Fourth prospect interviews

Yudof faces diversity with past experience

Ann McGlynn
The Daily Iowan

The desire to diversify the University of Texas at Austin's Law School has caused recently-named UI presidential candidate Mark Yudof to defend admission standards in federal court.

Yudof, provost and executive vice president at the UT-Austin since 1994, will interview at the UI today and Friday.

Issues in the interviews will range from undergraduate education to research. Diversity will also be discussed — a topic Yudof is absolutely committed to, said James Vick, UT-Austin vice president for student affairs.

A nationally known reverse-discrimination case was filed in 1992 by two females who said they were discriminated against because they are white instead of minorities. The suit, filed against UT-Austin, targeted the law school, of which Yudof was dean.

The women said they were not accepted into the law school despite the fact they possessed higher academic scores than several minorities who were accepted.

The UT-Austin Law School policy followed an affirmative action program which allowed minority students into the school despite lower scores than the rest of the candidates.

The university won the case and was found innocent of the charges of reverse discrimination. However, admission requirements were modified, Vick said, and the case is being appealed in a federal appellate court in New Orleans.

Previously, people of color were among the only ones admitted with lower scores. However, now other factors, including community and professional activities, are also considered.

Ann McGlynn
The Daily Iowan

The first UI presidential candidate with a background in law will be interviewed on campus today and Friday.

Mark Yudof, provost and executive vice president at the University of Texas at Austin since 1994, "would make a superb president," said UI Presidential Search and Screen Advisory Committee Chairman Steve Collins.

He would bring a unique perspective to the university, just as the other three candidates who have health-science backgrounds would, Collins said.

Yudof could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

James Vick, vice president for student affairs at UT-Austin, said Yudof is a smart, funny individual who is an "outstanding academic leader."

FRIENDS GIVE EMOTIONAL TALK

Speakers describe living with AIDS

Carrie Crumbaugh
The Daily Iowan

Joel Goldman thought he was invincible — until three years ago when he found out he was HIV-positive. Wednesday night, he and his best friend presented an emotional and sometimes comic retrospective on how AIDS is everyone's disease.

The 1 1/2-hour lecture offered a strong message to over 800 UI students about how AIDS can infect anyone, and how important it is to be educated and outspoken on the risk of contracting the deadly disease.

"This is our generation's Vietnam," Goldman's best friend, T.J. Sullivan, said. "Demand your university, friends and your families deal with this issue."

Other than being the driving force for a generation, Goldman spoke of how contracting the HIV virus has changed his life, and through lecturing at over 75 colleges for the last two years, it has given him something to do involving his disease.

"I can make my infection mean something instead of washing my life down the toilet," Goldman said.

Goldman spoke about the importance of recognizing how HIV and AIDS are changing, since AIDS is now the No. 1 killer in the United States for people 20-44 years old. He also said more than one in 250 college students in the United States is currently infected with the HIV virus.

"The face of AIDS is changing — now it is mine and someday it may become yours if you don't protect yourselves," Goldman said.

The changing face of AIDS also shows the increasing need for education about latex condoms, dental dams and lubricants. After a short display, Sullivan spoke of why alcohol and sex don't mix.

M. Dickbernd/The Daily Iowan

T.J. Sullivan speaks to students Wednesday night in the Union about his friendship with Joel Goldman. Their program, titled "Friendship in the Age of AIDS," dealt with the emotional impact HIV had on their lives.

"AIDS is out there and you never think about it," Sullivan said. "How many times do you have to wake up on a Sunday morning and roll over, look at the person next to you and say, 'oh, shit.'"

Goldman described how rationalization came into play when he began to drink and have sex. He said he would consider some people low-risk and think it was okay to have unprotected sex with them.

"But what I forgot was A slept with B, who slept with C, and now I'm sleeping with A, B and C," Goldman said.

Unprotected sex is the No. 1 way to get AIDS.

Amid a protest outside the Los Angeles County courthouse, defense witness Roderic Hodge talks to the media after testifying moments earlier in the O.J. Simpson double-murder trial Wednesday.

Hodge, who was arrested in 1987 by former Los Angeles police Detective Mark Fuhrman, testified that Fuhrman once turned to him and used a racial slur.

Fuhrman takes Fifth on stand

Linda Deutsch

LOS ANGELES — Detective Mark Fuhrman was called back to the witness stand Wednesday and was asked pointblank whether he planted evidence against O.J. Simpson. He refused to answer, invoking his Fifth-Amendment right against self-incrimination.

Climaxing months of defense claims that Simpson was framed by a racist detective, Fuhrman refused to answer any questions. Jurors weren't in the courtroom to see the brief confrontation between Simpson attorney Gerald Uelman and the subdued detective who, five months earlier, told the panel he found a bloody glove on Simpson's property.

"Detective Fuhrman, did you plant or manufacture any evidence in this case?" Uelman asked.

"I assert my Fifth-Amendment privilege," Fuhrman replied, his attorney standing at his side.

French testing draws attention

PAPEETE, Tahiti — Slinging chains and beating police shields with metal pipes, demonstrators brawled with police on Papeete's airport runway Wednesday in the first violent protest of France's new nuclear tests.

Two policemen and two protesters were hospitalized, the French High Commissioner's office said.

Russia and France's Western allies, meanwhile, added to international criticism of the decision by President Jacques Chirac to end a 3-year-old moratorium and set off the blast Tuesday beneath a remote South Pacific island.

Protesters chained themselves to French embassies in Finland, Austria, Spain and Denmark. The environmental group Greenpeace said protests were being held across Europe, and also in Japan, Argentina and the United States.

Opposition has been especially fierce in Papeete, Tahiti, the French Polynesian capital about 750 miles northwest of the nuclear test site at Mururoa and Fangataufa Atolls.

About 1,000 demonstrators — all supporters of Polynesia's Independence Party — dashed over scrub land to reach the main runway of Papeete's airport and bring flights to a halt Wednesday morning.

The protesters, including some children, sat down, sang songs and held up pro-independence and anti-nuclear signs.

"Peace, freedom, love. Think of our children. French take your bombs and go out for God's sake," one sign read.

Ten minutes later, about 200 riot police appeared carrying clubs, shields and tear-gas launchers. They marched down the runway, ordering the protesters to disperse. When

R.I. school goes dry to shed party image

Associated Press

SOUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. — There's no more BYOB at URI.

A week after it was named the nation's top party school by an annual guide, the University of Rhode Island banned alcohol at student events on campus.

"We cannot build the new culture for learning to which we aspire in an environment which is depressed and dampened every day by the impact of alcohol and drug abuse, and we should not, and we cannot, hide from that reality any longer," President Robert Carothers said Wednesday while outlining the ban during an assembly.

Students who are 21 or older can have alcohol in their rooms, but none will be allowed at fraternity parties, homecoming events and all other student activities, he said.

"More and more of our students are demanding that they not be imposed upon by others whose judgment and behavior is impaired by substance abuse. It is time to take a stand at URI," Carothers said.

Students said the ban was unnecessary and too sweeping.

"I just think one of the things they're going to do is alienate students from campus life by enforcing this policy," said Jean Corrigan, vice president of the Student Senate and a sorority member. "I think this is a policy that will hurt (the administration) in the long run."

Some students said the policy encourages drunken driving by

"We cannot build the new culture for learning to which we aspire in an environment which is depressed and dampened every day by the impact of alcohol and drug abuse, and we should not, and we cannot, hide from that reality any longer."

President Robert Carothers, on banning alcohol at student events on the University of Rhode Island campus forcing students to go off campus for parties.

"It's horrendous. People don't think twice about drunk(en) driving," said Jennifer Seitz, a junior from Scotch Plains, N.J.

Thomas Dougan, assistant vice president for campus life, said the school does not want to force drinkers off campus or behind the wheel.

"I'm obviously concerned about drunk(en) driving, but our students leaving campus to consume alcohol elsewhere is not something new or something that doesn't happen," Dougan said. "There's nothing in the new policy that encourages students to drink and drive."

The policy comes a week after URI was named the top party school in "The Princeton Review Student Access Guide to the Best 309 Colleges."

The paperback, which is put out by a New York publishing company and not affiliated with Princeton University, sends representatives to colleges to survey students and bases the guide on their responses.

Typically, 100-200 students are interviewed at each school and some of their responses are included in the book.

URI has about 12,000 students in undergraduate and graduate programs.

"There is too much drinking on campus and part of that is due to the lack of alternative social activities," one URI student wrote in the guide.

URI officials stressed the new policy is not a response to the ranking.

They noted the school has for years implemented programs and policies aimed at curbing alcohol use.

Thursday night parties were banned in 1988 and beer-keg parties were barred in 1990. The university also has restricted three fraternities since 1991 for drug- or alcohol-related incidents.

First offenders face fines of $30-$50 and second offenders face fines of $30-$100. A third offense will result in a two-semester suspension.

Last summer, a federal jury found that URI failed to supervise a fraternity party at which alcohol was served, and a freshman was raped five years ago.

The jury awarded the student $750,000.

Still, Nathan Maine, a 23-year-old business major from West Greenwich, R.I., said the new policy, "will irritate people."

"Drinking is part of a college experience," he said.

"Home Alone" may be looking better to child star Macaulay Culkin, shown in this November 1992 photo, while his parents fight over custody of their children.

Kid star clashes with father over custody fight

NEW YORK (AP) — "Home Alone" may be looking better to child star Macaulay Culkin while his parents fight over custody of their children.

Macaulay, 15, has been in Montana spending most of his time with his mother, Patricia Brentrup, and three of his brothers while 12-year-old Kieran acts in the movie "Amanda."

His father, Christopher "Kit" Culkin, called the house where Brentrup and the four boys are staying and said, "I'm coming to get you," People magazine reported in its Sept. 11 edition. The couple is fighting over custody of their six minor children.

The children and their nanny ran to a neighbor's house and the nanny called police while Culkin banged on the door, the magazine said.

"The dispatcher could hear screaming in the background," sheriff's Deputy Hanly Loyning said. By the time the deputy arrived, Culkin had left.

"Mac did most of the talking," the deputy said of the star of the "Home Alone" movies. "He said he and his dad had gotten into it and that he didn't want to go with him."

England's 2nd in line 'among his own' at Eton

LONDON (AP) — Prince William isn't the only royalty at Eton College.

The 13-year-old prince arrived Wednesday flanked by his estranged parents, Prince Charles and Princess Diana, and 10-year-old brother, Prince Harry.

Thirteen-year-old Prince Narajan of Nepal is also among the 200 new boys who started the fall term at the elite institution.

Old Etonians say the school will equip William with a first-class education, a sense of duty and the confidence to see him through his royal duties. He is second in line to the throne of his grandmother, Queen Elizabeth II.

"He will be among his own kind," said Lord Longford, a former politician who left the school in 1924. Diana's father and brother were at Eton.

Charles is known to have opposed sending his son to his alma mater Gordonstoun, the austere Scottish high school where he was lonely and miserable.

Governor sets sights on a hog

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Gov. Angus King is shopping for a new set of wheels — the kind with two wheels and handlebars.

King, who once owned a 1951 BMW, recently got his permit to operate a motorcycle.

He tried out a 1995 Harley-Davidson Sportster on Tuesday, and said that if he does decide to buy a motorcycle, he will choose a Harley because it's made in America. "Is there any other choice?" he said.

This could be a problem for his state police bodyguards, who usually accompany him in his executive car.

"Unless he gets a sidecar ... the troopers will be close-by in a car," said spokesman Stephen McCausland of the state Public Safety Department.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Stevie Wonder can't go back to his alma mater for any more reunions. The 115-year-old Michigan School for the Blind is closing for good this month.

Enrollment has been steadily declining as more blind children are being taught in regular schools. Lawmakers voted last year to close the school because it costs about $200,000 a year for each student.

Stevland Morris graduated in the late 1960s, after he already had gained fame as Motown star Stevie Wonder.

"He traveled a lot, but he was here off and on for months at a time for about five years," said Jeanne Orszag, school librarian since 1951.

