UI suspends fraternity

Sarah Lueck
The Daily Iowan

The Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity was placed on interim suspension Monday by the UI, pending an investigation into the death of pledge Matthew Garofalo.

Steve Parrott, acting associate director for University Relations, said the UI's action against the fraternity was necessary for obvious reasons.

"I think the basic consideration is we have a dead student here, and it only seems appropriate to suspend the chapter's activities," he said.

The UI's current investigation is looking into the role alcohol may have played in Garofalo's death, Parrott said.

"It's certainly something we considered. The investigation will prove whether alcohol was a factor," he said. "The suspension is the obvious step to take until the investigation is complete."

Ann Rhodes, vice president for University Relations, said the UI suspension came in response to the fraternity's suspension by the Lambda Chi Alpha international headquarters, based in Indianapolis, Ind.

"We had intended that whatever action was taken would be consistent with the (inter)national level," she said.

Matthew Getz, director of finance and insurance for the international headquarters of Lambda Chi Alpha, said there was enough information to warrant an investigation into whether the UI chapter had violated Lambda Chi Alpha alcohol policies.

Getz said the interim suspension will help Iowa City police do a thorough investigation.

"This is a normal procedure," he said. "It's easier (to investigate) when operations are suspended."

Getz said a representative from the international headquarters has been sent to Iowa City. The representative has done a preliminary investigation and will "help the chapter cope with the death."

While under suspension, the fraternity will not be able to hold new student activities, induct new members, hold social events, reserve space in UI facilities, participate in intramural sports or participate in the activities of the Interfraternity Council.

"hazing" incident.

"It just wouldn't be fair to prejudge them at this time," Parrott said.

Garofalo was found dead of pulmonary edema Friday at the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity house. There is speculation that alcohol was involved in the death. The autopsy information, including his blood alcohol content, will be available later in the week.

Old Capitol flag to honor Garofalo

The flag atop the Old Capitol will fly at half-staff today in honor of UI sophomore Matthew Garofalo, who died Friday.

Garofalo, an Elgin, Ill., native, was an associate member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Funeral services are scheduled for 10 a.m. today at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Elgin. The family has requested that memorial donations be made to the St. Edward High School scholarship fund.

NIU FRATERNITY BROTHER DIES

Illinois campus faces similar student death

Ann McGlynn
The Daily Iowan

As the UI continues its investigation into the death of a fraternity member who may have been the victim of excessive alcohol consumption, officials at Northern Illinois University are asking many of the same questions.

Members of the Sigma Chi fraternity at NIU attended the funeral Monday of a fraternity brother who may have been the victim of an alcohol-related death.

Michael G. Simkins, 19, of Wheaton, Ill., was killed early Friday when the vehicle he was riding in rolled into a culvert, said Melanie Magara, NIU director of public affairs. Simkins was thrown from the vehicle.

"It's very sad," said Magara.

Alcohol use is under investigation in Simkins' death — the driver of the vehicle, Joseph P. Stanislas, 21, of Warrenville, Ill., was charged at the scene with two

A number of fraternities on campuses across the nation have come under fire in recent years for a variety of infractions.

Where some of the Greek organizations have had problems:

University of Southern California In 1992, a student pledging Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity suffered a broken collarbone after fraternity members carried him upstairs after passing out. As a result, the student lost a ROTC scholarship and had to leave the university.

University of Arizona Tau Kappa Epsilon was expelled from the University Dec. 23, 1984 after an alcohol-related assault. The fraternity had previously been on suspension for hazing since spring of that year. In 1983, the University's chapter of Sigma Nu was expelled following the alleged firing of a rifle at a University of Arizona Medical Center building.

University of Kansas Two pledges of the fraternity Delta Chi said they were hospitalized, suffering from severe dehydration, Aug. 17. An investigation is still pending, but a source close to the fraternity said that the pledges were forced to do "military-like" exercises. Adam Mues was hospitalized for 16 days after kidney failure. Neither pledge says his hospitalization was a result of hazing.

University of Texas at Austin After being handcuffed, driven around Austin in a van and forced to consume about 18 ounces of rum, a student pledging Phi Kappa Psi fraternity was found dead in his residence hall room in 1986. Two fraternity members involved agreed to pay the parents of the pledge $224,000 in damages.

Purdue University 10 Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity members and two alumni of the fraternity are accused in court documents of "beating and intimidating" pledges Feb. 6 - Feb. 11. One pledge's shoulder was dislocated during a football game and popped back into place by a member causing the pledge "unbearable pain." Charges range from misdemeanor hazing to felony intimidation with a deadly weapon.

Indiana University Dennis Jay, a pledge at Alpha Tau Omega fraternity house, almost died after staying at "Dads' Night" activities only 1 1/2 hours on Jan. 29, 1992. The 135-pound student arrived at Bloomington Hospital with a blood alcohol content of 0.48. A level of 0.5 usually induces respiratory failure and death.

Rutgers University A pledge at a Lambda Chi Alpha function died of an alcohol overdose in an incident almost eight years ago, and a $400,000 wrongful death settlement was later awarded to the student's mother, James Callahan, along with 15 other fraternity brothers, were coerced into drinking "kamikazes" quickly. Five hours after passing out, Callahan was brought to a nearby hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Car bombing kills 5 in Maryland suburb

John Hendren

ESSEX, Md. — A bomb blew up a van in the parking lot of a suburban shopping mall Monday, killing five people and shaking homes for blocks.

The 6 p.m. explosion in the parking lot of the Middlesex Shopping Center blew the van's glove compartment a half-mile away, Officer J.L. Taylor said.

"Investigators found some explosive material around the car," said Baltimore County Police Capt. Brian Uppercue. "They know it wasn't a gas tank explosion."

Body parts were scattered around the area and a victim's head was severed, said Albert Kellner, who lives near the site.

All that remained of the van was its frame.

Kellner said the van had its "roof ripped off, doors blown off, bumpers blown off."

Uppercue said it appeared the bomb was in the van at the time it exploded and the van was stationary, about 20 yards from the entrance of a J.J. Newberry's department store.

Police initially reported four people killed. A fifth victim, a girl, was pronounced dead at a hospital, Uppercue said.

Skip Frock, who operates a nearby barbershop, said two children, a man and a woman were dead at

Nurse among plane crash victims

SHACKLEFORDS, Va. — Gina Arbogast had climbed aboard the plane ready to make her first formation jump with her skydiving friends. They, like her, lived to plunge thousands of feet toward the earth.

But something went terribly wrong Sunday shortly after the twin-engine Beechcraft made its way into the sky in a gathering dusk.

The plane banked, then dived into a house in a dense pine forest, killing all 11 people on board and a man who was sitting on his back porch, watching his son play.

Arbogast, a 28-year-old nurse from Virginia Beach, had recently completed training with the Peninsula Skydivers, a club based at the West Point Airport, where the plane took off. Everyone on board but the pilot was a club member.

"She loved the beach, and she loved skydiving," said Arbogast's mother, Cathy Arbogast of Charlottesville. "It was a passion."

The skydivers club had leased the plane since June, said club treasurer Carol Clay. The plane had no record of crashes or safety problems, according to Federal Aviation Administration records.

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board arrived Monday to pick through the charred wreckage along a country road about 40 miles east of Richmond.

At a news conference Monday evening, NTSB vice chairman Robert Francis said two pilot witnesses reported "some sound of the engine malfunctioning" as the

Suzanne Ziegler
Associated Press

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — Betty Crocker, the white-bread-and-mayonnaise symbol of middle America, is getting a multi-ethnic makeover.

General Mills Inc. said Monday it will select photos of 75 women — to celebrate the Betty Crocker company's 75th birthday — and digitally "morph" them into a new Betty.

Chances are, she won't be the fair-skinned, blue-eyed homemaker whose image has appeared off and on over the years on cookbooks, cake and brownie mixes and Hamburger Helper.

"I guess they want to put some life under her tail," said Lehman Brothers analyst Caroline Levy. "I think it's a great idea to revitalize the brand."

The new face, to be unveiled in February, will be the eighth Betty Crocker since the fictional character was created in 1921.

Small changes were made over the years — she smiles in the 1955 portrait and wears a pearl choker in '65 — but she always remains prim and proper. The latest incarnation, created in 1986, wears a red business suit and bow tie.

University of Minnesota marketing Professor Akshay Rao said the idea reflects the increasing percentage of minorities in the nation.

"The face of the nation is going to be very different than it was 20 years ago," he said. "If they can identify with the person on the brand better because it looks like them, this is a wise thing to do."

Quaker Oats Co. has given periodic makeovers to Aunt Jemima, who has slimmed down and become more sophisticated-looking over the years.

General Mills is asking Betty wannabes to send in their photos along with an essay on how they embody the company ideal of family and community spirit, creativity and interest in cooking. Winners will be chosen on the basis of the best essays.

What if an aspiring Betty happens to have a nose ring, cheek tattoo or lime-green mohawk?

"I have no idea what the judges will do, but I don't think there will be a significant number of fringe winners that will affect Betty looking mainstream," General Mills spokesman Barry Wegener said.

And what about a male version of Betty? Such applications will be read, but "we are looking for women," project manager Cindy Guettler said.

Magic Johnson

speaks on preventing AIDS for Philippines tour

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Magic Johnson will get $400,000 from a Philippine company for an AIDS-prevention speaking tour.

The former basketball star will preach the message that "anybody could get HIV," said Anthony Roda, a spokesman for the government's health department.

