusiastic (about her)," he said. "She's been to UNC, Chapel Hill, which is better than this institution, which I think is important."

One thing Coleman said she would do as the UI president would be to reach out to the community. She said that would include holding town meetings with Iowans.

"We held town meetings across New Mexico," she said. "We got this litany of 'we want this and that,' but we discovered the issue was that they wanted us to listen to them. They felt genuinely better once they knew we listened to their concerns."

Coleman said UNM is in an environment quite different than the UI—New Mexico has more diversity, but there is more support of higher education in Iowa than in New Mexico.

UNM has a sizable minority student body, and Kathryn Gerken, UI associate professor of psychological and quantitative foundations, said she was impressed by Coleman's commitment to diversity.

"I liked her genuineness," she said. "She doesn't just favor diversity, she seems to support it. I'd be happy if she were president."

Gerken said Coleman seemed down-to-earth.

"I know the president is the salesperson for the university, but I'd like to make sure even our salesperson is in touch with reality," she said. "I think a lot of complaints (to administrators) don't get answers—I feel she would be in touch."

In the graduate and professional symposium, shrinking federal funding for research was an issue of concern, but Coleman said UNM had bucked the national trend and actually increased research funding.

Coleman also said she has experience dealing with difficult legislators.

"I've been hauled up before legislative committee and criticized for this and that," she said.

She described her leadership style as open.

"I try to give everybody an opportunity to speak," Coleman said, "and then I make a decision and stick by it."

Coleman said she would also be very committed to intercollegiate athletics, provided the programs were ethical.

"I'm a big supporter of athletics," she said. "But I understand that students can be used for athletic prowess. At UNM we will be monitoring all 600 intercollegiate athletes in progress towards their degrees."

HITCHCOCK

ing concern among faculty and staff.

Fellow employee Charles Sklavinitis, who Barrington replaced, was also upset with Hitchcock's leadership, Barrington said. Sklavinitis could not be reached for comment.

In the spring of 1990, Barrington said he was given the choice to be demoted or leave the university. He chose to be demoted to an assistant of another doctor in the department, who was climbing the ranks, he said. He never knew what his new title was.

"She wanted nothing to do with me after she made that arrangement," Barrington said.

At first, Barrington said he thought the job was important but when he began to think otherwise, he realized he couldn't give up the job for financial and personal reasons.

"I didn't want the system or university to feel like they could force me out," he said.

In 1991, Hitchcock left for the State University of New York at Albany, where she presently works. Barrington retired in 1992.

"No one ever volunteered to me, 'Isn't she a great one to work with or work for,'" Barrington said.

Hitchcock also has been criticized as hiring an individual who later committed murder. The book "Missing Beauty," published in 1988, outlines the situation.

In 1977, while she was at Tufts University, Hitchcock hired William Douglas, a respected researcher who was proficient in applying for and receiving grants. In January 1983, Douglas was fired by Tufts for embezzlement; in March, he allegedly killed an acquaintance.

Hitchcock denied comment on the issues.

"At this point in the search, any conversation should be with the search committee," she said.

threatened her health.

South Carolina Attorney General Charles Condon said he would fight Mellette's bid.

"Obviously they're very adept at public relations," he said of the women's lawyers. "They've taken a bath in public relations and they've gotten a new and improved model."

Mellette is a second lieutenant in the Oak Ridge Military Academy corps of cadets, court papers said. She is on the cross-country, track, basketball and softball teams. Calls to Oak Ridge administrators to get comment from her were not returned.

Lawyer Val Vojdik originally said two women wanted to join the corps, but she said only one is pursuing the matter for now. She would not elaborate.

Vojdik would not say whether Mellette had approached the lawyers or they approached her after Faulkner dropped out.

Mellette has not yet applied to The Citadel, the school said. Her brother, a senior and captain at the college, did not return a call to his barracks room. Her father, James Mellette Jr., graduated from The Citadel in 1963, according to a school yearbook.

Mellette must intervene to have a say in the November trial of a women's leadership program that South Carolina has proposed as a way to prevent women from breaking the all-male tradition at The Citadel, Vojdik said.

Twenty-two students arrived at private Converse College in Spartanburg on Wednesday to begin the first year of the South Carolina Institute of Leadership for Women.

In Virginia, the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has approved a similar program set up by the Virginia Military Institute, the nation's only other state-supported, all-male military college. The women's program began last week at Mary Baldwin College.