"I remember him singing in our Christmas programs." Wonder donated a huge globe to the school and helped celebrate its 100th anniversary in 1980.

Despite successful New York life, Hutton pines for Africa

NEW YORK (AP) — Quite frankly, Lauren Hutton would rather be in Africa.

The former model plays the glamorous matriarch of a publishing family on CBS' new prime-time soap opera, "Central Park West." But she told USA Today she has a different idea of what's fabulous — and it's in Zaire.

"My idea of glamour is seeing dawn with the pygmies in Ituri forest. That's my idea of high glamour," she said in Wednesday's editions.

She's also starting a syndicated talk show, "Lauren Hutton And ...," and promises wide-ranging topics.

"I was basically told by my mother never to talk about sex, politics and religion," she said. "So my abiding curiosities all my life have been sex, politics and religion."

COGS gears up to form union

Chad Graham
The Daily Iowan

The UI administration could have a fight on its hands if the Committee to Organize Graduate Students gathers enough support to form a graduate student labor union, COGS members said.

COGS members and three guest speakers from the University of Wisconsin at Madison addressed various issues facing graduate students Wednesday night. Better wages, health care and a decreased workload were all addressed.

COGS Membership Committee Member Bob Hearst detailed the organization's history, including a failed attempt in 1994 to form a labor union at the UI. Hearst said they were ready to try again.

"We lost by a narrow margin in 1994, but we got 1,500 people to vote and the university listened to us when we rallied for better working conditions," Hearst said.

"We need to organize, expand support through various departments and begin a formal legal trial, and hopefully have elections by next semester," Hearst said. "But, it all depends on how involved the members of COGS get."

Steve Burt, member of the Teaching Assistants Association at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, said unionization was the best alternative for any university.

"Many universities without a graduate student organization cut pay benefits, increase class load, increase grading and increase hours," he said. "Student labor organizations want to defend salary and improve working conditions."

Dan Graff, another TAA member from UW-Madison, said most graduate students aren't respected by university administration even though they are "on the front-lines."

"The only way to have clout with university administration is to have a legal standing that represents employees," he said. "Many graduate students pay loans for seven and eight years and even while they are teaching; I think that is wrong."

Graff also said the union at UW-Madison has struggled for about 20 years to get the recognition they deserve from the administration. Although the union at Madison formed in 1971, they did not take legal action for recognition until 1981.

"(In) 1981, the university chancellor refused to support us. We then fought in the Legislature for five years and now we have full family-health plans, higher pay and class load limits," he said.

AIDS conference highlights progress

Ann Haggerty
The Daily Iowan

Professionals in health care, social services and law will meet to discuss updates in HIV/AIDS education and treatment at the eighth annual HIV/AIDS conference Friday at the Holiday Inn, 210 S. Dubuque St.

Dr. Paul Volberding, an internationally known AIDS expert, will be speaking for the first time at the conference. Volberding is director of the AIDS program at San Francisco General Hospital.

"(He) is the premier clinical HIV specialist in the world," said Dr. Jack Stapleton, UI associate professor of Internal Medicine and director of the UI Hospitals and Clinics HIV/AIDS clinic.

Volberding will speak about early therapy for persons infected with HIV and he will address progress made in HIV treatment.

"We've learned a lot about the biology of HIV and how it works,"

Volberding said. "We hope to apply it to our patients."

Volberding said he will also discuss how cancer and immune system problems benefit from the study of HIV, and how the lessons from searching for an AIDS vaccine will aid in the development of other vaccines.

Stapleton said there will be other topics discussed at the conference, such as HIV testing, therapy, research and legal issues related to AIDS.

Break in the heat excites students

Christie Midthun
The Daily Iowan

Students are trading in their sunglasses for umbrellas this week, as fall-like weather arrives in Iowa City.

The temperatures will be cooling down to the mid-60s by Friday — just in time for the first home football game.

"This weather puts me in a football mood," UI freshman Clayton Miller said. "Saturday should be a really nice day for it."

Many students are gladly saying goodbye to the days of sweaty skin and sticking to their chairs in class.

"The heat was a little irritating," UI freshman Pat Crotty said. "This (cooler weather) is kind of nice for a change."

Some students were so glad to see the change in the weather they chose to sit outside in the rain Wednesday.

"I love the rain," UI sophomore Dee Eakrigh said. "I don't mind walking in the rain; I don't even carry an umbrella."

But along with the changes in the elements come germs and colds that drag students down and out of class.

"Colds tend to increase in September when schools start," said John Weiler, UI professor of internal medicine.

One of the reasons may be because everyone is coming back together again, although there are a lot of theories for why colds crop up at certain times, Weiler said.

In September, there is also an increase of hay fever and ragweed and pollen allergies, Weiler said. In October and November, some allergy sufferers may notice an increase of mold in the air, he said.

"Rainy weather brings out more

M. Dickbernd/The Daily Iowan

Students were forced to break out their umbrellas Wednesday afternoon. The rain brought relief from the consistently high temperatures of August and early September.

mold because the wet leaves are full of it," Weiler said.

Weiler said there isn't much anyone can do about the changes but stay indoors.

UI freshman Amy Gosselink said she thinks the weather and all the changes which come along with going back to school had an effect on her health.

"I was sick and I had to find the student health center," Gosselink said.

UI Student Health Service has had its usual rush of sick students and allergy sufferers, Dr. Mary Khowassah, director of student health, said.

Iowa City resident robbed on Dubuque Street

An Iowa City man was robbed when he was walking home Tuesday night at 9:10 p.m. on South Dubuque Street. An undisclosed amount of cash and his watch were stolen.

The unidentified man told Iowa

City Police he was approached by a thin, bald white male and a black male in the 400 block of South Dubuque Street, Sgt. Craig Lihs of the Iowa City Police Department said.

One of the men grabbed the victim by his neck; in fear, he dropped his wallet. The men took money out of the wallet and ran.

Generous group hits streets bestowing free Bibles

Moirra Crowley
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City street corners were filled Wednesday morning as members from Gideon International dispensed free copies of the New Testament, but the rain sent the distributors into hiding by noon.

Some UI students accepted the small green Bibles out of guilt. UI freshman Tawny Schmidt said she would feel bad not taking one of the Bibles that was handed to her as she walked out of Phillips Hall.

"It would be rude to just walk by and ignore them," she said.

The fate of the free Bible stashed away in Schmidt's backpack has already been determined.

"It will probably end up with all the rest of the free stuff everyone hands out," she said.

Other UI students actually appreciate the gift and put their brand-new copies of the New Testament to good use.

UI junior Karen Lange said she was touched when one of the Gideons handing out Bibles along Iowa Avenue asked her if she was having a nice day and she graciously accepted a Bible.

"I still have the one I got freshman year," she said. "It's on my dresser with my other Bible."

Other UI students believe taking the Bibles couldn't possibly hurt and they might come in handy someday.

UI freshman Robert Jones is a firm believer a person can't have too many Bibles, and the one he accepted on the misty morning will add to his collection.

"I'm a Christian and I already have a Bible," he said. "But I'll probably get some use out of this one."

Jones said everyone handing out the Bibles seemed so nice, he wanted to accept one to let them know what a good job they were doing.

UI junior Tom Cook said the one Bible he already owns is enough and firmly rejected the one offered to him Wednesday.

TABA, Egypt (AP) — took their demands to in Hebron to the bargaining table Wednesday, after angry demonstrations by settlers in the West Bank.

Emerging from 3 talks, Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Mordechai said that new talks with Israeli settlers live among Palestinians, "the hardest issue" in the region.

Arafat planned to take his demands to President Hosni Mubarak this morning, then return to Hebron that were expected to end the day in Taba, an Egyptian town on the southern border.

Einstein relativity sit on auction block

NEW YORK (AP) — Einstein's earliest manuscript of his theory of relativity, which he wrote in 1905, is being sold at auction.

Sotheby's said Wednesday it expects it will sell for $6 million at the Dec. 12 auction.

The 72-page paper, a review of Einstein's special theory of relativity, demonstrates that time is not absolute and energy are equivalent.

The equation E=mc² equals mass times the speed of light squared — appears in different forms. The manuscript was probably written in 1912, but published in 1917, but published by World War I.

Palestinians, Israelis continue struggle over Hebron

TABA, Egypt (AP) — Palestinians took their demands for autonomy in Hebron to the streets and to the bargaining table Wednesday, starting new talks with Israel hours after angry demonstrations against Jewish settlers in the West Bank.

Emerging from 3 1/2 hours of talks, Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres called Hebron — the only West Bank city where Jewish settlers live among Palestinians — “the hardest issue” blocking Palestinian autonomy.

Arafat planned to meet with President Hosni Mubarak in Cairo this morning, then return for talks that were expected to last until Friday in Taba, an Egyptian resort on the Gulf of Aqaba near Israel's southern border.

Einstein relativity paper to sit on auction block again

NEW YORK (AP) — Albert Einstein's earliest manuscript on the theory of relativity, which made history when it sold for $1.2 million in 1987, is being auctioned again.

Sotheby's said Wednesday it expects it will sell for $4 million to $6 million at the Dec. 11 sale.

The 72-page paper is a lengthy review of Einstein's special theory of relativity, demonstrating that time is not absolute and mass and energy are equivalent.

The equation  $E=mc^2$  — energy equals mass times the speed of light squared — appears in several different forms. The handwritten manuscript was probably completed in 1912, but publication was put off by World War I.

NATO resumes attacks on Serbs

Aida Cerkez
Associated Press

SARAJEVO — Waves of NATO jets clobbered Bosnian Serb targets again Wednesday, but the Serb commander refused to bow to U.N. demands to remove heavy weapons ringing Sarajevo. He said that would leave his troops open to attack by Bosnian government forces.

As the test of wills between the Western allies and rebel Gen. Ratko Mladic hardened, other Bosnian Serb leaders tried to squelch rumors of a rift in their ranks that could complicate peace talks set for Friday.

NATO planes have flown more than 1,500 missions in the week since the alliance launched its biggest operation yet in the 3 1/2-year-old war, aimed primarily at easing the Serb threat to the besieged Bosnian capital. The attacks were prompted by a mortar attack blamed on the Serbs that killed 38 people in Sarajevo.

NATO suspended its raids Friday to allow for negotiations. But the big guns remained in place after a Monday deadline passed, and NATO jets took to the skies again Tuesday.

NATO showed film of Tuesday's hits by U.S. and French aircraft on several Bosnian Serb targets, including military command centers and ammunition depots going up in huge clouds of smoke.

At the Pentagon, Defense Secretary William Perry said U.S. laser-guided bombs had generally hit within 10 feet of their intended targets, as planned.

“The campaign will go on as long as needed and as intensely as needed to accomplish the objectives,” Perry said.

U.S. Adm. Leighton Smith, the NATO commander for southern Europe, said in Naples, Italy, reports indicated “very successful results” from Wednesday's attacks, despite cloudy weather. He did not give details.

NATO said it was trying to limit its attacks to selected military installations to avoid harassing the Serbs so much that they couldn't organize a withdrawal.

Gen. Manojlo Milutinovic, the Bosnian Serb forces' chief of staff, spoke of only “minor losses” among

Associated Press

An unidentified U.S. Air Force serviceman checks the weaponry of a U.S. warplane prior to its departure at the NATO air base in Aviano, Italy, Wednesday. Faced with the defiance of Bosnian Serb leaders, NATO sent its warplanes back over Bosnia Wednesday to attack the rebels for refusing to remove heavy weapons aimed at Sarajevo.

his soldiers and “several” civilian casualties.

Bosnian Serb police and military officials reported that the latest targets included military installations in Kalinovik, 25 miles south of Sarajevo and the Serb military commander's hometown of Mladic.

“We gather he's in a defiant mood,” U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivanko said of the tough-talking Mladic.

“But we hope this mood will change and he will start complying with our demands.”

“Every day of NATO air strikes means his army is being clobbered, and clobbered and clobbered. For this clobbering to stop, he has to remove the heavy weapons from around Sarajevo.”

