Hayden Fry tackles critics

'I don't feel like we have to defend a cotton pickin' thing'

'Just don't understand all these criticisms.' Fry said, referring to radio call-in shows and newspaper columns saying he should not have hired Kingsbury.

Kingsbury has lost a total of four football games this season. There were to teams currently ranked No. 9, No. 8, and No. 17 in the nation.

'The last couple of years, we've probably done the best job of coaching we've ever done,' Fry said. 'We've not won the national championship, but we've reached a bowl game 17 times in 15 years. That's why we're here. With all these niche things.' Fry said. 'We've got so many positive things going for us that other unin

Delta Gamma, BACCHUS team up for alcohol awareness

Sarah Lukach
The Daily Iowan
A nearly all-Greek audience gathered Tuesday night to learn about responsible alcohol use and alcohol poisoning at a panel discussion organized by the Delta Gamma sorority and BACCHUS.

A question-and-answer session was held after four panelists addressed the crowd.

Mary Peterson, advisor for Boosting Alcohol Consciousness University Students (BACCHUS), said drinking is not just about the types of health issues, but personal decisions.

"When I was a college student coming to the UI, the legal drinking age was 18. I thought I was a mini woman and I was so excited."

"It's much better to have somebody wake up in a hospital bed the next day and be a little embarrassed or tired off than to have them not wake up at all," Peterson said, referring to how everybody throws up. "Somebody needs to stay with that person. Use the buddy system."

Julie Rohovit of Health Iowa can make mistakes—the key is not to make them twice. Your greatest power in life is to make your own decisions.

"When you're young, you're invincible," she said. "At the UI—not unique to this year—we've proved that wrong."

Julie Rohovit of Health Iowa and it's always better to be safe than sorry when it comes to friends who have consumed too much alcohol. "It's the freshmen and sophomores who have alcohol poisoning myths."

"It's the freshman and sophomores that I'm worried about," she said. "The junior and seniors should be role models."

"They're the ones in party UI that have the most to lose." Rohovit gave the audience a list of common alcohol consumption myths.

One of the myths Rohovit dispelled was that alcohol causes magical sexual enhancement. "Guys, there's that Shakespearian stereotype."

Rohovit also said that all college students drink in false and dangerous ways.

"There are myths out there that all college students drink," she said. "That's a gross generalization.

Petersen said upperclassmen should show responsibility when drinking with younger friends.

"It's the freshman and sophomores that I'm worried about," she said. "The junior and seniors should be role models."

Don't be afraid to party UI, they said.

Panelist Catherine Johnson made a presentation as a representation of UI college officials, about the legal issues involved in underage alcohol consumption.

"We're about awareness, we don't encourage abstaining from alcohol," she said. "I don't think we get an audience if we did, and we wouldn't be true to our mission as activists."

EVIDENCE shows eggs aren't delusional

ANALYSTS, Cal. (AP) — Middle-aged women who eat a lot of eggs turn out to be no more coronary-prone than their friends who eat half the eggs, according to researchers who say the long-running debate over eggs as a dietary menace may have been a diet fad.

The latest evidence is a study done by the University of California, San Francisco, that has been following 10,000 women over the last 10 years.

The researchers say the eggs are not a problem.

"We think the eggs are not a problem," said Dr. Janet C. Cook, who led the study. "We think the eggs are not a problem."

Ravaged Sierra Leone suffers forgotten wars

By Oulu-Brown

DO TOWN, Sierra Leone

Momoh Foma's mother whispers to him in his dreams: "Do I dream of my father? No, I dream of my beloved mother." The dreams are a form of self-defense. "Do I dream of my father? No, I dream of my beloved mother," she tells him. "When you're talking about my father, you are talking about your own mortality," her voice cracks, "your own vulnerability."

