FEAR BUILDS AS TROOPS LAND IN BOSNIA: It's happening again. A big Western army is descending on a mortally wounded nation and into the middle of a fragile web of wary relief agencies. As they did in Somalia, Rwanda and Haiti, humanitarian groups are bracing for the impact of the 60,000-member NATO force on the Bosnian landscape.

PLAY REVIEW: After hopping planets in search for answers to questions on life, "The Little Prince" has finally landed in Iowa City. More specifically, he has landed at the Riverside Theatre Company, 213 N. Gilbert St., but he won't be staying long. The theatre is again showing its musical based on the classic story by Antoine de Saint Exupery Dec. 8-10 and Dec. 14-17, and then the little guy will be moving on.

UI's political stock market 'more accurate than polls'

Jay Dee
The Daily Iowan

The Dow Jones Industrials topped 5,000 on the New York Stock Exchange. Pork bellies are trading at 58 cents a pound on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. And Bill Clinton is trading at 44 cents a share on the UI's Iowa Electronic Market.

Forget margin of error when you're trading on the IEM. Economics Professor Robert Forsythe said the UI's market is more accurate than polls because traders have real money on the line, whereas people answering polls have no incentive to learn about the candidates.

"We're asking a different question," he said.

"We're asking a different question. Polls ask, 'Who will you vote for?' The market asks, 'Who do you think will win?'"

UI Economics Professor Robert Forsythe

"Polls ask, 'Who will you vote for?' The market asks, 'Who do you think will win?'"

Out of frustration with inaccurate political polls, faculty in the College of Business Administration created the political market in 1988. Forsythe said Jesse Jackson's surprise victory in the 1988 Michigan primary was the last straw with opinion polls.

"Jackson was expected to do well, but not win," he said. "Next we did what was natural for a business type to do. We went to see what the market would say."

While opinion polls have been off by 1 1/2 to 2 percentage points in recent presidential elections, UI's electronic market has been within three-tenths of one percent of the actual outcome, professor Forrest Nelson said.

Surfing the World Wide Web

Students live 'Real World' on line

Al Austria
The Daily Iowan

Admit it, you watch MTV's "The Real World." Sad, yet true.

"People don't like to admit it, but it's the ultimate in voyeurism," UI rhetoric Teaching Assistant M.E. Simmons said. "It's like crap talk shows — you're hesitant to watch, but once you start watching, you justify watching it."

Now "Real World" addicts will have something else to watch — the concept behind "The Real World," MTV's serial docudrama about seven strangers who agree to live together in a group house, has found its way into the residence halls via the World Wide Web.

The Virtual Dorm, which opened on Nov. 1 on the Web, chronicles the lives of five students at a small New England college. Two women — Abby and Lucy — and three men — Andy, Ben and Garth — were selected. Their last names and the name of the college are not being released to protect the students' privacy.

Four cameras have been placed in the students' residence hall suites — one in each of the two bedrooms, one in the living room and one in the kitchen/dining area.

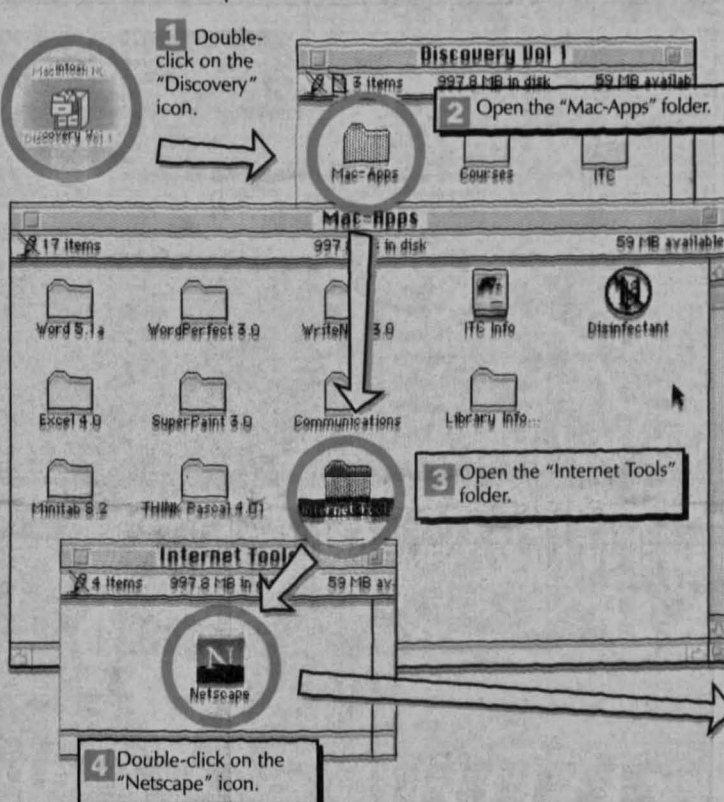

"The camera is little, the size of a baseball," said Rob Thibault, director of corporate communications at MarketSource, the marketing service company that developed the web site.

The cameras send both real-time video/audio and still photographs over the Internet via a high-speed phone line.

Iowa City sign ordinance has coffee shop owner steamed

Sarah Lueck
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City business owner Laurie Tulchin thinks Iowa City officials are trying to put her through the grinder.

Tulchin, owner of the coffee shop Uncommon Grounds, 118 S. Dubuque St., ran into trouble with city code when she designed and hung a projecting sign over her business.

A city ordinance currently prohibits projecting signs in the downtown area unless they show a time and/or temperature reading, such as those displayed by banks.

In an attempt to conform to city code, Tulchin installed a thermometer in her sign that cost $300.

'SCHOOL OF ASSASSINS' EXPLORED AT UI

Protesters allege U.S. is training killers

Ann Haggerty
The Daily Iowan

When native Iowan Vicky Imerman went over a list of 60 officers who were cited for massacres and murders in El Salvador, she hoped to find 12 who attended an American military training school for Latin Americans.

Twelve would make her case strong enough to increase support for closing the training center.

Imerman found 49.

Imerman, who requested the names of the soldiers responsible for the killings from the Federal Information Act, found that these 49 were graduates from the School of Americas (SOA) in Fort Benning, Ga. — a school which costs

U.S. taxpayers $18.4 million a year, she said.

Imerman and Father Roy Bourgeois, SOA Watch co-coordinators, presented their message to about 50 people in a forum Tuesday titled "U.S. Army's School of the Americas." See COLLEGE OF ASSASSINS, Page 12A

American history tidbits showcased

Harry Rosenthal
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In meticulous hand, the metropolitan police blotter for April 14, 1865, records at 7:30 p.m. that a saddle cover, halter and three fishing lines had arrived at the precinct. Hardly the stuff of history.

The next notation, at 11 p.m., was:

"At this hour, the melancholy intelligence of the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, President of the United States, at Ford's Theater was brought to this office and the information obtained from the following persons goes to show the assassin is a man named J. Wilks Booth."

Little threads like these, woven in with blockbuster events such as the Louisiana Purchase, the only resignation of a president and the recognition of the state of Israel, are the fabric of American history.

And they are part of a display opening Friday at the National Archives.

Along with the historic, visitors can see the cover of a Superman comic book the Navy developed as a literacy training tool in 1945. Another aid to literacy — the phonetic spelling of "Ich bin ein Berliner," (Ish bin ein Bearleener) on a card used by President John F. Kennedy for making his famous 1963 speech in Germany — is also on display.

The forgotten police officer in Washington could be forgiven for misspelling John Wilkes Booth's middle name, as he recorded word of Lincoln's shooting less than an hour after it occurred. Lincoln died the next day.

The show contains 50 original documents displayed beside the Constitution and the Bill of Rights in the Archives Rotunda, which receives a million visitors a year.

There is something for everybody.

For the young: The 1882 indictment of Jesse James and Frank James for fraud and robbery, a 1960 telegram from comedian Bud Abbott to Richard Nixon on his nomination as president and the $7.2 million check, canceled, that the United States paid for the purchase of Alaska in 1868.

For those who love books: One of 44 pages of alternative endings to "A Farewell to Arms" in Ernest Hemingway's handwriting.

And the last nine pages of F. Scott Fitzgerald's commentary about that book.

For those fascinated by a country's growing pains: The 1866 petition for universal suffrage signed by Susan B. Anthony; the 1954 Senate resolution condemning Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis.; the letter from President Franklin D. Roosevelt's wife, Eleanor, in which she resigned from the Daughters of the American Revolution after the DAR denied its Constitutional Hall stage to black singer Marian Anderson.

For those interested in the United States rise to greatness: The 1774 Richard Henry Lee resolution proposing independence from Great Britain; the 1803 treaty buying the Louisiana Territory from Napoleon Bonaparte of France for 60 million francs — $11.25 million; Roosevelt's 1941 address to Congress, asking for a declaration of war against Japan.

Finally, the display includes the White House telephone log of July 20, 1969, that recorded this unprecedented call between 11:45 p.m. and 11:50 p.m.: "The President (Nixon) held an interplanetary conversation with Apollo 11 astronauts, Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin, on the moon."

Jesse Jackson pitches for Carew's ill daughter

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson urged people to donate bone marrow as he visited the leukemia-stricken daughter of baseball great Rod Carew.

Jackson and the Carew family prayed outside Michelle's room at Children's Hospital of Orange County on Sunday and urged volunteers — especially minorities — to get tested for the National Marrow Donor Program.

Jackson said he admired the Carew family's devotion to the 18-year-old. He also warned that not everyone can afford the same level of treatment.