Ivanko said the United Nations had not been in contact with Mladic since Monday, when he rejected U.N. demands that a senior aide to Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic had basically accepted a few hours earlier.

“There may be a certain disarray among the Bosnian Serbs and that is why orders coming from one end are not being followed through the other end,” Ivanko said.

Karadzic, who recently was forced to rescind Mladic's demotion after most generals lined up behind their commander, sought Wednesday to counter growing signs that Mladic was calling the shots on the battlefield.

“I am in charge ... and our relations with General Mladic have improved,” Karadzic told CNN.

He asserted that the Serbs already had accepted most of the U.N. demands, which include reopening Sarajevo's airport and roads into the city, an end to attacks on U.N. “safe areas” and guarantees of free movement for U.N. and aid workers.

In separate comments to reporters, Karadzic seemed to embrace Mladic's line rejecting the West's key demand: that all the Serb heavy weaponry be moved at least 12 1/2 miles from Sarajevo.

“We have withdrawn as much as we could,” he said. “But we can't withdraw (all) what we possess in order to protect ourselves.”

While Karadzic and Mladic sought to portray their defiance as necessary to defend Serb civilians, the bigger but unspoken issue was the future of Sarajevo.

First lady speaks to packed audience

Terence Hunt
Associated Press

HUAIROU, China — American officials stranded in a rain-soaked crowd were shoved around by Chinese security forces Wednesday, marring Hillary Rodham Clinton's trip to show solidarity with women activists in this village outside Beijing.

The first lady got VIP treatment on her arrival for a speech at a theater-turned-conference-center. But other members of her party — including Donna Shalala, the secretary of health and human services, and Winston Lord, the assistant secretary of state for the Far East — were left waiting outside in a chilly rain for a half-hour.

The scene spotlighted some of the logistical problems and harassment that have affected thousands of women, meeting separately from the Fourth World Conference of Women 30 miles away in Beijing. Rodham Clinton, in a speech a day earlier, had said China's treatment of the women was "indefensible."

Rodham Clinton thanked them Wednesday for their perseverance. "You did not give up. You did not stay away. You are playing an important role in this conference," she said.

The rain resulted in Rodham Clinton's appearance being moved inside from a field which could have accommodated a large crowd. Hundreds of women, clad in ponchos or clutching umbrellas, struggled to get in the theater gates and through a crush of people at metal detectors.

Shalala and Lord, riding to Huairou on a press bus in Rodham Clinton's motorcade, were deposited at the outside edge of the crowd and had to push their way forward. When they reached the front, Chinese security forces shoved them away.

After repeated attempts, Shalala

Associated Press

Donna Shalala, center, head of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, makes her way through a crowd to attend an address by first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton at a session of the NGO Women's Forum, in Huairou, 37 miles from Beijing, Wednesday. Flanking Shalala is Ann Compton of ABC News, left, and Andrea Mitchell of 'NBC Nightly News.'

and Lord were finally admitted through a side door, their clothes soaked and their hair plastered on their heads. Rodham Clinton's press secretary, Lisa Caputo, was kept out until after the first lady spoke.

"The women's movement has been through tougher things than this," Shalala said good-naturedly.

And in Washington, the State Department brushed the incident aside.

"There's no reason to make a big deal about it," said spokesman Nicholas Burns. It's hard to move 15,000 people into 1,500 seats, and that is, I think, the magnitude of the challenge this morning."

Outside the building, Chinese security officials broadcast announcements blaming the United States for causing the crowd-control problems by moving the speech indoors.

Inside, the theater was packed with more than 3,000 women, twice the building's capacity.

"We're going to keep on moving forward, never turning back," the women sang, holding hands and swaying side to side in their seats. "We're going to work for women's freedom, never turning back."

The activists here are trying to shape the outcome of the women's conference in Beijing, and Rodham Clinton assured them their voices are being heard.

"It will be (the activists) that will hold governments to the commitments they make," she said.

Weaver accuses FBI of planned killing

Pete Yost
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With senators gathered around a model of his Idaho homestead, white separatist Randy Weaver said Wednesday neither his extremist views nor his mistakes justified federal agents killing his wife and son during a 1992 standoff.

Telling his story to a Senate subcommittee, Weaver leveled charge after charge against law enforcement. Sympathetic lawmakers seldom challenged his veracity.

High-ranking law enforcement officials had issued "death warrants" against his family, he said. An FBI sniper deliberately shot his wife and later there was "a cover-up of what really happened" at his home in Ruby Ridge, he said.

Weaver tried to explain his views on the separation of races and Zionist control of government. Senators and even Weaver's own lawyer denounced his beliefs as extremist.

"I'm not a hateful racist as most people understand it," Weaver said. "I believe that if there is separation of races, scripturally speaking, that's what I believe is right."

Law enforcement gets its chance beginning today to give its side of the story. It has said its actions at the site were wrong and in some cases illegal, but none of Weaver's family was killed intentionally. The government has paid the Weaver family $3.1 million to settle its claims and the Justice Department recently opened an investigation into allegations that high-level FBI officials engaged in a cover-up. Five FBI officials, including Deputy Director Larry Potts, have been suspended with pay.

The 11-day standoff at Ruby Ridge has become a symbol — both in Congress and across the country — of concerns that federal law enforcement has used excessive force.

"The FBI must stop thinking it's a military and get back to being the FBI," Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, said in remarks before Weaver even testified.

Sen. Herbert Kohl of Wisconsin, the ranking Democrat on the subcommittee, said the shootings "mark a sad chapter in the history of American law enforcement."

The hearing was chaired by Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania, a Republican presidential hopeful.

Weaver, clad in an open-collar denim shirt and blue jeans, wiped tears from his face as he spoke of watching his fatally wounded wife fall to the floor with their 10-month-old child still clutched in her arms. One of Weaver's daughters, Sara, wept in the audience as he testified.

Microphone in hand, Weaver used a mockup of his Ruby Ridge homestead, built specifically for the hearings, to make his case as senators gathered to watch.

Weaver said he made two mistakes: He sold two sawed-off shotguns to an undercover informant for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, and then he failed to show up for his trial. He said he sold the guns because his family needed the $450 he would profit from the transaction.

Luis leaves mark on Puerto Rico

Michelle Faul
Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — After sweeping away two hotels and destroying Antigua's hospital, Hurricane Luis Wednesday inflicted on Puerto Rico the shrieking winds and torrential rains that have killed three people.

One music store was reported looted in Antigua, where Luis tore through tourist shopping areas and landmarks on Tuesday.

Trees and power lines fell as Luis, one of the most powerful hurricanes in decades, passed Puerto Rico. Water and power were cut throughout much of San Juan and the east of the American island. Thousands of residents sought refuge in shelters.

Sixty-four prisoners took advantage of the blackouts to escape from jails. Thirty-two were captured by midday, two after a shootout with police in a San Juan suburb.

Two people died in Puerto Rico and one in Guadeloupe even before the 700-mile-wide maelstrom of wind and rain struck the Caribbean on Tuesday.

With winds of 130 mph, Luis was slowly moving northwest away from the Caribbean Wednesday, and the National Weather Service downgraded its hurricane warning to a tropical storm warning for Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands and the British Virgin Islands. At 2 p.m., the center of Hurricane Luis was located in the Atlantic Ocean about 135 miles north-northeast of San Juan, the weather service said.

Forecasters expected Luis to dump 10 inches of rain on Puerto Rico before turning due north today, as a storm over Florida keeps it away from the U.S. mainland.

"As long as it stays, (Hurricane Luis) will not have any strange ideas about coming over Florida," said Fiona Horsfall, a meteorologist at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

Hardest hit by Luis were Antigua and its sister island, Barbuda. The storm "devastated" the islands on Tuesday, Prime Minister Lester Bird said, according to Puerto Rican Gov. Pedro Rosello, who spoke to him by phone.

Two hotels were washed away, a nightclub was flattened and hundreds of homes were damaged, he said, without specifying the names of the hotels.

The hospital was destroyed, and Bird appealed to Puerto Rican Gov. Pedro Rosello for a mobile medical unit.

The capital, St. John's, looked like a junkyard. Awnings, roofs and power lines were torn off, and 50-year-old Royal Palm trees were uprooted.

Chamber of Commerce officials in Antigua denied initial news accounts of widespread looting and said only one business — a music store — was sacked. Soldiers moved in quickly to prevent looting after crowds gathered at Heritage Quay, a tourist shopping area. The army sealed off downtown.

In Puerto Rico, an island of 3.5 million people, frightened residents spoke of the legendary wrath of the Taino Indian god Huracan, from which the English

REVIEW PROCESS CALLED 'A CHARADE'

Nichols' lawyer disputes death penalty

Laura Myers
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An attorney for Terry Nichols argued Wednesday before a federal panel the government should not seek the death penalty, insisting his client wasn't guilty in the Oklahoma City bombing.

Meanwhile, the lawyer for Timothy McVeigh, the other man charged in the April 19 bombing, boycotted the closed-door hearing before the Capital Case Review Committee, which makes federal death penalty recommendations.

Attorney Stephen Jones boycotted the hearing. He called the review process a charade because, he said, Attorney General Janet Reno has already stated on national television she believes those responsible for the bombing should be put to death.

"The principal overriding reason (for ignoring the hearing) is that it's a charade and a sham," Jones said from Oklahoma City. "They are not going to overrule her."

Michael Tigar, the lead attorney for Nichols, said he took the opportunity to present Nichols' case, but remained skeptical of the process.

"It's a little difficult to see how Justice Department employees could be neutral observers," said Tigar, who accused the government of being too aggressive in handling the case. "Justice by ambush is not justice."

The three-member panel reviews all government prosecutors' requests for seeking the death penalty and forwards recommendations to the attorney general, who has final say.

Tigar's argument against death was that Nichols was innocent.

"We don't see and have not yet seen evidence that shows that Terry Lynn Nichols was culpably involved in the bombing on April 19, 1995," Tigar said he told the committee. "This is an outrage."

During the review process, the panel weighs defense-presented mitigating circumstances against the aggravating circumstances presented by government prosecutors. Aggravating circumstances could include using weapons of mass destruction and the destruction of government property — which apply in this case.

But Justice Department officials were mum on what was said, even initially refusing to confirm that the review was taking place Wednesday.

"We don't see and have not yet seen evidence that shows that Terry Lynn Nichols was culpably involved in the bombing on April 19, 1995. This is an outrage."

U.S. Attorney Patrick Ryan represented the prosecution, according to Tigar, who said panelists included Kevin Di Gregory from the Justice Department's criminal division and Associate Deputy Attorney General Seth Waxman. The third panelist was not identified.

Nichols and McVeigh face federal conspiracy and murder charges in the April 19 bombing, which killed 169 people and injured more than 500.

In Oklahoma City, a judge granted the government a delay until Friday to respond to a defense request to remove the judge from the case because the building where he works was damaged by the bomb.

Kevorkian case can rest in peace

A Michigan judge dismissed murder charges against Dr. Jack Kevorkian on Aug. 30 in the 1991 deaths of two women. Oakland County Circuit Judge David Breck ruled Kevorkian should be charged with assisted suicide, citing a state Supreme Court ruling that assisted suicide can be considered a crime under Michigan common law.

While this lesser charge may seem like a victory for Kevorkian, it is a complete farce that he should be charged with anything at all. The courts should not intervene in personal matters such as a human being's right to live in agony or die with grace. Letting a judge decide if a person should live with a terminal illness is like playing God — which is obviously what the courts are after. Not only do they want to determine when people should die, they also want to decide when people should live, regardless of their living conditions.

Individuals should have the right to decide when they've had enough. When a person's quality of life is nil, when they suffer from the moment they wake to the moment they sleep (or even during sleep), it becomes their decision to end their suffering. Anyone — judge, friend or family member — insisting on prolonged pain is selfish

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

The Supreme Court has overstepped judicial boundaries by inventing a new charge for Kevorkian.

and hasn't the right to insist the person continue to live.

