GERs: Debate rages on

Foreign language: Are 2 years needed?

Greyson Purcell
The Daily Iowan

Some students no hablan español and they're arguing that the UI shouldn't force them to spend hours learning it.

The UI's two-year foreign language requirement was the issue primarily under fire at Wednesday's open forum about the revisions of the UI's General Education Requirements. Students had asked for a voice in determining how many hours of certain subjects they should be required to take before graduating from the UI and the forum drew about 80 people.

"I do not think you need two

However, others supported keeping the requirement in place as a way to expose all students to other languages and cultures.

Revising the GER system

The UI Faculty Assembly is considering two proposals to replace the current General Education Requirements for the College of Liberal Arts.

A forum Wednesday gave students an opportunity to voice their opinions about the policy.

How the UI's current plan and proposed replacements compare, and the GER policies for a B.A. at five other universities:

forced to take it as a GER, I've decided to major in it," said Jill Jauer, a UI junior double-majoring in Spanish and pre-medicine.

Judi Liskin-Gasparro, a UI professor in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese, said reducing the foreign language requirement to two semesters for some degrees would produce graduates with little to no language skills.

"The university has a two-semester requirement for admission, so students not in the B.A. track will not be required to take any foreign language," she said. "We are currently the only country to graduate students who are not bilingual."

Ken Cmiel, a UI history associate professor and member of the Educational Policy Committee which designed the proposed revisions in GERs, said the language requirement was not exclusively targeted, but part of the GER revisions as a whole.

"What we tried to do with the current program is reduce requirements across the board," he said.

Proposed revisions include a restructuring of GERs into categories, a decrease in the natural

N.Y. girl tortured, killed by mom

NEW YORK — In a city where so many poor children are born and buried with never a chance, Elisa had not one, but many.

Her loving father protected her and, as he was dying, devised a plan to keep her from her crack-smoking, abusive mother.

A Greek prince befriended her and offered a scholarship.

The staff of her Montessori preschool doted on her and stayed alert after early signs of abuse by her mother.

The Family Court judge handling her case had shown a willingness to deny custody to a biological parent if it was in the child's interest.

But this was a Cinderella even a prince could not save.

The father died the day he was to have sent her to safety. The judge overruled the objections of teachers and relatives and gave Elisa to her mother.

The mother pulled her out of school, tortured her in attempted exorcisms, and finally, police say, killed her by smashing her head against a concrete wall.

On Wednesday, they buried 6-year-old Elisa Izquierdo, one more fatally abused child. Year after year, they die at a rate of more than one a week in New York City. This year, Elisa was No. 58.

Elisa's story is remarkable not because of her suffering, but because so many knew so much yet did so little. And because she had her chances.

Elisa was born poor, with her mother's cocaine in her veins. Her parents were Awilda Lopez, whom crack addiction had rendered homeless, and Gustavo Izquierdo, a worker at a homeless shelter. They met at Izquierdo's shelter.

The city gave Elisa to her father. With help from co-workers and rel-

AIDS Day: The bell tolls for all victims

Ann Haggerty
The Daily Iowan

When local congregations toll their bells 15 times at 1:50 p.m. Friday, each ring will symbolize one year since the first AIDS case was reported in the United States in 1980.

To heighten awareness of the epidemic and to honor the millions of people who have died from the still-incurable disease, 190 countries will participate in the annual World AIDS Day — called Shared Rights, Shared Responsibilities — on Friday.

Twenty-two local agencies in Cedar Rapids and Iowa City will participate in activities for the day.

Although 2,500 names will be read, the U.S. death toll from AIDS is much higher, Robinson said. The United States has passed the 500,000 mark of people who have been diagnosed with AIDS, she said, and 62 percent of those have already died.

"Home for the Holidays" provides $10 one-way rides to Chicago,

West Des Moines, Omaha, Waterloo and Minneapolis. The program was started after the 1992 murder of Grinnell College student Tammy Zywicki, who was abducted and murdered after her car broke down on Interstate 80.

After some switches in ownership, the legendary beer-toting school bus, The Magic Bus, now belongs to four members of the Iowa City rugby team.

The bus, a tailgating tradition on Melrose Avenue, currently resides in the parking lot of L.L. Pelling Co., 2401 Scott Blvd.

Oddities & Idiosyncrasies

Existence of 'star wannabe' finally proven

Paul Recer
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — After decades of searching, astronomers have found convincing evidence of a brown dwarf, a stellar wannabe that never quite made it to full stardom.

The object, located near a small star 19 light years from Earth, was first spotted using ground-based telescopes at Mt. Palomar in California, and then confirmed with an image taken by the Hubble Space Telescope.

But the strongest proof came when astronomers at California Institute of Technology and Johns Hopkins University were able to identify methane in the faint glow given out by the object.

That finding, said Shrivivas Kulkarni of Cal Tech, left no doubt. The object had to be one of the long-sought and elusive brown dwarfs, he said.

"We found methane," Kulkarni said in an interview. "No stars have methane. It is evidence of the object being cold. It is undeniably a brown dwarf."

Theory first gave life to brown dwarfs. Astronomers believed such objects had to exist as failed stars, stellar bodies that never quite gathered enough mass to set off the nuclear fires which cause stars to shine. To make a star, astronomers believe an object has to contain at least 80 times the mass of Jupiter, the largest gaseous planet in our solar system. This creates enough gravitational compression to ignite fusion, the energy of stars.

Believing in brown dwarfs and finding one were two different things, however, said Sam Durrance, one of the Hopkins astronomers.

"People have been looking very hard for one of these for more than 20 years," he said. "There have been a lot of brown dwarf candidates, but most of them turned out to be low mass stars."

"The unique thing about this object is that it is instantly recognizable as a brown dwarf by any astronomer," said Durrance.

In reports to be published this week in both Nature and Science, other astronomers agreed the Cal Tech and Hopkins discovery is genuine.

"The thing is a brown dwarf," Adam Burrows of the University of Arizona said in Science.

The brown dwarf is 250,000 times dimmer than the sun and is thought to be the faintest object ever seen in orbit of another star.

It is a companion to a small red star called Gliese 229 and is called GL229B.

The object is 20 to 50 times more massive than Jupiter, but is about the same diameter, said Kulkarni.

Durrance said the clincher for the discovery was finding methane in the spectrum of light emitted by the object.

Methane can exist only in and about objects that are cool, by stellar standards, he said.

The Cal Tech and Hopkins astronomers say their brown dwarf is only about 1,300 degrees in temperature, much cooler than the 7,000 to 8,000 degrees found on the surface of the sun and about half the temperature of even the smallest star.

Durrance and Kulkarni said the brown dwarf has a chemical signature very like that of the planet Jupiter.

Brown dwarf candidates have recently been found in other star formations, but those conclusions have not been as clear and certain as the GL229B.

Temperatures of those candidates were established at about 2,600 degrees, close to the minimum for a star.

Madonna gained strength from childhood rape

LONDON (AP) — Madonna said she was raped many years ago, soon after moving to New York City, and the experience made her a "much stronger person."

The superstar who oozes sex in concert, videos and books denied in an interview with New Musical Express that she blurs the line between rape and sexual fantasy.

"I have been raped and it's not an experience I would ever glamorize," she told the British music magazine in the Dec. 2 issue.

Madonna's book "Sex" includes a photo of her in a Catholic school girl's uniform, being attacked by two boys.

"In my photograph it's obviously completely consensual," she said. "Everybody wants to do it. I have a smile on my face because I am having a good time. I suppose it's not really a rape fantasy if the woman wants to do it."

She said she was raped by a stranger. She didn't give a year.

"I don't want to make it an issue. I think that I've had what a lot of people would consider to be horrific experiences in my life. But I don't want people to feel sorry for me because I don't," Madonna said.

"The thing about what happened to me is that ... although it was devastating at the time, I know that it made me a much stronger person in retrospect. It forced me to be a survivor."

Reynolds tutors high school students while behind bars

CHICAGO (AP) — Mel Reynolds spent Election Day tutoring fellow prisoners as voters selected a candidate for his vacant seat in Congress.

Reynolds, serving five years for having sex with an underage campaign worker, was assigned to help inmates study for their high school equivalency diplomas.

The former Rhodes scholar who once boasted of having "four or so" college degrees now spends his days tutoring from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"Then he's free to pursue whatever he wants to," said Nic Howell, a state corrections spokesperson.

Reynolds arrived last month at the Vienna Correctional Center in southern Illinois.

In the first step toward replacing him, voters selected Jesse Jackson Jr. in Tuesday's Democratic primary. Jackson, son of the civil rights leader, will face Republican lawyer Thomas Somer in the Dec. 12 general election.

Former Senator Packwood belted with representative's bag

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Bob Packwood is still taking his lumps. This time, he was hit with luggage belonging to a guy who wants his old job in the Senate.

It happened Tuesday on a flight from Portland to Chicago.

Democratic Rep. Ron Wyden had rushed onto the plane and stuffed his luggage in an overhead bin a few seats from the former Republican senator. About 10 minutes after takeoff, someone stood up to take something out of the bin and Wyden's luggage tumbled out, hitting Packwood in the chest.

"You could really hear this gasp," said Michael Walker of Vancouver, Wash., who was sitting across from Packwood in first class. "He grabbed his chest and leaned back. He really looked terrible."

Flight attendants found a doctor. Packwood had the wind up.

Iowa likely to raise speed limits

Mark Strahan
The Daily Iowan

Drivers, start your engines — two Iowa legislators plan to support higher speed limits on Iowa roads.

In response to the National Highway System bill signed by President Clinton Tuesday, which enables states to set their own speed limits, Iowa Sen. Rod Halvorson, D-Ft. Dodge, plans to introduce a bill in the state Senate in January which would bump some of Iowa's 55 mph roads up to 65 mph.

The bill, which would take effect July 1, should coast through the Legislature, said Iowa Rep. Minnette Doderer, D-Iowa City.

"I'm sure it will pass," she said. While Halvorson won't personally lead the charge for an interstate speed limit in excess of 65 mph, he would approve it and expects its passage in the Senate.

"There is some support in the Senate for going to 75 miles per hour," he said.

Halvorson is mainly interested in drafting legislation that will be approved by both the Senate and Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad, he said.

"The governor has indicated an interest in limited changes," he said. "I want to find a bill that the Senate and the governor can support."

Both Halvorson and Doderer believe speed limit increases will enjoy bipartisan support.

UI freshman Scott Harris said he would favor a 70 mph speed limit on Iowa's interstates. "Drivers go that fast anyway," he said.

"The governor has indicated an interest in limited changes. I want to find a bill that the Senate and the governor can support."

Iowa Sen. Rod Halvorson, D-Ft. Dodge

Doderer said she also would support an increased speed limit on the interstates.

"I think 70 is reasonable — I don't want to go any higher," she said.

Vigilant law enforcement must accompany any increase in the speed limits, Doderer said. "I think police cars ought to be marked and we need more enforcement," she said.

Clinton's bill has been criticized on the grounds that higher speed limits will result in more roadway fatalities. Jennifer Burroughs, a consultant at the American Automobile Association of Iowa in West Des Moines, said some change in insurance rates can be expected, though exact changes are difficult to foresee.

"Typically, a person could expect more accidents with higher or no speed limits, resulting in higher rates," she said.

Clinton's bill will also provide about $6.5 billion for improvements on U.S. roads and bridges, which "will bring better, safer highways and bridges for all the nation's motorists," a AAA press release said. Funding for AAA, a 38-million member, non-profit federation of motor clubs, is also included in the bill.

AAA President Robert Darbelnet said Clinton's bill is a very significant development in transportation.

"While we are concerned with some safety aspects of the bill, which we will continue to pursue at the state level, we do not feel passage of this critical legislation could be further delayed," he said.

CAMPUS LIGHTING ADDRESSED

UI Security Committee to map out safest pedestrian routes

Vicki Butner
The Daily Iowan

Though a committee is forming to assess the quality of safety lighting on campus, the chairperson of the University Security Committee said nothing short of daylight will satisfy him.

