Coleman: Hawk fans can control themselves

Ann McGlynn
The Daily Iowan

Even though she didn't notice the hog head or the full can of beer thrown during the Iowa-Penn State football game she attended, new UI President Mary Sue Coleman believes something needs to be done.

The Coleman Takeover

See page 10A for these stories:

■ Jonathan Coleman talks about his mom and what it's like to be the son of a university president.

■ Health sciences is an area of interest for Mary Sue Coleman — as a biochemist and as the new UI president.

■ The Colemans met at a party while attending Grinnell College; now Mary Sue and Kenneth Coleman are coming home to Iowa to serve as the UI's first family.

■ She never dreamed of becoming a university president as a little girl growing up in Cedar Falls, but Mary Sue Coleman has come a long way — and gone through many career changes — to return to Iowa as UI president.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — She spoke at student rallies against federal financial aid cuts and hate crimes, and she calmed 50 students staging a sit-in against tuition increases at the president's office.

New UI President Mary Sue Coleman has shown her concern for students in many ways throughout her two-year career as provost and vice president for academic affairs at the University of New Mexico.

"She's the most respected administrator here," said Brian Morris, a senator in Associated Students of the University of New Mexico, the student government.

Some facts about Coleman

What kind of cereal does she like? She doesn't like cereal — she only eats it if she has to.

Does she have any pets? A cat named Graystoke, who is having a hard time dealing with moving.

What time does she go to bed at night? Midnight.

What time does she get up in the morning? 6 a.m.

What does she like to do in her free time? She enjoys gardening and swimming in the pool in her backyard — a luxury she won't have at the UI.

Does she plan on redecorating the presidential home? No — except to make it accessible to people who are disabled.

IT COULD BE THE WAR OF 1996

Buchanan: If Powell runs, GOP will revolt

Sally Buzbee
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Retired Gen. Colin Powell will throw the Republican Party into a war for control if he seeks the GOP nomination for president, Pat Buchanan and other prominent conservatives warned Sunday.

Buchanan, appearing on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," warned of a full-scale revolt by Christian conservatives if Powell wins the nomination and tilts the party toward a pro-choice position on abortion.

"You'd have Christian Coalition folks breaking loose. You'd have people walking out of the convention if Colin Powell tries to impose his agenda," said Buchanan, who is seeking the GOP nomination for the second time.

If the party ends its pro-life, anti-gun control and anti-affirmative action positions, "I will not support that platform," Buchanan insisted, but he stopped short of saying he would bolt the GOP.

In a sign that the battle already has begun, conservative William Bennett and several moderate Republicans said they hope Powell runs and believe he can both gain support from conservatives and widen the party's appeal.

"Individual conservative Republicans like this man, and they like him for good reason," said Bennett, a former education secretary who has fought recently with fellow conservatives over Powell. Bennett spoke on CBS's "Face the

Suicide note leads police to drag Iowa River

Sarah Lueck
The Daily Iowan

After leaving a suicide note saying he was going to jump into the Iowa River, prompting police to drag the waters for two days, UI junior Kevin Michael Joyce Jr. has been found alive.

Joyce's roommate, UI junior Bob Kooima, called the police and reported Joyce missing after finding the suicide letter about 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

The Johnson County Sheriff's Office and the UI Department of Public Safety searched the Iowa River Thursday night and Friday morning.

Joyce's wallet and bag were found by the river, said UI freshman Emily Shelton, one of Joyce's neighbors in the Foreign Language House in Hillcrest Residence Hall.

Kooima said he is confused as to what Joyce was planning to do.

"I think he wanted to make it look like he was dead," he said. "I can't think of any other explanation than that. I won't know until I talk to him. He may never choose to tell me."

Joyce attempted to contact Kooima Friday afternoon, Kooima said. Although Kooima wasn't in the room at the time, another

The message was an apology, Shelton said.

Outlaw Jesse James put to rest (again)

Scott Charlton
Associated Press

KEARNEY, Mo. — Thanks to modern science, Jesse James may finally rest in peace.

The remains of the notorious outlaw were carried by a horse-drawn hearse Saturday to his grave on a windswept slope at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Preliminary DNA tests concluded last month that scraps of bone and strands of hair exhumed from the grave probably belonged to James, who was shot by a gang member in 1882 at age 34. The tests were aimed at resolving lingering doubts over who was buried in the grave.

"We say farewell to Jesse James and hope to let him rest in peace," Robert Hawkins III told a standing-room-only crowd of nearly 600 at the service. Hawkins, a past national commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, was the lead organizer of the funeral.

About a dozen people dressed in Confederate-era uniforms took turns standing honor guard over the closed casket, draped in a Confederate flag.

James rode as a Confederate guerrilla during the Civil War before he began his murderous spree of bank and train robberies.

Sermons, prayers and hymns — including James' favorite, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" — highlighted the program at the Knights of Columbus Community Center.

A steady stream of visitors walked by the closed casket Saturday morning, including Jim Conley and his 8-year-old grandson, Michael Jeffries.

"Years later, he'll remember Grandpa taking him to the funeral of Jesse James," Conley joked.

"I think it's pretty neat," Michael said.

After the service, two horses pulled the glass-enclosed white hearse to the cemetery in Kearney.

"All factors are in favor of it being Jesse, although our final tests haven't confirmed that."

Professor James Starrs of George Washington University in St. Louis, Mo.

20 miles northeast of Kansas City. The grave was exhumed in July.

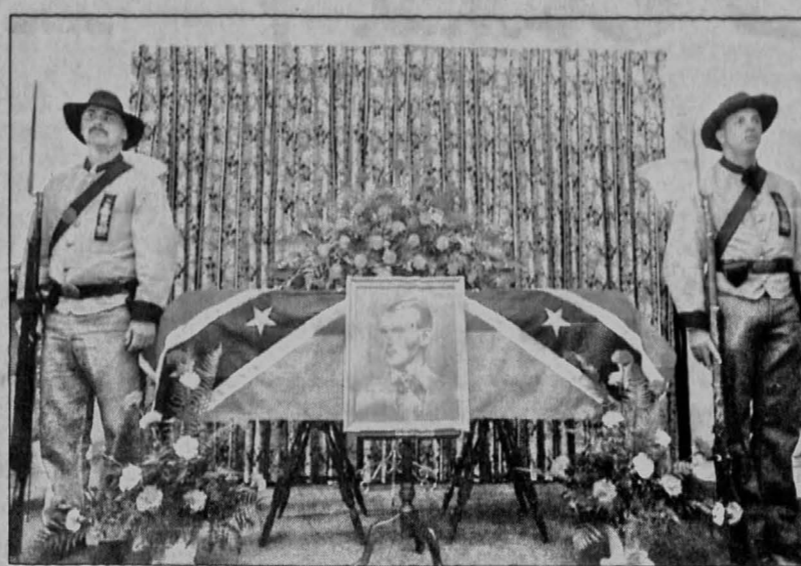

More than 100 years ago, detectives doggedly pursued the James gang and the governor put a $5,000 price on its leader's head.

On Saturday, dignitaries on the funeral guest list included Gov. Mel Carnahan's wife and a U.S. marshal.

"Jesse James is just a fascinating figure in Missouri history," said Jean Carnahan, who is writing a book on life in the governor's mansion during James' heyday.

U.S. Marshal Brad English, an honorary pallbearer, smiled and shrugged over the inability of authorities to catch the outlaw.

"I just wanted to be certain that Jesse James is finally in his grave,"

Confederate Civil War re-enactment members from the 5th Missouri Infantry, Mike Massey, left, and Bob Roberts, stand guard at the casket of legendary outlaw Jesse James at Fry Funeral Home Saturday in Kearney, Mo. James, who died and was buried in 1882, was buried for the third time Saturday after his body was exhumed in July 1995, to resolve lingering doubts about who was buried in the grave. Tests proved the remains were those of James.

English said.

Six great-grandchildren of James attended the service, including James Ross, a retired California judge. "This is something which has warmed my heart," he said.

James was first buried in his mother's yard to discourage grave robbers. The remains were reburied in 1902 next to his wife at Mount Olivet.

Professor James Starrs of George

Washington University, who led the team that exhumed the grave, said final DNA results won't be announced until Feb. 23, when he makes a presentation to a meeting of forensic scientists.

However, Starrs said there was no reason to delay the funeral.

"All factors are in favor of it being Jesse, although our final tests haven't confirmed that," Starrs said.

McCartney: Lennon was just 1 part of the Beatles

LONDON (AP) — Paul McCartney says he hates having to justify his place in the Beatles to people who regard the late John Lennon as the rock group's heart and soul.

When Lennon was assassinated in New York in 1980, he became a rock 'n' roll saint to many Beatles fans. He was viewed as the creative, avant-garde songwriter while McCartney was seen as less serious and less important.

In an interview in Saturday's Daily Express, McCartney said he was the only bachelor Beatle living in London and experimenting with new music in the early days. The others were "very square" because they were married and living in the suburbs.

"The thing I find myself doing, which is a pity really, is trying to justify myself against John — and I hate to do that," McCartney said.

"There are certain people who think he was the Beatles. Now that is not true and John would be the first to tell you that. But you can't blame people for feeling that way because his death was a hell of a tragedy," he said.

Supermodel Campbell relieved of alleged stalker

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York man was arrested for allegedly stalking supermodel Naomi Campbell.

Michael Gold, 41, was arrested Friday evening outside the 25-year-old model's apartment building in Manhattan, said police spokesperson Kathleen Kelly.

He was arrested after the doorman of Campbell's building noticed him and called police. Campbell had filed a previous complaint against Gold, Kelly said.

Gold was charged with stalking, which is a misdemeanor.

Texas A&amp;M honors former President Bush with school

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — University regents voted to name Texas A&M's school of government after former President Bush, whose presidential library is under construction at the school.

The George Bush School of Government and Public Service will be housed at the presidential library, set to open in two years.

The school will prepare students for government careers, including local, state, federal and international positions. It will offer master's degrees in public administration and international affairs.

Bush and his wife, Barbara, watched a football game on campus Saturday but did not attend the regents' meeting.

John Wayne still our favorite cowboy — even from the grave

NEW YORK (AP) — So he's been dead 16 years. The Duke can still take the likes of Clint Eastwood and Mel Gibson.

John Wayne came out on top in the latest Harris Poll survey that asked 1,005 Americans to name their favorite movie star. Eastwood topped the list in 1993 and 1994 but slipped to second place this year, followed by Gibson, Denzel Washington, Kevin Costner and Tom Hanks.

Washington was No. 1 with young adults and blacks; Gibson was the top choice of women. No women were in the top 10; Julia Roberts and Demi Moore were the highest-ranking actresses, tying for 22nd. Rounding out the top bunch were Sylvester Stallone, Steven Seagal and Arnold Schwarzenegger, with Robert Redford and Robert DeNiro tied for No. 10.

Wayne, who died in 1979, placed second in 1993 and 1994.

'Showgirls' star gets cold shoulder from Hollywood

NEW YORK (AP) — Elizabeth Berkley has gone from "red-hot" hype to ice-cold chill faster than a $5 lap dance, Entertainment Weekly says.

The magazine says since "Showgirls" bottomed out at the box office, Berkley was dumped by her talent agency, left without any follow-up feature role and "harshly dismissed by Hollywood as a no-talent bimbo."

Paul Verhoeven, the film's director, said he warned Berkley that baring her all could be a risky career move.

"I told her six months ago, 'If people don't like the movie because of the society it portrays, they won't write about that. They'll write that you can't act and you can't dance.' I told her that," Verhoeven said.

'Frasier' star just wants to have fun

NEW YORK (AP) — Kelsey Grammer picked up more than beer nuts during nine years of bellying up to the bar at 'Cheers' — he gathered pointers on how to run his own show.

Grammer, the star of NBC's 'Frasier,' says Ted Danson taught him the importance of having fun in a TV ensemble.

"Ted was certainly very good at it," Grammer says in the latest Entertainment Weekly magazine. "He wanted to have fun with it. He was a wonderful example, which I followed fairly well — and added a dash extra. I'm a little bit more vocal, a little more with my fingers in all the pots."

Grammer says he tries to set an example on the set.

"Let's say you're doing 'Hamlet,'" he says. "If the guy playin' Hamlet is a twit, his energy will filter down to everybody else. If he's not polite or creative or gifted, people will start doggin' the show. They'll think, 'Screw it.' They don't put out their best effort."

Dwindling commitment to priesthood vexes Catholic church

Moira Crowley
The Daily Iowan

The number of candidates willing to commit themselves to the all-male, celibate priesthood has been dropping since the 1960s, leaving the Catholic faithful praying for new recruits.

Roman Catholic priests in the '90s

Bishop William Franklin, head of the Roman Catholic diocese of Davenport has been the leader of Catholics of East-Central Iowa since January.

Though Franklin said he doesn't have all the answers, he sees one main reason for men not entering the priesthood.

"The priest is taken among people, and I think in this day and age, people find it difficult to make a long-range commitment," he said. "They want to be honest about their commitment and if they can't make it, they serve God in another way."

In addition, a surge of media attention given to priests convicted of child molestation has given celibacy and the Catholic church a tainted reputation, Franklin said. However, abandoning the law of celibacy will not solve the problem, he said.

"I don't believe it is celibacy itself that gives rise to pedophilia," Franklin said. "Because the church does expect this celibacy, when it's broken, it does make the news. Marriage is not a medicine for problems."

Canon Law is the ecclesiastical code established by the Roman Catholic church, which requires male entrants to take the vow of celibacy.

"The Holy Father personally believes it is a matter of faith that the church does not have the power to ordain women or to allow priests to marry," Franklin said.

Monsignor Leo Feeney, chancellor of the Davenport diocese, said during and after the Vatican Council of the mid-1960s, many men entered the priesthood.

The numbers have dropped by half since then, but have remained steady in recent years. Feeney said the Davenport diocese has 10 men attending seminaries in Iowa, Missouri and Minnesota, with one scheduled to be ordained in January at the Sacred Heart School in Wisconsin.

