UI alcohol policy under fire

Fraternity death investigation results may prompt action by regents

Kristen Smith
The Daily Iowan

As a direct result of the investigation into the alcohol-related death of fraternity associate member Matthew Garofalo, some Iowa state Board of Regents members are considering proposing changes in the alcohol policies for the three state universities.

The UI, the Iowa City Police Department and the regents continue to look into the incident as more facts about the death are revealed. However, Dr. Victor Edwards, deputy medical examiner for Johnson County, said reports that Garofalo died from choking on his vomit are wrong.

Regents to evaluate incident, alcohol policy

Regents President Marvin Pomerantz said the regents are not making a separate inquiry into the death of Garofalo. Instead, the board is kept posted on the investigation by the UI.

However, once both the UI and the police investigations are complete, the regents will decide "if this is an isolated incident or a flaw in the policy" and appropriate actions will be taken, Pomerantz said.

"We (regents) will take whatever action is required under the circumstances. But I prefer not to speculate," Pomerantz said. "We are always concerned when a tragedy like this happens. We have every empathy for the parents of the young man.

"The Board of Regents has complete faith in the administration of the university. We haven't initiated anything at this point. The university is doing the investigating. We have every confidence that (Peter Nathan) can lead the investigation."

There is still no indication as to when the investigations will be complete. Ann Rhodes, vice president for University Relations, said there is no pressure by the regents to rush the inquiry.

"I think they will want us to do it right instead of doing it quickly," she said. The outcome of the investigations will affect the regents' decision whether to change the current alcohol policy, regent Beverly Smith said.

"Whenever a student loses their life on campus, people want to know what happened," she said.

If the regents do alter the alcohol policy, the University of Northern Iowa, Iowa State University and the UI will be affected.

During a two-hour break before the Hawkeye marching band performed for the Iowa-Iowa State

"We were trying to touch the goal post, but I couldn't touch (it)," Rubocki said. "(UI student) Dan Miksch hoisted me up on his shoulders so I could touch it. I hung up there for about 2 seconds, and it tipped about 30 degrees from center. When I felt it tipping, I just jumped."

After the incident, Rubocki was taken to UI band director David Henning and was then told to take the problem to the Iowa State athsaid.

Rubocki said straightening the post was a big inconvenience for ISU officials, but they were not angry.

"It was just done in fun," UI drum major and senior Charlie Taylor said. "The band apologized. Their athletic department wasn't mad."

UI officials don't seem to be upset by the incident, either — Henning called the incident "a silly little thing."

COMPETITION STAYS

Residents dive into swimsuit debate

Maira Crowley
The Daily Iowan

Although nearly one million Americans made the 1-900 call and voted to keep the swimsuit competition in the Miss America pageant Saturday night, Iowa City residents are still divided on the issue. Debate over whether or not the sight of supple thighs and visible cleavage degrades or elevates womanhood rages, even as Miss Oklahoma begins her reign as Miss America.

UI graduate student Cedar Nordbye is vehemently opposed to pageants in general and swimsuit competitions in particular.

"Generally, they serve as another piece in the big jigsaw puzzle of how women should think they

Miss Oklahoma lands national honor

John Curran
Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Some things you should know about Miss America Shawntel Smith: Her real first name is LaCricia, it took her four tries to get to the pageant and she's the first redhead to wear the crown in 51 years.

One more thing: She won the title Saturday on her 24th birthday. Between now and her next one, she will earn about $250,000 in appearance fees and receive a $40,000 scholarship to go with $12,000 she already won competing in the Miss Oklahoma pageant.

No wonder she woke up Sunday wondering if it was just another dream like the one she had last week in which she was crowned Miss America 1996.

"I had to go over and look at my crown to make sure," said Smith, whose middle name is Shawntel.

The 5-foot-3 1/2-inch, blue-eyed Smith is from Muldrow, a town of about 3,200 in eastern Oklahoma. She works as a marketing director for Northeastern State University and plans to earn a master's in business administration from Oklahoma City University.

Or at least she did before the pageant. Now, Smith will travel up to 20,000 miles a month making speeches and other appearances as Miss America.

Her platform, "School to Work Education," involves teaching school children about careers early on as a means of preparing them for the job market.

She might consider stressing the importance of persistence. After all, she knows a thing or two about it, having lost in three Miss Oklahoma pageants before she finally won.

The promise of scholarship aid kept her coming back, she said.

"The main thing that kept me going was the scholarship money. My father could have paid for my college, but I'm glad he didn't have to," said Smith, who put herself through Northeastern State with money won in pageants.

On Saturday, she wowed the judges with her rendition of "Woman In the Moon," from the Barbra Streisand remake of "A Star Is Born."

Smith is the fourth Miss Oklahoma to wear the Miss America crown. The others were Norma Smallwood in 1926, Jane Jayroe in 1967 and Susan Powell in 1981.

Miss Oregon Emily John Orton was first runner-up, followed by Miss Arkansas Paula Gaye Montgomery, Miss California Tiffany Stoker and Miss Illinois Tracy Hayes.

Swimsuits were the other big winners Saturday: Viewers voted overwhelmingly to keep the swimsuit competition in the pageant. In a live, unscientific call-in vote, 79 percent of the nearly 1 million callers who got through favored swimsuits, officials said.

"As far as I'm concerned, that puts an end to the swimsuit controversy, at least for a few years,"

Associated Press

Miss Oklahoma Shawntel Smith is mobbed by other contestants after being crowned the 1996 Miss America at the 75th Anniversary Miss America pageant at the Atlantic City Convention Hall Saturday.

Leonard Horn, president of the pageant, said Sunday.

Horn said most of the money generated by the calls, which cost 50 cents each, went to pay for the poll. The remainder — as much as $50,000 — will be split between the Miss America Scholarship Foundation and a charity to be chosen by NBC.

The majority of contestants, including Smith, said they were pro-swimsuit. The 10 finalists wore identical red suits for their barefoot walk down the runway.

After she won, Smith blew kisses to the crowd, mouthed thanks to the judges and blinked back tears after her name was announced, and outgoing Miss America Heather Whitestone, the first deaf winner, placed the crown on her head.

She took her victory walk down the runway in a beaded white gown.

Smith said her victory would mean much to Oklahomans still recovering from the April 19 bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City, about 163 miles west of her hometown.

Fergie eager to patch things up with Prince Andrew

LONDON (AP) — The Duchess of York still loves her royal man and he "wants me back," a newspaper reported Sunday.

The former Sarah Ferguson and her two daughters may move back to the estate where Prince Andrew lives, but in a separate house, the News of the World said.

"He wants me back. I love him and we both love the girls," the newspaper quoted her as telling unidentified friends. "I don't know what's stopping us."

She and Andrew have picked out part of Sunninghill Park estate for a house for her and their daughters, Princess Beatrice, 7, and Princess Eugenie, 5, the paper said.

The couple has been separated since 1992, and the duchess was forced to move out of a house she was renting last year when the landlords opted to sell it. The two have been seen in public with increasing frequency.

Poet Brooks urges capitalization of 'black' in media

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gwendolyn Brooks likes the word "black" with a capital "B."

Blacks have fought hard over the years to get the labels of black, "colored" and "Negro" in the upper case, but the print media won't accept it, the Pulitzer Prize-winning poet said Friday at a luncheon.

"The tiredness of the black spirit has noted this, and with glee has noted also that 'African-American' comes all capitalized," she said, "and that white people, although much amused by this entire little fray, seem disposed to accept it ..."

Newspapers and magazines "still refuse to honor the notion of respectable and respected identity and insist on spelling 'blacks' with a little 'b,'" said Brooks, who won the 1950 poetry Pulitzer for "Annie Allen."

Radio gabber plans revealing book, angers governor ex-hubby

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Radio talk-show host Barbara Carlson has embarrassed her ex-husband, Gov. Arne Carlson, before by talking about their failed marriage on the air.

Now she's planning a tell-all book, and the governor is warning that he won't tolerate any "defamatory material."

The book, "This Broad's Life," is scheduled for release next summer. She chronicles her years of alcohol abuse and her dozen years of marriage to Carlson.

"Part of this book deals with my life and drinking, and the governor is part of that," Barbara Carlson said.

"There are some things that are very painful in the book."

Carlson said in the letter to his ex: "I will not tolerate any inva-

Her response: "I am not giving him veto power over the story of my life."

'Friends' actors worry about popularity, typecasting traps

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — There's no turning back for the cast of "Friends."

Jennifer Aniston, who plays Rachel, said the attention brought on by the show's wildly successful first season can be unnerving.

"This is when I say, 'Jesus, I just want my life back.' But I know it's too late," she told TV Guide in its Sept. 23 issue.

David Schwimmer, who plays Ross, fears typecasting.

"Each of us likes to believe that we will have careers beyond this," he said. "But when a series starts getting into things like a hit record and a music video and mugs and T-shirts ... well, I don't want to be known as Ross when I'm 60."

Queen Mother shuts castle doors on Charles' girlfriend

LONDON (AP) — Don't look for Camilla Parker Bowles at the Queen Mother's digs anytime soon.

Prince Charles' grandmother has twice refused his requests to bring his reported lover to official functions at her residences, according to Sunday Express, which quoted an unidentified senior royal adviser.

The Queen Mother doesn't object to Camilla Parker Bowles personally but wants to prevent Charles from divorcing Princess Diana while he is heir to the throne, the newspaper said.

Gore rouses support for Democrats in '96

Jay Dee
The Daily Iowan

INDIANOLA, Iowa — Vice President Al Gore rallied Iowa Democrats on Sunday to fight "right-wing extremism" and to work for the re-election of President Clinton and Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin.

Gore was in Iowa to speak at Harkin's annual steak fry at the Warren County Fairgrounds in Indianola.

More than 1,000 supporters listened as Gore criticized Republican plans to cut farm programs. Removing the "safety net" of farm programs "is a triumph of ideological zealotry over common sense," he said.

"We need President Clinton to stand up and veto it for the farmers of this country," Gore said.

Gore also criticized Republican plans to reform the Medicare system, saying congressional Republicans want to cut $245 billion from Medicare while cutting taxes by $245 billion.

"They match up exactly," Gore said. "They're not saving the (Medicare) trust fund; they're trying to finance this (tax cut) provision."

Both Gore and Harkin said Republican presidential candidates were bowing to their party's right wing.

"How they think this could appeal to centrist voters I don't know," Gore said.

"This race next year is not just a race between Republicans and Democrats," Harkin said. "It's a debate between moving this country forward or following Newt (Gingrich) backward."

Democratic leaders were optimistic about Harkin's chances for re-election in November 1996.

State Sen. Dick Dearden, D-Des Moines, said Harkin should do well in Polk County.

"He'll be as strong as he's ever been," he said.

