Fuhrman tapes deal blow

Racial slurs discredit prosecution witness

Linda Deutsch
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — O.J. Simpson jurors heard for the first time Tuesday that the star prosecution witness — Detective Mark Fuhrman — had uttered a racist slur and even advocated killing blacks.

As the mostly black jury listened attentively, witness Natalie Singer quoted Fuhrman as telling her: "The only good nigger is a dead nigger."

Earlier, another witness told how the detective who found a bloody glove on Simpson's property said he'd like to kill all blacks, and that interracial romance disgusted him.

"If I had my way, I'd gather — all the niggers would be gathered together and burned," Kathleen Bell, choking back tears, quoted

"He said that if, when he sees a black man with a white woman driving in a car he pulls them over."

Kathleen Bell, in testimony painting former Detective Mark Fuhrman as racist Fuhrman as saying.

Asked her reaction, she replied, "I kind of got teary-eyed and I left."

The testimony, the first jurors heard in eight days, followed last week's ruling disallowing most of Fuhrman's tape-recorded use of the word "nigger" and his descriptions of police brutality.

Still, admission of the testimony was a triumph for defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey, who has sought to expose Fuhrman as a racist so consumed with hatred he would frame a black former football star for the murders of his white ex-wife and her friend.

It was a shattering defeat for prosecutors, who barely cross-examined Bell and Singer about the now-retired detective's comments. Legal experts said the prosecution, now convinced that Fuhrman lied when he testified he didn't use the word "nigger" in 10 years, wanted to minimize the devastating impact by keeping the testimony short.

"After the tapes, the prosecution probably feels that these witnesses are, at least in part, telling the truth," Loyola University law professor Laurie Levenson said. "They want to get through this as fast and painlessly as possible."

Outside the jury's presence, prosecutor Christopher Darden fought to stop other witnesses from repeating similar testimony about Fuhrman's disparaging comments about blacks.

"These are horrible, horrible things that were said," Darden argued. "It takes us to a higher level of emotionalism."

Bailey shot back: "Suddenly they have a queasy stomach because they are not in a position to call the witnesses liars."

Darden, who is black, said he knew the hateful power of the Former Cat Stevens releases new record

Ron Kampeas
Associated Press

LONDON — The man who wrote "Peace Train" emerged from retirement Tuesday to sign copies of his first album in 18 years — complete with a Muslim hymn to fit his revised outlook on life.

The former Cat Stevens, the singer-songwriter who has changed his name to Yusuf Islam, says his conversion to Islam means he now considers the love songs he sang in the 1970s impure.

"It was not necessarily the music or the singing, but everything else that was corrupt: the drugs, sex, conceit, the unhealthy competition."

Yusuf Islam, formerly known as Cat Stevens, on why he gave up his career as a pop singer

"In the context of Islam, love should be connected to marriage," he said, surrounded by hundreds of fans jammed into a central London store.

That counts out pop hits like "Here Comes My Baby" and "The First Cut is the Deepest."

He described as "still halal" — or acceptable — songs such as "Peace Train," "On the Road" and "Morning Has Broken."

"On those songs, the words are unknowingly reaching for something higher than this world," he said.

Fans longing for the lilting Stevens melodies of yore will be disappointed: The new album is 80 percent talk.

In his new album, Islam has taken on the tradition of the "qussa," the wandering storyteller who recounts the life of the prophet Mohammed. Three years in the making, the album, out on the singer's own Mountain of Light label, is called The Life of the Last Prophet.

It has three musical pieces. One of them, a song featuring Stevens' voice, is an ancient hymn called "Talaa al-Badru Alayna," or "The White Moon has Arisen Over Us."

Stevens ended his career as a pop singer in 1977 when he embraced Islam. His beliefs, which bar mixing voices with instruments, severely limited what he could do.

There were more temporal considerations as well.

"It was not necessarily the music or the singing, but everything else that was corrupt: the drugs, sex, conceit, the unhealthy competition," Islam said, wearing a collarless shirt, a full beard and a large white skullcap.

He was drawn to God when a sudden wave saved him, washing him ashore while he was swimming off Malibu in 1976. Shortly afterward, his brother David returned from Jerusalem with an English translation of the Koran, the Muslim holy book. A year later, Stevens converted and changed his name.

He married in 1979 and formally renounced his singing career in 1981. But Islam acknowledges now "something was missing. I came back into the studio."

Islam said the album came partially in response to the controversy surrounding novelist Salman Rushdie's book, "The Satanic Verses."

The novel, regarded by many Muslims as apostasy, led the late Ayatollah Khomeini of Iran to issue a 1989 death order on Rushdie, which still keeps the writer in hiding.

"This issue has been represented as one of 'freedom of speech vs. censorship and death threats,' whereas in truth it is one of 'decency vs. obscenity,'" Islam said.

The most enjoyable thing about returning to the studio was the advanced technology, Islam said.

"I used to hate the hiss," he said. "With digitalization, you can duplicate as much as you want and there's no hiss."

And though he considers his old love songs impure, Islam said he would not seek to have them banned.

"The records are still spinning, if you want to listen to them," he said.

Sinatra: Not quite ready to quit crooning

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Make no mistake: When Frank Sinatra calls it quits, he'll do it his way.

Larry King wrote in his USA Today column Tuesday that the Chairman of the Board told him he's given up the stage for good. But a Sinatra spokeswoman later chalked up the report to "party chatter."

King said Sinatra, whose 80th birthday is Dec. 12, told him at a party recently that he is hanging up his mike and enjoying retirement.

"I'll never sing in public again, because those days are just gone. But I'm very, very happy," King quoted him as saying.

King also said Sinatra has grown a beard and spends his time swimming, playing a lot of golf and relaxing at his home in Malibu.

But the singer's spokeswoman, Susan Reynolds, said she had spoken with Sinatra since the party and that he has made no decision to retire.

"Mr. Sinatra has said he would be the one who decides when he stops performing," she said Tuesday.

"Sinatra occasionally has forgotten lyrics during concert appearances in recent years. And he collapsed on stage in the middle of his trademark "My Way" during a March 1994 concert in Richmond, Va. A publicist said then that he fainted because of the heat.

Oprah Winfrey claims she's no queen of sleaze

CHICAGO (AP) — Oprah Winfrey started her 10th season on national TV Tuesday with a new hairdo and theme song, the latter courtesy of Paul Simon.

In an interview in Tuesday's editions of the Chicago Sun-Times, Winfrey dismissed any suggestion that she started daytime talk shows down the road to sleaze. She says Simon wouldn't have penned her new theme — a pop tune with a Latin beat — if she wasn't committed to quality.

"I think we did a really good job of pulling ourselves away from the 'trash pack' last year," Winfrey said. "Ten years ago, I was just grateful to be on television. Now I feel a greater sense of commitment and responsibility to the work that I'm doing."

She also says her new bob will be the subject of a future episode of the "Oprah Winfrey Show," which has begun its 10th season in national syndication.

Singer Williams teams up with Schwarzenegger for movie

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Vanessa Williams would rather be on the screen than the Boardwalk.

Williams, who resigned as Miss America in 1984 after nude photographs of her were published in Penthouse magazine, has canceled a fall singing tour to appear in "Eraser," an Arnold Schwarzenegger movie, a spokeswoman said Tuesday.

Williams, 32, plays a federal marshal's wife who is forced into the witness protection program. Shooting begins in New York this week, said Gena Avery, Williams' assistant.

Williams had planned to play four nights at Caesars Atlantic City Hotel Casino as part of her international tour.

Kentucky governor can't stay in the saddle

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Brereton Jones canceled several appearances Tuesday after falling from one of his horses and bruising a kidney.

Jones was galloping a young colt at his thoroughbred farm Monday when the horse reared and a saddle strap broke, dumping Jones to the ground, said press secretary Joe Lilly.

"The pain was excruciating," Jones said in a statement.

Candidates vie for 2 board seats

Lynch: School board "suits" him

After carrying out Michael Howard's term following his death in May, Marvin Lynch is running for his own seat on the Iowa City Community School District School Board.

Lynch said he was appointed last year because of his involvement with the board's strategic planning team.

Lynch, director of UI Personnel

"After filling the shoes of (Michael) Howard these few months, I found that it suited me ... I'm current on the general direction of the school district."

Candidate Marvin Lynch

Services, decided to run for a permanent seat after his experiences with the board.

"After filling the shoes of Mr. Howard these few months, I found that it suited me ... I'm current on the general direction of the school district," he said.

Lynch said his experience with the board may prove helpful in the race.

"Maybe being sort of an incumbent can give me an edge," he said.

Before coming to Iowa City, Lynch and his family lived in Michigan, where he served on various committees within the school district.

"Even before coming here from Michigan," he said, "I've been connected to school district activities."

Lynch said he is a "thoughtful, considerate person" and "a good listener."

Ray provides unique perspective

Board candidate Bill Ray said he can offer the board an important perspective if he is elected on September 12.

Although Ray has had 13 years of teaching experience at the middle and high school levels, he said his most recent experiences have been "unemployment, underemployment and poverty." However, that makes him sensitive to stu-

Ernie Galer

Tie to the school district: Four children have been educated in the district.

Education: Bachelor's degree in architecture and business from Iowa State University.

Employment: Eighteen years in a building construction company, then move into real estate.