"The attendance now is the same as it was in 1985," Feeney said. "For the past 10 years, we've been holding our own pretty well."

Father Harry Linnenbrink, 65, has been pastor of St. Wenceslaus Church, 618 E. Davenport St., for the past nine years. He was ordained 38 years ago, graduating with a class of 22.

Linnenbrink said a priest's job is to provide spiritual, material and educational care for his parish. The parish of St. Wenceslaus includes 650 families, and Linnenbrink said he is over-burdened.

"It's more than one person can handle," he said.

Franklin said it helps considerably if the priest has people to assist him with some of his duties.

"With other people involved, it's easier administering to a larger group," he said. "When one person is caring for the whole parish, the degree of service is limited."

The amount of work and the expenditure of energy does not dissuade Linnenbrink. He said he wanted to become a priest ever since he was young. Nearly 40 years later, he said men are not entering the seminaries for several reasons.

"I think the world is more secularistic than it was in our day," he said. "Families don't put the church first anymore — they're thinking about their own families."

Linnenbrink said a lifetime of celibacy has turned some young men away from the priesthood, but said he believes in the vow because it is a law of the church.

"There are pluses and minuses to having married priests," he said. "One plus would be that the priest would have a life as a partner and an associate, which is very important."

Linnenbrink said a minus would be the day of a priest never ends.

"Let's face it: the life of a priest isn't easy," he said. "It's a lot like being married to a doctor. We never keep 9-to-5 hours."

Most Iowa City Catholics believe in the vow of celibacy and remain hopeful more men will commit their lives to the religion.

UI sophomore Kelli Wild said the vow is a necessary part of being a priest.

"I'm not worried about the shortage of priests at all," she said. "Everyone is assigned in life to be something and they will continue to be assigned to be priests."

Wild said she is not affiliated with any Catholic church in Iowa City, but when she travels home to West Des Moines, she spends her Sunday mornings at Mass.

The parishioners get plenty of attention, Wild said, and she doesn't feel her priest is overburdened with work.

UI medical student Chad Nachtman attends services at the Newman Catholic Student Center, 104 E. Jefferson St. He said the celibacy law is critical.

"It's important how people think of priests," he said. "People expect them to be perfect."

Nachtman said abandoning the law of celibacy will not cure the crimes of rape and molestation within the Catholic Church.

"People will commit crimes whether they are celibate or not," he said. "In general, look at any profession and they'll have bad people doing bad things."

'ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW' PLAYS TO SOLD-OUT THEATER

Veterans and 'virgins' revel in the 'Horror' of it all

Vicki Butner
Daily Iowan

Transvestites, French maids, brides and "virgins" began standing in line an hour early, in the drizzling rain, to see what has become a Halloween tradition — "The Rocky Horror Picture Show."

Much of the sold-out crowd at the Englert Theatre, 221 E. Washington St., was dressed as characters from the movie. UI sophomore Ken Van Egdon, dressed as Magenta, wore a French maid's dress, black wig and fishnet pantyhose.

"Everyone can get nutty and crazy. Everything is accepted here at 'Rocky Horror.'"

UI sophomore Ken Van Egdon

"There was a French maid character in the movie, and I decided to go with it," he said.

Other spectators were dressed as Frank-N-Furter, the film's main character, who is a transvestite, and Janet, a prudish young woman who stumbles upon Frank-N-Furter's castle.

"Rocky Horror" 's attraction stems from crowd participation. Audience members throw rice, toast, cards, water and paper for various parts of the movie, and sing, laugh and scream throughout the show.

"The crowd is incredibly uplifting. It's not like watching the movie at home," said Molly Sofranko, who has seen the movie four times.

"Everyone can get nutty and crazy. Everything is accepted here at 'Rocky Horror,'" Van Egdon said.

UI junior Jim Patterson, a

Spectators at "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" perform the traditional auctioning of the "Rocky Virgins." Virgins are those members of the audience who are seeing the movie for the first time and need the assistance of more experienced viewers. Throughout the movie, spectators throw toast, rice and other items while referring to the main characters as "Asshole" and "Slut."

'Rocky Horror' fanatic who has attended the movie more than 125 times, said, "It is not like going to a regular movie. It's kind of like going to a bar."

Those less familiar with the movie were just as anxious to see it.

"I always wanted to see it, so now I shall see it," Chris Bennett said while waiting in line. "I'm a 'Rocky Horror' virgin."

Each Halloween, the film sells out, Brian Thompson, manager of the Englert Theatre, said.

Theater employees said the movie this year was calmer than in the past.

"It was kind of tame," said Kristi Fitzpatrick, concession and front theater worker. "No one got out of hand."

In an attempt to curb excess vandalism, the Englert sold a package containing the props which are used in the movie for $9.95. Outside props were not allowed in the theater.

"It's always been that way so people don't bring in eggs," Thompson said.

Some people attending the movie didn't agree with the policy.

"I think we should be able to bring in props," Kelly Stamp said. "I probably will not buy them."

The movie ended with the audience clapping and screaming as the credits rolled.

"Now I know why they call it 'Rocky Horror Picture Show,'" UI sophomore Liz Keech said. "It's a complete horror."

Hindu new year's festival brightens I.C.

Ann Haggerty

The Daily Iowan

Like a Christmas, Fourth of July and New Year's Eve celebration all in one, the Hindu religion's biggest holiday — celebrated Sunday night in the Union Ballroom — is characterized by lights brightening cities, fireworks and a hope for prosperity and happiness for the new year.

"Diwali" (translated as "The Festival of the Lights") featured a dinner and about 12 traditional song and dance performances originating in different regions of India. About 600 people attended the celebration, many of whom were dressed in traditional costume.

The holiday signifies the triumph of good over evil and of knowledge over ignorance, said Kala Shrikant, coordinator of the cultural events for the celebration.

Diwali is celebrated all over India with different themes and in different ways, said Iowa City resident Santhi Hejeebu, who attended the celebration.

However, she said two things all the regions have in common are the celebration of a good god destroying an evil demon and the presence of candles and lights.

"No matter what region you go to, they celebrate a lord destroying a demon and everywhere there are lights," she said. "Families will have small bowls filled with oil and a wick. They put them in the windows, on the steps of the porch and on entryways of the house."

Susmita Dahal, who is from Nepal, said, "The cities are full of light, there are seasonal flowers everywhere, every house is totally clean and decorated — the mood is very festive."

Diwali in Nepal is similar to Halloween because families and friends go from house to house singing traditional songs in return for sweets to eat, Dahal said.

Fireworks, firecrackers and sparklers are popular all over India during Diwali, said Tushar Vaidya, an Iowa City resident who attended the celebration.

Diwali, which marks the end of the financial year in India, is a day to worship the Goddess of Wealth — one of many gods and goddesses of the Hindu religion — in the hope of gaining prosperity and happiness for the new year to come, said Meene Rijhsingheni, a Cedar Rapids resident who is originally from Bombay, India.

In Nepal, it is believed the Goddess of Wealth triumphs over evil by killing a demon, said Rajendra Dahal a Moline, Ill., resident who attended the festival.

He said in the Hindu religion, there is one supreme God, but there are countless gods and goddesses who are manifestations of that supreme God.

Talk-show bigwigs ponder more socially relevant content

NEW YORK (AP) — Members of television's talk-show community spent the weekend doing in private what they usually do before an audience of millions: talk.

In a closed-door conference Saturday, two dozen talk show producers, executives and hosts came together to explore how their programs, attacked as trash — and worse, might aim their influence in more socially responsible directions. Billed as Talk Summit, the get-together also included experts on social and health issues, particularly teen pregnancy.

The day-long session drew on-air personalities Rolonda Watts and Mark Walberg, as well as behind-the-camera principals from eight other shows, including "Sally Jessy Raphael," "Geraldine," "Jerry Springer" and "Carnie."

Notable non-participants included "Donahue" and "Oprah Winfrey," higher-toned shows generally spared the criticism aimed at most of their counterparts.

Exactly what ideas were exchanged, and what insights were gained, was left largely unstated by the few participants willing to speak to the press.

But of those questioned, no one hinted that Talk Summit wasn't a good thing.

"We've never gotten together and talked to each other this way before," said Burt Dubrow, senior vice president of programming for Multimedia Entertainment, whose shows include "Springer" and "Sally." "But we don't hate each other. In some markets, 'Rolonda' may be the lead-in for one of our shows. Therefore, we need 'Rolonda.'"

Dow back in court to decide breast implant settlement

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A jury that ordered Dow Chemical Co. to pay $3.9 million in damages to a woman in a breast-implant trial will consider today whether the chemical giant should pay more.

The state court jury's action Saturday was the first implant verdict solely against the parent of Dow Corning Corp., which for years was the leading manufacturer of silicone breast implants.

The jury will return to the courtroom today to consider punitive damages in the case involving Charlotte Mahlum, who said her ill health was due to leaky silicone implants.

The jury awarded her the $3.9 million in compensatory damages after finding Dow Chemical liable for faulty breast implants.

Among other things, the jury found Dow Chemical gave Dow Corning "substantial assistance or encouragement" by testing materials used in breast implants.

Surgeons remove bullet from Somali child's head

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — An 8-year-old Somali girl who was shot in the head four years ago during her country's civil war was recovering Saturday, three days after surgeons removed the bullet from her brain.

A bomb squad was present at the hospital during surgery in case the bullet exploded.

"This is usually a lethal injury," said her surgeon, Dr. Mark Anderson. "She was fortunate to survive."

Fartun Mohamed had been playing in her front yard in Mogadishu in 1991 when she was struck by gunfire exchanged by rival factions in Somalia's war. Doctors in Somalia said it was too risky to remove the slug, believed to be fired from a Soviet assault rifle.

Anderson, however, worried Mohamed's condition would worsen if the bullet wasn't removed immediately. She already had lost use of her right arm and right leg.

Surgeons at Western Medical Center removed a 1.4-inch slug from her brain on Thursday. The bullet was given to bomb investigators for destruction.

World's worst subway fire kills 300 in Azerbaijan

Elchin Teimurkhanov
Associated Press

BAKU, Azerbaijan — Rescue workers recovered about 300 bodies Sunday from the wreckage of a subway that caught fire in the capital, trapping hundreds of terrified passengers. At least 200 others were injured.

Azerbaijan declared two days of mourning for the dead. Officials blamed the tragedy, the world's worst subway accident to date, on the system's "outdated Soviet" equipment.

Unable to escape from the packed cars, most of the people who died were killed by carbon monoxide poisoning from burning toxic materials in the train carriages, officials said.

"As soon as the train entered the tunnel I saw a flash," said Tabil Guseinov, 45, a passenger. "Then the flames enveloped the train car, there was a sound of breaking glass and the lights went out."

"People started breaking windows to get out. We were starting to suffocate," he said.

The fire broke out between two subway stations in central Baku on Saturday afternoon because of a malfunction of the train's electrical system, officials said.

Survivors described sparks flying from high-voltage cables just after the train left the busy Ulduz station.

Rescuers battled the blaze until early Sunday, then pulled the injured and the dead, wrapped in rugs and blankets, from the tunnel. Police and security forces sealed off the area, barring journalists.

Authorities initially said only two people had died in the fire, but the death toll climbed steadily overnight as more bodies were found.

Interior Minister Ramil Usubov told the AP on Sunday morning at least 289 people had died, including 28 children.

Morgue officials said they counted at least 303 bodies, and the independent Azerbaijani news agency Turan quoted medical officials as putting the death toll at 337.

Azerbaijan's health minister, Ali Insanov, said 269 people were injured. Of the injured, 62 remained hospitalized Sunday, most of them in serious condition.

"The main reason was carbon monoxide poisoning, which paralyzes the respiratory system and causes emphysema and instant death," Insanov said.

It was not known how many people were on the train, officials said.

In Moscow, where the subway carries 1 million people a day, officials attributed the high death toll to panic among the passengers and, possibly, mistakes by the train driver.

The high number of deaths may have been caused "by a fire in three to four cars and an ensuing panic, for there was no light, the car doors closed and fire was raging all around," Anatoly Reznik, a Moscow subway security officer, told the Tass news agency.

Valentin Ageyev, of the Moscow metro's fire department, said the train operator probably should have driven the train slowly to the next station rather than stopping it in the tunnel.

"Stopping the train in the tunnel may pose a death threat to passengers because flammable materials account for 90 percent of the (subway) car finish," he said.

Cars manufactured in the late 1960s, of the kind still used in Baku, are especially prone to fire, Ageyev said.

All local radio stations played funeral music as part of national mourning.

President Geidar Aliev set up a government commission to investigate. Its head, Deputy Prime Minister Abbas Abbasov, promptly blamed the accident on Baku's "outdated Soviet" subways, which needed urgent repairs, the Turan news agency reported.

Subway traffic resumed Sunday morning on most lines in the city of 1.7 million.

Last year, about 20 people were killed in two terrorist attacks on the Baku subway. Both cases are still under investigation.

Immediately after Saturday's accident, rumors began circulating around Baku that the fire was also a terrorist act. Authorities insisted there was no indication of terrorism in Saturday's fire.

Azerbaijan, an oil-rich Turkic nation on the western shore of the Caspian Sea, borders on Russia, Georgia, Iran and Armenia. It has been weakened by economic and political turmoil and by war with Armenia over the Nagorno-Karabakh enclave.

With a cease-fire in the war now holding, Azerbaijan is hoping for an economic boost, especially after concluding a multibillion-dollar oil deal with a Western consortium.

Aliev, the country's former Communist boss who returned to power in 1993, has cracked down on opposition parties and independent media.

2,000 LEADERS FROM 60 NATIONS ATTEND

Middle East economic summit opens doors for joint ventures

Greg Myre
Associated Press

AMMAN, Jordan — After decades of war and political feuding, Mideast nations opened their biggest economic conference Sunday to search for ways to make up for years of lost development.

Hundreds of foreign businesspeople, many of them from the United States and Europe, came in search of new markets.

Government officials handed out thick booklets with ambitious plans for regional highways, airports and railroads.

The discussions are expected to produce more networking than actual deals, but the gathering symbolized the effort to set aside age-old conflicts and focus on the pressing need for social development.