Former Iowa Democratic Party chairman Arthur Davis said central Iowa Democrats "woke up after Neal Smith lost." Davis predicted a stronger Democratic effort in 1996.

Harkin said he is taking nothing for granted.

"Make no mistake about it — it will be tough," he said. "They're going to come after me."

State Rep. Steve Grubbs and State Sen. Maggie Tinsman have announced they will seek the Republican nomination to oppose Harkin.

Both campaigns claim Harkin is vulnerable because he favors big government.

Harkin disputed the pro-big government claim.

"I don't know how they get away with this," he said. "We will have fewer people working for the federal government since John Kennedy was president. Democrats did that."

Gore also used his Iowa appearance to praise Clinton.

"We have transformed this economy," Gore said, citing record small-business creation and low unemployment and inflation.

Gore said Clinton has earned the title "education president" by creating a national service program for students and defending student loans against proposed budget cuts.

Ruby Ridge hearings may cloud Specter's presidential bid

Mike Glover
Associated Press

JOHNSTON, Iowa — Pennsylvania Sen. Arlen Specter said his presidential campaign could be damaged by his high-profile role on a Senate committee investigating the deadly standoff at Ruby Ridge, Idaho.

"I think that's just a risk I have to take," said Specter, who also conceded he has benefited by the heavy attention the hearing into the 1992 standoff has generated.

Specter is running the Senate hearings on the shootout between white separatist Randy Weaver and federal law-enforcement officials.

Weaver's wife and son, plus a deputy U.S. marshal, were killed in the siege.

While Specter said Saturday it's important to examine mistakes law-enforcement officials made during the raid, critics charge the hearings are undermining law-enforcement efforts.

In addition, the hearings are giving new attention to Weaver's extremist views and raising questions about the role he played in the standoff.

CHICK-FIL-A FOUNDER STRESSES PERSEVERANCE

Chicken bigwig blends religion, business

Chad Graham

The Daily Iowan

The value of religion, commitment and chicken were served up by Chick-Fil-A founder and CEO S. Truett Cathy in a speech at the Pappajohn Business Administration Building Friday.

Cathy, head of the $500 million-a-year company specializing in chicken entrées, is known for his philanthropy.

"He funds college educations for hundreds of employees, has started a youth camp and supports foster homes," Gary Fethke, dean of the UI College of Business Administration, said.

Cathy operates his company on religious principles, and the Scriptures are key in having good business practices, he said.

"Though the company works to glorify God, you don't have to be religious to work here," Cathy said.

"I feel that it is a choice you have to make for yourself."

Cathy attributes his strong religious ties to his childhood and the influence of his sisters.

"I was brought up to go to Sunday school; my older sisters were involved in church activities," he said. "I soon found that it was a joy to (go to) church, and I looked forward to Sunday."

"There is no conflict between the Bible and business, and I make no apology for what I do," he said.

"That's one of the problems in society — people want to be people-pleasers. You have to make up your mind for yourself."

Cathy said his drive to succeed started at an early age, when he started recycling Coke bottles.

"I used to make a 40-cent weekly profit on recycling 5-cent bottles," he said. "I also had a paper route for seven years, and I always went for the incentive."

Cathy had little interest in school and said work prepared him for the restaurant business.

"The world is ruled by C-average students," he said. "You don't have to be a straight-A student; you have to want something really bad and just go for it."

Chick-Fil-A, founded with $10,000 in 1946 as The Dwarf House Restaurant in Hapeville, Ga., was originally open 24 hours a day, but Cathy soon opted to close the restaurants on Sundays.

"Sunday is a very important day for me, and I see the breakdown of the family experience," he said. "I think that people respect that choice of Chick-Fil-A."

Cathy also said starting a restaurant involves a lot of commitment and perseverance.

"If you are totally committed to a business, you are not going to fail and you're going to reach your fullest potential," he said. "You also have to do things right 100 percent of the time, because one bad experience is all it takes."

The Chick-Fil-A logo came into being because something unusual must be done to a common name before it can be legally patented, Cathy said.

"I was driving home thinking of what we could name a place that serves chicken filets, when this idea came to me," he said. "Over the years we've had many people, though, who have pronounced it 'Chick-fill-uh.'"

UI senior Fred Stieglitz said the presentation was valuable because it showed how business and religion relate.

"It reminded me of the importance of Christian principles and that success in business depends on a Christian life," he said. "His success shows everyone where success starts and ends."

Cyndie Tiemann, coordinator for the college's executive lecture series, said the presentation showed the American success story.

"It was neat to hear how someone with nothing can overcome hurdles against opposition," she said.

Ann Rhodes, UI vice president for University Relations, said Cathy's mixture of religion and business didn't violate the UI's policy of separation of church and state.

"UI is a place where all views should be expressed," she said. "It has nothing to do with the separation of church and state, but it has everything to do with the free exchange of ideas."

Hurricane Marilyn ravages Virgin Islands

Kevin Galvin

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, U.S. Virgin Islands — The yachts which used to be in the marina are on the highway. The red roofs of houses are strewn on the ground. The duty-free shops where tourists used to look for bargains are filled with looters.

Hurricane Marilyn has moved on from St. Thomas, but the Caribbean island it left behind was

"I want all the young people that have been running around to go home and remain at home."

Virgin Islands Gov. Roy Schneider in a statement

a changed place Sunday.

Electricity, water and phones were out. Air traffic controllers, the windows of their tower blown out by 100-mph winds, used binoculars and radios to guide in relief flights. Half the houses on the island were destroyed, and nearly all the others damaged.

In Charlotte Amalie, capital of the U.S. Virgin Islands, hundreds of people looted stores at a waterfront shopping center. No policemen were in sight.

"These are all odd shoes, man," said a young man at a Foot Locker store. "I can't find something that fits."

The hurricane, the fourth to hit the Caribbean in as many weeks, tore through the Virgin Islands and eastern Puerto Rico on Saturday, blowing apart homes, tossing parked airplanes into the air and killing at least nine people.

Six of the dead were in St. Thomas, whose population is about 51,000, and two people were killed in St. Croix, the most populous of the Virgin Islands with 55,000 people. One person was killed in Puerto Rico.

President Clinton declared the U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico disaster areas, making them eligible for federal emergency aid.

In St. Thomas, many buildings lost their facades, gaping open like dolls' houses. FEMA said half the houses on the island were destroyed, and another 50 to 55 percent were damaged.

Marilyn blew out the windows of St. Thomas' hospital and flooded it, making it virtually unusable. Doctors were trying to care for 49 patients, including nine critically injured in the storm and four on life-support systems with erratic electricity powered by a generator, said Dr. Manuel Guzman.

Eight patients were evacuated Sunday, all by helicopter because debris blocked the road to the airport. Sheets from tin roofs, uprooted trees and utility poles lined the highway.

One stretch along the waterfront was blocked by two 30- to 40-foot yachts blown onto the road from the bay.

The 82-foot U.S. Coast Guard cutter Point Ledge teetered on the edge of the pier, 30 feet from the roadway. Another two dozen yachts were beached on the far side of the bay.

The six people killed on St. Thomas included three reportedly aboard boats battered by 12-foot-high waves and at least one man apparently crushed by debris, according to David Sachs of the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Police in Puerto Rico on Sunday found the body of Jack Strickland, a diving instructor from New York City, in a sunken sailboat. Two more were killed by the storm in St. Croix, hospital officials said without elaborating.

At least 50 more people were injured or missing in St. Thomas, although FEMA said an earlier report of up to 50 people trapped in a collapsed apartment complex in Charlotte Amalie was incorrect. Although the five-story buildings were in rubble, they appeared to have been under construction, and FEMA officials in Washington said Sunday that nobody had been trapped.

Communications to St. Thomas were out, and FEMA set up two satellite telephones on Sunday. AT&T was sending a team to replace a microwave dish which Marilyn toppled from a building in Charlotte Amalie, knocking out long-distance phone service.

Virgin Islands Gov. Roy Schneider declared a 3 p.m. to 6 a.m. cur-few.

"Friends, I'm asking you to be calm and continue to be in your homes," Schneider said in a statement, which was broadcast by a Puerto Rican radio station because all of the Virgin Islands' stations were knocked out.

"I want all the young people that have been running around to go home and remain at home."

FEMA said FBI agents would accompany a shipment of satellite equipment Sunday from a military base in Martinsburg, W.Va., to St. Croix. The agents presumably would be intended to prevent looting.

When Hurricane Hugo hit in 1989, officials in St. Croix didn't ask for military help for days, and most businesses had been looted by the time troops arrived.

Old Penguin books function like Proust's little cookie, their smell evoking those years when I first read real literature for real pleasure. I remember following my nose through Zola and Turgenev and Somerset Maugham. So many titles. I also remember that these little paperbacks with their simple Bauhaus design, with their spines of orange and green and black, with their wonderful basementy smell would be my allies as I stumbled through an awkward adolescence. For sixty years Penguin has made great literature available to anyone with a few dollars. Who else can say that?

NEW EVIDENCE COULD ENDANGER PROSECUTION'S CASE

Simpson defense poised to wrap up with a bang

Linda Deutsch

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — With the prosecution's last scheduled witness on the stand, O.J. Simpson's defense is looking for a big finish, something to knock the jury on its heels and erase the impact of a strong prosecution rebuttal.

Something, perhaps, to remind jurors of former Detective Mark Fuhrman.

Defense attorneys spent the weekend interviewing a disaffected FBI agent about his allegations against a witness and examining new information about possible misconduct by a lead police detective.

If true, the allegations against Detective Philip Vannatter — involving a search of Simpson's estate — could endanger the entire prosecution case, Southwestern University law Professor Robert Pugsley said.

A prosecution spokeswoman said the search issue should cause "only a minimal delay in the proceedings."

The search at Simpson's Brentwood estate the morning his ex-wife and her friend were found slain two miles away has been one of the case's thorniest issues.

Vannatter reportedly told a witness in another case that when authorities went to the estate on June 13, 1994, hours after the murders, they already considered Simpson a suspect.

But Vannatter, Fuhrman and other detectives have testified under oath that Simpson was not a suspect at that time.

They have said they went to Simpson's home to tell him his former wife was dead and to make arrangements for custody of the couple's children.

Vannatter and Fuhrman also said they feared other victims might be dead or in danger on Simpson's property, justifying a decision to have Fuhrman scale a wall to gain entry without a search warrant.

After they entered, Fuhrman has testified, he came upon a bloody glove on a pathway behind the house — a key piece of evidence which the defense insists was planted to frame Simpson.

A finding that the search was illegal could have eliminated all evidence seized from Simpson's estate, including the glove, bloody socks and blood drops, and could have destroyed the prosecution case against the football legend.

Last summer, the preliminary hearing judge upheld the search. Superior Court Judge Lance Ito, the trial judge, last year chastised Vannatter for reckless disregard for the truth in obtaining a warrant for a subsequent search of Simpson's property.

