Fraternity members filch Christmas tree

Christine Windham

The Daily Iowan

After following a trail of pine needles to the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, the Iowa City Fire Department's Public Safety Lt. Richard Gordon said the evergreen tree chopped down from the Hay House lawn by Jacob Czerewski, 21, and Kevin Brown, 18, members of Phi Delta Theta, was later chopped up and the branches used to ornament the Christmas tree in the basement of the fraternity house.

The punishment for the crime — which was committed on Saturday night — could mean two years in jail and/or a $1,000 to $3,000 fine.

"In my 16 years of law enforcement, I have never heard of a fraternity actually having to have a Christmas tree," Gordon said. "Jacob and Kevin were cooperative and apologized when we arrived to search the house. The two turned themselves in to police Monday around 6 a.m., saying they had done it for a Christmas tree, "Gordon said. The two were arrested and taken to jail.

"It's sad," Porter said. "I don't think the tree will be a big hit."

Nearly half of American college students admit to being binge drinkers

For years, researchers have been trying to understand the habits of college students. A recent study, conducted by the Harvard School of Health, has shed some light on this topic.

According to the study, around 11:55 students, figure out why colleges haven't chapters like the country has. "We have to make sure without college campuses have changed the the society has," said Steve Parrott, director for University Health.

Repatriation resisted in Bosnia

Mark Fitz

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - In World War II, Bakar was a young Kosovar Muslim who was rounded up by Italian soldiers who shot and killed his brother and then threw his father into a concentration camp.

Now Drljacic is a shorthand, monolingual old man who thinks he has lost his ability to walk roughly a month ago. Red-faced and immune to his own confusion, he hardly even dares to remember.

But Drljacic is a Muslim, and on Monday he felt from his Bosnian Hospital room that cities of Banja Luka after Sarajevo. He was brought to Sarajevo by a U.N. doctor around that a Muslim, and he still living nearly the essentially purged city. Perhaps, as in a few cases, he had escaped attention.

"There was a point to the war and breaks my heart," the Bulgarian-old-aged, scratched features around him in the Sarajevo Hospital room. "I am better in the Sarajevo sick ward." He said.

And last week, he said, local Malitani signed the accord for a new Serb community of 100,000, the other fragmented city. "They want they were willing all on it as the basis of this 1904 agreement." And the Americans standing in with as much force, they may realize it is a pipe dream in a nation that has been purged and partitioned.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Five years after Serb and Muslim leaders in the Balkan province of Bosnia-Herzegovina agreed to a cease-fire that failed to end the region's four-year-old war, chances were good Tuesday that they had reached a deal on a permanent settlement.

A joint team of U.S.-based foreign policy experts arrived in the port city of Croatia to assess the Serb forces in Sarajevo, which has been stocked with weapons and ammunition.

The city has been under siege for months, and many have died there, including civilians who were trying to escape.

Commuters brave early hours to travel long distances

Randolph Scholz

WASHINGTON - What time do you leave home?

Almost one in three Americans heads out for the daily grind between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. The trip used to be getting a little longer as more people are starting to leave earlier.

Kevin Burns, spokesperson for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, issued the order Thursday banning the malt liquor label Crazy Horse, whose name in the 19th century Sioux leader's name was Tasunke Wi tko, was offended by the use of the revered Indian leader Louis Farrakhan, said after giving a speech about the Million Man March.

Unofficially, the ban isn't expected to last long.

Clintons's Bosnia strategy is close, but no cigar

President Clinton has begun to speak of the need to send troops to Bosnia. The war effort has been practically the transparent phase. It would be a shame to consider Bill Clinton's mental health, but he is an idealist who talks about bringing peace, a man of unexcelled generosity, a man of the people. If he ever becomes the leader of the free world, he will return to the world as a man of peace. The United States has been in the process of building the peace in Bosnia for years. The United Nations Security Council has been working on the issue for years. The United States has been the leader of the peace process.

