Eulogy touches Garofalos

Sarah Lueck
The Daily Iowan

Friends and family gathered Tuesday in Elgin, Ill., for the funeral of Matthew Garofalo, the UI student who died Friday at the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity house.

Mike Kanis, a friend and spokesperson for the Garofalo family, said the funeral service was more like a party than a sad occasion.

"In a way, it was difficult to be sad," Kanis said. "There was so much love, sharing and joy he brought people."

Garofalo's 15-year-old brother, Daniel Garofalo, gave the eulogy at the funeral service. Kanis said Daniel's speech rivaled Hollywood and affected the audience.

"He did better than any screenwriter could have done," Kanis said. "He had people laughing and crying."

Matt Moraca, a student at Elgin Community College who attended high school with Garofalo, said the ending of Daniel Garofalo's speech was especially poignant.

"(Daniel Garofalo) said the only reason to live is love and 'I love you, Matt.' There wasn't a dry eye in the place," Moraca said.

Moraca said the eulogy caused a visible change in Garofalo's family.

"Dan's speech helped the family a lot," Moraca said. "He said life must go on. They weren't crying as badly (afterward)."

Moraca recalled some of the things Daniel Garofalo said about his brother.

"He talked about how much his brother meant to him," Moraca said, "and how he'll never get to be his best man."

Kanis estimated 40 members of the UI's Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity attended the funeral. He said the fraternity members spoke with the Garofalo family and also sent flowers.

Monica and Ed Garofalo aren't blaming anyone for their son Matthew's death at the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity house, a spokesperson for the family said Tuesday.

Mike Kanis, a close friend of the Garofalos, said they haven't discussed taking legal action for their son's death on Friday.

"Nobody knows what the hell went on, and it really doesn't matter at this stage of the game," Kanis said. "In truth, Saturday morning Monica went to church and was mad as hell at God. Ed was really distraught. But they've gotten stronger as the days went by. The medical examiner is saying very little alcohol was involved. This is just an incredible, ridiculous tragedy."

Kanis said there's a possibility the family has talked among themselves about a lawsuit, but they've made no mention of liability to friends.

"I don't think the family is interested," he said. "We haven't talked about it. Maybe they did with Matt's brother. They had a son to bury. At this stage of the game, they're not angry."

The Iowa City Police Department is currently investigating Garofalo's death, and autopsy results, to be released this week, will show if excessive alcohol consumption was a factor in the 19-year-old's death. Due to the continuing police investigation, the national fraternity refrained from answering questions specifically regarding the UI chapter.

Expert: Bloody gloves are O.J.'s

Associated Press

Prosecution witness claims he is '100 percent sure'

LOS ANGELES — With a new jury problem arising, an expert gave the strongest testimony yet linking O.J. Simpson to two bloodstained gloves, saying Tuesday he's "100 percent certain" Simpson wore the same uniquely styled gloves in TV appearances.

Late in the day, Simpson's lawyers demanded that a juror be dismissed because the judge offered to look into her financial problems and possibly help her. The defense also suggested sequestration rules be eased so jurors can go home at night.

Richard Rubin, a former executive of Aris Isotoner, looked at photos and videos of Simpson working at NFL games and identified the gloves on Simpson's hands as Aris Lights, a model that is "quite rare."

Prosecutors recalled Rubin to the stand and produced the pictures to recover from the disastrous demonstration in which Simpson struggled to squeeze his hands into the evidence gloves.

Jurors were attentive but took few notes. After they were dismissed for the day, the defense pressed for changes in the panel.

Prosecutor Marcia Clark objected to lifting the sequestration, saying no modification is needed because the prosecution has pared back its rebuttal case and will rest Friday.

ESSEX, Md. — Betty Louise Clark had agreed to meet her estranged husband one last time: He said they'd take her three children shopping for school clothes and talk.

Police believe Mark Clark packed his car with dynamite and blew up his family and himself, shaking the neighborhood and sending debris and body parts raining down blocks away. The glove compartment was found half a mile from Monday's blast.

The Clarks; their 4-year-old daughter, Krysta Clark; and Betty Clark's other children, Malissa Ray, 11, and Ricardo Valdez, 6, all died.

Neighbors said Tuesday that Mark Clark, 32, had threatened to kill himself and his family Sunday and Monday.

"We all just thought he was blowing hot air," said Pamela Pierce, who lived upstairs from Betty Clark.

Betty Clark, 32, moved in with her sister in Essex earlier this year. She had a new boyfriend and was studying to be a medical secretary.

Neighbors saw Mark Clark talking to himself outside the building when he visited his estranged wife on Sunday. He also visited on Monday.

"When I asked what he was talking about, he said, 'You'll find out soon,'" said Mary Thomas, another upstairs neighbor.

"Sunday and yesterday he went out to the car a thousand times looking in the car, looking in the trunk. Last night, when we saw the wreck on the TV

JETS BOMB SERB TARGETS

Russians claim NATO attacks equal 'genocide'

SARAJEVO — NATO attacked a half-dozen Bosnian Serb military targets Tuesday, turning one ammunition dump into an inferno that threw flames into the sky. Russia charged the Serbs were facing "genocide" from the West.

A U.N. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said alliance jets targeted military installations around Sarajevo and in eastern Bosnia — ammunition dumps, storage sites, strategic bridges, and command and control posts. He would not elaborate.

Doors and windows rattled in Sarajevo around 2 a.m., as NATO jets bombed a Serb ammunition complex in Vogosca, on the northern edge of the capital.

The NATO operation aims to force Serbs to remove heavy weapons from around Sarajevo. So far Serbs have refused, fearing they would lose that land to government troops.

"There are still no indications of any withdrawal," said Lt. Col. Chris Vernon, a U.N. spokesman. "In consequence, the NATO-U.N. air-land operation is ongoing and will continue until our stated objectives are met."

Dating game to spice up downtown bar

Evelyn Lauer
The Daily Iowan

In an effort to keep your love life steamy or just provide some laughs at another couple's expense, a local bar will debut a new dating game one week from today.

Questions like "Which would you prefer: a good book, a fine wine or a six-pack?" "If I were cold-blooded, what would you do to keep me warm?" and "If your body were a type of fruit, what kind would it be and why?" will be asked by contestants in a new version of "The Dating Game" at The Field House bar, 111 E. College St., beginning next Wednesday at 10 p.m.

Field House Manager Jeff Grannan said the game is modeled after "The Dating Game" and "The Love Connection." Contestants will pick out a date through a question-and-answer process and return later to describe the actual dating experience.

"It's like 'The Dating Game' because bachelorettes and bachelors will ask questions, and the winners will get to go on a date," he said. "We even have the original props and music from the show. Then the contestants will come back the following week to share their experiences with us, like they do on "The Love Connection."

"I will definitely go see the game. It sounds like fun, but I doubt if I'll be a participant myself, because I wouldn't want to look like a dumb-ass."

The contestants will be able to write their own questions or choose from a list that The Field House has already written.

However, Grannan said there is one guideline the participants must follow if they choose to write their own questions.

"They can't use curse words," he said. "But they can be provocative if they want to be."

Grannan said the winners will enjoy a complimentary date paid for by The Field House, and there is no cost for the participants. Contestants must be at least 19 years old to play.

Grannan said The Field House is using the game as a means to encourage people to come into the bar.

"We thought it would be something new and amusing to do," he said. "Hopefully a lot of people will come in the bar to watch."

UI junior Brian Seitz said he thinks the game will be a big draw for students.

"People watch the shows on TV," he said. "They might as well participate in them."

Grannan said the initial contants will be chosen from a recruiting process that is currently underway. Interested participants will be asked to fill out a questionnaire, and then a random drawing will select the finalists.

"People have asked a lot of questions about the game," he said. "Hopefully they'll find it humorous and fun. I think they'll get a kick out of it."

UI sophomore Steve Dolan said he is already interested in the endeavor and will go to the bar and watch the game.

"I will definitely go see the game," he said. "It sounds like fun, but I doubt if I'll be a participant myself, because I wouldn't want to look like a dumb-ass."

Grannan said the game is on a six- to eight-week trial basis.

"We're going to try it out. If people like it, we'll keep doing it," he said. "The jury is still out there. If we promote it right in the interim stages, I think people will participate in it."

Pictures of Prince Charles in his skivvies anger royals

LONDON (AP) — The royal family is not amused by an Italian magazine's photos of Prince Charles putting on his boxers.

"There is no justification for intrusive photographs taken of the Prince of Wales whilst on holiday at the private home of friends in France," the news agency Press Association quoted an unidentified royal aide as saying.

The pictures, published in Eva magazine, were taken with a telephoto lens and consist of back and side views of the future king of England putting on white boxer shorts.

Singer Black files complaint after publicity about love child

PHOENIX (AP) — Clint Black wants the mother of his love child to keep quiet about the 5-year-old girl.

The country star said Monday in a court complaint that Renee Lynn Bain talked to The Globe and "A Current Affair" in violation of a 1991 agreement.

"She went to the rag media," said Robert Schwartz, Black's lawyer. "Every time she wants a little pocket change, she tries to rattle his cage."

Black, who is married to actress Lisa Hartman, has acknowledged paternity and agreed to pay child support and health insurance and set up a fund for the youngster's education, Schwartz said.

Black had his lawyers file the complaint because Bain is asking for more money — an "outlandish amount," Schwartz said. He wouldn't say how much.

Black seeks unspecified damages for breach of contract.

Judy Miller, Bain's attorney, was in a meeting Tuesday and not immediately available for comment.

Country star Judd conquers panic attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Naomi Judd is feeling goofy again after overcoming panic attacks.

