DNA: Advantage prosecution

Linda Gertner Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - Simpson's attorneys introduced a new DNA result that bolsters their defense that O.J. Simpson is not guilty of murdering his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and Ron Goldman.

The latest DNA results bolstered the prosecution's scientific case against the football star, who has attacked the Los Angeles Police Department.

The defense, meanwhile, disclosed a novel scientific technique that bolsters Simpson's and his legal team's case.

The jury is expected to hear the results today.

Geneticists from the Department of Justice in California have sent in a second test to the defense.

They said Fredric Wittenstein, a witness at the New York terror conspiracy trial, would tell how he learned of the results. The scientist was prompted to change his testimony after he was shown the latest DNA result.

The latest DNA results, however, were not expected to change the course of the trial.

The Los Angeles County medical examiner and the FBI, which was responsible for the primary crime scene investigation, are not expected to change their conclusions.

Simpson's attorneys will continue to argue that the evidence found at the scene of the crime is consistent with other people.

They will argue that there is no evidence of Simpson as a suspect.

They said they have evidence of Simpson's and Ron Goldman, who was found in the passenger seat of the Bronco.

Simpson and Detective Mark Peterson.

Identifying their mystery witnesses as those who had been at the Bronco, they will present evidence that Simpson was not present when the killings occurred.

They want to use him to show the jury that Simpson was not involved in the crime.

Police have not confirmed the identity of the woman and said they are still investigating.

The defense attorney will argue that Simpson was not present when the killings occurred.

Simpson's attorney, F. Lee Bailey, said he would present evidence that Simpson was not involved in the crime.

Skinny revisions whittle federal weight guidelines

"It's a fairly simple study that anyone, even a layperson, can understand," said the lead author, Dr. Theodore Van Itallie of Columbia University.

The report, published in last Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, was based on the female Health Study, which included 19,000 middle-aged women, no matter what their age or weight.

The researchers found that when body mass index is used to calculate weight, a woman of 5 feet 5 inches who weighs less than 120 pounds has a lower death rate than that of someone her age American woman — who is as tall as 5 feet 10 inches and weighs 225 pounds. These women are also in the blood or drinking water, or from any other source that can be measured.

In the United States, the researchers believe that the death rate for a 5-foot-5 woman who weighs 120 pounds is lower than that for someone her age American woman — who is as tall as 5 feet 10 inches and weighs 225 pounds. No one has ever studied what happened to birds or to people who have been exposed to these chemicals. The effects of such exposure are not known. If anyone has done such studies, they are not available to the public. Wilson adviser may ditch salary due to lagging fund-raising

Richard Kolodziej
WASHINGTON — Already trail- ing in the presidential money race because of a late start, Gov. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., is averaging just $1,000 to $2,000 a month in contributions. The disappointing per- formance on Wilson’s campaign charac- terizes a failure to forge a six-figure estate network in its early stages.

The Wilson camp, which earlier this week that down in love with campaign oper- ations in Washington to focus on primary states where the California governor hopes to represent the flagging effort to the Republican frontrunners, was said to have netted $2,000 to $3,000 in initial deposits of $1,000 each from 18 to 20 donors toward Jan. or a few similar-sized events.

Earlier this week, the govern- or’s fund had to be excised in part to centralize in California. From- ward, the money from the Jan. 30 event was used to pay for the strength of the govern- or’s “war chest” Tuesday, according to the campaign’s main spokesperson, Al Gore. Another Wilsonmonopolized $8 million, the “inter- nal” or “supporting” the event, a senior advisor said Wednesday.

“There were no improvements, it certainly wasn’t huge,” said the advisor, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

In the west, Cruz said they had been “disappointing” numbers, and were in the process of raising money in the independent-vote market. Cruz also is the president of the Group for a New Majority, which is backed by prominent Democrats.

WASHINGTON — The FBI has arrested 120 people nationwide, some of whom were in the Washington area, in a 10-week investigation into the use of the nation’s largest computer network to distribute child pornography and engage in sex acts with children.

The raids involving America Online captured the first time federal agents investigated the nation’s and their counterparts in other major networks.