Bill Ray

Tie to the school district: Spent six months during 1990-91 as a long-term substitute in Lone Tree, Iowa.

Education: Bachelor's degree in history and secondary education from the UI in 1969.

Employment: Ray has been a teacher of the social sciences in both Iowa and Wyoming schools, a U.S. army radio operator in Japan, a machinist and a lumberyard worker. He is currently unemployed and doing odd jobs such as house-painting, fence-building and yard work.

Marvin Lynch

Tie to the school district: Lynch has lived in Iowa City for eight years, and he said his three children have all spent time in the Iowa City school district.

Education: Bachelor's degree in public administration from East Michigan University and graduate of the UI executive development program in the College of Business Administration.

Employment: Director of UI Personnel Services

dents who are less fortunate, he said.

"I'll be sensitive to the needs of children dealing with unemployment and poverty," he said.

"I have a broad knowledge of what goes on in schools ... I can advise other board members on what teachers from different levels require."

Candidate Bill Ray

Ray, who is 52, cited age discrimination as the reason he hasn't been able to get a teaching job in or near Iowa City since 1991.

"Age discrimination occurs everywhere in American society," he said.

Ray said as a board member, he will look into this problem in Iowa City, but isn't sure it's a priority.

"I'm going to assume Iowa City is fair in its hiring practices," he said.

Ray has a graduate certification in early childhood education, which he said will add to his wide perspective.

"I have a broad knowledge of what goes on in schools ... I can advise other board members on what teachers from different levels require," he said.

Galer carries decision-making experience

Although Ernie Galer considered running for the board several years ago, he said he hasn't had time to hold the position — until now.

"My other commitments are

"I have the ability to listen to different concerns and the ability to make a decision."

Candidate Ernie Galer

winding down ... The time is right as far as the time commitment and the ages of my children," he said.

Galer is currently a real estate broker and the president of the Iowa City Homebuilders Association.

In the past, he has been president of the Iowa City Kickers Soccer Club. He has also been a member of the Iowa City Area Association of Realtors and the Iowa City Board of Adjustment.

"I have good experience as a director of various associations and boards," Galer said.

Although Galer doesn't have particular changes in mind if he were to be elected, he said he is interested in new ideas.

"I'm willing to look at whatever the situations may be," he said.

Galer said he has qualities making him well-suited to membership on the board.

"I have experience in similar decision-making boards," he said. "I have the ability to listen to different concerns and the ability to make a decision."

Homesickness hits as school year kicks off

Melanie Mesaros
The Daily Iowan

Although first semester is just getting underway, many UI students are already feeling an overwhelming desire to return home.

Dr. Sam Cochran, assistant director of the UI Counseling Service, said the reasons for homesickness can vary, but many students have difficulty with the transition to a new lifestyle and feel anxious in their new environments.

"It could be the ability to cope with something — the newness and the result of a new situation," he said.

UI freshman Shannon Marty said she has been dealing with the problem of homesickness since arriving in Iowa City in August. Staying in close contact with her mother is one way Marty has tried to deal with her homesickness.

"I've probably talked to my mom every other day," she said.

Cochran said the reason some students experience homesickness and others do not may have to do with their personal skills.

"(A factor is) the person's skills in developing new friends and relationships," he said.

UI freshman Dana Wilson said she is dealing with her homesickness by going home each weekend.

"I went home last weekend and I'm going home this weekend," Wilson said.

If a situation becomes too overwhelming, a student may have to leave the UI.

"If the person is so overwhelmed that they can't cope, they may need to change (their environment)," Cochran said.

College friends to describe battle with AIDS

Carrie Crumbaugh
The Daily Iowan

The story of AIDS and friendship will be told through the eyes of two Indiana fraternity members tonight at 8:30 in the Main Lounge of the Union.

"Friendship in the Age of AIDS" will tell the story of Joel Goldman and T.J. Sullivan, two former students at IU. The men will discuss the trials and triumphs they encountered while revealing Goldman's HIV-positive status to family and friends, Sullivan said.

Goldman contracted HIV through sexual intercourse. Sullivan said he and Goldman hope to make students aware of HIV on college campuses and realize it affects everyone.

"Our lecture is not only an AIDS education program, but also an attempt to create activism," Sullivan said.

Sullivan said the lecture will concentrate on the risk of contracting the HIV virus by college students. Other topics will include the danger of mixing alcohol and unprotected sex, and how students are not immune to the deadly disease.

"Some students imagine only gay men in San Francisco and IV drug users in New York contract AIDS," Sullivan said. "It's everybody's disease; people need to know more and do more, because our friendships depend on it."

UI Panhellenic Council and greek adviser Kristi Finger said she hopes the lecture will give students more information about AIDS on college campuses.

"I hope the students will come away with the knowledge that AIDS can happen to anybody, especially with the dangerous lifestyles some students lead," Finger said.

(and when) mixing unprotected sex with alcohol and multiple partners."

Although Sullivan and Goldman will discuss how the decision-making process is inhibited by the influence of alcohol, the friends will mainly focus on the risks everyone takes and how they dealt with the consequences and moved on.

Living in the AIDS era, many students only see the technical side of AIDS and how it can be contracted, Finger said. She hopes Sullivan and Goldman will put a face on the deadly disease. Finger said the lecture will challenge the stereotypes many students have about AIDS and college students.

"The lecture is about how they met and became friends in college, and how the dynamics of their friendship has changed and stayed the same since Goldman contracted HIV and then AIDS," Finger said.

Sullivan and Goldman will talk about what students can do to reduce their risk of contracting the virus, including safe sex and healthier lifestyles, Sullivan said. They also plan discussing how to carry on and lead a normal life after being diagnosed with HIV.

The UI is the second campus on Sullivan and Goldman's 75-plus college lecture tour. They have been touring college campuses since Goldman learned of his status three years ago. Sullivan said they have talked to more than 100,000 students and receive letters daily from students affected and moved by their lecture.

Finger hopes to attract between 800 and 900 people for tonight's lecture.

Sponsors of tonight's "Friendship in the Age of AIDS" include the UI Lecture Committee, the Interfraternity Council, the Panhellenic Council, Residence Services Education Programs, Bacchus, Health Iowa and Men's and Women's Athletics.

BACTERIA PREVENTED FROM INCUBATING

Ames experts: Bird feces pose no illness threat to residents

Associated Press

AMES, Iowa — An infectious disease expert said she hasn't seen any evidence to show that bird droppings on downtown streets are causing a health problem.

"It's not something I'd worry about in everyday life," said Dr. Patricia Quinisk, epidemiologist for the state of Iowa.

When the Ames City Council approved a plan last month to cut down 17 ash trees along the city's Main Street, members said the area might have a "tremendous" health problem if prime roosting spots for hundreds of birds weren't removed.

The city can't act on the plan until after a public hearing on the tree removal Sept. 12. The tentative proposal calls for the trees to be cut down during the winter and spring for $5,100.

Assistant city manager Bob Kindred said council members have based most of their concerns on two memos prepared at their request several years ago.

One memo lists diseases associated with bird feces. In the second, a faculty member from Iowa State's College of Veterinary Medicine said his analysis of the droppings from Main Street's sparrows and starlings showed the presence of a bacteria causing cryptosporidiosis, a serious fungal disease.

But Quinisk said the bird droppings shouldn't be a major concern to Ames pedestrians. She said the bacteria — common to Iowa — only incubates if it is kept under soil for several years and the soil is suddenly disturbed. That situation won't likely happen along Main Street, where most of the droppings are regularly washed away by rain.

"It has taken a lot more than bird feces on the sidewalk," Quinisk said of how the disease spreads.

"It's not something I'd worry about in everyday life."

Dr. Patricia Quinisk, epidemiologist for the state of Iowa

Dr. Nate Ratnasamy, an infectious disease expert with the McFarland Clinic in Ames, said he has not heard of any local outbreaks of cryptosporidiosis.

"If there were a problem, we would be seeing more cases of it," Ratnasamy said. "I don't get a sense that it's a big problem."

Quinisk said there's a basic reason why the bacteria isn't a more serious problem — although humans have been known to contract diseases from horses and other mammals, birds don't pose the same threat.

"Birds are very different from humans," she said. "And they don't carry much that we can get."

First lady lambastes civil brutality

Marcus Eliason

BEIJING — Hillary Rodham Clinton named no names, but everyone knew whom she was talking about.

Her pointed emphasis on human rights, delivered in crisp, unadorned language from the heart of the last Communist superpower, electrified her audience at the U.N. Fourth World Conference on Women.

Tuesday's speech denounced the crime, prevalent in India, of dousing wives in gasoline and setting them on fire because they don't contribute enough wealth to the family.

Rodham Clinton attacked the practice of mutilating young girls' genitals, which is prevalent in some African and Islamic societies.

The Bosnia conflict hung unspoken in the air as she lamented "thousands of women (who) are subjected to rape as a tactic or prize of war."

Rodham Clinton did not mention China as a prime offender when she criticized sterilization and forced abortion — a custom experts say has led to a population deficit of 100 million females in Asia.

But Rodham Clinton's words cut like an ax, especially when she prefaced no fewer than seven successive sentences with the words, "It is a violation of HUMAN rights."

Freedom, she reminded the delegates, "means the right of people to assemble, organize, and debate openly," not "taking citizens away from their loved ones and jailing them."