"I learned that security is not in the doctor's report. Security comes from within," she told a Capitol Hill conference on advances in women's mental health.

Judd, who was diagnosed in 1990 with a potentially life-threatening liver disease, also suffered the racing heartbeat, chest pains and fear of losing control that characterize panic attacks.

The six-time Grammy winner said therapy helped her overcome the disorder and her chronic hepatitis is in remission, too.

Country-music legend Waylon Jennings is set to resume his concert schedule in October after a brief hospital stay, his spokesperson said Tuesday. Jennings had been suffering from disorientation and fatigue for several weeks, but no problems were found.

INXS front man admits to roughing up photographer

LONDON (AP) — INXS singer Michael Hutchence pleaded guilty Tuesday to punching a photographer outside a hotel where he had spent the night with Bob Geldof's estranged wife.

The rocker was fined $620 and ordered to pay $2,900 in court costs and other expenses.

Hutchence, 35, snapped because of media attention over his relationship with Paula Yates, said his lawyer, Jonathan Laidlaw.

Board seats snagged by Galer and Lynch

Sarah Lueck
The Daily Iowan

Marvin Lynch and Ernie Galer won the two available seats on the Iowa City Community School District School Board, and the bond referendum passed in Tuesday night's election.

Lynch won with 93 percent of the votes, and Galer won with 75 percent. The bond issue, which needed 60 percent of votes to pass, garnered 70 percent of the vote.

Bill Ray, the third candidate, received 30 percent of the vote. There were 55 write-ins.

Lynch decided to run for a permanent position after serving on the board for the past three months.

Barb Grohe, superintendent of Iowa City schools, said she is happy Lynch won.

"I'm pleased he's going to continue serving with us," she said.

Lynch was unavailable for comment Tuesday night.

Unlike Lynch, this will be Galer's first time serving on the school board. Galer said he expected to attend his first meeting with minimal preparation.

"I expect there will be a lot of reading material," he said.

Galer said he is ready to begin work on the school board.

"I'm looking forward to serving my term ... and contributing my share in the school district," he said.

Although Galer said he has no particular issues to raise now that he is elected, he said he has "the time and the ability" to do his part.

The passage of the bond referendum will supply the district with $4.5 million, which will be used to

Voter turnout was relatively high due to the combined election of candidates and the bond issue, Grohe said. The total number of people who voted in the election was 5,812, which is about 11 percent of registered voters in Iowa City.

STUDY MEASURES POTENTIAL TO SUCCEED

UI law school ranked No. 2 for women

Cassie Golden
The Daily Iowan

Harvard, Georgetown and the University of Chicago are traditionally known as the top law schools in the country. However, a recent study puts the UI College of Law ahead of them all when it comes to the potential for women to excel.

A study done for the September issue of Glamour magazine, by Linda Hirshman, a law professor and director of the Women's Legal Studies Institute, ranks the UI No. 2 in the nation for women's potential to succeed in law school.

"I used women's representation on the law review as the determining factor for my study, because it is a good measure of academic success. Law-review members are generally selected on the basis of grades and writing ability."

Linda Hirshman, a law professor and director of the Women's Legal Studies Institute

Hirshman re-ranked the U.S. News and World Report's top 20 law schools in the wake of a study done by Lani Guinier, at the University of Pennsylvania law school, which found men are three times more likely than women to be in the top 10 percent of their class. Dismayed by Guinier's findings, Hirshman decided to see if there were schools where women performed as well as their male counterparts.

"I found at Iowa that 43 percent of the second- and third-year classes were female, and 53 percent of editors and staffers on law review are women," Hirshman said. "This is exceptional and demonstrates that you can have a great law school that respects women and their accomplishments."

The Glamour study focuses on the diversity factor left out of the U.S. News and World Report study, which measured more tangible facets such as facilities and salaries of graduates.

Women have been admitted to the UI law school since it began in the 1860s.

A strong representation of female tenure-faculty members was also used as an indicator for women's potential at law schools. As of the beginning of the semester, the number of females on the faculty has jumped from 16 to 28 percent.

"Female law students tell me that it makes a difference to have a woman at the front of the classroom as a role model," Patricia Cain, a UI professor of law, said. "Women do better at the UI because it is a friendly, supportive environment, and many male faculty members are supportive of women."

Hirshman's study suggests some law schools have more opportunities for women to succeed than other schools.

She used percentages of females on the law review, a prestigious law journal produced by law schools, to determine the rankings.

"I used women's representation on the law review as the determining factor for my study, because it is a good measure of academic success," Hirshman said. "Law-review members are generally selected on the basis of grades and writing ability."

The law review is published at each law school in the study, and is used as the primary means of publishing scholarship in law, Hirshman said in a phone interview Tuesday. At the UI, the law review is edited by students and published five times a year.

Currently, 50 percent of the top editors are female, and three of the last four editors have been women, Cain said.

"Working on the law review is an integral part of law school, and a good measure of leadership and writing abilities," Barbara Schwartz, a UI law professor, said.

factor for working on the law review at the UI as it is at many schools, Schwartz said. Instead, there is an open process like Yale where students are chosen by their willingness to work hard, write well and commit to the journal, Cain said.

"I think, in part, women are successful at the UI because the artificial barriers, such as class-standing, were taken away years ago," Schwartz said. She said there is a theory that women sometimes feel alienated by the harsh competition class-standing creates.

"It's a good law school, because there isn't a lot of division between the sexes, and there is a strong representation of female professors on the faculty," Cynthia Estrella, a third-year law student and senior managing editor on the law review, said.

Although Cain said the survey will likely draw attention to the UI as a law school supporting gender equality, there were several factors left out of the report.

"It looks at one important factor, but it doesn't tell the whole story," Cain said.

"However, I hope that women across the country will look at Iowa and take notice of what a great law school we have."

STRATEGISTS TURN TOWARD NEW HAMPSHIRE PRIMARY

Wilson yanks presidential campaign out of Iowa

Jay Dee
The Daily Iowan

After a slow start to his Iowa campaign, California Gov. Pete Wilson announced Monday he will pull his presidential campaign out of Iowa in October.

The Wilson campaign announced it has chosen to focus on New Hampshire.

Jason Gross, co-director of Wilson's Iowa campaign, said Wilson's Des Moines office will remain open until Oct. 1. Gross said campaign jobs outside Iowa may be available for Wilson's eight Iowa staff members.

Gross said time was working against the Wilson campaign. Wilson entered the race later than many other GOP candidates and had to spend significant time in California dealing with the state budget.

"At this point in the ball game, with so many demands, you have to pick and choose," Gross said.

Wilson chose New Hampshire over Iowa because New Hampshire's primary directly determines who wins national convention delegates.

"The Iowa caucus is really just a straw poll," Gross said, noting delegates are not obligated to vote for any particular candidate.

Gross also said the influence of strongly conservative activists on the Iowa caucuses was hurting Wilson. The caucuses "turn out people who are on the fringe," he said. The August straw poll in Ames "did show that the fringe are the ones who are active."

Wilson and Pennsylvania Sen. Arlen Specter are the only two pro-choice candidates in the Republican field. Both were booed by anti-abortion activists at the Ames straw poll, he said.

Burt Day, Iowa director of Specter's campaign, said Wilson's decision to drop out of Iowa will help Specter.

"Obviously, there were similarities between the two campaigns," he said. "Specter's campaign is geared toward moderates, and people who were for Wilson could move over."

Lamar Alexander's campaign office also sees Wilson's decision as a boost to its chances. In a prepared statement, Alexander said, "Governor Wilson's decision to pull out of the Iowa Republican Caucus is in effect a decision to pull out of the presidential race."

Alexander said with Wilson out of the race, he is now the only serious candidate who is a Washington outsider — a benefit on caucus night.

Iowa Democratic Party communications director Ron Parker, however, doubted Wilson's decision to skip the caucuses will impact the GOP race.

"He only had 2 percent (of GOP support)," he said. "I don't think there's anything there for anybody to pick up."

Parker said Wilson's decision was probably due to a combination of poor strategy and a weak message.

Wilson's message of immigration reform and ending affirmative action "didn't exactly appeal to most Iowans," he said.

Wilson's campaign style did not work well in Iowa, either, said Parker.

LSD uncovered in search of UI student's room

A resident of Burge Residence Hall was charged Monday with possession of controlled substances and violating of the drug tax-stamp law after a search warrant produced 10 dosages of LSD from his room.

Alan J. Podkaski, 18, was charged with two serious misdemeanors for possession of controlled substances. He was also charged with a felony for failing to have a tax label on a taxable substance (drug tax-stamp law).

UI Department of Public Safety received prior information about the issue and obtained a search warrant to search for specific items that in this case were drugs, Charles Green, director of public safety, said.

The university will probably investigate the situation further, Steven Parrott, UI associate director for University Relations, said.

Coralville man who spray-painted car charged with domestic assault

The Coralville man accused last month of defacing his own car with racial slurs and pointing blame at vandals was arrested Tuesday morning and charged with striking his wife.

DeWayne Byrdson, 32, was charged with domestic assault causing injury after police were called to the couples' apartment around 11:30 p.m. Monday.

Coralville Police Chief Barry Bedford said Byrdson's wife, Grayson, said her husband had struck her repeatedly in the face.

According to court records, Grayson was struck on the right side of the face and experienced pain and discomfort.

Grayson declined to comment Tuesday evening.

Iowa law mandates an arrest provision when an assault takes place, Bedford said.

DeWayne Byrdson made his initial appearance in Johnson County District Court Tuesday morning. He was released after a preliminary hearing was scheduled for Sept. 28. If convicted, he could face a $1,000 fine.