Kevorkian should be praised, not condemned, for giving the terminally ill the right to retain dignity in the face of death. He has behaved as any good doctor should; he supports patients in their time of need, helps them cope with illness and allows them to make their own decisions. The courts must realize Kevorkian does not want to play God, nor does he wish people would continue to fall ill so he can help them commit suicide. Kevorkian only wants these people to find escape from their pain and have peace.

"It will be virtually impossible for Dr. Kevorkian to defend himself, because we'll essentially be making up the elements of this crime," Geoffrey Fieger, Kevorkian's attorney, said. Assisting suicide was not a crime until the courts realized Kevorkian had power over people they wanted. The assisted-suicide charge has been created for Kevorkian, proving even when someone is kind and compassionate, the stodgy cruelty of the judicial system can knock them down.

The courts do not allow people the right to die. They fear people will start a rash of assisted suicides, killing themselves when confronted with everyday conflict.

But the major discrepancy in the court action is that they retain the right to give criminals the death sentence. If a person commits heinous crimes, the courts can opt to execute them; otherwise, they force the right to live upon their jurisdiction. Americans are forced to live with pain to prove their faith in the judicial system.

The courts should not be allowed to determine people's life spans. Deciding to die is a personal decision, and Kevorkian is only assisting the ill in the only way he can. It seems the courts are trying to avenge the deaths of people wishing to die, when it is obvious the ill only wish to have peace. The courts need to let them rest.

Students seen as a necessary evil by the community they support

The UI presidential search has not been without controversy. The candidates have caused a stir — most notably Judith Albino, who was forced out of her presidential position at the University of Colorado. But the search process has caused the most resentment among students.

The only opportunity students have to help select a president is through a group of 15 selected students who will spend 45 minutes with the candidates ("Students slighted in search," DI, Aug. 25). "Average" students are not allowed to question the candidates. Ultimately, it will be the Iowa state Board of Regents, not the students, who determine the next UI president.

Certainly it would be impossible for all students to ask questions and make comments to the candidates. Steve Collins, chairperson of the Presidential Search and Screen Advisory Committee, pointed out the student body is just too large for everyone to get their say.

"The organizational problems are just enormous," Collins said (DI, Aug. 25).

Still, students' concerns about the candidates should be given more of a priority. The search will have cost nearly $150,000 by the time it is over ("Presidential search nears end," DI, Aug. 24), yet students have, for the most part, been kept out of the process. Of course, students should have expected it.

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

It is not surprising students are excluded from UI presidential search.

While it is undeniable it is the students who make the university and the city a vibrant place, we are treated by many at the UI and in the community as nothing more than a necessary evil to pay their salaries.

Most students find out, by the time they are sophomores, they are not as important to professors or administrators as they had expected.

For the most part, professors are more concerned with research and being published than they are with teaching. There are numerous exceptions (religion Professor Jay Holstein), but many professors lecture without a trace of enthusiasm or concern.

This is not entirely the professors' fault. A large part of the problem stems from academia. Job security and salary are based on the research and achievements of the faculty. You'd be surprised how many professors earn more money than Holstein, arguably the most popular lecturer on campus.

The inadequate treatment of students goes beyond academics and extends to the community. For example, lack of parking forces many students to ride bicycles to class, but surprisingly, there are far too few bike racks available.

Even Iowa City "bike cops" seem to have an agenda to bust students. Many of these cops make a living on handing out tickets to students riding their bikes on city sidewalks. Other cops fight the epidemic of 20-year-olds sneaking a beer.

It is certainly not surprising students are not playing a large role in determining the next president. We have grown accustomed to being treated without much respect. Most likely, the next president will not play a major role in most students' lives, anyway.

Former UI President Hunter Rawlings was fairly popular among students. The reasons for his popularity, however, probably had more to do with his appearance (all 6 feet 7 inches) than with his student body politics.

Like Rawlings, the next president will be nothing more than a symbol for the students. Rather than searching for a president to satisfy the political needs of students, we will have to settle for someone who satisfies the political needs of the regents.

Poll stops the clock

Wednesday, The New York Times published a poll dividing up how the typical American spends her/his day.

The demographically diverse Joe and Jane Doe ticked away most of their time sleeping — 7 hours and 25 minutes — followed by work and related activities (grooming, transit) at 4 hours and 44 minutes.

Entertainment, which includes the music-TV-video-friends network, soaked up 4 hours and 23 minutes, while food-related activities consumed 2 hours and 7 minutes.

Must-do commitments filled 1 hour and 47 minutes and "inner direction" got only 44 minutes a day. That's less than the 2 hours and 49 minutes spent in the "other" category.

"Other" consists of, well, gardening, surfing the Internet, staring into space and/or having sex.

The next poll should ask what people are thinking. Because really, a lot of the time, people have "other" things are on their mind.

The new improved Iowa City — primary colors and taffeta

In Irvine, Calif., the town in which I used to live, it's illegal to paint your house an unsanctioned color, which leaves five shades of pink ranging from Pepto Bismol to sunset terracotta.

There is no street parking in the whole city, because it is considered "unsightly," and if you leave your garage door open for longer than 16 1/2 minutes, you can be fined for ruining the line of the neighborhood.

The last year I was there, Irvine was voted the 10th safest city in America, which gave the police force even more excuses to pull over "suspicious-looking" vehicles. I had a friend who had a car with rust spots on its sides, and she finally gave up driving it because she would get pulled over every time she took it out and would be late to wherever she was going. African-American students, who would drive in from Los Angeles, would tell stories of routine harassment, especially if they happened to be driving through Irvine at night and accidentally fit the Irvine police department's profile of a band of roving marauders.

This enlightened city is owned and operated by the Irvine Company, which owns the only apartments available for student housing. A two-bedroom goes for $1,020 a month, and if you get more than two people to share it, you still only have two approved parking stickers for your two approved cars. Since there isn't any street parking, that means someone will end up getting hauled off by an approved tow truck owned by — you guessed it — the Irvine Company.

But as oppressive as all this sounds, Americans seem to love the idea. Four million of us live in gated communities like the ones making up Irvine. Even the Walt Disney Company is getting in on the act, developing a planned Florida community of 20,000 called Celebration. (Residents will be limited to two different types of mouse ears.) So, not one to miss out on a trend — and willing to put my own prejudices aside — I was thinking we ought to get ahead of this thing and gate Iowa City right now.

Think about it — no one ever leaves this town anyway, right? We string up some electrical fence, issue laminated photo IDs and start implementing some regulations. Here are some ideas off the top of my head:

- Housing colors: Only colors made up of one syllable will be allowed. For instance, red, pink, blue or white would be fine, but not yellow, crimson, amber or maroon.

- Approved pets: Only pets that can be submerged in water for 10 minutes and live will be permitted — except for big dogs, my cousin's two cats, my friend

Frank's three Welsh corgis and any pet named "Janet."

- Appropriate fashion: From now on, Iowa City residents will only be allowed to wear taffeta. For approved colors, see above.

- Parking: This has gotten way out of hand, so to make sure everyone has a chance to park downtown during the day at least once in their lifetime, residents will be divided into two groups, one of which will be allowed to park on odd hours, the other of which will be allowed to park on even hours. Those who ignore this regulation will be shot.

There you have it; that's enough to get us started. All we have to do now is start taxing ourselves, vote Republican and play more golf. Of course, we'll have to rename the community. Iowa City is so, well, uninspired. I was thinking something more along the lines of "Sunny Plains" or "Whispering Fields."

But we can work out all the details later.

When Bob Dole is elected and pigs fly.

Search committee chairman promises 4 qualified finalists

On behalf of the Presidential Search and Screen Advisory Committee, I would like to express appreciation for the welcome the UI community has extended to the first three prospective candidates for president.

Each of the prospects has been received with graciousness and listened to attentively. All were challenged by thoughtful, probing questions from students, faculty, staff and the media. Their responses to those questions give an excellent basis for judging how well they might serve as the next president of the UI.

GUEST EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

Presidential candidates' capacity for leadership may be enhanced by controversy.

As we move into the remaining on-campus interviews and the selection of the finalists to be submitted to the Iowa state Board of Regents, it seems appropriate to review the selection process and outline the final stages of this effort.

We started with the appointment of a presidential search committee, which is broadly representative of the UI community and includes undergraduate, graduate and professional students; current and past faculty leaders; current leaders of UI staff; and alumni. Meeting in open session and inviting public comment, we adopted a list of 17 criteria for evaluating prospective candidates.

Next, a national campaign was conducted to recruit candidates, resulting in a pool of more than 300 prospects. Much of the success in this effort can be attributed to the committee's commitment to confidentiality. Without the promise their names would be kept confidential until the on-campus interviews, many of the best candidates would not agree to be considered. This point has been brought home to me time after time by the prospective candidates themselves, by former chairpersons of presidential search committees in Iowa and elsewhere, and by other university presidents around the country.

Before candidates were selected for on-campus interviews, the committee conducted a thorough process of information-gathering. Its efforts included:

- Personal contacts with the people who nominated candidates.
- Phone interviews with references.
- Talks with dozens of leaders in higher education about prospective interviewees.
- Electronic reviews of public records, including Lexis/Nexis searches to collect newspaper reports on the prospects and issues relevant to their qualifications.
- Background checks performed by Korn/Ferry, the private search firm hired by the regents to help the presidential search committee.
- Off-campus interviews with prospective candidates included frank discussions of issues of potential concern arising from public records searches or conversations with other contacts.

All of this information was used to winnow the pool down to the prospects who seemed best-suited to be UI president. Each prospect we are considering has had a unique pattern of experiences at institutions with varying histories, cultures and personalities.

Our job is to interpret each prospect's record, references and off-campus interview in a holistic manner. We evaluate all candidates in terms of how well they make and communicate decisions, their capacity for leadership, what they have learned from past challenges and how they would build on their past experiences were they to become UI president.

It is important for us to emphasize the presidential search committee has not ruled out prospects simply because they may have been associated with controversy or have detractors. Anyone who has been in a leadership position in higher education has had to make difficult decisions. The fact those decisions may not be universally applauded indicates how charged and complicated they may be. The important thing is how well the prospect can articulate his or her reasons behind a tough decision and how successful he or she is in building support for action following that decision.

We are in the midst of bringing prospective candidates to the UI for interviews with students, faculty, staff, administrators and alumni. That process includes public symposia allowing members of the community to pose important questions to the candidates and hear their responses. We know the UI community will continue to listen with open minds.

The on-campus interviews initiate the concluding stages of the search process, and the presidential search committee is eager to receive comments, recommendations and concerns about matters meriting further investigation.

I promise we will do our best to check additional references, pursue specific issues of concern and carefully weigh all the information and evidence we have gathered before we make a decision on the four finalists who will be submitted to the regents.

Public Safety director warns students they are not immune to crime

The UI campus is a relatively safe place, but it certainly is not immune to crime.

From my perspective as UI director of Public Safety, you shouldn't say the first part of that sentence without the other. Even on our relatively safe campus, we had 1,472 crime reports in 1994.

Still, the good news is the total number of reported crimes has decreased 7 percent from the previous year. Even better, it's a drop of more than 20 percent from 1992 and is the lowest total in the last five years.

Statistics on campus crime were included in Policies and Regulations Affecting Students, which was distributed across campus and inserted in the Aug. 31 issue of The Daily Iowan. The publication of those statistics and the beginning of a new academic year make this a good time to put this issue into perspective — including both the relative safety of our campus and the undeniable need to remain vigilant about crime. With that in mind, please consider the following:

- Of the 33 types of criminal incidents included in our annual reports, 15 showed decreases from 1993 to 1994. That list includes assaults, bomb threats, burglaries, criminal trespass, drug offenses, liquor law violations, false reports, harassment, indecent exposure, public intoxication, robbery, attempted sexual abuse, stalking and theft.
- Another five categories showed no change. That list includes arson, murder and attempted murder, for which the number of incidents reported was zero for each. It also includes violations of weapons possession laws, for which there was one incident, and 14 cases of reckless use of fire, which matches the number of cases from 1993 (no pun intended).
- Among the 13 categories of crime in which there were increases from 1993 to 1994, the total number of incidents in all but two of those categories was 16 or less. That includes aggravated assaults (9), child endangerment (1), disorderly conduct (13), fireworks (6), forgery (16), interference with official acts (12), motor vehicle theft (14), possession of stolen property (7), drunken driving (13), sexual abuse (3) and other offenses (12).
- The most frequent crime on campus is theft, but even the 509 cases reported last year are a decrease from 573 in 1993. And it's a considerable improvement from 1991 and 1992. There were more than 630 thefts each of those years.
- The number of criminal mischief charges is significant, 381, which is up from 355 in 1993. Criminal mischief is defined as any wrongful damage, defacing, alteration or destruction of tangible property.
- Other crime categories with more than 100 reported incidents are burglaries (103) and harassment (106), but both are down from the previous year.
- The number of assaults, both simple and aggravated, is down considerably — 53 in 1994 compared with 75 in 1993. However, any number of assaults must be considered significant.