But Ito has upheld all of the searches.

American dream for president

America's infatuation with retired Gen. Colin Powell is an infatuation with the quintessential American dream: the Horatio Alger rags-to-riches story.

Here is a man raised by Jamaican immigrants in the Bronx whose hard work and sacrifice enabled him to rise through the Army to the military's top position: chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. His story cuts across party lines, appealing to some of the deepest, oldest beliefs in American culture.

It's a story that can be claimed by both the left and the right as being their political goal: the ability for an individual to succeed. For Republicans, Powell symbolizes the "pull yourself up by your own bootstraps" line of thinking. For Democrats, Powell symbolizes what's possible with a little government help. Powell, who acknowledges having benefited from affirmative action, criticized the Republican "bootstraps" argument when he said, "All did not have bootstraps; some did not have boots."

As he embarks on a tour to promote his autobiography, "My American Journey," his $6 million-dollar advance seems not only forgivable, but laudable. "There, see? It can be done," his advance suggests. One can't help comparing the criticism of Newt Gingrich's multi-million dollar advance for his novel, "1945," which was perceived as just another example of a conniving politician trying to scam a buck and promote himself at the same time. When Gingrich gets a big advance, it promotes cynicism; when Powell gets a big advance, it promotes optimism. Powell's reputation seems to be impervious to stain.

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

Powell's popularity stems from his embodiment of the American work ethic and his possible third-party presidential bid.

A big part of his popularity comes from his lack of detailed positions. "People are wondering what Forrest Gump Colin Powell stands for," he said in a Time magazine interview last week. When pressed to take a stand on currently divisive issues, Powell has been noncommittal. In his book, he admits "in taking stands on issues, I would quickly alienate one interest group or another and burn off much popularity."

The few positions he has taken on issues reveal traditionally Democratic stances. He's pro-choice, pro-affirmative action and pro-gun control. Powell opposes organized prayer in the schools. He worries about the children of welfare recipients and if their mothers are treated harshly. Though he's never registered under either party, his ties to the Republican party run deep. He served as a senior adviser to both Reagan and Bush, and it was Bush who promoted him to his highest office.

Powell still hasn't decided if he'll seek the presidential nomination. He hints he'd be more likely to run as a Republican than a Democrat and seems more based on expediency and professional ties than on ideology. His criticisms of party politics strike a chord in most Americans, and he observes "the time may be at hand for a third party to emerge."

Powell seems to embody the hope for a third-party candidate who can rise above the cynicism of party politics.

Greeks unable to police themselves; UI should control drinking violations

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

Garofalo's death is not the first sign that the Greek community is ineffective in patrolling itself, but it should be the last.

One year ago tomorrow, Lambda Chi Alpha was caught serving alcohol to a minor, capping a month of documented violations of Interfraternity Council rules and Iowa state laws.

After more than a year of flaunting the rules and the law and after the death of a student, it's now apparent Lambda Chi Alpha is incapable of policing itself.

But Lambda Chi Alpha isn't alone. Last spring, four fraternities — Alpha Kappa Lambda, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Alpha Mu and Beta Theta Pi — and one sorority — Gamma Phi Beta — were caught violating under-age-drinking rules and state law.

IFC is responsible for enforcing its own rules. The self-regulatory policies, such as they are, don't work. Obviously stronger sanctions and punishments are necessary.

The UI should take responsibility for enforcing state laws at university-recognized events. When a 21-year-old member of a UI-recognized fraternity hands a beer to a 19-year-old minor, they are both breaking several laws, and the UI has a responsibility to stop them.

The UI must crack down on IFC and the individual fraternities and sororities. No sanction or punishment is too extreme, for if they had been in place a few weeks ago, Garofalo might still be alive.

For example, IFC should begin banning fraternities and sororities for under-age-drinking infractions. If an organization accumulates three infractions in a five-year period, it should be banned completely. If IFC refuses to do a better job of enforcement, the UI must take over.

As the official policy is re-evaluated in the next few months, many Greeks will defend their groups by pointing out the positive, philanthropic activities in which they participate. Their arguments will be hollow.

If fraternities and sororities, including Lambda Chi Alpha, really want to dispel negative stereotypes, they will stop childish activities like binge drinking and wrapping houses in toilet paper.

In the case of fraternities and sororities, anything short of actively fighting negative stereotypes is tantamount to reinforcing them. If members of the UI's Greek system can't learn that, Garofalo's death will have meant nothing.

Monday morning at Friday's

Last week, I wandered into Friday's, the neighborhood barber, to see about getting a hair cut.

When Mr. Friday told me he'd been in business for 27 years — and men's and women's cuts were the same price, $10 — I was sold and thought, "How forward thinking of the neighborhood barber." So I waited for Mr. Friday to finish shaving the head of a soldier and sat down.

Unlike most beauty shops I'd been in, there weren't any fashion magazines. Rather, there were a variety of Playboy magazines and the new Penthouse, all of which I avoided because I figured it was bad enough for a woman to be invading the place, let alone one who looked at men's magazines.

Mr. Friday talked to me about his brand-new grandson and did a real fine job cutting my hair, reminding me afterwards, "I only do cuts — not a lot of styling."

The nostalgia of Mr. Friday's shop made my Monday by reminding me there is nothing like going out of your universe to learn a thing or two about where you are.

That's a quote from a comedian I saw on HBO a couple of nights ago. I don't remember his name — I think it was Marc something or other, and it's really not all that important, anyway. I mean, he was mildly funny — I had a few laughs and a couple of chuckles but no snorts or guffaws, mind you.

The thing is, it got me thinking about this whole Midwestern prejudice the rest of the country — and especially national entertainment — seems to have. It seems to me the typical stereotype of anyone who lives between California and New York is a toothless gomer who whittles statues of Jesus to relieve excess stress.

I thought about it, and I figured out what is to blame for the national hatred of the Midwest. It's "Footloose." "Footloose" is to blame. It is an evil propaganda film of such huge proportions; it would have even made the Nazis proud. It is the root of all this Midwestern bashing.

I thought about it, and I figured out what is to blame for the national hatred of the Midwest. It's "Footloose." "Footloose" is to blame. It is an evil propaganda film of such huge proportions; it would have even made the Nazis proud. It is the root of all this Midwestern bashing.

Think about it. Our hero is Ren McCormick. He moves down to sleepy little Beaumont from the big city with a closet full of skinny leather ties, a peeyellow Volkswagen bug, a Quiet Riot tape and a haircut like the Incredible Hulk's. Ren's had a pretty tough time lately; his father has just died, and he and his mother have been forced to move in with his aunt and uncle in the country.

Things aren't all bad, though. Ren was lucky enough to find a warehouse on the edge of town where he can do his gymnastics routine to burn off some excess teen angst. He has that going for him, which is nice. Also, Ren still hasn't lost his touch on the dance floor. When it comes to dancing, the man is smooth.

However, as time goes by, Ren starts to notice Beaumont isn't like other towns. You see, ever since some kids got into a car accident, it has been illegal to have any kind of fun in Beaumont. There is no drinking, no smoking, no rock 'n' roll music and above all, NO DANCING. According to the Rev. Shaw Moore, dancing leads to sin and fornication, and he will not stand for it in his town.

But Ren must dance. He has to — it's like the call of the wild. So with a little help from his best friend, Willard — a hopelessly goofy dolt who never combs his hair or closes his mouth — and his girlfriend, Ariel, an anorexic psychopath who just happens to be the Reverend's daughter, he decides to fight city hall. He makes a grand speech in front of the city council, an assembly of fascist Hicks with beady eyes and baby-blue polyester suits, and asks them to have a senior prom. "It's our time to dance," Ren says with a tear in his eye and a Bible in his hand.

But, alas, the city council shoots him down, and just to prove it's really serious, it decides to stage an old-fashioned book burning. Well, the Reverend, in all his benevolence, decides enough is enough and lets the kids have their dance. After a fight scene (where, by the way, we find out Ren can not only dance, but apparently he's some sort of ninja on the side, because he takes out three guys with a deadly assortment of spinning back kicks), the movie ends with bunch of dorks break-dancing in a barn on the outskirts of town. Everybody is happy and Beaumont is saved.

Excuse me, I'm going to go throw up. Not only does the plot line make us look completely ignorant, but don't forget the scene where Ren proves his manhood by winning a chicken fight against TRACTORS. Also, only 10 scenes in the entire movie don't have a mill or a cow in the background. Every stereotype was busted out for the making of this flick, from the big, awkward, farm boy with the good heart to the overzealous preacher who uses censorship in the name of God.

Other TV shows and movies are just as bad as this one, but this was, by far, the biggest hit and reached the biggest audience. It's kind of the grand poobah of country hate flicks. We will never be safe until this kind of entertainment persecution is stopped.

And that's one to grow on.

Islamic militants slay presidential candidate, terrorize village

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — An independent presidential candidate was assassinated Sunday, casting further doubt on the legitimacy of an election already marred by an opposition boycott.

Abdel Magid Ben Hadid, 50, was shot to death in Boudouaou, 18 miles east of Algiers, a police official said on condition of anonymity. There was no immediate claim of responsibility.

Opposition groups contend the election, the first round of which is scheduled for Nov. 16, is a ploy to legitimize the military-backed government.

Several groups began fighting the government in January 1992, when the army canceled elections an Islamic party was poised to win. More than 30,000 people have been killed. The militant groups want to install strict religious rule.

On Sunday, numerous explosions could be heard around the Algerian capital.

Witnesses told Sunday of a massacre of 15 men, women and children by Islamic militants who burst into their village as they slept, slit their throats and bulldozed their homes.

The assailants remained in Boukrane, about 90 miles east of Algiers, another four hours, screaming religious and political slogans.

Witnesses said the militants did not identify themselves, and there was no immediate claim of responsibility.

Cookie crook slapped with hefty sentence

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Four uneaten chocolate chip cookies could put Kevin T. Weber behind bars for life.

Weber, 35, was convicted of burglary Thursday for breaking into a Santa Ana restaurant on Mother's Day and stealing the snacks. It was his third felony conviction.

"People better think twice about what they do out there. It ain't funny and (law-enforcement officials) are serious about getting us," Weber told the Orange County Register in a jailhouse interview Friday.

The restaurant's manager said he was stunned by the potential sentence. Under a 1 1/2-year-old California law, Weber can receive a sentence of 25 years to life in prison.

"I think he should pay for what he's done, probably clean up the freeways or something. But 25 years? I'm surprised. I'm shocked," said Mohammad Alkuder, manager of Eric's Gazebo.

Prosecutors say Weber slipped into the restaurant through a rooftop vent on May 14 to steal the safe but tripped the burglar alarm and fled with just the cookies.

Police arrested him outside. Weber didn't even get to eat the cookies because they were booked into evidence.