While the case is pending, Byrdson cannot have any contact with his wife and is not allowed to leave Iowa.

Last month, Coralville Police charged Byrdson with making false reports to law-enforcement officers in July when his Mercedes was spray-painted with racial slurs. Byrdson said the car was painted by vandals.

Friends claim charges too mild in bicyclist's death

Friends of a man who died in June will gather today to protest charges they say are not severe enough.

Kevin Thomas Joyce, a former UI employee, was riding his bike on Herbert Hoover Highway June 14 when he was struck from behind by Kathy Curley of Clarence, Iowa. Joyce, who was wearing a helmet, was thrown from his bicycle at the intersection of Herbert Hoover Highway and Taft Avenue.

Curley has been charged with three simple misdemeanors: passing on the wrong side, failure to maintain control of a vehicle and failure to stop at a safe and sure distance.

However, Joyce's friends and fellow cyclists said the charges are not enough punishment to justify his death, Wendie Dockstader, an Iowa City resident, said.

"It could have been any one of us. I don't feel (the charges) are right," Dockstader said.

The protest is scheduled for 7:45 a.m. in front of the Johnson County Courthouse. Curley is making an appearance before the magistrate court at 8 a.m. today. If she pleads not guilty to the charges, a trial date will be set.

TOUR TO PROMOTE RE-RELEASED BOOK

Renowned feminist Steinem to visit UI

Ann McGlynn

The Daily Iowan

Gloria Steinem, feminist author and founder of Ms. magazine, will speak Sept. 27 at 8 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium.

"She's so thoughtful and sincere about what she has to say," said Jim Harris, owner of event sponsor Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St., said.

"She's such a tremendous listener."

The visit is a stop on Steinem's nationwide tour to publicize her re-released book, "Outrageous Acts and Everyday Rebellions," first published in 1983. Steinem's publicist, Robin Jones, said. The tour also includes speaking events not related to the book.

Florence Babb, director of the UI Department of Women's Studies, said Steinem has wide appeal, which started with Ms.

"It's a very good bridging publication between academic feminists and community feminists,"

"It's a very good bridging publication between academic feminists and community feminists."

Florence Babb, director of the UI Department of Women's Studies

Babb said.

Jones said she does not know exactly what the topic of Steinem's presentation will be. She said her book can be bought at the event from Prairie Lights and then autographed by Steinem.

The speech is free, and seating will be available for about 800 people, Harris said. For those who are not able to attend, radio stations WSUI and WOI will broadcast the speech.

The cancellation was caused by a neurological disorder, trigeminal neuralgia, that affected Steinem's speaking ability.

Her last UI visit was in 1993, when she spoke to approximately 1,000 people about her book, "Revolution from Within: A Book of Self-Esteem."

In addition to Steinem's visit, feminist Deborah Gordon will present "Impossible Desire: On Feminist Ethnographic Authority," Babb said.

The speech, sponsored by the women's studies department, will take place on Friday at 4 p.m. in room 304 of the English-Philosophy Building.

"It's the first in a series on gender and geo-critical borders," Babb said.

UI Democrats join ranks of national party affiliate

Jay Dee

The Daily Iowan

UI Democrats haven't been this excited for some time.

After seeing their party suffer huge losses in the November 1994 election, the UI University Democrats have regrouped and recharged.

Leaders say a new national affiliation and the possibility of student loan cuts by the Republican Congress may lead to a boost in membership.

The group meets tonight in the Ohio State Room of the Union at 6 p.m.

The UI chapter is now affiliated with the College Democrats of America. Charlotte Eby, communications director for the group, said the new affiliation will increase resources and opportunities for UI Democrats. The group will now have direct access to the Democratic National Committee and a wide array of internships, Eby said.

"Students will have access to jobs and internships, from local campaigns all the way to Clinton/Gore," she said.

Other members agree, noting a national affiliation will likely boost membership numbers.

"I think national affiliation can only help (increase) membership," said Allison Miller, membership director for the group. "People want to join groups that offer opportunities, and we start offering those Sunday."

Sunday, the group will take a chartered bus to Indianola, Iowa, for Sen. Tom Harkin's annual steak fry, featuring Vice President Al Gore.

"It's going to rock," Miller said. Some members also see the Republican Congress as a recruitment tool, and Miller said the possibility of student loan cuts have borrowers concerned.

3 new drop boxes update I.C. magazine recycling

Chad Graham
The Daily Iowan

Throwing away those old issues of Time, National Geographic or other slick-coated magazines will be a thing of the past now that City Carton has a new recycling program.

City Carton Co. Inc., 3 E. Benton St., will hold its last quarterly magazine drive this Saturday, because the company is installing three permanent magazine-recycling drop boxes located throughout the Iowa City area. The boxes are located at the City Carton Co.; the Texaco Mustang Mart, corner of Highway 965 and Holiday Road; and the Texaco Mustang Mart, Solon.

Kaye Eckhardt, vice president of administration for City Carton, said the process of setting up the recycling boxes was lengthy, but she believes it will be a strong program in the long run.

"I think that it will be widely used, as a lot of people are turning in old magazines," she said. "People thank us every time we have a magazine drive, and now they're thrilled about being able to do it on a daily basis."

Eckhardt said people should be educated as to what can be recycled and what can't.

"The magazine has to be slick-coated all the way through," she said. "Through our contact with the people at the magazine drives, we can educate them as to what they can do, and we have signs displayed all over."

Larry Nilmerer, a commercial truck driver for the City Carton Co., said Iowa City residents were responsible for the huge demand to recycle magazines.

"We used to only have a magazine drive every three months, but in the last months it has been growing bigger and bigger," he said. "We now have permanent boxes where people can drop off their magazines instead of waiting."

Iowa City City Manager Steve Atkins said it's tough to say whether the new program will take off.

"We have found that our experience with a curbside recycling program isn't as widely used by Iowa City residents, because people need to get into the habit of recycling," he said. "But, there is a market because newspaper prices are increasing."

Floyde Pelkey, Iowa City superintendent of solid waste, said the new program is useful for Iowa City and may help shoppers think twice about what products they buy.

"Recycling efforts are getting much better in Iowa City; 50,000 to 60,000 pounds of magazines are recycled here every three months," he said. "It could also make consumers buy the products that can be recycled easier."

Pelkey said Iowa City wouldn't offer curbside magazine pickup, because the new program will take care of that problem.

"Curbside pickup of magazines requires more trucks and someone to sort the materials," he said. "We don't have the people to sort the mingled material."

UI senior Vanessa Carney, a member of the UI Environmental Coalition, said UI students probably won't make the trip to the new drop boxes, but said magazine recycling is popular here.

"We have blue bins all over campus that seem to be relatively full whenever I see them, so I think students will keep using those," she said.

Ruby Ridge sniper takes the Fifth

Pete Yost
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An FBI sniper invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination Tuesday when asked by a senator about how he shot and killed the wife of white separatist Randy Weaver at Ruby Ridge.

Lawyers for FBI sniper Lon Horiuchi asked a Senate subcommittee to grant him limited immunity from prosecution in exchange for his testimony, but the panel rejected the request as it opened a second week of hearings into the tragedy on Ruby Ridge.

Granting immunity to Horiuchi could have scuttled any future criminal prosecution against him. Federal and state investigators are probing the events surrounding the 1992 shootout and 11-day standoff in northern Idaho that killed a deputy U.S. marshal, Weaver's 14-year-old son and Weaver's wife, Vicki.

In a session closed to the press and public, Specter asked Horiuchi about "the circumstances leading to the killing of Vicki Weaver on Aug. 22, 1992," the senator recounted later.

On the advice of his lawyers, Horiuchi responded by invoking the Fifth Amendment, said Specter.

After his release from prison, Weaver returned to Iowa, where both he and Vicki grew up. He and his three daughters now live in Grand Junction, Iowa.

Malcolm Forbes toys with entering presidential race

Rita Beamish
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With all signs pointing toward a GOP presidential bid, publisher Malcolm Forbes Jr. has set up campaign headquarters, hired a staff of political professionals and appears ready to spend as much as $25 million of his own money, advisers say.

All that is left is for Forbes to make the decision, and intimates believe he will make the leap.

Forbes, who succeeded his late father as president and Chief Executive Officer of Forbes Inc., already has a dozen or so employees helping run an exploratory campaign effort out of an office in Bedminster, N.J., not far from his home. Still under discussion is when and how Forbes might announce his decision. Political economist Jude Wanniski, one of Forbes' biggest supporters, believes only a lightning bolt could deter him at this point.

Forbes aides have been exploring TV markets and prices for a potential advertising run, said a political adviser who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Teen pot use skyrockets

Lauran Neergaard
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Marijuana use among teen-agers has nearly doubled since 1992, even as adults' use of all illegal drugs leveled off, the government announced Tuesday.

Some 12.2 million people used illegal drugs last year, up from 11.7 million in 1993 and 11.4 million in 1992, said the 1994 National Household Survey on Drug Abuse. The increases were not considered

"Marijuana is not cool. Marijuana use is illegal, it's dangerous, it's unhealthy and it's wrong."

Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala living in a fantasy land," said Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala, whose department conducted the survey.

Shalala used the data to attack House-passed budget cuts that would take $700 million away from federal drug-abuse programs.

The Senate is considering this week whether to let those cuts stand.

"We hope they remember that drug prevention is a national priority of the very same order as clean water, good roads and safe streets," Shalala said.

Marijuana accounts for 81 percent of the nation's drug use, and its rise among teens reflects a growing sense that marijuana is benign, said Lee Brown, President Clinton's drug policy coordinator. Only 42 percent of teen-agers considered marijuana a dangerous drug, down from 50 percent in 1992, the survey found.