The Justice Department, which is challenging all-male admission policies at The Citadel and VMI, has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to declare the separate-but-equal program at Mary Baldwin unconstitutional.

Rangers, Penguins exchange superstars

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers and Pittsburgh Penguins, both coming off disappointing playoffs last spring, made a trade Thursday involving four high-profile players that changes the makeup of each team.

The Rangers acquired seven-time All-Star left wing Luc Robitaille and combative defenseman Ulf Samuelsson from the Penguins for high-scoring defenseman Sergei Zubov and under-achieving center Petr Nedved.

"The coaching staff and myself was committed to making changes this summer to shore up the team," Rangers general manager Neil Smith said. "It wasn't easy to trade Sergei Zubov, he's a star player in the league. We just feel that the trade was an overwhelming strengthening of our lineup."

Robitaille and Samuelsson are the fifth and sixth players the Rangers have acquired since being swept by the Philadelphia Flyers in the second round of the playoffs. Forwards Wayne Presley and Ray Ferraro and defenseman Doug Lidster and Bruce Driver are the others.

Liberty files suit against NCAA for banning prayer

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — The Baptist college Jerry Falwell founded filed a lawsuit Thursday to prevent the NCAA from enforcing a rule prohibiting football players from kneeling in prayer to celebrate touchdowns.

Liberty University asked U.S. District Judge James Turk to block the NCAA from penalizing teams whose players pray on the field beginning with Saturday's games.

"This stadium is a public place. Why should you — the NCAA — tell me where I need to pray?" said Liberty coach Sam Rutigliano, a plaintiff in the lawsuit along with the university and four football players.

The NCAA this season will strictly enforce a 3-year-old rule that bans players from removing their helmets, taunting the crowd or opposing players, posing or dancing after touchdowns or big plays.

Liberty's lawsuit claims that banning players from kneeling to pray on the field is religious discrimination and violates the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

"The NCAA is overstepping its bounds. It's doing something that is not only unconstitutional, it's immoral, going against someone's religion," said Jarrod Everson, a Liberty freshman football player. He is not among the four plaintiffs.

STILLWATER, Okla. — No. 2 Nebraska opened defense of its national championship with a dominating performance Thursday night, getting three first-half touchdowns from Lawrence Phillips in a 64-21 victory over Oklahoma State.

Phillips, cleared Tuesday by the NCAA to play, had 125 yards at halftime and finished with 153 on 12 carries as the Cornhuskers rolled up 671 yards and beat Oklahoma State for the 22nd straight time. They have not lost to the Cowboys since 1961, the only break a tie in 1973.

Tommie Frazier added two touchdown passes and scored once on the ground. The Cornhuskers, 13-0 last year, won their 26th straight regular-season game — the longest streak in the country — and 18th in a row in Big Eight play.

First-year coach Bob Simmons saw his Cowboys, 3-7-1 in 1994, get mauled from the outset and lose their 19th straight conference game. Oklahoma State had 1 yard of offense in the first quarter, and five times during the game had possessions of 5 yards or less.

One of the few Oklahoma State highlights came in the second quarter when David Thompson, who had 128 yards on 16 carries, broke off a 79-yard run. That set up a 2-yard touchdown run by Andre Richardson that made the score 16-7.

But Phillips immediately put a halt to any Cowboys momentum, going 80 yards for a score on the first play after the kickoff. He added a 27-yard touchdown on the next possession, and Frazier's 1-yard option keeper with 59 seconds left in the half made

Hawks host some tough competition

The Daily Iowan

No twinkies thank you.

The Iowa women's field hockey team won't feast on easy competition this weekend as the Hawkeyes take on Ball State and Southwest Missouri State.

Iowa faces the Cardinals on Saturday at 1 p.m., then takes on the Bears in a Labor day tussle at 11 a.m. Both games are at Grant Field.

"There is no preseason," Iowa coach Beth Beglin said. "We're going to have to come out ready to play. Both Ball State and Southwest Missouri State have solid squads, so we're going to have to stay on top of things."

Ball State comes into the '95 campaign after finishing 19-2-2 in 1994. The Cardinals won their second straight Mid-American Conference Championship and finished with a No. 7 national ranking. Ball State returns seven starters and 11 letter winners, including all-Mac defenders Andrea Breech and Holly Thompson. The Cardinals are a meager 1-12 against the Hawkeyes in the series but defeated Iowa 2-0 last year at home.