Weber said he was drunk at the time and does not remember the heist.

Paris bombing suspect foils search efforts

PARIS (AP) — French authorities trying to catch a terrorist bomber are coming to grips with an unpleasant thought — their No. 1 suspect may have quietly given them the slip.

After beefing up security at border crossings and conducting an astounding 800,000 identity checks, some investigators are convinced Khaled Kelkal is no longer in France.

In fact, the intense manhunt for the 24-year-old Algerian — whose fingerprints were found on a bomb which failed to explode on high-speed train tracks — may have had the "perverse effect" of distracting the overall probe, one investigator said.

Police plastered more than 170,000 posters of Kelkal all over France, hoping he would be recognized and captured.

'Miracle Baby': Life after quake

Joseph Frazier
Associated Press

TULYEHUALCO, Mexico — Ten years ago Tuesday, 4-day-old Jesus Antonio Castillo's world collapsed from above and dropped from below.

For the next 10 days, the newborn infant lay in the rubble of Mexico City's collapsed General Hospital after an earthquake shook the capital on Sept. 19, 1985, and killed more than 6,000 people.

Somehow, Jesus Antonio survived. He turned 10 on Friday — a healthy, active child who likes to box with his father and play with his dog.

Yet he bears both physical and mental scars from the ordeal.

He attends school but speaks haltingly when he speaks at all. He still receives psychological help.

"The doctors told us he survived because he was still used to being in the womb," said his father, Ubaldo Castillo Morales, 35, a truck driver.

"They said he was used to the heat, and a water heater had broken in the quake, and there was steam around him and his body began to feed itself again like it did when he was in the womb."

Jesus Antonio's mother, Leonila Medina Hernandez, had gone home from the hospital the day before. He was being held for observation for possible liver problems.

The infant managed a cry, which led rescuers to him. A large beam lay across his crib and it took rescuers several hours to free him.

He was nicknamed the "Miracle Baby," hospitalized for 44 days and sent home.

He weighed 7 1/2 pounds when he was born and six pounds when they found him. An infant girl found with him died a few days later.

Jesus Antonio attends a private school with a monthly tuition of $67, a great deal of money for a working-class Mexican family.

A fund established to help children harmed by the quake pays his way.

"The doctors told us he survived because he was still used to being in the womb."

Ubaldo Castillo Morales, father of Jesus Antonio Castillo

He said he neither seeks nor receives special treatment.

"The kids at school ask me about my wounds, and I show them," he said, toeing the ground outside the family's modest cinder-block home on the edge of this village, about 30 miles south of Mexico City.

He pulled off his shirt to reveal a deep scar on his back and brushed back his hair to reveal another on his head.

Three hospitals were severely damaged by the 8.1-magnitude quake. Jesus Antonio's relatives helped search the rubble after the quake and checked other hospitals where rescued children had been taken.

"But they were all one or two months old; they were not newborns and could not have been Jesus Antonio," his father said. "We kept hoping he would be found in another place."

Then, on Sept. 29, rescuers brought good news. "They told us they had found him," the father said.

"We still give thanks to God for letting him live and that he has a whole family. A lot of the babies rescued in the quake were left orphans."

Jesus Antonio's parents have tried to make life normal for him despite the publicity. He has three siblings.

He likes putting on the gloves for a few rounds with his father, who used to box professionally in rural villages.

"He comes home and does his homework or watches television," his father said. "When there is something to do here, we put him to work."

Last week, another strong quake shook Mexico City.

"We relived the experience," his father said. "We were afraid it would be the same as 10 years ago, but it wasn't. There were no deaths to lament; that's good, no?"

The family cherishes a cigar box full of photos: Jesus Antonio when he was released as a chubby infant from the Infant's Hospital, Jesus Antonio dressed as a chicken in a costume pageant, growing up, posing with the doctor who oversaw his rescue.

"I never gave up hope that they would find that infant," his mother said. "The memories are not so big now, but it was an eternity for me then."

Many things are different today, his father said: "We care more for life now."

NEW DESIGN TARGETS COUNTERFEITERS

U.S. dollars to acquire new look

James Rubin
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — American currency is about to get a face-lift — a high-tech overhaul to thwart counterfeiters that will have holders of greenbacks seeing double.

Two portraits of an American historical figure will be on each bill, but you'll have to hold the bill up to the light to see one of them.

It will be the first distinct new look for U.S. paper money in 66 years, a redesign some experts consider long overdue given the troublemaking possibilities from foreign counterfeiters.

The changeover will begin early next year with the $100 bill, a favorite of forgers. Existing bills will remain in circulation.

"We have an interest in protecting the integrity of our currency," said Treasury Under Secretary John Hawke Jr. "As technology develops the potential for more sophisticated counterfeiting, it gives us increasing cause for concern."

The most visible change will be to shift portraits off-center.

An enlarged portrait of Benjamin Franklin will be moved to the left on the $100 bill, making room for a new watermark engraving. The watermark portrait, visible when the bill is held up to the light, is one of several new security features.

Officials said the watermark is extremely difficult to duplicate.

Eventually, there will be similar redesigns for the portraits on nearly all smaller denominations — Ulysses S. Grant on the $50 bill, Andrew Jackson on the $20, Alexander Hamilton on the $10, Abraham Lincoln on the $5, and, of course, George Washington on the $1.

The exception could be the $2 bill, which bears the likeness of Thomas Jefferson. No decision has been made on whether to alter the largely commemorative bill.

Treasurer Mary Ellen Withrow has said borders on the new bills will be simplified, with geometric designs replaced by an assortment of lines and dots intended to foil counterfeiters.

Also, color shifting ink will be used so the greenback will take on a different hue when viewed from an angle.

And government printers may use computer-designed patterns that are made to turn wavy when copied improperly.

The redesign presents an opportunity for modernizing the currency. The $10 bill, for example, has on its reverse side a 1920s-era car in front of the Treasury building. But no one has said whether it will be replaced by a newer model automobile.

About $390 billion in U.S. paper currency is in circulation, some two-thirds of it in foreign countries.

THEATRE LAWSUIT

by Alan MacVey," Mueller said. "I used my academic freedom to complain to the administration, and they retaliated by removing me from the program."

MacVey said he denies the charges of physical intimidation.

"There was no such incident," he said. "It absolutely didn't happen."

Aikin said Berc and Mueller, the only two faculty members who were working solely with the workshop, were not removed from the theatre department. She said she has assigned both women to 'special assignments' but wouldn't comment about the details of these assignments.

Mueller said she has been assigned to teach English to freshmen.

"I feel (this decision) is retaliatory. It seems to be retaliation because (English) is not in my field," she said.

Mueller said she is a highly professional, accomplished and tenured professor, has published eight plays off-Broadway and has won various awards, including national endowments for the arts and two Fulbright awards in 1990 and 1994.

Aikin said she wouldn't comment on the content of the report from the committee which voted to remove the women. She said the purpose of this committee was to talk about the workshop.

"There was a committee I asked to advise me about the structure of the Playwrights program — about whether it should remain in the department and if so, how it would relate to the department," Aikin said.

The committee was made up of members outside the department, she said.

Mueller said there was only one person in the committee of faculty members who thought Berc and herself should remain in the leadership positions of the workshop.

She said they were only allowed to see the reports of the majority during this committee meeting.

"We were not able to see why (this person) disagreed. The decision was not anonymous," she said.

Mueller also said she and Berc weren't allowed to face the committee members after the decision to remove them was made.

"They made charges against us, and we weren't allowed to go before them and defend ourselves," she said.

Berc and Mueller have been replaced by a variety of guest playwrights who instruct the workshop for various amounts of time, Aikin said.

However, Mueller said MacVey is the person now instructing the workshop.

"(MacVey) has not published any plays, nor does he have the distinguished background as I do," she said.

UI attorney Mark Schantz confirmed Berc is not currently teaching in the theatre department, but wouldn't comment on whether she was removed from her leadership position in the workshop or if she left voluntarily.

He said Berc didn't want the workshop to continue under the theatre department.

"She asked to take the workshop out, but she wanted to take it with her (to another department)," Schantz said.

He wouldn't comment on which department.

Schantz said he hopes the faculty committee looking at the case can work towards a voluntary solution.

Berc was unavailable Sunday for comment. She is currently in Australia.

FRATERNITY DEATH

County Coroner's report shows pulmonary edema, or fluid in the lungs, as the primary cause of death.

"Garofalo did not choke on vomit," Edwards said. "There was not vomit in the lungs, but in the lung tissue. The vomit caused his lung tissue to swell and become filled with fluid. When his lungs no longer functioned, he wasn't getting enough oxygen to sustain life."

Edwards examined the body at the scene and ordered the autopsy, which was done by pathologists at Mercy Hospital, 500 E. Market St.

"(Garofalo's) lungs weighed three times as much because of all of the fluid," Edwards said.

Edwards also confirmed some sort of a beard had been drawn on Garofalo's face with black marker.

"People do strange things to drunk people," Edwards said. "It was a harmless prank with nothing to do with his death."

Garofalo's blood-alcohol level at the time of his death was .188, much lower than it would have been when he quit drinking, Edwards said. A blood-alcohol level of .10 is considered legally drunk, while a level of .40 is deadly.

While the specific blood-alcohol level at the time Garofalo passed out has not been pinpointed, Edwards said blood alcohol levels will drop 5 percent per hour after consumption of alcohol has stopped.

Edwards said Garofalo either fell asleep or passed out drunk around 11 p.m. on Sept. 7, and died around 7 a.m. on Sept. 8.

"I seriously doubt he woke up," Edwards said. "It (pulmonary edema) could happen to anyone who passes out drunk. If unconscious, it can happen no matter how much you drank."

TOUCHY GOAL POST

the event said they were surprised Rubocki could bend the post.

"I thought the structure (of the post) wasn't that sturdy if someone could bend it that easily," UI band member and sophomore Jackie Kleppe said.

She said the post was bent and crooked.

"It was as if someone hung on one end," Kleppe said.

Taylor said Rubocki probably will not be punished for his actions because it was not something done in spite.

"If anyone wants there to be a game, it is the marching band," Taylor said. "Both schools and bands get excited for the rivalry ... The student felt bad about it. He went directly to the director. It was just an accident."

Rubocki said he hasn't been punished and was able to march in the game.

"I did not do it maliciously," he said. "The whole situation was resolved."

SWIMSUIT VOTE

bye said. It's full of big-breasted, super-skinny women for men to fantasize about. Nordbye said the exploitation of these blond, toned and fat-free women has led to an increase in anorexia and bulimia in the United States.

"This country is so diverse," he said. "The pageants show a twisted vision of what America is."

Beauty is an incredibly subjective thing, Nordbye said, something which can't and shouldn't be judged like some baseball player's batting average.