Johnson will visit Manila and Cebu City Oct. 26-28, Roda said Monday. Roda wouldn't identify the company paying Johnson.

The former Los Angeles Laker retired in 1991 after learning he has the AIDS virus.

The government estimates 65,000 Filipinos are infected.

S.C. governor still unsure about Hootie

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina's "Hootie who?" governor hasn't decided whether Hootie & the Blowfish should receive the state's top honor.

A legislator is pushing Gov. David Beasley to give the homegrown rock band Order of the Palmetto awards in time for their concert Wednesday in Columbia. Beasley said he probably won't make up his mind by then.

"We do Order of the Palmettos on our own time schedule and in our own time frame," Beasley said Monday.

Earlier this year — before Democratic Sen. Darrell Jackson made his award request to the Republican governor — the band's lead singer, Darius Rucker, criticized the flying of the Confederate flag atop the Statehouse.

Beasley responded to the criticism by asking, "Hootie who?"

thinks hefty is sexy

NEW YORK (AP) — Wearing some excess weight, not silky lingerie, made Andie MacDowell feel sexy — really sexy — after each of her three pregnancies.

Playing a pregnant mother and expecting her third child while filming the movie "Unstrung Heroes," MacDowell said she wished she could have kept her extra 20 pounds on longer.

"When I was round, after having each of my babies, I thought I looked really beautiful and felt very sexy. Extremely sexy," the 37-year-old actress told Redbook magazine in the October issue.

"I had dimply legs — it's not the type of beauty Americans are used to," said the co-star of "Four Weddings and a Funeral."

The 5-foot-8-inch MacDowell, who usually weighs about 130 pounds, thought she had a "softness" like "that seen in old paintings" and felt "sexy in bed making love with my husband."

'Showgirls' star declines Playboy offer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The movie "Showgirls" is all the exposure Elizabeth Berkley needs.

The actress, who plays a stripper in the NC-17 movie, said she turned down an offer to pose nude for Playboy.

"I felt with the movie out, this wasn't the right time because you can pay $7.50 and see enough of me in the movie," Berkley told the syndicated TV show "Extra" in an interview for broadcast today.

That doesn't mean she'll never pose for Playboy. "I never say never," she said.

Field House courts reserved for women

Christie Midthun

The Daily Iowan

The days of the Field House basketball courts being dominated by men may be numbered due to a new policy approved earlier this summer by the UI Division of Recreational Services Committee.

Last January, five women filed an official complaint, charging they were treated unfairly by some male basketball players in the South Gym. The new policy is part of Title IX requirements for gender equity. It also gives women equal access to the Fitness Loft's weight room.

The policy allows up to three of the six courts in the South Gym to be reserved for women, depending on the number of women players present.

A similar policy will establish a women's priority court for volleyball in the North Gym of the Field House.

Signs detailing the policy are posted in the South Gym and on the Main Deck.

The purpose of the women's priority courts initiative is to ensure opportunities for women to participate in recreational basketball and volleyball, Tracy Stuetelberg, a UI junior and chairwoman of the 11-member Recreational Services Committee, said in a press release.

Offering women facilities to play will lead to more women becoming involved at the Field House.

"It's (a policy) giving women more opportunities and more choices to go into the facility to participate," said Pamela White, a Sports, Health, Leisure and Physical Studies Teaching Assistant.

The policy wasn't designed to discriminate against men, White said. In fact, she said she hopes it will promote coed play.

"The policy doesn't discriminate; we're not male-bashers," White said. "We're opening up space for women and other recreational guys who don't get a chance to participate."

The Recreational Services' new policy is modeled after similar poli-

Basketball and volleyball courts aren't the only areas of the Field House that are being affected by the new equity policy. The UI Division of Recreational Services is also trying to make more students feel comfortable in the weight room.

The division is implementing a new program of orientation sessions for people interested in learning more about weightlifting facilities at the Field House.

Orientation sessions are being offered free for the Fitness Loft and weight room pass-holders. The sessions will include proper lifting techniques, safety and an overview of lifts for all the major muscle groups.

Pat Kutcher, associate director of Recreational Services, said the orientation is intended to make students feel comfortable and safe in the weight room.

"It will help alleviate fears that individuals might have," Kutcher said. "Some people are afraid of making fools of themselves and some are afraid of hurting themselves, but this should make them feel less intimidated in the weight room."

In recent years, there has been an increase in the number of women who purchase weight-room passes, but not in the number of women who actually come and lift, Kutcher said.

"Hopefully, the orientation will help them realize that the atmosphere is not a competitive body building facility, but one anyone can use," he said.

There is room for a maximum of 20 participants for each session. Those who wish to participate may sign up in the Fitness Loft at the UI Field House.

Women's Priority Courts

A new policy at the Field House will give women more of a chance to use basketball courts. The policy says:

■ If eight to 19 women are present, one court will be designated as a women's court.

■ If 20 to 35 women are present, two courts will be designated as women's courts.

■ If more than 35 women are present, three courts will be designated as women's courts.

■ Women's priority courts will be provided within 10 minutes of a request or at the end of the game in progress.

■ The new policy does not prohibit women from participating in coed games.

Some players, however, didn't see a large demand for more playing space for women.

"The rule is usually first come, first serve," UI graduate student Daryl Scott said. "But it's probably true (women) would play more if they got the chance."

Dave Leslie, coordinator for teacher education and physical education, said he hasn't seen many women vying for court space at the Field House.

"What I've seen in the past is that for every female interested, 10 or 12 guys are interested," Leslie said. "But if people have the impression there isn't going to be a court for them, I can see they wouldn't bother going."

Students shouldn't have to give up recreational sports when they enter college, White said.

"Women make up 51 percent of the population at UI," White said. "And only a very small part of that group are involved in female athletics. We aren't professional athletes here, we just want to play and have fun."

cies at other Big Ten universities, including Illinois, Indiana and Michigan State. But the UI's policy is more specific, Ray Beemer, assistant director of the Division of Recreational Services, said.

"Our policy is more comprehensive," Beemer said. "The others just have certain times of the day; ours is a priority court all the time."

Under the new basketball court policy, the supervisor on duty in the South Gym has the authority to designate up to three courts for women's use.

Women's priority courts will be provided within 10 minutes of a request or at the end of the game in progress, whichever occurs first. Courts 1, 3 and 5 will normally be designated for women's play. If those courts aren't in service, up to half the space available will be allocated for women's use, depending on demand.

The male players have been fairly receptive to relinquishing court space to women players, Beemer said.

White said she was impressed by the maturity of one player.

"There were some guys playing on a court that women were waiting for and when they were done, some of the guys wanted to start another game, but one guy said for them to read the sign (stating the policy)," White said.

"He took his ball and the rest followed him out; we didn't have to say anything,"

White said she's confident that once students see the rules posted, they will obey them.

"I can enjoy life again

thanks to St. Luke's Chemical Dependency Services.

I started just having a drink or two before bed to help me sleep. Then, before I knew it, I was spending most of my day with a drink close by. I'd hide it from my family and friends. I'd lie about it to myself.

But my substance abuse was creating problems with my health, my finances and my relationships. I had been so close to my granddaughter, but had become withdrawn and disinterested. I knew I was missing out on a lot. But I couldn't bear the thought of spending weeks in a substance abuse rehabilitation center, away from my home and my family.

That's when I found St. Luke's Chemical Dependency Services. Their intensive outpatient-based treatment program enabled me to get the help and support I needed without having to leave my home and loved ones.

Their comprehensive assessments, treatment programs, family education classes and relapse prevention programs provided me and my family with the support we needed to get through this very difficult time.

Now, I see my granddaughter everyday, and enjoy every moment. "

UI presidential search committee takes interview break

Ann McGlynn
The Daily Iowan

The UI presidential search will slow down this week, with no on-campus interviews scheduled.

Steve Collins, Presidential Search and Screen Advisory Committee president, said the fifth interview is scheduled for next week, the fourth week of on-campus interviews.

Collins would not speculate how many more weeks the on-campus interviews would take, but initially the time frame was estimated at four weeks, with approximately six candidates being considered.

Four candidates have been identified and have participated in one-on-one interviews and public forums about undergraduate education, research, graduate and professional education and health sciences.

Karen Hitchcock, interim president of the State University of New York at Albany, spoke of her idea to change the reward structure for faculty to increase the quality of undergraduate education during her interviews Aug. 27 and 28.

Increasing the initiative to include undergraduates in research and attempting to remove the classroom materials policy are goals that David Skorton, UI vice president for research, would work for if chosen, he said in his interviews Aug. 29 and 30.

Mary Sue Coleman, provost and vice president for academic affairs at the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque, expressed concern about the increasing amount of time it takes students to graduate, and about plans for assisting students in graduating in four years when she visited the UI Aug. 31 and Sept. 1.

Increasing professors' time in class and implementing more support and evaluation for professors was the focus for University of Texas at Austin's Mark Yudof, who visited campus Sept. 7 and 8.

After all finalists are interviewed, four candidates will be advanced by the search committee to the Iowa state Board of Regents, who will select the president.

UI sophomore Jana Smith and junior David Groteluschen hang out in the apartment they share with roommate, junior Katie Smith. They set rules at the beginning of the semester.

'Three's Company' story is reality for roommates

Kristen Smith
The Daily Iowan

Jack, Janet, Chrissy and increasing numbers of UI students are all agreeing that three's company — and an easy way to lower the rent or fill a vacant room.

