Iowa rallies for gay rights

State officials urge U.S. Supreme Court to overturn Colorado ordinance

Iowa City Councillor Karen Kubby

"It's an opportunity for homosexuals to take some pride in being homosexual and show the rest of the world they're gay," said Wilson, member of the Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual People's Union.

The Human Rights Campaign, a prominent national gay and lesbian membership association, has made the case for full marriage rights and the right to adopt children.

At Iowa rallies for gay rights, June 27, Kubby, an Iowa City city councilor said she sup­ports Iowa's stance against Colorado's amendment.

"I think it's a bold and wonderful statement that Iowa is making," she said. "It's pretty ridiculous that people of any sexual orientation would be discriminated against.""
Students take a stab at staged combat

Gerrit Pulcow
The Daily Iowan

The saga of sword play rang throughout the Performing Arts Center in Iowa City on Monday night as students took part in a Rapier-Dagger class for a little extra practice.

"It's the most physical acting class that I've ever taken," UI graduate student Cinnamon Bird said.

More than just a regular class, the接近 began with a special performance нескольких students who had received special training in contact and dagger combat techniques on the Performing Arts Center stage.

Bird said, "It's all geared towards understanding how it feels to have a weapon of any kind in your hand and how to use it properly." She added, "It's all about understanding self-defense and how to use those skills in a practical situation."

Cheryl Martin was diagnosed with breast cancer at age 16.

"I found out that I am not alone, that other women are in the same situation," she said.

And now, the two breast cancer survivors are hoping to get their message through to young women about the importance of early detection.

"We want young women to understand that they are at risk — breast cancer does not discriminate among ages," she said.

Police challenged to change DNA evidence

Simpson case sheds new light on DNA evidence

Michael Freeman

Los Angeles — The O.J. Simpson case once again raised the question of whether or not that blood had changed or degraded (that's just DNA, we won't downplay it). The challenge will be in deciding whether or not that blood had changed or degraded. There was no way to tell without using forensic evidence packaging and storage, experts said.

"I think the Simpson case has made people aware of DNA, but there are still too many people who are not aware that simply throwing DNA as soon as we get the call is not the best practice," said Edward Baker, a researcher at Forensic Science Associates in Richardville, Calif., and a key witness in the O.J. Simpson case.

Baker said that the "best practice" is to make sure that the DNA remains in its original packaging and storage, and that it is not exposed to the elements. The "best practice" is to use forensic evidence packaging and storage, experts said.

Quake rocks Mexico; at least 56 killed

MEXICALI, Mexico—Raging surf and fading flickers, rescue workers dug through the smoldering remains of a hotel in the tourist town of Manzanillo. The hotel's top floor was a model of destruction, a scene of horror that many feared was the tip of an iceberg for survivors of an earthquake that devastated a long stretch of Mexico's west coast.

Some tourists were believed to be among the trapped, but further information about them was unavailable.

At least 56 people were killed and more than 95 injured in Monday's 7.8-magnitude temblor, which toppled homes, cracked bridges, split highways and catapulted trains off of tracks. Thirty-five miles to the south, Manzanillo's main thoroughfare was also damaged, as was the Plaza Flamingos shopping center.

Crushed walls, smashed furniture, mattresses, clothes, even a flattened automobile suddenly cascaded from the broken building along with scores of screaming residents. The shrieks were drowned out by the roar. The sea has been running heavy since the quake hit at 9:37 a.m. Monday.

Thirty miles to the south, the Costa Real Hotel, raising the估计的床 had yielded several cases of injuries by mid-afternoon.

In towns and villages, residents looked to their neighbors for help. In Manzanillo, raising the estimate, workers used picks and shovels to search amid the wreckage.

"I haven't rested since yesterday," said Enrico Real Estate's regional manager, Raymir Fest. "I was working outside when the earthquake hit." The kids were outside, and wrecked furniture appeared tangled in the wreckage.

Bosnian war fades as water runs

Gerald Lefrak, Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The state of the nation's African-Americans has been described as one of the worst in the country. The lives of many African-Americans have been marred by poverty, violence, and discrimination. The situation has been worsened by the ongoing war in Bosnia, where thousands of people have been displaced and many others have lost their homes.

The statistics are shocking. African-Americans are more likely to be murdered than whites. Moreover, they are more likely to be labeled as criminals. African-Americans are described as a "criminal class."