"It can't be bright enough to please me," said Jeffery Gauthier, chairperson of the committee, which is composed of three UI community members who address safety issues on campus.

At Wednesday night's committee meeting, Gauthier said he is under the impression that the UI campus is safe and comfortable, but said more lighting and telephones are necessary for an improvement in campus safety.

"It can't be bright enough to please me."

Jeffery Gauthier, chairperson of University Security Committee

Students who walk at night to complete classwork must be taken into account, Gauthier said, because they may not consider the dangers of walking in poorly lit areas.

"When you have to come to check on your lab at 3 o'clock in the morning, I think we need to be sensitive to this," he said. "For most folks, they haven't had an incident they have been involved in that brings it home."

In Iowa City, residents are starting at a much higher level of comfort with safety and existing crime levels than larger cities — something that shouldn't lull people into a false sense of security, Gauthier said.

To address the safety-lighting issue, a committee being formed by Larry Wilson, associate director of UI Planning and Administrative Services, will plan main, well-lit routes for UI students to use while walking between campus and the residence halls.

The committee, which will include representatives from the University Security Committee, UI College of Liberal Arts, UI Council on the Status of Women and other groups on campus, will map out the routes to encourage UI students to travel them.

"We are going to have a map saying, 'Hey folks, use these routes,'" Wilson said.

Since the UI cannot afford to place safety lights all over campus, Wilson hopes the routes will direct students away from unsafe areas.

"Some people want to light everything just to be sure, and some places on campus should not be lit," he said.

"Globe-shaped lights are currently the most visible safety lights on campus, but Wilson said the lights aren't particularly efficient.

In another response to safety concerns on campus, SAFEWALK, a program that provided male and female escorts equipped with radios to escort UI students to their destinations on campus, is planning to begin its services again, Gauthier said.

The program is being reorganized under the Safety And Victim Education commission, which is funded by UI students, because it was not always used regularly by UI students in the past.

UI aims to improve position of women

Sarah Lueck

The Daily Iowan

After receiving bad grades from the Council on the Status of Women's report card for the 1994-95 academic year, the UI is taking measures to improve the situation of women at the UI.

On Oct. 11, the council released a report which examined the UI's gender equity and assigned grades in certain areas. In the category of campus climate, the UI received a B; in salary equity, a C+; in recruitment and retention of women, a C; in sexual harassment, a C-; and in overall leadership, a D+.

Council members met with UI administration in early November to discuss the report, but the meeting did not focus directly on the report card grades, said Deone Pedersen, chairperson of the council's affirmative action subcommittee.

Instead, some of the information in the council's report was clarified, and UI administrators provided progress reports on things they had begun to change.

The council determined in its report that the UI has failed to allocate sufficient resources to adequately address the problem of sexual harassment, something the group focused on in its discussion.

UI acting President Peter Nathan said sexual harassment was one of the "difficult issues" addressed at the meeting.

"We discussed the retaliation following sexual-harassment charges," Nathan said. "Often a victim suffers as much or more after the (perpetrator) is identified. It's tough for anyone to deal with the subtle retaliation following sexual-harassment charges."

The UI is also concentrating on improving hiring practices and increasing diversity within the UI student body, Nathan said.

"We're thinking through issues at Opportunity at Iowa and whether we are best-addressing diversity issues," he said.

Of the 102 new faculty recruits in 1994-95, 33 were women and 17 were minorities, and the UI hires men for faculty positions at least twice as frequently as women, the council's report said.

Ann Rhodes, vice president for University Relations, said the council and UI administrators will continue to work together.

"We hope to meet a little more often in the future," she said. "Maybe even prior to the report cards."

U.N. experts clear mines from Bosnian route

Thomas Ginsberg
Associated Press

RIBNICA, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Peacekeepers call it the "Duck Route," but nobody is bird-watching along this 10-mile stretch of road in northern Bosnia.

"When we started, the trucks were driving off the asphalt. Now at least they're staying on the road."

Swedish Capt. Thomas Stenberg

Hundreds of Serb mines are believed to be buried on both sides of the narrow, potholed route linking the military airport in Tuzla — where some 20,000 U.S. soldiers will land to help implement the peace accord — with the main roads in central Bosnia.

Thousands of more mines are buried around the base, and the United Nations estimates that Muslims, Serbs and Croats alike have sown up to 3 million others across Bosnia over nearly four years of war.

Rugged terrain, snow and bitter cold make spotting and clearing the mines especially hard.

Along "Duck Route" — an arbitrary U.N. designation, like "Sparrow" or "Hawk," given to areas and roads in Bosnia — U.N. experts have been laboring for two weeks to clear the mines.

But the military experts from Sweden, Norway, France and Pakistan are doing most of the work with metal detectors and ice picks, painstakingly clearing a few yards a day. More sophisticated soil-chewing machines don't work on the rough, frozen terrain.

In the meantime, the shrubs and saplings lining the road near tiny Ribnica, 18 miles from Tuzla, have given way to countless white posts, planted to mark the safe edge of the road shoulders.

A snaking line of civilian trucks and cars barely has room to pass between them.

"When we started, the trucks were driving off the asphalt. Now at least they're staying on the road," Swedish Capt. Thomas Stenberg said Tuesday.

The "Duck Route," held by rebel Serbs for three years, was recaptured by the Bosnian army on Sept. 9. When the Serbs pulled out, they buried an unknown number of mines, Stenberg said.

Most of the mines, made in Serbia and obtained from the Yugoslav National Army, are small PMA-2 and PMR-2A anti-personnel mines.

Peacekeepers also have found three TMM-1 anti-tank mines and even a homemade shrapnel mine meant to rip holes in people and vehicles, Stenberg said.

The peacekeepers have not been able to obtain maps of the minefields — if any even exist.

The Bosnian army and the United Nations have left the road open to civilian traffic, but U.N. trucks are banned from the road until the mines are removed.

"They (Bosnians) take it as a calculated risk, but we cannot," said Capt. Arild Lunde, the Norwegian commander of the operation.

Likewise, he said the mine-clearing peacekeepers will not let the Americans' arrival rush them as they search the soil inch by inch.

"If there's no war going on," Stenberg said, "we're not prepared to take any risks."

Col. John Brown, chief-of-staff of the U.S. Army's 1st Armored Division, talks to reporters after his team made a reconnaissance trip to the area around Tuzla Wednesday. A small American reconnaissance team visited northern Bosnia to survey the war-ravaged area where U.S. Army troops will base their mission to enforce the peace in Bosnia.

1st U.S. soldiers deployed to Bosnia

Bryan Brumley

TUZLA, Bosnia-Herzegovina — The first advance team of American soldiers arrived in Tuzla Wednesday in preparation of thousands of U.S. troops who will help enforce the Bosnian peace settlement.

The northern Bosnia city has been proposed as the site of the main base for Americans who will participate in the 60,000-member NATO peace force.

The reconnaissance team of 10 Americans that arrived in Tuzla Wednesday is from the 1st Armored Division based in Germany. The team's leader, Col. John Brown, said the group would be in the area for four to five days, "looking at facilities, locations for operations, bringing in supplies ... checking out major routes into the sector where there might be dangers."

In Brussels, senior U.S. defense officials said Wednesday NATO intends to give the formal go-ahead today for an advance squad of 1,400 allied soldiers — including as many as 700 Americans — to enter Bosnia.

Once approval is given, the troops could start heading to Bosnia immediately, although a specific departure date has not been set, the officials said Wednesday. They spoke from NATO headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, on condition of anonymity.

The advance squad is to set up communications, supply bases and make other arrangements to enable a smooth deployment of the main body of peacekeepers starting in mid-December, the officials said.

NATO also hopes to finish reviewing the overall plan for the peacekeeping force and give the required approval by Friday, they said.

President Clinton sought support Tuesday from Congress for plans to send 20,000 U.S. troops to Bosnia. He appeared to be making headway, with Republican Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole saying he wanted to support the president.

U.S. and Russian officials on Tuesday worked out an arrangement to give Moscow a political voice in the Bosnia operation, and military chiefs of the NATO members approved the peacekeeping plan, called "Joint Endeavor."

Under the peace plan, signed last week near Dayton, Ohio, divided Sarajevo would be reunited under government control.

Whitewater prober says calling Clinton a liar was unintentional

Pete Yost
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The federal investigator who started the Whitewater probe acknowledged Wednesday that she is a conservative Republican when senators confronted her with a letter in which she used an epithet in describing President Clinton.

Jean Lewis got a rough reception from the Senate Whitewater Committee as the Democrats' lawyer, Richard Ben-Veniste, produced a 1992 letter from Lewis to a friend in which Lewis called Clinton a "lying bastard."

She was referring to the then-presidential candidate's denials that he had a long-running affair with Gennifer Flowers.

Lewis' letter was dated the month before she started her investigation of Madison Guaranty Savings & Loan, the failed Arkansas thrift owned by the Clintons' Whitewater partners.

After several hours of Senate questioning, Lewis, who suffers from high blood pressure, asked for a halt and a doctor was summoned. The hearing was recessed and the room was cleared except for some committee officials. Her pressure registered high and she was helped from the room, witnesses said. She was to return for more questioning today, depending on her medical condition.

Lewis, who resigned from the Resolution Trust Corp. in recent months, generated 10 criminal referrals alleging there was widespread wrongdoing at the S&L, including the diversion of depositor funds to the Whitewater land venture and Clinton's gubernatorial campaign.

Her reports became the starting point for the work of Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr. The Clintons have repeatedly denied any wrongdoing.

Ben-Veniste suggested that the first of Lewis' criminal referrals — completed three months before the 1992 presidential election — was designed to be an "October surprise" that would hurt Clinton's chances.

The attorney produced handwritten notes of FBI agent Steve Irons of Little Rock, Ark., who wrote on Aug. 31, 1992, that Lewis told him her work in the Madison case "could alter history."

And Ben-Veniste said Lewis repeatedly, in the months before the election, asked the FBI the status of the investigative work on Madison.

577 RETURN HOME

Haitian refugees return to U.S. coast

Michael Norton
Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — The tide of U.S.-bound Haitian refugees, stemmed last year when American troops landed, appears to be surging again just weeks before a crucial election and three months before U.N. peacekeepers are scheduled to leave.

The U.S. Coast Guard has picked up more than 1,000 boat people in the past two weeks, surpassing the total for the previous 10 months combined. No one expects the departures to stop as long as political and economic uncertainty prevails in Haiti.

"Life was mistreating me. Misery was in my bones," said Jackson Dorelus, a 15-year-old orphan who was among 577 refugees returned home Wednesday by two Coast Guard cutters.

His tone did not reflect the hope in a message on his T-shirt — "Operation Uphold Democracy" — a reference to the U.S. mission that restored then-exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide to power in 1994.

Instead, his tone reflected the disenchantment of migrants caught in the two largest interceptions of Haitian refugees since the Coast Guard began keeping records in 1981. Officials seized 520 people from a single boat on Nov. 21, and 577 more from another boat on Sunday — Jackson was among them.

"If this keeps on, it will become an issue, as it was in 1994," said U.S. Embassy spokesperson Stan Schragger.

Some of the 577 Haitian refugees returned by the U.S. Coast Guard cover their faces while awaiting processing in Port-au-Prince Wednesday. peaked as an estimated 21,000 Haitians were turned away from U.S. shores in less than a month. They braved the passage on makeshift rafts and leaky sailboats, desperate to flee a military regime responsible for the killings of some 4,000 civilians and an economy collapsing under international sanctions.

In September 1994, President Clinton sent troops to Haiti with the twin objectives of stopping the killing and halting the exodus.

The multinational intervention succeeded on both counts, forcing the surrender of the dictators who ousted Aristide in 1991 and paving the way for the president's return.

More than a year later, hundreds of Haitians are fleeing their restored democracy rather than vote in Dec. 17 elections to choose a successor to Aristide.

Marine afloat for 36 hours saved by Pakistanis

John Diamond
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Afloat at sea for 36 hours and given up for lost after falling off an aircraft carrier, a 20-year-old Marine found salvation in a Pakistani fishing boat.