SMSU finished the '94 season 13-5 and champions of the Midwest Independent Conference. The Bears, under fifth-year head coach Val Pinhey, are looking to improve their 5-11 lifetime mark against Iowa. The Hawkeyes defeated the Bears 5-1 in '94. SMSU is led by senior Dana Radogna. Radogna was second in goals scored for the Bears last season with nine.

Beglin said there are advantages to opening the season with tough opponents.

"These games will show us just how far we've come. We're healthy and ready to get the season going. If we can come out and control the tempo and play consistent then it should be a successful weekend," Beglin said.

NEW YORK — Monica Seles solved the wind and her opponent today to sail into the third round of the U.S. Open by defeating Erika deLone 6-2, 6-1.

But several seeded players were ousted on the fourth day of the year's final Grand Slam tournament.

Zina Garrison Jackson used her speed and experience to eliminate 10th-seeded Lindsay Davenport 6-1, 6-3 in women's singles, while Daniel Vacek of the Czech Republic ousted No. 11 Sergi Bruguera of Spain in a men's second-round match 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

In other early women's matches, No. 4 Conchita Martinez defeated Kimberly Po 6-1, 6-4; No. 5 Jana Novotna stopped Sweden's Asa Carlsson 6-1, 6-2; No. 7 Kimiko

Date downed Lisa Raymond 6-2, 1-6, 6-4; No. 11 Anke Huber defeated Anne Miller 6-0, 7-5; Nicole Arendt stopped Radka Zrubakova of Slovakia 7-5, 6-3; Japan's Naoko Sawamatsu beat Janet Lee 6-3, 6-3; Sandrine Testud of France defeated Dominique Monami of Belgium 6-1, 6-4; and Angelica Gavaldon of Mexico defeated Jolene Watanabe 6-3, 6-1.

In other men's matches, No. 7

Yevgeny Kafelnikov of Russia stopped Portugal's Nuno Marques 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 and South Africa's Marcus Ondruska defeated Jerome Golmard of France 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Although she won comparatively easy, the second-seeded Seles, playing in only her second tournament following a 2½-year layoff, was not overwhelming. She looked vulnerable, as if she could be beaten by

SERIES PROPHECY

Bambino's curse will no longer haunt Sox

That's it, I've lost it. It's time for me to take a few days of rest and relaxation at the sanitarium of my choice. Why?

The other day I spoke these words out loud:

"The Red Sox are going to win the World Series."

I know, I know, Curse of the Bambino, Bill Buckner, blah blah blah. Just over four months ago I picked Boston to finish third in the AL East, now I say their near-80-year

World Series victory drought will come to an end in October.

Get that look off your face; I can see you think I'm off my rocker. But for a second, forget the fact that Boston has virtually spun its wheels since trading The Sultan of Swat 77 years ago to the Yankees so that the Red Sox owner could finance his Broadway play.

Compare Boston to the rest of the American League division leaders. On paper, Cleveland looks unbeatable. Seven Indians are capable of hitting 20 homers even without a powerful lineup to lend

NL ROUNDUP

Philly pitchers hold off San Francisco

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Sid Fernandez and two relievers held San Francisco to five hits and Gregg Jefferies and Mark Whiten hit back-to-back as Philadelphia won 6-0.

Fernandez (6-1), who has won his last six decisions, allowed three hits in 6½ innings before leaving with stiffness in his upper back. Ricky Bottalico got four outs and Heathcliff Slocumb pitched the ninth.

Fernandez, who was 0-4 before being released by Baltimore in early July and signed by the Phillies as a free agent, struck out six and walked three.

The Phillies scored their first run in the fourth on a wild pitch by Jamie Brewington (4-2). With two outs in the eighth, Jefferies hit his 10th homer and Whiten hit his sixth off reliever Shawn Barton. The Phillies added three in the ninth.

The Phillies avoided a season sweep at Candlestick Park, where they had lost their previous five games. They also broke a nine-game losing streak at Candlestick Park.

Fernandez, who was 0-4 before being released by the Baltimore Orioles in early July and signed by the Phillies as a free agent, struck out six and walked three. He has not lost since July 16, his first start for the Phillies.

Expos 5, Padres 4, 10 innings
SAN DIEGO — Darrin Fletcher hit a solo homer with two outs in the top of the 10th.