The loudest of several bursts of applause from the delegates came when she criticized China — again, without naming it — for the "indefensible" act of preventing many women from attending or participating fully in the conference.

She was referring to the harassment of delegates with agendas China doesn't like, and the outright refusal of visas to some of them.

Talking to reporters later, Rodham Clinton said she hoped China got her message.

"It's important that all governments which in any way infringe upon human rights know that this conference is taking a strong stand about human rights and that the entire world is trying to move toward realization of human rights," she said.

Her speech will be taken as a vindication by those who said the first lady should attend the conference.

Some critics of China said she should stay away.

"We're very pleased she made a such a strong statement," said delegate Dorothy Thomas of New York-based Human Rights Watch. Shahin Gobari of the National Council of Resistance of Iran, the main group fighting the Islamic regime, also welcomed it, saying, "The more emphasis is put on women's rights, the more it will encourage the women of Iran who are living under pressure."

However, Thomas cautioned, "Words are not enough. There are women suffering human rights abuses around the world. They can't wait for there to be another conference."

Judge dismisses Whitewater fraud charges

James Jefferson
Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — A federal judge threw out a fraud indictment Tuesday against Gov. Jim Guy Tucker, ruling the Whitewater prosecutor exceeded his authority in bringing the charges. Tucker still faces a more serious set of charges brought by the prosecutor.

Tucker, a Democrat, had been accused of obtaining a federally backed loan under false pretenses and trying to avoid taxes on the sale of a cable television business. The loan was used by the cable business.

U.S. District Judge Henry Woods said the charges bore no resemblance to the matters Whitewater special prosecutor Kenneth Starr was assigned to investigate.

Starr, appointed by a panel of federal appeals judges for the District of Columbia, had contended Woods had no authority to restrict the scope of his investigation, and Attorney General Janet Reno had agreed.

But the judge ruled otherwise.

"I cannot accept the proposition that a citizen can be put on trial in my court for a loss of his liberty, and that no court has the power to determine whether there is jurisdiction to proceed in the matter," the judge said.

Woods also threw out the June 7 indictments of two Tucker co-defendants — his personal lawyer, John Haley, and his business partner William Marks Sr.

In the June indictment, Tucker and Marks are accused of lying to get a $300,000 loan, and all three men are charged with conspiring to hide the profits from the 1987 sale of a cable TV company in a bankruptcy proceeding.

Tucker still faces an 11-count indictment issued by the Whitewater grand jury Aug. 17. In that case, the governor, James McDougal and McDougal's ex-wife, Susan, are accused of falsifying documents to inflate property values.

McDougal, former owner of Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan, and his former wife were partners with President and Hillary Rodham Clinton in the Whitewater Development Corp. from 1978-1992.

Associated Press

BOSTON — The leaves are falling from the trees without turning their usual brilliant reds and golds. Pumpkins are already turning orange — or withering on the vine.

One of the worst droughts the Northeast has ever seen is worrying farmers and firefighters from Maine to New Jersey and leading to water restrictions in some communities.

"Every day it doesn't rain, we lose a pile of money. And looking at the weather reports, it may not rain for another week," said Scott Ellis, who has 750 acres of soybeans in New Jersey, where the drought is most severe.

The dry July and August are threatening the eye-popping foliage changes and roadside farm stands that draw thousands of "leaf peepers" and other tourists to New England.

"They're ripening very early," said pumpkin farmer Peter Gibney, of Danvers, Mass. "They're showing a lot of color right now that normally they don't." Farmers in New Jersey said pumpkins there were too small to sell.

Rainfall throughout the Northeast is 8 to 16 inches below average this year. In some areas, the drought is setting records. Belfast, Maine, didn't have a drop of rain for 31 days.

"It's probably the worst I've ever seen it, and I've been farming 40 years," said Roger Richardson, who farms 2,400 acres on Maryland's Eastern Shore. "We just haven't had any rain in August. The soybeans are really taking it. In many spots they're drying in the field."

In New Jersey, rainfall has been 30 percent to 40 percent below normal for the past 12 months, making it the second-driest September through August since 1896.

In the Connecticut River Valley, where many farmers rely on rain rather than irrigation, "they'll lose some of their crops. They'll be done early. They'll be out of peppers, out of tomatoes," said Richard Bonanno, a farmer who heads the New England Vegetable and Berry Growers Association.

"Even if you have the water, you're just fighting all the time to irrigate, irrigate, irrigate," he said.

Betty Miller of Miller's Plant Farms in York, Pa., said irrigation saved her fruit from dehydration but not thirsty animals. "The crows and pheasants pick at the watermelons and cantaloupe to get the water," she said.

Suburban gardeners are suffering, too. Many communities are imposing water restrictions, and once-prized lawns look like twine-fodder.

NATO strikes send warning to Serbs

Srecko Latal
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Its patience exhausted by shifting Serb signals, NATO launched new air attacks Tuesday meant to force the rebels to pull their big guns out of range of Sarajevo.

The air strikes appeared to end about an hour after they started, at least around Sarajevo. But U.N. and NATO officials said they were open-ended.

"The attacks will go on until the Serbs comply with our demands," said U.N. spokesman Chris Gunness. "We hope that a strong signal being sent to the Bosnian Serbs will make them realize that the international community is serious."

However, heavy rain that began Tuesday night around Sarajevo limited the chances of new NATO attacks until the weather improved.

Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon said U.S. warplanes flying from Aviano, Italy, and the aircraft carrier USS Theodore Roosevelt in the Adriatic Sea made up more than half the NATO strike force. A Western military source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said about 80 U.S. warplanes were involved.

Tuesday's targets — similar to those attacked last week — included ammunition depots and communications facilities, Bacon said.

The primary aim of the bombardment was to stop the shelling of civilians by forcing the Serbs to pull some 300 heavy weapons at least 12 1/2 miles away from besieged Sarajevo. But the NATO planes were not always able to get at Serb artillery emplacements because of their proximity to populated areas.

U.N. forces, which backed up NATO planes last week, helped out again Tuesday, destroying a Serb mortar south of the city as it was preparing to fire, U.N. officials said.

The Bosnian Serb military leader, Gen. Ratko Mladic, offered Monday to call a unilateral cease-fire around Sarajevo. But he refused to pull back the guns, defying a pledge to do so by Bosnian Serb political leaders.

NATO air strikes resumed about 12 hours after the deadline for the Serbs to comply had expired.

The Bosnian Serb military said Tuesday's raids caused extensive damage and civilian casualties.

Bosnian Serb television showed several demolished houses, a crying woman dressed in black and a man almost cut in half lying in a coffin. It said one civilian was killed and a woman and two children were wounded when NATO planes bombed Hresa, a village northeast of Sarajevo.

There was no confirmation.

The Western allies also have demanded the rebel Serbs reopen Sarajevo's airport and land routes into the city and end attacks on the three other U.N.-declared "safe areas."

The air strikes also were meant to emphasize the West's seriousness before peace talks resume Friday.

Caribbean islands brace for monstrous hurricane

Andrew Selsky

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Dwarfing the island nations of the Caribbean with a 700-mile-wide maelstrom of wind and rain, mighty Hurricane Luis roared toward the U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico on Tuesday.

Frightened tourists and islanders jammed airport terminals. Airports in the U.S. Virgin Islands closed at midday, and the last flight out of Puerto Rico was scheduled for 6:45 p.m., hours before Luis' expected arrival.

"Those people without reservations should not come to the airport because there are almost no seats left," said Armando Castro, an American Airlines official at San Juan's main airport.

Some of the control tower's windows were boarded up to keep them from being blown out.

The scene was repeated throughout islands in the path of one of the Caribbean's most powerful storms of the century. From shantytowns to gleaming tourist hotels, boards and metal sheets were hammered over windows.

In San Juan's La Perla slum, Jesus Mendez Ruiz hacked with an axe at a partially eroded cement utility pole as his friend tugged on a rope tied to the pole.

"We're taking it down so it doesn't come through the house tonight," Mendez said.

As the storm bore down on Puerto Rico, Gov. Pedro Rossello went on television and appealed to people not to panic. "Be calm, but be prepared," he said.

In the U.S. Virgin Islands, Gov. Roy Schneider declared a state of emergency and imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew to prevent looting.

Turnover weakens Democrats' Senate pull

Jill Lawrence
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Seven Democrats have now decided it's time to leave the Senate. Like Rhode Island's Claiborne Pell, who announced retirement plans Tuesday, most are in their 60s and 70s with long service behind them.

The generational turnover could not come at a worse time for minority Democrats. Their chances of retaking control of the Senate are nearly nil; they'll be hard-pressed even to keep enough seats to sustain a filibuster.

Republicans have their share of elderly senators up for re-election in 1996 — among them 92-year-old Strom Thurmond of South Carolina. But no large-scale exodus is expected. The 1994 GOP takeover elevated senior Republicans to coveted leadership posts that they are loath to leave.

With the decision by Pell, who is 76 and in his sixth term, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., is the only Democrat whose intentions are undeclared.

"All eyes are on Senator Nunn at this point," said Gordon Hensley, communications director of the National Republican Senatorial Committee.

Nunn wielded major influence over defense policy when Democrats controlled Congress and he was chairman of the Armed Services Committee. Hensley predicted Nunn would pass up a re-election race "because the Democratic prospects of retaking the Senate are going down the tubes."