Half a world away, the father of Lance Cpl. Zachary Mayo got a call in the middle of the night from someone with a foreign accent asking if he would like to talk to his son.

The man-overboard drama ended in the wee hours Wednesday when Stanley Mayo of Osburn, Idaho, heard his son's voice over a scratchy long-distance phone line.

"Hi, Dad," the Marine said to his startled parent.

"He was in high spirits," said Mayo's father. "But he was very tired of floating in the water for 36 hours."

Cmdr. T. McCreary, spokesman for the U.S. Central Command in Bahrain, described him to the AP as "sunburned, but otherwise fine."

The younger Mayo, an aviation maintenance crewman, fell off the aircraft carrier USS America, steaming in the Arabian Sea, a northern section of the Indian Ocean between Saudi Arabia and India, sometime early Saturday. He was reported missing at 7 a.m. Saturday (11 p.m. Friday EST) when he failed to show up for a routine muster.

"We don't know any of the details of the events — how he came to be overboard, how long he was in the water," McCreary said.

The crew conducted an "all-hands search" of every compartment in the huge carrier. No Mayo.

At that point, the America launched four search aircraft and dispatched two smaller ships to retrace the carrier's path. Somewhere in the vast ocean, Mayo was bobbing on the surface, trying to stay awake and afloat and keep an eye out for rescuers.

"He kept saying how he used all of his water survival training he learned in the Marine Corps, including tying knots in the legs of his camouflaged uniform trousers and blowing air into them, turning it into a life preserver," Stanley Mayo said.

After hours combing the empty sea, the America called off the search, according to a Navy official. Stanley Mayo and his wife, Cindy, got the call telling them their son was missing.

Rescue came not in the form of Mayo's Navy or Marine comrades but from a Pakistani fishing vessel. The boat returned to the village of Gwadar, Pakistan. At length he found a cab driver who could speak English and get him to a phone.

"All I've been waiting for was a phone call from my son," the elder

Mayo told the Pakistani who made the connection.

"We were going through everything that a parent goes through when a child is in trouble," Mayo said in a telephone interview. "I was just overcome with happiness and I had to listen to him for a couple of minutes to make sure it was him."

Mayo was assigned to the Marine Tactical Electronics Warfare Squadron Three, a group of EA-6B radar-jamming planes based in Cherry Point, N.C. He enlisted in the Marines in 1993 and, after boot camp, attended school to become an aircraft hydraulics mechanic.

Chief Warrant Officer Robert Jenks, a Marine Corps spokesman, said Mayo was to fly to Karachi, Pakistan, today for further medical evaluation but added Mayo "was reported to be in good health."

NORTHERN IRELAND PEACE TALKS SOUGHT

Clinton, Major soothe frictions on Bosnia

Terence Hunt
Associated Press

LONDON — After months of quiet tension, President Clinton and Prime Minister John Major swapped support Wednesday for the U.S.-brokered peace treaty in Bosnia and an unexpected breakthrough in Northern Ireland. "This time is full of possibility," Clinton said.

Opening a five-day European trip, Clinton paid a morning call on the British leader at 10 Downing Street, won long applause for a rousing speech to Parliament and with his wife, Hillary, toured Buckingham Palace with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Clinton sought to lay to rest old differences over Bosnia and Northern Ireland, comparing U.S.-British relations to the way secret agent James Bond preferred his martinis.

"Our relationship can never be stirred nor shaken," the president said in a dinner toast.

"It will always be there. It will always be strong."

Warning of the dangers of isolationism, Clinton told Parliament members, "We have gone down that road before. We must never go down that road again." Clinton spoke in Westminster Palace's ornate Royal Gallery, so named for the ancient paintings of British monarchs lining the walls.

In honor of the Anglo-American alliance, Clinton announced a new American guided missile frigate would be named the USS Winston Churchill after Britain's wartime prime minister.

Major said there was no finer tribute.

Stressing the importance of sending 20,000 American troops to Bosnia, Clinton said, "We know that if we do not participate in Bosnia our leadership will be questioned and our partnerships will be weakened."

Clinton arrived just hours after Major and Irish Prime Minister John Bruton — under pressure from Washington — set aside their differences on disarming the IRA in hopes of opening peace talks among all parties in Northern Ireland.

Clinton called the accord "a bold step forward for peace" and said he knew it wasn't easy for Major, sagging at record lows in opinion polls.

"Our relationship can never be stirred nor shaken. It will always be there. It will always be strong."

President Clinton, in a dinner toast

"Very often, people who take risks for peace are not appreciated for doing so," Clinton said. Political leaders on both sides of the dispute in Northern Ireland criticized the agreement.

Northern Ireland has been a sore point between Major and Clinton.

Major refused for days to return Clinton's telephone calls after the president granted a visa to Gerry Adams, head of the IRA-aligned Sinn Fein party.

British newspapers speculated Major was intent on breaking the impasse if for no other reason than to deny Clinton an opportunity to upstage the prime minister with a deal.

Major allowed that Clinton's visit "concentrated the mind."

Despite Major's achievement, the Evening Standard newspaper trumpeted, "Clinton Flies In To Triumph."

Clinton will travel to the Northern Ireland cities of Belfast and Londonderry today to laud the peace that has held since terrorists ended a quarter-century of violence 15 months ago.

He will be the first American president to visit the province.

"With every passing month, more people walk the streets and live their lives safely — people who otherwise would have been added to the toll of 'The Troubles,'" Clinton said in his Parliament speech.

On another front, Britain has been unhappy about Clinton's policy toward Bosnia, particularly his refusal — until now — to join London and Paris in sending troops to the former Yugoslavia. European allies resented Washington's frequent calls for using more force in Bosnia when Americans weren't on the ground there.

In a joint news conference with Clinton, Major pointedly noted British forces "have been there now for something over three years, in numbers ranging up to 8,000 at a time."

He said Britain would contribute 13,000 troops to enforce the peace agreement initiated in Dayton, Ohio.

Clinton credited Britain with taking "extraordinary risks for peace in Bosnia."

GER DEBATE

science requirement and a reduction in the foreign language requirement for all students other than those seeking a Bachelor of Arts degree.

The days of seven hours of science requirements and four hours of physical education may be coming to an end, but UI student opinion is still mixed on which are worth keeping.

One student spoke out in support of maintaining the traditional liberal arts education.

"I don't think either plan should come into effect," said UI junior Jessica Alexander. "I think the current GER plan is just fine."

Meghan Henry, a Liberal Arts Student Association representative, said the biggest complaint by students is that the large amount of GERs prevent graduation in four years.

"At one time, the university was kind of centered around the idea that one-third of your time here was your major, one-third was general education and one-third was generally spent on electives," she said. "More and more students were finding that by the time they got done with their GERs, they barely had enough time to finish their majors."

Another concern raised was whether the proposed revisions would apply to students who are already enrolled.

"I think the reason a lot of people didn't come today is they think it won't affect them," said Stephanie Glaser, UI senior double-majoring in mathematics and education.

"They think it will only help incoming freshmen."

James Lindberg, associate dean in the UI College of Liberal Arts, said the requirements may apply to all students.

"Because the new requirements are less restrictive, students could have the option to go under the new plan," he said.

Faculty Assembly secretary Mary Whelan said student input will affect how the council looks at the proposal at future meetings.

"What would help the Faculty Assembly would be if (students) would give us some idea which of those proposals would give (them) a feeling of getting a better education at the University of Iowa or would make it easier to complete (their) major in a timely manner," she said.

ABUSED GIRL

atives, he mastered diapering and feeding and later enrolled Elisa in a Montessori school in Brooklyn.

She was a lovely child, expressive and clever, with a sweet smile, twinkling eyes and long dark hair. Prince Michael of Greece had asked the school to pair him with a child during a visit. When he arrived, Elisa leaped into his arms and stayed at his side for the rest of the day.

"Love at first sight," said one staffer. A fairy tale come true.

The prince paid Elisa's tuition, sent holiday gifts and offered a scholarship to attend private school through grade 12. She would respond with a simple note — "Thank You!" — or a drawing.

Meanwhile, her mother had gotten off crack and settled down with a new husband, his children and the two kids she had before Elisa was born.

At her mother's behest, Elisa began to stay with her some weekends. During one visit, Lopez was stabbed 17 times by her husband, who was subsequently jailed.

The girl began to seem scared, withdrawn. A teacher noticed a suspicious bruise.

Then her father got cancer. Friends say he planned to obtain sole custody and send Elisa to live with relatives in Cuba to keep her away from her mother. But he died on May 26, 1994 — the day the girl was to leave, according to her godmother.

Lopez stepped forward to claim her daughter.

She was supported by social workers, who found the Lopez home neat and orderly and the other children adequately cared for. Elisa's court-appointed lawyer said the girl — all of 5 — wanted to be with her mother.

The judge was Phoebe Greenbaum, who in 1979 had denied a father custody of his 10-year-old, ruling that the boy's grandparents had become his "psychological parents."

Lopez was opposed by the Montessori staff, by some of Elisa's relatives, by the prince. But the judge gave the child to her mother, telling social workers to keep tabs.

Lopez rejected the prince's scholarship offer and placed Elisa in a public school, even though she had been admitted to the prestigious Brooklyn Friends School.

School staffers noticed the child was despondent and seemed to walk strangely. Again, there were bruises.

The school reported suspicions of child abuse; Lopez withdrew her. And somehow, somewhere, social workers lost sight of the peril.

The child had been defecating in her bed, and relatives say Lopez believed she was possessed by the devil, possibly because of a spell cast by the girl's father.

By her own admission, authorities say, Lopez mopped the floor with her daughter's head, forced the girl to eat her own excrement, violated her with a hairbrush.

Lopez has been jailed without bail on murder charges.

Neighbors in the high-rise housing project had heard the shouts and cries. "We thought it was their way of disciplining the kids," explained one, Tony Ng. "That's not unusual, in this building at least."

On the Monday before Thanksgiving, Lopez smacked Elisa into the wall, bursting blood vessels in the child's brain. A city supposedly beyond outrage rose to the occasion.

Dozens of strangers came to her wake and funeral. Lt. Gov. Betsy McCaughy, known for her sober analysis of health-care policy, said she favored executing the mother even if she were found insane.

AIDS DAY

galleries have been asked to cover some of their artwork or attach red ribbons to them, Hill said.

Covering up artwork symbolizes the art world's loss of artists to AIDS and other lives lost to the epidemic, Hill said.

"If you cover up a piece of art, it shows that something once existed and now it doesn't — like a person who once existed," she said. "It's a way of visualizing the losses of lives from AIDS."

Karen Robinson, HIV educator at the AIDS Project of Johnson County, said the goal of World AIDS Day is to highlight the importance of global, national and individual responsibility in the response to the AIDS epidemic. It also aims to emphasize the individual's right to receive proper HIV/AIDS care.

"A lot of organizations are pulling together to work toward the common goal of preventing HIV transmission and helping those who are infected," Robinson said.

Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority will hold an AIDS awareness forum Friday, targeting the African-American community, which will include presentations about AIDS by Alpha Kappa Alpha members and an African-American woman living with AIDS, said AKA member Precious Muhammad.

Linda Yanney, HIV coordinator at the Free Medical Clinic, 120 N. Dubuque St., said AIDS is increasingly affecting women and people of color.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta, African-American and Hispanic women make up only 10 percent of the U.S. population. Yet, 74 percent of U.S. females diagnosed with AIDS since 1981 are African-American and Hispanic.

Local junior-high and high schools have been asked to include HIV/AIDS educational activities into their curriculum during World AIDS Day, said Roxie Tullis, regional educator at Planned Parenthood of Greater Iowa, 2 S. Linn St. There are many ways of incorporating AIDS education into every subject, such as discussing T-cell movement in biology classes and tracing the history of AIDS in history classes, Tullis said.

HIV testing usually increases when it is spotlighted in the media, such as when Magic Johnson was diagnosed with HIV, said Kim Rozinek, gynecology assistant at the Emma Goldman Clinic for Women, 227 N. Dubuque St.

"When there is a lot of AIDS publicity in the media, we usually get more phone calls in one week," she said. "I wouldn't be surprised if HIV testing goes up right around World AIDS Day, being that it is an avenue for people to become more aware of HIV and the possibility of having it."