"Thank God for major league baseball," Jackson said. "But so few others can afford this kind of medical care. For American people, there must be a safety net through which no American will fall."

Former French first lady auctions gems for human rights

PARIS (AP) — When foreign potentates lavished jewels on Danielle Mitterrand, the former French first lady promised they'd be well-used. Now she's keeping her promise, selling the items to benefit her human rights foundation.

Mitterrand, 71, donated about 150 pieces of jewelry received from heads of state over the past 15 years to "France Libertes," said auctioneer Jacques Tajan.

"She never wore any of the jewelry," Tajan said. "But she always sent a thank-you note saying the jewelry would certainly be put to good use. For her, that meant selling it for the foundation after her husband left office in May."

The items include a diamond-studded gold bracelet by Boucheron; a matching set consisting of a necklace, bracelet, earrings and ring with a diamond-encrusted ribbon motif; and a five-strand pearl necklace.

Tajan said the pieces are estimated to be worth $300,000 to $400,000. The jewelry is to be auctioned off next week in Paris.

Garlic makes country crooner's world go 'round

GILROY, Calif. (AP) — If you catch a faint scent of garlic after Santa pays you a visit, blame it on country music star Randy Travis. He's loading down St. Nick with almost 200 garlic gifts for Christmas.

Travis and his wife, Elizabeth, recently placed a holiday order at the Garlic Festival Store and Gallery in Gilroy, which bills itself as the Garlic Capital of the World.

"They just wanted something special for their friends and associates," said store owner Caryl Simpson. "We're pretty excited. It's always nice to have a celebrity customer."

Simpson said the Traveses got into garlic at a food show Garlic Festival Foods attended in Kentucky three years ago.

"He and his wife are big fans," said Joyce Gambill, administrative assistant for the Traveses in Nashville, Tenn. "They truly believe in the healing powers of it."

Thanks to a great collaboration, 'Moose Come Walking'

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass. (AP) — She provided the setting for his most famous song, and now Alice Brock is drawing the scenes for Arlo Guthrie's latest creation.

The two recently released a children's book, "Moose Come Walking." Guthrie wrote the story, a poem about a moose that visits a child's bedroom window at night. The illustrations were drawn by Brock, whose Stockbridge restaurant became immortalized by Guthrie's 1967 ballad "Alice's Restaurant."

Guthrie, whose headquarters is in the former Great Barrington church where Brock used to live, said he doodled the poem for the children's book on an envelope while he was traveling. "I was on

Gingrich's lesbian half-sister debuts on "Friends"

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — While her brother grumbles about being sent to the back of the plane, Candace Gingrich is getting the star treatment.

Gingrich, half-sister of House Speaker Newt Gingrich, makes her acting debut Jan. 18 on the NBC sitcom "Friends," playing a minister at a lesbian wedding.

She won the role after meeting some cast members at a gay rights fund-raiser. The 29-year-old Gingrich, a lesbian, was living and working for United Parcel Service in Harrisburg when she decided to go public, speaking against her brother's opposition to gay rights.

The episode Gingrich will not make any references to her famous family ties. "She's just kind of there," said a show publicist.

ANY CANDIDATE WHO FLAKES OFF WILL PAY THE PRICE

GOP legislators unite in caucus battle

Mary Neubauer
Associated Press

DES MOINES — Three Iowa legislators who have backed different Republican presidential candidates said Tuesday that Phil Gramm is making a mistake by refusing to sign a pledge to ignore Louisiana's presidential conventions.

"All the candidates have had an opportunity to sign the pledge. So everybody is united at this point in time except for one individual," said Iowa House Speaker Ron Corbett, who supports Lamar Alexander for president.

The election fight erupted earlier this year when Louisiana Republican officials announced they'd set their presidential delegate conventions for Feb. 6 — before Iowa's caucuses on Feb. 12 and New Hampshire's primary election.

The Iowa and New Hampshire competitions traditionally have opened the presidential selection season, gaining a lot of political attention and the money that's pumped into a local economy by large conventions.

Iowa Republican Chairperson Brian Kennedy has demanded that GOP candidates sign an agreement to ignore the Louisiana event, and only Louisiana.

Iowa legislators called a Statehouse news conference Tuesday to add their calls to the list of those who want Gramm to sign off Louisiana.

The lawmakers said they don't

"All the candidates have had an opportunity to sign the pledge. So everybody is united at this point in time except for one individual."

Iowa House Speaker Ron Corbett, on a pledge to ignore Louisiana's presidential conventions

Gramm has refused. Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole is the front-runner in Iowa and Gramm would have a better chance of having early success in Louisiana.

Gov. Terry Branstad said Monday that he's told state GOP leaders to do whatever it takes to maintain Iowa's political clout as the first presidential test. He even said the Iowa caucuses could be moved up to Jan. 22 to beat agree on which GOP candidate to support, but they agree Iowa's caucuses shouldn't be circumvented.

"We are united in keeping Iowa first in the nation. We've worked hard for this status and we want to keep it," said Sen. Joann Douglas, R-Adair, who supports Dole for president.

Rep. Janet Metcalf, R-Des Moines, supported Pennsylvania Sen. Arlen Specter's presidential campaign until he dropped out of the race.

She has since remained uncommitted.

"I'm here just representing Iowa and its unique status as first in the nation. And I want to defend that," she said.

Kennedy has given the candidates until Wednesday to sign the agreement.

Douglas said those who don't make the pledge will face the consequences.

"I believe that price will be paid at the time of the caucuses," she said. "I think any candidate who flakes off will pay the price."

Corbett, R-Cedar Rapids, sent a letter Tuesday to Secretary of State Paul Pate, asking him as commissioner of elections and a Gramm supporter to encourage the Texas senator to sign the pledge.

"You are in a unique position to help remedy this situation. ... I know that you are committed to maintaining secure and fair elections in Iowa," Corbett wrote.

Network powerhouses hope 'all news is good news'

Scott Williams
Associated Press

NEW YORK — ABC is joining the growing list of challengers to CNN, hoping the help of its local affiliates will give it a selling point that sets it apart from all-news ventures planned by NBC and Rupert Murdoch.

The network said Tuesday it will launch a 24-hour, all-news channel in early 1997, providing an alternative — rather than a competitor — to the pioneer in the field, CNN.

"We're going to try to take (24-hour news) to a different level," ABC News President Roone Arledge said at a news conference with Robert Iger, president of Capital Cities-ABC Inc.

Iger declined to discuss the cost of the new venture.

CNN, the pioneer in round-the-clock television news, reacted calmly.

"While we respect our colleagues at ABC, we are confident that our record of excellence, the ongoing improvements to our existing services and an exciting array of new services will enable us to compete successfully with their newly announced service," spokesperson Steve Haworth said. "The competition with them in 24-

spokesperson hour news will only make us better."

ABC's announcement came less than a week after Murdoch, whose British Sky Broadcasting has a 24-hour news channel, said he planned a "really objective news channel" to compete with CNN.

Turner said last week that he would squash Murdoch "like a bug."

"The difference in us and Rupert Murdoch is that we have a news organization," Arledge said. "He's got to develop a domestic news organization before he can start thinking of cable."

That advantage is shared by NBC, whose plan, announced in January, for a 24-hour, all-news channel "is still very much on track," said NBC spokesperson Beth Comstock.

ABC already is a major cable programmer, with its ESPN, Lifetime and A&E networks, but NBC also has established significant cable ventures, including its subsidiary CNBC and America's Talking networks.

NBC News is already an international player with the NBC Super Channel, primarily on cable, in 65 million homes in 44 countries from Iceland to Saudi Arabia.

ABC's service at first will not extend to overseas markets. "We will not really explore international opportunities until the domestic service is up and running and being successful," Iger said.

Iger said ABC News' resources would be combined with those of ABC-owned Worldwide Television News, an international news syndicator, and at the same time provide strong local news through its affiliates.

"We intend to involve our affiliated stations around the country, and our own television stations in providing a local news component for this 24-hour service," Iger said.

Distribution of the ABC service is "our biggest challenge," Iger said.

"The cable world is fairly crowded in terms of channel space and initially it's not going to be easy," he said.

Direct satellite outlets offer immediate distribution, but won't permit the integration of local news.

ABC is also hearing from telephone companies whose new technologies will let them deliver video service.

ABC News has produced TV's top-rated evening newscast, "World News Tonight"; the top-rated Sunday panel, "This Week with David Brinkley"; and Ted Koppel's "Nightline."

NO PLANS TO TALK

'Mum' is still the word on an O.J. interview

Associated Press

ATLANTA — O.J. Simpson met with a legal analyst from Cable News Network to discuss a no-holds-barred interview, but he and the network could not agree on the terms, a CNN spokesperson said Tuesday.

Steve Haworth confirmed that Simpson met with Greta Van Susteren for four hours on Saturday at Simpson's home in Los Angeles. He would not comment further except to say "there are no plans for further discussions at this time."

The Atlanta Journal-Constitution reported today that the interview would have been with Van Susteren and her fellow legal analyst, Roger Cossack.

"If Mr. Simpson does want to give someone an interview, I suspect that he would be the one to announce it," Van Susteren said today in an appearance on CNN. "I simply don't know who he is going to give an interview to and how it would be announced."

The newspaper also said Simpson told Van Susteren that he was planning a direct-to-market video about his life and the trial.

Simpson was acquitted Oct. 3 in the slayings of his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

He agreed to an interview with NBC a week after the verdict, but backed out the day of the interview on advice of his attorneys.

