UI’s in the money now

Benefactor donates $11 million for scholarships, lectures

Michael Freeman
Associated Press

The UI and Iowa State University will receive $11 million from a man who didn’t attend either university. The $11 million is the largest single donation ever bestowed on the UI.

The donation comes from the estate of F.W. Miller, a Des Moines native who graduated from Drake University and Northwestern Law School. Miller was a charter school person, and Iowa City resident Ray Morrison, who knows Miller about 30 years.

"This is a most generous gift that will help our universities achieve their individual educational goals," said Morrison.

from a joint statement released by UI interim President Peter Nathan and Iowa State President Martin Jischke.

"He was a gentleman interested in principles, he said." Morrison and he didn’t have much money in his life, but he did have money to give the UI and ISU something more.

He had already made this arrangement when he met, Morrison and the UI contact with Miller, performing each services for him as a business consultant. Miller apparently started the negotiations when he was in his 80s.

Miller died at the age of 97 on March 29, 1992, but the deal was finalized between the UI and ISU. The money is now in escrow, and the UI plans to use the money to give the UI money as the project is completed.

Bosnia gets 60-day rest

Muslims, Serbs set to halt offensives

Young men on top of a burned out, bullet-riddled car in the frontline Sarajevo suburb of Dobanica, wore the Vojac Thunder. A Bosnian ceasefire was announced in Washington, and Canadian officials said the United Nations planned to pull about 5,000 peacekeepers out of the republic after more than three years of war.

Fitness events raise money for AIDS education

East Lansing's streets turn into a racecourse last Sunday when Michigan State University students participated in a 5-kilometer run and Walk for Better Life. The event, which featured a 10-kilometer race and a 10-mile walk, raised money to benefit AIDS research and services.

The MSU AIDS Research Institute co-sponsored the event. Crawford said. "We do this every year with Evans Horne." Horne, a Minneapolis, Minn., rep.

"Well, this says, of course, with Evans Horne," said Crawford. "But the first time we ran, we didn't know how to do it. We hope this time it will go well, but we hope we can continue to do it." - The State News

Professor skirts jail after stalking conviction

A former professor at Kansas University convicted of stalking a kaswan, jay, woman avoided imprisonment, and said he plans to return to teaching.

Hawrey, whose name is Hawrey, was convicted last week on charges related to a complaint made by a student who alleged that Hawrey had been harassing her. The student, who did not wish to be named, said that Hawrey had been stalking her and had made contact with her through the mail and phone. The student also said that Hawrey had been acting inappropriately during class, and had madearrantious comments about her to other students. The student said that Hawrey had also been following her around campus, and had been seen accompanying her to class and other events. The student said that Hawrey had also been making unwanted physical contact with her, and had been making inappropriate comments about her to other students.

The student said that Hawrey had also been following her around campus, and had been seen accompanying her to class and other events. The student said that Hawrey had also been making unwanted physical contact with her, and had been making inappropriate comments about her to other students.

Hawrey was convicted of stalking after a trial that lasted for several days. The trial was held in the county courthouse, and was presided over by Judge Smith. The jury was composed of 12 members, and was instructed to consider the evidence presented by both the prosecution and defense, and to determine whether Hawrey had committed the crimes of stalking and harassment.

The jury found Hawrey guilty on both counts, and recommended a sentence of imprisonment. Hawrey was sentenced to three years in prison, and was ordered to pay restitution to the victim. The victim was a student at Kansas University, and had been living in Lawrence, Kan., at the time of the incidents.

The victim, who had been a student at Kansas University, said that she had been following Hawrey around campus, and had been making unwanted physical contact with her, and had been making inappropriate comments about her to other students.

The victim said that Hawrey had also been following her around campus, and had been seen accompanying her to class and other events. The victim said that Hawrey had also been making unwanted physical contact with her, and had been making inappropriate comments about her to other students.

A total of 4.7 million people in the United States have been diagnosed with HIV/AIDS, and an estimated 33 million people worldwide have been infected. The disease is caused by the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), which is transmitted through sexual contact, intravenous drug use, and mother-to-child transmission.

Hawrey speculated that the victim's friends and family would be pleased by the results.

"How many times do you need to have someone violate this law before you say enough is enough?" said Khadijah Grover, Lawrence, resident.

Colin Powell fastest draw in the books

If you've ever thought that Colin Powell was a quick study, think again. Powell recently signed two copies of his new book, "My American Journey," in 20 minutes. Powell is a former four-star general who served as the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff under three secretaries of defense, and as the secretary of state for five years. He was also a key advisor to President George W. Bush.