"Marijuana is not cool," Shalala told students at a Washington high school Tuesday. "Marijuana use is illegal, it's dangerous, it's unhealthy and it's wrong."

To estimate the prevalence of the use of illegal drugs, alcohol and tobacco, HHS surveyed a nationally representative sample of 22,181 people last year. Drug use was defined as taking a drug sometime in the month before the survey. Among other findings:

- The proportion of teens who report being approached by someone selling drugs in the month before the survey increased to 18.9 percent last year, up from 14.4 percent in 1993.

- Some 10.6 million people under age 21 drank alcohol in the month before they were surveyed. Two million were heavy drinkers, defined as those who had at least five drinks on five separate occasions in that month.

- Among all Americans, 13 million were heavy drinkers.

- Four million teen-agers smoked cigarettes, steadily since 1992.

- Pregnant women cut back on drug abuse during their pregnancy, with 1.8 percent using an illegal drug compared with 6.7 percent of all women of childbearing age. However, 5.2 percent of all women with children used drugs, indicating women resume drug habits once their baby is born.

- Some 1.4 million people of all ages used cocaine and 500,000 used crack. Rates were highest among young adults, 1.2 percent, but just 0.3 percent of teens used cocaine.

- The survey couldn't say how many people use heroin every month, but estimated there are 2.1 million Americans who have used heroin at some point.

To back up the anti-marijuana message to young people, HHS and The Weekly Reader will distribute anti-marijuana educational materials to 5 million students next month.

Also, the government is sending videos to 16,000 school districts that can help parents discuss marijuana with their teens.

Abortion doctor given murder sentence over medical error

NEW YORK (AP) — A doctor who botched an abortion, causing a woman to bleed to death, was sentenced Tuesday to 25 years to life in prison for murder.

Dr. David Benjamin, 58, was found guilty Aug. 8 in an extraordinary instance of criminal charges filed over a medical mistake.

The conviction was the first of its kind in New York state, and authorities could cite only one other U.S. case in which a doctor was convicted of murder for botched work. Ordinarily, such cases are handled through malpractice suits or disciplinary hearings.

The jury rejected lesser charges of manslaughter or criminally negligent homicide before convicting Benjamin in the 1993 death of Guadalupe Negron. The 33-year-old mother of four bled to death from a 3-inch rip in her uterus.

Philippines high court grants Congress spot to Imelda Marcos

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Imelda Marcos, driven into exile nine years ago in the uprising that toppled her husband, won Supreme Court approval Tuesday to take her seat in Congress despite opposition from the government election commission.

The court, in an 8-5 vote, upheld Marcos' appeal of a commission ruling that she did not meet residency requirements for a seat in the House of Representatives representing the Leyte province.

Marcos won the seat by a landslide in the May 8 election. She was to take the oath of office Wednesday in her home province of Leyte, 350 miles southeast of Manila.

She won the race despite a 1993 graft conviction, in which she received a 17- to 24-year prison sentence.

War rape tops Beijing platform

Edith Lederer

Associated Press

BEIJING — Of all war's horrors, rape is especially ugly — and the U.N. women's conference is crying out against it. Conferees agreed Tuesday that combatants who rape women are war criminals and should be hunted down.

The call to governments to investigate and punish those responsible for rape in wartime was among measures adopted by a committee drafting a Platform for Action to achieve equality for women.

"Gross human rights violations and policies of ethnic cleansing in war-torn and occupied areas continue to be carried out," the newly approved paragraph said. "Civilian victims, mostly women and children, often outnumber casualties among combatants."

In the last hurdle before final approval of the platform, delegates from 189 countries adopted large sections of the document by consensus at a sometimes-heated meeting. The same countries will give final approval to the platform during a plenary session Friday that will end the 12-day Fourth World Conference on Women.

Portions of text approved by the drafting committee call for governments to shift funds from defense to economic development, alleviate the increasing poverty of women, and, along with companies, put more women in top positions.

Addressing the issue of the so-called "glass ceiling," it urged governments and the private sector to build "a critical mass of women leaders, executives and managers in strategic decision-making positions."

It also called for equal participation of women in peace negotiations.

Negotiators worked into the night trying to resolve remaining issues: equal inheritance rights for women, elimination of weapons of mass destruction, putting a monetary value on unpaid work such as keeping house and financial resources to implement the platform.

Also unresolved was language calling for an end to discrimination based on sexual preference.

Delegates did find a solution to a thorny human-rights description: they dropped the adjective "universal."

Associated Press

Bangladeshi delegate Shireen Huq hushes her baby, Bareesh Hasan, in the back row of a panel discussion at the Fourth World Conference on Women in Beijing Tuesday. The mother and child were attending the "Advance peace, promote conflict resolution and reduce the impact of armed or other conflicts on women" panel.

Irene Freudenschuss-Reichel, the Austrian head of the committee dealing with human rights, said this did not weaken the conference's human-rights commitment.

At previous U.N. women's conferences, there have been references to peace but always in the context of the Cold War. The Beijing platform is the first to seriously address the impact of armed conflict on women and suggest ways to advance peace.

"During times of armed conflict and the collapse of communities, the role of women is crucial," the newly approved text says. "They often work to preserve social order in the midst of armed and other conflicts."

Women have been raped by victors in war for centuries, but rape is in the draft platform because of recent attacks on women in former Yugoslavia.

The main working committee quickly approved a clause on parental rights that says a child's right to information and privacy should be taken into account along with the responsibilities, rights and duties of parents.

Conservative groups claim the wording denies parents control over their children.

After a briefing Tuesday by the U.N. delegation, seven American women silently raised a banner saying: "U.S. delegation ignores pro-family U.S. women." They were escorted out by U.N. guards.

The conference is aiming for consensus, but the document is not legally binding. It is expected to serve as a guide to governments.

Fourteen delegations, mainly from predominantly Roman Catholic or Islamic countries, indicated in the working committees they will lodge reservations on abortion, sexual freedom or both.

At Tuesday's meeting of the main drafting committee, the Vatican, Guatemala, Malta and Syria said they will object to some parts of the platform. The United States said in some cases it reserves the right to interpret the platform in its own way.

For example, U.S. Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Melinda Kimble said the United States will not abide by a conference request to set a target for additional aid for Third World countries.

"We believe that national governments, not international donors, must have primary responsibility for their country's development," she said.

RVAP

Sexual Assault Awareness Week Sept. 11 - 17

Rape and other forms of sexual abuse affect the lives of each of us, not only those of the immediate victims. This is the second part of the series of information that can help friends, family and loved ones communicate support to a survivor.

Do communicate these points to survivors:

I'm sorry that it happened. You may be the first person who says this to the survivor. Saying that you're sorry the assault happened to her or him reaffirms to the survivor your belief that the assault was not their fault.

Ask the survivor how they want to be treated, especially when doing anything that may violate their space, for example: Would you like me to come with you?

RVAP is currently taking applications for volunteers. Volunteer opportunities are available for women as advocates and peer educators and for men as peer educators. Apply now by calling 335-6001 or stop by the RVAP office at 17 W. Prentiss.

Charges mar prep-school teacher's image

Richard Lrant

ANDOVER, Mass. — The photos in the Phillips Academy yearbooks show him sitting at his desk or lecturing in a striped tie. He stands by a motorcycle in one, strums a guitar in another.

Over the years, the hair grows gray, the face lined, but the story is the same: Here is David Cobb, department head, respected colleague, admired mentor, shaper of character — teacher.

Now a new portrait of Cobb is emerging: a mug shot of a man arrested at his Gilford, N.H., summer home Aug.

"You'd hear a lot of students say you haven't experienced Andover until you've had Mr. Cobb for a teacher."

Bobby Moss, a senior who took Cobb's Shakespeare course last year who is the academy's director of alumni affairs. "It just doesn't make any sense."

The Teacher

It wasn't just his BMW motorcycle and cowboy boots, or that he sometimes dressed up like the characters in books his class was reading.

David Cobb knew how to teach. Students said he made so many handwritten comments on papers it sometimes seemed he spent more time on them than they had. His colleagues looked to him for inspiration, and the school made him head of the English department for a five-year term in 1990.

Andover students rearranged their schedules to take his courses. "You'd hear a lot of students say you haven't experienced Andover until you've had Mr. Cobb for a teacher," said Bobby Moss, a senior who took Cobb's Shakespeare course last year.

In a 1994 GQ magazine profile headlined "The Natty Professor," Cobb said he regarded teaching as theater.

"I don't mind being considered odd," he said. "I want my students to say to themselves, 'Here is a man with his own vision of excellence, peculiar as it may be, and he is consistent in trying to fulfill it in everything he does, even in the way he dresses.'"

When he wasn't dressed like Jay Gatsby or some other literary character, Cobb wore designer suits or black turtleneck sweaters.

He and his wife have a grown daughter, a Phillips Academy alumna.

The Allegations

Cobb is free on $100,000 bail pending a Sept. 22 hearing on attempted kidnapping charges. Cobb no longer lives at his Andover home and his lawyer, Erland McLetchie, won't comment beyond saying his client will plead not guilty.

New Hampshire authorities are not elaborating on the case, but court documents filed to support a search of Cobb's Andover home offer some clues.

Farmington, N.H., police got the case Aug. 21 when a boy and a girl, both 14, told their stepmother they had been approached by a man who told them he worked at a camp for retarded children.

The children told police the man, wearing a "Camp KYO" T-shirt, offered them money to help at the camp. The two children refused. The camp doesn't exist.