Fear creeps in as troops land in Bosnia

Mark Fritz
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — It's happening again. A big Western army is descending on a mortally wounded nation and into the middle of a fragile web of wary relief agencies.

As they did in Somalia, Rwanda and Haiti, humanitarian groups are bracing for the impact of the 60,000-member NATO force on the Bosnian landscape. To them, such armies rattle a double-edged sword.

Many expect the NATO force to change the dynamics of a very complex place — from fragile relationships forged with the combatants to the movement of refugees across the rugged, snowy landscape.

The biggest fear is that 80,000 Bosnian Serbs estimated to be living on the fringes of Sarajevo will flee en masse when those territories are turned over to the Muslim-Croat federation under terms of the Dayton peace pact.

The Red Cross is earmarking emergency aid to cope with the possibility that tens of thousands of Bosnian Serbs will trek across the brutally cold mountain passes ringing Sarajevo, said agency spokesperson Beat Schweizer.

Some relief workers fear privately that the Bosnian Serb leaders will use women and children to block the U.S.-led force from enforcing the accord in the suburbs, a tactic employed previously against U.N. peacekeepers.

There also are worries that a pocket of 55,000 Bosnian Muslims in the town of Goradze, a brutalized enclave surrounded by Serb territory, will flee to Sarajevo along a corridor to be opened under terms of the accord.

Associated Press

UNHCR workers unload an aid truck carrying flour at a U.N. warehouse in Sarajevo Nov. 1. As they did in Somalia, Rwanda and Haiti, humanitarian groups are bracing for the impact of the 60,000-member NATO force in Bosnia. While U.S. military planners are worrying how they will carry out a tricky intervention in a very complex nation, humanitarian agencies are trying to find a way to work around the massive military machine and focus on their primary goals.

Humanitarian agencies, which have had less access to Serb-held areas, are trying to expand their presence in those areas in advance of the troop deployment.

The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees is opening an office in the Serb suburb of Goradze this week purely to open dialogue. Catholic Relief Services has one worker, a Serb, in Ilidza, but spokesperson Gregory Roath said the worker is uncertain whether she will flee when NATO arrives.

So while attention is fixed on how U.S. military planners will carry out perhaps the trickiest intervention of the post-Cold War era, humanitarian agencies are trying to find a way to work around and with the massive military machine about to swoop down on the country.

What the relief groups want is access to the superior communications, logistics and intelligence capabilities of NATO, without the often disastrously muddled attempts at help that the present U.N. force provided.

SENATE GOP WHIP IN OPPOSITION

Terence Hunt
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With most Americans opposed to sending troops to Bosnia, President Clinton won important backing Tuesday from former Republican Presidents George Bush and Gerald Ford for the risky U.S. military mission.

But even as the White House welcomed the presidential endorsements, another key Republican, Senate GOP Whip Trent Lott, declared his opposition. He said the deployment was "a prescription for potential trouble."

The White House readily acknowledged that Americans are "very skeptical."

"They need to have a lot of questions answered," presidential spokesperson Mike McCurry said.

Trying to dispel doubts, Clinton said the 60,000-strong NATO force committed to enforcing the peace in Bosnia will create a climate of security after 3 1/2 years of war. "For peace to endure," Clinton said, "the people of Bosnia must receive the tangible benefits of peace."

The United States will contribute 20,000 troops to the NATO force.

From his home in Houston, Bush said he still has questions about the deployment but argued that the United States' credibility is at stake in going forward.

"If the president shifts direction now — or if it is seen that the president does not have the support of the Congress — our standing as leader of the free world and the standing of NATO would be dramatically diminished," Bush said. "That must not happen."

Ford made the same argument. "To undercut America's course of action at this juncture would do enormous damage to U.S. leadership in the eyes of the whole world," the former president wrote. "We would be seen as totally unreliable."

Former Democratic President Carter said in a CNN interview Monday that Clinton's decision to send troops to Bosnia was "the only thing he could have done. The Europeans were stalemated when the American troops were not there, when the United States was playing an equivocal role for two years."

On Capitol Hill, Lott, R-Miss., broke with Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole. "I just cannot justify in my mind putting U.S. troops on the ground in Bosnia," Lott said.

Dole and Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., worked on language for a Senate resolution backing the deployment.

It probably will come to a vote next week.

57 PERCENT OPPOSE DEPLOYMENT

Americans question U.S. role in Bosnia, poll finds

Howard Goldberg
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Doubts remain among a majority of Americans about whether stopping the war in Bosnia is very important to the United States and worth the risk of a military operation, according to an AP poll.

The poll found 57 percent oppose sending 20,000 U.S. troops to Bosnia, while 30 percent support the deployment announced by President Clinton on Nov. 27.

The poll was taken Nov. 29 to Dec. 3, while Clinton was rallying the troops in Europe and his top aides were trying to assure Congress that the president has a sound plan for the largest U.S. military operation in Europe since World War II.

About six in 10 Americans say they are following the situation — 21 percent say "very closely" and 37 percent "somewhat closely." These people are somewhat more supportive of the deployment than the least attentive respondents, who oppose it by a 3-to-1 ratio.

Two-thirds of Republicans are against the mission to Bosnia, but Clinton also has failed to win backing from Democrats in the poll, who oppose the mission by a narrow 46 percent to 42 percent.

Americans tend to rally 'round the flag when troops are sent into danger, and history shows a president can gain at least a temporary windfall in popularity.

But as Clinton makes his case for leading a NATO peacemaking effort in Bosnia he faces years of public skepticism about America's obligation. By 52 percent to 38 percent, Americans doubt the situation in Bosnia is very important to the interests of the United States.

Fifty-one percent think saving the lives of civilians in Bosnia is not worth putting U.S. soldiers at risk. Only 37 percent believe the risk is worthwhile.

The poll of 1,016 adults was taken by phone by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., part of AUS Consultants. Results have a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

The 52 percent who think Bosnia is not very important to U.S. interests are somewhat more likely to be young and male. In the 55-64 age bracket, a generation whose childhood was dominated by World War II, a plurality sees vital interests in Bosnia.

The more recent specter of a Vietnam-style involvement does not seem to be a major factor in the public's apprehensiveness.

A 55 percent to 35 percent majority thinks the United States is not heading for a drawn-out military involvement.

White House prepares balanced budget

Alan Fram
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In the first hint of movement at the budget talks, White House officials and Democratic congressional leaders said Tuesday they are preparing a seven-year budget-balancing plan that could be presented to Republicans later this week.

Democrats seemed divided over the size and timing of the proposal's tax cuts, the precise size of some spending cuts, and when it would be unveiled. They said its proposed savings in Medicare and Medicaid would be similar to reductions President Clinton proposed in a 10-year budget-balancing outline in June, but it probably would seek deeper reductions in many other domestic programs.

Whatever its final details, the package would represent a step forward at bipartisan budget negotiations in the Capitol. Those closed-door sessions began their second week Tuesday as bargainers met for more than an hour and once again reached no agreements.

"We probably won't like what they come up with," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., who said he spoke to Clinton by telephone Tuesday morning about the Democratic plan. "At least that's what he told me. But that's at least a start."

Republicans have insisted that bargaining cannot go very far until Democrats produce a detailed seven-year plan to eliminate the deficit. The GOP pushed its own seven-year package through Congress last month, containing deeper cuts and bigger tax reductions than Clinton prefers. The president is likely to veto it this week.

Democrats said they hoped their plan's presentation would force Republicans to reveal how they would protect Clinton's top priorities — Medicare, Medicaid, education and environment programs — from slashes he considers draconian.

"We're also hopeful at some point Republicans would be willing to put down an offer that responds to our concerns," White House chief of staff Leon Panetta told reporters.

One immediate point of contention was sure to be the economic projections on which the plan is being based. White House officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the measure was based on estimates by their own Office of Management and Budget. Its forecasts are more optimistic than those used by Congress and would require $475 billion less in savings to eliminate the deficit.

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said it would be "very hard to negotiate" if the White House package were based on its rosier economic projections.

"It's like negotiating two different things," Domenici told reporters as bargaining began. "Like a soccer field and a football field."

Panetta said he expected the package to be unveiled by the end of this week. But in a sign that Democrats are still making final decisions, Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said, "Don't count on it. We're not there yet."

In June, Clinton proposed cutting taxes by $110 billion over the next seven years.

Sen. James Exon of Nebraska, ranking Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee, said the administration wanted to keep that figure, but he said many lawmakers want the tax cuts eliminated, reduced or postponed for several years until the deficit is on its way down.

"Most of us feel there should be a dramatic reduction" in the tax cut, he said.

The Republican plan would trim taxes by $245 billion.

Exon also said the new White House plan "stuck fast" to its June proposal for $124 billion in reductions from projected spending for Medicare and $54 billion from Medicaid.

But he said, "The White House is going to have to agree to more cuts in Medicare and Medicaid than they have thus far to get an agreement."

Republicans have proposed savings of $270 billion from Medicare and $163 billion from Medicaid, and would reconfigure both programs dramatically.

The GOP savings, however, are measured differently than Clinton's, making a direct comparison difficult.

Multimillionaire Forbes' tax plan under attack

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Steve Forbes, the multimillionaire publisher running for president, would save at least $128,000 in yearly income taxes under the flat tax he advocates, a watchdog group estimated Tuesday.

Forbes, president and editor-in-chief of Forbes magazine, said last week that he had never calculated his potential savings under the 17 percent flat tax and considered the issue a diversion.

"Every individual comes out ahead under the flat tax," he said.