The sitcom of the late '70s is becoming the reality of the '90s, as many students are choosing to live coed. As more and more students flee the residence halls to seek other dwellings, they are turning to friends of both sexes

There are usually very few problems living with the opposite sex, if he or she is the right person, and if rules are set ahead of time, students said.

Smith, Groteluschen and their third roommate, UI junior Katie Smith, made a rule at the beginning of the semester that nothing physical could go on between them.

"Right away, that totally takes tension away and makes it really easy," said Jana Smith.

Most coed roommates also credit some of their success having siblings of the opposite sex, and many say it is just like living with a sibling.

"It is just like living with a sister," said UI junior Jason Beerends, who lives with his cousin, UI senior Carrie Mowen. Beerends said it may be easier because they are related.

"He's a roommate and he is a friend," Mowen said.

UI junior Emily Bodensteiner and her two female roommates had an empty room to fill when they heard that UI student Christoff Novak was looking for a place to live. Before moving in, the roommates decided to get together to learn more about each other.

"He cooked us dinner and brought us all beer," Bodensteiner said. "Right away they knew it would work out."

While most coed roommates have no problem getting along, they are sometimes irritated by little things.

"Christoff leaves the lid up sometimes, but I've never fallen in yet," said Bodensteiner, who shares the bathroom with Novak and her two other roommates. "He also sings dirty songs in the shower."

When it comes to dealing with the opposite sex, coed roommates said they have an extra advantage. Bodensteiner and her female roommates got a firsthand look at how men really act when they are trying to pick up a woman.

"Christoff got some girl's phone number and he came home and was going to ask her out for ice cream," Bodensteiner said.

"He called her and she blew him off with a really lame excuse. His mood really changed after that."

"Christoff (Novak) leaves the lid up sometimes, but I've never fallen in yet. He also sings dirty songs in the shower."

UI junior Emily Bodensteiner, on her male roommate with whom she shares a bathroom to live with.

Last summer, UI senior Brad Remsburg was stuck with a lease for a three-bedroom apartment — with no roommates. So he did the obvious — asked around. A female friend nabbed his offer and she and two other women moved in.

"It was a nice change," Remsburg said, "just to have a different type of conversation running through the apartment."

UI sophomore Jana Smith and UI junior David Groteluschen agree.

"It is pretty fun to have a coed roommate. It's different," Groteluschen said. "I almost talk to them more than I did my friend last year I lived with. You get a different perspective. I suggest every college student should do it. It's fun. It's a good experience."

Students said there are many advantages to living with the opposite sex.

If Groteluschen has questions about cooking, which he said happens frequently, he can ask his roommates. Some women also said having a male presence heightens their sense of security.

"I feel a lot safer," Smith said.

140 groups organize latest anti-nuclear protests in Paris

PARIS (AP) — Thousands of people, chanting to the strains of accordion music, marched through Paris Monday to protest France's resumption of nuclear test blasts in the South Pacific.

Several hundred protesters also demonstrated in Orleans, in central France, and in Reims, in the east.

The protests were small by French standards, involving far fewer people than the typical union, student or other anti-government demonstration. But they were still one of the largest shows of opposition yet in France to nuclear testing.

Psychics gather with Bulgarians to greet aliens

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Talk about foreign aid!

Lured by three self-styled mediums, about 1,500 people gathered at an airfield in northern Bulgaria Monday, awaiting the arrival of eight spaceships piloted by extraterrestrials, police Maj. Stoyan Marinov said.

Among other things, state TV reported, the mediums promised the aliens would help this poor Balkan country pay its $12.9 billion foreign debt.

The crowd gathered in Shtrakevo, 200 miles northeast of the capital, Sofia, after three local women — Radka Trifonova, Zdravka Krumova and Ekaterina Nikiforova — declared spaceships from distant galaxies would land at 11 a.m.

The mediums, wearing identical dresses they had sewn for the occasion, waited along with the crowd.

Nothing came. Bulgaria's BTA news agency said 30 minutes after the scheduled arrival, the three women told the crowd warplanes flying in the region were scaring off the aliens.

After an hour had passed, they said the aliens weren't coming because President Zhelyu Zhelev had declined to meet with them.

Like elsewhere in the former Soviet bloc, despair and uncertainty over the future has made Bulgaria fertile territory for would-be seers and psychics. Self-proclaimed mediums who claim to communicate with extraterrestrials or to treat diseases are widely popular.

Missiles jeopardize possible peace talks

Aida Cerkez
Associated Press

SARAJEVO — Cruise missiles badly damaged Bosnian Serb air defenses, NATO said Monday, vowing to keep up its attacks until the skies over Bosnia are safe for Western warplanes. The Serbs were defiant, warning that the attacks could endanger the peace process.

The 13 Tomahawk missiles fired from the USS Normandy late Sunday caused "severe damage" to Serb anti-aircraft systems, Group Capt. Trevor Murray said in Naples, Italy.

But he said the defenses were not entirely destroyed, and attacks would continue — possibly with more of the $1.3 million Tomahawks — until they are.

Murray said NATO had no indication that the missiles killed or wounded civilians, as the Serbs claimed.

With the Serbs reeling from NATO's bombs, the Bosnian government took advantage of their weakness to capture a strategic village and gain control of a route linking government holdings in northern and central Bosnia.

Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic said the attacks showed that NATO was working together with the government army, and warned that they threatened to derail a diplomatic breakthrough last week that set the stage for possible peace talks.

"It is clear that the most powerful military alliance on Earth is openly taking the side of our enemies," Karadzic wrote in a letter to Western leaders. "The entire peace process could be wrecked."

The cruise missiles, used in Bosnia for the first time, were fired at radar, anti-aircraft missile sites and communications stations near the northern Serb stronghold of Banja Luka.

Murray refused to say what the missiles hit. Although they damaged Serb facilities, he said, the air defenses were still working.

"If suitable, we may well use (Tomahawks) again, as we will use other types of weapons," Murray said.

Serb television in Banja Luka said Monday night that five of the Tomahawks hit radio relay stations in the Kozara mountains, 30 miles north of Banja Luka.

They caused massive damage, the report said without elaborating or saying where the other missiles hit. There was no footage of the damage.

In southern New Mexico, pilots of F-117A "stealth" fighters at Holloman Air Force Base were alerted they might be called in for NATO missions over Bosnia, officials said. The officials gave no time line for deployment of the $46 million black, bat-winged radar-evading airplanes.

COMPROMISE NOT BINDING

U.N. conferees agree on parental rights

Edith Lederer
Associated Press

BEIJING — Like worried parents everywhere, delegates to the U.N. women's conference struggled with questions about teen-agers and sex. Does access to contraception and sex education encourage promiscuity? Do parents' responsibilities outweigh teens' right to privacy?

In a carefully crafted compromise, they decided Monday night the needs of both must be taken into account.

The four-day debate pitted countries favoring total parental control against those that wanted no parental rights. But the final agreement drew not a single objection.

"It's a beautiful diplomatic balance," said Rachael Kyte, policy analyst with the New York-based International Women's Health Coalition. "Everyone was happy."

The agreement on parental responsibility, and on other hotly disputed issues including sexual freedom and abortion, brought predictions that the Fourth World Conference on Women will end Friday with an ambitious plan to achieve women's equality.

"I have every reason to be very optimistic," said conference Secretary-General Gertrude Mongella. "I am quite confident the conference is going to end very successfully."

Delegates from 189 states were still working night and day to reach agreement on other issues, including discrimination against lesbians, inheritance rights for girls and funding for programs emerging from the meeting.

When the conference started, 438 phrases — about 20 percent of the text — were in dispute. Late Monday, U.N. official John Mathieson said only 150 sections remained to be resolved by Wednesday night.

That is the deadline for completing the platform so it can be formally adopted by the conference on Thursday.

The conference is aiming for consensus, but the document is not legally binding. It is expected to serve only as a guide.

GOP-LEANING STUDENT GETS REJECTED

Clinton's Ill. round table zeroes in on direct-loan cuts

Tom Raum
Associated Press

CARBONDALE, Ill. — President Clinton led an administration-wide attack on proposed GOP education cuts Monday, accusing congressional Republicans of caving in to the bank lobby in voting to ditch his direct college loan program.

"It is true that (bankers) are worse off. They lost a lot of business" because of his 1993 legislation, Clinton told students at Southern Illinois University at a campus round-table discussion. "But the students are better off."

Republicans, in turn, accused the White House of stacking the audience to silence opposing views, excluding one student leader because he showed GOP leanings.

Law student William Karrow, 24, president of the Southern Illinois University graduate student council, contended he was bounced from the panel after telling a White House aide he was skeptical about the Clinton loan program.

The White House acknowledged it had screened students on the 12-member panel for their political views.

The student in question "didn't cut the mustard," said White House spokesman Mike McCurry. But in light of the controversy, he added that it was probably a mistake to exclude him. "We should have just let him rant and rave," McCurry said.

Clinton's appearance at Southern Illinois University kicked off a four-day administration blitz around the country — by 47 officials including Vice President Al Gore and much of the Cabinet — to criticize proposed Republican cuts in education funds.

No need for bomb testing

A procession of ghosts, passing under a strange rainbow, on and on.
Fleeing the city, ants whose anthill has been destroyed, filling the streets, hands dangling in midair in front of them, moving at a snail's pace: a procession of living creatures who were once human beings.

The babies who sucked away that day at the breasts of dead mothers and survived are already six years old.