AIDS awareness and education is important for college students because AIDS among young adults is on the rise, and there will be challenges to face when entering the work force, Yanney said.

"It is very clear that even if we found a cure tomorrow, AIDS will have a major impact for many years to come," she said. "Students, no matter what profession they go into, will have to deal with this illness."

BUM A RIDE

trame, a UI Student Government executive. "The UISG has always had a concern for student safety."

UISG will provide five charter buses, which will leave from the Union on Dec. 16. Buses going north leave at 8 a.m., buses traveling west depart at 8:30 a.m. and buses going east leave at 9 a.m.

Passengers are allowed four bags — two carry-ons and two other bags — but students loaded down with heavy baggage won't have to worry about walking to the Union.

"There are free cab rides to the buses," Beltrame said.

UISG President Tim Williams said the program has been very well-received and at least 20 people have signed up so far. Last year, 260 people signed up for trips home.

Pete Osborne, a UI senior who rode the bus to Chicago last year and is going to continue with the program this year, said he didn't want to go through the hassle of finding a ride with a friend or advertise in the residence halls.

"When you go on a bus ride you don't have that sense that you are all college students from Iowa and going home," Osborne said. "When you go on this bus ride with students you feel secure. Public transportation buses makes me feel nervous and uncomfortable."

Beltrame said students can get all the information they need at the University Box Office in the Union.

"(Students) fill out information sheets, which route they are taking, ID number and pay their $10 in cash or money order," Beltrame said.

Sign ups for the buses started Monday, and the deadline to sign up is Dec. 10, unless buses aren't full.

With the closing of UI student travel, which co-sponsored "Home for the Holidays" last year, UISG is fully supporting the program with funds from mandatory student dues, Beltrame said.

"The fees are annually part of our budget," he said.

The buses, which drop passengers off at malls in the cities, are available to all UI students and faculty.

MAGIC BUS

bus to them — and all it took was $255, a rugby shirt and a little "winning and dining."

"We took 'em back to our buddy's place and gave them some beer and shots of vodka," said rugby team member and UI junior Jim Holmes. "We reminded them that they had wives who wouldn't want the bus in their back yards."

After the deal was finalized, Holmes and his friends — Eain "Boom Boom" Murphy, Joel Johnson and Jeremy Freerks — picked up the Magic Bus Sunday at its usual parking spot on Melrose Avenue, where Decoster parked it for tailgating parties before home football games.

The foursome went to Decoster's final bash Saturday expecting to take the Magic Bus home, Murphy said.

"We were going to get it, by hook or by crook," he said. "We just weren't sure how."

However, the ownership of the bus came as a surprise to Johnson, who was forced to withdraw $255 from a Shazam machine when he was drunk the night before.

"It's still a whim," Johnson said. "I woke up the next morning wondering what I had just done."

"Our whole life is a whim," Freerks added, as he was driving the school bus to McDonald's for a quick lunch.

The Magic Bus will be used by the rugby team, which has between 30 and 40 members, for traveling to games and other road trips — including some ski adventures, Holmes said.

And Magic Bus gurus can still revel in its tailgating tradition, as the team plans on parking the Melrose landmark somewhere around Kinnick Stadium during next season's home football games.

"We want to keep the Magic Bus going," Holmes said. "With Brian's permission, we might park it in the same spot. We'll make it a free-for-all, so he can have his magic, too."

If the team can afford to rent out the yard where he parked it — and if the yard's owner is willing to rent it — the Magic Bus could remain in the same spot, Decoster said.

"There's always somewhere to park it," Decoster said. "I'd like to go to someone else's party. It'll be a lot more fun and I won't have to clean up the yard afterward."

Decoster said he's pleased the team plans to continue the tailgating tradition.

"Those guys party pretty hard. I know that," he said. "If I would have known they were going to throw parties like I used to have, I would have given them the bus a long time ago."

The four members said they have many memories of their times partying on the Magic Bus and wanted to keep the bus in Iowa City.

"Our friend Lonnie fell off the top of the bus once," Murphy said. "Then he rolled down the pee hill behind the bus, where everyone urinates. He also puked on the bus."

Stand behind U.S. troops with peace in mind

On Monday night, President Clinton justified sending 20,000 American soldiers into Bosnia-Herzegovina to secure and protect the U.S.-brokered peace agreement. The troops will be part of NATO's 60,000-troop international force to keep the warring factions — Serbs, Bosnians, and Croats — at bay, while the country rebuilds itself within the international community.

It's a nice idea, a noble idea, but not an idea without risks. Sending police troops abroad has been a problem since after World War II.

Some of our actions have been nearly disastrous, as in Somalia and Vietnam, while others, most notably the Persian Gulf war, can be called Hollywood-caliber success stories. The difference between this proposed action and past engagements is that our goal in Bosnia is to secure a peace, not to wage a war.

If President Bush was correct at the end of the 1980s — if it can truly be said that America "won" the Cold War — then the burden of responsibility in the Balkans lies on us. Naturally we're not responsible for the ethnic strife that has plagued the region for centuries, but if our 45-year policy of deterrence led to the collapse of Communist regimes in the Eastern

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

Since American lives can be sacrificed for war, Americans should support troops that are risking their lives for peace.

Bloc, and the upsurge of nationalist fervor was fomented by those collapses, then we are accountable.

The ironic and inescapable conclusion we can draw from hindsight is that Communism kept all kinds of ethnic and nationalistic hostilities in check. Since the collapse of the Soviet Union, the old hatreds have found a new voice and a new life in the fertile soil of confusion that accompanies revolutionary change. Russia is confronting it. Czechoslovakia confronted it and split apart because of it. In the Balkans, it has cost a quarter of a million lives. In the vacuum created by the loss of an oppressive regime Yugoslavia could not find a viable alternative to the structure that regime provided. The United States and its allies struggled to topple the Communist world, now we seek to mend it. In openly claiming victory we also must acknowledge our responsibility to the injured parties. We have to help them get back on their feet.

However, the concerns of Congress and the American public are justifiable. Not everyone in the Balkans is gung-ho about the peace agreement. The Bosnian Serbs are loose cannons at best and present the biggest threat to our people in Bosnia. With acknowledgement to the remarkable efforts of Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke in bringing the peace process this far, we should expect more than assurances that our soldiers will not face unreasonable danger. If this means more months of negotiations, then let that be. On his part, Clinton must stick to his promise of a one-year deployment and the other current mission guidelines. "Mission creep" is the surest way to get ourselves unnecessarily embroiled in this war.

On Monday night the president said his "most difficult duty is to put the men and women who volunteered to serve our nation in harm's way when our interests and values demand it." For decades, American presidents have found or fabricated justifications for sending our troops into combat or potentially combative situations. In most cases they were sent to fight. If we can justify risking American lives in war, why can't we equally acknowledge justifiable risk in the effort to bring peace?

The fact is the troops are going — with or without congressional approval. President Bush had troops in Saudi Arabia in 1990 before he had a resolution of support from Capitol Hill. Just as Americans stood behind the troops five years ago, we should do so again, keeping in mind that this time it's for peace. This time it's for a good cause.

Medical planning crucial

To the Editor:

In about 25 years I will be retiring. Like millions of others, my health and income security will be top priorities. That is why I'm planning for the future. Even with good planning, I, like the vast majority of future retirees and their families, will need a strong Medicare program.

While Medicare has resulted in significant quality of life benefits to older persons, it has had an equally important financial impact on families. Medicare has been the financial safety net for every family vulnerable to the unpredictable burden of expensive medical bills. Family resources spent on Mom or Dad's hospital bill leaves fewer resources for other family needs.

There is no disagreement that Medicare needs to be modified. Corrections have been made in the past and more will be made in the future. Medicare's problems are solvable. Unfortunately, the current debate has provided little opportunity for recipients or future retirees to understand the proposed changes and provide input.

Republican proposals for Medicare that have passed in the House or Senate have been criticized by the president. While this should not be a partisan issue, it is and always has been. When Medicare was passed in 1965, over 90 percent of congressional Republicans voted against it. Rep. Leach, R-Iowa, has recently supported every proposal passed by the House.

Their proposals call for cutting $270 billion over the next seven years. Some of the details include raising the monthly Part B premiums from $46.10 now to around $90 in 2002 and elimination of assistance in paying premiums and deductibles for the very poorest seniors.

The Republican change of most concern calls for opening up the program to private insurance companies and doctor and hospital networks to directly insure seniors. Before Medicare, private health insurance for older people was either too expensive, not available or companies would refuse to provide it. The insurance industry knows that older people eventually need services and have claims. A lot has changed in the last 30 years, but one thing has not: Private insurance providers would still rather insure healthy people than sick ones.

It is feared that this proposal will result in private insurance plans "cherry picking" the healthiest and wealthiest seniors. Leaving the traditional Medicare pool (taxpayers) to care for the sickest and poorest. This approach undermines the financial integrity of the program.

Privatizing Medicare is not a new idea. The irony of the current Republican proposal is that these same insurance and medical lobbies that are now lined up to fill their pockets without Medicare money are the same folks that obstructed national health-care reform efforts.

There is substantial cynicism among my peers about the future prospects for receiving benefits from Medicare. Having been involved in this issue for the past 15 years and seeing the benefits and continued need for this program, I am struck by the realization that retirement without this support will once again mean misery for millions.

Of the 40 million current Medicare beneficiaries, 11 million are widows living on less than $8,000 a year. How many widows and widowers will find themselves in this predicament 10 to 25 years from now? Given the trend toward more transient and temporary work, increasingly dominated by low-wage service jobs without pension plans, I think plenty.

In addition to private retirement planning, one of the best ways to plan for retirement is to ensure that we maintain a strong Medicare program. For what we do today will dictate what Medicare will look like down the road. If our confidence in Medicare is lost, it will die. So, pay attention to what Congress and the president are doing to our health-care future and let them know what you like and don't like about it.

COGS based in democracy

To the Editor:

We would like to take the opportunity to correct some of the mistaken impressions about the Campaign to Organize Graduate Students that were expressed in a letter to the editor in the Nov. 17 issue of the DI.

When COGS made the decision to affiliate with the United Electrical Workers, one of the important factors was that union's commitment to union democracy. The UE's slogan is "the members run this union," and it is considered a model of honest and democratic unionism by many in the labor movement. We chose UE in part because its democratic structure ensures that all who sign an authorization card and join UE Local 896-COGS will have an equal voice in determining our policy and that our local will be run by graduate students. It is UE's commitment to union democracy that also led the Iowa United Professionals, an independent union representing over 200 social workers, state scientists and other professionals in the state of Iowa to affiliate with the UE in 1993.

Needless to say, we encourage all graduate students to join COGS in the fight for health care, tuition waivers, better working conditions and an effective grievance procedure. In order to achieve these goals, we need to build a strong and democratic UE local; the best way to ensure that it represents all of the diverse interests in the graduate community is for more people to get involved. Our meetings are open to all who wish to participate. We would like to extend an invitation to all who have concerns about COGS to come to our open house on Saturday from noon to 3 p.m. at our office, 114 1/2 E. Washington St.

A little advice for Briana, Alexander and Brendan

This year I spent Thanksgiving with my growing family.

My 7-month-old niece, Briana, was the newest addition, and she celebrated by sitting on her dad's lap, grabbing at his plate. But, with her sole tooth, she had to settle for Gerber's version of Turkey Day.

It was the first time I had seen my brother's first-born since May, when she did little else but sleep. The change was astounding, and as with my two nephews, those changes made me wish I had been there all along.

I was a college freshman when Alexander, my sister's little boy, came along. The butterball of the family, Brendan, followed two years later.

With my sister and her family in St. Paul, Minn., and my brother and his in Rockford, Ill., I haven't been around nearly as much as I'd like to be. When we're together on holidays, I look at those little faces and wonder just what they're going to be like in five, ten or twenty years.

Will they get to know their cousins as well as I knew mine?

What will their senses of humor be like?