Getting a good handle on crime also requires the realization that Public Safety's annual statistics include only crimes committed on campus. Obviously, students and other members of the UI community can be victims of crime off campus. The crime statistics collected by the Iowa City and Coralville police departments as well as the Johnson County Sheriff's Office must also be considered.

Likewise, more comprehensive sexual assault statistics are available from the Rape Victim Advocacy Program, and they include assaults reported to counselors but not to any law-enforcement agency.

GUEST EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

Students can stop crime before it happens.

Releasing statistics on campus and community crime is a good way to get people's attention, but knowing those figures won't necessarily lead to a reduction in crime. That requires active efforts on the part of everyone in our community.

Here are some steps you can take:

- Don't ignore suspicious or harassing behaviors. Give us a call at 335-5022. Or, in an emergency, simply dial 911.
- Take advantage of safety, self-defense and rape aggression defense programs offered on campus and in residence halls.
- Keep in mind most incidents of sexual assault involve people who know each other. There is a strong correlation between alcohol use and rape.
- Don't drink and drive.
- Don't drink if you're under the legal age. Many campus arrests are alcohol-related.
- Lock your room or office when you're not there.
- Have someone stand guard at both your vehicle and your room when moving in or out of a residence hall, apartment or office.
- Secure your computer and stereo equipment to other stationary objects in your room or office.
- Lock valuable possessions in a drawer or safe, or leave them at home.
- Be careful to lock up your possessions when you are working out at The Field House or Recreation Building.
- Park your car in a well-lit area, remove any valuables and lock it.
- Walk with friends after dark. If that's not possible, let people know where you are going and when you expect to return.

PACKWOOD

el "strenuously urges, and fully expects" the full Senate to vote to expel Packwood.

Packwood ducked a question about whether he would resign.

"I want to think about this for a minute and I want to talk to some people and I am not going to make instantaneous decisions," the senator told reporters before the committee announced its decision.

If the required 67 senators do not vote for expulsion, the ethics committee said it would propose a censure, loss of Packwood's finance committee chairmanship and a loss of seniority.

The committee said Packwood should be expelled because:

- He tried to obstruct the committee's inquiry by "withholding, altering and destroying" his diaries.

The committee harshly described the alterations as illegal and a crime against the Senate.

- He abused his position "by repeatedly committing sexual misconduct" between 1969 and 1990.

- He deliberately tried to enhance his personal finances by trying to get his estranged wife a job from individuals with an interest in legislation.

Packwood denied he altered his taped diaries when he learned the committee would subpoena them. He did admit he altered copies of his diary tapes — but not the originals — after he gave the originals to his lawyers.

The copies were altered, he said, because they contained "personally or politically embarrassing information" and he feared they would be leaked.

"Every original word in the diaries was turned over to the committee voluntarily," he said. "When there was a subpoena, I gave the Justice Department simultaneously the originals and the copies ... so the committee cannot say in any way that it was obstructed."

At the time of the lawsuit in 1992, only 88 African-Americans and 52 Mexican-Americans in the nation met the qualifications for admission to UT-Austin's Law School, a July 30 Los Angeles Times story said.

Consequently, to meet its goal of diversifying the class to include nearly 100 African-Americans and Latinos, UT-Austin admitted minority students from out of state with lesser academic qualifications than white applicants who reside in Texas and had higher academic scores, the Times reported.

"I don't think you can have a public institution that is lily-white," Yudof said in an interview with the Times. "Our basic approach is to look for good people who may not have the same paper qualifications. They are probably a shade lower. But they will go on to graduate and they will be a credit to their community."

Leadership with a commitment to diversity is essential, UI Dean of Students Philip Jones said. The president must be "dedicated to equality of opportunity," he said.

Steve Collins, president of the UI Presidential Search and Screen Advisory Committee said he thinks Yudof has that dedication.

"He is a man dedicated to diversity in institutions of higher education," Collins said.

Yudof could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

LAW BACKGROUND

tinguished Teachers was started in May. Twelve instructors received a $5,000 pay raise and a new title of Distinguished Teaching Professor.

Vick was on the committee to decide the winning professors and said it is a "very valuable" tool in awarding good teaching.

"I feel that the group originally recognized ... is universally recognized," he said.

An educational policy center, scheduled to open in 1996, will focus on researching diversity, violence and school-finance issues in the public education system.

Another of Yudof's projects for 1996 is the modification of UT-Austin's student advising system to a system comparable to the one at the UI. Each student would be assigned to an adviser, a computer system would be set up so students could evaluate their degrees and an e-mail system would be implemented so students and advisers could converse on a frequent basis.

"It's a broad-based effort to enhance student advising," Collins said.

Yudof began his educational career at the University of Pennsylvania, where he graduated with a bachelor's degree in political science in 1965 and a law degree in 1968. He has served as lecturer, research associate and senior staff attorney at Harvard Center for Law and Education.

He joined UT-Austin in 1971 as an associate professor of law in 1971 and was promoted to full professor in 1974. He was named law school dean in 1984 and accepted his present position in 1994.

William Hines, dean of the UI College of Law, said he has known Yudof for several years. They have served on professional committees, as well as being law-school deans for 10 years together.

"He's a high-profile, very accomplished scholar and teacher in our discipline," Hines said.

However, the fact that Yudof has a law background is not as important as his experience at UT-Austin, a large research university similar to the UI, Hines said.

Yudof also has experience with the UI, Hines said. In the late 1980s, he was a member of a campus review committee which evaluated programs offered by the university.

UI Liberal Arts Dean Judith Aiken will participate in Yudof's interviews, along with other university deans. Finding a candidate with a good leadership style, high goals and expectations and knowledge of internal management is essential, she said.

However it's not "crucial," Aiken said, to find a candidate with an advanced degree in a liberal arts field.

SIMPSON TRIAL

Fuhrman gave a similar answer to three other questions including, "Have you ever falsified a police report?"

As Fuhrman was led out of court, Simpson appeared upset. His eyes reddened, he rubbed his face and he mouthed words to his attorneys.

Later, his attorneys addressed reporters about the extraordinary courtroom development.

"We are not gloating; what we are saying is it's a very, very serious day for justice, not only in this county but in this country," Johnnie Cochran Jr. said. "We're going to move forward on this case and get what we believe we richly deserve — an acquittal."

Fuhrman's appearance was preceded by his attorney's announcement he had advised his client not to answer any questions. Uelmen said he wanted to hear that from Fuhrman's own lips.

The courtroom was hushed as the tall, solemn-faced detective walked to the witness stand. He had last been on the stand in March, when he testified about finding a bloody glove on Simpson's property and denied having used the word "nigger" in the past decade.

Uelmen asked, "Detective Fuhrman, was the testimony you gave at the preliminary hearing in this case completely truthful?"

"I wish to assert my Fifth Amendment privilege," said Fuhrman, who was allowed to return home to Idaho but was subject to recall.

Before Fuhrman took the stand, Uelmen used tapes of interviews of Fuhrman to renew one of the first motions ever made in the Simpson case — a bid to suppress evidence seized at Simpson's estate.

Uelmen said the newly discovered evidence justifies reversal of a ruling made last summer by a municipal court judge who upheld the warrantless entry onto Simpson's property the morning the bodies were found. Fuhrman scaled a wall at Simpson's estate and then opened a gate for other detectives.

Uelmen argued outside the jury's presence that the tapes, on which Fuhrman talks about manufacturing probable cause, prove Fuhrman can't be trusted and the search he led was illegal.

to contract the HIV virus, Sullivan said. He said IV-drug use, blood transfusions and contraction to the fetus all are ways HIV can be spread, all from sex without a condom. Blood, semen, vaginal fluid and breast milk are the only ways to pass the HIV virus, while swimming in the same pool or drinking out of the same glass are not.

"The main point is to get guys to wear condoms," Sullivan said.

Other than wearing condoms, Sullivan said other ways to lower the risk of contracting the HIV virus are: abstinence, reducing the number of sexual partners, changing the way a person has sex, committing to a monogamous relationship and getting tested for the virus.

"Abstinence is a good choice, but if you're going to have sex get tested and know (about AIDS)," Sullivan said.

Getting tested and knowing early can greatly lengthen the life of someone with HIV, or it can increase the awareness of people who test negative, Goldman said.

"If somebody goes and gets tested and then returns to unsafe behavior, at least they are conscious of what is out there," Goldman said.

Goldman said AIDS is a disease people can curb if the awareness is out there, and people are educating one another about how to protect themselves.

"The saddest part about it is this is something I didn't have to get, like heart disease, but rather something I did to get," Goldman said.

At least one UI student walked away with new knowledge of how to prevent contraction of the HIV virus.

"The presentation enabled me to realize how serious AIDS is, and how careful we need to be, and how important it is to take precautions," UI junior Mike Pass said.

NUCLEAR TESTS

they didn't move, police fired tear gas canisters that obscured the area with smoke.

About 30 demonstrators, some of them wearing helmets and swinging pipes and chains, broke through the French cordon and tried to storm aboard an Air Tahiti flight bound for Los Angeles and Paris. They fought with police in riot gear at the foot of the boarding steps but were blocked from boarding the plane. The passengers were evacuated and fled the airport.

Demonstrators kicked one policeman repeatedly as he lay on the ground. One protester was injured when he picked up a tear gas grenade and it exploded in his hand, and another had a head injury, said Dr. Fabrice Jeanette at the emergency ward. Five or six other protesters were also in the ward, and many more people sustained lesser injuries.

The protesters set fires around the airport and threw stones, shattering airport windows and the windshields of parked cars. Plumes of smoke went up from a freight station and a café near the airport entrance.

Earlier, truckloads of riot police cruised through Papeete in a show of force after labor unions called a general strike for Wednesday.

"We are very ashamed to be French — ashamed to support the French government, ashamed to belong to France," said Roti Maker, a resident of Papeete.

In Paris, about 5,000 Greenpeace activists and leftist political party supporters rallied at a symbolic site: the Place de la Bastille, where the French Revolution began. One demonstrator combed her hair in the shape of a nuclear mushroom cloud.

Chirac contends up to eight blasts are needed to develop computer simulations that will make further detonations unnecessary. He has promised to sign a global test ban treaty after this series of blasts — due to end in May — is completed.

The test Tuesday took place in a tunnel bored 1,800-3,000 feet beneath Mururoa. A videotape released by the French military showed the atoll's lagoon heaving and frothing like a whirlpool as the shock wave lashed the water, sending up white foam and mist.

The Australian Seismological Center estimated the power of Tuesday's blast at the equivalent of about 8,000 tons of TNT, or eight kilotons.

"We are not testing bombs," the military commander on Mururoa, Gen. Paul Verice, said at a news conference there Wednesday. "We are testing nuclear physics."

Fourteen ships carrying environmental protesters remained at sea around Mururoa, but French naval vessels were trying to head off any further intrusions into the 12-mile exclusion zone around the atoll.

Dunn replaces Parkhill at Penn State helm

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Bruce Parkhill, who revitalized the Penn State basketball team when it joined the Big Ten, resigned unexpectedly as coach Wednesday, saying he was burned out.