(Toge Sankichi, Hiroshima survivor)

Now the babies are 50 years old. Those who have not died, that is. Cancer rates for survivors of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombings are extraordinarily high.

Historian Paul Boyer described the bombings as "the Banquo's ghost" of World War II. We like to remember that war as "the good war," the war in which the line between good and evil were perfectly clear and we were good and they were evil.

But there's something about the way it ended that just doesn't sit

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

Nuclear weapons have no place in scientific experimentation or war.

right. No matter how hard we try, we can't get it to sit right.

"My God, what have we done?" Robert Lewis, co-pilot of the Enola Gay, said just seconds after the bomb exploded.

"I am become death, the shatterer of worlds," comes from Robert Oppenheimer, one of the scientists who developed the bomb. And from Kenneth Bainbridge, another scientist: "Now we're all sons of bitches."

Recently, the French decided to rejoin the club. Ending a three year moratorium, the French government exploded a thermonuclear device beneath a South Pacific island situated near Tahiti and set off a storm of protests. The government claims it is merely testing nuclear physics.

That explanation must surely be nominated for some kind of prize. Nuclear testing — as the French government, as any government, should know — can never be simply a neutral "scientific" experiment. The "bomb" carries with it too much baggage. And it's not just the ghastly day-after effects in two Japanese cities. It's also the systematic poisoning of our milk with Strontium 90, the poisoning of our air and water, the poisoning of the very earth itself. Nor are the objections entirely rational. It's that "now we're all sons of bitches," and no amount of arguing about whether what was done was justified, necessary or not will ever change that.

The bomb is not a military weapon nor can it ever be. It is too big, too destructive. Its effects linger for too many years. The bomb is a weapon of psychological terror. Its mere existence is its only reason for being. It does not need more testing to make it more frightening than it already is.

Unless, of course, the French government has someone it wishes to frighten. But the government has kicked up yet another emotion. "We are very ashamed to be French," one protester was quoted as saying. "We are very ashamed."

Iowa City income should foot school bill and spare residents further tax increases

There are very few places in Iowa that are growing, and Iowa Cityans are fortunate to have the resources in the area that have caused the community to grow.

With growth comes the challenge of handling growth. Just like families need to plan ahead to be prepared for growth, so should the community. As a community grows, more income is generated. Iowa City and Coralville have seen several large businesses move here in the past 10 years such as Rockwell, General Mills, Wal-Mart and Menard's. Even our Target store is not much more than 10 years old. These businesses provide much-needed income to the city in the form of jobs and taxes to allow reimbursement for growth.

Another sign of our growth is the amount of land Iowa City and Coralville have annexed to the city limits in the past five years. Together they have annexed approximately 1,600 acres. This land, which was once agricultural and taxed at a lower rate, is now zoned mostly residential and taxed at a higher rate. This, along with new businesses, brings in more income to our cities to provide for the growth we see and will see in the future.

So the question is: Why does Iowa City need to pass another bond to pay for another new school when we already have added income from this growth?

GUEST EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

Revenue collected from city expansion should fund new elementary school.

The city has already reassessed many homes upward to bring in more money from property taxes. Many homes have been assessed upward two years in a row. Where are the extra revenues being used? Do our cities and school districts spend every dime they take in and not set aside any to provide for growth such as new schools? When I moved here, the school district was in the process of tearing down a school. Twelve years later, they need to build another school, even though a new school just opened last year.

The tax levies have gone up in the past 10 years by 16 percent. The values of the homes have also gone up to where now $25,600,000 is paid to the schools from our property taxes. This is a 79-percent increase from what the schools received in 1985. However, the school enrollment has only increased 19 percent for the same period. Where does all the money go?

If the Iowa City School District continues the trend of raising taxes as they have in the past 10 years, they will not need to worry about any more schools because young families will no longer be able to live here. The working poor will be forced to move to rural areas where they can afford to live. If Iowa City and Coralville want to continue to grow, they must learn to live within their means like the rest of us and use the added income from communal growth to provide for schools. Residents within the Iowa City school district should not continue to feed the greed for the school district by allowing our taxes to go up. The school district needs to learn to budget its income to allow for growth without taking it out on the taxpayers.

I am proud to be a part of a growing community, but let's show how we plan for our growth and not do the very thing that will cause our community to decline. We do need a new school, but not with more tax increases.

Nuclear — free or safety spree

Though Iowa City is a "Nuclear Weapon Free Zone," the dozens of fallout shelters in university and privately owned buildings are being preserved, in case of future emergencies.

Jim McGinley, Johnson County civil defense director, said whether tornadoes or a nuclear bomb threatens Iowa City, there is enough fallout shelter space in Iowa City to house the citizens of Johnson County four times over.

And the sort of special thing about the emergency space is some of the food that was originally stored underground is still there.

"Quite frankly, once in awhile I'll get a call from the university saying 'What should I do with this stuff I found,'" McGinley said. The crackers and canned food are destroyed immediately, he said, but the jelly candy is still edible. It's been stored in the sub-basements in wax-covered boxes for over 30 years.

CityVote secretly unites socialist radicals and courthouse gang

Citizens of Johnson County regularly complain about political infighting. The strife is especially fierce here because, as one often hears: "There are no Republicans in this county." While that may be spiritually true, it is statistically incorrect. The auditor's office records 15,050 registered Republicans.

Kim Painter appears Tuesdays on the Viewpoints Pages

Despite the existence of live, documented Republicans, to run as one in Johnson County is to become a greyhound with only three legs. You're lucky if you cross the finish line at all. Your only shot at winning comes if an opponent drops out or perishes.

Tossed into this contentious herd, the chief issue for any aspiring politician becomes distinguishing oneself from other Democrats. Some politicians tilt to the left. They are labeled socialist radicals by 15,050 people. Others veer right to sail more conservative waters with "the courthouse gang." They float, dog paddle and do other cute tricks to keep from drowning when people notice they aren't behaving like real Democrats.

These two factions fight about everything: zoning, meeting minutes, satellite polling places, even the franchise of students. Now, something called CityVote is bringing them together (shhh... don't tell them).

CityVote is a presidential straw poll cities may place on an election ballot, designed to strengthen urban input in national elections. The Iowa City City Council passed a resolution in favor of the city's participation in CityVote by a 6-1 margin.

CityVote makes sense given that national election issues are framed and debated in essentially rural states like Iowa and New Hampshire, a fact many Americans question with robust scorn.

Council support of CityVote was astounding for one reason. In the words of Johnson County Auditor Tom Slockett, the council is "illegally placing an opinion poll on the ballot."

In Slockett's corner stand the county attorney, as well as Iowa's attorney general and secretary of state. All say the 6-1 vote is illegal. Slockett's opposition to the resolution hasn't evaporated, as some local media indicate. He has simply taken time to examine weird allegations that the council vote was an act of civil disobedience.

You see, Slockett has a soft spot in his heart for civil disobedience. Lo in discussing its vote on the CityVote resolution, the council invoked that very tradition. Mayor Susan Horowitz and councilors implied an awareness of the resolution's illegality as they raised issues of free speech and home rule and equated the vote to an act of civil disobedience.

Comprehension of this deliberate defiance caused Slockett to temper his stance toward the vote. He told the media that threats from County Attorney J. Patrick White to block CityVote in court were premature. At the same time, he privately encouraged White to maintain vocal opposition to the resolution's illegality. He knew the county would share in any legal costs stemming from the council action and found connections to home rule and constitutional freedoms ludicrous.

"After the council rejected the advice of local and state legal and election officials," Slockett explains, "I saw my role changing from an advisory capacity as commissioner of elections to one of decision maker. ... I didn't think it a proper stance to wave off such a vote by the Mayor and councilors in an insensitive, unresponsive and cavalier way." Hence his hands-off posture at the moment, which has driven the courthouse gang wild.

Meanwhile, Johnson County's liberals are blasting CityVote as a Trojan horse whose hollow belly teams with cuckoo, right-wing Republicans. The swarm could smother local election issues in a media blitz.

With Slockett, the courthouse gang and the liberals are all upset about CityVote. With the City Council manning the ramparts of freedom, it seems our local political situation will continue to resemble a Fellini masterpiece. Once the lefties and the courthouse gang realize they agree about CityVote, we will have to import counseling staff from the coasts to care for all those in identity crisis. So, fasten your seat belts. It's going to be another bumpy election season in Johnson County.

Do you think Senator Packwood's resignation was warranted?

Liz Keech, UI sophomore majoring in political science

"Yes, I think his resignation was warranted. What he did was wrong, but I think he was an excellent senator. I have a personally autographed picture of him."

Keith Seier, UI senior majoring in engineering

"I think it was totally unjustified. Sen. Packwood was a pillar to the U.S. political system."

Dan Orenstein, UI junior majoring in political science

"I definitely think his resignation was warranted. I'm getting tired of public figures thinking they're above the law. They are like any other normal citizen and should be subject to charges just like the rest of us."

Laura Guthrie, UI junior majoring in athletic training

"I don't know much about the issue, but from what I do know, it was justified because Packwood was a sleaze."

Heinous Hollywood headline promotes domestic violence

The Daily Iowan ran a headline in the Aug. 31 Nation & World section which read: "Man arrested for Hollywood-like mutilation of wife."

The man arrested was an insurance executive in Boston named Richard Rosenthal. His wife, Laura Rosenthal, died when he allegedly split her upper body open and broke her ribcage in order to rip out her heart and lungs. Then he allegedly impaled her organs on a stake in the garden.