“We are not going to permit new methods to be used to exploit and injure chil- dren,” said Assistant Attorney General Robert F. Borkman, head of the FBI’s child pornography unit, who led the investigation.

The raids, involving America Online’s public spaces, said to have gathered hundreds of names and addresses of people who used the network to distribute child pornography and engage in sex acts with children.

The amazing adventures of Jen, Greg and Maggie the dog

My friend, Jen and Maggie the dog, just returned from California for spring break. We were both excited, as it was their first trip together. Jen and Maggie have been friends since high school, and they share a love for adventure and the outdoors. They decided to take a road trip to explore the West Coast, and I couldn't wait to hear about their experiences.

Jen and Maggie's journey began in the beautiful city of San Francisco. They took in the iconic sites, from the Golden Gate Bridge to Fisherman's Wharf, and even visited the famous Alcatraz Island. Jen shared that they loved the vibrant atmosphere and the diverse culture of the city.

From San Francisco, they headed south to Los Angeles, where they spent a few days exploring the bustling city. Jen mentioned that they especially enjoyed visiting the Griffith Observatory, where they had a great view of the Hollywood Sign. They also went to the beach to relax and enjoy the beautiful weather.

After a few days in Los Angeles, they continued their journey to the Big Sur area of California. Jen described the captivating scenery and the breathtaking views of the Pacific Ocean. They spent time hiking along the Coast Trail, where they encountered beautiful landscapes and diverse wildlife.

Next, they made their way to the national parks of California. Jen was particularly impressed with Yosemite National Park, where they went on a scenic hike and witnessed the majesty of El Capitan. They also toured Sequoia National Park, where they marveled at the colossal trees and the surrounding wildlife.

Finally, they reached Death Valley National Park, known for its extreme heat and dry climate. Jen shared a few comedic moments, as they attempted to drive through the desert without proper preparation. Despite challenges, they managed to explore the unique landscapes and geologic formations.

Jen and Maggie's road trip was filled with numerous adventures, and they fondly reflected on their time spent together. They both expressed the belief that travel enriches their lives and strengthens their bond. As Jen summed up their experience, "These trips are the true adventures of life, and we wouldn't change a thing about them."}

"There were pies of gems still available," she said. "I'm just glad I got it."

Jerri Lynn Smith had her breast implants removed this week, even though the cosmetic procedure had once been controversial. Smith, a resident of St. Louis, Missouri, underwent breast augmentation in the 1970s and decided to have the implants removed. She initially had them for cosmetic reasons, but later developed complications and sought to have them removed. Smith said she is happy to be rid of the implants.

The judge, meanwhile, summarily rejected defense proposals to have witnesses testify on his behalf about his battle with cancer, and the proponent of the motion, a former inmate, asked whether the motion had been granted.

By the end of the day, the trial of Simpson's domestic violence case was set to go to the jury.

The prosecution argued that Simpson was guilty of the murder of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman, while the defense claimed that the evidence was insufficient to support a conviction. The trial is expected to last several weeks.

Simpson, who is facing up to 25 years in prison, has already served more than nine months in jail awaiting trial. He is also facing a trial in the civil case filed by Brown's estate, which seeks damages for personal injuries.

Roundup

CINCINNATI — Pete Schourek ended the Pirates’ nine-game winning streak to 14 games with an 8-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday, extending the Tigers’ winning streak to five games.

It was the 10th loss in 15 games for the Pirates, who are struggling for a wild-card playoff berth.

Bobby Jones (9-8) got his fourth complete game of the year and his first complete game of the season. He allowed two hits in the eight innings for his 27th save.

Schourek was perfect after that, pitching a three-hitter for his first shutout in three years and Albert Belle hit his 57th home run as Cleveland stopped the New York Yankees’ nine-game winning streak. The Indians' win extended their own three-game winning streak.

Tony Gwynn opened the inning of relief for the victory and Ken Caminiti made his 14th homer of the season.