"I think it's ironic that people called in about the swimsuit competition and not about the whole pageant," he said.

Cedar Rapids resident Kim Gordon said her favorite part of the pageant is the evening gown competition, but she refuses to watch the entire show because she firmly believes the swimsuit competition debases women.

"It doesn't show any talent and they can do without it," she said.

"It's all about who has big boobs and who doesn't."

Her daughter, UI senior Michelle Gordon, disagrees with her mother and is glad America saw fit to make the swimsuit competition eternal.

"It doesn't degrade women," she said. "It's a beauty contest, and without the swimsuit competition, we'd lose that overwhelming sense of tradition."

Carolyn Harris, a cosmopolitan tourist from New York City, said she was pleased about the decision and said the swimsuit competition was one of the reasons the pageant has gained popularity.

"It's not degrading to women at all," she said. "I think they looked great and I think we look great."

Harris said historically, women have been lauded for their brains and not their beauty.

"We've always been brain opposed to beauty, but the beauty does help us along," she said.

Other Iowa City residents sat back and laughed at the controversy, and were deliciously appalled when they heard almost one million people paid 50 cents to cast a vote.

Bob Dick, a senior at Iowa City City High School, said he didn't vote because he felt it wasn't his choice to make.

"Let them wear swimsuits if they want to," he said.

Dick said he was stunned to find out so many people cared enough to call in.

"It's really sad," he said. "People should find new ways to entertain themselves."

SERB FACE-OFF

demands to pull artillery and other heavy weapons back at least 12 1/2 miles from Sarajevo.

"Therefore, we agreed that the suspension of the air strikes be extended for an additional 72 hours," said a statement by NATO commander Adm. Leighton Smith and U.N. commander Lt. Gen. Bernard Janvier of France.

The new deadline expires at 10 p.m. (4 p.m. EDT) on Wednesday.

"It is our common judgment that the Bosnian Serbs have shown a substantial start towards withdrawing their heavy weapons beyond the limits of the exclusion zone," the statement said.

It didn't say how many weapons the Serbs withdrew by Sunday night, but Bosnian government radio put the figure at about 150. The Serbs were thought to have had around 300 heavy weapons in place. At midnight Saturday, the Serbs had removed 71, according to the United Nations.

"The additional 72 hours will permit the Bosnian Serbs to completely relocate their heavy weapons beyond the limits of the Sarajevo TEZ (total exclusion zone)," the statement said.

Smith and Janvier noted the Serbs had allowed Sarajevo airport to resume operations and roads into the city had reopened for use by the United Nations and aid agencies.

They indicated one of their next steps would be to bring together Serb and Bosnian government commanders to discuss a cease-fire around Sarajevo.

The NATO and U.N. commanders warned if the Serbs didn't keep their promise, or attacked within the zone around Sarajevo, air strikes would resume.

The commander of Serb troops around Sarajevo, Gen. Dragomir Milosevic, said by 6:30 p.m. (12:30 p.m. EDT), half of the weapons had been removed, and the rest would be pulled out by Wednesday night.

In Western Bosnia, Serb forces that once seemed invincible melted away before an offensive by troops of the Muslim-led government.

Men's golf team in eighth place after opening round

The Iowa men's golf team stands in eighth place after the first day of the Reliastar Golf Classic. The Hawkeyes shot opening rounds of 305 and 308.

Minnesota currently holds down the first-place position with a combined 587 for Sunday.

Scott Carpenter leads all Iowa golfers with a total of 153 (80, 73). Chad McCarty and Laine Brantner follow at 154, and Bob Richards shot 155. Brian Rupp rounded out the Hawkeye effort with a 159.

Cyclone bashing continues

Hawkeyes shut down Davis, Cyclones

Chris Snider
The Daily Iowan

Iowa State made things interesting, but in the end, Iowa proved too powerful, defeating the Cyclones 27-10 Saturday in Ames. Sedrick Shaw rushed for a career high 178 yards on 32 carries, moving up to No. 7 on the all-time Iowa rushing list, as the Hawkeyes took their 13th straight game from the Cyclones.

For more on the Hawks, See Page 4B

Shaw scored from one yard out on Iowa's first possession, but ISU answered, jumping out to a 7-6 lead when Troy Davis broke for a 63-yard score late in the first quarter. The score gave the Cyclones their first lead in the series since 1989.

Davis finished the game with 139 yards on 25 carries, but was stopped six times for negative yardage and four more for no gain. Rodney Filer added 113 yards on nine carries for the Hawkeyes, including a 52-yard run.

The Cyclones had a great opportunity to build on their lead after a dropped punt gave them first and ten at the Iowa 33. But the Iowa defense held, forcing the Cyclones to settle for a 26-yard Jamie Kohl field goal with 7:06 left in the first half.

Tough players step up in tough games. Jennifer Webb showed her toughness all weekend in three Hawkeye wins.

Webb, a junior, led the Iowa volleyball team to a first-place finish at the Hawkeye Classic. She was named the tournament Most Valuable Player after Iowa defeated Montana, Eastern Kentucky and Arkansas.

The Hawkeyes defeated Arkansas in a thrilling five-game match on Saturday night to take the tournament. Iowa won 15-13, 15-17, 15-5, 11-15, 16-14.

Webb is showing no ill effects from a serious knee injury suffered at the end of last season. She was dominant against Arkansas, finishing with a match-high 31 kills to go along with 13 digs.

"It's really nice (to win the MVP) because I blew out my knee, and here I am playing better than ever," Webb said.

Despite Webb's performance, Arkansas gave Iowa all it could handle. The Razorbacks battled to a 14-14 tie in the fifth game. Iowa finally came away with the victory when senior Lisa Dockray

Weekend produces split for Hawkeyes

Chris James

The Daily Iowan

It's the same old story, same old song and dance my friend.

Too bad for Iowa, Sunday's showdown with Maryland wasn't a top-10 hit with the Iowa women's field hockey team as the Hawkeyes fell to a top-four team for the second time in as many weeks, losing to the Terrapins 3-2.

Maryland slipped past the Hawkeyes on penalty shots in a barn burner that couldn't be decided in regulation or two sudden-death overtime periods. The champions of the Hawkeye Invitational moved to a perfect 5-0 while Iowa's overall record fell to 5-2.

A visibly disappointed Hawkeye Ann Paré said even though Iowa fell short, there was much to learn from playing top competition.

"We've played two great games against Carolina and Maryland and that builds confidence for us. We know what we're capable of and things will only continue to get better for us," Paré said.

Iowa coach Beth Beglin said despite the loss, the Hawkeyes played tough and have come a long way since the beginning of the season.

"I think the Maryland players underestimated us," Beglin said.

Pete Thompson/The Daily Iowan

Iowa field hockey player Mandy Abblitt passes the ball Saturday against Rutgers University. The Hawkeyes won 4-1.

"They thought they could come in here and do what they've done to everybody else this season. But I think our kids played tough and there's been some tremendous growth in this team in the last few weeks."

The Hawkeyes advanced to the championship game with a 4-1 victory over Rutgers Saturday. Paré speared the Lady knights for three goals as Iowa outshot Rutgers 14-10. Juniors Diane DeMiro and Mandy Abblitt each added a pair of assists.

On Sunday Iowa jumped out to a 1-0 lead on Maryland as Paré snagged her fourth goal of the weekend. But the Terrapins came right back when Lynsey McVicker fed Nadine Bennett to put Maryland on the board. The Terrapins struck first in the second half when Kasey Heiser sliced a shot past Hawkeye goalie Lisa Cellucci to put Maryland up 2-1.

But the Hawkeyes fought back as DeMiro, looking more like the "great one," intercepted a pass at Maryland's 25-yard line and put a nifty move on Terrapin goalkeeper Alana Eliwatt to even the score at 2-2 with 15:30 left in the contest.

Regulation ended deadlocked at 2-2 as neither team could dent the other's iron-clad defense. The Terrapins' Tricia Burdt banked home the game-winner on Maryland's

Chicago spoils Tampa's opener

Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. — "A New Day in Tampa Bay" looked a lot like the old.

The Chicago Bears ruined the Buccaneers' home opener under new management Sunday, intercepting two passes and blocking a punt within a two-minute span of the third quarter to pull away to a 25-6 victory.

Jeremy Lincoln returned one of the interceptions 32 yards to set up Robert Green's 7-yard touchdown run.

Anthony Marshall blocked Reggie Roby's punt four plays later, picked up the ball and ran 11 yards for a TD that broke open the game slightly three minutes into the second half.

Chicago (2-0), which led 9-3 at halftime, has outscored opponents 50-6 in the third and fourth quarters of its three games. The Bears had four interceptions and sacked Trent Dilfer twice before Tampa Bay coach Sam Wyche benched the second-year pro with 10 minutes remaining.

Kevin Butler kicked first-half field goals of 24, 37 and 22 yards.

The Bears, capitalizing on the sixth of Tampa Bay's seven turnovers, put the finishing touches on the victory with Butler fourth field goal with 3:13 to go. Falcons 27, Saints 24, OT

At New Orleans, Morten Andersen kicked another winning field at the Superdome. This time it was for Atlanta, not his former team, the Saints.

Andersen kicked a 21-yarder 10:58 into OT, his 22nd game-winning field goal.

The Falcons (2-1) forced OT on Craig Heyward's 8-yard TD and Jeff George's 2-point conversion pass to Terance Mathis with 6:11 left.

George, sacked seven times, was 26-of-39 for 386 yards, one TD and one interception. Jim Everett was 29-of-43 for 370 yards and three TDs.

Rams 31, Panthers 10

At Clemson, S.C., the Rams remained unbeaten by converting four of seven turnovers into 24 points before a Panthers' first-game crowd of 54,060. Memorial Stadium, on the Clemson campus, seats 76,000.

The Rams are 3-0 for the first time since 1989. Chris Miller completed 15 of 26 passes for 225 yards and a TD, while Jerome Bettis scored from 2 yards out.

Packers 14, Giants 6

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Brett Favre was good enough in the first half, and that's all he and the Green Bay Packers needed against the New York Giants.

Favre threw touchdown passes to Mark Ingram and Robert Brooks and the Packers' defense made it stand up Sunday in a 14-6 victory over the winless Giants. The loss marked the first time coach Dan Reeves has started a season 0-3.

Even though Favre was shut down in the second half, the Giants' bumbling offense rarely threatened, although they had a chance at the end. Dave Brown brought the Giants to the Packers' 22, but Mike Prior's interception with 15 seconds left sealed the victory for Green Bay (2-1).

Favre finished 14 of 25 for 141 yards and no interceptions.

Cardinals 20, Lions 17

At Pontiac, Mich., Barry Sanders' first fumble in three seasons set up Arizona's winning points, ex-Lion Dave Krieg's 24-yard pass to Anthony Edwards with 2:31 left in the game.