Police said Cobb, who matched the children's description down to the T-shirt, was stopped by police the next day as he walked downtown with a 12-year-old boy.

Cobb was charged with three counts of attempted kidnapping.

Cobb was released, but police later searched the knapsack he had been carrying. They said it contained 512 pictures, almost all of naked people, including children.

Police said Cobb told them they were "fantasy photos" he had gleaned from magazines and books.

Also in the pack were a Polaroid camera, a Halloween mask that "can be described as a pumpkin head" and pictures of a naked man with a pumpkin head, police said.

A handwritten list — a "PAY SCALE for HELPING PUMPKIN," it says at the top — sets prices for "lotioning," $1 a minute; "assisting in urination," $5; "modeling" and other tasks.

Later, police spoke with a Rochester, N.H., woman who said her 14-year-old son told her he had been paid to rub lotion on "the pumpkin man" five days before. No charges have been filed in that incident.

The School

The allegations hit hard at the school, which has developed from its founding during the Revolutionary War into one of the most prestigious prep schools in the country with an endowment of $250 million.

Head of School Barbara Landis Chase granted Cobb a leave of absence on Aug. 23, then dismissed him Sept. 1. She told parents in a letter she had information showing Cobb was unfit to continue. She would not elaborate and refused a request for an interview.

23 on charges of trying to lure teen-agers into his car. Police said he had pictures of naked adults and children in his knapsack.

As teachers and students returned for the start of classes on Wednesday at the exclusive prep school, Cobb was not on the school's campus — training ground of prominent Americans from Oliver Wendell Holmes to former President Bush — for the first time since 1968.

Those who knew Cobb, 59, wondered if they could have been working with a stranger for almost three decades.

"I'm floored," said Joseph Wenink, a former teacher of German

QUALITY AND EFFECTIVENESS EXAMINED

UC-Berkeley crowns list of top doctoral programs

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The University of California, Berkeley, is the top-ranked institution offering a doctoral program, in the judgment of the National Research Council.

The NRC examined the quality of the faculty and the educational effectiveness of 3,600 doctoral programs in 41 fields at 274 American universities.

Additionally, the NRC surveyed 8,000 university faculty members to give a peer assessment of each program's teaching effectiveness, the academic quality of its faculty and the level of research.

Scoring was recorded for each school in each discipline and the universities were then ranked within those disciplines.

Thirty-seven doctoral programs were assessed at the University of California, Berkeley, and the school was ranked in the top 10 in 36 of those programs.

Stanford was second with 32 programs ranked in the top 10. The university supports 43 programs that grant doctorates.

AT THIS RATE, YOUR FUTURE IS LOOKING BETTER AND BETTER.

High rates can make a big difference when you're saving for the future. So you may appreciate the fact that TIAA is currently offering one of the highest rates of return among guaranteed annuities anywhere — 7%.

Of course, that's not surprising. TIAA's net rate of return has beaten the industry average every year for the past 47 years.

Strong returns and solid ratings

TIAA's traditional annuity guarantees your principal and a specified interest rate, backed by TIAA's claims-paying ability, so you can rest assured your savings are secure.

It also provides the potential for additional growth through dividends—which we've declared every year since 1948.

What's more, TIAA has received the highest marks from all four of the industry's leading rating agencies for its stability, sound investments, claims-paying the funeral," he said.

GAROFALO FUNERAL

The family wasn't aware of any UI representatives, other than the fraternity members, at the funeral service, Kanis said.

He said 300 to 400 people were present at St. Mary's Catholic Church for the service. He counted 50 to 70 cars in the funeral procession and 164 people at the funeral luncheon.

On Monday, a wake was held in memory of Garofalo at the Laird Funeral Home in Elgin, Ill.

Kanis said Garofalo's father, Edward Garofalo, spoke to people as they entered the funeral home.

"He (Edward Garofalo) said as people came in the door, 'I lost my son,'" he said.

Sister Christine Ripplinger, the public relations director at St. Edward High School in Elgin, Ill., attended the wake. She said Garofalo's family seemed to be coping with the death.

"The parents seemed to be doing quite well," Ripplinger said. "The students were having trouble."

Todd Johns, a student at Elgin Community College and a member of the college's board of trustees, said most students there found out about Garofalo's death Monday, the day of the wake.

"The feeling was sadness," Johns said.

Although the investigation into whether alcohol was involved in Garofalo's death is still incomplete, Johns said he is working with Elgin Community College to take education and prevention measures with regards to alcohol consumption by students.

"It doesn't hit home until this happens so close," he said.

Johns said Garofalo's death has made people think.

"We always hear about drunk driving ... or gang violence, but this is simple drinking and a death (could be) related to it. It scared a lot of people," Johns said.

Garofalo died of pulmonary edema, or fluid in the lungs. The Iowa City Police Department is currently investigating the death, but foul play has been ruled out.

Final autopsy reports, which will show if excessive alcohol consumption caused the fluid to enter Garofalo's lungs, are expected by the end of this week.

LEGAL RAMIFICATIONS

Matthew Getz, a spokesperson for Lambda Chi, said. "But we don't want to corrupt the investigation. We're trying not to taint the investigation."

If a lawsuit is filed, the defendants named will be an issue of responsibility, Nestor Lobodiak, an attorney at the Tom Riley Law Firm, P.C., said.

"Anything regarding the cause of death is speculative," he said. "Who owed this person a duty and breached it? It has to be a cause contributing to his death. Just because the individual died in a fraternity doesn't mean the UI has a duty or breached a duty."

Individual fraternity members are provided with insurance by the national organization, Getz said. However, there is no coverage if a law, such as providing alcohol to minors, is broken. Under Iowa law, persons over age 21 cannot provide alcohol to minors.

"If it's a criminal act, most insurance companies won't cover them," Getz said. "Some schools won't allow chapters without coverage."

Getz said the UI requires fraternities and sororities to have insurance for all members.

As the investigation into Garofalo's death continues, Getz said the national fraternity is working to help local authorities conduct a proper investigation.

The national fraternity suspended the UI chapter from activities to make the police investigation easier, Getz said. The UI followed the national chapter's lead by placing the chapter on interim suspension Monday.

UI Vice President for University Relations Ann Rhodes said anyone can be named in a lawsuit. She is not sure how the investigation will be structured.

"If we were named, obviously our response would depend on what the charges are," she said.

CAR EXPLOSION

news, we put two and two together," Thomas said.

Mark Edward Weitzel, 30, who had been dating Betty Clark since May, said she had agreed to meet with her husband one last time to take the children shopping. He picked them up from Weitzel's house.

"We knew he was unstable," Weitzel said. "But we didn't think he would actually do something like this. Yesterday I had a family — a girlfriend and three kids. Now I have nothing."

Police said they had no reports of domestic violence.

"You hope that if they're having these problems that they would call us. That's what make it so sad since there was no hope of intervention," said Capt. Brian Uppercue, a police spokesman.

Mark Clark's last known address was in Cumberland. Police believe he had been supporting himself doing odd jobs in construction and plumbing.

Police suspect a form of dynamite called slurry ripped apart the 1987 Ford Taurus wagon.

The car was stationary when it exploded, about 20 yards from the entrance to J.J. Newberry's department store in the Midwestern Shopping Center, police said.

Police cadets searched the scene Tuesday for more clues. Agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were also on the scene.

At the start of the day, defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. disclosed the juror's financial problem and said that the judge had offered public funds to keep the panel member from bailing out of the case.

Cochran opposed the plan, saying it would taint the juror's opinion. Few details of the plan were released. In court papers, the defense referred to a juror losing $1,500 a month in rental income, but it was unclear whether this was just an example raised to make a point.

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito told him to appeal if he objected. Cochran said he would.

Later, defense attorney Robert Shapiro said the juror should be ousted.

Ito took no action on any of the defense suggestions, and he made clear he had yet to give the juror any financial assistance.

The judge has said repeatedly that the jurors, sequestered since Jan. 11, are "not happy campers" and are demanding a quick end to the trial.

Jury problems hampered the trial during the first six months, and just two of the original 12 alternates are left. But since June 5, no juror has been dismissed.

Also Tuesday, a jail nurse said in a videotape played outside the jury's presence that he erred when he testified in the preliminary hearing that he took 8 milliliters of blood from Simpson the day after the murders.

Thano Peratis, who didn't testify at the trial because of health problems, said the amount was closer to 6.5 milliliters, which, if accurate, would undermine the defense claim that there was blood missing from Simpson's vial that could have been planted on evidence.

"I was wrong," Peratis said.

Peratis is seen in the video sitting on a sofa and re-enacting the withdrawal of blood from Simpson by withdrawing water from a purple coffee cup. The rambling presentation, in which Peratis fumbled through boxes of syringes and vials, drew muffled laughter in the courtroom.

Defense attorney Peter Neufeld denounced the video as "rank, staged hearsay" and said jurors shouldn't see it.

The judge ruled prosecutors could show an edited version of the tape with the parts where Peratis talks about his previous testimony and about the amount of blood he now believes was in the syringe.

Rubin's testimony came after Ito heard arguments that kept jurors waiting for two hours outside the courtroom.

During cross-examination, defense attorney Robert Blasier suggested Rubin was biased toward the prosecution. He produced a letter to prosecutors from Rubin after his first appearance as a witness that closed with the comment: "Maybe I can make it to the victory party!"

Rubin said the remark was made "in jest," but acknowledged he asked prosecutors for their business cards, which he planned to frame along with a news article "as a remembrance of this experience."

The last pictures of Simpson wearing gloves and shown in court were taken six months before the slayings of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

Before Rubin stepped down, one of the evidence gloves, a new glove of similar size and color and a photo of Simpson wearing gloves was set on a white board and passed to jurors. The panelists each set the board in their laps to get a look at the items.