Rookie reliever Ron Villone (1-1) retired the first two batters before Fletcher hit his 10th homer.

Willie Fraser (1-1) pitched one inning and Mel Rojas worked the 10th for his 24th save.

The Padres had a chance to win in the ninth when they loaded the bases with two outs, but Fraser got Archi Cianfrocco to line out softly to first.

Sean Berry's homer in the eighth off reliever Bryce Florie, his 11th of the season, tied the game 4-4.

The Padres scored three runs in the sixth to take a 4-3 lead. Tony Gwynn's two-run single tied the game, and Ken Caminiti's solo home run, his 17th, gave San Diego the lead off Montreal starter Pedro Martinez.

Martinez made his first appearance in San Diego since throwing nine perfect innings June 3 in a 1-0 win in 10 innings.

Pirates 6, Reds 4, 10 innings
CINCINNATI — Jeff King hit a two-run homer in the 10th inning, his fourth hit of the game, as the Pittsburgh Pirates rallied against closer Jeff Brantley for a victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Brantley (3-2) failed to hold a 4-3 lead in the ninth, only his third blown save in 28 chances. Midre Cummings and Nelson Liriano had pinch singles and Jacob Brumfield hit a sacrifice fly.

Brantley walked Orlando Merced to open the 10th and King hit a 2-0 pitch over the left-field wall for his 16th homer and the Pirates' second victory in nine games.

Braves 5, Astros 2
ATLANTA — Greg Maddux posted his 13th victory in his last 14 decisions and became the NL's top winner as the Atlanta Braves beat the Houston Astros.

Maddux (15-2) checked the Astros on six hits as he pitched his third straight complete game and his major league-leading ninth. Maddux, who had four strikeouts and one intentional walk, got 21 of the 27 outs on ground balls.

Chipper Jones homered and Dwight Smith delivered a sacrifice fly in support of Maddux, who has allowed three runs in his last 25 innings.

The Braves ended a three-game losing streak in beating Houston for the first time in six games in Atlanta Stadium. The Braves reduced their magic number for winning the NL East to 15.

Cubs 12, Marlins 3
MIAMI — Jose Hernandez hit a grand slam and a solo homer to lead the Chicago Cubs to a victory over the Florida Marlins.

Steve Trachsel (6-10) allowed five hits and one run while striking out two and walking five over six innings in the game, which was delayed 71 minutes by rain. He was 1-3 with a 3.77 ERA in five starts against the Marlins coming into the game.

Associated Press

Cubs pitcher Steve Trachsel throws during the second inning of the game between the Cubs and Marlins Thursday.

Hernandez's solo homer in the fourth made it 3-0, but the six-run fifth sparked by his grand slam put the game away. He was 3-for-5 with a single and a career-high five RBI.

With one out in the inning, Willie Banks (1-5) hit Todd Zeile in the back of the head with a pitch. He sat out the rest of the game after scoring on a single by Luis Gonzalez.

New York's Paul O'Neill and Angels catcher Greg Myers watch O'Neill's second three-run home run leave the yard Thursday night.

O'Neill slugs three homers in NY win

NEW YORK — Paul O'Neill drove in eight runs with three home runs and a single to lead the New York Yankees to an 11-6 victory over California, the Angels' sixth straight loss.

O'Neill, who raised his season homer total to 19, hit a three-run shot in each of the first two innings off starter Brian Anderson (6-7) as the Yankees built a 7-0 lead.

He led off the fifth with a solo homer off Mike Harkey and added an RBI single in the Yankees' three-run sixth.

O'Neill faced Troy Percival, the sixth Angels pitcher, in the eighth, and was called out on strikes.

After an eight-game losing streak, the Yankees have won four of five and swept the three-game series against the Angels, who have lost nine of 11.

O'Neill's three homers marked the 20th time the feat has been accomplished by a Yankee in the regular season, and he became the 14th New York Yankee to hit three homers in a game, and the second this season.

Indians 6, Blue Jays 4
CLEVELAND — Albert Belle homered in extra innings for the second straight night, hitting a two-run shot in the 10th that lifted the Cleveland Indians past the Toronto Blue Jays.

It marked the ninth time this year the Indians ended a home game with a home run. Belle has done it three times.

The Indians have won a season-high eight in a row overall, improving baseball's best record to 80-35. They swept the four-game series with the Blue Jays and are 11-0 in extra innings.