"For too long this has been a region of warriors and widows," said Secretary of State Warren Christopher. "It once again should become a region of builders and traders."

Christopher urged the Arab world to end its boycott of Israel, saying it "impedes regional economic integration."

The United States has long opposed the boycott, which was imposed after Israel was established in 1948 on the Arab land of Palestine.

The boycott has weakened considerably since Israel negotiated peace agreements with the Palestinians in 1993 and Jordan in 1994.

Altogether, about 2,000 government officials and business leaders from 60 countries were taking part in the three-day conference, officially the Middle East-North Africa Economic Summit.

Israel's Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said economic reform was badly needed, and countries couldn't expect large inflows of foreign capital simply because they had signed peace agreements.

"No one will come here because of our winning smiles," Rabin told delegates at Jordan's Palace of Culture. "They all want to make money."

Israel's surging economy is one of the few bright spots in the region, though its recent strength has been based largely on increased trade and investment from countries outside the Middle East.

Many countries still have heavy-handed governments that have only taken tentative steps to liberalize their economies. Bureaucracy, corruption, inefficient state-run industries, heavy military spending and antiquated legal and tax codes are problems in much of the region.

Palestinians threaten to avenge assassination

Donna Abu-Nasr
Associated Press

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — Palestinians burned American and Israeli flags Sunday and swore revenge for the assassination of Dr. Fathi Shakaki, the leader of the radical Islamic Jihad and a top architect of terror attacks against Israel.

Students at the Islamic University in Gaza City demanded retaliation against Israel's Mossad intelligence agency, which Israeli media and Palestinian sources said carried out the killing.

"We assure the assassins of the Zionist entity ... that this ugly crime will make every Zionist on the face of the earth a target for our painful strike," said a leaflet Islamic Jihad distributed in the Gaza Strip.

Islamic Jihad and the Maltese police confirmed Sunday that Shakaki was gunned down in Malta on Thursday. A gunman on a motorbike, using a silenced pistol, shot him five times in the head outside a hotel in Valetta, Malta's capital.

The assassination threatened to renew the cycle of violence just as Israel's peace agreement with the Palestinians reaches fruition. But the removal of hard-liner Shakaki also buys time to let the agreement work.

Islamic Jihad, an Iranian-backed organization with an estimated 500 to 600 activists in Lebanon and Gaza, is a highly centralized group expected to be hit hard by the assassination.

"Every action was under the control of Shakaki, who was the commander, the trainer and also the man who raised money for the organization, mostly in Iran," said Gideon Ezra, a former top official in Israel's Shin Bet security service.

A Palestinian source said Islamic Jihad is split between members who want to reach a compromise with Yasser Arafat's self-rule government and radicals such as Shakaki who reject anything short of a Palestinian state in all of Israel and the occupied territories. The source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Shakaki was the only leader who could hold the two sides together.

Alex Fishman, military correspondent for Israel's Yedioth Ahronoth newspaper, said Shakaki's assassination was likely to lead to violence.

But in the short-term, he said, Islamic Jihad would "fall into chaos. The brain is gone."

Israeli officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they

Palestinian members of the radical group Islamic Jihad burn Israeli and American flags Sunday during a rally at the Islamic University in Gaza City. The group's leader, Dr. Fathi Shakaki, was shot to death in Malta Thursday by a gunman on a motorbike. The group, confirming in a leaflet that Shakaki was its leader, swore on Sunday to take revenge on Israeli targets "around the world."

hoped the disarray lasts long enough to get them past Palestinian elections, tentatively set for January, and perhaps even the Israeli elections set for November 1996, without a terror attack that could scuttle the peace process.

Islamic Jihad — "jihad" means "holy war" in Arabic — opposes the Israel-PLO peace agreements and has claimed responsibility for attacks that have killed dozens of Israelis in the two years since the first accord was signed.

The attacks included an April suicide bombing that killed seven Israeli soldiers and an American student, and a January attack on a bus stop that killed 21 people and wounded 62.

Islamic Jihad banners in Gaza City on Sunday threatened new attacks against Israel, some depicting exploding buses. "We will explode Israeli blood and travel with it to heaven," said one. The group also called for a one-hour strike today throughout the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Simpson civil case to offer new facts

Associated Press

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — The personal lives of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman will be fair game in the civil lawsuits filed by their families against O.J. Simpson, attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. said Saturday.

Cochran hinted in a speech at Harvard University that the wrongful death lawsuits would be more than reruns of the nine-month trial that ended in Simpson's acquittal Oct. 3.

"There's so much information that the public hasn't heard about yet that I think will be very relevant in the whole civil background," Cochran told reporters after speaking to an audience of law students.

"It's going to be the victims, and their background becomes very relevant in a civil lawsuit," he said. "It wasn't so in the criminal case."

Cochran, Simpson's lead attorney, said he was particularly bothered by the Brown family's lawsuit on behalf of the two young children of Simpson and his ex-wife.

Earlier, rap students applauded Cochran several times as he recapped the defense case which freed the former football great.

COLEMAN

"Whenever students have an event, she's there and she's sincere about it."

From ice cream socials for students during the first week of class to musical performances, Coleman is there, said Debbie Morris, director of student activities at UNM.

"She's one of the best people I've worked with," she said. "She tries to make it to everything."

Linda Crawford, a graduate student at UNM who served on the university's planning council with Coleman two years ago, said Coleman is fair, listens to all sides in a dispute and seeks consensus.

"She makes sure everyone has an input in decisions," Crawford said.

And Coleman still remembers Crawford by name when she sees her on campus.

"She has interaction with a lot of students," Crawford said.

TUITION INCREASE

That interaction showed in a six-hour debate Coleman had with 50 UNM students staging a sit-in at the office of President Richard Peck, who was gone for the day, Morris said. The students had also protested outside Scholes Hall, the administrative building, by setting up tents and living in them for a week and a half.

"The fault was on both sides," Coleman said. "We didn't involve the students early enough in the discussion. But that sit-in was not all bad."

The sit-in resulted in a debate that allowed students to voice their opinions, said Paul Sanchez, ASUNM vice president. However, the debate was too late, and the New Mexico state Board of Regents passed the 6 percent tuition increase despite student protest.

Although Coleman said the tuition increase at UNM was necessary, she is dedicated to keeping tuition rates reasonable.

"There should never be a financial reason why a person cannot go to college," Coleman said. "We have to keep the University of Iowa as much of a bargain as possible."

FINANCIAL AID

Coleman was also a featured speaker at a rally condemning federal financial aid cuts at UNM, where a larger percentage of students are dependent on financial aid than at the UI.

"We're very concerned about what goes on at the national level," she said. "We've been working hard

New UI President Mary Sue Coleman

on our congressional delegation."

She promised the same level of support for student aid at the UI.

"There has to be a good financial aid program," she said, and encouraged UI students to begin writing their legislators.

"Believe it or not, senators and representatives pay attention when they get several letters," she said.

Coleman also encourages four-year graduation, if it is possible for the student.

"By extending your time in college, you can actually hurt yourself more than if you take out more loans and finished in a quicker time and started earning a salary and getting on with your career," she said.

FOUR-YEAR GRADUATION PROGRAM

However, the question of whether a student can graduate in four years should be left up to the student, Coleman said.

"I know it's fun to be in college," she said. "I know that with Jonathan, he just wept when he had to leave. But there's life after college, and that life is fun and interesting."

Graduating in four years pays off with a decreased amount of living expenses, such as housing, she said.

"The tuition is a relatively minor part of it, though a big part, and I don't want to minimize it," she said. "The longer you have to pay for living costs, it seems to spiral."

UNM has implemented a degree evaluation program that allows students to see where they stand in different degree programs called Project Progress. The program is designed to alleviate some of the problems associated with changing majors, which sometimes results in longer stays for students.

Jan Roebuck, associate provost in charge of undergraduate affairs, said Coleman has been supportive of Project Progress and several other programs that benefit students in trouble.

"The only problem I have with her is that she can't get into my pickup," Roebuck said. "The only people who will bash Mary Sue are the kind of people who bash any administrator."

Coleman has supported programs for students on probation and a tutoring service that gives 100 hours of tutoring per week for each class in which a student is enrolled, Roebuck said.

PROFESSORS AND TEACHING ASSISTANTS

If the four-year graduation plan is to work, however, the university has to make sure classes are available, Coleman said. On top of class availability, professors and Teaching Assistants must also be available for the students.

"Here at UNM in the past five years, we've put a much bigger emphasis on teaching quality (when deciding on tenure)," she said. On top of student evaluations similar to the spot forms filled in by UI students at the end of the semester, professors at UNM are also evaluated by their peers.

Richard Holder, associate provost who said he can "trample right into Mary Sue's office at any time," works closely with Coleman on tenure decisions.

"We like to see a balance between teaching and research," Holder said. "She doesn't give in to pressure from departments or deans in tenure decisions."

Coleman said she has heard of a movement at the UI to begin a teaching center that would help professors and Teaching Assistants with any problems they encounter in the classroom.

"I have found very few faculty members that take pleasure in getting up and doing a crummy job," she said. "They don't like that. They want to do a good job, but sometimes people need help."

Help can range from discussion on how to present a difficult idea to a beginning class to assisting a non-native English speaker in their class presentation.

Coleman said complaints about UNM instructors who are hard to understand because of an accent are rare, due to the diversity of the campus and the ability of students to understand many accents. However, if a complaint does surface, the university helps the instructor clarify their speech.

DIVERSITY

Maintaining diversity at UNM is not a problem — about 30 percent of students are Hispanic.

Hate crimes, on the other hand, have been a problem and Coleman spoke out against them at a student rally.

"Just because we're a very diverse campus, people think we don't have conflict, but we do," she said.

"I can't promise to solve everyone's problems and make everyone happy, but what I can promise is to treat everybody with respect."

Coleman

In conflict, both sides must be respected, Coleman said. However, sometimes the sides can only agree to disagree.

"I can't promise to solve everyone's problems and make everyone happy, but what I can promise is to treat everybody with respect," she said. "It's not enough to recruit students who have different ethnicities, but students have to feel like they're valued on the campus."

Given the ethnic make-up of the state of Iowa, Coleman said, the UI has made good progress in diversity.

"We strive here to look like New Mexico," she said. "The UI has already passed looking like the state. What the university is trying to do is bring in much needed diversity to help students have interesting experiences."

COLEMAN PLEDGES STUDENT SUPPORT

When Coleman moves into the president's residence on Church Street, she will live right on campus instead of 20 minutes away, as she does in Albuquerque. She said this will make it even easier for her to participate in student life.

"It's important for me to support a wide variety of activities on campus," she said. "I can't go all the time — I can't go to anything all the time — but I try to attend regularly. My life revolves around the university."

COLEMAN ON ATHLETICS

be done about the rowdy student section.

One suggestion given by the administration to curb the problem is placing a net in front of the student section. However, Coleman would like to see students come up with the solution.

"I view students as responsible adults and I don't think I have to come in and tell students how to behave," she said. "I would ask students to think about the people that are playing, who are their peers. Throwing things onto the field can be harmful to the players."

Attending the game on Oct. 21 is only one of many sporting events Coleman plans to attend during her presidency. She is a self-proclaimed "stand-up 'n' scream" basketball fan and has recently developed a love for women's volleyball.

She's definitely in favor of gender equity, but knows the problems surrounding the issue.

"The funding (for gender equity) is always a tough issue," she said, because of football, which has so many players and consequently costs more to operate.

"I'm really in favor of giving young women opportunities," she said. "The opportunities help people develop talent and it's enjoyable — it can provide entertainment for people."

UI Women's Athletic Director Christine Grant said she's impressed with Coleman, and hopes the men's and women's athletics can work together toward gender equity.

The women's program is involved in a gender equity plan. A women's crew team was initiated last year, and this year a women's soccer team will be started.

Grant is also impressed with Coleman's commitment to undergraduate education, she said. Coleman supports athletes following athletic department regulations.

Like the UI, the University of New Mexico has higher academic standards than the NCAA requires. Coleman supports those standards.

"We're used to that, we certainly live within those rules," she said. However, some cases need to be reviewed carefully.

In one case at UNM, a freshman basketball player is appealing an NCAA decision to ban him from playing, the campus newspaper, The Daily Lobo, said. His hearing is today.

The player, who lived in Texas during his freshman year in high school, completed a science class which was deemed ineligible by the NCAA as a high-school credit while he was taking the course. He went on to complete higher level high-school science classes successfully.

"This is a case where the NCAA is just wrong," Coleman said. "This student is the type of student an instructor would like to have in class."

Coleman will be meeting with Grant and Bob Bowlsby, UI men's athletic director, soon after she assumes her duties Dec. 31 to discuss gender equity and scholarship, among other topics.

POWELL

Nation."

Powell, the retired Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman, is expected to announce by Thanksgiving whether he plans to join the Republican race.

The GOP front-runner, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, said conservatives would unite behind him as a single alternative if Powell seeks the GOP nomination.

"My view is that would be helpful to me," Dole said at a campaign stop in Carroll, Iowa, Sunday.