GUEST EDITORIAL
POINT OF VIEW

Domestic violence will continue to escalate as long as it is ignored or normalized by the media and popular culture.

The notion of national entertainment being equated with Laura Rosenthal's death is beyond disturbing.

Most readers were not witnesses to the killing of Laura Rosenthal, and neither was the person who thought up the headline. It is a safe assumption Laura Rosenthal was not thinking of Hollywood when her husband, the father of a 4-month-old infant, began to destroy her body.

Why is it that such an utterly heinous act like this is defined in terms of an American legacy? If it's the sheer horror of the crime which hypnotizes people, leading them to believe things like this don't really happen, a few words should open their eyes: Domestic murders occur in Iowa.

In November 1994, a 24-year-old woman from Davenport was the victim of savage mutilation. She and her 4-year-old son died after they were hacked to pieces.

The woman's husband was never tried for the killings due to his own suicide. He killed himself after being arrested and charged with their murders.

In August 1994, a 19-year-old UI student died when her boyfriend shot her in the head in Davenport. He then shot and killed himself. Statistics from the Iowa Crime Victim Assistance Division show 12 Iowa women were killed by their intimate partners in 1994 and nine in 1993. These murders occurred in Deborah, Des Moines, Ames, Davenport, Mason City, Fort Dodge, Scranton, Dundee and West Liberty. The ages of the victims ranged from 16 to 60 years old.

The DI's headline is one example of America's reluctance to respond to domestic violence in a serious manner. Instead, people would rather normalize it, associate it with fiction and thus avoid the human suffering of the victims and their families.

The person who wrote the headline was acting in accordance with the American popular culture, which believes if something is ignored, it will go away. The headline actually took this attitude one step further by throwing in the smoke and mirrors of Hollywood glamour to build a screen of desensitization.

Don't ignore domestic violence. It will only get closer.

Band members challenge true Hawk fans

To the Editor:

In response to your multiple articles about the "Hey song" and those who were quoted in them, it is now time for the band to speak. Let us start by saying we would like to play the "Hey song" as much as you want to hear it. We agree there is no song that can excite a crowd as it does. But we disagree with the quote that read, "When you take (the 'Hey song') away, you take away school spirit."

If you have as much spirit for Hawkeye football as you think you have, you would know the words to your school song and sing them with as much excitement and intensity as you sing the "Hey song." You can find these words on Page 3 of those nifty planners you buy at the bookstore. But if you are too lazy to look them up, here are the words to the "Iowa Fight Song" (from memory):

What's the word? FIGHT! FIGHT! FIGHT!

The word is Fight! Fight! Fight! for IOWA,

Let every loyal Iowan sing:

The word is Fight! Fight! Fight! for IOWA,

Until the walls and rafters ring.

GO HAWKS!

Come on and cheer, cheer, cheer for IOWA,

Come on and cheer until you hear the final gun.

The word is Fight! Fight! Fight! for IOWA,

Until the game is won!

Show the state of Iowa how much pride you really have in your university. GO HAWKS!

Coffee cart with a cause missed in story

To the Editor:

Thank you for your article, "The Joy of Java" (Aug. 31). Your survey of the Iowa City coffee establishments was informative, but unfortunately, it was incomplete.

The Canterbury Coffee Company is a mobile cart located outside Old Brick Church, near the corner of Clinton and Market streets. Open weekday mornings, 7-11 a.m., Canterbury Coffee offers the usual fare of espresso, latte, cappuccino, mocha and Americano, as well as Italian soda, tea and hot chocolate. Sleepy passersby can quickly grab a cup on the way to class. The average price for a drink is $1.25. Refills are full price.

Canterbury Coffee Company is unique because the proceeds support the Agape Cafe, Iowa City's breakfast café for the poor. The Agape Cafe, a mission of the Episcopal campus ministry at the UI, serves a free breakfast to 30 of Johnson County's poor and homeless every Wednesday morning in the auditorium of Old Brick.

Please add Canterbury Coffee Company to your list of Iowa City coffee joints. Our specialty is compassion — customers not only get a great cup of java, they help feed the poor.

ILLINOIS FRATERNITY DEATH

counts of felony driving under the influence, Magara said.

Stanislas, along with passengers Michael Neville, 21, of Morton Grove, Ill.; Christopher Mueller, 20, of McHenry, Ill.; and Robert Podgorny, 21, of Chicago, were all released from the hospital by Sunday night.

The accident occurred when the fraternity members were driving to the second half of an initiation ritual, which involves taking pledges to an open field, Magara said. The first half involves waking pledges up early in the morning to listen to speeches about the founders of the fraternity.

The field had to be prepared for the ritual, but was not ready yet, so the fraternity members in Stanislas' car drove around before the ritual began, Magara said.

Phone calls to the fraternity were unanswered.

The fraternity has been temporarily suspended and can only hold business meetings, not social events, Magara said. The chapter will be suspended until the investigation is complete.

Even though Stanislas was arrested for drunken driving on the scene, Mark Anderson, executive director for the national organization of Sigma Chi, said there is speculation Stanislas' blood alcohol content may have been below the legal limit for a DUI. Tests to confirm Stanislas' blood alcohol content at the time of the accident will not be available for a couple of weeks.

The fraternity had hosted membership recruitment throughout Friday, Anderson said, but an initiation ceremony or party was not held that night.

The accident was not a "direct effect" of activities at the fraternity, which Anderson said have been "less than stellar" in the past. The national organization is doing everything to support the members of the fraternity, as well as those involved in the accident.

Teachers fight back in court

Mark Chellgren
Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Through-out the 1993-94 school year, Andy Bray disrupted Fran Cook's Spanish class. She met with Bray's mother, she met with school administrators, she struggled to end his defiance.

The next year, he was gone — no longer in her class — but not forgotten.

Bray gave a note to his "disciples" in Cook's class, suggesting they be disruptive and "speak each day about different methods of murder."

When school officials in the Cincinnati suburb of Alexandria, Ky., gave the boy only a 40-minute detention, Cook went to court. She got a restraining order and filed a charge of terroristic threatening in juvenile court.

Eventually, she sued. Last month, the 18-year-old Bray was ordered to pay $8,700 for Cook's emotional distress and medical bills. The jury also slapped him with punitive damages of $25,000, declaring his conduct "clearly exceeded the bounds of common decency."

The Bray case is not unique. Around the country, teachers are heading to the courtroom to gain some discipline in the classroom.

The old way of handling troublemakers was to haul them outside for a paddling, keep them after school or suspend them. The new way is to haul them into court — to file a lawsuit or press criminal charges.

August Steinhilber, general counsel to the National School Boards Association, said it is a phenomenon he has noticed just in the last six months.

"I think part of it is using the courts the other way," said Steinhilber.

In the past, parents and students have been quick to go to court to block disciplinary actions, Steinhilber said. "It wouldn't surprise me to see a few more of these where the teacher is saying, 'Two can play this game.'"

Jerry Painter of the Washington Education Association said teachers use restraining orders or the threat of them as leverage against school districts and parents.

"I think what you're seeing is a real frustration from a rising level of violence," Painter said. "You're seeing teachers where they finally throw their hands up in the air and say, 'I've got to have control.'"

Painter said about a dozen teachers in his state asked him about restraining orders last year, and four or five were actually obtained.

Sometimes the threat of court action was enough to get a student to agree to alcohol or drug treatment, anger therapy or just "to stay out of their class and stay out of their face," Painter said.

Deborah Sanville did more than threaten action: She filed an assault charge against one of her students in Fairfax County, Va. He pleaded guilty in June to a reduced charge, accepted a 30-day suspended sentence, a $100 fine and enrolled in an anger-control program.

"I'm tired of not having any rights," said Sanville, who teaches at Hayfield Secondary School.

"Students have rights. Parents have rights. And yet an 18-year-old man can assault me in my workplace and where are my rights? That's a frightening situation."

"If this had happened in a mall and I pressed charges against this young man, everybody would say, 'well, of course,'" Sanville said.

"In the best of all worlds," said Steinhilber, teachers "shouldn't have to do this."

Yet they do, and Janet Bass, spokeswoman for the American Federation of Teachers, said it is because traditional methods of punishment and discipline have failed. The teachers' union is starting a nationwide campaign to advocate a code of conduct and academic standards for each school district.

Schools may have disciplinary codes, "but do they enforce?" Bass asked. "One child can ruin the education of all the other students in the classroom."

She said alternative classrooms, staffed by specially trained teachers, should be available for troubled and disruptive students.

Sanville said today's students are a different breed. "They have no fear. It's sad."

Meanwhile, she said, parents are losing control, school administrators fear community backlash and the teacher is left in the breach.

"Every year, it seems like we have less ways to deal with what goes on in the classroom," said Cook.

"At this point, the court is mindful first and foremost of the burdens placed on our jury," Superior Court Judge Lance Ito said of the panel, which has been sequestered since January.

"These are extraordinary issues," he said of the defense's concerns. In a rare but not unprecedented solution, he said he wouldn't force the defense to rest but ordered prosecutors to begin calling rebuttal witnesses.

Prosecutor Marcia Clark objected that this would put her at a disadvantage because the defense could return with witnesses while rebuttal is under way.

"It's time for the court to tell him it's over," Clark fumed, referring to defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. "This is another filibuster proposed by the defense."

The judge turned aside her protests. "Get the jury down here," he ordered.