Mariners 11, Red Sox 2
BOSTON — Seattle's Randy Johnson scratched from his start and Boston's Rhee Cormier didn't last much longer as the Mariners scored six runs in the first two innings and beat the Red Sox.

Vince Coleman, Dan Wilson and Luis Sojo had three hits and everybody else in the Seattle lineup had at least one. The Mariners had at least one hit in every inning but the seventh and had 18 in all.

Seattle has won five of seven to move into the middle of a packed AL wild-card race. Boston has lost four of six since a 20-2 stretch gave them a commanding lead in the AL East.

White Sox 9, Tigers 0
CHICAGO — Ozzie Guillen's three-run single was the key hit as the Chicago White Sox scored eight runs with two outs in the second inning of a 9-0 win over the Detroit Tigers.

Chicago sent 13 batters to the plate and had six hits against Mike Moore and Brian Bohanon in its highest scoring inning this season.

Alex Fernandez (9-8) scattered five hits, struck out five and walked none in his third complete game in 24 starts. It was his first shutout since July 2, 1994, against Milwaukee.

With the game scoreless, Robin Ventura walked with one out and Lyle Mouton, who went 4-for-4, singled. After the runners moved up on an infield out, Mike LaValliere walked to load the bases.

Guillen followed with a single to center that cleared the bases to give Chicago a 3-0 lead. Guillen went to second on the throw home and scored on Lance Johnson's triple.

Athletics 8, Orioles 7
BALTIMORE — Mike Bordick hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning to lead the Oakland Athletics past Baltimore, their first series sweep of the Orioles in three years.

The victory, Oakland's ninth in 11 games, put the A's two games out of the lead in the AL wild-card race. Baltimore fell five games back.

Cal Ripken capped off a dismal August with three RBI. He remains on target to break Lou Gehrig's record of 2,130 consecutive games Wednesday.

Ripken, who went 2-for-4, entered the game hitting .187 (20-for-107) in August. He began batting .281 and finished at .261.

Mark McGwire homered and Stan Javier went 4-for-5 for the A's, whose three-game sweep was their first against Baltimore since May 1992. Oakland won seven of 12 against the Orioles, their first season-series win since 1991.

Down 7-6 in the eighth, the A's rallied against Terry Clark (2-5). Craig Paquette got an infield hit and Bordick hit his sixth homer, driving an 0-1 pitch into the left-field seats.

Dennis Eckersley, pitching in relief of Joe Corsi, got the final three outs in the ninth for his 27th save, his third straight in the series.

Royals 7, Brewers 6
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Tommy Goodwin, who doubled following Johnny Damon's game-tying lead-off homer in the ninth, scored on Mike Fetters' errant pick-off attempt to third, giving Kansas City a wild victory over Milwaukee.

Damon's first major league homer tied it 6-6 after the Brewers had scored three in the ninth to take a one-run lead.

The Royals, who have won five straight and seven of eight, moved into a virtual tie for the top spot in the AL wild-card race with Texas, which was idle. The Royals are 58-56, Texas and Seattle are 59-57 and Milwaukee, 2-10 against Kansas City, is 58-58.

Jeff Montgomery (2-2) was the winner, while Fetters (0-2) took the loss as the Royals swept the Brewers for the third time.

Goodwin, who had three hits, went to third in the ninth on Gary Gaetti's sacrifice bunt. Keith Lockhart was walked intentionally to load the bases and Fetters then threw wildly.

In the top of the ninth, shortstop Greg Gagne's third error of the game allowed Pat Listach to score the tying run and then Kevin Seitzer singled home the go-ahead run.

Montgomery walked Listach with two outs, putting runners at first and second. Darryl Hamilton lined a single to left as David Hulse scored and Listach went to third.

Cleveland tackles New England in playoff rematch

Nebraska running back Damon Benning follows his blocking as it pushes aside Oklahoma State tackle Lorenzo Green Thursday.

it 36-7.

Oklahoma State's only other touchdowns came against Cornhuskers reserves after Nebraska had opened a 50-7 lead.

Frazier, who missed much of last season due to a blood clot in his left leg, looked sharp. He ran for 64 yards on 10 carries and completed 6-of-10 passes for 120 yards, including a 76-yard touchdown pass to Reggie Baul on the Cornhuskers' second play of the second half.