Parkhill, who guided the Nittany Lions to a 21-11 record last season and a third-place finish in the NIT, was replaced by long-time assistant Jerry Dunn. Parkhill will remain at the school as assistant athletic director. Dunn, 42, has been at Penn State for Parkhill's entire 12-year tenure.

"I just haven't enjoyed coaching as much as I used to — it's that simple," Parkhill said. "This is not a sudden decision. I have contemplated getting out of coaching for seven or eight years. And then every summer, I would get rejuvenated."

Nebraska coach bans student paper for cartoons

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska coach Tom Osborne has banned reporters from the student newspaper from football practice because of two critical cartoons, a move that was denounced by a professor and could bring legal action.

"I don't think the coach has any legal authority to do what he's doing," University of Nebraska professor Alfred Pagel Jr. said. "He's the coach. Coaches tend to think that everything that affects their team is their business."

Osborne, who called the cartoons inappropriate, said: "Attending our practices is a privilege, not a right."

Seles tops Novotna to reach semifinals

Steve Wilstein

Associated Press

NEW YORK — On the brink of dropping a set for the first time in her comeback, Monica Seles displayed the one trait that distinguishes her from all other players, that molded her into a champion, and that made her long absence so puzzling.

It was Seles' utter refusal to be beaten, to give up under any circumstances, that marked her eight Grand Slam title runs more than her strokes or style or stamina. It was why those who knew her believed she would come back sooner or later.

And it was that toughness that was all the difference Wednesday between her and Jana Novotna.

Seles reached the semifinals of the U.S. Open with a 7-6 (7-5), 6-2 victory over Novotna that turned on four pivotal points at the end of the first set when Novotna served with a 6-5, 40-15 lead.

The way Seles played those points, the grit she showed while under pressure for the first time in 10 matches over two tournaments, may also be the determining factor when she plays Friday against Conchita Martinez, a 3-6, 7-6 (7-3), 6-2 victory over Brenda Schultz-McCarthy.

In an even closer and much longer match, 1989 men's champion Boris Becker reached the semifinals by surviving the longest duel of the tournament — 4 hours, 7 minutes — against Patrick McEnroe, 6-4, 7-6 (7-2), 6-7 (7-3), 7-6 (8-6).

Becker, who closed the match with his 30th ace, will play defending champion Andre Agassi, a 6-4, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5 winner over Petr Korda. Agassi, who played indifferently in the third set, clawed back from two breaks down at 1-4 in the fourth, fought off two set-points at

Women's soccer club aims to upgrade

Heather Van Peursem
Special to The Daily Iowan

Two years ago, the Iowa Women's Soccer Club and the UI Women's Crew Club were both trying to elevate to varsity status. Crew made it, and is headed into its sophomore campaign, but the soccer club didn't, mainly due to one factor: the lack of a facility.

Women's Soccer used to play on a field on Highway 6 in Coralville, near the UI Softball Complex; now, after the flood of 1993, it is a parking lot.

UI has made the commitment to elevate women's soccer to varsity status, but when it will happen is not known.

"There is a commitment that we will elevate women's soccer to varsity status at some point, but the time line has not been determined on when that will occur," Paula Jantz, UI associate women's athletic director, said. "The best I could guess would be within the next five years."

UI interim president Peter Nathan has the power to upgrade the team. However, that topic is only in the discussion stages right now. According to Ann Rhodes, vice president for university relations, the main concern right now is the lack of a field for the team to play on, and the UI is currently discussing how building a new field would fit into the budget.

The '95-'96 season will be the first year the Big Ten Conference will have a women's varsity soccer division. Michigan, Michigan State and Wisconsin are among an estimated six teams that will

NL WILD CARD RACE

Cubs get ROCK-ed in Chicago

Mike Nadel

Associated Press

CHICAGO — The wind was blowing out at Wrigley Field, yet none of the big bashers on the Chicago Cubs and Colorado Rockies took advantage.

Instead, unheralded Jason Bates, Eric Young and Trenidad Hubbard were the standouts as the Rockies won Wednesday.

While Colorado's 118-homer foursome — Dante Bichette, Vinny Castilla, Larry Walker and Andres Galarraga — was held without a home run for the fourth straight game, Bates capped a five-run third inning with a three-run double, and Young and Hubbard added solo homers.

In addition, Armando Reynoso combined with three relievers to hold NL home-run leader Sammy Sosa to three popups and a double-play grounder. Sosa had homered in his previous five games against the Rockies.

"Bates has had a good year for us, and Young and Hubbard really came through today when we needed them," Rockies manager Don Baylor said. "And we kept one of their hot hitters off base. That was a big key."

The Rockies, who lead the NL in batting but had a .207 average and scored only 27 runs in the first seven games of their road trip, had 14 hits against eight Chicago pitchers. Despite their recent hitting troubles, the Rockies finished the trip with a 5-3 record and moved within a half-game of NL West-leading Los Angeles, which played later Wednesday.

"It's big to go home 5-3 instead of 4-4," Baylor said. "The division race hasn't even heated up yet. Wait until everyone starts playing in the same division. Then, you're going to see tempers flare — when we play Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Diego."

Chicago, which could have tied Colorado for the top spot in the NL wild-card race with a win, instead fell two games back.

"We got four runs with a gale blowing out. That's terrible," said Mark Grace, who had four singles for the Cubs.

"The Giants come in Friday, the Dodgers after that. They're all big, and we've got to start winning them."

Hawkeyes focus on return to tourney

Shannon Stevens

The Daily Iowan

In his first full season as Iowa's men's golf coach, Terry Anderson led the Hawkeyes to their first NCAA tournament berth since 1960.

Nothing would please Anderson more than a return visit to post-season paradise at the conclusion of his sophomore campaign.

"I think what we did last year was quite an accomplishment," Anderson said. "Once we got to the NCAA tournament it was such a great feeling. I just kept thinking 'This is a nice trip.'"

A veteran duo will lead the Hawkeye attack. Laine Brantner and Chad McCarty both return after competing in the NCAA Championships last spring.

Brantner was Iowa's top finisher at the NCAA Championship and had the Hawkeyes' second-best score at the Big Ten Championship last season. He fired a 302 at the Big Ten meet, which tied him for 20th place in the conference.

McCarty was also a regular member of Iowa's top five. McCarty played 34 1/2 rounds of golf last season, posting a 75.8-stroke average.

SANDERS NEARS DECISION

Deion to Dallas a done deal?

Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas — The Dallas Cowboys are close enough to signing cornerback Deion Sanders that an agreement could be announced at a news conference today, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported.

"We don't even have to meet to do our business," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones told the newspaper Tuesday night. "Both sides have talked enough that we can get it done in a day or so."

Things could come together quickly enough to exclude other bidders for Sanders, the newspaper reported. Today is an off day for Sanders and his baseball team, the San Francisco Giants, before they travel to Chicago for a series with the Cubs.

Sanders, whose play at cornerback helped the San Francisco 49ers defeat the Cowboys for last year's NFC championship, and the San Diego Chargers in the Super Bowl, is the subject of a battle between the Cowboys, 49ers and possibly the Miami Dolphins for his services for the rest of the 1995 season.

Among the proposals Sanders and agent Eugene Parker have been aware of for weeks is a five-year deal that includes $10 million upfront, the Star-

Telegram said, quoting unidentified sources.

Jones said the contract would not necessarily ask Sanders to play football exclusively.

"I told Deion, 'We're going to win the Super Bowl anyway, but if you were in San Fran, at least it'd be a game. But if you are here, we'll win three or four more Super Bowls. And you can be as big as you want to be. Hey, we'll all be as big as we want to be.'"

Michael Irvin, Dallas receiver on a conversation he had with free agent Deion Sanders.

Despite Dallas' pressing defensive secondary needs because of cornerback Kevin Smith's season-ending injury, Jones said he will not ask Sanders to duck his commitment to the Giants before their Oct. 1 season finale.

"Those might be options that would be up to Deion," Jones said.

The newspaper said Sanders recently talked on the telephone for three hours — from midnight to 3 a.m. — with Cowboys receiver Michael Irvin to ask about the Cowboys' locker room atmosphere and organizational infrastructure.

"He asked about our team, what the guys are like, what he's about to get into," Irvin said. "He knows the 49ers have some age on them. And he knows we're all about his age, and a lot of us are locked in for years. We have a bright present and future. That's weighing into his decision. He's no dummy."

Jones said a key to signing Sanders is his willingness to join the other Cowboys stars with long-term contractual commitments.

"We have planned ahead here, building for the future, and we want Deion to be a part of that," Jones said. "In large part this deal will be like our other recent deals, made up of hard dollars."

Those hard dollars originate from Jones' corporate relationship with Texas Stadium sponsors. In recent days, Jones has formed multimillion-dollar partnerships with Nike, Pepsi and Dr. Pepper.

Jones confirmed that future ties might come with either Disney or Warner Bros. and American Express.

The American Express deal, which could be announced this week, would mirror the Pepsi deal in the sense that it would conflict with a corporate rival that has an NFL-wide pact. American Express would become "the official credit card of Texas Stadium," but Visa is already "the official credit card of the NFL."

The 49ers have an NFL-sanctioned deal with supplier Reebok; the Cowboys now have a supplier that is not sanctioned by the league, Nike, which has Sanders as a major client.

Parker said Sanders, not Nike, will dictate the star's future. But Jones noted, "I think Deion is on commission sales with Nike. So he does have a vested interest here."

The message is clear: When it comes to the 49ers and Cowboys, you must choose your weapons and choose your sides. The elated Cowboys think Sanders has done so.

"I told Deion, 'We're going to win the Super Bowl anyway, but if you were in San Fran, at least it'd be a game,'" Irvin said. "But if you are here, we'll win three or four more Super Bowls. And you can be as big as you want to be. Hey, we'll all be as big as we want to be."

Free agent defensive back Deion Sanders is reportedly close to signing a deal with the Dallas Cowboys.

NOW A PANTHER

Reich returns to Buffalo

Joe Macenka

Associated Press

ROCK HILL, S.C. — Buffalo coach Marv Levy admits he'll have a heavy heart Sunday when he looks across the field and sees Frank Reich starting for the Bills' opponent.

"I wish him real good luck — in 15 games this year," Levy said Wednesday as he discussed the man who gave up job security with an established contender to become a starter with an expansion team.

After 10 years with the Bills in which he built a reputation as one of the premier backups in the NFL, Reich left Buffalo to join the Carolina Panthers. On Sunday, he returns to Rich Stadium as the leader of the opposition.

"I'm happy for him," Levy said. "He's wanted it. He was able to bid his time. He wanted to play but he never took it outside and made a problem of it or tried to create any controversial issue out of it."

Now that his patience has been rewarded, the 33-year-old Reich has another problem: Bruce Smith, one of the most feared pass rushers in league history, is no longer his teammate.

"I was up in Buffalo right before training camp started," Reich said, "and I was at Jim Kelly's golf tournament with Bruce. And he snuck up behind me and started rubbing his hand on my back. And I turned around to see who it was, and it was Bruce, and he just smiled and said, 'I'm just kind of sizing you up for where I'm going to hit you.'"

All kidding aside, Sunday's game will be an emotional time for Reich as well.

"It's going to be interesting," he said.

"The potential is there for it to be very distracting, but you can't let it distract you. You've got to try to approach it just like a normal work week. But it will be kind of strange being on the other side of the field."

Reich isn't the only unrestricted free agent to leave the Bills after last season in favor of joining the Panthers. Pete Metzelaars is Carolina's starting tight end, and Don Beebe is one of the Panthers' starting wide receivers.

In addition to developing a reputation as an extremely reliable backup, Reich made the most of his rare chances to start. He won his first four games as a starter, beginning with a 1989 contest against the Rams in which he directed a pair of fourth-quarter scoring drives to rally Buffalo to a 23-20 win.

Reich also is the architect of the greatest comeback in NFL history. In the 1992 playoffs, he rallied the Bills from a 32-point deficit to a 41-38 victory in overtime.

Reich's heroics led the Buffalo fans on more than one occasion to call on the team's management to pull Kelly and start Reich in his place.