"What opponents say is that this is simply a way for Steve Forbes to enrich himself," Forbes said.

"I respond, I am going to do fine whether you change the tax code or not."

The Center for Public Integrity, a Washington, D.C., group that tracks campaign spending, said it was important for voters to understand how Forbes might benefit.

Christmas tree shines despite rocky year for Rockefeller Center

NEW YORK (AP) — After a bumpy year of bankruptcy and bidding wars, the folks in Rockefeller Center returned to a more traditional pursuit Tuesday evening: lighting their towering Christmas tree for the 63rd time.

A rousing cheer went up from the crowds packed into midtown Manhattan as models Naomi Campbell, Elle Macpherson, Claudia Schiffer and Christy Turlington flipped a switch to light the 75-foot high tree wired with more than 25,000 multicolored bulbs strung over five miles of electrical wire.

They were joined next to the center's ice-skating rink by a contingent of nuns from the Sisters of Christian Charity in Mendham, N.J., who allowed the 63-year-old Norway Spruce to be cut down at their convent last month.

"I like it because it has bright lights and a bright star," said 9-year-old Laquaya Jones, who came from Bridgeport, Conn., to watch the tree-lighting with her mother.

The evergreen made its debut under high-tech security prompted by last year's brush with tree terrorism.

Two drunks tried to set last year's tree on fire, so closed-circuit cameras, a hose and a metal fence were installed, along with extra guards to watch for copycats.

Open your eyes to this — Americans suffer from fatigue

NEW YORK (AP) — A new survey on sleep has eye-opening results: More and more Americans are having trouble getting a good night's rest.

Nearly half of all adult Americans have some trouble sleeping, up 13 percent from just four years ago, according to the Gallup survey. The increasingly frantic pace of life in the '90s, along with growing work pressures, are responsible, the folks at the non-profit National Sleep Foundation said Tuesday.

Tired Americans are unhappy Americans, said Dr. Allan Pack, a foundational medical director.

"Fatigue can impact all aspects of our lives, from our personal relationships to our ability to concentrate and perform daily tasks," Pack said. "Sleep loss can be deadly."

The survey found that one-third of the respondents said they had fallen asleep while driving. Of that group, 10 percent had a sleep-related accident. Forty-nine percent reported some sleeping difficulty, compared to 36 percent in a 1991 study.

Santa's been naughty: Robber posing as St. Nick rips off eatery

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — A Santa Claus outfit provided a disguise for an armed man to rob a truck stop restaurant of more than $5,000 in a "Season's Greetings" bag.

But the red suit and white beard did not make for a successful getaway.

The robber, who stole a taxi as he fled late Monday night, was chased by restaurant patrons and eventually captured by police. Frank Sidney Smith, a 35-year-old former employee of the restaurant, faced aggravated robbery charges Tuesday, detective Gene Sutton said.

Sutton said the man dressed as Santa told a cab driver to wait for him outside the Country Pride Restaurant. His costume elicited smiles from customers as he approached an office.

He pulled what appeared to be a handgun from his waistband and demanded money from the restaurant safe, Sutton said.

The employees began to take the man seriously when he pistol-whipped one of them, and they began filling a red gift sack with cash, Sutton said.

Police recovered the cash and a BB pistol believed to have been used in the robbery.

Tomato sauce reduces prostate cancer risk

Paul Recer

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Men who eat at least 10 servings a week of tomato-based foods are up to 45 percent less likely to develop prostate cancer, Harvard University researchers report.

A nine-year study of the dietary habits of 47,000 men found that pizza, spaghetti sauce and other foods rich in tomato substantially lowered the risk of prostate cancer. A report on the study will be published Thursday in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

Dr. Edward Giovannucci, a researcher at the Harvard School of Public Health, said that tomato-based products and strawberries were the only foods of 46 fruits and vegetables checked that seemed to have a protective effect against prostate cancer.

And the benefits of tomatoes came from several forms of the food: sauce, juice, raw and even when cooked into pizza.

"We found that more was better," said Giovannucci.

He said men who had 10 or more servings a week had a 45 percent reduction in the rate of prostate cancer, while those who ate only four to seven servings of the tomato-based food had a 20 percent reduction in the cancer.

Spaghetti sauce was the most common tomato-based food eaten by the men in the study group.

Giovannucci cautioned that the findings should not be interpreted to mean that men should load up on tomato products.

"These findings support the idea that people should eat a variety of fruits and vegetables," he said. Nutrients in other foods may be protective against other types of cancers, Giovannucci said.

The researcher said that tomatoes are rich in an anti-oxidant called lycopene.

In fact, tomatoes and tomato products accounted for almost 90 percent of the lycopene in the diet of the men studied.

Giovannucci said the study found that other nutrients, such as beta carotene and vitamin A, had no effect on the rate of prostate cancer.

However, he said, these nutrients may be protective against other types of cancers as some research has suggested.

The protective effects of tomatoes had been suggested in some earlier studies of prostate cancer rates.

Giovannucci said the research had found that prostate cancer was less common in southern Mediterranean countries, such as Italy and Greece, where tomato-based foods are a major part of the diet.

In the new study, Giovannucci said that cooked tomato products seemed to be more protective than either juice or raw tomatoes. It could be, he said, that when tomatoes are heated during cooking, the cells burst and release more lycopene.

The study is based on dietary survey taken of 47,000 males in the health professions between the ages of 40 and 75.

The first survey was taken in 1986 and the men were followed and periodically re-examined. At the end of the study, in 1992, there were 812 cases of prostate cancer among those in the study group. The researchers then compared the dietary history of those who developed prostate cancer with those who did not.

Former South Korean president indicted

Paul Alexander
Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — The scene has become all too familiar: A prosecutor takes to live television with an announcement that shakes public confidence in the country's most powerful people.

This time, it was expected, but no less shocking. Former President Roh Tae-woo, four aides and a dozen top businessmen were indicted Tuesday in a bribes-for-favors scandal.

The aftershocks began immediately with the No. 2 man in the ruling Democratic Liberal Party offering to resign — a move that was a virtual revolt against President Kim Young-sam and threatens to break apart the ruling party.

The potential defector, Kim Yoon-hwan, leads a strong regional faction and is a friend of both Roh and former President Chun Doo-hwan, who was jailed Sunday in an unrelated case.

After meeting with the president, Kim Yoon-hwan withdrew the offer, but it likely only delayed the split.

His followers reportedly have asked him to quit with them. One is expected to announce a break-away today, with others to follow suit.

To fill the gap, the ruling camp is reportedly inviting some opposition members to join it.

In the long run, it is unclear whether a shakeup would help or hurt the ruling party. After a debacle in local elections last June, it faces important parliamentary elections in April.

President Kim, a former opposition leader who in 1993 became the first civilian president in 32 years, has been trying to distance himself from his military-backed predecessors.

The threatened defection offers a chance to make a clean break — the party changes its name today to the New Korea Party — but the scandal threatens to envelop Kim Relatives of the victims of the 1980 Kwangju military massacres cry on a car of the lawyer who arrived at the Ahnyang Prison in suburban Seoul to meet former president Chun Doo-hwan Tuesday.

The relatives stopped the car to prevent the attorney from meeting Chun, who was arrested Sunday for his role in the 1979 coup and the 1980 military crackdown on a civil uprising for democracy.

as well.

When senior prosecutor Ahn Gang-min began his live announcement about Roh's indictment at 2 p.m., people crowded around televisions in offices and restaurants.

The announcement carries serious implications for the country's booming economy, since the list of indicted businessmen reads like a who's who of the corporate world, including heads of the Samsung and Daewoo conglomerates. They were not arrested but could face up to five years in jail.

Roh was arrested last month after admitting tearfully on live television that he amassed a $650 million slush fund during his 1988-93 term. He claimed the money came from donations.

A day later, Roh's former chief bodyguard, Lee Hyon-woo, was detained, charged with managing $230 million that the ex-president still had left in secret bank accounts.

Roh faces 10 years to life in prison if convicted of corruption, and prosecutors are seeking forfeiture of his estimated $350 million in assets — including the money left in the slush fund.

He said 35 businessmen were found to have given Roh bribes of up to $32 million, but legal action was taken against only 12 whose criminal activity was evident.

Ahn, who heads a 37-member investigative team, said the probe will continue to check whether Roh diverted any money to secret foreign bank accounts.

Mail-in election a success in Oregon

Brad Cain
Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — Even before the votes were counted Tuesday in the nation's first mail-in congressional election, officials declared a winner: the state.

Voter turnout was up and the state saved more than a million dollars by trading the ballot box for the mailbox in primary elections for the seat of Sen. Bob Packwood, the Republican who resigned in a sex scandal.

About 1.5 million ballots were sent out three weeks ago. By Monday night, 52 percent of the ballots had been returned to election officials. That compares with 43.3 percent of voters who took part in Oregon primaries last year.

Secretary of State Phil Keisling estimated the election will cost between $1.6 million and $1.8 million, about half the cost of having voters go to the polls.

"Oregonians are making vote-by-mail a success," said Keisling, who proposed mail-in ballots. "This reflects their commitment to elec-

Five major contenders were vying for Oregon's first open Senate seat in nearly 30 years.

On the Democratic side, Reps. Ron Wyden and Peter DeFazio waged a tough fight for their par-

The deadline for returning ballots was 8 p.m. PST Tuesday. Those who failed to mail their ballots on time could still deliver them by hand to dozens of county election drop-off sites throughout the state. The general election, also to be conducted by mail, is Jan. 30.

Man barks up the wrong tree when he aggravates police dog shepherd.