Phillips fumbled at midfield on the Cornhuskers' first possession but the defense made that mistake incidental by holding Oklahoma State to minus-15 yards in three plays.

Nebraska then drove 72 yards in 12 plays with Phillips scoring on a 3-yard run.

Phillips' eligibility was in question while the NCAA looked into a dinner he ate in November that was paid for by a representative of an agent. Phillips repaid the man for the meal in July. He remains under NCAA investigation for a car bought by his guardians at a California state home, where he was raised since age 13.

Want a traditional rivalry? Here's one: Carolina at Atlanta, for supremacy in the southeast corridor, whatever that may be.

Yes, it's expansion time and the Carolina Panthers head down I-85 for Atlanta to play their first game. They are, of course, underdogs — by 8½ points — even though they were 3-2 in the exhibition season to 2-2 for the Falcons.

The Panthers, under coach Dom Capers, look sound defensively, but will have trouble on offense, where they failed to score a rushing touchdown in the preseason.

"They are going to be very good on defense," New York Giants' Corey Miller said after the Panthers beat New York 6-3 in the remnants of Tropical Storm Jerry last Saturday.

The exhibition season is not the regular season.

FALCONS, 24-6

Houston (-4) at Jacksonville

The second expansion team opens at home against a team that went 2-14 last season and could be worse this year. Tom Coughlin worked 18 hours a day for the last 18 months to get ready for this one and accumulated six tight ends. So give it to him.

JAGUARS, 8-7

The Bill Parcells-Bill Belichick rivalry continues to build. The Drew Bledsoe-Vinny Testaverde rivalry continues to build?

BROWNS, 20-17

The Giants' offense spent more time in the trainers' room than on the field during exhibitions. The Cowboys' defense spent more time negotiating contracts.

COWBOYS, 20-10

Like the Giants' offense, the Saints' defense isn't ready for prime time yet. Trouble.

49ERS, 31-17

Lomas Brown, the Lions' left tackle, remains a holdout. And even though Scott Mitchell is left-handed, making his blind side the right, that's trouble.

STEELERS, 17-9

San Diego (+4 1/2) at Oakland

The first time in 14 years the Raiders have home-field advantage.

RAIDERS, 27-14

Minnesota (+3) at Chicago

The Bears couldn't beat the Vikings until it counted last season — in the playoffs. This counts because it's the opener.

BEARS, 18-14

It'll take some time for the Eagles to get comfortable. But the Bucs aren't the team to take advantage.

the Cyclones continued to pound away at Ohio's tiring defense. The 40 carries were five more than Davis had all last season.

Delirious Iowa State fans swarmed the field after the game and tore down one of the goalposts.

Kohl kicked first-quarter field goals of 26 and 37 yards after Ohio had scored on its second possession, a 20-yard run by freshman Marquest Rainey. Lakarlus Townsend's 5-yard touchdown run made it 14-6 at the half.

Davis gained 197 yards in the second half, setting the tone by carrying seven times for 74 yards in the opening series and capping the drive with a 2-yard touchdown run.

Hawkeyes kick things off with difficult road trip

Jon Basso
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa volleyball team opens its season with a trio of tough games in North Carolina this weekend.

The Hawkeyes play at Duke tonight before participating in the North Carolina Invitational Saturday and Sunday. Iowa is scheduled to play DePaul and North Carolina in the tournament.

"We've seen a lot of these teams so we know each other pretty well," junior Jennifer Webb said. "I've seen Duke ranked above us and North Carolina is always tough. Supposedly, DePaul lost a lot of players, but you don't want to underestimate anybody."

The Hawkeyes are coming off a very successful 1994 campaign. Iowa finished 24-9 overall and earned a berth in the NCAA tournament.

"The expectation is that we'll be a pretty good team," coach Linda Schoenstedt said. "The question is how hungry we are. We have to avoid injuries because we're not very deep."

Iowa is led by juniors Katy Fawbush, Jill

Oelschlager, Webb and senior Lisa Dockray. Fawbush was named a preseason All-Big Ten player, the lone Hawkeye representative.

"I've seen Duke ranked above us and North Carolina is always tough. Supposedly, DePaul lost a lot of players, but you don't want to underestimate anybody."

Jennifer Webb, Iowa junior on this weekend's competition

The Hawkeyes head into the opening weekend ranked No. 20 by Volleyball Magazine. Iowa is picked to finish fourth in the Big Ten by the coaches.