Police found one bloody, brown, extra large Aris Light glove near the bodies at Nicole Brown Simpson's condominium and the apparent mate on Simpson's estate. Defense attorneys have suggested the glove on Simpson's property was planted by Detective Mark Fuhrman in a racist attempt to frame him.

Rubin said a video of Simpson at a Jan. 6, 1991, Oilers-Bengals play-off game showed Simpson wearing Aris Lights with a distinctive Brasser stitching.

"How certain are you of that?" Deputy District Attorney Christopher Darden asked.

"I'm 100 percent certain," Rubin said.

In four pictures Rubin examined, Darden pointed out Simpson was holding an umbrella. Rubin said he could see water stains on the gloves — supporting a prosecution theory that the murder gloves might have seemed too small for Simpson in court because of shrinkage.

Unlike the brown evidence gloves, the gloves on Simpson's hands at a January 1994 game were black, but Rubin said they were also Aris Lights with the same distinctive stitching, lightweight leather and cashmere lining. In one photo, he said, the Aris tag is visible.

The prosecution has produced a receipt from Bloomingdale's in New York for two pairs of men's gloves purchased by Nicole Brown Simpson in December 1990, but the color wasn't noted.

Prosecution witnesses testified earlier that the unique Aris Light brand was made exclusively for Bloomingdale's.

The prosecution set the stage on Monday for Rubin's testimony by calling professional and amateur photographers who had come forward with their pictures of Simpson after viewing TV coverage of the trial.

Defense lawyers had opposed the exhibition, saying prosecutors unfairly delayed the photos until rebuttal for dramatic effect. But the judge allowed it, saying the pictures had to be analyzed first.

against the Bosnian Serbs, and the Russian Foreign Ministry said NATO was turning Bosnia into a "testing ground" for world domination.

"As a result of this action, innocent civilians — including the most defenseless of them all, the children — are getting killed," the Russian statement said. "Thus, the very survival of the current generation of Bosnian Serbs, who are actually facing genocide, is called into question."

In Washington, Secretary of State Warren Christopher said it was up to the Serbs to determine when the NATO bombing campaign will end.

Western officials said privately Moscow's statement appeared aimed at appeasing hard-line nationalists upset at the loss of Russian influence in world affairs.

After Serbs captured Srebrenica and Zepa in July, the United Nations and NATO agreed to protect Bosnia's remaining four safe areas with air strikes. A Serb attack that killed 38 people in Sarajevo on Aug. 28 triggered the current campaign.

NATO officials would not detail other strikes Tuesday. Bosnian Croat military sources, however, said NATO jets hit Serb positions on Mount Ozren, south of Doboj, as well as a military barracks, an ammunition depot and several heavy weapons sites near the town.

Yugoslavia's Tanjug news agency also reported air strikes at Doboj, saying they killed two people and wounded others.

U.N. officials, meanwhile, sought to highlight the successes of the bombing campaign.

"The city of Sarajevo has become a much safer place than it was two weeks ago," said U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivanko. "The odd mortar still detonates in the city, but the will to fire a heavy weapon into Sarajevo has been considerably sapped."

Field hockey climbs two spots in latest poll

The Iowa field hockey team moved up two spots to No. 6 in this week's NCAA Division I field hockey poll.

Iowa has compiled a 4-1 record this season, with its only loss coming to North Carolina, who is ranked No. 1.

Other Big Ten Conference field hockey teams ranked include Northwestern, No. 9, Ohio State, No. 11, Michigan State, No. 18 and Michigan, tied for No. 20.

Men's volleyball to hold informational meeting

The Iowa men's volleyball team is holding an informational meeting Sunday, Sept. 17 at 6 p.m. in the North Gym of the Field House.

All interested are invited to attend. For more information, call Dan Watkiss at 353-3739.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Indiana's Smith to return against Kentucky

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Alex Smith, the Big Ten freshman of the year in 1994, is expected back on Saturday for Indiana's game against Kentucky.

The Hoosiers' tailback missed the season opener last week because of a hamstring injury. A year ago, he rushed for 221 yards against Kentucky and went on to gain 1,475 yards for the season, the third-highest total by a freshman in major college history.

"It's a matter now of getting him back in the groove," said coach Bill Mallory, still not sure on Monday whether Smith or Michael Batts would start against the Wildcats. "He has to come back and get used to getting knocked around again."

Batts, who was sidelined by a knee injury almost all of last season, rushed for 70 yards and one touchdown in a 24-10 victory over Western Michigan last week.

Osborne expressed fear for Phillips' safety

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska coach Tom Osborne decided to leave the door open for Lawrence Phillips to return to the team partly because he feared that the star running back might hurt himself or worse.

"Frankly, on Sunday, I thought I would never see him again," Osborne said Tuesday. "I was afraid of what he might do to himself, because I knew he thought he'd blown it. I was relieved when I finally heard from him."

Phillips, a junior who is considered a Heisman Trophy contender, pleaded innocent Tuesday to misdemeanor charges of assault, trespassing and destruction of property. He is accused of assaulting an ex-girlfriend, Katherine McEwen, a 20-year-old Nebraska basketball player.

Osborne announced within two hours of Phillips' arrest Sunday night that the junior from West Covina, Calif., was dismissed from the second-ranked team. On Monday and Tuesday, however, he said Phillips may play again this season if he does certain, undisclosed things. He would not elaborate.

Players say union stays

Ronald Blum

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Labor peace appeared likely in the NBA after players rejected by a nearly 2-to-1 margin the effort to eliminate their union.

"I would hope the player reps look at that and ratify the agreement," union head Simon Gourdine said after the votes were counted Tuesday at the National Labor Relations Board.

Player representatives are to meet in Chicago on Wednesday and vote on a six-year collective bargaining agreement. NBA commissioner David Stern predicted owners will approve the contract by next Monday at the latest and lift the lockout imposed July 1.

If the deal is approved, training camps would open as scheduled on Oct. 6 and the season would begin on time on Nov. 3. Since the lockout, teams were barred from negotiating player contracts.

Among the 421 eligible voters, 226 voted to keep the union and 134 voted to decertify. The pro-union forces, which were supported by Stern and got 63 percent of the ballots, said the vote was tantamount to a referendum on the labor agreement.

"I don't think there is a significant group out there any more that is against this deal," Stern said.

Daniel Silverman, the NLRB's New York regional director, said the results will not be official until Sept. 19. The losing side may file objections to the way the vote was conducted. The NLRB would then take four to six weeks to determine whether the objections are valid.

"Of course, I'm disappointed by the vote," said Jeffrey Kessler, the lawyer for players seeking to decertify the union. "I still believe this is a terrible vote for the players and they will regret it for a long time."

Kessler's group, which includes Michael Jordan and Patrick Ewing, will decide whether this week whether to challenge the election. The overwhelming vote may cause

Fry won't be facing same old Cyclones

Chris Snider

The Daily Iowan

When Hayden Fry began his head coaching career 34 years ago, he called on Michigan State coach Duffy Daugherty for a little advice.

One of the things Daugherty told him was you've got to win intrastate rivalries. After beating UNI last weekend, the Hawkeyes are halfway there.

Iowa jumped out to a big half-time lead before the scoring tailed off in the second half, but Fry was pleased with a 34-13 victory over the Panthers.

"Being ahead 28-3, you not only don't have motivation, you don't have a whole lot you're trying to do," Fry said. "We weren't trying to rub it in. This is a family affair. They're in-state."

While the fans seemed upset that the Hawkeyes didn't bury the Panthers, Fry was content with the win.

"We accomplished what we wanted to accomplish," Fry said. "We got to play a lot of guys. We won the ballgame. Our defense, for the first time out, was so superior to what it had been, regardless of the competition."

Next up for the Hawkeyes is the other intrastate team on their schedule, Iowa State. The Hawkeyes have defeated the Cyclones twelve times in a row, but this time things are a little different.

Iowa State has a new head coach, Dan McCarney, who played football at Iowa from 1971-74 and was an assistant coach under Fry from 1979-89. Those 11 years under Fry should help.

"Dan's been around me. He knows where I'm coming from. He's heard all my stories," Fry said.

AMES, Iowa — Having seen the last four of Iowa State's 12 straight losses to Iowa, Mark Konopka is fed up.

"It's my fifth year and I'm embarrassed," the senior offensive guard said Tuesday. "We haven't really been competitive in the past."

Indeed, Iowa's margin of victory in its winning streak over the Cyclones is 23.8 points and the Hawkeyes have scored at least 29 points in 11 of the 12 games. Iowa won 37-9 last year.

Iowa State will make another stab at ending its frustration in the series when Iowa visits Cyclone Stadium on Saturday. The 12-game losing streak is Iowa State's longest against an opponent it plays regularly. The Cyclones have lost 11 in a row to Big Eight rival Colorado.

"You've got to try to be more two dimensional than just handing the ball off to 28."

Dan McCarney, Iowa State coach on his offense's reliance on star tailback Troy Davis.

But there's a new coach at Iowa State this year, Dan McCarney, and a completely new staff. That brings new hope for the Cyclones.

It also should help Iowa State that quarterback Todd Doxzon is expected to play.

"He's far and away our best quarterback," McCarney said. "He's the best athlete we have at quarterback. We need him badly."

With Doxzon out, running back Troy Davis has carried the brunt of Iowa State's offense and he has done it well.

Davis has rushed for 471 yards — more than any Iowa State player had all last season — and ranks second nationally in rushing and all-purpose running.

But the offense has become one dimensional. It's Davis left, Davis right and Davis up the middle. McCarney said that has to change.