Johnny Mathis, 20, said he didn't mean to cause trouble on Saturday when the dog, Zedo, began barking and he barked back.

"I had finished barking. I had stopped barking, and the police still arrested me," Mathis said.

Police said Mathis and a friend started the incident by teasing Zedo with their barking.

After a police officer warned them that teasing the dog was illegal, Mathis continued barking, police Sgt. Steve Plympton said.

"A dog is a trained animal, a police tool," police chief Michael Chitwood said. "God forbid somebody does anything to agitate a dog."

"A dog can go through the window," Chitwood said.

"It could create a bad situation. Instead of being a taunter, the guy could quickly become a victim."

Mathis was taken to jail and held about an hour. He is scheduled to appear in court Dec. 29 on the misdemeanor charge.

KMART NOT INCLUDED

Report lists retailers not exploiting slave-labor

John McClain
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — While there could be big profits in selling sweatshop-made apparel, some retailers are trying to eradicate such work places, and they got a boost Tuesday when the government publicly identified them.

A consumer group is urging holiday shoppers to patronize these stores, but retail trade associations say the list excludes many companies that should have been mentioned, including some of the nation's largest and best-known retailers.

The Labor Department's Fair Labor Trendsetters list named 31 retailers actively working to ensure the clothing they sell is made in shops complying with federal wage and hour laws. The department said the list was a "work in progress" and other companies may be added.

The list included retailers from Abercrombie & Fitch to Victoria's Secret. Absent, however, were many major retailers, including J.C. Penney, Kmart, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck.

Many of the companies not included have signed the National Retail Federation's Statement of Principles committing them to "legal compliance and ethical business practices" in the apparel industry.

"We sincerely hope the Department of Labor will continue to pursue agreements and enforcement actions with manufacturers, the root of the problem, instead of using scarce resources on high-profile but ineffective (public relations) campaigns," said federation President Tracy Mullin.

Labor Secretary Robert Reich said the companies chosen are committed to labor law compliance and cooperate with law enforcement officials.

They also educate their suppliers about legal requirements and monitor working conditions.

"Some in the garment industry follow trends," Reich said. "Others go further and set them."

"These trendsetters take that critical extra step," he added, by making sure "that the sweat of exploited workers is not part of a garment's design."

The National Consumers League applauded Reich's list as useful to consumers in making purchasing decisions.

The league's contention was supported by a recent survey conducted for Marymount University in suburban Arlington, Va.

It found 69 percent of Americans are more likely to shop at stores on the list. And interviews with holiday shoppers seemed to confirm the poll.

Peggy Zapple of Washington, D.C., said she would use the list as a shopping guide.

"I don't want to see sweatshops proliferate," she said. "I don't want to support sweatshops."

Training foreign killers on our own soil

The United States trains killers. An academy of the U.S. Pentagon, the School of the Americas, is supposed to teach Latin American soldiers how to defend their native countries. But, instead, the school's tactics are being twisted and violence is targeted towards civilians in their home countries.

The school, established in 1946 in Fort Benning, Ga., teaches these Latin American soldiers commando tactics, military intelligence and psychological warfare — information meant to strengthen their central government. The army officers are trained with American dollars — $18.5 million a year.

However, both history and statistics show SOA has graduated some horrific killers.

In the U.N. Truth Commission Report, 47 of the 66 officers from El Salvador cited for war crimes are SOA graduates.

In 1981, the village of El Mozote in El Salvador was attacked by government soldiers and hundreds of civilians were brutally murdered. Of the 12 officers charged with the slayings, 10 were SOA graduates.

Panama's Manuel Noriega, a dictator convicted of drug trafficking, was an SOA student.

Americans have been killed as well. A Guatemalan army colonel has been linked to the killings of American Michael DeVine, and six Jesuit priests were assassinated in 1989. Of the 26 Salvadorian soldiers accused, 19 were SOA graduates.

EDITORIAL POINT OF VIEW

The School of the Americas needs to change its curriculum. The warfare tactics being taught to Latin American students are being used against civilians instead of for democracy.

The shocking list continues. General Raul Cedras was trained at the SOA — our government helped to oust him from Haiti last year. Roberto D'Aubisson, a Salvadorian death-squad leader, was a graduate of the SOA. In Peru, nine students and a professor were killed in 1992; six of the officers named were SOA graduates. Even some of the school's Latin American instructors have been implicated in civilian killings.

The United States is responsible for training these people to commit crimes.

But American protesters are few and far between — mostly because people don't know what's happening at the "School of the Assassins."

A Catholic priest, Father Roy Bourgeois, has criticized U.S. foreign policy in Central America for more than 15 years. After spending several years in Bolivia and El Salvador, Bourgeois began protesting in the United States. He and Iowan Vicky Imerman are tracking the number of killers who are SOA graduates and fighting to get the school closed. Their message is clear: If we are a nation that supports individual freedom, the United States should not support Latin American killers.

Americans, as a whole, brag of their democracy, abhor governmental killings and uphold freedom rights. Yet, our country directly supports civil wars in countries we appear to be helping.

The United States is kicking itself in the rear while turning to look at who's doing the kicking. The national deficit is a problem, yet the government continues to pour billions of dollars in the hands of foreign leaders who in turn kill their civilians. More than 59,000 foreign soldiers have been trained at the SOA.

The result is death.

It's clear that things need to be changed. Perhaps Latin American governments need help. But, the assistance the United States is giving cannot be considered positive if the information Latin American governments are learning is used against their country's citizens. The U.S. government needs to take some action, either by shutting down the school or reforming curriculum.

'The Boss' speaks softly for a forgotten underclass

Twenty years ago, singer Bruce Springsteen recorded his first hit album, Born to Run. While the bitter taste of Vietnam was still in our mouths, the highway was "jammed with broken heroes on a last-chance power drive." Twenty years later, that highway has been shut down. In Springsteen's new album, The Ghost of Tom Joad, he writes, "The highway is alive tonight, but nobody's kiddin' nobody about where it goes."

The Ghost of Tom Joad is one of the most important albums of our time. In an age where a person's dignity is buried under politicians' rhetoric, Springsteen provides some respect for the underclass of America. The album tells 12 "stories" about those who have been forgotten or spit upon by our government.

While Springsteen doesn't directly speak out against our government in his music, his stories of individual struggles and anguish provide a not-so-subtle plea to the politicians.

Leaders such as Malcolm X and Martin Luther King Jr. provided the strength for the civil rights movement, while the politicians of the time were surprisingly silent. Malcolm X talked of John F. Kennedy's hypocrisy and patronizing attitude in dealing with blacks at the time.

Perhaps a person more important in changing attitudes than Kennedy, was singer-songwriter Bob Dylan. Dylan's song "Blowin' in the Wind" was an anthem of sorts for the movement (at least for the whites involved).

Then there was author John Steinbeck and singer Woody Guthrie — two men who wrote about the underclass in the time period of the dust bowl.

Springsteen joins Dylan, Steinbeck and Guthrie as liberating political voices. In fact, Springsteen uses Steinbeck's style (and his character Tom Joad) to create his latest album.

Springsteen's importance originated when Ronald Reagan came into office in 1980. Of course, his music in the late '80s and early '90s dealt with a more introspective anguish. But the albums The River, Nebraska, Born in the U.S.A. and The Ghost of Tom Joad have become testaments to the brutality that the Reagan years inflicted on us and our children.

Springsteen's new album will not be a big seller. The album is stark and quiet. His trademark shouts have been replaced by an almost whispering style of singing. There are no pop hits on this album.

Springsteen did this on purpose. The bleak sound of the album ensures that it will not be misinterpreted. This is crucial when backing lyrics such as, "When I die I don't want no part of heaven, I would not do heaven's work well. I pray the devil comes and takes me to stand in the fiery furnaces of hell."

Springsteen's blockbuster album, Born in the U.S.A., dealt with some of the same themes as the Ghost of Tom Joad. The music arrangement, however, was too spirited to bring forth the message. The title song, which was about the way Vietnam veterans were disposed, was interpreted as a patriotic fighting song. All people were able to remember was the chorus. Even Springsteen's foe, Reagan, tried to connect his campaign with the singer's music. And it worked.

This time around, Springsteen isn't taking those same chances. The often forgotten underclass still lurks in this country's belly. Springsteen gives us a much needed reminder that they are still around.

In writing about individuals, Springsteen dances away from the politicians' habit of using general jargon to make their campaign promises. In The Ghost of Tom Joad, Springsteen writes about immigrants from Latin America, Midwestern factory workers, Vietnam veterans and ex-convicts. In the upcoming political campaigns, you will be able to count on one finger the number of times these individuals are mentioned.

Who should clean-up, taxpayers or corporations?

Watch your step, Iowans: Polluters are dumping in your backyard. In Fairfield, Charles City, Dubuque, Davenport, Ottumwa and many other Iowa communities, large amounts of toxic waste are piled.

Andy Barber appears alternate Wednesdays on the Viewpoints Page

Where did it come from? The DuPont plant left 4,300 tons of toxic waste, including lead, benzene and arsenic, near Clinton. Iowa Electric, Light and Power is responsible for coal, tar and ammonium liquor dumped in Fairfield, and Midwest Gas has its own Superfund site in Dubuque.