Now Reich's headed back, and he's curious how the Rich Stadium fans will receive him as a member of the enemy.

"I would like to think that when I walk out on the field at first, at least that could be a warm reception," he said. "But I think once the game starts, that will cease."

Nebraska has too much firepower for Spartans

Rick Warner

Associated Press

With Nick Saban as defensive coordinator, the Cleveland Browns gave up the fewest points in the NFL last season. Saban will need another great defensive effort Saturday, when he makes his debut as Michigan State's head coach against second-ranked Nebraska.

The Cornhuskers opened defense of their national championship last Thursday with a 64-21 victory over Oklahoma State.

They probably could have scored 100 if coach Tom Osborne hadn't pulled his regulars in the second half.

Cards continue dismal season

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Ryan Klesko's two-run double highlighted a six-run fourth and Tom Glavine had an RBI double and gained his 14th victory as the Atlanta Braves defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 6-1.

Glavine (14-6) gave up five hits, walked four and struck out five before being lifted after five innings and 104 pitches. Loser Mark Petkovsek gave up five hits and walked one in 3½ innings.

It was the Braves' fourth straight victory. It was the fifth loss in a row for St. Louis, which has won only two of its last nine games.

Padres 6, Mets 5

SAN DIEGO — Bip Roberts singled over a drawn-in outfield to score Steve Finley with no outs in the bottom of the ninth inning and give the San Diego Padres a win over the New York Mets.

After the Padres rebounded from a 5-1 deficit to tie it at 5, Finley led off against Jerry DiPoto (4-6) with a single in his first pinch-hitting appearance of the season. Scott Livingstone followed with a single, moving Finley to third. Roberts then hit a fly ball over the head of left fielder Damon Buford to give San Diego the victory.

Doug Bochert (4-0) pitched two-thirds of an inning.

Associated Press

Pittsburgh's Al Martin is out as Florida shortstop Kurt Abbott throws the ball to first to complete the double play Thursday.

Marlins 2, Pirates 1

MIAMI — Greg Colbrunn capped a two-run first inning with an RBI single and extended his hitting streak to 17 games, leading the Florida Marlins past the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Willie Banks (2-5) allowed six hits and one run in seven innings for the victory, his second since June 1994. Robb Nen pitched a scoreless ninth for his 19th save.

Denny Neagle (11-7) allowed just five hits and two runs in six innings but remained winless since Aug. 8.

Reds 7, Astros 3

HOUSTON — John Smiley returned from the disabled list to allow four hits over seven innings and Mark Lewis hit a three-run homer to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a victory over the Houston Astros.

There was no repeat of Tuesday night's brawl in which managers Davey Johnson of Cincinnati and Terry Collins of Houston and six players were ejected after a series of bench-clearing battles.

Cincinnati won the season series with the Astros 12-1, losing Tuesday night 10-1.

Smiley (12-2) had not pitched since Aug. 21 when he suffered a groin injury but he was in top form against the Astros, extending his road winning streak to 8-0. He hasn't lost a road game since June 8, 1994 at St. Louis.

Twins 9, Tigers 1

MINNEAPOLIS — Rookie Frank Rodriguez allowed three hits over seven innings, helping the Minnesota Twins to a victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Marty Cordova's RBI infield hit snapped a 1-1 tie in a six-run sixth inning that came after Tigers starter Jose Lima had held the Twins to one hit up to that point before a crowd of over 2,742.

Both Rodriguez (5-5) and Lima, with a combined five victories this season, held opposing batters hitless through three innings. Lima was pulled after the fifth despite giving up only one hit.

Red Sox 8, Athletics 2

BOSTON — Roger Clemens had a season-high 10 strikeouts, allowed two hits after the first inning and won his fifth straight decision as the Boston Red Sox beat the Oakland Athletics.

Boston's fifth straight win reduced its magic number for clinching the AL East to eight.

The Red Sox swept the two-game series, hurting Oakland's slim wild-card chances. The A's started the game in sixth place in the race, four games behind Kansas City. They have 21 games left.

Yankees 4, Mariners 3

NEW YORK — Jack McDowell, pitching on three days' rest, threw a six-hitter and Randy Velarde hit a two-run double during a four-run sixth as the New York Yankees beat the Seattle Mariners.

McDowell (13-10) struck out nine and walked three, pitching his seventh complete game in 27 starts. He raised his record against the Mariners to 10-1.

New York began the night 2½ games behind Seattle and Kansas City in the AL wild-card race.

Indians 12, Brewers 2

MILWAUKEE — Albert Belle hit his major league-leading 36th homer, a three-run drive that capped a seven-run second inning, and the Cleveland Indians routed the Milwaukee Brewers.

Manny Ramirez also hit his 31st homer and Tony Pena had two RBI singles as the Indians won for the 12th time in 14 games and sent the slumping Brewers to their ninth loss in 10 games. The Indians lowered their magic number for clinching the AL Central to three.

Ken Hill (2-0) won for the first time in a month. He escaped a first-inning threat by allowing just one run, then took advantage of the seven-run rally to bury the Brewers on six hits over six innings.

Rookie Brian Givens (5-3) lost for the first time since June 29, ending a five-game winning streak that spanned 12 starts. He gave up eight runs on eight hits in six innings.

White Sox 7, Rangers 5

ARLINGTON, Texas — Lance Johnson hit his career-high 10th homer, a two-run drive in the sixth inning that led the White Sox past the Texas Rangers and stretched Chicago's winning streak to eight.

Chicago's winning streak is its longest since an eight-game run from July 25-Aug. 1, 1991. Texas, which began the night 2½ games back in the AL wild-card race, lost its fourth straight and its ninth in 10 games.

Candy Maldonado's three-run homer in the fifth, his ninth of the season, put the Rangers ahead 5-2 in the fifth.

Orioles 4, Angels 2

Before his first at-bat, Cal Ripken removed his batting helmet twice after receiving a 45-second standing ovation. A portion of the crowd remained standing throughout the entire at-bat before settling into the seats after he popped out on a 3-1 pitch.

In the fourth, after Bonilla led off with a homer, Ripken followed with a drive into the left-field seats.

That was enough offense for Mike Mussina (16-8), who allowed two runs in 7½ innings. Jesse Orosco got four outs for his first save since 1993.

Blue Jays 6, Royals 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Joe Carter hit a key two-run single as the Toronto Blue Jays ended a terrible road trip by beating the Kansas City Royals.

The defending World Series champions, eliminated from the AL East race on Tuesday night, were 2-9 on a trip to Cleveland, Chicago and Kansas City.

Despite the loss, Kansas City remained a half-game ahead of Seattle in the AL wild-card race. The Royals, who stranded 10 runners, open a three-game series at Seattle on Friday.

Al Leiter (10-8) allowed eight hits in eight innings, struck out five, walked three and threw a season-high 136 pitches.

Director and screenwriter Tab Murphy, right, with Tom Berenger on the set of "Last of the Dogmen," a contemporary romantic adventure film.

Shabby directing in 'Dogmen' masks worthwhile tribal issues

Tasha Robinson

The Daily Iowan

It's remotely possible that a blind, deaf, non-English speaking 3-year-old might fail to follow the plot of "Last of the Dogmen."

But "remotely" is the key word. Director/screenwriter Tab Murphy goes out of his way to cripple "Dogmen"'s intriguing theme with heavy-handed narration and characters who explain their motivations in broad, sweeping terms. He makes such an intense effort to keep things childishly simple and obvious that he probably wrote his script in red crayon.

Tom Berenger ("Sliver") stars as Lewis Gates, a Montana bounty hunter attempting to pick his liver in alcohol to escape the guilt he feels over his wife's death. His father-in-law, the local sheriff, blames Gates for that death as well — as the narration explains, in detail, at least three times. That doesn't keep the sheriff from calling on Gates to help when three dangerous convicts escape into the Oxbow, a 4,000-square mile area of uncharted Montana mountains and forests.

Gates rides off in lukewarm pursuit, only to find a tattered shirt, a pool of blood and a broken Cheyenne arrow, which he hauls off to a conveniently nearby anthropologist, Dr. Lillian Sloan (Barbara Hershey, "Falling Down").

The good doctor laughs at Gates by daylight — when her hair is tied back and she's looking professional — so he returns in the next scene, when she's wearing something sultry and lounging around her porn-movie-set cabin. Sexual innuendoes fly, information is traded, running jokes start, and soon the two of them are headed into the Oxbow together in search of a lost tribe of Cheyenne warriors.

Murphy was apparently shooting for some sort of modernized Western epic, complete with the lone misunderstood hero, the tough but beautiful woman, the cold-hearted evil gunman and the inevitable tribe of noble savages, all set against a gorgeous Montana backdrop. Unfortunately, his characterization doesn't go any farther than that.

Unable to comprehend the basic writer's creed of "Show them, don't tell them," Murphy has his actors constantly delivering dry monologues about what they want, what kind of people they are and how they relate to each other. When that fails, the Wilford Brimley-esque narrator reminds the audience that there's conflict a-brewin'.

"They say ya never know whatcha got 'til it's gone," he informs the audience between scenes. "But Lewis knew and he meant to make sure no one could take it away from him. Dead sure."

Gates is meant to be flawed, tough and secretly noble, but Murphy mostly attempts to portray this by having him insult Sloan, then stare meaningfully into the scenic vistas, often simultaneously spouting non sequiturs.

Whether he's attempting to communicate with the natives by speaking English loudly and profanely, or telling Sloan that she was born "a century too early" because she wants to control her own sex life, he's partly an underdeveloped Mel Gibson, crazed-loner stereotype and partly just a jerk.

Sloan, meanwhile, cheerfully ignores Gates' macho, chest-pounding misogyny and bounces around alternately whining and waving her spunk, depending on which is least appropriate at any given time. ("I feel so privileged!" she burbles as she's violently dragged face-first through a river.)

Somewhere under all the garbage, an interesting story about lost tribes in the modern world is fighting to break free. Unfortunately, it's buried under obvious plot developments, stale characters, nonsensical dialogue, awful flashbacks, and the broad umbrella of the Brimley exposition.

At least Murphy made sure no one would be confused about the plot. He also managed to ensure that no one would really care.

The movie opens Friday at the Coral VI.

Athletics and 'gorilla': UI's oddest couple

David Schwartz
The Daily Iowan

The Gorilla Man has returned to Iowa City, and this time he's ruffling feathers all the way to the top.

Joe Sample, a UI senior, said he's been put on probation by the UI Men's Athletic Department, headed by Bob Bowlsby; a penalty that will keep him out of Iowa contests until he graduates.

However, a representative from men's athletics said, "I think he's lying through his teeth."

The source, who said he didn't want to get himself or the athletic department involved with the Gorilla Man, said no such

UI sociology major that remained in the minds of those who saw the game; after security escorted Sample from the field, it was believed to be the end of Gorilla Man.

It was — at least for a while — until the men's basketball team played host to Northwestern Feb. 9. Sample was spotted by the crowd while giving Herky, Iowa's mascot, a high five in the first half, and students murmured, suspecting something was up.

However, Sample just watched, and soon attention drifted back toward the Hawkeyes' 116-77 romp over the Wildcats. Then, with eight minutes remaining in the second half, Gorilla Man struck again.

Sample sprung onto the court and collided with a Hawkeye player, knocking the player down in the heat of the Big Ten Conference season. What made the stunt even more dangerous was that Iowa was running the floor, so the player he hit was running full-speed.

With the help of friend Jason Fine, Sample sprinted the length of Carver-Hawkeye Arena's hardwood floor with a minibasketball. Gorilla Man sprung off Fine, who was kneeling on all fours underneath the basket, and ended up severely shanking a slam dunk, thus drawing boos from the crowd.

"Right before it happened, I knew he was going to dunk. I knew it would help if I was a platform for him," Fine said after the incident.

"In retrospect, we are both sorry about what we did. It was kind of dumb."

But Sample doesn't see it that way. The only thing he regrets is the $90 he had to pay as a fine.

"(Security) was waiting for us afterward and they took us to an office. It's their job, so I can't be mad at them," Sample said.

