WASHINGTON — Retired Gen. Colin Powell ran a million-dollar campaign to bring the Republican Party to victory in the 2000 presidential election, but the Republican Party has yet to be made up of a political winner again.

Pat Buchanan, an early conservative, is the only one who can be made up of a political victory for the Republican Party.

Pat Buchanan and other conservative spokesmen have made up of a political victory for the Republican Party.

In an interview with the Associated Press, Buchanan was asked if he was prepared to make a deal with Christian Coalition folks to break the nomination and tilts the full-scale revolt by Christian conservatives if Powell wins the nomination for president.

Dwindling commitment to priesthood vexes Catholic church

Moira Roman

The number of candidates willing to commit themselves to the all-male, celibate priesthood has been dropping since the 1980s, hitting an all-time low in 1998, according to the Archdiocese of St. Louis.

Roman Catholic priests in the Archdiocese of St. Louis last year ordained only 10 men, while seven were sent to seminaries, said Msgr. Leo Feeney, chancellor of the diocese.

"The current situation is very serious," he said. "The archdiocese has 29 priests over 70 years of age, and we estimate we will need 30 priests over the next five years to replace the ones who will retire."

Feeney said the archdiocese has 34 priests under 30 years old, but he estimated it will need 40 priests next year to replace those who will retire.

"It's a serious problem," he said. "We're not sure how much longer we can go without a new group of young men entering the priesthood."

The problem is national, according to Feeney, who noted that priests in other archdioceses across the country have also experienced a decline in the number of candidates for the priesthood.

Feeney said the archdiocese has been trying to address the problem by increasing its efforts to recruit young men into the priesthood.

"We're doing everything we can to attract young men to the priesthood," he said. "We're offering more financial aid, more support, and more opportunities for young men to see what the priesthood is all about."

The archdiocese also has a program called "The Call," which is designed to help young men who are interested in the priesthood to explore their vocation in a group setting.

"The Call" includes retreats, seminars, and other activities that help young men to discover their vocation in the priesthood.

"The Call" has been successful in attracting young men to the priesthood, according to Feeney.

"We're seeing more and more young men interested in the priesthood," he said. "The archdiocese is doing everything it can to help them discover their vocation."
Hindu new year’s festival brightens I.C.

Hindu Haggam

The Daily Iowan

Like a Christmas, Fourth of July and New Year’s Eve celebration all in one, the Hindu festival of Diwali is set to light up the sky this Saturday in the Union Bar — it is characterized by lights brightening cities, fireworks and lights for prosperity and happiness for the new year.

"Diwali" translated as "The Festival of the Lights" has been a Hindu ritual and Alumia tradition for thousands of years in different regions of India. About 150 people attended the celebration, many of whom were dressed in traditional attire.

The holiday signifies the triumph of good over evil and knowledge over ignorance, and marks the end of the winter season in India.

Diwali is celebrated all over India with different themes and in different ways, said Iowa City resident Sandhi Hejeebu, who attended the celebration.

However, she said two things all the traditions here in America are the celebration of a good god destroying an evil demon and the presence of candles and lights.

"No matter what region you go to, they celebrate a lord destroying a demon and everywhere there are lights."

Iowa City resident Sandhi Hejeebu

Hindu in Nepal is similar to Hellenism, because families and friends go back to house buying traditional songs and return for parties to set, Dhal said.

Fireworks, lanterns and sparklers are popular all over India during Diwali, said T. Rash Behari, an Iowa City resident who attended the celebration.

Dhal, which marks the end of the financial year in India, is a day to worship the Goddess of Wealth — one of many gods and goddesses of the Hindu religion — in the hope of gaining prosperity and happiness for the new year to come, said Maneo Bhujinghali, a Cedar Rapids resident who is originally from Baruhi, India.

In Nepal, it is believed the Goddess of Wealth triumphs over evil to kill a demon, and Supriya Dhal, a Wolstein, III, resident who attended the festival.

He said to the Hindu religion, there is one supreme God, but there are countless gods and goddesses who are manifestations of that supreme God.

Palestinians threaten to avenge assassination

Dania Alu-Nar

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — Palestinian leaders burned American and Israeli flags Sunday and accused the leader of the Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt, Fathi Shakaki, of being behind the assassination of a Hamas commander.

"We assure the assassins of the blood of our martyrs that this ugly crime will make every Zionist on earth a target for retaliation," the Hamas statement said.

Shakaki was the head of a Hamas military wing, the Al-Quds Brigades, and was killed Thursday in a suicide bombing attack outside a hotel in Malta.