The John Deere Corporation has at least two toxic waste sites in Iowa, one in Ottumwa and the other in Dubuque. At the Deere Dubuque Works facility, 296 acres are polluted with solvents, used oils and coolants, lead, chromium and arsenic. Short-sited planners at Deere placed the toxic waste site near the confluence of the Little Maquoketa and Mis-

Without effective regulation, corporations will continue to pollute the environment. However, the careless dumping of toxic waste can be discouraged by an obvious and sensible solution: If pollution occurs, the polluter then pays for environmental repair. Superfund has the potential to reduce toxic waste in America by enforcing this basic principle of deterrence.

issippi rivers. Toxic heavy metals from the site now contaminate the underlying aquifer.

The Environmental Protection Agency says clean it up. Toxic waste disasters are the domain of the EPA's toxic waste site cleanup program, Superfund. Seventeen locations are identified in Iowa as national priorities. Superfund is obligated to intervene at these Iowa sites for public safety and the environment.

Superfund is notoriously expensive and controversial, however. The average cleanup cost per site is $60 million, and more money is spent on litigation than cleanup. Over 1,200 Superfund sites remain polluted across the United States. Thousands of other polluted areas are ignored because of funding and administrative problems.

Superfund's taxing authority expires in December. Congress is now challenged to reform the program to make toxic waste cleanup faster, fairer and more efficient.

In light of this goal, the GOP proposal to reform Superfund is remarkable: Make taxpayers pay for toxic waste cleanup, rather than the polluting companies responsible for the mess. Also part of the proposal is amnesty for corporate polluters dumping waste before 1987.

Another element of the GOP proposal is a moratorium on listing new and future toxic waste sites as national priorities. The reformed Superfund program would ignore toxic pollution which is not presently identified as a national priority. This means polluters would be free to dump in the future without liability for toxic waste causing cancer, birth defects and an estimated $9 billion annually in environmental destruction nationwide.

In a press appearance, EPA administrator Carol Browner said of the GOP proposal, "Any bill that abandons the 'polluter pays' principle will force American taxpayers to shoulder huge costs. ... Such proposals are a fix for wealthy special interests and corporate polluters." Which is why the Chemical Association of America and the insurance industry stand behind — or in front — of GOP proposals to reform Superfund.

Without effective regulation, corporations will continue to pollute the environment. However, the careless dumping of toxic waste can be discouraged by an obvious and sensible solution: If pollution occurs, the polluter then pays for environmental repair. Superfund has the potential to reduce toxic waste in America by enforcing this basic principle of deterrence.

The GOP proposal to reform Superfund encourages corporate dumping of toxic waste. If it is not vetoed by President Clinton, Superfund will tax the public, property value, human health and the environment. And what do we, the victims of toxic pollution, get for all this? Get your pooper-scoopers ready.

Students should decide who pays when education is downsized

As a sophomore at the UI, I find the issue of the new GER proposal to be a thinly-veiled attack on the quality of education at this university.

As Dean Limburgh emphasized in the forum, the main reason the UI wants to decrease the number of GERs is to cut the number of Teaching Assistants it employs. But class sizes are large and impersonal enough already. With the current proposal to "downsize" the number of instructors, they will inevitably become more crowded and more small discussion classes will also become lecture courses.

Students have the right to a personal education — one that does not include listening to an instructor talk for an hour from a third balcony seat. It is important for students to be able to get to know instructors and not to just be a number on a class list. As a student, I have certainly benefited from the interactive learning that takes place in a class of 25 students — learning that is always absent in my large lecture courses.

Undergraduates should have more freedom to choose what classes we take. But the current GER proposal is not the solution. Most likely, students would find their choices even more limited. With fewer instructors, there will be fewer courses to choose from. The UI faculty, staff and students need to fight for a proposal which will truly enhance the quality of education at the UI — one that would give students more of a say in their course selection, while still increasing the number of instructors.

GUEST OPINION POINT OF VIEW

UI students should unite and take on the Faculty Assembly GER policy on their own terms.

Finally, I would like to respond to an editorial writer's charge that undergraduates are apathetic about university issues.

The problem is not apathy. Students see things that they don't like — such as 17 consecutive years of tuition hikes — but feel the university really doesn't give a damn what they think. They feel it is hopeless to try to change things. If they want to have a say in university affairs, they are going to have to fight for it. But it can be done.

Students can attend forums and try to argue with the Faculty Assembly rationally, but it seems clear that they are going to force this GER proposal through regardless. The UI doesn't really want to hear what the student body has to say, but if enough students are organized we can make them listen. If the students take the lead on the GER proposal, then the UI will follow.

We can't continue arguing on their terms. The proposal affects students most of all. Yet, we essentially have no say in the decision process. We need to start organizing ourselves, and I think a good place to start is holding our own meeting on this subject. Everyone is invited to participate in an open discussion titled "Downsizing Education: Who will Pay?" at Macbride Auditorium on Wednesday, Dec. 6, at 7 p.m.

Mahogany is murder

To the Editor:

With the holiday season quickly approaching, please be aware of some of the more pricey items on your "To Buy" list may have severe consequences. Consider the mahogany toilet seat, always regarded as a royal throne. Because of their expense, mahogany products have long been symbols of good taste and a fat wallet. It now symbolizes murder — not a pleasant thought during such a joyous time.

Harvesting mahogany not only contributes to rainforest destruction, it is also the direct cause of death of many indigenous peoples. Seventy to 80 percent of all mahogany from Brazil, Bolivia and the Philippines is extracted illegally. As legally available mahogany trees are depleted, logging companies move into areas previously set aside for indigenous control and wildlife protection. These areas are homes to both humans and animals. Indigenous tribal members are, on occasion, killed by hired gunmen for peacefully attempting to defend their lands. Those not shot outright are often infected with diseases brought in by loggers and new colonists. The few remaining are displaced and left homeless without their forests.

Because mahogany is found sporadically in forests, not in stands, its extraction requires wide logging roads through remote primary rainforests. On the average, 1450 square meters of forest is cleared for every one mahogany tree cut. This translates to the destruction of 28 trees of various species for every mahogany tree. According to the Brazilian Institute of Environment and Renewable Natural Resources and the Brazilian Botanical Society, the mahogany tree is in great danger of extinction due to heavy logging and exports. The annual rate of destruction is approximately 500,000 cubic meters, 137,733 mahogany trees. Half of all mahogany exports are to the United States, used for lumber, furniture, paneling, door and window frames, coffins and expensive gifts.

This season, do your buying with a clear conscience and boycott all mahogany wood products. If you must buy wood, buy domestic; it looks just as nice in the home or office. Please save the mahogany for the rainforest and the people and animals who live there. Don't forget to tell that person on your gift list you have the impeccably good taste to not choose mahogany items. You will be saving over a dozen trees, perhaps even a life.

Students important in upcoming election

To the Editor:

On Nov. 11, five UI students from Iowa Israel Public Affairs Committee (IIPAC) joined more than 260 students from all over the Midwest at Northwestern University. The goal of the conference was to educate and train students about the benefits of foreign aid and the agenda of the American Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC) in promoting a strong U.S./Israel relationship.

The conference started with a memorial service for Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin. Students listened to Rabin's last words, which were contained in the speech he gave at the peace rally where he was assassinated. The service also included a video of Rabin's speech to Congress, shared poetry and the singing of the Israeli national anthem. Other events were speeches from various people including Congressman Gerry Weller of Ill., former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, David Wilhelm and Israeli Consul General Arthur Avnon.

Students also attended workshops dealing with the political scene in the United States and Israel, learning about what the future might bring to the Middle East and tips on how to get involved with campaigns. The conference left those who attended with a good feeling about the future of Israel, the peace process and the U.S./Israel relationship. UI junior Adam Fox had this to say as we left the conference, "I am proud to be an American."

One of the most important messages delivered was by David Wilhelm. The message was that we as college students are important to the election process. He told us that when we mobilize we can change the outcome of an election, and we should make ourselves heard. With the upcoming election nearing, we must mobilize and make a difference!

Students may not know what they need

To the Editor:

I would like to react to the Nov. 30 article about the GER reform. The article said, "The UI's two-year foreign language requirement was the issue primarily under fire."

Critical comments about the need to learn a foreign language ignore the realities of the world today and of the future. For example, two articles in the Nov. 30 Wall Street Journal discuss the international context of several major U.S. industries — health and snack foods.

Regarding the health industry, the article concludes: "Asians, Hispanics and other fast-growing ethnic minorities are a hot new market for HMOs. ... To make HMOs easier for some minorities to navigate, managed-care firms are hiring bilingual support staff."

Regarding PepsiCo, "The company's international snack-food division is expected to announce today a series of marketing and operations moves designed to create one of the largest global foods brands and secure the company's lead in the $17 billion global snack foods market."

Will UI students who don't want to study foreign languages or learn about other cultures be prepared for the future in these industries?

Should we be listening to what students want regarding the GERs or rather should we all be trying to decide what they need?

BUY A POLITICIAN

"If the futures market in Chicago did as bad a job predicting the winter corn market (as polls predict elections), those markets would go out of business," Nelson said.

Investors can "buy" a politician by filling out an application, sending a check and trading on the Internet.

Nelson said President Clinton is in a virtual tie with the future Republican nominee. Both are trading at 44 cents a share. A potential third-party candidate is trading at 8 cents.

Dole is leading the pack in the GOP market. While Dole "stock" is selling for 65 cents a share, Texas Sen. Phil Gramm's shares can be purchased for 11 cents.

If you're looking for a longshot, you can buy Lamar Alexander shares for 9 cents or Pat Buchanan shares for 5 cents.

On the presidential market, return on investment is based on the percentage of the vote candidates actually receive in the election. At current rates, if an investor buys $44 in Clinton stock and Clinton receives 50 percent of the vote in the presidential election, the investor will receive a $6 profit.