"If it's just number 28 we're handing the ball to, it makes people's jobs a lot easier to defense you," he said. "You've got to try to be more two dimensional than just handing the ball off to 28."

McCarney said it's especially important to be versatile against Iowa because if there's anyone who can design a defense to stop someone, it's Bill Brashier, the Hawkeyes' veteran defensive coordinator.

McCarney worked under Brashier as Iowa's defensive line coach in the 1980s.

"Bill Brashier is as fine as there is in college football," McCarney said. "I was with him for 11 years. We saw a lot of great backs through all those 11 years and he knows how to slow people down and stop them as well as anybody."

Dodgers' Nomo nearly blanks Cubs

Mike Nadel

CHICAGO — Hideo Nomo dominated one of the few teams that had given him trouble in his outstanding rookie season, allowing six hits over eight innings Tuesday as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Chicago Cubs 7-1.

Nomo allowed only one hit in the first five innings, took a shutout into the eighth, struck out eight and walked none.

He even had a sixth-inning sacrifice fly — only his third RBI — in helping the Dodgers stay with in a game of NL West-leading Colorado. Mike Piazza added three RBI singles for Los Angeles, which leads the NL wild-card race by two games over Houston; Chicago fell five games back.

The Cubs scored in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Brian McRae that center fielder Brett Butler ran down before crashing into the wall.

Cubs' starter Jim Bullinger (11-7) allowed six runs on nine hits in 5 1/2 innings and is 1-5 with an 8.07 ERA since Aug. 16. By the time he

Mainz brings a new style to Iowa

Shannon Stevens
The Daily Iowan

Don't expect a game of passive resistance.

In her first season as the Iowa women's tennis coach, Jenny Mainz hopes to make some noise in the Big Ten Conference race by using an up-tempo, Los Angeles Laker style of tennis.

"Ultimately, you don't have to stay at the baseline for the entire point," Mainz said. "You have different weapons and want a lot of versatility in your game. I call that the transition game which is just being more aggressive and trying to get into the net as much as possible."

The first hurdle for Mainz will be replacing departed seniors Laura Colorado's Eric Young knocks Braves shortstop Jeff Blauser off balance sliding into second Tuesday.

Rockies devour Atlanta, 12-2

Associated Press

DENVER — Vinny Castilla went 4-for-5 and drove in three runs, and Lance Painter won his first start of the season as Colorado prevented Atlanta from clinching a share of the NL East title with a 12-2 victory.

Castilla, who had his fifth career four-hit game and the fourth this year, also hit his 31st home run. Dante Bichette added his NL-leading 36th homer and drove in three runs.

Painter (2-0) allowed two solo home runs among his nine hits in five innings.

He struck out two and walked two, and Kevin Ritz pitched four perfect innings with four strikeouts for his second save.

The Braves still have a magic number of two to clinch a fourth straight division title.

Padres 5, Pirates 1

PITTSBURGH — Marc Newfield hit an RBI single and saved two runs with a diving catch in left field, and Fernando Valenzuela won his third straight decision as the San Diego Padres beat the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Padres ended their four-game losing streak and won for just the second time in their last 10 road games. They handed the Pirates their sixth defeat in seven games.

Valenzuela (6-3) held Pittsburgh to five hits and a run in 5½ innings. He was helped by Newfield's spectacular catch on Orlando Merced's liner to end the sixth inning with runners on first and second. Newfield ran toward the left-field line and caught the ball while sliding across the wet turf.

HAWKEYE ROUNDUP

Hawkeyes place 10th in season opener

Some flaws were revealed, but the Iowa women's golf team turned in a solid performance during their season opener Tuesday at the Husker Invitational.

The Hawkeyes finished 10th out of 17 teams at the two-day tournament held in Lincoln, Neb. Iowa was in ninth place after the first day, but fell to tenth after shooting 331 in the final round.

Iowa finished with a three-day total of 1,003 — 64 strokes behind champion Texas Tech.

The Hawkeyes were paced by senior Jenny Nodland, who fired a final round of 76 to finish at 242, good for a 17th-place tie.

Iowa coach Diane Thomason said she was impressed by the play of her two seniors. "I was pleased with Jenny's performance. She really stepped it up in the final round," Thomason said. "Tanya Shepley (251) also played well except for the second round yesterday."

Becky Sjolholm (256), Candy Schneekloth (256) and Lynne Carothers (261) also competed.

Thomason said the team needs to develop consistency.

"That's the name of the game of golf," she said. "If you're hitting the ball well you're going to shoot a low score and when you're hitting the ball poorly you're score will be higher."

The Hawkeyes return to Iowa City to host the Hawkeye Invitational Saturday.

Volleyball regroups after rough weekend

The road warriors continue their lengthy tour of the United States.

The Iowa volleyball team plays its seventh straight road game in

The Padres took a 3-0 lead on RBI singles by Newfield and Jody Reed in the second, and Ken Caminiti's sacrifice fly in the third. Tony Gwynn singled in the fifth and scored on a wild pitch, passed ball and balk.

Phillies 8, Expos 2

MONTREAL — Mike Williams pitched six strong innings in a rare start and Gregg Jefferies knocked in three runs as the Philadelphia Phillies rolled to a victory over the Montreal Expos.

The Phillies matched a season high with seven doubles in a 13-hit attack against seven Expos pitchers.

Williams (2-2), making his fifth start this season, allowed two runs on five hits in his second start since June 6.

He struck out two and walked one, and Toby Borland pitched three innings of shutout relief for his sixth save.

Mickey Morandini went 3-for-3 with two doubles and scored three runs, and Mark Whiten drove in two runs as the Phillies snapped a three-game losing streak at Montreal.

Astros 8, Mets 6

NEW YORK — Derrick May's two-run homer in the sixth broke a tie and Houston starter Donne Wall earned his first major league victory as the Astros held off the New York Mets.

Wall (1-1), making his second major league start, gave up three runs on seven hits in 5½ innings. He struck out four and walked none.

Astros reliever Mike Henneman replaced Dave Veres with the bases loaded and no outs in the ninth with Houston leading 8-3.

Henneman threw a run-scoring pitch and Joe Orsulak hit a two-run single before Jose Vizcaino grounded into a double play to end the game and give Henneman his fifth save.

The game was tied 2-2 in the sixth before Houston's Jeff Bagwell led off by reaching on third baseman Bill Spiers' first of two throwing errors.

May then hit his sixth homer to give the Astros' a two-run cushion. They added four runs — three unearned — an inning later.

Cardinals 10, Giants 4

ST. LOUIS — Ray Lankford homered for the fourth consecutive game and Bernard Gilkey had two RBI doubles as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the San Francisco Giants for their season-high fifth straight victory.

Lankford's 22nd home run in the first inning off Mark Leiter (9-10) extended his hitting streak to 13 games, tied with Brian Jordan for the team's longest of the year.

He's one short of the team record for home runs in consecutive games set by Jim Bottomley in 1929.

Lankford left the bases loaded when he tapped out to the mound in the sixth, but he threw out a runner at the plate in the fourth. He's 22-for-47 during the streak and has 11 RBI in his last five games.

Lawrence against Kansas tonight.

The Hawkeyes stand 3-3 after a disastrous tournament in Hawaii last weekend. Iowa was dominated in all three matches, including a 15-6, 15-7, 15-2 thrashing at the hand of No. 3 Hawaii.

"We had a tough weekend; fine, let's get over it."

Linda Schoenstedt, Iowa volleyball coach on getting focused for tonight's match with Kansas.

"Somebody's got to be on the road," coach Linda Schoenstedt said. "If we're going to play badly, it might as well be on the road."

Schoenstedt said her team has remained upbeat.

"We're trying to stay positive," she said. "We had a tough weekend; fine, let's get over it. We need to get refocused and work harder (against Kansas)."

The junior trio of Jennifer Webb, Jill Oelschlager and Katy Fawbush lead the Hawkeyes into Kansas. Webb was named to the all-tournament team in Hawaii.

Oelschlager went to high school in Lawrence and this will mark her first return trip to Iowa.

Iowa last faced the Jayhawks in 1991, Schoenstedt's rookie season. Kansas beat the Hawkeyes.

"I expect a young and very athletic Kansas team," Schoenstedt said. "We definitely have a more experienced team. It would be an expectation to come away with a win."

AL ROUNDUP

Yankees upend Indians again

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Ruben Sierra hit a tie-breaking sacrifice fly in the seventh inning and Paul O'Neill homered during a six-run ninth as the streaking New York Yankees beat the Cleveland Indians 9-2.

The Yankees, winners of six straight and 12 of 14, ensured they would stay ahead of Seattle in the AL wild-card race.

New York began the night a half-game ahead of the Seattle Mariners, who played host to Minnesota later.

The victory was the 300th for 39-year-old Buck Showalter, who became the second-youngest Yankees manager to reach that mark. Clark Griffith won his 300th when he was 36.

The Indians committed a season-high five errors, losing their second straight after winning their previous 14 at home. They are just 1-6 against the Yankees at Jacobs Field since the park opened last year.

Tigers 5, Brewers 1

DETROIT — Chris Gomez had a three-run double and Jose Lima allowed three hits over six innings as Detroit defeated the Milwaukee Brewers, the Tigers' fourth consecutive victory.

Lima (2-7), the first of three Detroit pitchers, gave up one run, striking out three. John Doherty pitched two perfect innings for his fifth save.

to 3-1.

The Tigers broke it open with three runs in the second off Brian Givens (5-4), leaving the Brewers, who have lost nine of 11, 0-4 at Tiger Stadium this season.