Bannister: Blacks possess advantage

NEWCASTLE, England — Roger Bannister, saying he was "prepared to risk political incorrectness" by drawing attention to the seemingly obvious but under-reported fact that black sprinters and black athletes in general all seem to have certain natural anatomical advantages—"I am prepared to risk political incorrectness by drawing attention to the seemingly obvious but under-reported fact that black sprinters and black athletes in general all seem to have certain natural anatomical advantages."

Roger Bannister, the first under-4-minute mile runner, announced that he had adapted to hot climates and better pacing strategy recently. He also suggested that they could break human records with races because they have been able to train the same under-the-radar.

Texas got up 47 yards and 27 points to Georgia last week. That's a lot about the Longhorns, whose only opponent may be the biggest threat this year.

The eighth-ranked Vol travel to Knoxville today to face the No. 4 Florida Gators, whose 55-13 win against LSU last week. The Gators, with 165 yards and 46 points in their last two games, are "a first-rate outfit," according to Tennessee coach Phil Fulmer and a threat to most anyone.

What's even scarier for the Vols is that Florida's offense has yet to operate at full speed. Against South Carolina, the Gators scored 10 points on a field goal and a non-scoring pass.

"We haven't done any play by play yet," Warner said. "We have won some of those games."

Hancher welcomes Bush Women

Jonathan Hamson
The Daily Iowan

Friday evening at Hancher Auditorium, the Urban Bush Women, an eclectic New York City-based dance company, will present in the first time a new exhibition of raw, energetic movement; a cappella chants; gospel and rap; culture; community events and...vampires.

"It's not just about vampires, it's really about knowing how much to talk and knowing that you have to give." -Christywn Wright, one of 11 dancers in the company

Josh Ferris
The Daily Iowan

"The Gilda Stories," first published in 1990, tells the story of Gilda, an escaped slave who meets a group of vampires and is inducted into the world of...vampires. Rather than enslaving or terrorizing, however, the vampires live in peace, believing that dancing is the best way to make the world present at Hancher, in a celebration of Gomez's work and the Urban Bush Women, an eclectic New York City-based dance company of raw energetic movement; a cappella chants; gospel and rap; culture; community events and...vampires.

Urban Bush Women, dressed in black, will present at Hancher, debuting an exhibition of Gomez's novel, "The Gilda Stories," which began a two-week series of urban exhibitions Friday night at Hancher between Jewel and Todd Reagon, respectively, by Jewelle Willis Jo Zollar, the company director and choreographer Jawole Willa Jo Zollar who founded the Urban Bush Women.

"It was Zollar's idea to adapt "The Gilda Stories,"" said Bervig. "We always do something in acknowledgment of the older woman who has inspired us, and that was the case here.

"The Gilda Stories" is a thoughtful, poetic and heroism, which also succeeds in accomplishing most of what it sets out to do. It's a thoughtful, poetic and heroism. The novel was published in 2000, and has been very well received. Gomez said: "One of the exciting things is how much a collaboration and in seeing other women in a positive light, as well as to make music and inspire community. Child role, acting make movie worth seeing Darryl Hannah stars in an aging hippie trying to keep her daughter in "The Tie That Bind.""

The Daily Iowan

Ties That Bind

First-time screenwriter Michael Ferrara and first-time director Wesley Strick have put together a show, if not spectacular, thriller called "The Tie That Bind." It’s not without its qualms, but the film manages to hit the right note, despite some pacing issues.

The story is set against the poverty-stricken birth rate of Bonnie and Clyde. The film follows the story of Damien and Russell Cliffton, a bland but effective as Devin and Carradine are together, they’re up against a rather predictable genre, and they’re working with some fairly predictable actors. This gives "Ties" something else in common with "Killers" and "Cradle and the much-ballyhooed "The Tied That Bind.""

The real heart of the film, especially for the younger viewers, is the relationship between the two main characters. Despite the fact that they are together, they’re up against a rather predictable genre, and they’re working with some fairly predictable actors. This gives "Ties" something else in common with "Killers" and "Cradle and the much-ballyhooed "The Tied That Bind.""

As a result, "Ties" carries a little more weight than the average bad actor trying to save the world. Despite the fact that they are together, they’re up against a rather predictable genre, and they’re working with some fairly predictable actors. This gives "Ties" something else in common with "Killers" and "Cradle and the much-ballyhooed "The Tied That Bind.""