"The pressure of being picked fourth should help us," Schoenstedt said. "It would be harder for us if we were picked first. I think fourth is a good place for them."

The Hawkeyes game with Duke is scheduled to start at 7:30 pm today.

support. Eddie Murray and Dave Winfield are proven clubhouse leaders, while young players provide the sparks.

The Indians will win a World Series, just not in '95.

California reminds me of a young Cleveland team (if that's actually possible). Cleveland has Belle, Baerga and Lofton. The Angels have Salmon, Edmonds and Snow.

The Indians have quality veteran pitching in Dennis Martinez and Orel Hershiser. California has Mark Langston and Chuck Finley.

And as for the wild card ... well ... no team has a chance to advance in post-season play. My heart lies with Seattle and the memory of Alvin Davis, but neither the Mariners, Brewers or Rangers can contend with the division leaders.

When I look at Boston, I see a battered and bruised team. Roger Clemens and his tender elbow. Mike Greenwell, who averages six collisions with his own teammates a season. Jose Canseco, a guy who has battled a more diverse series of injuries than any player this decade.

However, I also see a team that has already beaten the odds this season just by being in first place. Everything about the Red Sox shouldn't even be.

Pitcher Tim Lincecum, whose career should have been over due to lack of talent, is now on the verge of winning the Cy Young Award.

U.S. OPEN

someone with a bigger game than deLone, who was playing in her first Grand Slam tournament main draw since the 1991 U.S. Open, when she reached the second round.

"I really didn't feel like she took complete and total charge until she was ahead by a lot," deLone said. "She was staying in the point and giving me more chances than I thought I would have."

Still, the 58-minute victory was Seles' 16th consecutive match win in Grand Slam tournaments, 16th straight in U.S. Open matches.

"The wind was swirling around and I just felt I wasn't attacking," Seles said. "The whole game, I was like pushing back a lot of her returns. ... It was just great to just get it out of the way."

Playing in her 16th Open, Garrison Jackson used her quickness to get to every ball, then moved the plodding Davenport from side to side until either she found an opening or Davenport made an error.

Except for 1993, Garrison Jackson has reached at least the fourth round on the National Tennis Center hardcourts every year since 1985, a stretch that also saw her lose to Martina Navratilova in the 1990 Wimbledon final. Shortly before this year's Open, she announced she had changed her plans and decided not to retire at the end of this year.

Davenport is one of the biggest hitters in women's tennis. But Garrison Jackson changed pace, not allowing her to get into a groove, and kept Davenport on the move, rarely allowing her a chance to set up for her big shots.

"I knew my game would give Lindsay trouble. I don't hit with a lot of pace and I move very well," Garrison Jackson said.

Dzine dazzles Iowa City with 'futuristic' art show

Jonathan Hansen
The Daily Iowan

"I came to Iowa to represent myself as a Chicago artist, not as a street artist, not as a Puerto Rican minority artist. I'm not a graffiti artist. I'm an artist, point blank," said Chicago-based artist of international renown, Dzine.

Dzine, who will be showing current works ranging from paintings to kinetic sculpture at the Summit Street Gallery, 812 S. Summit St., Sept. 1-24, was responding to the often publicized fact that his career traces back to his early teens, when he illegally "tagged" his name on South Side Chicago walls. His first paying jobs were spray-painting murals on walls inside clubs and on the side of local businesses.

While his background has certainly helped form the successful artist's views, he doesn't invest much interest in the labels of "Urban Expressionism" or "Street Art."

"It's a selling point. It sounds sexy. It's where I came from, but there comes a point where people have to start focusing on the work," Dzine said.

And focusing on the work is a pleasure. No longer being centered on the use of the spray-can, Dzine uses everything around him in his work. In brilliant colors, it expresses an interest in language and movement, which bears a similarity, as Dzine points out, to the Futurist painters of 1920s Italy. The Futurists were also infamous for public propaganda stunts, not unlike the "non-permission" pieces by urban youths the media labels vandals.

In that sense, Dzine has high goals of reuniting academic art with popular and urban folk forms of art. At the same time, he is quite humble about his own work.

"My paintings don't change the world; they don't involve quantum mechanics. It's all visual stimuli. I just happen to be fortunate enough to be making a living at it," Dzine said.