Sanders carried 24 times for 147 yards, including a 47-yard TD run, but his fumble was recovered by Arizona's Terry Irving at the Cardinals 31. Nine plays later, on fourth-and-10, Krieg hit Edwards with the winning score.

Chiefs 23, Raiders 17, OT

At Arrowhead Stadium, the Raiders (2-1) led 17-7 entering the fourth period, but Kansas City tied it on Steve Bono's 19-yard TD pass to Willie Davis and Lin Elliott's 35-yard field goal midway through the final period.

Kansas City had a chance to win in the final minute of regulation, but Elliott pulled a 24-yard field-goal attempt left.

Jeff Hostetler was 19-of-30 for 203 yards and two interceptions, while Bono was 19-of-28 for 164 yards.

Bills 20, Colts 14

At Orchard Park, N.Y., Thurman Thomas scored from 2 yards out and Carwell Gardner recovered a fumble in the end zone for another TD as Jim Kelly rebounded from his worst game.

Jim Harbaugh (19-of-31 for 241 yards), who rallied the Colts to victories the past two weeks, started ahead of Craig Erickson but could not work another comeback.

Kelly (19-of-35 for 201 yards) surpassed 30,000 career yards with a 15-yard completion to tight end Lonnie Johnson in the third quarter.

Jets 27, Jaguars 10

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — They promised everyone they were the new New York Jets. On Sunday, it was the newcomers, with a lot of help from Boomer Esiason, who led the Jets to a 27-10 rout of the Jacksonville Jaguars.

After being blown out in their opener and blowing a big lead last week, the Jets (1-2) found someone they could handle for 60 minutes in the expansion Jaguars (0-3).

The victory snapped New York's seven-game losing streak, dating to last season and ended coach Rich Kotite's nine-game slide, also dating to 1994, when he coached the Philadelphia Eagles.

Esiason found rookie Wayne Chrebet for a touchdown on the first drive of the game, then connected with rookie Kyle Brady for another score on their opening series of the second half. He also threw a TD to Charles Wilson, who was acquired in a trade late in the preseason.

Seahawks 24, Bengals 21

At Seattle, Rick Mirer (21-of-30 for 279 yards) had two TD passes and Chris Warren had a TD and 110 yards rushing as the Seahawks gave coach Dennis Erickson his first win.

In handing the Bengals their first loss, Seattle had 406 yards on offense, their highest total since Dec. 18, 1988.

Doug Pelfrey missed a 49-yard field goal in the closing minutes that would have tied the score.

Browns 14, Oilers 7

At Houston, Stevon Moore intercepted three passes and Vinny Testaverde threw a 35-yard TD pass to Michael Jackson with 9:17 left to lift Cleveland (2-1).

Will Furrer, making just his second NFL start, had a 4-yard TD pass to Haywood Jeffries. He was 22-of-41 for 258 yards and four interceptions.

Broncos 38, Redskins 31

At Mile High Stadium, the game was ready to go into OT, but Elway put an end to that idea with his 35th last-drive victory march. Out of the shotgun, he took the snap on a fourth down with 6 seconds left, stepped up to avoid the rush and found Smith at the goal line. He leaped and beat the Redskins' Darrell Green to the ball.

Elway completed 30 of 47 passes for 327 yards and two TDs, while Terrell Davis had two TD runs and caught a scoring pass from Elway. For the Redskins, Brian Mitchell scored on a 36-yard run and had 188 yards on five kickoff returns and 52 yards on a punt return. Gus Frerotte had three TD passes.

Chargers 27, Eagles 21

At Philadelphia, Junior Seau scored on a 29-yard fumble return and Andre Coleman returned a punt 88 yards for a TD during a 3:11 span to offset Randall Cunningham's three TD passes.

With the Eagles ahead 14-0, the Chargers (2-1) scored 17 second-half points, capped by Seau's first career TD with 1:16 left in the half.

With 1:42 gone in the third quarter, Coleman scored on his punt return.

Cunningham, benched last week in favor of Rodney Peete, was 23-of-40 for 196 yards.

49ers 28, Patriots 3

SAN FRANCISCO — Steve Young turned his duel with Drew Bledsoe into a one-sided affair with plenty of help from his defense.

Young threw three touchdown passes and ran for another score Sunday as the San Francisco 49ers dominated New England 28-3 and left Bledsoe still looking for his first TD pass of the season.

Bledsoe was sacked four times and missed a series in the first half with a sore left shoulder after being hit by linebacker Ken Norton while throwing.

He also fumbled after being sacked by Lee Woodall and was intercepted twice by Merton Hanks, ending second-half drives that had advanced to at least the San Francisco 25.

Woodall came up with a third interception of Bledsoe with just under eight minutes remaining, setting up Young's 3-yard touchdown pass to Derek Loville with 5:33 remaining.

Young, whose other two scoring passes went to Jerry Rice, ended the day 29 of 42 for 284 yards, shaking off a bad start which saw him intercepted by Vincent Brown on his first pass.

Cowboys 23, Vikings 17, OT

MINNEAPOLIS — The Dallas Cowboys weren't super, just good enough to win again.

Emmitt Smith overcame a rare fumble with a 31-yard touchdown run in overtime to give the Cowboys a victory over Minnesota.

Smith, who also scored on a 2-yard dive in the fourth quarter, broke through a huge hole on the left side and outran Charles Mincy to the end zone marker just 2:26 into overtime.

The run stunned the Vikings, who tied the game with 30 seconds left in regulation on an 8-yard pass from Warren Moon to Cris Carter. But the Cowboys won the coin toss and took just five plays to end the game.

Fullback Filer makes a name for himself

Chris Snider
The Daily Iowan

Rodney Filer may finally have the Kent Kahl monkey off his back. Given the task of replacing one of the finest fullbacks in Iowa history, Filer answered in a big way Saturday, rushing for 113 yards on nine carries and scoring his second touchdown of the year.

Filer

"I told all of you earlier that one of these games Rodney Filer was going to break loose," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said. "He's a threat. For a fullback, he's a threat. That's very encouraging."

Immediately after the game, Filer said he was "in outer space."

"I'll probably wake up tomorrow and think I'm dreaming," he said.

Filer showed a few moves, cutting outside for gains of 52 and 20 yards against the Cyclones.

"I felt like I was back in high school," Filer said. "I kind of got away from (putting moves on people) trying to be the power fullback that I am."

Filer, who rushed for 964 yards as a fullback in high school, rushed five times for 16 yards in Iowa's victory over Northern Iowa.

The junior from Waco, Texas, was used primarily as a blocking back in short yardage situations his first two seasons, gaining 12 yards on 10 carries.

Filer isn't worried about rushing yardage. He knows his main job will be to block for Sedrick Shaw and Tavian Banks.

"If my number's not called, it's no problem," Filer said. "I don't care."

With freshman Mike Burger vying for playing time at fullback, Shaw is confident Filer will continue to impress people.

"Rodney came out and played a heck of a football game," Shaw said. "Each game he's going to keep improving."

HAWKS WIN

"We needed a gut check early in the year and we got one," Hayden Fry said after the game. "I was real proud of the Cyclones. I thought they played extremely hard, they had a good game plan, they're well coached. I certainly think they're going to experience success this fall."

Iowa looked out of sync early in the game, using all three timeouts in the first quarter.

"Some of our young messengers fouled up the call to the quarterback going in," Fry said, "which made Matt Sherman have to call timeout."

But the Hawkeyes got their act together on their second drive of the second quarter. Sherman came out throwing, connecting on 4-of-7 passes, including a 31-yard strike to Scott Slutzker to set up a one-yard touchdown run by Filer.

Iowa missed the two-point conversion and took a 12-10 lead into the lockerroom at halftime.

After the break, Iowa's defense proved too tough for Iowa State. The Hawkeyes shut out the Cyclones in the second half, picking up a fumble and an interception.

"I was extremely proud of our defense," Fry said. "This is a young defensive football team and they show a lot of promise."

The offense also came to life in the second half.

Tavian Banks and Sherman scored touchdowns and Todd Romano added a 31-yard field goal as the Hawkeyes finally put the game away in the fourth quarter.

"They were physically stronger," ISU coach Dan McCarney said. "They wore us out on both sides of the line of scrimmage."

Ed Gibson, in his first start as a Hawkeye, collected nine tackles and returned a fumble 67 yards. Bobby Diaco led the Hawkeyes with 12 tackles. Jared DeVries added two sacks.

Sherman finished with 149 yards passing, completing 9-of-17 passes. Demo Odems caught three passes for 72 yards.

"We wanted to run the ball to keep it away from Davis," Fry said. "We wanted to run the clock. We didn't try to emphasize the passing game at all."

Iowa held the ball nearly five minutes longer than the Cyclones.

Banks entered the game late and rushed for 33 yards on nine carries after sitting out the week of practice with a bad ankle.

what it takes to hold this team together.

Quarterback Matt Sherman was confident Iowa would put a couple more scores on the board when Iowa trailed 10-6. He was equally confident that Iowa State wouldn't.

"When you have a great defense — and I think we do have a great defense, or the makings of a great defense — you just get up a couple of touchdowns and you can feel pretty confident," Sherman said.

"The defense saved the day these last two weeks and I give them a lot of praise and credit."

Praise and credit are what the Hawkeye defense deserves. But it took them a couple of weeks to get it.

Junior defensive back Damien Robinson, whose interception near the goal line ended a fourth-quarter Cyclone drive, knows there were some doubters.

"We took the name 'question mark defense' up on ourselves," he said. "The whole year, we're going to be called the 'question mark defense' and we said for everyone that doubted us — and we doubted ourselves — that we've got to come out and play."

Before the season started, the term question mark truly seemed to fit. There's nothing degrading about it, people truly didn't know what to expect.

But the Hawkeyes took those kind of comments personally. The defense knew that it was presented with a challenge and its members were fully prepared to meet that challenge.

"We took it pretty personal because we knew we're not getting that much respect," sophomore defensive back Ed Gibson said.

"If they call us the 'question mark defense', then it's our job to prove that it's not a question mark. We'll try to stop the run, the pass, whatever you bring at us."

Gibson said that they even got some T-shirts that say "Defense?" on the front and "We got the answer" on the back.

After two weeks of solid play, I'm not going to argue with that.

GAME NOTES

Gibson shines in first collegiate start

Chris Snider and Mike Triplett
The Daily Iowan

An outstanding spring game lifted Iowa sophomore Ed Gibson from third-stringer to the two deeps. A pair of injuries moved him into the starting lineup. And an impressive performance in his first career start Saturday might keep him right where he is.

Both Gibson and Coach Hayden Fry are unsure whether he will stay in the lineup when injured defensive backs Billy Coats and Tom Knight return, but one thing is for certain — Gibson, who had nine tackles and a 67-yard fumble return against the Cyclones, is a capable fill-in.