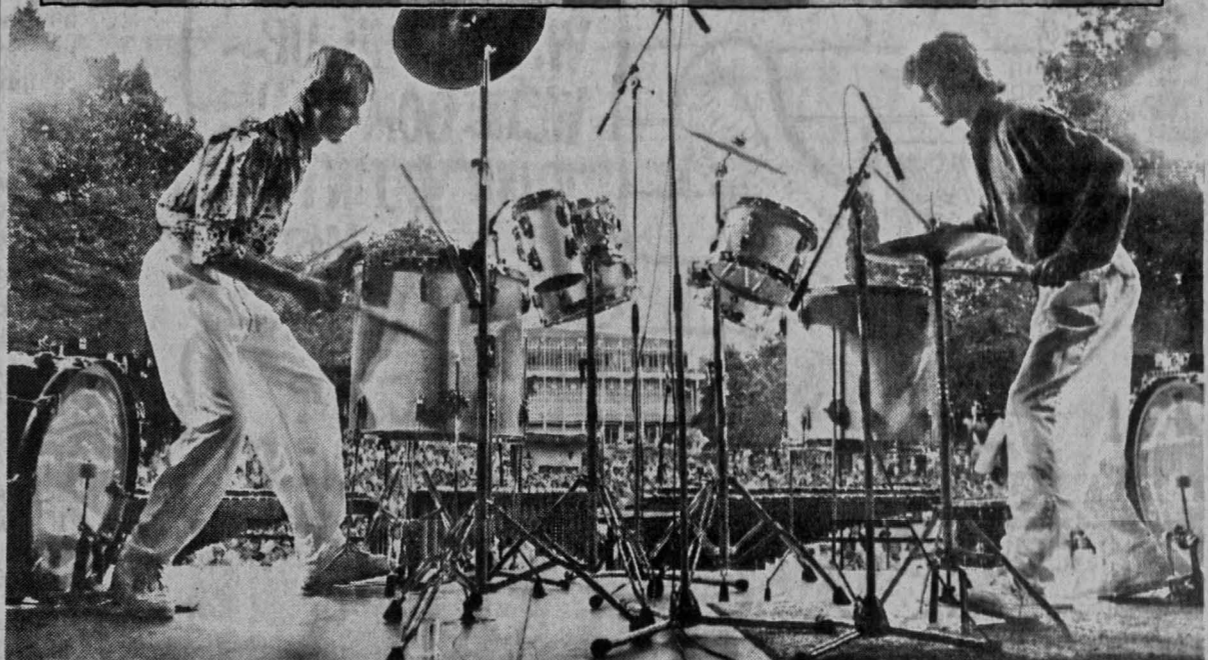

Both moderates and Bennett said they were eager for Powell to more fully explain his positions on abortion, the GOP's "Contract With America," gun control and affirmative action.

"Because this is worth having a debate," New York City Mayor Rudolph Giuliani said on the Brinkley program, adding "Colin Powell has a historic opportunity to broaden the base of the Republican Party in many, many ways, and I'd like to see that opportunity taken."

Former President Bush reportedly was touting Powell at a party in Houston last week, although insisting he would not publicly endorse anyone, Newsweek magazine reported in editions appearing on newsstands today.

was dead," Kooima said. "It was a positive resolution of the situation."

Kooima said Joyce called because there was nothing else for him to do. Kooima would not comment on Joyce's exact location at the time of the phone calls but said it was far away.

"I think he was having second thoughts about what he was planning to do," Kooima said. "Where else was he going to call?"

When Kooima found out Joyce's parents were in Iowa City, he contacted them at the Iowa House in the Union, where they were staying. Joyce's parents then made arrangements to fly Joyce to the family's home in Omaha, Neb.,

Kooima said.

Joyce's father had no comment Sunday.

Shelton said she is happy Joyce has been found.

"I went to sleep Thursday and when I woke up, (Joyce) was dead," she said. "It was the most wonderful thing (on Friday evening) when I woke up and he was alive."

ROAD RACES

intensive training and his decision to pick a few races to concentrate on.

"I felt really in control — like I could pick it up at any point in the race," he said.

Former UI all-American Jenny Spangler, who will compete in the U.S. Olympic Marathon trials in February, lived up to her billing as the women's favorite in the half-marathon. She won in 1:16 and was honored at the post-race party with an induction into the Road Races' hall of fame.

"This is such a fantastic race," Spangler said at the awards ceremony. "I look forward to running it in years to come."

Perhaps the most ambitious group of participants was a group of four who tap-danced their way through the 5K race. The group performed throughout the race and managed to survive until the end. UI junior Mike Ford took credit for the idea.

"I had midterms and was going a little crazy," he said. "I thought of this and said, 'Let's go for it.'"

Mary Ann Lettizio of the International Tap Association of Iowa said this was the first time such a feat was attempted at the races.

"It's never been done before," she said. "I thought we might not look so good, but we looked great."

Other participants tapped into their Halloween spirit to set themselves apart from the crowd.

Helen Baker, Rachael Baker and Cherie Buelow dressed as a trio of M&Ms for the 5K race.

"We decided to do it in the spirit of Halloween and the Hospice Road Races," Helen Baker said. "Cherie made the M&Ms, so we decided to wear them."

The UI was well-represented by both volunteers and participants in the races.

UI senior Heather Broermann was the student liaison for Greek organizations in the event. She said about 500 members of the Greek community participated in some way.

"This is one of the Greek system's philanthropies," Broermann said. "It's something we can contribute to in the community."

The UI women's tennis program made its first appearance as a team, said assistant coach Jen Hyde.

"We figured it was a good cause to run for and well worth the money," she said.

Seven members of the team ran the 5K.

"We thought it would be a good team-building activity," said head coach Jenny Maize. "We wanted to get more involved with the community."

UI junior Heather McManus said this was her second time participating in the races and she planned to return in the future.

"I'll always do it," McManus said. "It's lots of fun."

Other race winners included Dave Nelson, a two-time half-marathon winner and course record holder who finished with a time of 1:08, and former Michigan runner Laurel Park in the women's 10K. Canadian 3,000-meter champion Rod Dehaven and Libbie Johnson of Fort Collins, Colo., won the 5K race with times of 13:57 and 16:12, respectively.

Park said while she was disappointed in her time — 35:36 — the race left a good impression on her.

"It's my first time being in Iowa," she said. "All the volunteers and spectators are great. I really can't say enough about it."

Novice runners also enjoyed the races. Burdett and Cynthia Porter of Coralville participated in the races with their children, Elizabeth, 3, and Alexander, 2.

"We didn't come in first, but we finished," said Cynthia Porter of the family's finish in the half-mile. "We've been practicing in our neighborhood for this."

New university mascot - Iowa Jackasses

The UI student section at Kinnick Stadium has the worst behavior in the Big Ten according to officials who feared being injured when they were pelted with garbage at the Oct. 23 Iowa-Penn State game.

Congratulations Hawkeyes. We should all be proud.

To make matters worse, the referees were not the first visitors to come to Iowa City only to have marshmallows and bottles thrown at them. An embarrassing situation has gone from horrible to humiliating in a very short time.

UI officials can continue to basically ignore the situation and hope the students independently correct their behavior, but it looks as though some changes are imminent.

The UI athletic board last week discussed possible alternatives, including the outlandish idea of erecting Plexiglas or a net, to stop the increasing flow of refuse from the student section to the field.

A whole raw chicken, bottles, cans, a hog head. The question shouldn't revolve around stopping students from throwing this trash onto the field. Authorities should be asking how this junk got into the stadium in the first place.

As they plan for this Saturday's game and the games to come, the UI athletics department is considering several proposals and solutions. Here are a few more.

Everyone younger than Kinnick

Stadium should be thoroughly searched for these trinkets before they

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

Football fans younger than Kinnick Stadium should have to be split up if their childish antics do not improve.

enter. It may slow the flow of fans, but that's the price everyone must pay to protect the people on the field.

UI officials should also change their vocabulary. Fans who throw things during games, either onto the field or somewhere else in the stands, are no longer fans; they are criminals and should be treated as such. They are not acting "rowdy" or "unruly" and singing songs with a few bad words, they are endangering people's lives and breaking the law.

Charges of assault or reckless endangerment would be a fitting reward for the fool who thinks it is acceptable behavior to throw a bottle at someone else. And the bottom line is finally a question of acceptable behavior.

More police officers, ushers or security guards will not be enough to completely stop the behavior that condones or encourages throwing garbage. The permissive atmosphere must change.

Criminals throw bottles or other trash when the people in the seats next to them condone, facilitate or encourage the activity. Because the criminals insist on acting like children, perhaps they should be treated like children. If the abhorrent behavior continues the students — all students, good and bad — may have to be separated.

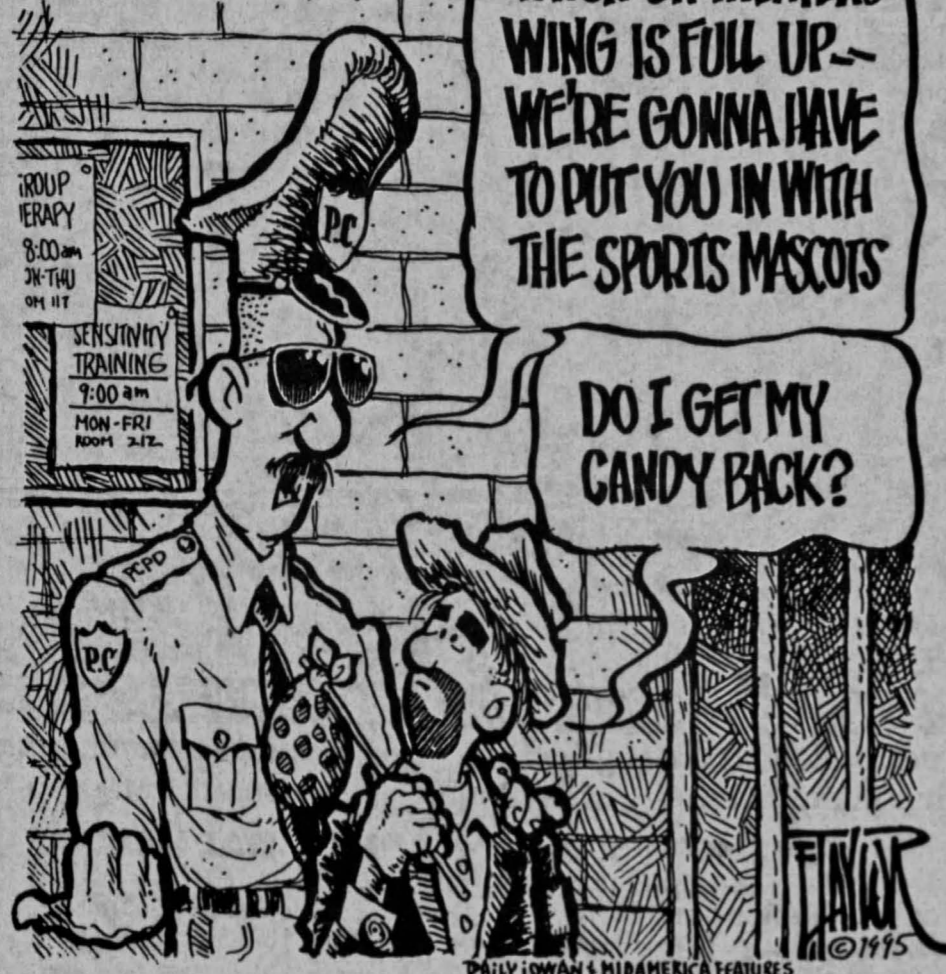

The student section may have to be abolished and the students spread around the stadium, far out of throwing distance from the field. It would be much harder for criminals to act like criminals and throw things if they are sitting near more mature alumni.

If the illegal, childish, and embarrassing behavior continues at the present pace, it's simply a matter of time before images of a bloodied referee, injured at Kinnick Stadium, appears on national television. Wouldn't we all be proud?

Separate but equal training a load of military hypocrisy

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

Female cadets at West Point and the Naval Academy prove that women can handle adversative training and should not be segregated into different schools.

— it's "not because guys are guys, but the camaraderies in some of the tasks would be different."

If the continued high standing of the coed Naval Academy and the coed West Point proves anything, it's that the academic quality and physical training are not sacrificed around women. So, this notion about guy camaraderie is the only possible thing that is lost.

Thank goodness the state of Virginia has set up a place for women to have their own camaraderie. At the Virginia Women's Institute for Leadership at Mary Baldwin, a small private women's college, women are protected from VMI's "adversative" training program. Unlike VMI, they don't break freshmen down by shaving their heads, making them walk at attention and subjecting them to the "rat line." This adversative training was exactly what Shannon Faulkner sought, calling the alternative women's program at VMI "crappy."

At VWIL, women are spared the rigors of VMI and The Citadel. Instead, they do have to participate in community outreach programs. Like one female student said, "if you really want to be in a military environment, you can go to the Naval Academy or West Point."

If the women at the small, 1-year-old VWIL are spared the rigors of adversative training, they will most likely be spared other future rigors, such as positions of real power in their military careers. And creating a cushy women's version of military schools costs the state as much money per pupil as the VMI, but does not give its students the same tradition, reputation and prospects for future success.

As the disco ball turns, the '70s are stayin' alive

I was on the phone last night with my dad and he commented on my sister's new wardrobe. I haven't been home to see it yet, but apparently she's gone retro. Dad said she went out and bought a closet full of bell bottoms, butterfly collars and platform shoes.

Mike Brogan appears Mondays
on the Viewpoints
page

"She went to a thrift shop," he said in a voice filled with wonder. "She bought $150 worth of used clothes that have been sitting in moth balls since before she was born. None of that stuff matches. It's ridiculous."

He paused for a while, which was good because "Sports Center" was just ending and I had to do some channel surfing, and then finally said: "You know, I just don't get it. I mean, the '70s were really stupid, why does everybody think they are so cool all of a sudden?"

You know, Pop, that's a pretty good question. Why do we think the '70s are so awesome? What is its hold on us?

When you think about it, the '70s really weren't all that great. It was kind of an in-between decade — just look at the haircuts. It was fashionable to wear

Say what you will about discotheques, but the music was cool. It was so danceable that any stiff pair of legs could hit the floor and groove. People all across the country were thrusting here and gyrating there. All you had to do was get loaded and spin around — it wasn't that hard. The lyrics were so simple and easy to learn. There were smash hits about the car wash and the YMCA. Most of the songs that went platinum were written on a napkin in a cab on the way to the studio. It was cool.

your hair in the "in-between" stage. The '70s were — bar none — the worst years for hairstyles since the invention of the modern state. I would rather walk around with George Washington's original wig on my scalp than that monstrosity David Cassidy had on his head while he strutted around the "Partridge Family" set.