Danny Bautista, breaking an 0-for-36 slump, started the rally with a one-out single and moved up on a bunt single by Steve Rodriguez. Givens loaded the bases with a two-out walk to Chad Curtis and Gomez, who had four RBI, cleared the bases with a double up the gap.

Orioles 6, Red Sox 5

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore Orioles overcame two homers by Mo Vaughn and another by Mike Greenwell, extending Boston's losing streak to a season-high five games.

The bottom two batters in the Baltimore lineup inflicted the most damage.

Number eight hitter Mark Smith had two RBI, including the tie-breaking single in the seventh, and Bret Barberie also drove in two runs.

Vaughn's two homers gave him four in three games and 37 for the season. Greenwell hit his 13th homer to tie the game in the seventh.

With two outs in the Baltimore seventh, Harold Baines hit a pinch-hit double off Joseph Hudson (0-1), who took his first major-league loss. Smith then blooped a single to center, scoring Baines to make it 6-5.

Rangers 6, Blue Jays 5

TORONTO — First baseman John Olerud had a line drive bounce off his glove for a double and also made a throwing error in the eighth inning, helping the Texas Rangers score three runs and beat the Toronto Blue Jays.

Trailing 4-3, Juan Gonzalez led off the eighth with a double and Mickey Tettleton followed with a single, chasing starter Al Leiter (10-9).

Hey, Calvin! Break out the rubber bikinis

Boobs, butts, cleavage and wasp waists, oh my!

While the lingerie industry provides more ways to truss up women like Thanksgiving Day turkeys than women have body parts, our burlier brothers in undergarments are mainly limited to two unimaginative underwear options: boxers or briefs.

It's a tightly-white wasteland out there, with no relief in sight.

In a retail world where even Iowa features Victoria's "hitch your knockers to a lucky star" Secret stores, there's a disparaging lack of skivvy options for the boys.

Why? Why can't we have Victor's Secret boutiques which sport Lycra and Spandex acres of more inventive, decorative and tortuous items of delight for the guys in our lives?

Of course, underwear alternatives do exist for men, but these undies options are strictly underground and, well, somewhat hidden from the mainstream, 3-pack-tighty-whites-for-$5 kinda shopper. Nonetheless, fleshpot "catalogues" like International Male, Mr. Leatherman and other fashionable shopper guides are valiant warriors in the battle against mundane underwear for men.

Vying with the likes of Frederick's of Hollywood for the ultimate in underwear tackiness, these catalogues feature packaging options for men that would make Speedo designers drool in envy. Oh, yes, boys — size does count, and the smaller the packaging, the better. We're talking straps and rubber and hip-huggers and millions of other creative items that put the humble, tighty-whitey, bubble-butt brief to absolute shame.

Hey, briefs and boxers might make more fashion sense because they feel better on, but all lingerie producers know what men really want in undergarments — at least in undergarments for women — is discomfort. So, the discomfort that's good for the goose is the discomfort that's good for the gander. And it doesn't matter how you feel, darlings, it matters how you look.

The mainstreaming of better underwear fashion for men needs to target the industry leaders. We need to let Hanes, Fruit of the Loom and Calvin Klein know what men really want is rubber bikini bottoms economically available at Wal-Mart. Hey, it could be done — just get all those retreaded-tire blowouts from the sides of highways and get going on the bikinis. These rubber bikinis could even be marketed as auto accessories, because men just love buying things for their cars.

There's never going to be gender equity until there's underwear equity. I'm writing my letter to Calvin Klein right now, so let me share it with you so you can join me in my battle to expand men's lingerie options:

"Dear Calvin,
Hi, I'm a concerned consumer who thinks men need more

The mainstreaming of better underwear fashion for men needs to target the industry leaders. We need to let Hanes, Fruit of the Loom and Calvin Klein know what men really want is rubber bikini bottoms economically available at Wal-Mart.

underwear options. Why don't you get away from the kiddie underwear stuff and do something more original (and legal!) like new underwear for men? Start first with Marky Mark in a conveniently crotchless, underwire demi-cup tap pant with matching bustier, and I think things will take off from there. Thanks a lot for your consideration. Bye!"

African textiles capture culture

Megan McCabe
The Daily Iowan

A visit to the UI Museum of Art's current exhibits is like a trek to the ends of the earth — a kaleidoscope of foreign peoples and exotic art.

The Stanley Pavillion displays African textiles from the museum's collection and private collectors. The show, titled "Status Symbols: African Textiles and Adornments," combines sculpture, jewelry and textiles into an informed look at African culture.

The woven textiles each share an intricate history. The Bamana (Mali) mudcloth marks events in life and also denotes occupations. The black cloth is woven with cream patterns, forming various registers of designs. One consists solely of dots, another of horizontal lines.

The beauty of the cloth lies in the protection it holds for many members of Bamana society, and in the history and mythology the woven threads leave behind for future generations.

Another textile, made by the Igbara people of Okene, Nigeria, demonstrates the complex art form which the artists have mastered. Lurex — a shiny, plastic material — is used to weave the highly formal attire. These textiles are made in a region known for fashion and are traded into the surrounding countries.

Sculpture reflects various status symbols, because artists incorporate the adornments. The Sow mask, used in the women's Sande society in Sierra Leone, pictorializes everything desirable in their culture; the elaborate hairstyle, a five-fold coiffure and distinctive neck creases represent Mende ideals of feminine beauty.

"Carrie Mae Weems: Sea Islands Series" features photographs from the Gullah people of the Southeastern United States through Oct. 29 at the UI Museum of Art.

Carved Chokwe hair combs and woven Hausa hats are other African pieces displayed. Despite the various nationalities, each piece carries its own weight and fosters understanding of African adornments.

Wandering between the Stanley Pavillion and the Carrie Mae Weems exhibition seems to take forever. Four paintings, titled "Big Bungalow Suite," by Robert Zakanitch engulf any viewer traveling between exhibits. The series, comprised of six wall-sized paintings, represent a child's view of home interior.

Floral prints, complex landscapes and domestic ornaments are intertwined with an enlarged sense of perception, dwarfing the exhibition space with sharp intensity.

Carrie Mae Weems looks at African roots of the Gullah people, who live on islands off the coast of Georgia and South Carolina. Her exhibit, titled "Carrie Mae Weems: Sea Islands Series," tackles difficult issues. Most striking are the blue-tinted portraits of slaves — an effort to humanize the people from previous anthropological studies.

Her photographs capture the stark visual weight of living conditions. One shows a trailer, the exterior decorated with manmade decorations. A hubcap is nailed to a tree, almost an auspicious welcome mat.

Weems' landscape photographs are equally vivid. Hubcaps, all aligned at the same angles, reappear against trees or stones in a deserted field in another picture. The photograph evokes a powerful image, possibly a look into a makeshift graveyard.

Weems takes responsibility for her viewers in her work. The captions are written on ceramic plates to signify the passing of heirlooms from one generation to the next. She furthers this mission by printing both the music and lyrics of a slave song.

The exhibit leaves the viewer with a strong impression of both the past and the present.

Iowa Women's Music Festival begins tonight at Old Brick

As the Urban Bush Women spend their week in residence preparing for Friday's show, "Bones and Ash," the Iowa Women's Music Festival is fully underway.

"Community Sing with the Urban Bush Women" will take place tonight at Old Brick, corner of Clinton and Market streets, at 7:30 to kick off the week's festivities.

Thursday evening, Jewelle Gomez, writer of "The Gilda Stories" and "Bones and Ash," will read at Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St., at 8.

Friday evening, the Urban Bush Women will perform "Bones and Ash" at Hancher at 8 p.m. "Bones and Ash" is a creative work telling the stories of life-sustaining vampires who nurture and heal their "victims." Following the show, the festival will present the band Plain Jane at the Coffee Cellars, 13 S. Linn St., at 10 p.m.

The Iowa Women's Music Festival will hold a day-long celebration on Saturday at the Johnson County Fair Grounds, 3149 Old Highway 218 S. Toshi Reagan, musician and musical director for "The Gilda Stories," will headline the show at 3:30 p.m. UI junior Missy Billings and other musicians will perform from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Jonathan Hansen
The Daily Iowan

The two brothers and their cousin — all sharing the last name Burmeister — who make up the band Blues Meister are all competent, if not particularly innovative, musicians.

As the name indicates, the trio from Omaha, Neb., plays its own version of familiar-sounding blues. Of course, the issue of originality (or lack thereof) may fall on deaf ears of blues fans relying on the argument that the blues are not about what you play, but how you play it.

Even with this standard, however, Blues Meister's current self-produced CD, Cooking with BM, lacks the charisma of blues masters like Screamin' Jay Hawkins. The recording itself sounds cold and thin, while the songs sound insincere and uninspired. To its credit, Blues Meister may offer a fun live show, as its music clearly emphasizes a kind of adolescent humor.

Blues Meister is playing Sept. 15 at the Que Sports Bar, 211 Iowa Ave., with Slapstick. If you think lyrics like "Feels like I have a booger in my nose" are funny, you might enjoy seeing Blues Meister play. A few beers might help, too.

UI Writers' Workshop poets Mark Doty (above) and Tom Sleigh read Friday evening in Shambaugh Auditorium at 8.

The Best Way To Save Money On Stuff (Other Than Borrowing Your Roommate's).

Roommates tend to get a little weird when you borrow their stuff. (They're funny like that.) Better to get yourself a MasterCard® card. Then you could use it to buy the things you really want. And with these College MasterValues® coupons, you'll save up to 40%. And until you get your own place, it's the smartest thing you can do. Roommates are weird enough as it is. MasterCard. It's more than a credit card. It's smart money.