Investments on the GOP market are more risky, but the payoffs can be higher. If an investor buys $65 in Dole stock and Dole receives the Republican nomination, the investor will receive $100.

Forsythe said the political market has generated national attention for the UI.

"We're the only university in the world that runs its own real money futures market," he said. "We're going to be carried regularly on Inside Politics (on CNN)."

In 1992, the IEM received coverage by virtually all the major American newspapers, Nelson said.

"We think it deserves the same attention as opinion polls," he said.

Political junkies are encouraged to check out the IEM web site, Professor Joyce Berg said.

Up-to-date market prices for politicians can be found at <http://www.biz.uiowa.edu/iem>.

COFFEE SIGN

to do that," she said.

Then, Tulchin was cited with a violation from the city when it learned that her sign didn't actually measure the temperature — it only showed it.

Tulchin said she calculates the average daily temperature for the week and sets the sign each Sunday.

"If there is a huge drop or warming trend, we can get right up there and change it with no problem," she said.

The code was read incorrectly by a city staff member, Tulchin said.

"The code was misstated to force me to comply," she said.

The confusion over the rules for signs has led to consideration of the issue on the part of the Iowa City Council.

A new ordinance discussed at the Dec. 4 work session would allow identification signs that show the time and temperature digitally on 40 percent of their faces and a simple identification of the name or a symbol of the business.

Dick Gibson, member of the Iowa City Planning and Zoning commission, said the previous ordinance was designed "to control the presence of signs in the downtown area for aesthetic reasons."

"Somebody found a loophole in the ordinance," he said. "We tried to close that loophole."

The time/temperature exception to the projecting sign rule is not a loophole, said Doug Boothroy, head of the Department of Inspection.

"I'm speculating that time and temperature might have some use as public information," he said. "That may be why it was permitted."

Tulchin said she designed the sign to go with the 1870s look of the building.

"I put my heart and soul into that thing. It's a cool sign."

After the long road to the hanging of the sign, Tulchin said it will be staying.

"My sign is never coming down," Tulchin said. "I'm not hurting anybody."

COLLEGE OF ASSASSINS

as: Teaching 'Democratic Reform' One bullet at a time."

The forum was sponsored by the Central America Solidarity Committee and the Unitarian Universalist Society.

An 18 minute film was presented at the forum, listing SOA graduates who have committed human rights violations. Violators include 100 SOA graduates cited for war crimes in Columbia in 1992, and three high-ranking officers convicted of murdering nine university students and a professor in Peru. In addition, the SOA alumni list includes ex-Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega and ex-Bolivian President Hugo Banzer Suarez.

Bourgeois, who has spent three years in prison due to his involvement in numerous non-violent protests at the SOA, said the SOA is training military officers in the U.S., many of whom go back to their country and use what they learn to stifle democracy instead of support it.

"This is a death machine," he said. "This is too close to home because it's in our backyard and it's being financed through our tax money."

However, Maj. Gordon Martel, SOA public affairs officer, said Tuesday from his office in Georgia that Imerman and Bourgeois' message is false propaganda that should be discredited. The 290 SOA graduates the group cites with human rights violations is only 0.5 percent of the total 59,000 officers who have graduated from the military school, he said.

"That's a minuscule amount of people," he said. "The vast majority of SOA graduates go on to serve their countries honorably and faithfully."

In addition, Martel said the SOA does not teach its soldiers to torture and kill. The school, he said, teaches basic infantry and is no different than military training schools for Americans.

Martel said the time spent at the SOA, which can range from three weeks to a year, cannot overturn a lifetime of training, and thus shouldn't be responsible for the human rights abuses committed by the 290 SOA graduates.

Only $4.2 million a year is spent on the SOA, not the $18.4 million Imerman and Bourgeois claim, Martel said. Latin America receives the less money for military training than any other area of the world, he said.

WORLD WIDE WEB

Real-time video/audio reception requires a video camera hooked up to your computer and CuSeeMe software. This software allows two-way video/audio between you and the virtual dorm student and is available for downloading to your personal computer or Mac computer.

Abby — that's her real name — a sophomore in early-childhood education and public policy, said the cameras have not really changed her or her roommate's behavior.

"The first couple of days we did (act differently) but since then we've remained the same," she said. "Every once in a while we're more goofy and joke around more, but mostly we've remained the same."

"At first, it became a social thing, a centerpiece of our house. Our friends would come over and talk to people on line," she said. "Now the novelty has worn off. It's not such a humongous part of our lives. It's not like we're sitting in front of the computer all day."

Abby and her roommates, who are compensated with a small stipend, don't have a lot of parties.

"We have friends over but don't have keggers or anything," she said.

Abby admits that at times the Virtual Dorm is "not all it's cracked up to be. Sometimes it's an unedited 'Real World,'" she said.

Abby said the Virtual Dorm is more interesting when the real-time audio/video is utilized.

"When there are lurkers (people who watch them on the live audio/video) and we're all around in the house, we talk to them and it can be fun," she said.

"The camera is on 24 hours a day, but (the students) can avert the camera if they are getting dressed or need a moment of privacy," Thibault said.

Abby said when she goes to bed or when she is undressed she turns the camera toward the wall.

When the cameras were first introduced, "I was worried that I'd forget (to avert the camera) and it would be on my mind for the rest of my life that people saw me," she said.

She hasn't forgotten.

"It's the same as pulling a shade (on a window)," she said.

Voyeurs hoping to catch Abby doing the "wild thing" might be disappointed because she also averts the camera in this situation.

"If I were to have a significant other over, I would just do the same thing," she said. "You don't forget. And if you have someone over, they don't forget. So there's two people that won't forget."

The Internet is not yet regulated by the government, so there is no censorship of what goes on in the Virtual Dorm — even sex.

"There is no editing. That's part of the attraction of the site: the possibility of a vicarious thrill," Thibault said.

Thibault said they started looking for student volunteers in July. He said that criteria for selecting the students were:

- They were an existing group of students living together.

- Their school had access to a high-speed phone line which facilitated use of real-time motion video.

- They were a diverse group in their interests.

Thibault said the students were chosen in the hope that "a wide range of people would find one of them interesting."

Although the students have diverse interests, they are not ethnically diverse; they are all white.

The Virtual Dorm is part of a larger Web site, called T@P Online, which is similar to a college magazine and features sections on fashion, news, travel and extreme sports. Most of the articles are written by students, and the site is visited by more than one million users a week, Thibault said.

Simmons found that without the CuSeeMe software, she was not impressed by the Virtual Dorm and it was hard to understand. The still photos are supposed to change every 30 seconds but when she signed on, the photos did not change, she said.

Simmons said it would be more interesting to interact with the students.

"Any time that you read text, you don't get the benefit of voice and inflection," she said. "It wasn't interesting to me."

Simmons said she may have lost interest because of today's technology.

"We're getting spoiled — we want everything flashy and smooth," she said.

UI freshman Norman Ironside said Virtual Dorm is a cool idea.

"It was interesting that it wasn't like MTV's 'The Real World' because it wasn't watered down," he said. "On MTV, they cut out the parts they don't want you to see."

"But it's also a problem because if there's nothing going on, there's nothing to see," he said.

The Virtual Dorm attempts to mitigate this problem by having short movies with highlights of previous events. Ironside said this was more interesting than the live shots.

The web address of the Virtual Dorm is <http://www.taponline.com> not $10 from his wallet. After discovering the missing money, the victim said he went back to the cab and demanded Reed return his money. Reed allegedly hit the victim a second time.

Gordon said Reed admitted to taking the $10 for the fare but denied taking any more than that.

Reed was unable to be reached for comment Tuesday, and City & Yellow Cab officials refused to comment.

UI Department of Public Safety officials are looking for three other passengers who witnessed the incident. The three shared the cab with the alleged victim and were later dropped off at Burge Residence Hall, Gordon said.

Gordon urged the witnesses to call Public Safety with any information.

"We're asking for assistance from these three people," Gordon said. "If we had their input, we could get this incident wrapped up."

Simone Eberly, a dispatcher for Old Capitol Cab, 822 Gilbert Court, said if a customer does not pay his or her fare, their company's drivers are instructed to call the dispatcher.

"We then call the police department and usually the money appears magically when they find out we've called the police," she said.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

OSU's George wins Doak Walker Award

IRVING, Texas (AP) — When Ohio State's Eddie George was nominated for last year's Doak Walker Award given to the nation's top collegiate running back, he learned a little about the prize and the man it is named after.

George never thought he had a shot of winning and pretty much forgot about it. He hardly gave it a thought during a grueling off-season dedicated to making himself a faster, better runner.

Then, when the 100-yard games and highlight-film runs started piling up, George got a quick reminder of the trophy.

"In the middle of the season, my linemen teased me by calling me Doak Walker. I guess I knew then I had a shot at winning," he said after earning the honor.

George, a senior, led Ohio State to an 11-1 record and a No. 4 ranking with 1,826 yards and 24 touchdowns, all but one rushing. He led the nation in scoring, was fourth with 2,225 all-purpose yards and fifth in rushing.

He was consistent, with 100 yards in every game and more than 200 yards three times, including a school-record 314 yards against Illinois.

Those numbers combined with hard work in the classroom, volunteer work at a cancer hospital and time spent talking with children all went into the equation.

Phillips receives one year of probation

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska running back Lawrence Phillips was sentenced to one year of probation Tuesday, 11 weeks after he beat a former girlfriend and was suspended from the team. He will be available for the Fiesta Bowl.