Since it's almost certain that I won't be there to give aunts advice at just the right moment, I've decided to develop a simple list of life tips. And hopefully, they'll get to know their aunt a little better in the process.

Will they be in the band, on the football team, in debate?

Since it's almost certain that I won't be there to give aunts advice at just the right moment, I've decided to develop a simple list of life tips.

And hopefully, they'll get to know their aunt a little better in the process.

• Every time you feel like a newcomer, remember someday it'll be old hat ... and then you'll move on and be a newcomer all over again.

• Read "To Kill a Mockingbird" by Harper Lee.

• Read everything else.

• Rules were made for a reason.

• Make sure you know the reasoning.

• If people don't want to be around you, there's a reason.

• Avoid movies with Sylvester Stallone, except the original "Rocky."

• Don't use cliches, but if you do, think up your own.

• Get crushed.

• Don't take them seriously.

• Use fake French accents. It makes life more interesting.

• Be nice to everyone; janitors and secretaries are influential people.

Will the student forum on GERs affect the final policy decision?

Kathy Breshears, UI graduate student in education

"The timing is bad. Now is a busy time. There will be a lot of talk, but I doubt anything will be resolved before break."

Chad Jennings, UI graduate student in urban and regional planning

"No, it will probably be a little one-sided with students wanting to get away from GERs even though a liberal arts education is a good idea."

Jeremy Snyder, UI senior majoring in health promotion

"I don't think it will have much of an effect. For the four years I've been here, students have not had much of a choice in anything."

David Baugh, UI freshman majoring in pre-business

"I think the students need a say in it. I think students meeting with faculty can compromise on something and satisfy students."

Just how did two disabled women get in harm's way?

Maybe you noticed a brief story in the paper last week about a woman and a 12-year-old girl being shot while they sat in a parked car on Chicago's West Side.

The story was brief because there isn't anything surprising about people being shot in that part of the city. In those parts, you can be gunned down for not twiddling your fingers in a proper gang signal.

But this shooting was a bit unusual because of why the woman and girl were sitting in a car in so deadly a neighborhood.

Actually, there were two women sitting in the back seat and the child was in the front.

The two women are in the care of Seguin Services, a private, not-for-profit organization which takes care of disabled clients in the western suburbs.

One of the women is retarded. The other is paralyzed on one side, uses a wheelchair and can't walk.

They live together in a group home in the suburb of Cicero, where an attendant takes care of their needs.

Earlier that day, the attendant took them to a 1 p.m. movie. At least, that's where they were supposed to go.

The movie house was on the Southwest Side, a long way from where they were shot.

So if they were going to a 1 p.m. movie, what were they doing in a car on the West Side at 3 p.m.?

It appears that the attendant has a boyfriend who lives at that location. The investigation is still going on, but it appears that the attendant may have been visiting her boyfriend and left the two disabled people in the car.

The 12-year-old girl is the kid sister of the boyfriend. It hasn't been explained why she was in the car.

But what is known is that a man about 20 years old came up to the car, tried to get in and one of the women reached over and hit the button that locks the door.

So the young man took out a gun and opened fire. The girl apparently tried to curl up away from the shooter and was hit several times in the buttocks.

The retarded woman, in her 20s, was hit in the jaw. The paralyzed woman was grazed.

Why would someone shoot at two women and a child? There is always the possibility that it was a racial crime, because the gunman is black and the two women are white. But the girl was black. So he seems to have been an equal opportunity shooter.

The police aren't saying much. But they told the relatives of one of the women that it's possible that the shooting was gang-related.

Gang-related? When the victims were a kid and two handicapped women?

Yes, it's possible. The police told the relatives that the car belonged to the female attendant. But the boyfriend frequently drove it.

And he might be gang-affiliated. So in the world of gangs, it is possible that a rival gang member would have shot anyone who happened to be in that car. Even a child and women with disabilities. A target by any other name is a target in some parts of town.

They are also trying to figure out why the helpless women were left in the car in the first place.

Their attendant had come up with a story about being paged at the movie theater by a relative who said he was locked out of his home.

And that was why she drove there and left the women in the car. To help the relative get into his abode.

But nobody is sure if they ever went to the movies. It's also possible that the attendant went there to visit her boyfriend and was otherwise occupied.

Whatever the reason for the women being sitting ducks in an urban shooting gallery, the relatives are upset.

"We really flipped out," said the sister of the paralyzed woman.

"She left them in a car in a gang area. That is just sick. And it is an appalling statement about our society that someone would shoot at a paralyzed woman, someone retarded and a young kid. How could anybody do that?"

Well, I'm sure the shooter didn't know about their conditions. Had he known they were totally defenseless, he might have taken his time, aimed and killed all three.

A spokesperson for Seguin Services says they're looking for answers, too.

The attendant had a good work record, they said, and had several years of experience working with the disabled.

The sister said: "The police say they have no grounds for prosecuting her on criminal charges."

Since there are no parking meters at that location, she won't even get a ticket.

"But," the sister said, "she's been terminated, and they will go through channels to prevent her working with others."

Yes, it might be a difficult interview.

"I was taking care of two people and I left them at the curb and they were shot."

Anyway, there is probably some kind of message here. If the woman was visiting her boyfriend, it proves that love is not only blind, but it can be kind of dumb, too.

Israelis continue West Bank withdrawal

Nicolas Tatro
Associated Press

BETHLEHEM, West Bank — Mayor Elias Freij watched from his office at Manger Square on Wednesday as Israeli troops dismantled a watchtower, a hated symbol of a 28-year occupation that is to end in time for Christmas.

"This year, for the first time, Christmas will be under the full control of the Palestinian authority," he said. "There will be no Israeli soldiers or police."

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat will attend the Christmas celebrations expected to draw 30,000 people to the square outside the Church of the Nativity, built on the site where tradition holds Jesus was born.

Arafat's presence, Freij said, will "uplift the morale of the people and make them believe more in the peace process."

The extent of Israel's pullout from Bethlehem, which it captured from Jordan in 1967, is still unclear.

Freij said 1,000 armed Palestinian police will move in by Dec. 18. But Israeli officials say they may keep control of a main road and their military headquarters if there is a delay in finishing a bypass road to route Jewish settlers around town.

"Let us not forget we are dealing with (Jewish) settlers and Palestinians," said Shlomo Dror, spokesperson for Israel's West Bank military government. "We want to avoid contact between the two sides."

Other Israeli officials said the road would be finished in time and that the army had begun pulling out of the Bethlehem area — the removal of the guard tower, they said, was an example.

Freij said he did not consider the bypass road a legitimate excuse for delay. But he said that wouldn't affect Christmas plans in any case since Palestinians will control Manger Square and nearly all other areas.

He called the removal of the tower "a good gesture" that Israeli troops will abide by the peace accord and pull out of Bethlehem.

"There are still many Palestinians who suspect they won't do that," Freij said. "Now they are doing it."

Mayor of this Biblical city for 23 years, the 78-year-old Freij was a man of peace when peacemaking was not so popular.

Palestinian radicals attacked him for proposing peace talks at the United Nations in 1974 and denounced him for "treachery" after he called for a cease-fire during the 1987-1993 Palestinian uprising. With the condemnations came death threats — in leaflets, in newspapers, on walls.

His vision of peace is the Benelux model, the economic cooperative formed by Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

He sees a similar cooperation between Israel, Jordan and the Palestinians.

"I prefer we live as good neighbors so that Jewish children and Palestinian children can coexist, work together, be in business together," he said. "As Palestinians, Israelis and Jordanians, we should join hands to build a better future."

Reality, however, is one of increasing separation.

Unemployment in Bethlehem stands at 40 percent, largely because of restrictions on Palestinians traveling to work in Israel. It is difficult, for example, to find a taxi with a permit to travel to Jerusalem, which is only five miles to the north.

Newt may have had illegal support from own group

Richard Keil
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Bolstering its case that a political organization founded by Newt Gingrich violated federal law, the government released court records Wednesday suggesting the group spent heavily on "Newt support" during his tough 1990 re-election battle.

The group, GOPAC, has steadfastly maintained it did not help any federal candidates before 1991.

But the Federal Election Commission asserted its new evidence proves the organization was illegally assisting federal candidates before then, particularly the future House speaker.

The FEC's filing in U.S. District Court included internal memos, meeting minutes, tape recordings and notes showing GOPAC paid for consultants "to help Newt think" and to "inoculate Newt Gingrich from Democratic attacks" by producing a pro-Gingrich videotape.

A tape recording from a 1990 GOPAC meeting quotes one of the group's officials as estimating its financial support for Gingrich amounted to more than $250,000 a year.

Another GOPAC official asserted during the same meeting that Gingrich, then GOPAC's executive director, was "probably the most single high priority we've got in dollars."

Peter Derry, GOPAC's lawyer, dismissed the new evidence, saying the group still believes it did not provide Gingrich or any other federal candidate direct, election-related support.

"Our view is that GOPAC didn't support any federal candidates," Derry said. "We're willing to litigate that issue."

"My understanding is those expenses were for legal travel and strategy and planning expenses," said Gingrich spokesperson Lauren

Sims. "This was not for campaign support."

GOPAC was founded by Gingrich in the 1980s to fund Republican party-building activities, which culminated in last fall's GOP takeover of Congress. Gingrich stepped aside as the group's general chairperson this year after becoming House speaker.

The FEC has sued GOPAC, alleging the group operated as a federal political action committee long before it registered as one in 1991, and thus evaded federal laws which limit spending and donations and require disclosure.

GOPAC argues its sole purpose before 1991 was the election of state and local candidates.

But the FEC alleges that often GOPAC's support for state candidates was actually designed to assist federal candidates.

In Michigan, Montana and Texas, candidates for local office were targeted for help because GOPAC believed they could deliver more Republican voters for GOP House and Senate candidates, the agency alleged.

And 1990, GOPAC targeted Georgia for seven candidate training seminars, the most of any state, in part "to protect Congressman Newt Gingrich," according to one GOPAC report cited by the FEC.

That year, Gingrich was locked in a tight re-election struggle with Democrat David Worley. Gingrich eventually won by just 974 votes out of 156,000 cast.

At a June 1989 "long-range planning" meeting, GOPAC advisers concluded "Newt must be re-elected" to Congress, according to minutes from the meeting.

The tape recordings of an Aug. 6, 1990, meeting of GOPAC executives show the group provided what it described as "Newt support," and other projects were designed "especially for Newt."

WALDHOLTZ'S STORY

Politician's money woes may predate marriage

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Rep. Enid Waldholtz's money troubles may have occurred prior to her August 1993 marriage and her estranged husband's involvement in her personal and campaign finances, The Deseret News reported.

The congresswoman may not have had enough assets to legally provide the money she supplied to her House campaigns in 1992 and 1994, the paper said Tuesday.

The first-term Republican has said her estranged husband, Joe Waldholtz, wrecked her finances during her 1994 bid and falsely claimed to be independently wealthy. He was his wife's unpaid campaign treasurer.

Joe Waldholtz is under federal investigation in a $1.7 million check-kiting scheme; the couple's joint accounts in Salt Lake City and Washington are the subject of an investigation into alleged bank fraud.

Enid Waldholtz has promised to explain personal and campaign financial troubles at a news conference Dec. 11.

During her first, failed campaign in 1992, she may have tapped money from a large family home, which property records show her father, D. Forrest Greene, had given her in 1986 as an early inheritance, the paper said.

The transaction raises questions about whether federal donation and loan limits for candidates were violated: Records suggest she held the title, but did not disclose it among assets she held beginning Jan. 1, 1993.

Enid Waldholtz acknowledged through spokesperson Ladonna Lee that "during the 1992 campaign, she sold the house (back to her father) to help fund her campaign."

However, Salt Lake County property records indicate Enid Waldholtz did not pay off a $70,000 mortgage she had taken out on the Federal Heights home in 1986 until April 14, 1993 — more than five months after the election, The Deseret News said.

Property records showed the title was not transferred back to Forrest Greene until June 20, 1994, well into the 1994 campaign and nearly a year after Enid and Joe Waldholtz married.

That suggests Enid Waldholtz still held the title, but she did not list it in later financial disclosure forms among assets she held beginning Jan. 1, 1993.