"The war in Bosnia has caused many African-Americans to feel belittled and degraded," said African-American leader Louis Farrakhan, originator of the Nation of Islam. "African-Americans have been treated with the utmost respect."

"It is a sad day for all people who believe in justice and equality," Farrakhan added. "But we must continue to fight for our rights."

The war in Bosnia is not only a crisis for the people of Bosnia, but also for African-Americans around the world. The situation is so bad that African-Americans are being forced to leave their homes in search of safety.

"We must keep fighting for our rights," said Farrakhan. "We must never give up."

The war in Bosnia is a wake-up call for African-Americans. It is a reminder of the importance of justice and equality. We must never forget the教训 of the past.

PROPAGANDA FILM MISSES - CUBA IS MORE THAN FIDEL CASTRO

The Soviet-Cuban-French production of "I am Cuba" was shown five times at the UI last week. I obtained many historical inaccuracies and blatant omissions on present and present Cuban reality. Motivated largely by the fact that I too am Cuban, I am writing this as a response.

I am Cuban"

The 1959 revolution and Fidel Castro's reign as the true Cuba.

During the televising of Cuban history in the film "Cuba," the Cuban nation's struggle against fascism, student protests against Batista were led by Lawyer Jamey Phillips. In the late '50s, the revolutionary movement made a tremendous impact on Cuba, and the regime began to restore itself with the help of three main leaders in the country. In the future, the revolutionaries must be able to rise up again.

Today the Cuban people both inside and outside the island have fought hard against the hardships of the last years. The film's editor, however, is not able to present the story of the Cuban revolutionery's struggle to be what it is. If you're not satisfied with the film's representation, you can find more information about the Cuban revolution and its impact on society.

LAKEWOOD, Colo. — Commuters walked, biked and skated after a 2 million tourists each year has taken its toll on the one-term astronaut, said the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences.

Robert E. Lucas' work in economic theory on the property and property rights is among the most influential.

Lucas' work centered on "rational expectations" and how people adjust their spending decisions when they make decisions that involve uncertainty.

The Nobel Prize in Economics is awarded annually by the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences. The award is one of the five Nobel Prizes, along with the Peace, Literature, Chemistry and Physics Prizes, that are awarded to scientists or artists who have made significant contributions to their fields.

The prize is awarded to "science, arts, literature, and peace," and is currently valued at about $450,000.

For Iowa, the theme is in the defense.

After suffering through a multitude of injuries to its defense, the Hawkeyes head into this week's game with Indiana with just two consistent defensive players on the roster.

Following a tough loss to Northwestern last Saturday, the Hawkeyes have to be concerned with the Hoosier defense, which ranks among the best in the country this season.

Iowa's defensive performance should be a key factor in determining the outcome of the game.

FOOTBALL

Olofs has mixed the last two games with a hammering injury, and she won't play any longer this season. Last season, she tore a nerve in her hand and didn't play the rest of the season. She was expected to return for next season, but she's still not sure.

"We're pretty healthy this year and I think we have enough people that we can turn it around," Ford said.

Ford suffered through injuries, including a hamstring injury, but he's been able to get through the season with a positive attitude. "It kind of made a difference," Ford said. "I've had the chance to play with the same team for the past two years and I've done it through that and it does make a big difference.

"We beat the game, 4-1, out of the cold weather teams in Division I, and ranked No. 23 in the nation, but the coach has been gone enough.

"I think we've won the record on the court the way we've won through the years in our guys working what they call a lot of the time," Ford said. "I think that started at Iowa before I came here, but we were expected on that team. We beat a few people who are big-time in the league.

"Myself and Lee can get out of her way and she can put in the right things to win the day," Ford said.

"There's a definite adjustment that needs to be made," Larkin said. "We're going to go is up to John and the players."
Cyclones rebuilding taken to extreme

Chock Scholtter, manager of the AMES Area - Iowa State baseball team, is taking the task of rebuilding to new extremes. In fact, Coach Tom Fuller's Iowa State team is so bereft of talent that the Cyclone bench features, among others, two pinch hitters, two fill-ins and the first pinch hitter who came off the bench.

Wolcott, has probably been warming up. Fuller probably was out silently by pulling off their lineup.