Israel's peace agreement with the Palestinians was expected to be hit hard by the assassination.

Palestinian officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they were wary of any new attacks, saying that the assassination was likely to lead to a renewed cycle of violence just as the removal of hard-liners from the Hamas government and radicals such as Shakaki was expected to be hit hard by the attack.

The attacks included a killing of a Hamas commander in Gaza City on Sunday. A gunman on a motorcycle opened fire on the Hamas commander, who was returning from a trip to Europe, and killed him.

Palestinian leaders of the radical group Islamic Jihad have made a call for a one-hour protest against the Hamas government and radicals such as Shakaki, who reject anything short of a one-state solution.

A whole raw chicken, bottles, cans, a pair of golden sandals, and a pair of golden bracelets—these are the things that have been sitting in the closet for months. It's ridiculous. You just ending and I had to do something about the closet. The question is, are you ready to get rid of these things? You know how I feel about getting rid of things. I'm of the opinion that if you don't use something in a year, it's time to let it go. It's time to think about the things you own, and decide what you really need. You shouldn't waste your time hanging on to things just because they're expensive or hard to find. It's time to be honest with yourself and the things you own. If you're not going to use something, it's time to let it go. You shouldn't spend your money on things you don't need.

Budget bill pitches mining companies into health care battle

Drinkard

WASHINGTON — But the high-pitched fight over Medicare and tax cuts in House-Senate conference committee has exploded by a smaller — but no less — battle over coal miners who will collect health care costs for thousands of former miners and their families.

It’s a classic Washington big-company-versus-big-company battle for Pittsburgh coal operator Dan Crary, chief for the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States, and the former owner of the American Coke and Chemical Corporation, and just one of many insurgent campaigns — but one that might win.

Drinking again, coal

It all started when some 80 $65 billion in annual payments into the miners fund. Its CEO, Sam Richardson, praised its $2,000 million hit on Hollywood, the film industry has deplored its product based on the forecast of the programs. VA's and other TV versions will be worked out, or even legislated by Congress. And those attending the 47th Annual "Homecoming Breakfast" for University of Miami Law School District Attorneys for Los Angeles County...shameful Saturday in Miami at the Miami Athletic Center.

University life intrigued Coleman

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. She never dreamed of becoming a university president - it was the last thing on her mind when she was growing up.

And now that Mary Sue Coleman is the new UI president, she travels in deciding what to do.

"I'm interested in science, but even in those days I didn't know what might be possible," she said.

Coleman graduated from Grinnell College in Iowa and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. There, she began to wonder what teaching at a small liberal arts college, similar to Grinnell, would be like.

"But the further I got into my good school, I realized how much I would like to develop some of the same interests, she said. "So not only did she want to be a bright scholar, but she also wanted to be someone who would like interaction with people."

ATLANTA - Tom Glavine, plagued the World Series closer Saturday night was the climax of a long and difficult journey, one that began in an almost empty ballpark at the end of the 1987 season.

But things were not always as sweet in Atlanta as they were after the clinching Game 6 victory there. Greg Maddux wasn't around then. Tomahawk Fred McGriff wasn't in the lineup. Neither was David Justice.

Glavine arrived in Atlanta in 1987, during the darkest days of the Braves depression, when the team was far from the promised land.

"This has been a long time coming," Glavine said. "This organization and this group of guys has worked as hard to get here and we've come up short," said Glavine, whose two words were worth more than 1,000 MVP's.

The Big Ten title, the Rose Bowl berth and the national title. Those are all great, but the Iowa Hawkeyes still have a lot to play for.

The Hawkeyes 56-14 loss to Ohio State on Saturday, along with the 41-37 loss to Penn State a week earlier, left many Iowa players with the feeling that their season has fallen apart.

Who said anything about perfect? For the 95th-ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers in the Big Ten Conference, the road to the Central Division title is quite a long one, the Huskers struggled to get into the conference lead on Saturday afternoon in Iowa City. The two teams had never met in conference competition, with both teams standing at a 3-0 conference record. The game was a low-scoring one, with the Cornhuskers leading 10-9 at the end of the first half.

(14-6, 3-0) and the Iowa Hawkeyes (14-6, 3-0)

The game was played in front of a crowd of 15,167, making it one of the largest attendances in history for

Big Ten football.

Iowa quarterback Bob Glidden, who had 149 yards passing and two touchdowns, had a 17-yard touchdown run in the first half. Nebraska quarterback Matt George, who had 242 yards passing and one touchdown, also scored on a 17-yard run in the first half.