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., conceded that "you have to be concerned about the retirements." But he said elections over the past 20 years have produced "huge swings" in the Senate and could again next year.

Daschle also predicted two to three retirements on the Republican side in addition to the departure of Colorado Sen. Hank Brown, announced months ago.

Fifteen of the Democrats' 46 Senate seats are up next year. A Nunn retirement would put more than half of them in the open-seat column, robbing Democrats of the incumbent advantage and giving the GOP fair odds to reach 60 — the number needed to shut off debate and proceed with action on a bill.

Republicans have 18 Senate seats up this year. Speculation about retirement centers on Nancy Kassebaum, 63, of Kansas, chairman of the Labor and Human Resources Committee; and Mark Hatfield, 73, of Oregon, chairman of the Appropriations Committee. They'll announce decisions in the fall.

Some Democrats suggest Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, the 73-year-old chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, could also bow out at some point. But Republicans insist Helms and Thurmond, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, are in the race to stay.

All told, it's been a demoralizing year for Democrats. Two senators and three House members have defected to the GOP since the last election. So have 107 local and state officials, according to an Aug. 21 dispatch from the Republican National Committee.

Pell, echoing the sentiments of several older Democratic retirees, said Tuesday that "there is a natural time for all life's adventures to come to an end, and this period of 36 years would seem to me about the right time for my service in the Senate to end."

Pell's retirement is not a departure from politics but "a passing of the torch to the next generation of Democrats," said Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee.

Republicans, however, see more than a generational hand-off in the Democrats' misfortunes.

"The Democrats have become a hollow party lacking fresh ideas, solutions and a vision for the country shared by the American people," the RNC said in a recent memo.

The memo made hay of New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley's disillusioned musings when he announced his retirement plans last month. Bradley, at 52 much younger than the other departing Democrats, called the political system broken and castigated both parties. He also floated the prospect of an independent White House race.

Bradley thus "implied (President) Clinton does not deserve to be re-elected," the RNC said.

Nunn, who will be 57 on Saturday, has already served four terms. He has said now would be the time to enter the private sector if he wants to pursue a second career.

A Nunn retirement would give Republicans a prime chance to pick up a seat and perhaps wipe out Senate Democrats' ability to wage filibusters — the parliamentary weapon that has been a major brake on the GOP revolution. Asked how worried he is about that prospect, Daschle replied, "In this business, only the paranoid survive."

How to frame your teacher

The first day of classes brings many strange things, not the least of which is a handout on how to nail your teacher in three easy steps, otherwise known as Student Complaints Concerning Faculty Actions.

At the beginning of the semester, teachers in the College of Liberal Arts are supposed to distribute the sheet to students taking their courses. The information is also published in the Liberal Arts Bulletin, the Schedule of Courses and the UI General Catalog. It is available at the information desk in the Union, in departmental offices and from advisers. Last week it came wrapped, like a fish, in The Daily Iowan.

In other words, by this point in the semester, the average student most likely has enough copies of these detailed instructions on how to crucify their teachers to provide them with enough toilet paper to last into the next century. But Judith Aikin, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, is apparently determined that every student know the proper way to file a complaint.

No one in their right mind would ever argue the university should not have a grievance procedure or students should not be informed about it.

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

The University disrupts student teacher relationships by overdistributing punishment policy.

But the College of Liberal Arts has gone into obsessive overdrive to get the information out. Not only that, but Aikin has chosen a goofy way to do it.

Requiring teachers to give students instructions on how to get teachers in trouble is inappropriate and unprofessional. It is not the faculty's responsibility to teach students how to file complaints against faculty. At the very least, this is a conflict of interest — it is in the teacher's interest to discourage such complaints. This policy also promotes bad teaching, because the document immediately sets up an atmosphere of suspicion and distrust.

The dean's office, however, seems to think it is of the utmost importance for teachers to understand they will be held accountable for their actions. In other words, it is the understanding of the dean's office that teachers will sin, and it should be the understanding of teachers that they will be caught and punished.

Although a spokesperson for Aikin denied any connection between these handouts and the noxious classroom materials policy requiring warnings if students will be exposed to anything "unusual or unexpected," it is difficult not to see these two as part of the same package. Intended or not, the cumulative effect is to drive a wedge between teachers and those they teach, demean the teaching profession and reduce students to snitches and tattletales ready to get whomever offends them. The next step might be requiring faculty to wear bumper stickers pasted across their backsides: "Like my teaching? Call 1-800..."

Or, students might receive a packet of those check-off cards normally found in cheap motels: "On a scale of one to five, was the toilet, er, the teaching OK?"

Fuhrman tapes will open the door for two guilty men to be set free

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito faced the difficult decision of whether to let the jury hear tapes on which key prosecution witness Mark Fuhrman used the "n-word." The relevance of these tapes to a Simpson trial verdict should neither be overlooked nor overemphasized.

Recorded over the last decade, the tapes show Fuhrman to be a racist thug who has habitually and blatantly abused his authority. Apparently, not all Los Angeles cops have been cured of Rodney King syndrome. But more importantly, the tapes show the prevalence of evidence-tampering, especially against black suspects.

On the other hand, just because Fuhrman is a jerk doesn't mean Simpson is innocent. However, the defense would have the jury believe Fuhrman framed Simpson by deliberately placing a bloody glove from the crime scene in Simpson's yard. Maybe he also put Nicole Brown Simpson's DNA on Simpson's socks. Perhaps he put a microchip in Simpson's head that made him get a fake beard and head to Mexico.

Regardless of the evidence stacked against Simpson (that would send most black men to death row in California), these tapes could still get him acquitted. After all, Fuhrman used the

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

The Fuhrman tapes exemplify the inadequacies of American justice.

"n-word" 41 times, and most of the jurors are black. He also testified he hadn't used the "n-word" in the last 10 years.

It's not hard to see how jurors could be swayed by this largely emotional diversion, no matter how compelling the rest of the prosecution's evidence. This is why Ito's decision was so important. He had to decide how much — if any — of the tapes were relevant to the defense's racist framing theory and how much would merely distract the jurors from the ultimate issue: a verdict on Simpson.

Ito decided the jury would only hear two of the 41 "n-words" and nothing of Fuhrman's framing exploits. This is a good decision in that it allows the jurors to see Fuhrman lied when he denied using the "n-word" and that he's not a completely credible witness.

Ito primarily allowed only two short excerpts so as to not unnecessarily prejudice the jurors against the Los Angeles Police Department and in favor of Simpson. But, any trace of "reasonable doubt" — regardless of the DNA tests, blood samples and pictures of Simpson's battered wife — could be enough to help Simpson. The chances of him being found guilty by every juror are probably slim. Simpson may even be acquitted.

Fuhrman won't testify against himself, so they'll both walk: Simpson won't get double murder and Fuhrman won't get perjury. Everything works out — except justice.

At least some good will have ultimately come from this case. The LAPD will doubtlessly be further investigated for its internal corruption. Americans everywhere will be starkly aware of the inadequacies of the present judicial system. California taxpayers will know their money was spent to help CNN's ratings. And regardless of what happens, we probably won't see Simpson in Naked Gun 4.

Leaving Normal

Labor Day came and I went — back to Normal, that is. Normal, Ill., my hometown, the armpit of Illinois, is known for being the headquarters of the two major forces in the United States — State Farm Insurance and Beernuts.

I don't know much about State Farm (except that when my friend-crashed the pizza delivery car he was driving, they made Mr. Tobin fire him), but Beernuts — now there is a great concept. Combining the protein you get from nuts — any vegan will assure you they are an important part of every meal — and beer, the drink of choice for the masses, really brings together two opposing forces in my life.

Normal is on the cutting edge of uniting the ultra-conscious and subconscious. The next time you are looking for a little peace, go to Normal. You too, will go absolutely nuts.

Bogus buzzwords give affirmative action a bad wrap

When you hear the term "affirmative action," what words come to mind? Quota? Preferential treatment? Unqualified minority? It's OK. Be honest.

Critics have successfully created the impression that affirmative action is synonymous with these buzzwords. Arguably, the white media share some of the blame.

Janine Jackson, research director for Fairness and Accuracy in the Media, wrote last year, "Pollsters have found ... that while a majority of people say they support 'affirmative action,' far fewer approve of anything called a 'racial preference program' or a 'quota.' The media's selected use of these terms thus skews public perception." Interesting, huh?

For the record, affirmative action is not a quota requirement. But it does require the removal of bogus, long-standing barriers to employment and education that have kept literally millions of brilliant people from proving their brilliance. Such barriers include irrelevant qualifications, seniority and hiring via the "good ol' boys' network."

Courts, however, can — and have — imposed quotas on entities found guilty of historical discrimination. And it goes without saying if white men would stop being "bad," the quota debate would be silenced.

While many white conservatives get a rash when they hear the word "quota," it can easily be argued that major American institutions have enjoyed centuries of 100 percent white male quotas.

But progress has been made. For example, in March 1995, the Federal Glass Ceiling Commission, a bipartisan, 21-member body chaired by the Secretary of Labor, published a report confirming "[at] the highest levels of business, there is indeed a barrier only rarely penetrated by women and persons of color. ... 97 percent of the senior managers of Fortune 1000 industrial and Fortune 500 companies are white; 95-97 percent are male. In Fortune 2000 industrial and service companies, 5 percent of senior managers are women — and of that 5 percent, virtually all are white."