What about some other '70s icons? The pet rock: what the hell was that? What kind of society is so lonely it needs a rock to keep it company? And who in the name of God would go out and spend money on a rock? What was the difference between the pet rock and the gazillions of other rocks you could find all over the place? Were pet rocks already housebroken? Did they have better temperaments around children than the other rocks? I mean, let's say you grew particularly fond of a rock you found in the woods. Was there a kind of obedience school you could take it to, to domesticate it? What was the big deal?

Shag carpeting. That's another completely stupid idea from the '70s. Why was it so great to rake your living room? What was the attraction? You had to be a pretty big slob in the first place to be leaving a mess a vacuum couldn't handle. Apparently, people would rake their carpets and find, like, whole turkeys and library books they thought they'd returned. My uncle once lost one of his children in his family-room shag. He didn't find him until Christmas morning, 1984.

Then there's the leisure suit, the mood ring, tofu, that stupid "Have a nice day" T-shirt ... the list is endless. But the '70s had two redeeming qualities: disco and the Afro, my friend, disco and Afros.

Say what you will about discotheques, but the music was cool. It was so danceable that any stiff pair of legs could hit the floor and groove. People all across the country were thrusting here and gyrating there. All you had to do was get loaded and spin around — it wasn't that hard. The lyrics were so simple and easy to learn. There were smash hits about the car wash and the YMCA. Most of the songs that went platinum were written on a napkin in a cab on the way to the studio. It was cool.

Now that brings us to the Afro. What a great haircut. While most of the decade was stuck in that terrible in-between stage, there were a few visionaries who decided to go with the full 'fro. All the cool people had them. Dwayne Wayne, Larry Dallas, Willis and Arnold, all of the sweat hogs (including Mr. Kotter himself) and Fat Albert. They all wore them — they knew what was up.

The '70s were a misguided, confused and troubled period in our history. Yet, we revere it like it was some sort of Camelot. I wonder if people in the year 2000 will start tying their sweaters around their necks again and turning their collars up. That's a truly scary thought.

Budget bill pitches mining companies into health care battle

Jim Drinkard

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Beneath the high-profile fights over Medicare and tax cuts, the massive Republican budget bill is also a battleground for a smaller — but no less intense — showdown over who will shoulder health care costs for thousands of retired coal miners.

The bruising battle pits giants of the coal and steel industries, like Peabody and Pittston, LTV Corp. and U.S. Steel, against each other, and each side has hired top Washington lobbyists to plead its case.

"It's a classic Washington big company-versus-big company fight," said Morrie Feibusch, a spokesperson for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, and just one of many lesser-publicized — but no less contentious — items wrapped into the huge budget-balancing package.

With House and Senate action complete, the focus of lobbyists now shifts to strategies for this week's conference committee, where differences between the two chambers' versions will be worked out, or even beyond, to what will happen after President Clinton vetoes the final product.

The bill going to conference would provide millions of dollars in relief for companies which have quit the coal mining business or no longer have union contracts with coal miners. These "reachback" companies, as they are called, contend they should be relieved of paying health care costs for retired miners.

But that would mean shifting all the costs for 67,000 beneficiaries — an estimated $60 million a year — onto the shrinking number of companies still in the mining business. Those companies, including Peabody, Westmoreland and Consolidation Coal, have formed an unusual alliance with the United Mine Workers union to oppose the change.

Feibusch said that to undo the pooled liability arrangement Congress wrote in 1992 would amount to corporate welfare for the companies that avoid health care assessments, since part of the money to make up for the lost revenue would come from Medicare.

The companies seeking relief have formed the Reachback Tax Relief Coalition and found a receptive audience in the new Republican Congress.

"The whole idea of a retroactive federal mandate I think has ticked off lots of members of Congress," said coalition spokesperson Sam Richardson.

One supporter of the change, AlliedSignal, stands to shed some $2 million in annual payments into the miners fund. Its CEO, Lawrence Bossidy, is heading a business coalition that sponsored a $10 million ad campaign promoting the overall budget bill.

Among other items lurking in the fine print of the budget bill:

- A change in excise taxes on alcoholic beverages that would raise $655 million over seven years.

Distilled spirits are taxed at a higher rate than beer and wine because of their higher alcohol content. The Senate version of the bill repeals a tax policy that allows beverage makers to claim a tax credit for wines and other flavorings that are added to liquor, but which have a lower alcohol content.

The Distilled Spirits Council, a trade association, pinned its hopes on an appeal to House and Senate negotiators to roll back what it termed "a major tax increase."

- A $204 million hit on Hollywood, the money to come from a tightening of depreciation schedules used for movies and television shows.

Since 1971, the film industry has depreciated its products based on the forecast life of the programs. VCRs and cable TV have changed the market since then, and Congress sought to stretch out depreciation.

'YES' AND 'NO' VOTES FAIRLY EVEN

Quebec to vote on 'leaving' Canada

David Crary

Associated Press

MONTREAL — The two sides in Quebec's bloodless but bitter war of secession made emotional final appeals Sunday to the undecided voters who will cast the crucial ballots in the vote on splitting from Canada.

"We know we have a chance to win — let's grasp it," separatist leader Lucien Bouchard told one of the last rallies before today's referendum. "Tomorrow night, a people will be born," he said Sunday.

"There will be one last question that flashes through our minds, before we take the pencil and vote 'yes' or 'no.' Do I have enough confidence that the Quebec people can take matters into their own hands? The answer to that question will be your answer on the ballot."

Separatist leader Lucien Bouchard

The latest poll, by the Montreal company Leger-Leger, gave the separatists an edge among decided voters but concluded, after apportioning the undecideds, the referendum was a dead heat.

"It's impossible to predict the winning camp," said Jean-Marc Leger, the company's president.

In the city of Hull, at his last rally as head of the federalist cause, Prime Minister Jean Chretien said separation would be a deep loss for all Canadians, including his fellow Quebecers.

"Canada without Quebec is no longer Canada," Chretien said. "Quebec without Canada is no longer Quebec."

The flag-waving crowd sang the national anthem, "O Canada" — the French version and English version resounding simultaneously through a museum auditorium.

About 5 million people in the mostly French-speaking province are eligible to vote, including roughly 10 percent who said they hadn't made up their minds as of last week.

Election officials predict an exceptionally high turnout.

The separatists and federalists each said they were mobilizing more than 80,000 volunteers to help maximize the turnout of sympathetic voters.

"It's urgent," Bouchard told supporters. "Everyone must use the hours that are left to convince one or two undecided voters."

Police also were mobilizing, particularly in bilingual Montreal and in Hull, in western Quebec across the Ottawa River from Ontario.

"In this case, to be honest, we are a bit more touchy because it's more emotional than an election," said Hull police officer Yves Martel.

Montreal riot police were on standby: Following a 1980 independence referendum, defeated separatists marched through the wealthy anglophone enclave of Westmount, a bastion of federalists.

About 82 percent of Quebecers are French-speaking, and a majority are likely to support independence, according to polls. But an overwhelming majority of English-speaking and immigrant Quebecers are expected to vote to stay in Canada.

Polling stations open at 10 a.m. EST and close at 8 p.m. EST. The outcome is expected to be known within an hour or two unless it is a virtual tie.

Bouchard, whose fiery speeches have been credited with erasing an early federalist lead, played to emotions Sunday.

"There will be one last question that flashes through our minds, before we take the pencil and vote 'yes' or 'no,'" he said. "Do I have enough confidence that the Quebec people can take matters into their own hands? The answer to that question will be your answer on the ballot."

He acknowledged there might be bitterness in English Canada if the "yes" side wins.

"I'm not saying they'll be in a good mood the day after," he said. "But the dust will settle."

The federal government has refused to say how it would respond to a "yes" vote.

It could accept Quebec's independence, launch a legal challenge or try to force a Canada-wide referendum or a second one in Quebec.

The separatists, if they won, would not declare independence immediately.

They have offered to negotiate for up to a year on a new economic and political partnership between Canada and an independent Quebec, but with the option of unilaterally declaring independence at any point.

A professional, social drinking was accepted almost expected. Few, if any, of my colleagues realized the level of my problem. But I knew. And my family knew.

My substance abuse was creating a lot of hardships — financially, physically and emotionally. I was afraid I'd have to quit my job and admit myself to an inpatient rehabilitation unit.

That's when I found St. Luke's Chemical Dependency Services. Their intensive outpatient-based treatment program has allowed me and my family to get the help we needed with as little disruption to our lives as possible. The comprehensive assessments, treatment programs, family education classes and relapse prevention programs provided us with the support we needed to get through this very difficult time.

Now, my golf swing has never been stronger, and my life has never been better. 99

The Coleman Takeover

New UI President Mary Sue Coleman talks with the DI in an exclusive interview at her office at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque, Friday.

Up close and personal

'I just think of her as my mom'

Ann McGlynn
The Daily Iowan

She forgot about her appointment to talk to his fourth-grade class about her job.

But she made up for it when she and her husband took him and 11 of his friends on a weekend trip to an amusement park and to a Steve Miller Band concert for his high-school graduation present.

"I knew she wanted to be a president of a university someday," said Jonathan Coleman of his mother and new UI President Mary Sue Coleman. "I just think of her as my mom."

"Things won't always work out, but it's not for a lack of trying from my mom."

Jonathan Coleman

Jonathan, who is an analyst at Janis Mutual Funds in Denver and Mary Sue and Kenneth Coleman's only child, said it's strange to see his mother in the newspapers and on television.

And it's even more weird to hear about her from his friends.

A college friend called last week to tell him he saw her on television during the Iowa-Penn State football game, which she attended.

"She likes interaction with students," Jonathan said. "She's willing to listen. Don't be afraid to approach her."

Jonathan attended William College in Massachusetts — a college "similar to Grinnell," where his parents met. After graduation, he studied in Costa Rica as a Fulbright scholar.

Travel has been a way of life for Jonathan. He lived in Mexico City and Venezuela with his father during first grade and eighth grade, respectively. Some of his fondest childhood memories come from his mother's visits during those times away from the United States.

"She never left work for the year," he said, "but would come

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — She never dreamed of becoming a university president — it was the last thing on her mind when she was growing up.

And now that Mary Sue Coleman is the new UI president, she remembers the long road she traveled in deciding what to do.

"I got interested in science early, but even in those days I didn't know what might be possible," she said.

Coleman graduated from Grinnell College in 1965 and went on to graduate school at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. There, she began to wonder what teaching at a small liberal arts college, similar to Grinnell, would be like.

"But the further I got into grad school, I realized how interesting it might be in a big university," she said. "Not only be able to teach, but have an active research program.

"That was such a late thought. That's what I think about today when young people are deciding about careers. It's hard because they don't know the full spectrum of opportunities for them. Sometimes you don't know until you're a senior in college and things open up for you."

In 1984, she began her administrative career at the University of Kentucky at Lexington.

"I didn't think of being a university president five years ago," she said. "Things happen to you and possibilities open. One thing you've got to be willing to do is, when possibilities develop, take them."

"There's a risk in doing that. But that's one exciting thing that can happen to you when you take risks — you sort of thrust yourself a little bit and get out and do something you can't imagine yourself doing."

inform him Coleman was the new UI president — she was still in the press conference after the Iowa state Board of Regents announcement when his friend called with the information.

Jonathan is anxious to see the presidential house and hopes to have a bedroom there, even though he lives in Denver.

"Being an only child, I hope they will have room for me," he said. Coleman's mother will also have to have a room in the five-bedroom house. She spends half the year with the Coleman and her husband and half the year in Colorado with Coleman's sister.

Jonathan said his mom will do an excellent job as the new UI president.

"Things won't always work out, but it's not for a lack of trying from my mom," he said.

Mary Sue Coleman will take over the UI presidency Dec. 31.

Mary Sue Coleman on ...

... keeping the library open 24 hours a day:

At the UI, the Main Library is open until midnight, except during the week of finals, when hours are extended until 2 a.m. President Coleman said she would be willing to look at the proposal for extended hours and see what the risks and benefits would be.

Her track record:

At the University of New Mexico, the library is open until midnight for the majority of the semester, and hours are extended until 2 a.m. during the month before finals.

"The student government had brought us that issue the first year I was here. We were looking at issues involving financing, use and safety. We're always concerned about the safety of students, and that seemed to be a good option and a good compromise."

... the cost of books and resale values at the end of the semester:

INITIAL COST OF BOOKS:

"It's an issue that we've got to pay a lot of attention to. I understand the pain students have when they have to pay $500 or $600 for books; that's really hard. It's always a good idea for the campus to have discussion about the cost of textbooks and make the professors aware of the cost, some are just not even aware."

RESALE VALUE:

"I don't think we can (mandate better prices) because the bookstores are walking a tightrope themselves. They're walking a tightrope because they don't know whether the professor is going to use them again."

Her track record:

"There's been a lot of interest in the cost of books in New Mexico because this is a poor state, and students are really very dependent on financial aid and having expensive textbooks is a real problem."

The university has asked professors to closely look at the cost of texts for their classes. The dilemma is that by providing used textbooks, the university can try to help people, but the textbook manufacturers say by selling used books, it drives up the cost of new textbooks.

"It's just a horrible problem — we may be saving money for students this year, but driving up the cost for new students next year."

... parking:

"I'm sure parking is as much a premium here as it is in Iowa, probably more so."

Seven percent of UNM students live on campus, where 30 percent live on campus at the UI, which makes walking a much more popular option at Iowa than at UNM.

Her track record:

"We hear more here about parking than anything. We don't have any space to expand into parking. Beyond that, we've had a lot of opposition from our neighborhood community to building parking structures. What we've tried to do is try to maximize our remote parking and increase the busing system."

Colemans met in college — poolside

Ann McGlynn
The Daily Iowan

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — She was a chemistry student at Grinnell College. He was in political science.

She lived on the south side of campus with the rest of the female students. He lived on the north side.

UI President Mary Sue Coleman and her husband Kenneth would not have met if it hadn't been for a party she didn't want to attend.

The residence hall she lived in bid on a party at a charity fund-raiser hosted by Kenneth's residence hall at an alumni's house in Marshalltown, Iowa. It was a poolside cook-out — complete with steaks — and no one in Coleman's residence hall wanted to go — so she reluctantly volunteered.