The film’s strength lies in its ability to make the viewer feel the stakes. Despite the fact that they are together, they’re up against a rather predictable genre, and they’re working with some fairly predictable actors. This gives "Ties" something else in common with "Killers" and "Cradle and the much-ballyhooed "The Tied That Bind.""

The role is played by Julia Den in her film "The Tie That Bind." Her performance is convincing and compelling, and she carries the film with her every moment. Despite the fact that they are together, they’re up against a rather predictable genre, and they’re working with some fairly predictable actors. This gives "Ties" something else in common with "Killers" and "Cradle and the much-ballyhooed "The Tied That Bind.""

Even their last name, Cliffton, is collectively interesting as a Won­derful role and is once again, an example of the film’s strength lies in its ability to make the viewer feel the stakes. Despite the fact that they are together, they’re up against a rather predictable genre, and they’re working with some fairly predictable actors. 2nd drag-queen flick shows at Bijou

Mark Pellegr
The Daily Iowan

...If you caught either of the two recent drag-queen features, "Wong Foo..." and "Lipstick," you probably know that San Francisco has officially become a media-sanctioned part of the drag-queen scene. Despite the shorter title, "Wong Foo..." does a flat-out eerie vocal impersonation of Billie Holiday, and Mistress Formika, who changes the Beastie Boys' first hit into "You Got to Fight for Your Right to Be Queer." It's that it may be a little too slight. Most of the interviews stop and spent the next day in a small park.
"Virtual Pool" is in the rear view • in the world of TV's most daunting niche: court TV. It's not only a runaway hit, it's also a major turn on for home shoppers. And who wouldn't want to be a part of the action from the comfort of their own home? Using a variety of high-tech devices, players can choose a virtual pool table, select their favorite music, and even forecast the weather. The game is a hit with audiences around the world, and has quickly become a staple of modern entertainment. Could "Virtual Pool" be the next big thing in TV? It's hard to say, but one thing is certain: if you're looking for a fun, exciting way to spend your time, "Virtual Pool" is definitely worth checking out. Blind Melon lead ponders success

Kira Bria
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Blind Melon's Shannon Hoon is too busy learning about himself to worry about the success of his band's latest album. After the record peaked at No. 14 on the Billboard 200 chart, he went on an amino acid scratch debut album. The 14-track project, "Soup," is full of Hoon's self-authentica-

"Nothing," he grumbled proudly of radio. But the real news is that he has written lyrics for the group's upcoming album "No Rain." "The band's success," he said, "I don't know what all these people are talking about. We just play good music." He's single and has two children from his first marriage. "I don't care about how much people say shouldn't be true," he said. "I'm going to be a singer." Hoon said. "I'm going to be a singer because I'm going to be a singer. I can't do anything else." Hoon is too busy taking care of his two children to think about himself if he's going to be the band's lead singer. Mixed reviews followed the band's appearance at the 1995 Bonnaroo Music and Arts Festival in Tennessee. The band was criticized for drunken and disorderly conduct; it also was criticized for its new singles. "I'm a fan of the new record. I think that just the whole crime against children is hideous, and it's not going to get any better," Hoon said. "I think that just the whole crime against children is hideous, and it's the one thing that makes me believe that capital punishment is all right," he said.

A FEW THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT CREDIT:

Before you sign this application you should make sure you fully understand what you're getting into. A credit card can be a useful financial tool that can make life easier to live. However, if used irresponsibly, it can become a tremendous burden. With this in mind, it's important to ask yourself some questions before signing anything.

Is there an annual fee? How much interest will be charged? What are the rewards for using this card? In addition to asking questions, make sure you read everything on the application. Understanding the terms of your credit agreement is important and will provide many of the answers you seek.

Finally, the best advice is to use common sense. You know how much you can afford to repay and how long it will take. For example, common sense dictates if you only pay the minimum due each month it will take longer to pay off the balance.

Having a credit card is a commitment from which you can benefit. We urge you to take the time to make sure you're prepared for this commitment.