The Iowa softball team signed Linn-Mar High school standout Kate Marsh Monday to bolster its 1996 lineup.

Marsh, a shortstop from Marion, Iowa received all-state honorable mention honors in 1993 and 1994. She also helped her team to a fourth-place finish in the state tournament last season.

Iowa coach Gayle Blevins said she looked forward to utilizing Marsh's defensive skills.

"Her defensive versatility is a wonderful addition for us," she said. "She can play at shortstop and in the middle infield as well as in the outfield."

Locked-out referees edge closer to return

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators for the NBA's locked-out referees reported some progress after a three-hour meeting Wednesday with league officials, who are preparing to add more replacement refs next week.

The two sides planned to meet again Thursday. Wednesday's negotiations were the first since Nov. 16 and were attended by commissioner David Stern.

"We keep chipping away at it and as long as we keep meeting, there's hope we can get a deal," said Fred Slaughter, general counsel for the referees' union. "We were able to reach tacit, actual agreement on several important things today."

Slaughter would not specify whether the two sides have moved closer together on salary issues.

After the last meeting, union officials said the two sides were $2 million apart in salary and in disagreement about the contract's length and provisions for playoff money.

"We remain very far apart on economic issues," NBA spokesman Chris Brienza said.

The referees, locked out since Oct. 1, are eager to get a new contract by Dec. 4, when the NBA plans to add about a dozen replacement refs, enough to increase the two-man crews it has been using to three.

The two-man crews have been criticized by players and coaches, and problems maintaining discipline have led to numerous technical fouls and ejections.

Dodgers acquire Blowers from Seattle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers ended their search for a third baseman Wednesday, acquiring power-hitting Mike Blowers from the Seattle Mariners for two minor league infielders.

The Dodgers had said they would not exercise their option on 38-year-old Tim Wallach for the 1996 season, and instead try to find a third baseman through trade or free agency.

"We feel that Mike Blowers gives us a quality third baseman who possesses outstanding power," Dodgers executive vice president Fred Claire said. "His 23 home runs and 96 RBIs (in 1995) represent a breakthrough-type season for him."

In exchange for Blowers, the Mariners will get second baseman Miguel Cairo and third baseman Willis Otanez.

Hawks drop Creighton

Chris Snider
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa woman's basketball team continues to roll through the 1994-95 season. Iowa defeated Creighton, 68-41, on Wednesday in Omaha, Neb.

Iowa held Creighton to just four first-half field goals, taking a 32-18 lead at halftime.

"We really have to feel good about our defensive intensity," Iowa head coach Angie Lee said. "We came out there and really picked it up at the half-court level. I think we were able to take Creighton out of their offense."

Iowa's bench offered some first-half firepower, as sophomore Tangel Smith scored 15 points in the opening period and freshman Amy Herrig added seven.

"Our bench play was outstanding tonight," Lee said. "When 22 of our 32 first half points were from off the bench, what more can you say about that."

Creighton jumped out to an early lead, but Iowa took a six point advantage at the 15 minute mark and never looked back.

Iowa shot 47.5 percent from the field for the game, while Creighton connected on only 20 percent of its shots, shooting 3-of-22 from behind the 3-point arc.

The Hawkeyes also dominated the boards, out-rebounding the Jayhawks 55-31.

Smith led all players with 19 points, connecting on 8-of-10 field goals, and 13 rebounds. Nadine Domond finished with 17 points and 12 rebounds. Herrig tallied 10 points and 10 boards. Karen Clayton led the Hawkeyes with eight assists and three steals.

The Jayhawks were led by Leslie Budak, who finished with 11 points. Carrie Welle finished with nine.

Creighton falls to 1-1 in the young season. Iowa moves to 3-0.

The loss was Creighton's worst home loss since Jan. 8, 1990.

The Hawkeyes travel to

WHERE'S THE REPLAY?

Carver's monitors should be put to use

Things couldn't have been much better.

The Iowa Hawkeyes were on a 6-0 run and owned a 72-40 lead against the Drake Bulldogs.

Hawkeye senior Kenyon Murray was on his way to his fourth slam dunk of the evening and I was finding it difficult to remain calm in my press box seat, wishing instead that I was sitting in my assigned sixth-row seat of the student section.

With a definitive two-handed explosion, Murray slammed the ball through the cylinder.

Murray's exclamation point showed why the Bulldogs will never win a game in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

And I could hear Dick Vitale's voice in the back of my head yelling for someone to warm up the bus.

But in a flash, a moment of pure ecstasy was taken away as the referee assessed Murray a technical for hanging on the rim.

Astonished by the call, I glanced up at the new television scoreboards near the arena roof searching for an answer.

I was sure the replay would show Murray was hanging on the rim only to avoid falling on a Drake defender, but all I saw was a big Iowa basketball logo.

I tried to protest, but it didn't do me any good.

Drake went on a 5-0 run and the moment was lost.

Apparently I wasn't alone in my frustration. For the rest of the evening the crowd yelled technical after every slam dunk.

The referees tried to make up for the call by slapping two reach-in fouls on Drake's Robert Foster in less than 30 seconds ... I now knew the refs were guilty for sure. Yet, I still wanted proof.

Where was the replay?

It seems a little silly to install television scoreboards when we aren't going to see any controversial or spectacular plays.

How many fans' eyes are actually watching the scoreboard screens when a player is dribbling down the court?

On another play I watched point guard Andre Woolridge slash his way to the basket from the top of the key. Instead of seeing an easy layup, I saw Woolridge lying among a heap of bodies at the baseline.

Was it a charge?

How about a blocking foul?

Scoreboard says: Iowa Basketball.

That's a nice logo, but if the officials blow a call, the fans want to know about it.

Then if the guys in black and white are right, maybe we'll applaud.

Otherwise, the only function the TV scoreboard serves is to show advertisements for Coca-Cola.

I understand the referees might need protection after someone sees that they've made a mistake. In that case, they should hire some bodyguards.

The officiating hasn't been very good in any of Iowa's games this season, so I vote that we televise the blunders and hope the mess gets cleaned up.

And Iowa's not the only victim. Marathon Oil coach Sam Foggan will testify to that.

"I have eight guys with a lot of pride that played their asses off tonight," Foggan said following a 79-72 loss to the Hawkeyes. "And personally I think that the officiating crew should be ashamed of themselves."

And yes, the Hawkeyes also received some fortunate breaks against Duke.

Russ Millard shuffled his feet before a two-point bucket and it seemed to me that a couple of Blue Devils got mugged without any reward.

Strangely enough, I saw it all on TV.

Wake exercises a little revenge

Associated Press

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Tim Duncan had 22 points and 17 rebounds Wednesday night as No. 10 Wake Forest defeated Oklahoma State 69-53 in the Great Eight basketball festival.

It was the third game of the four-game, eight-team festival that began Tuesday at The Palace.

The victory for Wake Forest was a small payback for the Demon Deacons (2-0). The Cowboys (1-1) ousted Wake Forest 71-66 in the third round of the NCAA tournament last spring.

But with Bryant "Big Country" Reeves now in the NBA, the Cowboys had no one capable of staying with Duncan and this game was never close. Adrian Peterson's opening basket gave Oklahoma State its only lead at 2-0.

Peterson finished with 14 points for the Cowboys, who shot 37.5 for the game and hit just 3-of-14 free throws.

Tony Rutland scored 11 of his 16 points in the first half and the Deacons hit 5-of-6 from 3-point range to open a 37-26 halftime lead. Wake Forest led by as many as 18 points in the second half.

Ricky Peral also had 16 points for Wake Forest, which shot 55.3 percent and made 8-of-14 3-point attempts.

No. 24 Michigan 80, Ball St. 52

MUNCIE, Ind. — Louis Bullock hit all three of his 3-point attempts and scored 14 points to lead five players in double figures Wednesday night as No. 24 Michigan beat Ball State 80-52.

The Wolverines (4-2) dominated the Cardinals inside and outside. Michigan hit 7-of-12 3-pointers in the game, including three during a 19-0 run early in the game that made it 21-4 with 11:54 to play.

During the run, Willie Mitchell,

Wake Forest center Tim Duncan takes control of a rebound from Oklahoma State guard Jason Skaer during the first half at the Great Eight basketball festival in Auburn Hills, Mich., Wednesday.

Louis Bullock and Travis Conlan hit 3-pointers.

No. 9 UConn 86, Northeastern 39

HARTFORD, Conn. — Ray Allen scored 13 points and Kirk King and Rashamel Jones each added 11 as No. 9 Connecticut opened at home with an 86-39 victory over Northeastern on Wednesday night.

The game was never close, as UConn (3-1) made Northeastern

(0-2) early victims of its man-to-man defense and full-court press, forcing 14 turnovers and holding Northeastern to six field goals in

NEW JERSEY GUARD

Anderson turns down $40 million extension

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — When Kenny Anderson first joined the NBA he said he thought only about dollar signs.

Five seasons later the New Jersey Nets guard said winning a championship is his first priority. But the second overall pick in the 1991 draft still has money on his mind.

Anderson, who becomes a free agent on July 1, turned down the Nets' offer of about $40 million over the next six seasons.

"When I first came into the league, I looked at money," Anderson told the Daily News on Tuesday. "But now I look where I am and what you're doing in terms of winning."

"I'm 25 years old and I've been in the league for five years. ... So I want a place where I can be productive and win a championship someday. That's what I have to look at."

What Anderson is looking at is a contract that would pay him close to the $7.5 million that teammate Derrick Coleman earns.

Anderson is in the final year of his original five-year, $14.5 million deal.

Anderson's agent Richard Howell told the New York Post the point guard would consider returning to the Nets.

"Kenny wants to focus this year only on playing basketball and he doesn't want any distractions during the season," Howell said. "He hasn't ruled New Jersey out. So if I were a Net fan, I'd take it as a sign that Kenny is concentrating on having his most productive season."

Nets general manager Willis Reed said "to lose a great point guard," like Anderson, "would be disastrous."

"Here's a kid who said he wanted to be in New Jersey and we've made a tremendous offer to him," Reed told the Post. "They don't want it. They said no. It's always about money."

New Jersey Nets Kenny Anderson drives to the basket past Chicago Bulls Will Perdue during a game in Feb. 1995 in Chicago.

Anderson is averaging 12.8 points and 7.5 assists in eight games this season. He averaged 15.3 points and 7.8 assists in his previous four seasons.

Reed said "there are only three things we can do" with Anderson, who had 14 points and 11 assists Tuesday night in the Nets' 89-84 victory over Washington, "sign him, trade him or don't sign him and have his slot at the end of the year, which we don't want to do."

Tyson fight put on hold

John Curran

Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — New Jersey said no to the Mike Tyson-Buster Mathis Jr. fight Wednesday, so Don King is taking his show to Philadelphia.

The state Casino Control Commission, which barred King from doing business with casinos here last year, rejected Donald Trump's plan to have five casinos sponsor the bout at Convention Hall.

King then decided to go west — 60 miles away — and got a warm reception from Mayor Ed Rendell and the boxing commission. King said he is licensed in Pennsylvania.

The fight will be held at the Spectrum on Dec. 16.

It will be televised live on free television by Fox Sports, King said.

EX-ST. LOUIS CAPTAIN

Hull-backed Blues defeat Canadians

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Brett Hull had a goal and two assists as the St. Louis Blues snapped a five-game winless streak with a 5-4 victory over the Montreal Canadiens on Wednesday night.

The Blues led 5-2 with less than five minutes remaining in the game and had to stand off a rally by the Canadiens. Vincent Damphousse had two goals and an assist for Montreal.

The Blues, who had been 0-4-1 in their last five games, led 4-2 after two periods on goals by Peter Zehl, Hull, J.J. Daigneault and Brian Noonan.

the first half.

UConn, which led 42-16 at halftime, went to its bench for most of the second half, and the crowd of 15,522 at the Civic Center began leaving well before the buzzer sounded.

Allen's 23 minutes were the most for any starter and all the reserves got playing time.