They met and began talking. But because Kenneth was so quiet, she was afraid she would run out of things to talk about within 10 minutes.

As it turns out, Kenneth was dating one of Coleman's friends. That relationship quickly faded, and Kenneth and Coleman began dating and were married the summer after they graduated from college.

"I was very attracted to him," Coleman said confidently at one point in the interview when Kenneth was not present.

Kenneth, on the other hand, turned red when asked about the initial encounter and quietly said "I thought she was really interesting. I liked her."

They've been married 30 years — all the while neglecting to tell their son, Jonathan, they had met at a party.

"A party?" he said. "I never knew that."

Kenneth, who specializes in Latin American studies, has not finalized plans for a UI position. However, he said the position of a Latin American specialist who retired a couple of years ago was never filled.

Kenneth said he's looking forward to moving to a state with a small Hispanic population. New Mexico has a large Hispanic population — about 40 percent — and offers little challenge, he said.

"One gets lazy in New Mexico," he said.

Joe Black/Special to The Daily Iowan

UI President Mary Sue Coleman met her husband Kenneth at Grinnell College. They will move to the presidential residence sometime during winter break. They're anxious to return to Iowa, where they have family and friends from high school and college.

Coleman knows her way around the health sciences

Ann McGlynn
The Daily Iowan

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — As a biochemist, new UI President Mary Sue Coleman will be looking at where health care is going in the future and how it will affect the largest tertiary health care center in Iowa.

"There's going to be less emphasis on (in-patient) care facilities and more emphasis on out-patient and home-based care," she said. Research will remain a vital part of the center.

As president, she will also be looking at the physical and technological growth of the hospital, including the creation of the Web site known as Virtual Hospital at the UI Hospitals and Clinics.

Virtual Hospital is an interactive site on the World Wide Web that gives basic care and hospital information.

"It's an interesting concept," she said. "It's on the cutting edge."

"The perception is that we're separate, but the faculty would like to interact. I have no doubt that she will be able to deal with the separation at the University of Iowa."

Ellen Goldberg, associate provost for research at UNM

She will also be dealing with the academic barrier that exists between the health sciences campus and the liberal arts campus — something she encountered at UNM.

Much like the Iowa River at the UI, the health sciences campus at UNM is separated by a physical barrier.

At UNM it is a street — nicknamed the Gulf of Lomas.

The campus was also separated administratively in July 1994. Previously, health science officials reported to Coleman, who is provost and vice president for academic affairs. Now, they report to President Richard Peck.

"The perception is that we're separate, but the faculty would like to interact," said Ellen Goldberg, associate provost for research at UNM. "I have no doubt that she will be able to deal with the separation at the University of Iowa."

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Nebraska unseats FSU

There's a new No. 1 team in college football. Nebraska, which had been No. 2 all season, overtook Florida State for the top spot in the polls Sunday.

The Huskers (8-0) received eight fewer first-place votes than Florida State (7-0) in The Associated Press media poll, but they got three more points than the Seminoles.

"They've been the best team all year from what I've seen," said Florida State coach Bobby Bowden, who has been voting Nebraska's defending national champions as No. 1 this season in the USA Today-CNN coaches' poll.

"They've got a great quarterback and tailbacks," Bowden added. "But what really impresses me is their offensive line. It doesn't make any difference who they put in there at tailback, that line just makes them all good."

In the coaches' poll, Nebraska received four more first-place votes and 14 more points than Florida State.

Nebraska coach Tom Osborne wasn't concerned about the polls.

"I think it is still too early to get too excited about it," he said. "Being No. 1 has its pluses and minuses."

Atlanta makes good on third try

Ben Walker

ATLANTA — Ted Turner wandered around the field with the trophy on his head.

Steve Avery took a victory lap around the bases and slid into home plate.

Fans lingered long after the last out.

That's how winners act.

Chokers no more, the Atlanta Braves have the look of World Series champions at last.

Five years of frustration ended Saturday night when Tom Glavine pitched one-hit ball for eight innings and David Justice homered, bringing the city of Atlanta its first major sports title with a 1-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians in Game 6 of the World Series.

"This has been a long time coming. This organization and this group of guys has worked so hard to get here and we've come up short," said Glavine, whose two wins made him the Series MVP.

ATLANTA — For Tom Glavine, pitching the World Series clincher Saturday night was the climax of a long, difficult journey, one that began in an almost empty ballpark on an almost hopeless team.

His magnificent one-hitter over eight innings was his second victory in the Series and made Glavine the Most Valuable Player in the six-game victory over the Cleveland Indians.

But things were not always as sweet in Atlanta as they were after the clinching 1-0 victory.

Glavine arrived in Atlanta in 1987, during the darkest days of the Braves depression, when the ballclub routinely was out of the race in mid-summer, drawing more mosquitoes than fans.

Greg Maddux wasn't around then. Neither was Fred McGriff nor David Justice nor any of the others in the current cast. There was just Glavine, trudging out to take the punishment.

Other teams came around, trying to get him away from the Braves but Bobby Cox, the general manager in those days and now the manager, wouldn't bite.

"I can't say I wanted to be traded," Glavine said. "I heard all the rumors. Boston for Wade Boggs,

"They used all their weapons and just ran by us like we weren't there."

Because of the game, the Buckeyes received six first-place votes in the Associated Press poll, Iowa fell out of the Top 25 and the Hawkeyes gained a lot of respect for three of the top players in college football.

As Ohio State romped to a 56-0 lead in the first half, Heisman Trophy candidate Eddie George gained 112 yards rushing on 15 attempts, reaching the end zone four times. The nation's No. 1-rated quarterback, Bobby Hoying, completed eight passes for 273 yards and two touchdowns, while running for

The Big Ten title, the Rose Bowl berth and the national title. They're all gone. But the Iowa football team still has a lot to play for.

The Hawkeyes 56-35 loss to Ohio State on Saturday, along with the 41-27 loss to Penn State a week earlier, left many Iowa players' hearts in the bottom of their stomachs.

"It's going to be hard (to get over), but it's all part of playing sports," Iowa safety Damien Robinson said. "If you have a loss, you try to focus for a little while and try to learn from it. But we've got to get it out as fast as possible so it won't affect the rest of the season."

The key to moving on for the Hawkeyes seems to lie in the form of the Illinois Fighting Illini, who travel to Kinnick Stadium this weekend. Iowa must win two of its remaining four games (against Illinois, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Minnesota) to be eligible for a bowl game.

CHAMPS

World Series games is real fresh in everyone's mouth," he said.

"But, it's gone now, drowned out by champagne — sprayed and guzzled all over the locker room.

"We worked hard and we deserved it and we're going to enjoy it," said team owner Turner, walking around the locker room repeating, "At last, at last."

"Series losers in 1991 and 1992, NL playoff losers in 1993 and denied a chance in 1994 by the players' strike, the Braves had won more games than any team in the majors over the last five years, but were still compared to the Buffalo Bills, who lost four straight Super Bowls. No team in baseball history had gone to the postseason four times in a row without winning the championship, and the Braves made sure it didn't happen to them.

"Justice, who had criticized Braves fans for being too quiet, Kansas City for Bo Jackson. As bad as we were, I enjoyed playing here. I had a lot of friends here."

In 1989, John Smoltz showed up along with Jeff Blauser as Atlanta began piecing together a competitive team. Glavine was 7-17 that season, a lost soul. He went 14-8 in 1989, the first hint that the left-hander from Concord, Mass., was more than just another Atlanta arm.

"He started really pitching really good in 1990," Cox said. "He had a bad record and all that, but our defense was horrible then. We added some guys in '91 and he really came to the forefront."

And so did the Braves.
"As the years went on, I'd look around the clubhouse and see these guys trickling in," Glavine said. "We were adding the right pieces to the puzzle. I knew we had a chance to be pretty good and I wanted to be a part of it."

After going 10-12 in 1990, Glavine won 62 games in the next three seasons, including 20-11 in 1991, when he won the Cy Young gave them reason to cheer when he homered leading off the sixth against reliever Jim Poole. After the game, he blew kisses to the crowd.

"I was really a nervous wreck coming in today because I'd been in this situation before, where you're up 3-2," Justice said. "I really had a good feeling that it was our time. We had suffered enough. It was time for our club and time for our city to get one."

Glavine and Mark Wohlers combined on the fifth one-hitter in Series history and first since Jim Lonborg for Boston in 1967, allowing only a soft single by Tony Pena starting the sixth inning. Glavine reprised his win in Game 2 by again using his changeups and breaking balls to fool the Indians.

More than anything, that was the theme this October — great pitching stopping great hitting.

Cleveland, which led the majors in batting, scoring and home runs, was held to a .179 average by Atlanta's aces, four points off the lowest average ever in a six-game Series which was set by the New York Giants against Philadelphia in 1911. The Indians were shut out just three times all year, but managed to put only one runner past first base against Glavine and Wohlers.

"Their starting pitching is deeper than we've seen, we didn't see their bullpen much," Indians manager Mike Hargrove said.

Fittingly, it was Glavine who ended the elusive quest. He'd been with the Braves longer than any player on their postseason roster, beginning his career in 1987 at the start of a four-year span in which Atlanta was the worst team in baseball, averaging 98 losses per season.

Glavine struck out eight and walked three, then told Cox he was done after eight innings. Wohlers, filling the closer role that had been the Braves' biggest bug-a-boo in postseasons past, finished it out, retiring the side in order for his second save.

"The only thing people can't say is that we can't win a world championship," Wohlers said. "We've brought it home."

The crowd was on its feet for the ninth inning, a lot with their tomahawks chopping. As soon as Marquis Grissom caught Carlos Baerga's fly ball to left-center, a few fans took to the field but they were quickly escorted by police as the rest of Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium stood and cheered to the song "We are the Champions" by the group Queen.

Properly, perhaps, the Braves won by a 1-0 score. In 1991, in their first try at clinching the title, they blew a three games to two lead over Minnesota, dropping Game 7 by a 1-0 score to Jack Morris in 10 innings at the Metrodome. That was the last 1-0 game in a World Series.

Hargrove said. "I don't know that we hit one ball hard off him. He kept us off balance. He kept the ball down. He didn't make any mistakes."

The lone hit was a leadoff single in the sixth by Tony Pena. In the eighth inning, though, Glavine was beginning to feel spent.

"In the eighth I started feeling a little stiff," he said. "It was hard getting loose. (Jim) Thome hit a long fly for the first out. I got behind Pena 2-0. I didn't make any good pitches in the eighth inning."

In the dugout, as the Braves batted in the bottom of the eighth, Cox asked Glavine how he felt.

"I'm not going to lie to the guy," the pitcher said. "Plenty of times I've talked him into keeping me in games."

This time, he talked Cox into taking him out.

"He was completely exhausted," the manager said. "He couldn't go another hitter or another pitch."

So Mark Wohlers came on for a 1-2-3 ninth, finishing the fifth one-hitter in World Series history and erasing Glavine's worst postseason disappointment. With a chance to pitch the clincher in the 1992 league championship series against Pittsburgh, he started Game 6. He was battered for eight runs in the second inning and although the Braves won the pennant in Game 7, the failure gnawed at him.

"There isn't a whole lot I want to remember about that game, to be honest with you," he said. "Those things happen. As a pitcher sometimes you're not going to have very good days, and unfortunately for me on that particular day it came in Game 6 of a playoff series and forced a seventh game. But that happened to me two years ago, and if I'm not over it by now, then I'm going to be in trouble."

During the strike that ended the 1994 season, Glavine was one of the outspoken players, attending many of the negotiating sessions as the Braves player rep.

"He's been a tough guy," Cox said, "a great team leader and a good representative for the city of Atlanta."

And on Saturday, he delivered the ultimate gift to the town — its first professional sports championship.

FIELD HOCKEY

Hawks pick it up in OT

Chris James
The Daily Iowan

Who said nobody's perfect? For the first time since 1992, the Iowa field hockey team has sliced through the entire Big Ten Conference like a hot knife through butter. Saturday's 4-3 overtime victory over Northwestern sealed the perfect 10-0 record, lifted Iowa to its 10th straight victory, and gave the Hawkeyes their 17th win of the year, the most in the regular season since the '92 season.

However, Beglin still saw room for improvement.

"We still haven't put two halves of solid field hockey together," Beglin, Iowa's head coach, said. "We find ways to win games but there is going to be a time when we can't afford to play like day and night."

Iowa, playing the cardiac kids as usual, stormed out to a 3-1 lead but let Northwestern back into the game when Iowa gave up two goals in the final 12 minutes of regulation to force the game to overtime. The Hawkeyes eventually prevailed but this was the ninth one-goal victory for Iowa this year. Beglin said her team would have to finish the game stronger if they want to advance in the post season.

"We have to start putting people away. We seem to get a lead and then go totally on the defensive. To get through the Big Ten tournament and advance in the NCAA's we cannot play passive field hockey when we get a lead," Beglin said.

The Hawkeyes, on another chilly October afternoon, fell behind the Wildcats 1-0 when Northwestern's Ashley Williams scored off a direct corner. Iowa answered in less than Iowa senior Nancy McLinden pursues the ball Saturday morning at Grant Field. Iowa defeated Northwestern in overtime, 4-3.

45 seconds as Michelle Wilson found a cutting Diane DeMiro in the penalty circle. The junior scorched home her 16th goal of the year to knot things at 1-1. Mary Casabian punched home a penalty stroke to put the Hawkeyes up 2-1 and Ann Paré added a goal with 1:06 remaining in the first half to extend Iowa's lead to 3-1.

Northwestern got their act together in the second half, scoring twice in the final 12 minutes to tie the game at 3-3. The Wildcats launched a total of 14 penalty corners at the Hawkeye defense. Iowa goalkeeper Lisa Cellucci posted 12 saves for the contest.

Paré, playing in her final regular season home game, ended all hopes of a Wildcat upset when she dumped in a direct corner in overtime to seal the 4-3 Iowa victory. The assists were given to Mandy Abblitt and DeMiro. Paré said it was good to go out with a win.

"It was great to finish the year undefeated in the Big Ten and win on senior day. But now the real season begins and we have to stay on top of things," Paré said.