In fact, he's making quite a living at it. Since his first gallery showing at age 17, Dzine has been exhibited in galleries in Chicago, New York, Los Angeles, Italy, Dzine, an artist from Chicago, will be showing current works ranging from paintings to kinetic sculpture at the Summit Street Gallery, 812 S. Summit St., Sept. 1-24. It has been publicized his career traces back to his early teens, when he "tagged" his name on South Side Chicago walls.

England, Canada, Spain, and Paris. He's received grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and various private foundations, and has done commissioned works for MTV, Time/Warner, Columbia Records/EMI, to name just a few big contributors. He recently did logo work for Mortal Kombat 3 and just finished a mural for the release of Michael Jackson's latest CD.

Dzine blurs the line between gallery and commercial artist and has no problem with the corporate aspect of the art world, setting up all sales and promotion of his work himself.

"I'm in control of everything, so I can't sell out. I've gotten cornered by Chicago galleries, and they want to pimp me. Package me and send me off. I want total control of what happens," he said.

Ted Heald, proprietor of Summit Street Gallery, is quickly getting familiar with the way Dzine does business.

"He approached me and I was impressed. He creates the hype and does the job," Heald said.

Dzine will be the first international artist not associated with the UI or Iowa City to be featured at the gallery. Heald is excited about the change.

"I like the idea of having someone who is not affiliated at all with the University of Iowa or Iowa City. It's an honor to have Dzine, to introduce him to the community," said Heald.

Dzine seems to have a lot to say to the community, particularly college students. He delivered a lecture to a fiction-writing class at the UI Thursday, and he offers opinions on art education freely.

"Kids in school now have a preconception of what an artist is, and it is one, weird, two, eccentric; and three, it's some kind of lifestyle. It's a label; it's bullshit. Art is hard work," he said. "It's important that art students don't forget it's a business. The problem with art students is they don't know how to fax, how to type, how to make a business call. Art students need to stop buying marijuana, take that money and invest it in themselves."

The direction Dzine's career has gone illustrates vividly that he knows something about investment. Speaking to him and viewing his work, one can see the influence of the streets, but the beauty that is readily apparent is something far more than scribbles on the wall.

HUMOR IMPROVES FROM 'EL MARIACHI'

Action hides 'plot holes' in 'Desperado'

Mark Pittillo
The Daily Iowan

New from the Sam Peckinpah-John Woo school of showy violence comes Robert Rodriguez' "Desperado," a $7 million pseudo-sequel to his $7,000 smash "El Mariachi." The extra cash seems to have been spent on fake blood and flying bodies, but the manic action and general good humor of the earlier film still reign.

"El Mariachi" wasn't exactly deep, but it was a satisfying little thriller. Most of its charm lay precisely in the fact that it was made for less money than it costs to go to school for a year. Though the acting, lighting and camera-work was clunky and amateurish, Rodriguez' sheer will to succeed oozed into every frame. I was worried that with more money the basic component of Rodriguez' work would be lost.

The unnamed hero in "Desperado" (Antonio Banderas, "Interview With the Vampire") has lost his woman and the use of his hand in a showdown with a gang of drug-smugglers. He has since succeeded in killing all but one of them. In his search for that mysterious man, he stumbles upon another drug-smuggling operation.

This is about all there is in the way of plot. I do wish Rodriguez had taken the time to work on the story a bit, but that matters little because the fantastic action sequences more than make up for the many plot holes.

In these, he does an admirable job of aping Hong-Kong action director Woo ("The Killer," "The Killer") — although he doesn't have Woo's sense of rhythm in building the action to higher and higher plateaus of outrageousness. He does understand, though, the crazy rush, the beauty present in a mass of highly-choreographed, bullet-riddled bodies flying through the air or the sharp thwack! of a knife entering an abdomen.

"Desperado" is also funnier than "El Mariachi," especially when the mariachi's new flame shows her surgical skills and a couple of the mariachi's friends, Campa and Quino, show up and prove they're very talented ... uh ... musicians.

Banderas makes a vivid impression as the mariachi. With his stringy hair and piercing stare, he isn't as lovable as Carlos Gallardo was in "El Mariachi," but he's tougher and funnier, and he dominates the movie.

More problematic are the many cameos, which range from competent (Cheech Marin of Cheech and Chong), to weird (Steve Buscemi, "Reservoir Dogs"), to embarrassing (the ubiquitous Quentin Tarantino). Oh well, at least his screen time ends quickly with a bullet in the head.