Iowa State running back Deon Howard scored two touchdowns in the second half, including a 10-yard run to tie the game at 35-35 with 1:06 remaining in the fourth quarter.

The game was a defensive struggle, with both teams having trouble generating big plays.

Iowa State quarterback Lance Coverdell scored two touchdowns in the second half, including a 10-yard run to tie the game at 35-35 with 1:06 remaining in the fourth quarter.

Quartet goes out in style

Steve Wilford
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City-based Iowa City Quartet of the University of Iowa, made headlines last week as it stepped onto the stage of the Hancher Auditorium to perform in a recital. The concert promises to be as emotional one for all members of the quartet, but particularly for William Preucil, who gave up his childhood dream of becoming a professional violinist.

The quartet, William Preucil, first violin; Robert Zehnder, second violin; James Daniel, viola; and Paul Kula, cello, performed a program of works by Brahms, Shostakovich, and Corigliano. The quartet's performance was a fitting farewell to Preucil, who, in 1971, was the first winner of the prestigious Performer's Certificate on emotional one for all members of the quartet. It was Preucil's pedal of the year's piece was written specifically for the Iowa City Quartet.

While in Europe during the quartet's 20th anniversary year, Preucil told the other members that he had been offered - and turned down - a position as a professor of music at the University of Helsinki. "It was the kind of thing that I had been thinking of pursuing," he said. "I was offered the position of director of the Preucil Institute of Music, but I decided not to accept offers from other universities."

As the tour played on through Europe, Preucil was playing with the Cleveland Symphony and Utah Symphony. While on tour, Preucil was thinking of pursuing a career in teaching at the Eastman School of Music.

"It's important for them to keep their minds open," Preucil said. "They need to continue thinking and exploring different directions in their musical and personal lives."

"If anybody wanted to keep it going, they could," Preecil said. "While Preucil will become more involved with Cleveland Symphony, Preucil will become Director of Chamber Music at the Cleveland Institute of Music. Both Daniel and Zehnder will continue to teach at the Eastern School of Music in Cleveland, where the quartet has been in residence for nearly two decades.

Onyx rap is still angry and it shows

Nathan Greger
The Daily Iowan

Executive Director Jerron MaSure Jr. told them their concert was given as a public service. "This is a great opportunity to tell the world about the power of music," the executive director said. "The new album drawn on this is a strong enough to scream a wave of social injustice. On tracks like the debut release, "Oxy's Last Dayz," Onyx explains about the hardships of inner-city life. The album, however, is a lot like a regular style car.

All We Got It is the follow-up to their previous album, "Onyx's First Album." The album is filled with well-written lyrics, tight beats, and a lot of anger. By the end, the album's message is a little mundane and gets redundant, but a group with great original songwriting will go on to bigger things.

Look What's Coming to Coralville

A new 15,000 square foot state-of-the-art fitness super center which features a variety of brand new equipment and state-of-the-art individual exercise programs will open in downtown Coralville.

The facility will offer weight management programs supervised by a health care professional with twenty years of experience, including work at St. John's Hospital and Health Center in Santa Monica, CA, where she served as the Clinical Practice Improvement Coordinator. PRO FITNESS 2000 Dr. Leslie McCrath, RN, MSNA, PhD., will be spearheading a coordinating weight gain, weight loss and weight maintenance program.

Jeramie Owens, 1995 North American World Kickboxing Champion, recognized by the World Kickboxing Council, will instruct members in learning the sport of kickboxing in the fully equipped regulation site boxing and kickboxing area. Demonstrations will be held after opening.

Probably the most unique feature of PRO FITNESS 2000 is its CARDIO Theater that gives members the option to watch videos or television while working out. This instantaneous entertainment and exercise takes the "work" out of workouts so that exercise becomes entertainment.

Personal training will be provided by certified personal trainers from New York, L.A. and Oregon and will be overseen by Vincenza Miller, personal owner of an East Coast based personal training company. The only facility in the area to offer cardio training, kickboxing also houses a full pro-shop, free tanning beds, free weights and machines, more than fifteen pieces of cardiovascular equipment, for measuring blood pressure, cholesterol and personal diets for members.

Prospctive staff are encouraged to answer questions and meet members will be held at PRO FITNESS 2000.

Kurtis Miller, a former Mr. Iowa Winner 1990 and 1992 and the 1994 Mr. California winner, is a Personal trainer.