DeMiro said with the Big Ten tournament looming next weekend it will be key for Iowa to stay focused.

"We're the team everybody is going to be shooting for," DeMiro said. "If we can play consistent and aggressive then we will remain the team to beat."

BLOWOUT

Wide receiver Terry Glenn caught three of those passes for 149 yards. He probably would have gained more yardage, but the end zone stopped him twice.

"I didn't respect him enough," Iowa defensive back Plez Atkins said of Glenn. "I played him the way I've played every other receiver to this point — in their face, a little tighter, I took a few more chances."

"When you take chances, you get beat a lot. And he's fast enough to beat anybody."

Ohio State's high-powered offense picked the Hawkeye defense apart throughout the first half. And Atkins was the first victim.

The Buckeyes' first offensive play was a 55-yard pass from Hoyer to Glenn. When Hoyer cocked back to throw, Glenn and Atkins were side by side around the 20-yard line, but a fraction of a second later, Glenn was 10 yards behind Atkins.

"I was in a deep zone and he just ran by me," Atkins said.

Fry had no excuses either.

"We knew they were going to throw the ball to him underneath and we couldn't do anything about it," Fry said.

Glenn fell at the 3-yard line, but George ran it in for a touchdown and a 7-0 lead just two minutes into the game.

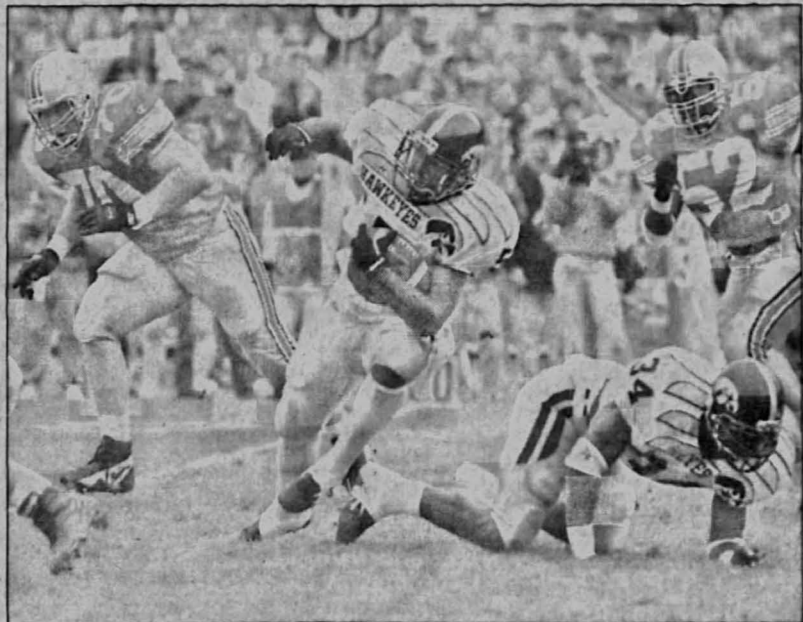

Over the next 10 minutes, Hoyer, Glenn and George put three more scores on the board. George's nine-yard touchdown run was sandwiched between Glenn's touchdowns of 38 and 56 yards.

When the first quarter ended, the Buckeyes had four possessions and four touchdowns. And they continued to roll.

The opening play of the second quarter was a 60-yard interception return by OSU's Shawn Springs.

It was Ohio State's second consecutive drive-stopping interception.

"I was afraid that was going to happen. Ohio State verified my suspicion," Fry said of the Buckeyes' quick start. "But they have one of the greatest teams to ever play in the Big Ten."

Iowa didn't force a Buckeye punt until Ohio State's seventh offensive possession. The Buckeyes scored on every other one in the first half. With 2:14 remaining, the Buckeyes had compiled their 56-0 lead and Hoyer, Glenn and George had called it a day.

Iowa didn't put any points on the board until the last play of the first half — a naked bootleg by Matt Sherman was fumbled at the one-foot line and recovered by Sedrick Shaw in the end zone.

It was a fitting end to a sluggish first half. The Hawkeyes held the ball for 18:44, but gained just 164 yards.

The touchdown did, however, serve as a catalyst for a 35-0 Hawkeye scoring run.

"Thank gosh our players did regroup at halftime," Fry said. "It would have been very easy for our guys to have just surrendered, given up and not played in the second half after the beating that they took."

Iowa started quickly in the second half. Sedrick Shaw scampered in from 19 yards out, cutting the lead to 56-14 less than three minutes into the second half.

Shaw ran for a pair of touchdowns in addition to the fumble recovery. He carried the ball 31 times for 133 yards, with 85 of those yards coming in the second half.

Iowa's other two scores came in the air. Sherman threw a two-yard pass to a wide-open Willie Guy and a 55-yarder to Tim Dwight.

Sherman had an average day. He threw for 334 yards, but his incompletions outnumbered his completions (18-of-37) and his three interceptions outnumbered his two touchdowns.

Iowa's defense also played much better in the second half, holding the Buckeyes to 42 yards and no points.

"Our guys hung in there and fought as best they could," Fry said. "We beat on their second team pretty good. Unfortunately they wouldn't play their second team in the first half."

Who's better, Ohio State '95 or Penn State '94? Terry Glenn or Bobby Engram?

The questions were flying after the Hawkeyes witnessed one of the greatest team and individual performances they've seen in a long time.

"I think this bunch is better (than Penn State was last year). I really do," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said of the powerful Buckeyes. "Ohio State's defense is better than Penn State's defense last year and their offense is every bit as good."

Fry also referred to the Buckeyes several times as the best team in the nation and called them "one of the greatest teams ever to play in the Big Ten."

Iowa defensive back Plez Atkins wouldn't say who was the better receiver — Ohio State's Glenn or Engram, who the Hawkeyes faced last week when Penn State visited.

"I'm going to say Terry Glenn is definitely faster. A lot faster," Atkins said. "But they're both great. I have a lot of respect for Bobby Engram and I can't say who's better."

Glenn's speed allowed him to get behind the Hawkeye defense three times for 149 yards and a pair of touchdowns.

Coach Fry isn't as concerned with Iowa's mental wounds as he is with the Hawkeyes' physical wounds.

FOCUS

won't be playing Ohio State again," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said. "We'll bounce back and we'll play good football against the other teams."

For now, the top priority has turned toward playing Illinois.

"All I know is we're going to get our heads up and we're going to go after them," defensive end Eric Hilgenberg said of Illinois, who beat Iowa 47-7 last season. "We're going to give it our best shot."

One consolation for the Hawkeyes is they outscored the Buckeyes 35-0 in the last 30-plus minutes of the game.

"We asked the kids what they wanted to do. They wanted to score as many points as they could and play as well as they could in the second half," Fry said.

"It would have been very easy for our guys to just surrender, give it up and not play the second half. We just have to build on the second half and try to get ready. We're going to play some other real fine football teams."

Defensive tackle Jon LaFleur agreed the second half performance, although against the Buckeye second team, was important.

"It's real easy to just go out there and say let's get this whole thing over with. We didn't want to do that. We wanted to go out there and show them we may not be the best football team, but we're pretty darn good, pretty tough, and we've got some pride in us," he said.

"We're kind of happy with how we came out and played in the second half."

But even that wasn't enough to completely put the loss out of the Iowa players' minds.

"That was good going into next week," said Robinson, "but all the fellows wanted to play hard and win this game — another goal that we didn't make."

Cornerback Plez Atkins knows it must be forgotten, as hard as that may be.

"You've got to live with it. It's tough. But you go on," he said.

"You've got to test yourself and test what kind of person you are. You hate to forget about it, but you've got to. You've got to realize that you still have to perform well. You can't hold your head down."

Iowa's Robin Niemeier sets to return a shot Friday against DePaul at the Iowa Recreational Center.

Iowa disposes of Blue Demons

Shannon Stevens
The Daily Iowan

Iowa coach Jenny Mainz had a lot of things to be worried about going into the match with DePaul last Friday.

Krissy Campbell was out with a shoulder injury, Robin Niemeier and Heather Mowery were making debuts at new positions in the line-up, and no one knew what to expect from a Blue Demon squad that featured five foreign players.

In the end it didn't matter, as the Hawkeyes (3-0) rolled to a 6-1 victory over the Blue Demons (1-1).

Early on, it did indeed appear that the Hawkeyes might be knocked off their perch as seniors Sasha Boros and Nikki Willette (7-2) lost their second doubles match of the year. DePaul's Klara Salopek and Nives Milosevic finished off the Hawkeye duo 8-2 with well-placed lobs and scorching ground strokes.

Boros said she and Willette never found their rhythm after falling behind early.

"We can't afford to lose any games early because it just kind of snowballs," Boros said.

"They got up 5-2 and we just looked at each other because we couldn't believe it was going so fast."

At No. 3 doubles Kristen and Kelly McCracken fell behind 4-3 only to rally for an 8-4 win, setting the stage for a crucial final at No. 2 doubles where Niemeier and Erin Wolverton held a tenuous 6-5 lead over Jeanne-Marie Walker and Claire Stopforth.

With both squads crowding around the court cheering on their teammates, the Hawkeyes roared to life for an 8-5 win and a 1-0 lead in the overall scoring. Niemeier and Wolverton didn't surrender a single point in the final game.

Niemeier said she was just happy to gain a doubles victory while filling in for Campbell.

"It was kind of hard because Erin and I hadn't been practicing together," she said. "She's a great doubles player and she really helped me out."

With DePaul's spirit broken, the Hawkeyes dominated the remainder of the match. Iowa captured five of the six singles matches highlighted by a 6-4, 6-1 Boros win over Salopek at No. 1 singles. Kristen McCracken, Niemeier, Wolverton, and Mowery also won in straight sets.

Mainz said her team came up big in its final dual match of the season.

"It was a good match to win," she said. "Before the match I definitely had some concerns, but our girls came out again ready to play and really capitalized on the big points."

Members of the Iowa novice rowing team compete Sunday at the Head of the Iowa on the Iowa River.

Hawks romp at Head of the Iowa

David Schwartz
The Daily Iowan

Iowa's first-ever home Regatta at the varsity level proved more than successful Sunday, with the Hawkeyes producing several first-place finishes.

The Head of the Iowa, a six-hour event with such teams as Kansas and Creighton universities, featured the women's varsity team, novice squad and men's club team, and climaxed with a Hawkeye victory in the open women's 8.

With sophomore Marni Levinson as coxswain of Iowa-A, Iowa overcame two Jayhawk shells for the win. Iowa-B took fourth, but finished just four seconds behind the second-place boat.

"It's exciting to see the changes from last year. They looked smoother and were rowing together," Iowa coach Mandi Kowal said.

Kowal said her squad, now in its second year of varsity status, could relate to KU's growing pains.

"It's obvious they're (KU) getting support," Kowal said. "This is their first year at the varsity status and I'm sure they'll improve as they go on."

Hawkeye senior Britt Winroth said she was proud of her teammates for their hard work, but that having so much fan support was also a plus.

"Oh, the crowd was great," Winroth said.

"The people lining the bridges were giving us so much support and it really pushed us."

The Hawkeyes will compete in an intrasquad meet Saturday as part of Parents' Weekend to close out the fall season.

Between now and next April, when Iowa opens the Spring season, Kowal said improvements need to be made in the area of strength.

"We need to work on our power, we need to have more consistent power application," Kowal said. "I'm sure we will have improved on this by the spring."

Winroth, who was a member of Iowa-B in the open women's 8, also stressed the need for the improvement.

"I think we just need to get stronger," Winroth said. "We'll do strength training (in the offseason) and we'll also go down to Florida to compete against some teams down there."

While strength may be the primary offseason goal, it's not the only area of focus.

"We'll be looking to pick up speed month by month," Kowal said.

Other Iowa wins included the men's master 4+, the open women's 4+, mixed 4+ and lightweight men's 4+.

Hawkeyes with eight kills and digs. Lisa Dockray, who was switched to attacker to replace Webb, notched seven kills, five digs and two aces.

Saturday's match with the Wolverines was more of the same. Jill Oelschlager was the only Hawkeye in double-figures in kills as she finished with 11. Fawbush led the team with 11 digs.

The Wolverines finished with a hitting percentage of .331 compared to the Hawkeyes .148. In the first game, Iowa finished with a dismal .030 hitting percentage. Michigan sported a .515 percentage in the second game.

Michigan State on Friday by a score of 15-6, 15-3, 16-4. Saturday, Michigan topped Iowa in three games, 15-7, 15-5, 15-9.

Tiffany McDaniel helped Iowa with nine block assists over the weekend, but her presence was not enough.

"I didn't play exactly the way I wanted to, but I played as hard as I could," McDaniel said. "Just being out there was very exciting."

Michigan State proved to have far too much power for the Hawkeyes. The Spartans' Veronica Morales was dominant as she finished with a match high of 22 kills.

Katy Fawbush led the weakened

Volleyball team falls in Michigan

Jon Bassoff

The Daily Iowan

The last thing a struggling team needs is to lose its top player. The Hawkeyes were thrown into that unenviable situation this weekend.

The Iowa volleyball team lost two more conference matches over the weekend without its star hitter, Jennifer Webb. Webb missed both matches due to a strain under her shoulder blade.

"It made a big difference (not having Webb)," coach Linda Schoenstedt said. "She's our best hitter and about 40 percent of our offense goes to her."