From 100 percent to 97 percent. Oooh, now that's progress.

I don't see what the big to-do is about preferential treatment.

In Two Nations, political scientist Andrew Hacker argues preferential treatment is hardly new. For example:

• "For years, Ivy League colleges acted 'affirmatively' by giving places to mediocre students from fashionable prep schools."

• "The most common practice involves giving favored consideration to the offspring of alumni, even if their records are less impressive than those of other applicants. A study of Harvard ... found that about 40 percent of alumni children were admitted, compared with 14 percent among other candidates."

And considering past discrimination, I think it's safe to say the majority of those alumni children were white.

Also, to increase geographic diversity, some universities may look more favorably on, say, the three applicants from Montana than on the 400 from New York.

Still another buzzword in the affirmative action debate is "unqualified."

OK, let's say, for example, LSAT scores of applicant A are less than those of applicant B. This does not make B "qualified" and A "unqualified."

And what if both applicants are admitted and do equally well in law school? What does this say about the validity of this so-called qualification?

While studies have shown disparities in average test scores by race, many psychologists and scholars have found Anglo-oriented standardized tests to be biased against certain races and cultures.

Some of these findings date back to 1929. This leaves the validity of standardized tests like the SAT, GRE and LSAT in question.

Regardless of our position on affirmative action, we do know what it's not — a "cure-all." Certainly one federal program cannot cure 400 years of white wickedness. Affirmative action is only a tool that fights certain consequences of white racism.

Ideally, we shouldn't need programs like affirmative action. But we don't live in an ideal society. We live in America.

COGS urges graduate students to regain their voice

To fellow graduate employees and graduate students:

Though it's easy to put off thinking about our role and rights as graduate employees of the university, the reasons for considering them now are compelling.

The time is now because few things have greater impact on our scholarly and personal lives than the conditions of our university employment. The time is now because long-term downward trends in the academic job market and more recent attacks on higher education in the "Contract With America" make academic workers at all levels more vulnerable to exploitation than ever before. The time is now because graduate employees across the nation are winning union representation and better working conditions.

The UI administration would like us to believe there is no good time to consider our status as university employees or act to gain a voice in the academic workplace.

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

Teaching Assistants need to form a negotiating body to deal with the university on an equal basis.

Year after year, we are told life for graduate employees and graduate students is improving at a rapid and steady pace — all thanks to the benevolence of the Graduate College and the rest of the UI administration.

"Don't worry. Be happy." The administration will take care of you.

What the administration does not say is the catalyst for recent improvements in graduate-employee life (including increases in health allowances and graduate assistant stipends and a pilot program of university — subsidized child care) has been and continues to be the struggle for a graduate employee union. Formed in April 1993, the Campaign to Organize Graduate Students has worked since that time to make sure the concerns of graduate employees and graduate students cannot be ignored.

After a successful appeal to the Iowa Public Employee Relations Board to define all Teaching Assistants and most research assistants (about 2,600 people) as a legally-recognized bargaining unit for the UI, and after a narrowly lost certification vote in April 1994, we have seen modest but real improvements in the conditions of graduate employment as the administration seeks to blunt the drive for a graduate employee union.

These gains, achieved by united effort, should be celebrated, but the core needs of graduate employees continue to go unmet. Graduate employees need paid health care covering more than catastrophic illness. We need fully subsidized child care so our children do not pay the price of our graduate education. We need tuition remission and salaries that pay the rent. We need academic freedom (threatened by the university's homophobic classroom materials policy), job security and formal grievance procedures allowing us to pursue our teaching, scholarly and personal lives with a minimum of anxiety.

Most of all, we need a real voice in the decisions affecting us all. Graduate employees can gain such a voice only through a union able to bargain legally binding contracts with our employer, the UI.

Though the Graduate Student Senate can petition the UI administration and the Iowa state Board of Regents for improvements in the conditions of graduate employment, it has no power to negotiate with either body on an equal basis. A union, acting under provisions of Iowa labor law, does.

Like other college graduate employee unions, COGS was founded on the idea that we can win the respect and the material improvements we deserve only by building our own union.

The next COGS general meeting is Sept. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in Shambaugh Auditorium. Whether you are currently a graduate employee or expect to become one, join in discussion of COGS' goals for the coming year and meet graduate employees from the Teaching Assistants Association at the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Cow comments are incorrect

To the Editor:

This refers to your photo feature in the Aug. 24 Daily Iowan, in which you depicted a picture from the streets of New Delhi, India, with a caption connecting the street scene with a recent rail accident. I would like to register a strong exception to the tone and import of the picture and accompanying caption.

In the first place, the scene depicted in the picture is by no means typical of the state of affairs in Indian cities. While admittedly, the streets are not devoid of pedestrians and animals, the country has come a long way from when such scenes were commonplace. Even though animals today continue to provide an alternate means of transport, helping combat the energy crisis in developing countries like India, they are no longer the ubiquitous hindrances to motor traffic they used to be.

Your portrayal seems a manifestation of the attitude of the Western media to selectively project the negative aspects of developing countries and foster the stereotypes about the East, while ignoring the advances in economic development and social welfare being made. Your readership, comprised of a culturally diverse and intellectually superior academic community, would benefit much more from a more balanced portrayal of world affairs.

I might also point out that your endeavor to explain the cause of the rail accident and relate it to the supposed 'omnipresence' of the cow is patently incorrect. The accident did not occur due to the presence of a cow on the rail tracks. It occurred due to 'human error' in not correctly signaling to the (second) train coming from behind the (first) stranded train that the tracks ahead were not clear.

Your photo feature seeks to represent that the accident, and the resulting tragic loss of lives, is attributable to the presence of cows in places they should not be. By analogy, if an aircraft making an emergency landing after a bird-hit collides with another aircraft on the same runway (for whatever reason), the accident should be attributable to the fact that birds fly in the air at heights at which aircraft also cruise.

The picture's caption also states any person killing a cow must do penance for a minimum period of two weeks. Such notions and practices are extremely antiquated and occur, if at all, in isolated pockets of the society. This is not to state that the cow is no more a 'holy' creature in the Indian society. It still commands the same regard and respect as ever while serving as an important economic asset.

Women live in a never-ending bachelor party

To the Editor:

Thank you to Bruce Gleason for his lesson on feminist etiquette in last week's Daily Iowan ("Bachelorette parties shame the women's liberation movement," Viewpoints Aug. 25).

It is indeed disconcerting when, despite years of social conditioning to the contrary, young women show disrespect to the male organ. I only hope Gleason will apply his superior knowledge and understanding of feminism and speak out as virulently when he notices young men making lewd comments about women's breasts, bodies and genital areas.

If Gleason writes a letter to the paper every time he notices a group of men being obnoxious and disrespectful toward women, I suspect he will be a busy little bee.

What Can A Graduate Employee Union Do For You?

Graduate employees at the University of Iowa face formidable problems. We work without decent health care, without job security from year to year, without job descriptions that would minimize misunderstandings in the workplace and without formal grievance procedures to address problems when they do arise. Increasingly, we work without much hope of post-graduate employment in our chosen field, as universities cut costs by eliminating full-time faculty positions and as "Contract-with-America" budget cuts defund higher education.

The problems facing graduate employees now and in our academic careers are daunting, but the answers are there if graduate employees from all disciplines support each other in our common struggle for dignity and opportunity. 20,000 graduate employees at eleven universities have already won a say in their working conditions. Together, we too can fight for fairness in the workplace and for a national agenda that values people and learning.

Join the Campaign to Organize Graduate Students. Because no one can articulate your needs like you can, and nothing can make your voice heard like a graduate employee union.

SIMPSON

word "nigger" but said it should not distract from the charges against Simpson in the murders of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

"This is not the trial of the people versus Fuhrman, not yet," Darden said.

Clark, cross-examining Singer, elicited testimony that she had not told prosecutors about Fuhrman but notified the defense. Bailey asked why.

"Not in a million years did I think they'd want to hear what I had to say," said Singer, who now lives in Nashville, Tenn.

Singer, who met Fuhrman in 1987 because her roommate was dating his police partner, was asked if she was more offended by his words or manner.

"When he says the things he says, it's ... bolstered and held up and pushed out of his mouth with hatred and arrogance and despicability," she said. "And that's what hurts ... combined with the words."

Singer wasn't allowed to tell jurors what Fuhrman told her he did to blacks, but she did tell them: "After he did what he said he did, he said, 'Oh, well, it really relieves your tension.' And then this nauseating — it hits you here — kind of laugh ..."

Both Singer and Bell said they recognized Fuhrman on television after he testified at Simpson's preliminary hearing more than a year ago, and they began making phone calls.

Bell said she tried to reach representatives of both sides but made contact with the defense first.

"I didn't want someone to be tried without all the information, and I thought that there might be some reason that they need to know that Mark Fuhrman said these things to me," Bell testified.

The sequestered jurors took notes during the testimony, a contrast to their recent non-response to other witnesses.

After she testified, Bell told reporters she had reservations about her actions because "I felt that I was hurting the Goldman family and the Brown family."

Bell testified that she met Fuhrman at a Marine recruiting office in 1985 or 1986 and was initially attracted to him, but then decided she might try to fix her friend up with him. She said during a conversation at the recruiting office she mentioned Marcus Allen, a black professional football player.