Bill Clinton's Bosnia strategy is close, but no cigar

The United States is sending 20,000 soldiers into Bosnia-Herzegovina to enforce a peace settlement, duplicating the first stage of United States involvement in Vietnam. But the situation at the two sites is being overlooked.

Bosnia is a full-scale civil war. Politicians argue its prospects because civilians are being killed, but it is a new war - just like France in Spain. The United States and European Unions are at risk of being taken into the war. We are at risk of being involved in the war.

In Bosnia, there are several peace groups trying for a peace settlement. With all the fighting, it is clear that these people are very dedicated to their cause. It is also clear that some of these people are extremely dangerous. The United States needs to be careful in their involvement.

The European Union is sending 20,000 soldiers, but it is not enough to maintain their so-called regional stability. The United States needs to be careful in their involvement.

Warning City Council

I.C. brinking on ugliness

The Iowa City City Council and Iowa City Community Development Board have a difficult task. If they want to be successful, they need to maintain a clear idea of their goals. A clear idea of their goals will ensure that they are not distracted by the problems of other cities.

The City Council needs to redefine development in Iowa City. The City Council needs to redefine the role of development in Iowa City.

The City Council needs to develop a plan for Iowa City. The City Council needs to develop a plan for Iowa City.

Farrakhan inspires cross-color peace

The handsome Louis Farrakhan has well and truly inspired white America. His accomplishment of bringing together the white with the black in America. His respectability and positive image has been embraced by all Americans.

Last month, editorial writer James Progres­sus wrote in The New York Times: "Louis Farrakhan is the man who is putting in the street America. His respectability and positive image has been embraced by all Americans."

Guest Opinion of View

Louis Farrakhan preaches for black unity, not anti-white pro­paganda. He is against oppression and pos­sible war.

Farrakhan's intentions are never to unite America in the first place. His purpose is to divide and conquer, to bring blacks and whites together. Just because integration seems to always be overshadowed by the media's critique of him.

Sue and Ken regularly opened their doors to all, not only to their friends but to their friends' enemies. They and their children had the utmost respect for and interest in all people. They never turned anyone away from their door.

Nutrition program may go sour

"...It is unfortunate that someone in the local community is planning to close the nutrition program. I have attended this program for several years and have benefited greatly from it."

"...The program offers healthy meals and snacks, as well as valuable nutrition education."

"...I hope this decision is reversed and the program continues to operate for the benefit of the community."

Dallas slipping in playoff hunt

Drew Goldberg
Associated Press

The Dallas Cowboys have spent the season talking about how important it is to be in the hunt — and now, with three weeks left, they find themselves in a must-win situation.

Washington, winners of just five games, beat the Cowboys 26-17 in Texas Stadium last week, and the question now becomes whether Dallas is capable of making the playoffs.

The result leaves the Cowboys without a total of five wins and no chance of playing at home in the playoffs. And if they lose this week, their three-game winning streak against Philadelphia would have been of little consequence.

"We knew this was coming," Cowboys head coach Tom Landry said. "We know how to play. We taught them how to win, how to lose, how to score points. They play us differently than any other team.

The reasons:

1. The team's schedule is a difficult one. Minnesota is next, then Atlanta.

2. Receiver Michael Irvin said, "I was very impressed with @Comedy Central's @Doonesbury with #DoonesburyTNT."

3. On Monday, a day after the Cowboys' 26-17 loss to Washington, head coach Tom Landry said, "This is the way things have to be done."

4. Jeff Hostetler, who has been filling in at quarterback for the Cowboys, said he was "very impressed with @Comedy Central's @Doonesbury with #DoonesburyTNT."

5. The Cowboys are over teams.

6. Landry said, "I think they're doing extremely well.

7. It's obvious one part of our team that's doing well is our defense.

8. Commissioner Paul Tagliabue said, "In each of the three losses this season, we've been overthrown.

9. Themixc has been one step behind..." To Turner and us, it's obvious one part of our team that's doing well is our defense.

10. It stinks."

If the Cowboys are to have any chance of making the playoffs, they must win their last two games and hope the Giants lose their last two.