The game provided a good Big East warmup for UConn, which opens its conference schedule Sunday when it plays host to Boston College. The Huskies' only loss came against No. 11 Iowa during the Great Alaska Shootout.

Connecticut scored its first eight baskets in the lane and held a 26-5 lead by the time Damon Singletary got Northeastern's second basket midway through the first 20 minutes.

Northeastern held UConn scoreless during a four-minute stretch just before halftime, but could only muster five points of its own even though the Huskies were relying mostly on reserves during the span.

Doron Sheffer finished with 10 points for UConn. Northeastern had no player in double figures, as Marcus Willis' seven points led the team.

The game pitted UConn coach Jim Calhoun against a former assistant and the school he coached at for 14 years before coming to Connecticut. Northeastern coach Dave Leitao was an assistant

Dolphins' hired guns just not paying off

Steven Wine
Associated Press

DAVIE, Fla. — The free agents signed by the Miami Dolphins during an offseason spending spree have yet to pay off.

A 6-6 record suggests that coach Don Shula failed to buy a better team when he spent about $18 million of owner Wayne Huizenga's money on signing bonuses, one of the highest totals in the NFL.

Many of Shula's players under new contracts this year have had disappointing seasons, and Miami staggers into Sunday's game against Atlanta with a three-game losing streak and fading hopes of reaching the Super Bowl.

"You can't help but be numbed by this," cornerback Frankie Smith said Wednesday. "You've got one of the teams with the most depth in the NFL. We try to figure out why we're not winning with all this talent. What's the problem?"

Largely because of such acquisitions as Eric Green, Trace Armstrong and Steve Emtman, Miami was the preseason favorite to represent the AFC in the Super Bowl. Instead, the Dolphins are in danger of falling below .500 for the first time since 1991.

To make the playoffs, they need to win at least three of their final four. That won't be easy because the opponents have a combined record of 31-17.

Among Miami's veteran newcomers, only Green moved into the starting lineup. The tight end has caught just two touchdown passes since receiving a $3.5 million signing bonus as a free agent. And although he is a good blocker, the acquisition of Green failed to bolster Miami's rushing attack.

Former first-round draft picks Armstrong (at least $1.1 million) and Emtman ($750,000) also received large signing bonuses. Neither is among the top 12 Dolphins in tackles.

HIGHEST-PAID EVER?

Free agent Alomar looks for big payday

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Roberto Alomar has reportedly asked for a three-year package worth $25 million from the New York Yankees, which would make the free agent second baseman the highest-paid player in baseball history.

Newsday, citing unidentified sources close to Alomar, said today the Toronto star is seeking an annual salary of $7 million and a signing bonus of $4 million. The per-year value of $8.33 million would break the record of $7.29 million in Barry Bonds' six-year deal with San Francisco.

The newspaper said the Yankees have not responded to the proposal made Monday by Alomar's agent, Jaime Torres.

The Yankees will decide in the next day or two whether to make an offer to Alomar or Craig Biggio, the other top second baseman available as a free agent.

Yankees general manager Bob Watson declined to confirm Alomar's $25 million request, but said he didn't expect him to reach that figure.

"Do you think anybody's going to pay that," Watson said. "I don't know where these (sources) come up with the numbers."

"I don't like to negotiate through the press."

Alomar, 27, made $5.5 million last season with the Blue Jays when he hit .300 with 13 homers, 66 RBIs and 30 steals.

He made only four errors and won his fifth-straight AL Golden Glove award.

Baltimore, Los Angeles and Toronto also are interested in signing Alomar.

NBA ROUNDUP

Celtics corral rare win, defeat Pistons 100-96

Associated Press

BOSTON — Rick Fox hit two free throws with 10.4 seconds left, then made a game-saving play seven seconds later as the Boston Celtics defeated the Detroit Pistons 100-96 Wednesday night.

Dino Radja led the Celtics with 29 points and 15 rebounds.

Allan Houston, who finished with 31 points, hit a jumper to pull Detroit within 95-93. Two free throws by Fox increased Boston's lead to four points before Terry Mills hit a 3-pointer to make it 97-96.

With six seconds left, Boston's David Wesley sank the first of two free throws — his only point of the game — but missed the second. Fox tipped the rebound back to center court, where Dee Brown grabbed it, was fouled and hit both free throws to ice the victory.

Grant Hill scored 29 points despite 8-for-22 shooting. Overall, the Pistons shot just 39 percent.

Hornets 115, Knicks 105

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Charlotte reserve center Matt Geiger scored all 10 of his points in the fourth quarter and helped hold New York's Patrick Ewing to one basket in the second half as the Hornets won their fourth consecutive game, defeating the Knicks 115-105 Wednesday.

Larry Johnson and Glen Rice each scored 25 points for the Hornets, who have won seven of their last nine games against the Knicks.

With the score tied at 93, Geiger scored four consecutive points. His slam dunk put the Hornets up for good and he followed that with two free throws.

Charlotte went up 108-101 on a bankshot by Johnson and two more free throws by Geiger with 1:28 remaining.

Ewing, shooting only 5-of-17, missed a short jumper and Rice sealed the Hornets' victory with two free throws with 52.9 seconds remaining, putting Charlotte ahead 110-101.

Point guard Khalid Reeves came off the bench to score 17 points as the Hornets' reserves outscored the Knicks bench 36-14.

John Starks led with 27 points for the Knicks, while Derek Harper added 22. Ewing had 10.

A couple of shoving matches ensued during the third quarter, clearing both benches. Rice and Anthony Mason had to be separated, as did Johnson and Charles Oakley. While the officials stood to the side and watched, Hornets coach Allan Bristow and Knicks coach Don Nelson restrained their respective players.

Spurs 105, Clippers 86

SAN ANTONIO — David Robinson scored 33 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead the San Antonio Spurs to a 105-86 victory over the Los Angeles Clippers on Wednesday at the Alamodome.

Chuck Person, starting for the injured Sean Elliott, added 22 points, including six 3-pointers. Elliott sat out the game with tendinitis in his Achilles' tendon.

The Spurs broke open a close game with a 13-3 run in the last three minutes of the third quarter for an 80-67 advantage. Robinson had six points in the run.

Loy Vaught led the Clippers with 15 points, but he had only three in the second half. Terry Dehere, Rodney Rogers and Lamond Murray each added 14 for the Clippers, who fell to 7-8. San Antonio, which beat Los Angeles for the second time in four days, is 8-5.

Person tied a Spurs team record with five 3-pointers in the first half as San Antonio took a 53-49 lead. He hit three in the last two minutes of the first quarter, then added two more early in the second period.

Associated Press

Boston Celtics guard Dee Brown, left, finds himself on the short end as Detroit Pistons forward Grant Hill reaches over him for a rebound in the first half of NBA action in Boston Wednesday.

Hawks 106, 76ers 81

ATLANTA — Ken Norman scored 15 points to lead six Hawks in double figures Wednesday night as Atlanta romped to a 106-81 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers.

Mookie Blaylock had 14 points, Andrew Lang 13, rookie Alan Henderson and Stacey Augmon 12 each, and Spud Webb 11 points.

Webb had four assists as the Hawks jumped out to an 8-0 lead.

It was Atlanta's third straight victory, while the 76ers lost their eighth in a row. The victory put the Hawks within 2 1/2 games of the Central Division-leading Chicago Bulls.

Philadelphia's Jerry Stackhouse, the league's top-scoring rookie with a 19.6 average going into Wednesday's game, had 22 points to lead the 76ers. Greg Graham added 12 points, but 7-foot-6 center Shawn Bradley was held to four points and four rebounds.

Hawaii's Bob Wagner argues a call against his defensive back during the Fresno State game. Wagner was fired as head coach Monday.

Outmanned Arkansas no match for Gators

Rick Warner
Associated Press

The Southeastern Conference championship will be at stake Saturday when second-ranked Florida plays No. 23 Arkansas in Atlanta. There might be a bigger title in store for the Gators, though.

If, as expected, Florida beats Arkansas, the Gators will play No. 1 Nebraska for the national championship Jan. 2 in the Fiesta Bowl.

The party line in Gainesville is that the Gators (11-0) aren't overlooking the Razorbacks (8-3), who are 24-point underdogs and coming off a 28-0 loss to LSU.

That may be true, but it's not because Florida fans, players or coaches are worried about losing to Arkansas.

It's because they know they must win the game to get a shot at their first national title.

The Gators have too much talent and motivation to let this one slip away ... FLORIDA 48-21.

Speaking of motivation, the final

Southwest Conference title and an alliance bowl bid will be on the line when No. 9 Texas (9-1-1) visits No. 16 Texas A&M (8-2).

On paper, it's an even matchup. But the game is at College Station, where the Aggies (minus 3 1/2) have won 31 in a row, and Texas quarterback James Brown is still recovering from a sprained ankle.

The winner goes to the Orange Bowl or Sugar Bowl, while the loser plays Michigan in the Alamo Bowl. ... TEXAS A&M 17-14.

Army (minus 3) vs. Navy at Philadelphia

Last three games decided by total of five points ... ARMY 28-27.

Houston (plus 8) at Rice
Last game in SWC history (starts after Texas-Texas A&M) ... RICE 34-24.

Oklahoma St. (minus 6) at Hawaii

Last game for fired Hawaii coach Bob Wagner ... OKLAHOMA ST. 28-21.

Buck the classics

Nathan Groepper
The Daily Iowan

Cable networks make sure Americans are perpetually reminded how angels acquire their wings. By now, Americans know an angel gets its wings "every time a bell rings," according to the timeless Christmas classic "It's A Wonderful Life."

While this is no doubt a tender movie, it and other holiday classics have become worn due to excessive use in the last 50 years. Let's face it: These movies don't exactly capture present-day Christmas spirit.

Don't let Ted Turner subject you to countless broadcasts of "Miracle on 32nd Street," "White Christmas" and "A Christmas Carol." Buck the classics and add fun to your viewing pleasure. Here are some ideal contemporary holiday movies:

"National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation": Easily the funniest Christmas movie ever made. Chevy Chase stars as the reliable, comic father of an extremely odd family who puts on Christmas at the last minute. This movie has everything real holidays are made of — obnoxious relatives, bad food and the hassles of decorating. You will laugh yourself silly slapping your own family's names on numerous zany characters.

"A Christmas Story": Another touching look at the holiday season. The movie is the hilarious story of a boy, a town and a BB gun. The movie treats the holiday season as it truly is — from screaming mothers to the anxiety of getting the gift you always wanted as a kid. On top of that, every part of this movie is sidesplittingly funny.

"Scrooged": The movie is a modern take on Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol." Bill Murray stars as an anal modern businessman who is chosen to see the errors of his ways. The film has some nifty special effects to add to an entertaining and comical re-examination of a holiday favorite.

"Comfort and Joy": The story is an odd holiday classic.

Merry films

Nathan Groepper
The Daily Iowan

With a poor showing at the box office this fall, a lot is riding on this year's batch of holiday films. Here's what's in store:

"Toy Story": This is the first completely computer animated movie ever conceived, and a joint venture between Disney and Pixar, a revolutionary computer company. The movie is destined to be ground breaking. (Already playing.)

"Nick of Time": Johnny Depp is finally cast as an action star. He must assassinate the governor in 90 minutes or lose his daughter. The gimmick is that the action actually unfolds in real time. (Already playing.)

"Casino": Talented director Martin Scorsese looks at '70s mobsters in the bright lights and back rooms of Las Vegas. The film is already an Oscar contender. (Already playing.)

"Jumanji": This special effects romp — courtesy of techno wizards Industrial Light & Magic — stars Robin Williams, who is freed from being trapped in a children's board game. Animals follow him and set off an eye-popping bonanza. (Opens Dec. 15.)

"Money Train": Woody Harrelson and Wesley Snipes reteam as foster brothers who work as cops for the New York City Transit. This action flick is full of stunts and the duo's trademark humor. (Already playing.)

"Waiting To Exhale": This sophisticated story of four African-American women searching for happiness has an all-star ensemble cast, including Whitney Houston and Angela Basset. Written by Terry McMillion, author of "The Joy Luck Club." (Dec. 22.)