"His demeanor changed and his attitude toward me changed ... He said that if, when he sees a black man with a white woman driving in a car he pulls them over," she testified.

VOLLEYBALL

Fraternity members say UI Ombudsperson Nancy Hauserman led the charge against the fraternity, citing noise and litter problems.

"This year, Nancy (Hauserman) will kick us off the property because we are too much of a headache to her and her neighbors," event organizer Brian Robinson said. "It's selfish of the neighbors, because we raised more than $4,000 for a worthy cause and they can't be disturbed one week out of the year."

Hauserman said the new venue was better for everyone involved. However, she would not comment on whether she had prompted the decision.

"It's an issue that's been resolved, and we have reached a good solution for everyone," Hauserman said.

She said the new location will allow better accessibility for everyone involved in the tournament.

"It (moving the event to Hubbard Park) allows them to be freer," she said.

Free or not, Sig Ep is not thrilled about the change of venue or the way Hauserman dealt with her complaint about excess noise, Robinson said.

Robinson said he and Biskner met with Hauserman last Wednesday and reached a verbal agreement allowing the fraternity to hold the tournament in their back yard if they kept down the noise and finished around 8 each night.

However, Interfraternity Council Chairwoman Mary Peterson told the fraternity last Wednesday they had to move the games or cancel the volleyball tournament due to neighbors' complaints, Biskner said.

Sig Ep resolved to move to Hubbard Park to appease the neighbors and the council.

Peterson was not available for comment Tuesday.

UI Panhellenic Council and greek adviser Kristi Finger said the council received complaints from neighbors concerning noise, trash and traffic after last year's tournament.

After reviewing the complaints, Finger said Peterson, Sig Ep and the neighbors agreed not to hold the tournament at the house. When Biskner took over the Sig Ep presidency, the agreement's information was not passed down to him, Finger said.

"There was a miscommunication between our house, the Office of Campus Programs and our neighbors," Biskner said.

Sig Ep hopes to meet with its neighbors after this year's classic to organize an agreement and hopefully hold the tournament at its house once again, Biskner said.

"We are trying to have the semi-finals and finals on our property on Saturday and Sunday, but we still haven't worked that out," Robinson said.

On sand or on grass, Sig Ep will host its two-person volleyball classic at Hubbard Park, starting at 8 a.m. today. The tournament will tentatively last until Saturday or Sunday, Robinson said.

All the money raised from the tournament will be donated to the Iowa Special Olympics. Admission to the classic is free but donations are accepted.

"It's a good cause, and we're willing to overcome the problems to raise money for the Special Olympics," Biskner said.

COGS

he said. "The student labor unions allow graduate students a voice at the table."

Graff said although the graduate student union and the Wisconsin administration have had problems, overall relations have been good.

"Many times people fear labor unions coming on to a campus, but the unions and the administration do have the same goal which is the education of the undergraduates," Graff added.

"Tomorrow night (tonight) we want to talk about how a student labor union can help graduate students and what they have accomplished in the past," he said.

Taylor, a graduate student in the Department of English, said tonight's meeting will serve organizational purposes for the upcoming year.

"(The meeting will serve to introduce ourselves to students, tell them what we think are our reasons for organizing and hopefully get them to join," she said.

Despite an optimistic outlook, Taylor said there are other issues at the UI that may hinder the formation of a student labor organization.

"Budget cuts, student loan costs, health care, child care and a grievance procedure could be a problem," she said.

Other public universities have already formed graduate student unions, Taylor said. The University of Illinois, UW and the University of Kansas have organized.

Doug Anderson, a UI graduate student and COGS member, said a main goal of COGS is to unite the UI campus.

"Our biggest problem in the 1993-94 campaign to organize a union was that we didn't unite the faculty with the graduate and undergraduate students," he said. "We need to be united with a common interest, because one day the graduate students will be administrators somewhere else."

Anderson said student labor organizations generally don't share a common bond with university administrations.

"School administrations can have the best intentions in the world, but they will always be doing their job and that is trying to cut costs," he said.

UI Vice President for University Relations Ann Rhodes said the UI has been working hard to ensure graduate students better pay, and said she doesn't know if a union will ever be formed.

"I think that the negotiations that have been going on for a couple of years have been quite successful," Rhodes said.

"Out of the big 12, there are only two schools who pay better than we do. We used to be at the bottom of that list; we are in striking distance of getting to the top," she added.

Thomas Dorr, member of the Iowa state Board of Regents, said the relationship between graduate students and the administration is acceptable, but said the students have the ultimate choice in forming a union.

"Last year the graduate students elected not to have a union, and the state legislature and regents have tried to remedy their problems," Dorr said.

UI Graduate College Dean Leslie Sims said graduate students can form a union, but he doesn't see it as a good idea.

"Having a student labor organization is not the traditional graduate and administration relationship, it doesn't seem to be normal interaction," he said.

COGS will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Shambaugh Auditorium.

the campaign is beneficial to us," she said.

Texas Sen. Phil Gramm goes for a patriotic motif — an eagle and a U.S. flag are placed on a gray background.

While both Gramm and Alexander have video and audio links, Alan Keyes' home page is less extravagant. It is limited to transcriptions of speeches.

Even though President Clinton's nomination is apparently safe, the Democrats have not ceded the information superhighway to the GOP.

Ron Parker, Iowa Democratic Party communications director, said the state Democratic Party has been on the Internet since March.

"The idea was to keep up with the latest technology," he said. "We've had a lot of interest expressed from Iowa and from out of state in our responses to Republican candidates (when they are) in the state."

Internet users can access other

Democratic web sites from the Iowa Democratic Party's home page, Parker said.

Not to be outdone, Iowa's Republican Party will have its own web site within a month.

Mike Wild, information services manager of the Republican Party of Iowa, said the Iowa GOP site will include a calendar of events, recent news releases and "information about challenges to the Iowa caucuses' first-in-the-nation status."

Louisiana and Alaska have attempted to hold primaries before the Iowa Caucuses in February 1996, he said.

UI political activists are excited by the technology but are unsure of its overall impact.

Marc Beltrame, president of the UI College Democrats, said the web sites "may cater to a growing segment (of the population), but not a large segment."

made it to Mururoa this week. One was arrested Tuesday after spending the night on the atoll, and the other was caught in the lagoon before reaching the beach.

Protests were crippled Friday when the French Navy seized two Greenpeace ships and intercepted rubber rafts and divers who approached the atolls.

French military officials have warned the 14 protest vessels still around Mururoa to stay out of France's territorial waters, and on Tuesday declared the passage between Mururoa and Fangataufa off limits.

Chirac, a conservative elected last May, has said the tests will be finished by May 31.

"A country that wants to live in security should not lower its guard ... in a very uncertain world," Chirac said in an interview broadcast on French television Tuesday before the blast.

In the interview, he also said there might be fewer blasts than initially announced, and that they might end sooner than announced.

"If we have the information we need to change over to simulation, before the eight tests, obviously, regardless of the opinions of whomever, I will stop the blasts," he said. "My objective is not to carry out eight tests."

"In any case, we will stop the tests well before the date I have indicated, which was May 31st."

He also reaffirmed France will sign the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty when the tests are over.

Courier, No. 14, will find out just how far back he's come when he plays his next match against No. 5 Michael Chang, a 6-2, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3 winner over Michael Tebbutt.

No. 2 Pete Sampras, getting better with every match, served 18 aces and breezed into the quarters with a 7-6 (7-4), 6-3, 6-4 victory over No. 15 Todd Martin. Sampras ought to be able to stroll into the semis past 70th-ranked Byron Black of Zimbabwe, who scored the day's first upset, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 2-6, 6-3, against erratic 1994 runner-up Michael Stich.

Reaching the women's semifinals were top-seeded Steffi Graf and No. 9 Gabriela Sabatini. Graf beat Amy Frazier 6-2, 6-3, and Sabatini downed Mary Joe Fernandez 6-1, 6-3, two days after Fernandez ousted defending champion Arantxa Sanchez Vicario.

"I've really progressed from match to match," said Graf, who played a three-setter in the opening round and won every other match in straight sets. "My back is holding up really well."

est cheer yet, a 5-minute, 20-second standing ovation that included every player from the Orioles and Angels, and all four umpires.

Ripken appeared to dab away tears from the corner of his eyes, and even three curtain calls could not quiet the crowd of 46,804, including many who have seen him grow up in the area.

As if to prove he deserved such attention, Ripken went out and hit a home run the next inning, one of his three hits.

Most of the fans stayed in their seats for a postgame ceremony, held in front of the pitcher's mound with Orioles announcer Jon Miller and Ripken's wife, Kelly.

The festivities included a Top Ten list taped by David Letterman and visits from career home run leader Hank Aaron, Baltimore Colts Hall of Famer Johnny Unitas, baseball Hall of Famer Ernie Banks, tennis star Pam Shriver — an Orioles investor — basketball stars David Robinson and Joe Smith, Olympic speedskater Bonnie Blair and rock singer Joan Jett, a Maryland native.

The whole event, meanwhile, was merely a prelude to what's coming Wednesday night.

Cuetterman pitched to 1 batter in the 7th.
 HBP—by J Nelson (Fernandez).