"Then they turned us over to campus security and we paid a $90 fine. That was the only real bad part about it. I don't regret doing it."

Talk of Gorilla Man rose again, and this time T-shirts with the photo of him launching off Fine's back were created in the spirit of the fallen clown.

This time, however, Gorilla Man will not rise from the ashes, at least according to Sample. He said fans will never have the chance to catch his latest brain storm.

"I had a plan of parachuting into Kinnick for a football game," Sample said. "Now I can't do it, since they won't let me."

Sample said he'll watch Saturday's opener against Northern Iowa from the Magic Bus.

"What he did last year was very dangerous," the source said. "We don't even want to associate ourselves with him."

"What he said is completely untrue. He can get in with a ticket, just like everybody else."

"I had a plan of parachuting into Kinnick for a football game. Now I can't do it, since they won't let me."

Joe Sample, UI senior and infamous "Gorilla Man"

ban was invoked, calling the whole idea "nonsense."

"How can we ban somebody from a football game? He can go buy a ticket from a friend and watch."

"He just can't go onto the field. What he did last time was irresponsible and dangerous. It was just dangerous what he did."

Yet Sample maintains he was punished by UI's athletic department.

"Iowa threatened to kick me out of the university if I did it again, which is pretty ridiculous," Sample said.

Now, Sample — gorilla suit or just a pair of jeans — said he has no place among the throngs of Iowa football fans.

"It's ridiculous; I can't go to any games even just to watch, but if I did, how would they know?"

The athletic department said the claims were completely unfounded.

"It's pretty obvious somebody was at fault, and that it was him," the source said. "He's banned from running on the field, obviously — he could've hurt someone — but he's not banned from the game."

Last season, Sample donned a gorilla suit and carved his own little niche into Hawkeye history. During the fourth quarter of Iowa's season finale at Minnesota, Sample ran the distance of the Metrodome field wearing a gorilla suit, black and yellow cape and spotted bandana.

"I was tailgating with some friends and they kept egging me on," Sample said. "They said that if I had any hair on my back that I would do it, and I did."

running about $1.49 per lb.

And football junkies seem to all know one traditional brat recipe.

"It's really simple," Kilgore said. "They just boil the brats in beer the night before the tailgate, for about 10 minutes — until they float to the top — and then throw them on the grill."

The primary drawback of these slabs of sausage are their nutritional value — or lack thereof. Are they really that fattening?

"Oh, you could say that," Kilgore said, laughing. "They're pretty bad."

Mercy Hospital's registered dietitian, Carrie Minnick, can be a little more specific about the evils of a brat.

"Each one has 22 grams of fat and 256 calories — so you get 77 percent of your calories from fat," she said.

Minnick's alternative: fat-free hot dogs, grilled chicken breasts or shrimp kabobs thrown on the grill.

For two diehard Hawkeye football tailgaters, it's been a decade of deviled eggs.

"It all started at the '85 Rose Bowl," Pat Monnahan said of her tailgating specialty — deviled eggs with black olives forming an "I" on the bright gold yoke.

Pat Monnahan and her husband Mike chuckle when remembering the fateful bowl game 10 years ago. After making the trip to Pasadena in time for an Iowa City-style tailgate, decking themselves — and their eggs — in traditional Hawkeye black and gold, the Hawks still lost miserably.

"Poor Ronnie Harmon just had the dropsies that year," Pat Monnahan said.

Who cares about food — where's the beer?

The foolproof food suggestions and "interesting" entree alternatives are nice to know, but Chef Micky also knows a god-given law of nature.

"The younger crowds don't much care about the food," he said. "They're quite a bit more worried about the cooler types of tailgate offerings."

So, speaking of quality beer, does the good chef have a suggestion for the perfect tailgate brand?

"Oh, once they have that first beer in them, it all starts to taste the same," he said.

For the ale guzzler aiming to avoid a beer belly, Minnick admitted light beer does help — a little. The average comparison is 146 calories for regular beer compared to 100 calories for light beer. It's a start, Minnick admits.

If your party flops, put it in perspective

The perfect tailgate is really nothing but a fun pre-game diversion, Mike Monnahan said.

"The real fun is afterwards," he said. "At the tailgate, we're just warming up."

Summer hits boost box-office earnings

John Horn
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — "Batman Forever" and "Apollo 13" led a slew of solid summer films that nearly equaled the record $2.2 billion earned by last summer's huge blockbusters.

Ticket sales between the Memorial Day and Labor Day weekends were about $2.19 billion, Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc. said Tuesday.

While last year's take was paced by the $300 million hits "Forrest Gump" and "The Lion King," none of this summer's hits even made $200 million.

Three summer films — "Batman Forever," "Apollo 13" and "Pocahontas" — passed the $100 million milestone, while two others, "Die Hard With a Vengeance" and "Casper," probably will reach the mark.

The summer was helped by many films that grossed between $50 million and $100 million, such as "Crimson Tide," "Congo," and "The Bridges of Madison County."

Yet many titles — particularly those released late in the season — did not perform that well. Among the underachievers were Denzel Washington's "Virtuosity" and Richard Gere's "First Knight."

Theater owners make the most money from films that hold for months, since their share of the gate generally increases each week a film plays. During this summer, many movies lasted only a few days before disappearing.

"You really do have a much weaker summer this year than last year," said Howard Lichtman of the Cineplex Odeon theater chain. "But it's not a total write-off or disaster."

As politicians blast away at Hollywood's action films, audiences continue embracing them. The violent "Die Hard" sequel was among the summer's first big hits, and the fight-filled "Mortal Kombat" was one of the few late-season hits.

"Waterworld," a futuristic-action adventure that was the most expensive movie ever made at $175 million, was not an outright debacle but is far from profitable. The film is on track to make about $90 million in U.S. theaters and is playing well in Japan and England.

Top Summer Blockbusters

The summer's Top 10 movies at U.S. and Canadian theaters, as compiled by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc.:

1. "Batman Forever"	Warner Bros., $181.2 million
2. "Apollo 13"	Universal, $162 million
3. "Pocahontas"	Disney, $136.2 million
4. "Die Hard With a Vengeance"	20th Century Fox, $99.2 million
5. "Casper"	Universal, $98.8 million
6. "Crimson Tide"	Disney, $90.5 million
7. "Waterworld"	Universal, $81.3 million
8. "Congo"	Paramount, $80.1 million
9. "The Bridges of Madison County"	Warner Bros., $70.1 million
10. "Nine Months"	20th Century Fox, $65 million

Our West Side Story show is a new style of music. Our shows are innovative."

The year's programs are a mixed basket of tunes, ranging from Elton John to Broadway to Bruce Springsteen. In line with homecoming tradition, the UI Alumni Marching Band will join the Hawkeye Marching Band for a halftime show including "Hey Jude," originally performed by the Beatles.

And although Henning didn't want to "give away the surprises," he did hint at a disco season finale featuring the music of the Village

People and John Travolta.

Henning hopes for a successful 1995 football season with a post-season opportunity for the UI Hawkeye Marching Band.

"We're pumped," he said.

worry, though; Decoster, 33, is planning on using the profits from the raffle to purchase a new and improved Magic Bus.

"I was putting too much money and effort into (the bus)," he said. "It's time to get a new one."

The big bus has left its mark

Besides Miami, the Magic Bus has made several other trips, including ventures to the Kentucky

"We've basically hit every corner of the United States with our bus. Everywhere we go, any vehicle with an Iowa (license) plate starts to honk, so we get a warm feeling wherever we go."

Pennsylvania for a wedding while a 30-keg party was going on on my bus," he said. "The police came to arrest me and I wasn't there. They seized the bus for four and a half months."

Rodney Sullivan, Decoster's friend and "partner in crime," said he remembers that day well.

"We were tailgating for the Iowa-Miami game and Brian was away. The game was nationally televised, and we told him we would get on TV," Sullivan said. "We bought a blimp and tied it to a keg, but we got the blimp stuck in the wiring and the lighting at Kinnick went out for 10 minutes."

Even though there is long history of adventures and fun behind the Magic Bus, most Hawkeye fans simply know the Melrose Avenue landmark as a place to party and drink beer before home football games.

Decoster said he rents a yard from a friend who lives by Kinnick Stadium for the bus to reside during home games.

"It's the perfect place to tailgate, especially when the weather's bad," he said.

Decoster said he intended his bus to be a place for his close friends to party and tailgate, but over the years it has become "a big open party."

"In a nutshell, the bus is for my friends and their friends," he said. "It's a great place for my friends to come into town on a home game weekend, and they'll know exactly where to find me."

Decoster said this weekend's game is no different.

"There is a reunion this weekend of some friends of mine," he said. "There used to be a party place on Bowers seven or eight years ago called The Sunshine House. All the guys are coming back for the game."

Decoster and his Magic Bus host parties with up to 50 kegs. Most of the money comes from his own profits as the owner of Big Ten Rentals, 319 S. Gilbert St. However, his friends help Decoster afford to keep the parties coming.

"My friends donate some money," he said. "It doesn't cover it, but it makes it more tolerable."

Ironically, Decoster said he is not a big drinker.

"I don't drink a ton. I like to go out and have a good time," he said. "I have a lot of responsibility, but when it's all said and done, it's a pretty good party."

With this responsibility, Decoster said he tries hard to make sure the people gathering for beer around his vehicle are at least 21.

"Last year, we worked hard to keep underage drinkers out of the area," he said. "This year, there will be security to keep out the underagers."

Decoster said the Magic Bus is a tailgate spot that should only be a stop for legal boozers.

"I'm not here to supply alcohol to underage drinkers," he said. "The bus is not for a bunch of kids to party in."

CONCERT FOOTAGE SHOWS MAYHEM

Stones documentary is ugly side of rock 'n' roll and the '60s

Mark Pittillo
The Daily Iowan

Now that the death of Jerry Garcia has occasioned more than one columnist to declare the '60s over, what pops up at the Bijou this weekend but "Gimme Shelter," a film documenting the first event to inspire this claim.

That event was the anti-Woodstock — the free concert that ended the Rolling Stones' 1969 U.S. tour, held at the Altamont Speedway near San Francisco. The film, by famed "direct-cinema" documentary directors David and Albert Maysles and Charlotte Zwerin, captures the show with shaky, hand-held cameras for you-are-there intimacy.

From the beginning, everything about the free concert at Altamont went wrong. Two other locations were chosen, then scrapped before the speedway was secured just days before the festival began.

Preparations were made for a crowd of 100,000, but about 300,000 people showed up. And most disastrously, at the suggestion of the Grateful Dead, the local Hell's Angels chapter was hired (at a salary of $500 worth of beer) for security.

By the time the Stones left the stage, four people were dead, one brutally stabbed near the stage by an Angel.

On our way to this climax, we are treated to tasty chunks of the Stones' previous concerts, including "Jumpin' Jack Flash," "Satisfaction," and a sublime "Love in Vain." We also get shots of Mick and Keith and the boys hamming it up in a hotel room and in a studio, listening to an early mix of "Wild Horses."

But the Altamont section is where the film hits its pace. It's a harrowing 45 minutes. After the obligatory shots of the crowd — the obvious bad acid trips, naked people, etc. — viewers get a blistering performance by Ike and Tina Turner ("It's nice to have a chick occasionally," says an approving Mick), and part of a Jefferson Airplane song, aborted when member Marty Balin is knocked out by a brawling Angel.

Soon, the Stones take the not-so-secure stage, obviously shaken by the violence barely held in check around them. "Why are we fighting?" laments Jagger when "Sympathy for the Devil" is interrupted for the second time. Finally, during an out-of-tune rendition of the mean-spirited "Under My Thumb," the knifing occurs, right on camera.

The most daring aspect of "Gimme Shelter" is that the filmmakers record the band members' reaction to the documentary. Mick can only stare glassy-eyed as the murder plays out before him. What went wrong? It's impossible to say, but only 4 months after the triumph of Woodstock, the ugly side of rock 'n' roll took its turn. "Gimme Shelter" is an absorbing trip through hell. It's impossible to take your eyes off it, even if that's what you want to do.