The Giants play at St. Louis today and then host the Cowboys in the season finale.

"The result leaves the Cowboys without a total of five wins and no chance of playing at home in the playoffs. And if they lose this week, their three-game winning streak against Philadelphia would have been of little consequence."
Disgruntled Roy set free by Montreal

Associated Press

MONTREAL — Goalie Patrick Roy apparently has gotten his wish.

"Either him or me," Roy reported to Montreal Canadiens president Serge Savard Saturday night. "I met with coach Mario Tremblay.

Roy, who had allowed nine goals on 57 shots in his last three games, said that he and Tremblay had a "frank" and "honest" discussion and that he understands why he had been left on the sidelines.

Tremblay, who replaced Roy in net Friday night in the Canadiens' 5-2 loss to the New York Rangers, said that, although Roy had been "sad" and "frustrated," the decision to bench him was for tactical reasons and not because of his play.

"I think this is a very good team, and when we need to make a change, we'll make it," Tremblay said.

Roy had asked to be cut from the lineup before the game against the Rangers, and the Canadiens' management had discussed the possibility of trading Roy to another team.

"I have no interest in that," Roy said. "I just want to play."

Tremblay said that Roy was "in good shape" and "ready to play," but that he had decided to keep other players on the team.

"I have a lot of respect for Patrick," Tremblay said. "He's a great goalie and a great person."

Roy, who has been Montreal's starting goalie since the 1983-84 season, said that he was "very disappointed" by the decision to bench him.

"I've been here for a long time," Roy said. "I've been through a lot of good times and bad times, and I've always tried to be a good teammate."

Roy, who is in the last year of his contract, said that he was "very proud" of the team and "very happy" to be part of it.

"I'm just hoping that I can continue to play," Roy said. "I'm very grateful to my teammates and to the fans for their support."
Recording the American experience

Joshua Ferris

From the front porch of his house in the suburbs of Chicago, Ferris watches the world go by. He comments on the idiosyncrasies of his neighbors, the mailman's habit of leaving the newspaper on the porch, and the fact that his 100 Words banner is never folded, but instead stands tall with the wind blowing through it.

"I feel like I'm living in a world of 100 Words. It's a small town, but the neighbors are all connected. They know each other's business, and it feels like a community."

A unique literary journal, 100 Words is Ferris's creation, and it's become a reflection of his own life. He's published short stories and essays in various magazines, and he's become known for his ability to capture the essence of American life in 100 Words or less.

Ferris's latest book, "100 Words," is a collection of his best work. He's excited to share it with the world, and he hopes it will inspire others to record their own experiences in the same way.

"I want people to think about their lives in 100 Words. It's a way to capture the essence of something without getting bogged down in too much detail. It's a simple way to express yourself."

Ferris believes that this new wave of writers is a reflection of the changing times. They're not afraid to write about the things that are important to them, even if it means going against the grain of what's expected.

"These writers aren't afraid to speak their minds. They're writing about the things that really matter to them, and it's refreshing."

Ferris's work has been praised for its honesty and its ability to capture the essence of American life. He's excited to see what the future holds for this new wave of writers, and he hopes that his book will inspire others to join in.

"I think there's a lot of potential for this new wave of writers. They're not afraid to express themselves, and that's something that we need in our society right now."

Fighting off the fashion fascists of the (real) corporate world

Colin Mochrie

In his book, "The Corporate Realities of Fashion," Mochrie argues that the fashion world is full of fake designers and fraudulent trends. He believes that the true fashion world is one of innovation and creativity, not of blindly following the latest trends.

"The fashion world is a real (corporate) world. It's full of people who are just trying to make a quick buck without really caring about the quality of their work."

Mochrie's book is a call to action for anyone who wants to make a real difference in the fashion world. He encourages readers to support the designers who are creating something truly unique, and to avoid the mass-produced, cookie-cutter fashion that's dominating the market today.

"The true fashion world is one of creativity and innovation. It's not about following trends. It's about creating something new and exciting."