Graf has dominated Sabatini of late, but remembered losing to her in the 1990 Open final when Sabatini won her only Grand Slam title.

"Her game keeps you off a little bit so you don't get the rhythm," Graf said.

Muster never got his rhythm against Courier. Muster's bleeding blisters were covered with a yard of tape, but for all it mattered he might as well have played barefoot the way little Byron Black used to do. Black, who's grown up to all of 5-foot-9, pulled the first upset of the afternoon by sending the 6-foot-4 Stich packing.

"I played a lot of barefoot," Black said of his youth on the grass courts his father, once a player at Wimbledon, installed back home in Zimbabwe when the African country was still called Rhodesia. "I have very high arches. I started getting a very bad heel, and then I had to play in shoes, although my dad didn't like me tearing up his court too much."

Black tore up Stich with a variety of two-fisted forehands and backhands, and the net-charging German accommodated him with 79 unforced errors.

"I know how he plays, and I just think I got off to a very bad start," said Stich, the No. 8 seed. "He didn't make any unforced errors. From the third set on, I was just in charge. I changed my style. I went for more. I had my chance in the fifth set, that break-point for 2-1, but I just gave it away. I played a poor game, made a double-fault and missed an easy volley."

Courier and Muster waged a fierce baseline duel, slugging hard all the way, but Courier took more chances and put away far more winners — 42 to 14 — while out-acing Muster 10-0.

"Personally, I feel good going out against Thomas on any surface, even clay," Courier said. "He's had a phenomenal year, and he deserves all the credit he's gotten. We're going to play the same match on any surface. We're going to play power vs. power, even on clay."

Once the best player in the game, the winner of four Grand Slam titles from 1991 to 1993, Courier lost in the second round of the Open a year ago and drifted in this year with few of the other players giving him a chance of winning.

"Sometimes you have to take some steps backward to take some steps forward," Courier said. "I really haven't pinpointed it. All I know is that's the way it is. Today I am playing well, and I am going to try to keep playing well for a good long time."

"I learned I hate losing. I have always known that, but you really find it out when you lose a lot."

Beating Muster so easily should help Courier against Chang.

"I go in confident," Courier said, "knowing that I played a very good match. It is a good time for it, but I don't want to go outside and start doing cheerleading exercises or anything like that. It is one match."

Muster had his blisters wrapped twice during the match, the second time when he took an injury time-out at 6-5 in the final set. The big toe and the balls of his left foot were covered with tape, and blood was seeping through. Yet he didn't blame his loss on the blisters.

Ripken was set to pass Gehrig's mark that evening when the Orioles again played California. When Ripken reaches that mighty place, he will hold a mark that many thought was so unattainable that Gehrig's plaque at Yankee Stadium, erected shortly after he died in 1941, praises him as a man "whose amazing record of 2130 consecutive games should stand for all time."

Ripken matched the mark when Tuesday's game became official, and a flood of black and orange balloons was unleashed as soon as the Angels were retired in the top of the fifth inning.

A cartoon of Ripken and Gehrig was shown on the center-field scoreboard, accompanying the dozens of hand-written signs fans brought, and Ripken acknowledged the prolonged cheers by waving to all parts of the park. He got another standing ovation when he trotted out to his position at shortstop to start the sixth, and shook hands with second base umpire Greg Kosce.

"He's never asked any accolades," said former teammate and current Angels infielder Rene Gonzalez, who took part in the ceremonies. "It was very emotional."

While Ripken contends the streak that started May 30, 1982, is merely a product of showing up every day to work — and some luck, since Ripken never broke a bone in his life — others clearly recognized its significance.

President Clinton and Vice President Gore were set to see the record-breaker; never before have the nation's top two executives attended the same game outside Washington.

They were to be joined by another sellout crowd that has known of Ripken since he grew up about a half-hour away, and has seen time turn his hair from floppy and brown to thin and gray.

And for the first time in major league history a baseball bearing a player's name was being used in a real game. Specially made for the occasion, the balls used for games 2,130 and 2,131 were stamped with Ripken's name and a logo commemorating the event.

In another first, the American League approved the addition of seats on the field for a regular-season game. The revenue from those 260 box seats, costing $5,000 each Wednesday, will go to charities, including one benefiting amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), the disease that killed Gehrig and often is known by his name.

Ripken knows how Gehrig died, and knows how many straight games the Yankees Hall of Fame first baseman played. Other than that, though, Ripken has avoided learning too much about the man he has chased, afraid it might change his approach.

In fact, Ripken has never even seen "Pride of the Yankees" from start to finish. As for the many stories and pictures of Gehrig that fans send him, Ripken, 35, files them away, saying someday it will be time to appreciate them.

On Tuesday night, though, it was time for the two of them to stand together. Before the game, tape of Gehrig's tearful farewell speech was played on the scoreboard and then Earl Weaver, Ripken's first manager in the majors, threw out the ceremonial first ball to Ripken.

It was Weaver who, 27 games into the streak, moved Ripken from third base to shortstop, a move sharply criticized at the time. That was before Ripken went on to become a 13-time All-Star, hit more home runs than any other shortstop and set nearly a dozen fielding records.

"What is happening here is better than winning the state lottery," Weaver said. "It's just something fantastic, something that I don't think any generation will ever see again."

Christian Right defines role in CBS political documentary

Scott Williams
Associated Press

NEW YORK — A CBS special on the so-called "Christian right" puts a human face on a politically activist sector that believes the Republic has strayed from its fundamental values.

With "Evening News" anchor Dan Rather at the helm, Thursday night's "CBS Reports: Faith & Politics — The Christian Right" focuses on this informal group's burgeoning power, influence and political agenda.

Meet preacher Larry Vance of Hardin County, Ky., a lifelong Democrat who joined the Republican Party after he became convinced the United States was hell-bent on its own destruction.

"It's not the liberal philosophy per se destroying America," Vance explains. "It's the people allowing the liberal philosophy to control their lives that's destroying America."

"I don't have to become liberal. I don't have to be the type of individual that's going to say, 'If it feels good, do it.'"

Vance tells us President Clinton personifies the evils that have befallen us: "What he is standing for, as president, is exactly what I stand against as a minister of the gospel of Jesus Christ."

Instead of blasting that perceived erosion from the pulpit, Vance worked for the election of his friend, Ron Lewis, one of at least 30 conservative Republicans elected to Congress — with help from the Christian right.

"CBS Reports" shows us Vance's personable warmth in a face-to-face conversation and his passionate intensity in the pulpit when he declaims: "Whatever became of Christian America and the family? We're back!"

It's that rhetoric, that sincerity and righteousness making this "CBS Reports" so watchable.

The special also visits local politics, where most Americans encounter firsthand the emergence of religious conservatives.

In Merrimack, N.H., the school board's 3-2 conservative Christian majority began to impose its agenda for the schools, including the teaching of creationism and banning classroom discussion of homosexuality.

The uproar, the debate and the clash of competing grass-roots interests made for pure politics, and the good people of Merrimack learned pure politics is anything but fun.

If nothing else, "CBS Reports: Faith & Politics — The Christian Right" is probably an advance look at the fundamental issues of the elections of 1996.

Gary Bauer, president of the Family Research Council, an influential Christian conservative group, tells Rather the '96 contests will revolve around cultural and social issues.

Any Republican presidential candidate who steps forward will have to embody conservative values, Bauer said.

"If the Republicans nominated ... a 'moderate' Republican," Bauer said, "I think millions of voters who care about these issues would stay home. And, in fact, what would end up happening is the Republican Party would lose both the high ground on these issues (and) the election."

DIRECTOR'S 'SPOOF' PROFILES HISTORY OF ACTORS

'Killer Tomatoes' antics ripen on new cut

Douglas Rowe
Associated Press

NEW YORK — If you've never seen "Attack of the Killer Tomatoes," now you can ketchup, er, catch up with it on video.

All right, groan if you must. But John DeBello, the director and co-writer of the 1978 cult fave, would pardon the pun — though he may be so forgiving because he figures he's heard every tomato joke that ever ripened in anyone's mind.

Better that, he suggested, than being humorless and clueless about it.

"About 10 percent of the people who heard the title thought it was serious," DeBello said, recalling when the movie first came out. "That really scared me about the human race."

Admittedly, hearing every imaginable tomato setup and punchline is part of the downside of this film being your crowning achievement, DeBello said.

He's had a solid career writing and directing other features, including 1987's "Happy Hour," another film that attracted a following. He's made TV specials and corporate instruction films, among other things (he jokes that he's particularly proud of his how-to-take-a-urinalysis video for the 1984 Olympics). And he heads a San Diego-based production company that he founded 22 years ago.

But does anyone want to hear DeBello out about any of that?

"To this day, I don't even waste my time," he said during one of the semiserious moments during a telephone interview from the West Coast.

"It's funny, in a way. It cuts both ways," DeBello said. "It takes a big ego to zig while everyone else zags, and it takes a small ego to have this be known as your most famous work."

"The world knows me and probably always will know me, unless I do something about it, as the creator of this."

But that's OK. "You can't be too egotistical about it," he said, "because all we wanted to do was make people laugh, and we managed to do that on a pretty big scale."

He thinks of his film as "a combination of esoteric humor and pie-in-the-face." It has been especially well-received on campuses and midnight showings at arthouse cinemas and seems best appreciated by "college students with an eighth-grade mentality," he said.