Powell's book discusses his life and career, from his early days in the military to his time as a secretary of state. He shares his thoughts on a wide range of topics, including leadership, politics, and national security. Powell also reflects on his experiences during the Vietnam War, his role in the fall of the Berlin Wall, and his efforts to promote peace in the Middle East.

Powell's book has been well-received by critics and readers alike. It has been praised for its honesty, its insight, and its ability to provide a unique perspective on the events of his time.

20 SHOWER FOR TRYOUTS

Hawkeyes leap at chance to take on cheerleading

Corryn Parrell
The Daily Iowan

As UI freshman Tim Lambert and Tawny Schmidt manipulated acrobatic stunts in Carver-Hawkeye Arena on Saturday night, judges appraised their performance.

Lambert and Schmidt both participated in cheerleading tryouts for the UI women's athletic teams during Homecoming weekend.

"The guys tryout now, but their mother is a lot higher," said Lambert and said a few people in high school would jump around with the fact that he is a cheerleader.

Street vendors are capitalist ideal.

In recent years we have made numerous trips to Mexico using Mexico City as our point of arrival. We have come to expect the irritation of ever-present street vendors wherever we go. It's like the epidemic population of the world's smallest nation. It is not that they seek the attention of the passersby; it is that the strength of their presence is more than a nuisance, it is a distraction.

Mexico's recent industrial upsurge, which resulted in several years of substantial economic growth, has made it possible for many people to leave employment for less lucrative work in their small towns and move to the big city in search of employment for their families. The result has been a massive increase in the number of people living in Mexico City. As many as 20% of the people living in Mexico City are street vendors, and their numbers continue to grow.

Mexico's street vendors are a testament to the city's economic dynamism. They are also a testament to the city's cultural diversity. They are a reminder of the city's history, and they are a symbol of the city's future. They are a reminder of the city's past, and they are a symbol of the city's present.

Mexico's street vendors are also a reminder of the city's social and economic problems. They are a symbol of the city's poverty, and they are a reminder of the city's inequality. They are a symbol of the city's struggle, and they are a reminder of the city's hope.

Mexico's street vendors are a reminder of the city's complexity, and they are a symbol of the city's resilience. They are a reminder of the city's history, and they are a symbol of the city's future. They are a reminder of the city's past, and they are a symbol of the city's present.

The Daily Iowan

It’s been nearly a decade since the Iowa football team started the season with consecutive wins. The year was 1989, and Iowa defeated Michigan State (26-2).

"The two-bowl winning streak is over. And we have to do our best next year. We have to improve in all areas of the game."

The Hawkeyes’ victory on Saturday over New Mexico State, 17-10, was their fourth of the season, guaranteeing them at least a .500 record.

Marino set to break Tarkenton’s record

Kevin Testa
Associated Press

MIAMI – Even if Dan Marino has a chance against the Indianapolis Colts, it will be far from the record books.

Marino is in place to break each of Fran Tarkenton’s career passing records this season. The first — for touchdowns — should fall Sunday when the Dolphins (3-0) play the Colts (0-3) at the Hoosier Dome.

"It’s going to mean a lot," Marino said. "It’s something I’ve been doing all year, but this year it’s going to be a lot more than normal."

In 15 seasons with Minnesota and the New York Giants, Tarkenton threw 242 touchdown passes, passed for 48,489 yards and made 6,467 pass attempts.

In his 12th season, Marino has thrown 225 touchdowns passes, passed for 44,043 yards, made 6,310 pass attempts and completed 1,186.

Tarkenton, inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1985, is third in all-time passing yards, 6,086 behind Marino. The all-time leader is Brett Favre with 51,904.

"I think Dan is on the verge of something," Tarkenton said Thursday from his office in Atlanta. "I think he’s going to break the record with a great game, with a win, with a fire, that it’s great."

Indianapolis (plus 9 1/2) at Miami

Don Shula, the last man to go 400-400 in the NFL, is expected the Dolphins are the only unbeaten team left.

"It’s a lot of pressure, a lot of ups and downs," Goldberg said. "If you win the conference, you have to respect the game, but if you lose in the first round you’re out."

Deepth (29-26)

San Diego (plus 1 1/2) at Kansas City

The Chiefs have lost their first two games this season, including two playoff games, and Dallas has won its first two.

"They’re probably walking by for the bigger game than Dan Tarkenton’s 3,683 passes," Goldberg said.

Dallas needs only four to surpass Tarkenton’s 3,686.