The situation was further complicated by the disclosure that Cochran had met with the judge privately to inform him of "a critical witness" who might offer "startling" testimony helpful to Simpson. Cochran said information on the witness was still being developed and would not be complete until Wednesday.

"We cannot rest at this point," Cochran told the judge, saying defense attorneys decided to ask an appeals court to intervene on the Fuhrman matter.

The defense lost its new bid to put Fuhrman back on the witness stand in front of jurors after prosecutors argued the ex-detective had already been discredited and the defense was trying to "rub the jury's nose in it."

The decision to allow rebuttal before the defense concludes received high marks from legal analysts.

"It was a Solomon-like decision to keep things going," Loyola University law Professor Stanley Goldman said. "It was one of Ito's better rulings."

Goldman said changing the order of presentation is not unprecedented if time constraints are involved.

With Ito clearing the way, prosecutors went ahead with their plan to show jurors photographs and videotapes of Simpson wearing gloves in his role as a TV sports commentator. Prosecutors allege the leather gloves seen in the pictures are similar to those worn by the killer of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

Glove expert Richard Rubin was in the courtroom waiting to testify about similarities between the murder gloves and those Simpson wore on the football-field sidelines.

The glove presentation was the prosecution's final attempt to erase the impact of an earlier demonstration that failed with Simpson struggling to put on the evidence gloves.

Defense lawyers fought to keep out the pictures, saying prosecutors had them before they rested their case last July and should not have been allowed to hold them back for dramatic effect until the rebuttal case.

Ito said although prosecutors received some of the pictures before resting, they had no obligation to use them before they could be analyzed.

the scene.

Uppercue said it appeared all five victims had been in the van when it blew up, but police would release no additional details.

Authorities had no immediate motive for the explosion, in a residential suburb seven miles east of Baltimore.

"I don't have any indication that it was organized crime or a hit or something like that," Uppercue said.

The van was parked under a utility line, and the explosion knocked out power to some homes in the area.

"There was one big explosion and then several tiny ones," Frock said. "It was like fireworks and bullets."

Tom Cole, who was at his home four blocks away when the vehicle exploded, said, "It rattled the windows, that's for sure."

Police cordoned off a 300-yard area around the vehicle. The bomb squad and officials from the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were investigating.

PLANE CRASH

engine malfunctioning" as the plane took off. Those witnesses said the aircraft turned right after climbing to somewhere between 500 feet and 1,000 feet, then banked sharply and turned nose down, he said.

Francis said there was evidence in the badly damaged cockpit controls that the right engine had been turned off, but he said the engines needed closer inspection. Investigators have records of the plane's engine maintenance, but have not yet reviewed them.

Investigators hoped to wrap up their on-site investigation today, but a final report on the cause of the crash will take about six months.

Clay and other club members said the plane had made 18 flights carrying skydivers without a problem during the weekend — not an unusually high number when the weather is clear, members said.

Nick Christian, 31, was the pilot who club members said flew for most jumps.

"Nick was a good guy, and a good pilot," said club member Ed Bibb of Richmond. "If he couldn't save it, nobody could."

The Beechcraft Queen Air BE-65 made nearly a straight dive into the home of Vincent Harris, who had been sitting on his porch. None of the tall trees near the house had been clipped by the plane.

Harris' 8-year-old son, Vincent Jr., wasn't hurt. Harris' wife had just left to pick up their 15-year-old daughter, Velicia, when the plane came down.

"You could hear the engine cutting on and cutting off," said Harris' brother, Michael Harris, who was two houses away.

He tried helplessly to save his brother but said he was driven back by flames. He said the plane swerved from side to side before plunging to the ground.

Harris was a trucker who moonlighted as a Baptist preacher, said his pastor, the Rev. Keith Parham of First Baptist Church.

"That's pretty much what he was about," Parham said. "Everywhere he went, he was trying to introduce people to the Lord."

There was no black box recorder on the plane that might give clues to the cause of the crash; the device is not required on such planes.

The plane was owned by Stephan Rose and Rebecca Smith, both of Newport News. The plane, built in 1966, was "a reasonably old aircraft" but not unusually old, said Francis.

The skydiving club also used another plane of the same model. It sustained minor damage in a landing accident April 15, according to FAA records.

The last two fatal plane crashes involving skydivers occurred in 1992. All 12 people were killed when a twin-engine Beechcraft B-18 went down near Hinckley, Ill., Sept. 7, 1992. The NTSB blamed the crash on engine failure caused by poor maintenance and inspection.

Sixteen people died when a De Havilland Twin Otter DHC 6-200 carrying 22 people crashed during takeoff on April 22, 1992, at Perris Valley Airport 70 miles east of Los Angeles. Federal investigators blamed that crash on pilot error, dirty fuel and overloading.

Arbogast had been jumping for about a year and was going to jump simultaneously with the others to create a formation.

"This was to be her first time to jump in formation," her mother said. "She absolutely loved it."

Field hockey's DeMiro named player of the week

Big Ten Conference officials Monday named Iowa's Diane DeMiro player of the week.

The junior scored two goals during Iowa's 4-3 loss to No. 1 North Carolina Saturday. The next day DeMiro racked up three more goals in Iowa's 6-0 thrashing of LaSalle.

On the season, DeMiro has seven goals and two assists.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL Holtz sidelined for three to four weeks after surgery

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz will have spinal surgery Tuesday and will be sidelined at least three weeks.

Defensive coordinator Bob Davie will coach the No. 24 Irish while Holtz is out.

"We kind of just all sat there in disbelief," said offensive guard Ryan Leahy, describing a team meeting Monday in which Holtz broke the news to his players.

The operation will take place at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., where Holtz is expected to remain for about a week, said university physician Dr. James Moriarty. The 58-year-old coach could be out three to four weeks.

Holtz was told the condition required an immediate operation to avoid permanent spinal cord damage and possible paralysis.

BASEBALL

Gonzales, Lankford earn baseball's weekly honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Juan Gonzalez of the Texas Rangers was picked Monday as the American League player of the week and Ray Lankford of the St. Louis Cardinals was selected as the National League player.

Gonzalez was 11-for-26 last week (.423) with three homers and eight RBI.

Lankford was 13-for-21 (.619) with three homers, three doubles, a triple and eight RBI.

Reds refuse payment of suspended Gant's contract

CINCINNATI (AP) — Outfielder Ron Gant is miffed the Reds won't pay his salary while he serves a four-game suspension for his role in a brawl with Houston.

Gant dropped his appeal of the suspension Monday.

Gant, making $3.5 million in the final year of his contract, is unhappy that the club won't pay him the four days' salary. GM Jim Bowden said the no-pay policy is in effect for any suspended player.

NBA

Jordan confident with outcome of today's vote

NEW YORK (AP) — Will Michael Jordan's decertification effort carry the day or will his NBA colleagues back their union and a new labor deal? The answer will come Tuesday, when players' votes are counted.

But even that won't necessarily be the end of the NBA's tangled labor dispute. What happens next — and how longer the lockout continues — will be determined by who wins and by how much.

"We believe we've won," said Jeffrey Kessler, the lawyer representing Jordan, Patrick Ewing and other players pushing to disband the union.

"I think it will be a real revelation to people," said an equally confident Simon Gourdine, the union's executive director.

Bears come up short

Rick Cano

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Green Bay's offense carried the Packers in the first half. The defense came to the rescue in the second.

The Packers, behind a record-tying 99-yard touchdown pass from Brett Favre to Robert Brooks, jumped to a 24-7 halftime lead and then held on for a 27-24 victory over the Chicago Bears.

Chicago was on the Packers' 2-yard line, trailing 27-21 after a blocked punt and threatening to take the lead.

But the Packers held and forced a field goal with nine minutes to go.

The Packers moved to the Bears' 12, but botched a field goal attempt, giving Chicago one last chance.

But with two minutes left, Reggie White forced a fumble and Wayne Simmons recovered with 1:59 to play and Green Bay (1-1) had beaten its oldest rival again.

Green Bay, which won both games with the Bears last season by a combined 73-9 score, appeared on the way to another lopsided victory.

But a fourth-quarter interception by Donnell Woolford, who'd been burned on the 99-yarder, and a blocked punt by Anthony Marshall, giving the Bears the ball at the two, put Chicago in position to win.

After the Packers twice stopped Rashaan Salaam from the 2, Erik Kramer lofted a pass in the corner to Jeff Graham, who caught the ball out of bounds.

Kevin Butler's 20-yard field goal then made it 27-24 with just more than nine minutes remaining.

Favre was ready to put the game away. He hit Mark Chmura for a 20-yarder and connected on a 13-yarder to Edgar Bennett. Dorsey Levens then carried 21 yards to the Bears' 12. But Green Bay couldn't get in the end zone and this time a fumbled snap on a field goal attempt gave the Bears another chance.

But White sacked Kramer and forced a fumble and Simmons recovered at the Bears' 22 and the Packers ran out the clock, sending Chicago (1-1) to its eighth straight Monday night loss — five at home.

The Bears got close in the second half when Jim Flanigan, a defensive tackle whose father played linebacker for the Packers from 1967-70, caught a 2-yard touchdown pass from Kramer in the closing seconds of the third quarter to make it 27-14.

Favre, who was intercepted three times last week, threw his first of the night. Woolford stepped in front of Brooks and returned 15 yards to the Packers' 8. From there, Salaam rammed into the end zone to pull the Bears to 27-21 with 11:57 to go.

Chicago inches closer to wild card

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Kevin Foster threw a five-hitter over seven innings and also had a two-run double and a run-scoring single to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 12-1 victory over Los Angeles, ending the Dodgers' three-game winning streak.