AL ROUNDUP

Red Sox slip past Oakland in 14

Associated Press

BOSTON — Jose Canseco hit a three-run homer in the 14th inning to give the Boston Red Sox a 7-4 win over Oakland and hurt the Athletics' longshot wild-card chances.

Canseco hit his 22nd homer on a 1-0 pitch off Carlos Reyes (3-5) with two outs after Troy O'Leary singled and Mo Vaughn walked. Rick Aguilera (3-2) pitched one inning for the win.

It was the fifth time this season that Boston had won a home game with a homer.

Indians 7, Brewers 3

MILWAUKEE — Eddie Murray had four hits and drove in four runs as the Cleveland Indians beat the Milwaukee Brewers for their 14th win in 18 games.

Dennis Martinez (10-4) scattered seven hits in seven innings and won for the first time since July 21.

White Sox 2, Rangers 1

ARLINGTON, Texas — Mike LaValliere homered for the first time in more than a year, a two-out drive in the 11th inning that led the White Sox past the Texas Rangers and extended Chicago's winning streak to seven.

LaValliere connected on a 2-2 off Ed Vosberg, his first homer since Aug. 7 at California. It was the 18th homer of his career.

Associated Press

Cleveland pitcher Dennis Martinez pitches to Milwaukee's Darryll Hamilton in the first inning Tuesday.

Associated Press

Oakland's Mike Bordick congratulates Ricky Henderson after Henderson's two-run homer Tuesday.

Orioles 8, Angels 0

Cal Ripken went 3-for-5 with a homer, one of six solo shots by the Orioles. The six home runs tied the club mark for a home game and was one short of a team record.

Ripken can become baseball's career iron man in the series finale Wednesday night, shattering a record few thought would ever be broken.

When the game became official after 4½ innings, the sellout crowd of 46,804 at Camden Yards gave the Orioles shortstop a standing ovation for 5 minutes, 20 seconds as the instrumental "Day One" by John Tesh played over the loudspeakers.

As the 10-foot numbers on the warehouse outside the stadium flipped to 2130, Ripken shook hands with several of his teammates. He then emerged from the dugout on three separate occasions, acknowledging the cheers with several waves, including one in the direction of his family in the seats behind home plate.

Royals 9, Blue Jays 8

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Bob Hamelin homered leading off the 10th inning, giving the Kansas City Royals a victory over the Toronto Blue Jays and eliminating the defending World Series champions from the AL East race.

Toronto, which began the day 2½ games behind Boston in the AL East race, won consecutive World Series titles in 1992 and 1993.

Tigers 6, Twins 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Rookie C.J. Nitkowski pitched five innings to gain his first AL victory as the Detroit Tigers beat the Minnesota

Associated Press

St. Louis shortstop Ozzie Smith forces out Atlanta's Chipper Jones at second on a Fred McGriff sixth inning hit Tuesday.

Maddux wins 16th in shutout of Cards

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Greg Maddux became the major league's first 16-game winner with his fourth consecutive complete-game victory as the Atlanta Braves beat the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0.

Fred McGriff gave Maddux the only run he needed when he lined Tom Urbani's first pitch of the second inning over the center field fence for his 23rd homer.

Maddux (16-2) allowed seven hits, walked none and struck out eight in recording his 10th complete game of the season, most in the majors. It was his third shutout.

Maddux became the first Atlanta pitcher to throw four consecutive complete games since Phil Niekro had that many from May 20-June 2, 1980.

Astros 10, Reds 1

HOUSTON — Derrick May followed a bench-clearing brawl with a grand slam in the seventh and Houston snapped an 11-game losing streak to Cincinnati.

A series of bench-clearing incidents, starting when Reds reliever Xavier Hernandez threw inside to Brian Hunter in the sixth, eventually led to the ejections of Hernandez, Ron Gant, Lenny Harris and manager Davey Johnson of the Reds and Pat Borders, Doug Drabek and manager Terry Collins of the Astros.

The most serious confrontation came in the seventh when Hernandez hit Craig Biggio and Jeff Bagwell on the arm with consecutive pitches.

One out later, Dave Magadan walked to load the bases and May hit his first grand slam.

INJURED DEFENSIVE BACK

Fry remains optimistic about Knight's status

Chris Snider

The Daily Iowan

Iowa's only remaining injured defensive starter, Tom Knight, is still questionable for Saturday's game with UNI.

"It is possible that he'll play in the ballgame on Saturday," Fry said. "That will not be determined until later in the week."

GAME NOTES

Knight started the first six game at defensive back last season before missing the final five with a knee injury. He had surgery in the offseason.

As of yet, he has not been released to play, but is listed as the Hawkeyes second string cornerback for the UNI game.

Burger emerges in backfield

On of the most pleasant surprises of the spring for the Hawkeyes has been the emergence of redshirt freshman Mike Burger as a full-back.

Burger was listed as a tight end last season, but made the switch to the backfield this season.

"He's moved all the way ahead of the other fullbacks to the second team," Fry said. "He's certainly been one of the most pleasant surprises of the fall camp."

So far in fall drills, Burger has worked up to the number two full-back spot.

"Burger is such a fine athlete, we had to find a place for him to play," Fry said.

Fry robs the cradle

When the Iowa defense takes the field this Saturday, it will be the youngest starting defensive unit ever fielded by a Hayden Fry coached team.

Five freshman are listed on the defensive two deep, including starting linebacker Vernon Rollins and starting left tackle Jared DeVries.

"This is the youngest defensive football team I've ever had as a coach, not just here, at SMU, at North Texas State and as defensive coordinator at Baylor," Fry said.

Corey Brown, a true freshman from Houston, Texas, will back-up Lloyd Bickham at nose guard.

The other two freshmen are cornerback Eric Thigpen and tackle Aron Klein. And yet another freshman, Matt Hughes, is on the verge of cracking the two deep at line-backer.

Overall, Fry has been very pleased with the performance of his freshmen in practice this year.

"We've made a lot of progress, particularly with our young people, the redshirt freshman and the freshman in particular," Fry said. "I'm pleased that the older people have continued to be leaders and have worked real hard. It's been a great camp environment, great work ethic and from a physical standpoint, we're in excellent condition."

QB's will share PT

After suffering through injuries to five quarterback last season, Hayden Fry is taking nothing for granted this year.

Fry plans on getting at least three quarterbacks as many snaps as possible in the first three games of the season this year.

"We've got a lot of guys we want to get in the first three ball games," Fry said. "We'll rotate them around regardless of the score to get them experience."

ANXIOUS

"When you're waiting around and you're waiting to kick it off, but you're playing against your buddy and things don't go right ... man, they have been into it," Fry said. "We had to separate a lot of fights."

Since the college football season began August 26, the Hawkeyes have seen perennial cellar dweller Northwestern shatter the egos of South Bend, while Purdue took strides toward its first winning season since 1984 with a win over then-No. 23 West Virginia.

Two Big Ten favorites, Michigan and Ohio State, proved they deserved the critics' acclaim with convincing wins. OSU thrashed Boston College 38-6 the day after Michigan christened football season with an edge-of-the-seat 18-17 tip-toe victory over Virginia.

A week later, those same Wolverines went to Champaign and embarrassed Illinois' defense, one of the best in the nation, 38-14.

And finally, Wisconsin, looking to prove it could regain the form that took it to the Rose Bowl two seasons ago, suffered a crushing 43-7 defeat against the Colorado Buffaloes in Madison.

Fry said last Saturday's games may have caught the attention of his overly-anxious team, but that a teams' character doesn't completely show in just the first week.

"Ohio State looked very impressive, and Michigan has been Michigan," Fry said. "Don't be fooled, though, Illinois' defense is for real. But their defense is inconsistent."

Still, Fry warns of the hazards of trying to bring his team into Kinnick in the right mental frame of mind, calling it a delicate balance.

"They can't be too high, and at the same time we don't want to be flat," Fry said.

The freshmen will give Fry and his coaching staff one of their biggest tests.

"We don't know how our younger players will react in front of 70,000 people," Fry said. "We won't know that until Saturday."

Fry is as jumpy as his players, but added the extra week off has helped his squad.

"The majority of our guys wanted to play last week," he said. "They weren't ready to play last week, but they wanted to play."

"We're not lacking the spirit. Our guys are gonna play and play hard."

 Our Special Purchase Plan

Classic elegance is always in style. And now, for a limited time, you can bring it to your table at outstanding savings during this special offer.

Traditions Fine Porcelain China, from the Johann Haviland China Corporation, embodies the true characteristics of classical Old World elegance in dinnerware. Each piece is made of pearly-white, translucent porcelain, with delicate detailed designs, sculptured bodies and pure platinum trim.

Traditions Fine China is manufactured in the generations-old tradition of excellence. And now, for a limited time only, you can acquire a full set at savings of over 40% on our special plan. Here's how:

During the promotion we will feature the 5-piece place setting at a special reduced price.

Matching accessory items will be available throughout the promotion period. But each week we'll feature one or two of these accessories at special prices. See the schedule for featured items and special pricing. And, of course, all items will be available from open stock when the promotion is over.

So, don't delay! Stop in and see the outstanding quality and beautiful, classical design of Traditions Fine Porcelain China for yourself. We're sure you'll be convinced that this is one of the most exciting dinnerware offers ever made.