"I didn't expect to move up this quick," Gibson said. "Coming into this season I expected to be in a back-up role, because I got a couple of good guys ahead of me. But Coats went down (in the UNI game) and Coach asked me to step up."

"He told me just to 'go out there and do your thing.'"

Just how long he'll be able to "do his thing" is uncertain.

"I have no idea what they're going to think now," Gibson said.

"But if (Coats) does come back and they put him into the starting position, you know, that's football. I'll just be ready to play if something happens."

Injuries limited him to just one appearance last season, but a healthy Gibson showed up at the spring game. Playing against the first-string offense, he grabbed one interception, tallied 14 tackles, 13 unassisted and returned a kickoff 94 yards to the 1-yard line.

Gibson, a 5-foot-10, 180-pounder from Davenport Assumption High School was a first-team all-state defensive back as a senior as well as a first-team all-conference running back.

His 1,175 rushing yards in the Mississippi Athletic Conference were second only to Bettendorf High School's Tavian Banks.

Hawkeye kickers have their troubles

Iowa's kicking woes have returned.

"The worst thing about our football team was the cotton-picking kicking game," Hayden Fry said after Saturday's games. "I don't think I've ever had a football team miss three extra points."

The Hawkeyes were one-of-two on field goals and missed all three point-after attempts against the Cyclones.

"I guarantee that will be corrected this week, even if I have to do the kicking," Fry said.

First string placekicker Brion Hurley missed a PAT and a field goal and his back-up, Todd Romano, missed a pair of PATs. "It's just a mental thing," Romano said. "Neither of us has much confidence right now as far as place kicking."

Fry, Hawks trash-talk turf

Cyclone Stadium's turf didn't leave the best impression on the Iowa Hawkeyes.

"Artificial turf here should be outlawed," Fry said. "Time after time after time our guys slipped down."

"Three out of the first four passes that we called to the primary receiver, he slipped down. On the fifth one, Matt Sherman slides down... We had to start to take shorter, choppy steps to keep our feet underneath us."

The Hawkeyes have three different shoes for artificial turf, but none seemed to be right for the ISU carpet.

"I think it's terrible," Tim Dwight said. "It's really tough to cut on, I'm glad they're going to grass."

Iowa's kicking game also suffered because of the slippery turf. "The kickers" were being too tentative on their approach to the ball because they were afraid they'd fall on their rump," Fry said.

One person who didn't seem to have trouble on the turf was Sedrick Shaw, who rushed for 178 yards.

"Some places it's dry. Some places it's wet. If you get caught in a bad spot, you've just got to hope you can keep your feet," Shaw said.

Injury bug bites Iowa

Three more Hawkeyes went down with injuries Saturday, joining cornerbacks Tom Knight and Billy Coats, who both missed the game because of a prior injury.

Fullback Mike Burger suffered a concussion, defensive end Eric Hilgenberg separated a shoulder and tight end Derek Price suffered a neck injury in the game.

"I came down on a kick return and the next thing I know, it's the middle of the second quarter," Burger said. "I just blanked out."

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Top-ranked teams' scores skyrocket

Rick Warner
Associated Press

Are college football's best teams trying to run up the score to impress poll voters and improve their national ranking?

At first glance, it seems so. The top seven teams in The Associated Press poll scored an average of 63 points Saturday, and won by an average margin of 45.

"I'm sick of guys who run the score up," Michigan coach Lloyd Carr said after passing up a chance for an easy touchdown near the end of the No. 9 Wolverines' 23-13 victory over Boston College.

However, a closer look at Saturday's blowouts reveals that the winners could have scored even more. Most starters were pulled after the games got out of hand, and some stars barely played at all in the second half.

For example, second-ranked Nebraska beat Arizona State 77-28, but the Cornhuskers scored only 14 points after halftime. Nebraska coach Tom Osborne seemed almost embarrassed by the final score.

"It's always your game plan to score, but I can't say we planned to score on nine of our first 10 possessions," he said.

Top-ranked Florida State gained 737 yards in its 77-17 win over North Carolina State, but only 121 of those yards came in the final period.

In No. 7 Colorado's 66-14 win over Northeast Louisiana, Buffaloes' quarterback Koy Detmer went to the bench early in the third quarter after setting a school record with 426 passing yards.

AL ROUNDUP

Mariners miss prime opportunity

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Seattle wasted a chance to increase its lead in AL wild card race, losing to the Chicago White Sox 2-1 when rookie Lyle Mouton hit a tie-breaking homer in the seventh.

Seattle, which had won four straight, remained one game ahead of the New York Yankees. The Texas Rangers also closed within a game.

With the game tied 1-1, Mouton hit a 417-foot drive off Bob Wolcott (3-2), who gave up five hits in 6 2-3 innings.

Kirk McCaskill (5-4) pitched 2 1/2 hitless innings, and Roberto Hernandez got three outs for his 30th save in 40 chances.

Orioles 2, Yankees 0

BALTIMORE — Kevin Brown (8-9) allowed four hits in 8 1/2 innings and struck out eight, and Jesse Orosco escaped a bases-loaded jam in the ninth.

Randy Velarde singled with one out in the ninth, Darryl Strawberry walked and Bernie Williams' single loaded the bases, chasing Brown.

Orosco, who got his third save, induced Paul O'Neill to hit into a 5-4-3 double play.

Brady Anderson and Rafael Palmeiro hit consecutive RBI doubles in the first off Scott Kamieniecki (5-6).

Rangers 5, Tigers 0

DETROIT — Roger Pavlik (9-9), pitching on three days' rest, allowed three hits in seven innings and struck out a season-high 12, and Roger McDowell finished with perfect relief as Texas won for the seventh time in eight games.

Will Clark and Juan Gonzalez drove in two runs each for the Rangers.

Tigers rookie Jose Lima (2-8) struck out a career-high nine and allowed three hits in six innings.

Red Sox 9, Indians 6

CLEVELAND — Boston blew a five-run lead but then capitalized on second baseman Alvaro Espinoza's double error for two runs in the eighth inning.

The victory, coupled with the Yankees' 2-0 loss at Baltimore, lowered Boston's magic number for clinching the AL East to two. The Red Sox went 3-7 on their 10-game road trip.

Jeff Suppan (1-2) got his first career win, pitching 1 1/2 scoreless innings, and Rick Aguilera pitched the ninth for his 29th save in 33 chances.

Paul Shuey (0-2) allowed two runs — one unearned — in 1 1/2 innings after being recalled from Class AAA Buffalo before the game.

Blue Jays 5, Brewers 0

TORONTO — Al Leiter (11-9) pitched a six-hitter for his second career shutout and struck out 10 as Toronto sent Milwaukee to its 15th loss in 19 games.

Joe Carter hit RBI double in the third.

Roberto Perez led off the fourth with his first major league home run, a drive off Brian Givens (5-5) that ended a 47-inning homerless streak for Toronto.

homered twice and drove in five runs as Kansas City won its fourth straight, completing its first sweep at California since September 1981.

Each team hit four homers. Vitiello hit a three-run homer in the first and a two-run drive in the fifth, his first of the season. Mark Langston (15-5) also allowed a two-run homer to Juan Samuel, his 12th homer.

Hipolito Pichardo (8-4) pitched 1 1/3 innings, allowing Greg Myers' solo homer in the eighth. Jeff Montgomery got four outs for his 31st save in 38 chances, giving up a ninth-inning homer to Tony Phillips.

Athletics 4, Twins 1

OAKLAND, Calif. — Todd Van Poppel (4-7) pitched a sixhitter for the first complete game of his career and Mark McGwire hit his 33rd homer of the season as Oakland sent Minnesota to its fifth straight loss.

Van Poppel struck out five and walked none as Oakland won its third straight.

Frankie Rodriguez (5-7) gave up four runs and seven hits in seven innings.

Caminiti clubs Cubs in duplicate

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Ken Caminiti became the first player in NL history to homer from both sides of the plate in consecutive games, and Fernando Valenzuela also homered as San Diego made it two straight routs of Chicago with an 11-3 victory.

The Padres hit five home runs to tie a club record. They've done it four times, most recently Aug. 24, 1993 against St. Louis.

Marlins 17, Rockies 0

DENVER — Gary Sheffield went 5-for-5 and drove in four runs as the Florida Marlins routed Colorado, reducing the Rockies' lead in the NL West to one game.

The Marlins set a team record for runs, tied a team record with four homers and handed the Rockies only their second shutout loss of the season at Coors Field.

Colorado finishes the year with 14 games against NL West opponents, including three against second-place Los Angeles in the final week.

Sheffield singled three times, doubled and hit a solo home run before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning. Terry Pendleton drove in four runs with two hits, including a two-run homer, and Pat Rapp (12-7) pitched seven shutout innings to win his seventh straight decision.

Dodgers 8, Cardinals 0

ST. LOUIS — Ismael Valdez pitched a two-hitter and struck out nine and Mike Piazza hit his 30th homer as the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the St. Louis Cardinals.

Valdez (12-11) faced only 29 hitters — two above the minimum — as he stopped his four-game losing streak. Los Angeles, which began the day two games behind first-place Colorado in the NL West, stayed 1 1/2 games ahead of Houston in the wild card race.

Pirates 5, Giants 4

PITTSBURGH — Barry Bonds ended a terrible day by flying out with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to end the game as the San Francisco Giants lost for the fifth time in six games.

Bonds also struck out twice, grounded into a double play, was caught stealing and misplayed a fly ball into a triple. He finished the series 2-for-13.

San Francisco trailed 5-3 entering the ninth, but Pittsburgh closer Dan Miceli allowed a one-out single to Royce Clayton, an RBI pinch-double to Mark Leonard and a walk to J.R. Phillips.

Astros 5, Expos 3

MONTREAL — Doug Drabek came off a suspension and pitched seven strong innings to lead the Houston Astros to a victory over the Montreal Expos and a sweep of the three-game series.

Houston finished 6-3 on a nine-game road trip and stayed in second place in the wild card standings, 1 1/2 games behind Los Angeles.

Drabek (10-8), who sat out five games for hitting Cincinnati's Benito Santiago with a pitch on Sept. 5, gave up three runs on six hits and struck out five for his third straight victory.

Mets 8, Phillies 2

NEW YORK — Rico Brogna hit two more home runs, including his first career grand slam, as the New York Mets finished a three-game sweep with a victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Brogna, who has hit five home runs in his last six games, had a career-high five RBI and upped his team-leading totals to 22 homers and 68 RBI.

Jeff Kent contributed a two-run homer, his 19th, as the Mets extended their winning streak to five and dealt Philadelphia another setback in its quest for the wild card spot.

Braves 4, Reds 1

CINCINNATI — Tom Glavine improved to 13-1 career at Riverfront Stadium and capped a weekend of dominant pitching as the Atlanta Braves swept the Cincinnati Reds.