"Heat": Robert De Niro and Al Pacino play adversaries on screen for the first time as a cop and a convict. The film is loaded

Filmmakers for the Hollywood-weary

Daniel Franc
The Daily Iowan

Forget Hollywood. Four Iowa City filmmakers have created films a thousand miles from the Walk of Stars with the individual vision never found in big releases.

UI communication studies graduate students will present the culmination of the three-year Master of Fine Arts film program with a series of four independent films Friday night at 7 in Shambaugh Auditorium of the Main Library.

Adam Joyce, who will present "Tracking Signal Impulse Movie," promised an engaging show. "All four films are different, making for an exciting show," he said.

"Tracking Signal Impulse Movie" is a quirky narrative featuring the stories of three characters, including the trials of a man trying to find Kathleen Allen. However, he keeps calling the wrong Kathleen Allen.

Evan Bouffides, an MBA student at University of Southern California, filmed "Strand." The title alludes to the connections between three rooms in an apartment building and the events that take place in those rooms.

Susan Marshall will present "The Eye Reads Omens ... But What of the Ears?" This film explores the frustration of the creative process through one woman's attempts to create sketches in the city. This

'Toy' fulfills animation's promise

Nathan Groepper
The Daily Iowan

I have seen the future of animation, and its name is "Toy Story."

Traditional animation powerhouse Walt Disney Pictures and Pixar Animation Studios, a pioneer of computer graphics, joined creative forces to invent the first full-length animation feature to be created entirely by artists using computer tools and technol-

gy. This combination results in an infinitely entertaining film loaded with eye-popping visuals and trademark Disney humor.

"Toy Story" focuses on the relationship between two rival toys. Woody is a traditional pull-string talking cowboy, who has long enjoyed a place of honor as the favorite among 6-year-old Andy's group of toys. Admired and respected by the other toys, he is the

Arts world pauses to reflect on AIDS

Megan McCabe
The Daily Iowan

Arts during the past 15 years have flourished, from major theater works to creative sculpture installations.

Unfortunately, HIV and AIDS have also flourished within this same time span, impacting the arts communities around the nation.

The World Health Organization estimates there are 20 million men, women and children infected with HIV. This statistic hits close to home in the United States, where 2,500 people have already died of AIDS.

The arts community may be one of the hardest hit by the epidemic. To recognize the impact, the UI Center for the Arts is observing "A Day Without Art," as part of the nationwide effort to advance the importance of AIDS awareness and education.

Three prints from Keith Haring, who died of AIDS in 1988, will be exhibited in the UI Museum of Art for one week beginning Friday. A widely known piece, "Silence=Death," which is a recognized work in AIDS education, will be part of the exhibition.

"We asked them (Principal Financial Group) if they had any AIDS-related art. After discussion, we decided on Haring, who is well-known and visually compelling," said Victoria Rovine, a UI museum curator.

The exhibition will be on loan from Principal Financial Group of in Des Moines. Donations from Friday's visitors will be donated to Iowa City AIDS Research and Education.

Clapp Recital Hall will feature two panels from the NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt to raise funds for ICARE on Friday at 5:30 p.m. The quilt now has 30,000 panels, which remember friends, family and domestic partners who have died of an AIDS-related illness.

Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St., is sponsoring a benefit concert, featuring Pompeii V, Stumbleweed, Red Coat Charmers and Critical Gopher. The $5 cover charge will be donated to the Free Medical Clinic and the Dela Cerda House in the Quad Cities.

Chaotic ska band invades teen scene

Jonathan Hansen
The Daily Iowan

The Blue Meanies, who will be playing at Gunnerz tonight, have been fighting with the label of ska for years — and the Meanies are coming out on top.

Somewhere in the struggle, the idea of ska music has been mangled almost beyond the point of recognition, which both excites their fans and frustrates ska purists.

It's easy to hear why people might compare the Meanies' music to ska, which is the faster-paced predecessor to reggae. The energetic tempo and the syncopated, rhythmic guitar lines are common both to the Chicago-based Meanies and to ska, which originally hails from Jamaica. Furthermore, the Meanies sport among their seven members a horn section, which is a standard feature of most ska bands.

However, on the Meanies' latest album, Kiss Your Ass Goodbye, it's easier than ever to hear why the band would like to get away from the label of ska.

The random-sounding appropriation can be heard within a single song. Rarely does a track on the new album start and end without a few bizarre departures in the middle. For example, in the middle of a thrash metal influenced song, the horns, without warning, break into "Yakety Sax," a tune most easily recognized as the "Benny Hill" theme song.

The overall volume and intensity of the music has inspired hybrid labels such as "ska-punk" and "ska-core." But even these compromises aren't really appropriate, as the Meanies' emphasis is increasingly on the "punk" and "core," not ska.

The Blue Meanies have built a loyal fan base with incessant touring, and they have a reputation for performing a show that is as chaotic as their music.

The band consists of young white men, from apparently delinquent backgrounds, who claim that the excitement of homemade explosives is the sound they are trying to capture in their music. If destructive adolescent euphoria is your thing, the Meanies will most likely light your fuse.

Ska purists may want to stay home.

Thieves offer goods... legally

Joshua Ferris
The Daily Iowan

The Union is preparing to open its doors this weekend to a market of thieves.

The UI Fine Arts Council presents the Thieves' Market, a juried art fair of regional artists. There will be more than 90 artists exhibiting and selling their original work. The art being promoted spans a wide range, including painting, needlework, ceramics, photography, woodworking, drawing and jewelry making.

"The Fine Arts Council wants to promote art in the community," Lydia Young, a UI sophomore majoring in English and a representative of the council, said. "The Thieves' Market makes people more aware that there are independent artists other than students."

The Thieves' Market is a UI tradition that has been sponsored by the Fine Arts Council for approximately 20 years. It is the oldest art show of its kind in the area, emphasizing quality in original, handmade artifacts.

The artists selected for the show are judged by a panel of council members, artists and community members, and selected on the merits of their work. The artists themselves will be manning the booths.

In addition to the dialogue and exchange of art, there will be a "Thieves' Choice," one piece selected by Young to be raffled off at the end of each day.

Admission is free. The Thieves' Market will take place Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. through 5 p.m. in the Main Lounge and River Room of the Union.

Russian 'Oscar' plays at Bijou

Mark Pittillo
The Daily Iowan

The Oscar winners for Best Foreign Language Film make a strange and baffling group, with certified classics such as "8 1/2" and "Fanny and Alexander" mixed with sentimental, minor works both popular ("Babette's Feast," "Cinema Paradiso") and justly obscure (ever heard of 1980's winner, "Moscow Does Not Believe in Tears?"). In recent years, the academy has added liberally to the latter group with choices like 1992's "Mediterraneo" and 1993's "Belle Epoque."

So where does 1994's winner, Russia's "Burnt by the Sun" fit in? Let's say somewhere in the middle. The film, which is showing at the Bijou this weekend and was co-written and directed by its star, Nikita Mikhalkov ("Dark Eyes"), has what academy voters seem to favor: It's a very straightforward period piece featuring an extremely cute little girl (Nadia Mikhalkov, the director's daughter), an easy, anti-Stalinist theme and lots of gorgeous scenery.

Still, Mikhalkov's passion for the material is present in every frame. "Burnt by the Sun" is, in fact, a little like Mikhalkov's show-stopping acceptance speech at the Academy Awards (you may remember him throwing his daughter/co-star over his back) — obvious and a little smug, but undeniably moving.

The film takes place in Soviet Russia on a summer day in 1936. Sergei Kotov (Mikhalkov), a Bolshevik military hero, has retired to lover who mysteriously disappeared a decade before. We later find out that Dmitri is a member of Stalin's secret police, with a terrible mission to carry out.

The film's first half is an energetic bit of ensemble acting, with almost a dozen characters throwing their various eccentricities up against one another. This section resembles a Chekhov play, though it is a bit rougher and the characters slightly less defined. In the last hour, as Dmitri's purpose becomes clear, the plot kicks in and the film becomes hypnotic — almost dreamlike — in its intensity.

Though Stalin's campaign of political terror is a central concern of the film, Mikhalkov strives to make the story intimate. It is basically a story of two men in love with the same woman, and it is this angle that keeps the film from seeming too heavy-handed. Even after the final shot, in which we witness a balloon hoisting a gigantic picture of Stalin into the air, the personal dimension of the film lingers. Mikhalkov has said, "Burnt by the Sun" doesn't want to judge an era but wants to make its tragic dimension felt." Well... okay.

favorite among 6-year-old Andy's group of toys. Admired and respected by the other toys, he is the leader who keeps peace between the wide range of personalities which inhabit Andy's bedroom. Woody finds his confidence shaken, and his status as top toy in jeopardy, with the arrival of super-cool action figure Buzz Lightyear.

Much to Woody's dismay, Buzz begins to monopolize all of Andy's attention and becomes an instant favorite with his toymates. Furious, Woody plots to get rid of Buzz, but things backfire and he soon finds himself lost in the outside world with Buzz as his sole companion.

Disney understands the importance of solid story structure. The idea of a simplistic buddy picture — one of Hollywood's most overused genres — starring toys was used, incorporated with well-written puns and warm music. The story, however, is not equal to the film's stunning animation techniques.

character is explored through background sounds and the simple events of a day.

Jack Beck, now teaching at Denison University in Ohio, will offer his "Follow and Order," a traditional narrative that deals with issues of amnesia, academics, apparitions and identity in a carefully crafted fictional world.

The productions of these films was a serious undertaking, spanning nine months, including three months of shooting and two months of editing. In addition to writing, casting and selecting locations, these filmmakers dealt with low budgets and high film costs.

Marshall will demonstrate film production to audience members by exhibiting copies of her many script rewrites in the lobby of Shambaugh Auditorium.

Even though each of these four have graduated and accomplished an entire production independently, none is ready to pursue the Hollywood dream right away.

Joyce has had "three tours of duty of Hollywood," which is enough for him. He's headed for New York City. Marshall will stick to writing scripts and poetry for now.

day season. The movie is the hilarious story of a boy, a town and a BB gun. The movie treats the holiday season as it truly is — from screaming mothers to the anxiety of getting the gift you always wanted as a kid. On top of that, every part of this movie is sidesplittingly funny.

For those of you who need a little more kick in your holiday season due to wacky relatives or bad turkey, try:

"Silent Night, Deadly Night" and "Elves": Both are semi-comical horror movies that are bound to produce as many chuckles as chills.

"Die Hard": You think you are having a tough Christmas? Try the one Bruce Willis is having in this action classic. The violence is huge, but so is the fun as Willis blasts his way through one villain after another. If nothing else, the movie is a real stress reliever.

So, when you see the 70th showing of "White Christmas," remember you are allowed to have more fun with holiday films.

Toy Story
**** out of ****

Director ..... John Lasseter
Screenwriters ..... Joss Whedon, Andrew Stanton, Joel Cohen and Alec Sokolow
Starring the voices of: Tom Hanks and Tim Allen

"Toy Story" is the most dazzling and spectacular animated feature to ever grace the silver screen. The technical artists have created a film with an endless range of 3-D movement, amazingly realistic coloring, and a dedication to small details. You can literally see intricate aspects such as the shiny texture of the bumps on the plastic dinosaur.

Breathing life and humor into the film's main characters are the voices of two of Hollywood's biggest stars: Tom Hanks ("Apollo 13") and Tim Allen ("The Santa Clause"). Hanks shines as Woody, ranging from manic outbursts, subtle jokes and heartfelt commentary. His emotional character works well in combination with the solid performance from Allen. Allen does not get a chance to show off his comedic skills or familiar grunts, but does help to create "Toy Story" 's most touching moments.

Disney's success in attracting top-notch voice talents did not stop there. The supporting cast is filled with some interesting and very familiar voices. Don Rickles ("Casino") as Mr. Potato Head is definitely in his element as a wisecracking spud who secretly longs for Mrs. Potato Head.

Disney may have put together its most impressive film to date. The film is a breakthrough for computer animation — one that will go down as a landmark in motion picture history. The new trail blazed by "Toy Story" is technically innovative, visually dazzling, and well-written.