Momoh has been running ever since he can remember. He has heard his mother may be in the United Nations' refugee camps in eastern Sierra Leone. They are bordered by the Grafton group of villages. Some 18 child combatants in the conflict are not really in a position to tap back into what was once normal life. "It's a very difficult war and it's a great tragedy," said Dr. Douglas Lowe, a Seattle physician who worked in the Sierra Leone conflict. "I think we're doing a tremendous disservice to the children here."

Lowe, who also worked in Rwanda's refugee camps in eastern Zaire last year, said he was more impressed with the resolve of the children he treated in Rwanda than in Sierra Leone. "The war is not based on tribe, nor are the killings based on territory," said John Charles Ray, charge d'affaires at the United Nations' cousin in Freetown. "It is financed by the United Nations' emer... Whether you're talking about the Sierra Leone foreign affiliate, you have to talk about strategic interests," said Charles Ray. "A large share of their military backers are not really interested in Sierra Leone and Liberia. They are interested because they are..."

The United Nations' emergency program for Sierra Leone is a major challenge. "We are not really interested in Sierra Leone," Hansen said. "It's an emergency that is quite terrifying."

"Unfortunately, that trend is to put more effort toward the borders of the line. The West African countries are not really interested in the Sierra Leone and Liberia..." Hansen said.

"I am sure the Sierra Leone foreign investors have no idea how to tap into the border of the line. They are not really interested in Sierra Leone. They are interested because they are interested in the West African countries. They are not really interested in Sierra Leone."
Alcohol experimentation not a way of life

The recent arrest of UI basketball player Chris Kingbryan, coupled with the disclosures of several UI women's gymnastics members for drinking, has added to the growing concerns about alcohol's role at this university. Kingbryan, a freshman, who is a three-point specialist, spent a night in jail after he reportedly caused disturbances at the downtown Holiday Inn, 215 S. Dubuque St., No. 10, his blood-alcohol level tied 1.6, above Iowa's legal alcohol content of 0.10.

Meanwhile, several UI students have been booked over the weekend for violating the men's alcohol policy. Women who admitted to drinking at a team meeting are facing possible suspension. As one of their directors, Carver-Hawkeye Arena was told to turn in their roster. The basketball team has been told to turn in their entire squad.

After the Gophers incident, the Greek system was panicking about this move. In the press, gender and student advocates for the Greek system have voiced their concern. Women students, who are well versed in the workings of the Greek system, know how to deal with these situations. The problem associated with these systems is not complex, and the Greek system can figure these situations out on their own.

The recent arrest of UI basketball player Chris Kingbryan, coupled with the disclosures of several UI women's gymnastics members for drinking, has added to the growing concerns about alcohol's role at this university. Kingbryan, a freshman, who is a three-point specialist, spent a night in jail after he reportedly caused disturbances at the downtown Holiday Inn, 215 S. Dubuque St., No. 10, his blood-alcohol level tied 1.6, above Iowa's legal alcohol content of 0.10.

Meanwhile, several UI students have been booked over the weekend for violating the men's alcohol policy. Women who admitted to drinking at a team meeting are facing possible suspension. As one of their directors, Carver-Hawkeye Arena was told to turn in their roster. The basketball team has been told to turn in their entire squad.

After the Gophers incident, the Greek system was panicking about this move. In the press, gender and student advocates for the Greek system have voiced their concern. Women students, who are well versed in the workings of the Greek system, know how to deal with these situations. The problem associated with these systems is not complex, and the Greek system can figure these situations out on their own.

Clarity.

Big Unit brings home the bacon

Ben Walker
Associated Press

*HIS SEASON: Luke his mentor Nolan Ryan, Randy Johnson wants to be known as more than just the guy who merely fired 109 mph fastballs.

"It's not something I've been looking at," the Cy Young Award-winner said. "It's nice to know you're getting to the 100s, but I'm trying to be a Cy Young Award-winner for the AL, not just serve up them 109 mph fastballs."

"Big takeaways now comes up with aCy Young Award," Johnson said. "The first one is to be a Cy Young Award winner and the second is to be a Cy Young Award winner and the third is to be a Cy Young Award winner..."