"It’s going to be one of those weeks that’s going to mean a lot," Marino said. "It’s going to be a lot of fun."
ATLANTA - John Associated Press

It was wonder if they aren't in for a quick return to the postseason Friday. The playoffs and World Series, never before for the Rockies, who had tied the third-round series.

Ed Shearer Associated Press

Colorado has to sweep in a tight situation the Reds need to do is win one game on the West Coast by taking and poor clutch hitting. All the results will happen. If not, you may wonder if they aren't in for a to win one game. "It's tough to find a silver lining," Larry Walker said. "If I make good pitches, good results will happen. If not, you may have to win one game to play. It's a shame essentially had to lose."

NEW YORK — The league goes in at the playoff-battle brought self to the plate for the first time in his career.

"It was just three hits in his last 33 post-season at-bats. If I were a manager, I'd be thinking about putting him in the leadoff spot," Spring Training manager Larry Parrish said. "And in my opinion, he should be batting leadoff." The Brewers are expected to start Spring Training this week in hopes of getting the right-handed hitter back on track.

After the game, Belcher said he's considering his options for the rest of the season. "I want to do everything I can to help this team win," Belcher said. "I'm not sure if that means batting leadoff or not." The Brewers are currently in second place in the NL East, one game behind the Atlanta Braves. Belcher has not played in any playoff games this season.

The Yankees are also expected to make a move during the season to strengthen their lineup. "We're looking at a lot of different options," said Dave Miley, the Yankees' director of player development. "We're going to see what's available, and we'll make a decision based on that." The Yankees are currently in first place in the AL East, two games ahead of the Boston Red Sox. Belcher has played in 39 games this season, hitting .256 with 19 home runs and 60 RBIs.

Iowa to host WIU Saturday

Iowa's women's tennis team will clash with Western Illinois tonight at 7 p.m.

After being rated No. 9 by the Iowa Hawkeyes a year ago, the Hawkeyes are ranked outside the top 20. The Western Illinois team, which the Hawkeyes defeated last year, is currently ranked No. 18.

"This is a good opportunity for us to get on the right track," Iowa coach Jonsson said. "We've been practicing really hard so we're just looking forward to getting everyone out and watch us play." Marita said the team is playing well, but still needs to work on its serve. "If you get your serve and take care of your side of the match we should be fine," she said.

GRALINGHAM, La. — Saturday's game between No. 9 Wittenburg and LSU will be the final match of celebrations over the past month for the Little Mountain State. The LSU State has not been defeated in its last 32 matches, and will attempt to keep its streak intact when it travels to Maine on Friday.

In 1950, Bobkin got the chance of a lifetime in football. He was just drafted by the Brooklyn Dodgers. "I was just drafted by the Brooklyn Dodgers," Bobkin said. "I lived on the edge. I was the best football player in the city, but I was also the worst."

"I had a lot of people come up to me and say, 'How could you do this?','" Bobkin said. "But I knew I was good and I knew I could make it."

"I only lasted three years in the league, but I still missed several games," Bobkin said. "I guess I was just too hot under the collar.

"I'm not going to give up on football," Bobkin said. "I want to keep playing and see what the league is all about."

"I'll be playing for the Brooklyn Dodgers again next year," Bobkin said. "I hope to make the roster and play in the NFL."

Robinson vies for landmark win

The battle for Big Ten supremacy continues this weekend as the Western Illinois team will clash with Northwestern University. The Hawkeyes are currently ranked No. 18 in the Big Ten, while Northwestern is ranked No. 16.

"We've had a good week of practice," Jonsson said. "We've been looking at our weaknesses and trying to improve on them."

"We've been working really hard," Jonsson said. "We're ready to try out and show everybody what we have here.

Novel returns to love, war

Iowa City, Iowa

"Corelli's Mandolin," the novel
recently made into a British television series, is now back at the movies in the form of a one-act opera by the Aquila Theatre Company. The Aquila will present one-act operas by writers including G.K. Chesterton, Kathy Acker and T.C. Boyle, is a production of the University of Iowa's Department of Drama. The operas will be performed tonight at 8 and Saturday at 2 p.m.

The Aquila Theatre Company of London will return to the UI to perform dynamic adaptation of "The Iliad" tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m.

Ally Hands, the island's only doctor, is done with battle in World War II. But perhaps most important is her return to the family home on the Greek island of Cephalonia, from 1941 to the present, but convincingly
recast with the wars of World War II. The novel returns to love, war and respect for forgotten voices, enmeshed in a love affair between an Italian officer, Antonio Corelli.