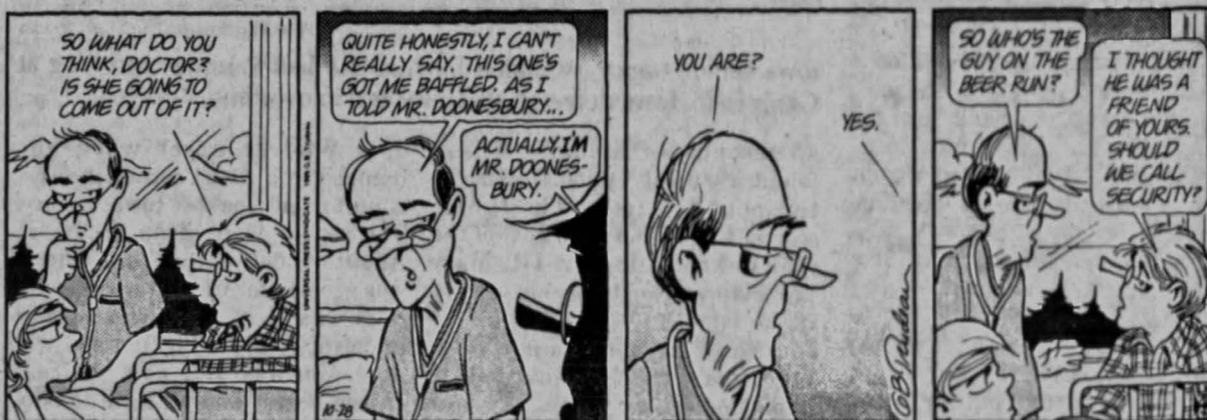

The Hawkeyes lost to No. 6

NFL ROUNDUP

49ers fall to Saints in stunner

Associated Press

On the day he became the NFL's career leader in receiving yards, Jerry Rice was thinking only about the pass he didn't catch.

Rice had eight receptions for 108 yards Sunday, bringing his career total to 14,040 yards and surpassing James Lofton's mark of 14,004 yards.

But Rice was upset at himself for failing to catch a bomb from Elvis Grbac late in the San Francisco 49ers' 11-7 loss to the New Orleans Saints. The pass went off the fingertips of Rice, who was tightly covered by cornerback Jimmy Spencer.

"The ball was up there and I knew I had to explode for the ball," Rice said. "I had to use so much energy to catch up to the ball. I had my hands on it, and if you have your hands on it you should get the ball."

The long pass came with about 2:30 remaining in the game and the 49ers facing a third-and-18 at the New Orleans 49. San Francisco punted on the next play and never got the ball back.

"I should have made the catch," Rice said. "If I would have made it, we would have won the football game."

Browns 29, Bengals 26

In Cincinnati, rookie Eric Zeier played the unaccustomed role of star, passing for 310 yards and producing a winning overtime drive after the Browns blew a 10-point lead in regulation. Matt Stover's fifth field goal, from 28 yards 6:30 into OT, clinched a 29-26 victory.

Zeier, replacing the benched Vinny Testaverde, completed 26 of 46 passes. He led Cleveland (4-4) on a 90-yard drive that culminated in a 17-yard TD pass to Andre Rison.

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

Colorado fails to unseat Huskers

Associated Press

Now that Colorado has joined Kansas State on the list of those beaten by Nebraska, the top-ranked Cornhuskers have only to avoid the unexpected for a shot at successfully defending their national title.

Victories in their final three games (against Big-8 Conference foes Iowa State, Kansas and Oklahoma) would send the Cornhuskers to Tempe, Ariz., Jan. 2. There, in the Fiesta Bowl, Nebraska would defend its title against second-ranked Florida State, No. 3 Florida or somebody else.

No. 1 Nebraska 44, No. 10 Colorado 21

"The seniors stressed that we haven't lost to these guys, so we didn't want to lose this one," said Frazier, who completed 14-of-23 and ran 13 times for 40 yards.

He threw for two touchdowns and ran for one as the Cornhuskers continued their domination of the No. 7 Buffaloes with a mistake-free victory.

Ahman Green ran for two touchdowns and Kris Brown kicked three field goals for Nebraska (8-0, 4-0), which beat Colorado (6-2, 2-2) for the fourth straight year while extending the nation's longest winning streak to 21 games.

No. 3 Florida 52, Georgia 17

The Gators, the class of the Southeastern Conference, continued to roll toward their showdown Nov. 25 against Florida State.

With Danny Wuerffel passing for 242 yards and five touchdowns in less than three quarters, the Gators (8-0, 7-0) easily beat the Bulldogs. Georgia (5-4, 3-4) was entertaining Florida for the first time in 63 years in a traditional game usually played at Jacksonville.

Wuerffel threw three scoring passes to Chris Doering.

No. 4 Ohio St. 56, Iowa 35

Ohio State, led by Eddie George's four TDs, set a school record with 56 first-half points and remained a half-game behind Northwestern in the Big Ten. The Buckeyes (8-0, 4-

Associated Press

Colts quarterback Jim Harbaugh is hit by New York Jets linebacker Bobby Houston Sunday.

Earnest Byner's TD run with 2:51 left gave the Browns a 10-point lead.

David Klingler replaced Jeff Blake (concussion) and sent the Bengals (3-5) on a drive that led to Doug Pelfrey's 41-yard field goal with 1:04 left. Cincinnati recovered the onside kick, and Klingler took Cincinnati 54 yards with the help of two pass interference penalties on Antonio Langham. A 2-yard lob to Carl Pickens tied it with 15 seconds left. But Blake returned, was intercepted by Dana Hall and Cleveland kicker Matt Stover won it.

Panthers 20, Patriots 17

John Kasay nailed a 29-yard field goal at 7:08 of overtime, lifting the visiting Panthers over New England. Carolina (3-5) became the first expansion team to win three straight games and also tied an NFL record for wins by a first-year club, already matched this season by Jacksonville.

Kerry Collins completed 25 of 45 passes for 309 yards and two touchdowns.

Cowboys 28, Falcons 13

Deion Sanders came back to pro football and the Georgia Dome, the place he called "my house," and had little impact in his debut with Dallas. Cowboys mainstays Troy Aikman, Emmitt Smith and Michael Irvin led the way in a 28-13 victory.

Smith rushed for 167 yards in 26 carries and scored his 14th touchdown on a 1-yard run for the Cowboys (7-1). Irvin caught 10 passes for 135 yards, including a leaping 43-yard TD pass from Aikman, who hit 19 of 25.

Cardinals 20, Seahawks 14

Lorenzo Lynch intercepted a tipped pass and returned it 72 yards to win it for Arizona (3-5). It was a sudden finish to the sloppily played game in which Seattle's Sam Adams blocked a 28-yard field goal attempt earlier in OT.

The Seahawks (2-6) lost three of eight fumbles, while the Cardinals lost two fumbles and Dave Krieg was intercepted twice.

Dolphins 23, Bills 6

Buffalo (5-3), minus injured Andre Reed and Thurman Thomas, sputtered at Miami (5-3), with eight of its 11 possessions failing to produce a first down. Thomas' replacement, rookie Derrick Holmes, rushed for just 24 yards in 12 carries.

The Dolphins got back Dan Marino from hip and knee woes, but it was the defense and running backs Terry Kirby and Bernie Parmalee who keyed the victory.

Lions 24, Packers 16

The host Lions (3-5) got three Scott Mitchell to Herman Moore touchdown passes and 167 yards rushing from Barry Sanders. The Packers (5-3) appeared to be driving for a touchdown late in the game, but Brett Favre gave up the first fumble by Green Bay's offense this season and Chris Spielman recovered. Detroit forced four turnovers.

Oilers 19, Buccaneers 7

Cris Dishman picked off two passes by Trent Dilfer, whose Tampa Bay-record 138 consecutive passes without an interception was snapped. Al Del Greco kicked four field goals for host Houston (3-5), which had the ball for 41:51. Tampa Bay (5-4) lost its second straight.

Eagles 20, Rams 9

At Philadelphia, William Fuller and Andy Harmon had two sacks apiece, leading the Eagles (5-3) to their fourth consecutive win. He also forced a fumble that Kevin Johnson returned for a fourth-quarter touchdown for the league's top-rated defense.

Colts 17, Jets 10

At Indianapolis, Eugene Daniel picked off a pass on the final play of the first half and returned it 97 yards for a touchdown. That was all the Colts, 5-3 for the first time since 1977, would need.

Steelers 24, Jaguars 7

At Pittsburgh, Neil O'Donnell doubled his season total with two touchdown passes and the Steelers (4-4), with new starters at nine positions, dominated the Jaguars (3-6).

The Steelers, scoreless on their previous 10 trips inside the opposing 20-yard line, got touchdowns on their first three visits to the red zone against Jacksonville.

Giants 24, Redskins 15

The New York Giants took everything the Washington Redskins had to give. It was more than enough.

The Giants scored 17 first-half points off four Washington turnovers, and also took advantage of wide open receivers and sloppy tackling in a 24-15 victory Sunday night.

Quartet goes out in style

Steve Willard
The Daily Iowan

The much-loved Cleveland Quartet of Cleveland, Ohio, makes Hancher one of its farewell tour stops tonight at 8. The ensemble is disbanding after 26 years together.

The concert promises to be an emotional one for all members of the quartet, but particularly for William Preucil, who grew up in Iowa City.

The quartet — William Preucil, first violin; Peter Salaff, second violin; James Dunham, viola; Paul Katz, cello — will perform a program of favorites as well as a new quartet by John Corigliano. The Musical America's 1992 composer of the year's piece was written specifically for the Cleveland Quartet's farewell tour.

Other pieces featured are Franz Joseph Haydn's "Quartet in D major, Op. 76, No. 5," and Brahms' "Quartet in A minor, Op. 51, No. 2."

The farewell concert will not fall on deaf ears in Preucil's hometown. His first Suzuki teacher, his mother Dorothy Preucil, will direct students from the Preucil School of Music in a post-concert toast to the first violin and his Cleveland Quartet colleagues in the Hancher lobby.

Preucil went on from Suzuki to study at the Interlochen Arts Academy in Michigan and at Indiana University, where he earned the prestigious Performer's Certificate under the tutelage of Josef Gingold.

Upon graduation, Preucil was appointed concertmaster of the Nashville Symphony and subsequently played with the Utah Symphony before becoming concertmaster of the Atlanta Symphony in 1992.

Preucil joined the Cleveland Quartet in 1989. Though significantly younger than the two founding members, he immediately meshed with the group.

"Our ideas and our whole musical language were very similar and compatible," Katz said. "It's an intuitive thing and very hard to define, but when you're playing with the right person, there's a certain chemistry that you can feel instantly."

The Cleveland Quartet plays a leg of their farewell tour at Hancher tonight at 8 p.m.

While in Europe during the group's 25th anniversary tour, Preucil told the other members he had been offered — and turned down — a position as concertmaster of the Cleveland Symphony. Other members mentioned they, too, had been thinking of pursuing other opportunities.

As the tour played on through Asia, the group became physically exhausted and tired of the constant travel. When the Cleveland Symphony renewed its offer, Preucil said he'd reconsider because the demands of touring were taking their toll on his personal life.

"We'd been having discussions for some time about how we could keep the quartet going, but spend less time on the road. ... We kept coming up to a dead end because the way to stay really playing our best was to rehearse every day and to play all those concerts because that's what keeps you sharp. All of us felt we didn't want to do it and be not in full spirit."

The quartet decided to finish touring while still sharp. Their final 18 months together are geared toward finishing important projects such as the Cleveland Quartet Award, which helps young quartets. The ensemble decided to take different directions in their professional and personal lives and it was important for them to remain friends.

"If anybody wanted to keep it going, they could have," Preucil said.

While Preucil will become concertmaster for Cleveland Symphony, Salaff will become Director of Chamber Music at the Cleveland Institute of Music. Both Dunham and Katz will concentrate on their teaching at the Eastman School of Music in Cleveland, where the quartet has been in residence for nearly two decades.

Onyx rap is still angry and it shows

Nathan Groepper
The Daily Iowan

Executive producer Jam Master Jay took them from their previous album, All We Got Is Us, the follow-up to their platinum debut Bacdafucup.

Onyx's first album established them as group that kicks tight lyrics over pounding production. The new album draws on this lyrical strength to scream messages of social injustice.

On tracks like the debut release "Last Dayz," Onyx explodes about the hardships of inner-city life. Here, the sheer power and intensity of the Onyx vocals adds integrity to their cultural commentary.

The gem of the album, however, is the ultra-catchy single "Shout." Here, producers Pedro Starr and Afficial Nastee showcase the talents of Onyx by setting the usual vocal attack to a head-nodding hook.

In the end, All We Got Is Us proves to be one of the strongest rap albums this year. The album is filled with well-written lyrics, tight beats, and a lot of anger. By the end, the assault on your ears and social perceptions may get redundant, but a group with a street reputation has to stay mad to sell albums.

Look What's Coming to Coralville

A new 15,000 square foot state of the art fitness "super center" which boasts a variety of brand new equipment to cater to individual exercise programs will open its doors November 1 in Coralville.

The facility will offer weight management programs supervised by a health care professional with twenty years of experience, including work at St. John's Hospital and Health Center in Santa Monica, CA, where she served as the Clinical Practice Improvement Coordinator. At PRO FITNESS 2000, Dr. Leslie McCombs, R.N., C.N.A.A., Ph.D., will be specializing in coordinating weight gain, weight loss and weight maintenance programs.

Jerome Owens, 1995 North American World Kickboxing Champion, recognized by the World Kickboxing

Council, will instruct members in learning the sport of kickboxing in the fully equipped regulation size boxing and kickboxing arena. Demonstrations will be held after opening.

Probably the most unique feature of PRO FITNESS 2000 is its CARDIO Theater that gives members the option to watch videos or television while working out. This simultaneous entertainment and exercise takes the "work" out of workout so that exercise becomes entertainment. Personal training will be provided by certified personal trainers from New York, L.A. and Oregon and will be overseen by Vincenza Miller, previous owner of an East Coast based personal training company. The only facility in the area to offer cardio theater and kickboxing also houses a full pro shop, three tanning beds, free weights and machines, more than fifteen pieces of cardiovascular equipment, fat measuring, blood pressure checks and personalized diets for members.

Presently on staff to answer questions and assist members will be 1995 Light Heavyweight National Body Building Champion, Rod Ketchens. Never an initiation fee or waiting line for equipment. PRO FITNESS 2000 is offering limited memberships at $35 a month; $299/year plus receive 10 free tans with any annual membership signed by October 31, 1995.

The staff at PRO FITNESS 2000 is dedicated to helping people reach their fitness goals. Stop by at your convenience for a tour of the facility.