Glavine (15-6) scattered four hits over seven innings and struck out eight to help the NL East champions improve the league's best record to 84-48. Mike Mordecai and Mark Lemke homered in the Braves' fourth straight win.

Cincinnati, the NL Central leader, has lost 7 of 10 and 12 of 18. The tailspin has kept the Reds' clinching number frozen at four.

The Braves allowed just three runs and 21 hits during their first three-game sweep at Riverfront since 1993. Glavine, John Smoltz and Greg Maddux allowed a total of two runs in 22 innings.

Atlanta's bench provided the winning hits in two of the three games.

Nodland soars to top, team stumbles

Shannon Stevens

The Daily Iowan

She scolded herself when she misfired on long drives, grimaced after missing easy putts, and probably killed the bee that stung her on the seventh hole, but after the last ball settled in the cup all Iowa's Jenny Nodland could do was smile.

Nodland blistered Iowa's Finkbine Golf Course Saturday and Sunday en route to a first-place finish at the Hawkeye Invitational. She finished with a score of 221, easily outdistancing Iowa State's Gwynn Sheppard by six strokes. Nodland's victory was the first for an Iowa player at the Hawkeye Invitational since Stacey Arnold won in 1990.

Nodland said it felt great to win her first collegiate tournament.

"It's always been a goal of mine to win a college tournament so I'm very happy," Nodland said. "It's nice to win here with my family and friends watching."

Coach Diane Thomason said Nodland's victory overshadowed a fourth-place Iowa finish.

"Anytime you have somebody win a tournament that's a big thing," Thomason said. "There were a lot of times where she could have broken down, but she didn't and that tells me the toughness she's developing."

Nodland said she got greedy in the final round. "I wanted to make birdies," Nodland said. "I had a lot of long putts, so it was kind of stressful having to two-putt them all, but things turned out pretty well."

Iowa State won the team competition with a score of 919. Iowa finished fourth in the five-team field.

"It's kind of disappointing because I thought we would have done better," Iowa senior Tanya Shepley said. "Especially after our first round with Jenny's scores and my 77, I thought we had a good chance."

Shepley (238), Karen Schroeder (245), Lynne Carothers (246), Becky Sjolholm (249) and Candy Schneckloth (252) rounded out Iowa's effort. Aimee Maurer, who played independently, shot 240.

Thomason said Iowa needs more scores in the 70s to be competitive.

"We've got a lot of work to do," Thomason said. "We need four players to post up a score under 80 and they're not doing it right now. I feel pretty good about having two kids that are pretty solid, now we just need to put two more with them."

Iowa goalkeeper Lisa Celucci was outstanding with 13 saves and numerous kick saves to clear the ball for the Hawkeyes. Maryland goalkeeper Alana Eliwatt was equally stubborn with nine snubs. Beglin said team defense was a real key to stymieing the quick striking Terrapins.

"We did an excellent job of beating Maryland to the ball and shutting down their best players. Melissa Miller and Nancy McLinden did an outstanding job of shutting down Maryland's best players. They were pretty much nonexistent the whole game," Beglin said. The schedule doesn't get any easier for the Hawkeyes as Big Ten rival Ohio State looms ahead this coming weekend, but Beglin said her team will get some much deserved rest.

"I think they just want to go home and go to bed," Beglin said. "But we'll come back later this week and get ready for the Buckeyes."

'Woof' prevails amid messy directing

Steve Willard
The Daily Iowan

Edward Albee's wonderful script of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" shone through directorial distractions for Friday night's opening at Riverside Theatre.

In the last act of "Woof," Martha throws a meaningful ice cube at Nick. On opening night, the ice cube landed on a small, green notebook near a chair. Was it melting? Was it plastic? Could it be taken seriously as an ice cube? Perhaps.

In this play built around characters who deliberately confuse truths and fictions, a slow-melting piece of ice goes a long way. Looking over the lay of the living room, where all three acts take place, one notices other quirks — black spray paint (soot?) over the fireplace, a shiny red coffee pot perched on a bookshelf — whose presences, mere distractions (since they bear no weight as emblems of Albee's truth/illusion fixation), may point to a need for a keener directorial eye or a firmer hand.

Director A.S. Moffett seems content to assert himself through his blocking choices, which only occasionally are unnatural. Luckily, the least fortunate blocking (where all four players find themselves in a straight line at the edge of the stage and directly facing the house, an arrangement more appropriate to a conga line than a cocktail party) comes early and disintegrates quickly. Albee's text (his most ambitious in length and perhaps scope) is strong enough to overcome some weak direction.

Not all the actors fare as well as the text. Nick (Jeremy Hawkinson), a young professor, plays his early scene with older professor Peter (Dennis Smith) as if he were taking Peter's daughter out on a date. He's not. Nick seems gravely miscast, sometimes lost on stage. Lines such as "I'm going to be a personal screwing machine!" seemed strange coming from such a shyboy.

Jody Hovland, toggling Martha between swaggering and venomous, could also have been helped by stronger direction. Her solid Martha substituted a forced, almost operatic laughter for genuine jocularity, and she seemed too serious well in advance of the heightened stakes of late Act 3, when the ice cube mysteriously vanishes. Her performance, based largely on caricature, risks obscuring this play's through line, making some episodes of witty talk seem dangerously separate from others.

More honest performances came from Honey (Christi Kathol), who brought believability and grace to her character's overwrought moments, and Peter, whose sharp comic timing, strong voice and sense of his character's balance between gamesmanship and cruelty overcome his not-quite-right accent.

It usually clocked in between Ted Kennedy and Jean-Luc Picard and was dropped for a hysterical South-ern twang in Peter's meanest moment.

But despite the laissez-faire direction, one comes away with a genuine experience of a moving and worthwhile play. The fortunate effect of Martha's over-the-top performance is that it keeps the tension even in scenes where other characters (often Nick) might slacken the pace. Her energy does tend to make the play seem shorter than its three-and-a-half hours. Where the text is at its clearest — especially in Act 3, where a stripping of illusion occurs — the cast is able to enact a taut performance with few awkward moments. Such a motivated section allows and obligates a theatergoer to forgive and enjoy.

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" runs through Oct. 8 at Riverside Theater, 213 N. Gilbert St.

Winter fashions: Ditch the Birks

Erica Gingerich appears Mondays
on the A&E Page

characteristic nip we've all felt in the air this past week means it's time to put the melt-proof asbestos summer clothing away and break out the babushka gear. Winter will be here soon.

Since the proper ways to prepare for an Iowa winter aren't readily apparent to all newcomers, and even hardcore winter veterans need to restock their winter arsenals every once in a while, I'm here to help you make the necessary fashion preparations for surviving frozen nasal passages and arctic cold fronts in style. While expensive shoes with leather soles and three-season wool Armani suits work nicely in many beautiful cities to the west and south of the Midwest, de rigueur Iowa winter gear starts with shitkicker boots and works its way up to fluffy coats of Michelin Man proportions.

My first winter back in Iowa was similar to Napoleon's war campaign in Russia. Basically, it almost killed me. I had no mittens, no hat, no scarves, no heavy socks, no serious boots and no winter coat. I moved back to Iowa from Seattle via Charlotte, N.C., and my winter clothing consisted of a jean jacket and two pairs of raggedy long johns. Accustomed to winters where anything below 40 or 50 degrees Fahrenheit was considered a deep freeze, I vowed to be ready for the next Iowa winter after six months of blue fingers and toes.

• First and most important is finding a good winter coat

A good winter coat for Iowa winters is not necessarily an attractive winter coat by any fashion standards, but subvert your ego-centric vanities to the collective whole and opt for warmth, not beauty. Get wool, down or any other voluminous insulatory material and ignore the siren call of leather and suede. You may look like a cotton bale in the worst drag since Cleopatra, but once you get the rest of the winter clothing you'll need to survive (two pairs of gloves, snow pants and an Army-surplus blanket to wrap around your face), nobody will be able to recognize you, anyway.

• Waterproof mascara

This might seem a frivolous and highly gender-specific winter beauty consideration, but in Iowa, the winter wind blows hard enough to freeze your eyeballs. Your eyeballs respond by watering profusely at a constant rate, and well, if you don't want your make-up to look like Tim Curry's at the end of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," you'll get waterproof mascara.

• Put the mountain bike away for the winter

Although this seems fairly commonsensical, a lot of folks in Iowa City try to ride their bicycles in the winter on roads that leave Cambuses and Jeep Cherokees spinning their wheels. Road rash is not a fashion accessory, and I've seen several very bloody wipeouts in previous winters. Body casts are major fashion faux pas.

• Shorts are for Iowa summers, pants are for Iowa winters

We can all kind of empathize with those eager-beaver types who start breaking out their shorts long before the first spring thaw in April or May occurs, but tolerance has its limitations.

• Birkenstocks are for Iowa summers, boots are for Iowa winters

See above.

To accessorize, I'd suggest two things: For those who are going to be here for more than one Iowa winter, a good prescription for Lithium, Prozac or other happiness pills might be necessary to stave off cabin fever. For those who might decide one winter in Iowa is just one winter too many, I might suggest one-way tickets to places where the only snow behaves itself and stays in the mountains where it belongs.

311 phat: Let your Cadillac wack

Todd Norden
The Daily Iowan

It's time to throw down, kids. 311, with special guests Dog Eat Dog and No Doubt, will perform tonight at 8 in the Main Lounge of the Union.

On the road after a hectic European tour this summer, 311 headlines its U.S. tour supporting its third self-titled release. 311 is a disc filled with enough phat tracks to make the back of your Cadillac wack. Blending in-your-face rock riffs with a tinge of reggae and snappy rap bravado, 311 has drawn comparisons to The Beastie Boys and The Red Hot Chili Peppers, while still maintaining originality.

Band members Nicholas Hexum (lead vocals, rhythm guitar), Chad Sexton (drums, percussion), Timothy Mahoney (guitar), P-Nut (bass) and S.A. Martinez (vocals, turntables) hail from Omaha, Neb. After playing local shows and gaining a loyal following, 311 released its first CD, Music, on Capricorn Records in 1993. The band sold more than 100,000 units of Music and repeated the feat in 1994 with Grassroots. While on a 1994 national tour, more than 90 percent of 311's shows sold out in advance. MTV's airplay of the singles "Homebrew" and "Do You Right," along with the production assistance of Ron Saint Germain (Bad Brains, Living Colour), helped thrust 311 from obscurity.

The live intensity and energetic cohesiveness of 311 will reflect what it attempted to capture on its prior three releases.

Stirring up the mosh pit, openers Dog Eat Dog blend rap with a metal crunch and should prove a perfect complement to 311. If this concert doesn't make you throw your hands in the air, bob your head and grunt, "Yeah," you must not have a pulse.