Mark Grace hit three doubles, increasing his National League-leading total to 46, to help snap the Cubs' four-game losing streak.

Foster (10-10) lost a shutout when Delino DeShields hit his eighth home run leading off the seventh. The 26-year-old right-hander walked one and struck out four.

Ismael Valdes (11-11) gave up seven hits over 3½ innings, walking two and striking out four, in his fourth straight loss.

In the first, Grace doubled and scored on Sammy Sosa's single.

Luis Gonzalez walked to lead off the fourth, advanced on Scott Servais' single and scored when Rey Sanchez bounced a double over third baseman Tim Lincecum to make it 2-0. Foster, a .235 hitter entering the game, then singled, scoring Servais and Sanchez. One out later, Todd Haney greeted Pedro Astacio with a double, scoring Foster to put the Cubs up 5-0.

The Cubs sent 10 batters to the plate in a six-run sixth. Brian McRae doubled leading off, advanced on Haney's single and scored on Grace's third double to make it 6-0. Sosa was intentionally walked to load the bases, and Jose Hernandez cleared them with a triple off Jim Bruske. Hernandez then scored on Gonzalez's groundout to open a 10-0 lead. The Cubs loaded the bases in the seventh against Chan Ho Park and made it 12-1 when he was called for a balk.

Nebraska backfield drilled by controversy

Dave Zelio

Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb. — Nebraska's two top running backs, including Heisman Trophy contender Lawrence Phillips, were arrested over the weekend for allegedly assaulting women, leaving the defending national champions in turmoil.

Coach Tom Osborne kicked Phillips off the team Sunday night, but hinted Monday that the junior's college career might not be over.

"Obviously, we've lost a great player," Osborne said. "Lawrence was playing as well as any I-back we've had in a long time ... Unfortunately, he will not play for quite a while, if at all."

Osborne said the other arrested running back, junior Damon Benning, won't be suspended "unless the facts dictate otherwise." The coach wouldn't explain why Phillips was treated differently from Benning and receiver Riley Washington, who has remained on the team after being charged with attempted murder.

Asked if Phillips could return to the second-ranked Cornhuskers, Osborne said he didn't know.

"You never say never," he said.

Phillips

"But he's certainly got to get some things accomplished There's no time limit on his suspension. Obviously, if he did return, it would not be any time real soon."

Phillips rushed for 359 yards and seven touchdowns in Nebraska's first two games this season, easy victories over Oklahoma State and Michigan State. He was the nation's third-leading rusher last year with 1,722 yards.

Phillips' whereabouts were unknown Monday, and his lawyer, Hal Anderson, did not return telephone messages from The Associated Press.

Phillips' teammates voted Monday not to speak with reporters.

Nebraska plays its home opener Saturday against Arizona State. Despite the loss of Phillips, the Cornhuskers still have a strong group of running backs that include Benning, senior Clinton Childs, sophomore James Sims and freshman Ahman Green.

Benning, No. 2 on the depth chart behind Phillips, rushed for 62 yards against Oklahoma State but missed the Michigan State road game with a pulled hamstring. Sims and Green each had a long touchdown run against the Spartans.

For Pittman, the party is over

Wayne Drehs

The Daily Iowan

While most freshmen spent their first semesters shrinking laundry, contemplating if the Pentacrest is a bus route or a place and trying to find a place to buy a fake ID, sophomore Jared Pittman was sprinting his way toward Iowa's first Big Ten Conference freshman of the year award in cross country.

The 1994 Minnesota 3,200 meter state champion had an impressive freshman season, finishing higher than 20th in all regular season meets, and earning a 36th-place finish at the Big Ten meet with a time of 26:01.

"I had very high expectations for Jared last year," head coach Larry Wiczorek said. "I knew what he could accomplish once he dedicated himself to cross country year round."

Devoting himself to cross country year round was only one adjustment for Pittman, a former high school basketball player. He also had to acclimate himself to classes and living away from home, as well as all typical freshmen changes. On top of all these factors, Pittman also had to strive for success on the cross country field.

HAWKEYE FOOTBALL

Guy excels in new role of top receiver

Mike Triplett

The Daily Iowan

An offensive holding penalty kept Willie Guy from gaining more receiving yards Saturday against Northern Iowa than he gained throughout the entire 1994 season.

Guy isn't mad at offensive lineman Ian Davis for committing the crime that called back a 49-yard touchdown reception; that's not the point. The point is, UNI's defensive backfield wasn't able to stop Guy.

GAME NOTES

Being the marquee receiver is a new, but welcome role for Guy, who has struggled to get to the top despite being a highly touted recruit out of Memphis. One newspaper even named Guy the nation's No. 1 recruit during his senior year in high school.

In his first three seasons, Tennessee's Mr. Football caught just 17 passes for 294 yards. Saturday he caught a pair of Matt Sherman passes for 73.

"It feels good. I'm getting a lot more reps ... and I'm getting a lot more chances to make the big play," Guy said Saturday. "And if the ball comes my way, hopefully I can make the catch and make something happen."

Last season Guy caught seven passes for 108 yards and one touchdown. Guy came within striking distance of surpassing both statistics Saturday. He was tackled at the one-yard line after his first catch — a 38-yarder in the second quarter — and the men in stripes called back his second potential touchdown in the third quarter.

"That was pretty tough," Guy said of the called-back play. "I didn't know it was a penalty at first because I was on the ground and everybody was on me, my teammates were congratulating me and stuff."

"But Ian came up to me afterwards and said it was him."

Davis wasn't the only guilty Hawkeye Saturday. Iowa racked up 12 penalties for a combined 146 yards.

Sophomore Dwight earns respect

Whenever Iowa's offense needed a boost, it seemed like sophomore Tim Dwight was there.

Dwight scored a pair of touchdowns, including the Hawkeyes' first of the season. He ran for 88 yards and caught three passes for 38 more. And no one was more appreciative of Dwight's help than quarterback Matt Sherman.

"For us to have success, Tim has to play well and he knows that," Sherman said. "We're going to go into every game and look to Tim for big plays. And if he can perform, we'll play well."

"Tim will have to do well every game for us to reach our goals."

Sherman didn't just credit Dwight's on-field skills. Sherman seemed to be more impressed with the way Dwight handles himself off the field.

Ambient experience rolls into I.C.

Todd Norden
The Daily Iowan

DJ Obvious World, of Fairfield, Iowa, presented Aquavista, an ambient music experience that engaged the mind and interacted with the soul, at the Fairfield Best Western ballroom Friday night.

What exactly is ambient music? Well, it's Obvious. "Ambient music is all about how you're feeling," said Obvious World, known as Matthew Ahearn to the unhyp. "It's up to the individual to feel the music and feel a oneness in a sonic environment with minimal surroundings."

To achieve a minimalist surrounding, the ballroom was bare of chairs, tables, and almost light. The floor of the ballroom was furnished with large pieces of foam and whatever guests happened to bring along with them. Some audience members brought pillows and blankets. I brought a beanbag chair. DJ Obvious World also sat cross-legged on the floor, resting behind a Roland keyboard, tape decks, two speakers, and a turntable. Using few "instruments," Obvious World constructed sonic weaving with audience members who brought their own forms of percussion. One man in the audience lightly rapped a tom-tom as he kept time to electronic music layered with crashing ocean waves and unintelligible looped human voices.

For Obvious World, "the music relates to a general atmosphere around the audience and that, in turn, affects me. I am the audience as much as performer. The difference is what you take from it."

As I relaxed on my beanbag chair, I focused on the music and how the audience reacted. Familiar sounds — heartbeats and thunderstorms mingled with wailing clarinets, hissing hi-hats and Native American rhythms — caused some of the audience to sit, stare and sway while others spontaneously rose from the floor to dance peacefully by a lone strobe light. The music and sounds constantly progressed and through Obvious World's smooth transitions, audience interest was maintained. One memorable transition coupled the introductory organ notes of Led Zeppelin's "No Quarter" with ticktocks on wood blocks.

"I used to bob my head to jazz when I was really young. I'd say Stevie Wonder's Secret Life of Planets is pretty important to me." Obvious World also mentioned everything from The Beach Boys and the 70's power-chord anthems to Skinny Puppy and Enigma as important sources for musical mixing. "If you could take the best, trippiest parts from those influences and put them together, well, — God, that would be delicious!"

Obvious World has been mixing for 3 years. He performed at Gabe's four times under the name Be Happie and last fall provided the dance beats at the Union's techno night. He is planning to visit New York City this fall in hopes of recording his first CD.

"I'm going to New York to get it all done. I've spoken with Bill Laswell and Planet Generation about doing a project. If I do get the chance to make a recording, I plan to have worldwide distribution starting in Europe first. Europe has a lot of interesting music going on."

Obvious World will bring the ambient music experience to Iowa City Friday. He will perform at the Coffee Cellars, 13 S. Linn St., every Friday in September.

"I suggest you bring an open mind," said Obvious World. "There is always time for something new."

Be sure to bring your favorite beanbag, too.

Drag queen rip-off falls flat

Tasha Robinson
The Daily Iowan

In the recent Australian comedy "Priscilla: Queen of the Desert," three catty, vamping drag queens hop into an unreliable but stylish vehicle and take off on a massive cross-country road trip. Wielding their attitudes and kitschy wardrobes like weapons, they tear across the hinterlands, despite the rigors of small-town prejudices and mechanical breakdowns. They lose heart, they lose hope, but they never lose their sense of style, and eventually they even manage to learn a few things about themselves.

Take "Priscilla," distill most of the creativity and half of the humor, mix in a few clumsy stereotypes and stall the plot halfway through the film, and you get "To Wong Foo, Thanks For Everything, Julie Newmar." This trashy ripoff steals everything from "Priscilla" except the style and the standards.

"Wong Foo" stars Patrick Swayze ("Ghost") and Wesley Snipes ("Drop Zone") as "Vida Boheme" and "Noxeema Jackson," the co-winners of a New York City drag-queen beauty pageant. After RuPaul, in a quick cameo, pins on their tiaras, they're supposed to fly in glamorous splendor to Hollywood, where they'll compete in a national pageant. Instead, they sell their tickets (to the ubiquitous Robin Williams, also in a quick cameo) and rent a rusty Cadillac convertible, all the better to haul along young "drag princess" Chi Chi Rodriguez (John Leguizamo, star of Fox's short-lived "House of Bugs").

Unfortunately, the aging Cadillac breaks down somewhere short of Hollywood. Boheme is physically molested by a local sheriff (Chris Penn, "Reservoir Dogs") in a bizarre scene reminiscent both of "Bad Lieutenant" and "Deliverance" — if Ned Beatty had been dolled up in a darling little peach ensemble with matching pumps. The three finally wash up in a small town named Snydersville, where the hicks are as thick as the dust in the air.

The law is after them, the yokels don't like them, their hostess

"To Wong Foo" stars John Leguizamo, Wesley Snipes and Patrick Swayze dress it up for a night on the town.

(Stockard Channing, in the film's only meaningful role) is a battered wife. What's a good drag queen to do, except dress everyone up, throw a party and improve their sad little small-town lives?

Where "Priscilla" got by on biting wit, utterly campy lip-sync sequences, strong acting, complex roles and wildly far-fetched fashion choices, "Wong Foo" has only the occasional sardonic zinger and the threadbare premise that macho actors dressed as women are automatically funny. That didn't work in "Junior," and it doesn't work in this movie.

First-time screenwriter Douglas Carter Beane doesn't have a problem with taste — he certainly picked an excellent source movie when stealing his plot and characters. Talent is another matter altogether. Whether he's forcing cheap conflicts, serving up cheap jokes, leaning on cheap stereotypes or taking cheap shots, he's still serving up a distinctly cut-rate remake of a much better film. "To the screenwriter, thanks for nothing, the audience."

Omaha band's style comes full circle

Jonathan Hansen
The Daily Iowan

Mousetrap fans will definitely notice the difference between their third and most recent full-length release on Grass Records, The Dead Air Sound System, and previous albums and seven-inches. The difference is the loss of jazz-influenced drummer Scott Miller to his pursuit of world music, and the addition of hard-core drummer Duncan Black. This change takes the Omaha, Nebraska trio's music effects processors on the album to create sounds foreign to most rock bands. While some of Mousetrap's oldest fans may bemoan a gradual drifting away from some of their earlier pop sensibility, they maintain the energy with which the music has always been imbued and have achieved perhaps the best studio sound of any release to date.

Ironically, shortly after the recording of The Dead Air Sound System, Black left the band as well and has since been replaced by the more mellow Mike Hogan on drums. Perhaps this signals a return to the sound of the first seven-inches. Regardless, The Dead Air Sound System is worth hearing and Mousetrap's live show should not be missed.

in a decidedly more straightforward and in-your-face direction, though it still leaves most of the material on the album on the outer fringes of pop-punk today.

Lead singer and guitarist Pat Buchanan (no relation to the politician, though there is talk every four years of a "Pat Buchanan for President" campaign) continues to produce lyrics that are as beautifully crafted as they are disturbing and angry, and he performs them with a kind of frightening charisma that would make other gothic idols like Trent Reznor tremble. While still completely guitar-oriented, Buchanan and bassist Craig Crawford make use of a wide variety of

NORTHWESTERN CRACKS TOP 25

Barnett has mixed reactions to ranking

Associated Press

EVANSTON, Ill. — Northwestern's first two weeks of the season have produced one of the school's biggest victories and a national ranking for the first time in 24 years.

"The obvious thing to say is that will be important at the end of the year. Probably the downside to it is we got ranked by not playing," Wildcats coach Gary Barnett said Monday.

Northwestern beat Notre Dame 17-15 in the season opener and then had a week off. On Sunday they edged into the national rankings at No. 25.

"That doesn't mean much. ... I think we would rather get ranked by beating somebody as a result of what we did, rather than get ranked as a result of what somebody didn't do," Barnett said.

"So, I don't put a lot of credence in it. You want to creep in there sometime. Do I think we deserved it? I don't know yet. I don't know how good we are."

Northwestern goes back to work

"I know one thing, if those guys who ranked us saw our practice on Friday, we wouldn't be in the top 25."

Gary Barnett,
Northwestern head coach

Saturday, hosting Miami of Ohio in the first of three straight games at the Wildcats' Dyche Stadium.

"You make the biggest improvement from your first game to your second game, so I'm anxious to see how we handled it. I know one thing, if those guys who ranked us saw our practice on Friday, we wouldn't be in the top 25," Barnett said.

The Wildcats will be trying to win at home for the first time in a year and a half. All three of their wins last season came on the road, as did the victory over Notre Dame.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Five-run inning finishes
Red Sox

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Harold Baines homered in a five-run eighth inning, and the Baltimore Orioles extended the Boston Red Sox's losing streak to a season-high four games with a 10-7 comeback victory.

Mike Greenwell hit two homers and Jose Canseco and Mo Vaughn also homered for the Red Sox, who had taken a 7-5 lead in the top of the eighth.

Bret Barberie reached on an error and Curtis Goodwin hit an RBI double to get the Orioles within a run. Bobby Bonilla tied it with a single and Cal Ripken gave Baltimore the lead with a sacrifice fly before Baines hit a two-run homer off Stan Belinda.

Yankees 4, Indians 0

CLEVELAND — Jack McDowell pitched a four-hitter for his second shutout of the season, beating the Cleveland Indians for the third time in as many tries.

The Yankees have won five straight and 11 of 13, putting themselves squarely in contention for the AL wild-card spot. They started the night trailing wild-card leader Seattle by a half-game; the Mariners played host to Minnesota later.

The Indians, blanked for just the third time this year, saw their 14-game home winning streak end.

McDowell (14-10) struck out eight and walked four in his eighth complete game of the year. In his last eight starts, he is 6-2 with a 1.71 ERA, five complete games and two shutouts.

Tigers 3, Blue Jays 2, 10 innings
TORONTO — Travis Fryman led off the 10th inning with a homer to give the Detroit Tigers a victory over the Toronto Blue Jays, their third straight win after losing the opener of the four-game series.

Fryman hit a 2-2 pitch from Jimmy Rogers (2-4) into the first row of seats in left, making a winner of Mike Christopher (3-0).

Expos 5, Mets 0

MONTREAL — Pedro Martinez threw a four-hitter and the Montreal Expos averted a four-game sweep with a victory over the New York Mets.

Martinez (13-8) allowed two singles in the first inning and another in the fourth. He retired 11 straight before Joe Orsulak singled with one out in the eighth.

The right-hander struck out six and walked three for his second complete game and shutout of the season.

Pirates 7, Padres 5

PITTSBURGH — Al Martin had three hits and the Pittsburgh Pirates took advantage of Andy Ashby's wildness to beat the San Diego Padres, ending a five-game losing streak.

Ashby (9-10) lost his fourth consecutive decision as the Padres lost their fourth straight game and continue to fade in the wild-card race. Ashby gave up six runs, four earned, on five hits. He walked five, hit a batter and threw two wild pitches that allowed runs to score.

The Padres pounded Pirates starter Denny Neagle for nine hits in the first four innings and scored four runs. Tony Gwynn, who had been 1-for-16 against Neagle, hit an RBI double in the first. Ken Caminiti broke a 1-for-22 streak with a run-scoring single in the three-run first.

Cardinals 13, Giants 4

ST. LOUIS — Ray Lankford and Brian Jordan each homered and drove in three runs and the St. Louis Cardinals beat the San Francisco Giants.

The Giants entered the game 5½ games out of first place in the National League West and a wild-card spot. They had won nine of 12. The Cardinals have won four in a row.

Ozzie Smith turned a double play in the fourth, tying the career record for shortstops of 1,553 held by Luis Aparicio.

The Cardinals broke the game open with a season-high six runs in the second off Giants starter Jaime Brewer (4-3).

Jordan lead off with a first-pitch home run, his 19th, to tie the score 1-1.

John Mabry doubled and scored on a bloop single by David Bell. Danny Sheaffer singled to send Bell to second but Mark Petkovsek forced Bell at third on a fielder's choice.

After Bernard Gilkey walked to load the bases, Smith doubled in two runs. Smith and Gilkey scored on a single by Lankford, who extended his hitting streak to 12 games.

Reds 2, Marlins 1, 11 innings

CINCINNATI — Jerome Walton's single with two out in the bottom of the 11th inning lifted the Cincinnati Reds to a victory over the Florida Marlins.

Cincinnati won for only the fourth time in 12 games, snapping a four-game losing streak against the Marlins.

Rich Garces (0-2) gave up a one-out single to Hal Morris and a walk to Barry Larkin — the Marlins' 10th walk of the game — and then struck out Reggie Sanders before Walton singled to right.