Phillips also was ordered by Lancaster County Judge Jack Lindner to attend a domestic violence prevention class and pay $359 in restitution.

He still is barred from contact with Nebraska basketball player Kate McEwen, whom he attacked Sept. 10.

Phillips, accompanied by attorney Hal Anderson, declined to comment after the sentencing and later at the school's athletic offices.

NBA

Referees return by one vote

NEW YORK (AP) — After being locked out for more than two months, the NBA's regular referees may be officiating games as early as Monday.

The new labor agreement is expected to be signed Wednesday, with a precise date set for their return.

In the meantime, the referees will be undergoing physicals and a brief refresher course on rules.

By a 27-26 vote the referees on Monday voted to accept a contract offer from the league that was less lucrative than what they wanted.

Pesky Panthers surprise

No. 12 Hawks struggle against intrastate rival

David Schwartz
The Daily Iowan

CEDAR FALLS — For 40 minutes Tuesday night, Northern Iowa forgot it was playing the No. 12 team in the nation.

A pesky Panther squad scrapped its way through Hawkeyes 78 the UNI-Dome, forcing the Panthers 73 Hawkeyes, considerable favorites coming in, into a dogfight.

Despite outrebounding UNI 52-25, Iowa defeated the Panthers just 78-73, raising its record to 6-1.

For a brief moment it almost looked like the Panthers would close the final gap to less than five as they tore off an 8-0 run in the last 18 seconds. UNI's leading scorer with 23 points, Jason Daisy, knocked down a three to start the run.

A Daisy steal and field goal made it 78-70. On the ensuing inbound pass, Iowa's Chris Kingsbury traveled and Panther guard Brian Carpenter capitalized by draining another three, the final points of the game.

UNI coach Eldon Miller noted Iowa's domination of the boards as the key to this game.

"The backboard was the primary difference of this game," Miller said. "That's what makes (Iowa) so dominant."

"Rebounding is the most important thing that happens on the floor besides the final score."

When Miller heard the final rebounding totals, he had this to say:

"That's scary. That's really scary folks."

Three Hawkeyes finished the game in double figures for rebounds.

Forward Jess Settles, playing in what Iowa coach Tom Davis called the junior's "best game of the year so far," led the way with 15 rebounds. He also led the Hawkeyes with 20 points.

Sophomore Ryan Bowen pulled down 11 boards while scoring 12 points, and senior Russ Millard, plagued by foul trouble, hauled down 10 in just 20 minutes of play.

"It was the same thing in Alaska," Davis said. "When Russ gets into foul trouble, he doesn't play as well."

BACK ATOP THE NBA

Jordan lights fire under hot Bulls

Mike Nadel

DEERFIELD, Ill. — Dennis Rodman was supposed to bring toughness and rebounding to the Chicago Bulls. He hasn't, but it hasn't mattered.

Even without the injured Rodman and even with the team not playing particularly well during a seven-game road trip, the Bulls have put together the NBA's best record, 13-2.

The catalyst has been — who else? — Michael Jordan.

"There are some nights when my offensive output has really given the team a lift," Jordan said Tuesday, the day before the Bulls' first home game in almost three weeks.

"But that's the purpose of a team, isn't it? On days when some people don't produce, others have to step up. I would not say I was winning those games by myself."

There's stepping up and then there's stepping up.

Jordan, well on the way to his eighth NBA scoring title, averaged 33 points during the 6-1 road swing. The trip's highlight was at Vancouver against the expansion Grizzlies, when Jordan scored 19 points in the final 6 minutes to turn an eight-point deficit into a pull-away victory.

It was vintage Michael Jordan, who saved the Bulls on many occasions during the 1991, 1992 and 1993 championship runs. He has been much more consistently spectacular than he was last season, when he often looked rusty after ending his 17-month retirement.

"Save the team? I don't know about that," Jordan said. "Just to be able to give the team a lift ... it's fun to know I can still do that. But the ideal situation is not to have those situations

NFL'S TOP RECEIVER

Lions get Moore for their money

Harry Atkins

PONTIAC, Mich. — Conversations about the NFL's greatest receivers used to be little more than chats. There was Jerry Rice, and there was Michael Irvin. That was about it.

Not any more. Anyone who tuned in Detroit's last two games, both on national television, would agree Herman Moore must be added to the equation.

"If you talk about Rice and Irvin now, you're talking about Herman Moore," Lions coach Wayne Fontes said Tuesday. "And right behind Herman is Brett Perriman."

The numbers bear him out.

INSIDE THE RED ZONE

Packers have been executing flawlessly

Arnie Stapleton

GREEN BAY, Wis. — When coach Mike Holmgren told Brett Favre to kneel twice on the Cincinnati 5 to run out the clock in Green Bay's 24-10 victory Sunday, he ended a phenomenal streak of success inside the 20.

For five weeks, the Packers had been flawless inside the 20-yard line, scoring 17 straight times, including 16 touchdowns.

Favre's game-ending kneel broke a streak of eight straight possessions in the "red zone" that resulted in touchdowns.

Holmgren said he would have tried to score if the Packers were playing a division opponent, but he didn't see any reason to do it against the Bengals.

"I mean, here we've played 60 minutes of hard football. David

BAD NEWS, BEARS

Broken leg ko's Green

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Robert Green, the Chicago Bears' second-leading rusher, broke his left leg during the 27-7 loss to the Detroit Lions and will be out for the season.

Bears spokesman Bryan Harlan said Green broke his fibula, the outer leg bone, while covering the kickoff right after scoring Chicago's only touchdown on an 11-yard run in the third quarter Monday.

Green has been used as a third-down back in place of starter Rashaan Salaam but has outplayed the rookie in recent games. He gained a team-leading 63 yards on eight carries against Detroit, while Salaam had 3 yards on seven carries.

Lewis Tillman, the team's rushing leader last season who has seen little action this year, will replace Green.

BYE BYE BROWNS

Modell is to blame for team's plummet

You can't take the heart out of anything and expect it to live.

The Cleveland Browns have no heart. It was ripped out, excuse me, taken by Browns owner Art Modell when Modell announced that he was moving the team to Baltimore. Now it seems the Browns have no reason to play the rest of their games on the schedule.

Cleveland has lost five games in a row and has played without the passion or excitement you'd expect to see when you turn on the T.V. Sunday to watch pro football.

I can't say I blame the players. Can you imagine playing the rest of the year knowing that if you somehow made the playoffs or even won the Super Bowl, what next year would be like? I could see it now. Chris Berman introducing the defending world champion Baltimore Browns before next year's season opener. Yeah, right.

Browns players have nothing to shoot for. Most of the players seemed to have gotten over the shock, but that team will never be the same. Some of these players have to pick up their lives and move. Their families and friends will change. A solid foundation of home and family ripped away by the winds of greed. Sure glad you thought of your players and employees Art.

What about the fans of Cleveland? The dog pound may not have been the classiest bunch of fans.

Shula, I see these guys in the off-season and I respect him," Holmgren said. "I respect what he's done with his team. And the game was over, I mean, the game was over. If I had run a play and Edger Bennett gets hurt? There was no reason to do that."

It would have been another story against a division opponent or even an NFC team because of the play-off tiebreakers involving total points, Holmgren said.

"Then that would have been different. I would have probably tried to score again," he said. "But if it doesn't mean anything, why? That was not a difficult decision for me."

After safety George Teague returned an interception 74 yards to the Cincinnati 4 with a minute left, Holmgren asked new backup

State Saturday. Davis said he always expects tough games from intrastate rivals.

"I think you saw what in-state games are all about," Davis said. "I don't think (tonight) was a fluke. UNI is a good ball club."

Davis said it was just a matter of Jordan never needed that kind of, um, exposure to prove his uniqueness.

During the road trip, Jordan delivered plenty of excitement to sold-out arenas. He also delivered victories on the court. And even though he repeatedly had to bail out the Bulls, Jordan didn't echo his teammates' concern about the level of Chicago's play.

"We were 6-1 for a reason — we found ways to win," he said. "There are no perfect ways to win. Even some of the championship teams I was on, we won ugly. We won because we scrapped and found a way."

He topped that Sunday against the Bengals, when he seared an 8-yard TD to Mark Ingram through the arms of linebacker Andre Collins and safeties Darryl Williams and Bracey Walker.

The ball arrived with such velocity that Ingram said his arms went up in reflex. Cornerback Corey Sawyer told him they didn't see how he could have held on to such a sizzling pass.

"He threw it hard. There was a window about like this," Holmgren said, holding his hands about 12 inches apart. "It was a remarkable throw and maybe even a more remarkable catch."

FREE AGENT SIGNINGS

Boggs stays, Molitor moves on

Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Paul Molitor returned to his roots, signing with the Minnesota Twins on Tuesday, while Wade Boggs went back to the New York Yankees, clearing the way for the Tino Martinez trade.

Molitor

On the first busy day of the free agent signing season, Molitor agreed to a $2 million, one-year contract with Minnesota. The 39-year-old designated hitter has the option of staying with the Twins in 1997 at a $2 million salary.

"Every night when I lay down, I kept saying 'Minnesota,'" said Molitor, a St. Paul, Minn., native who completed an $11 million three-year deal with Toronto.

Boggs, 37, gets about $4 million over two years for returning to the Yankees, who have an option for 1998.

"In Wade Boggs, we're assured of penciling in our lineup a future Hal of Famer and a perennial .300 hitter," Yankees general manager Bob Watson said. "Wade is obviously an important piece to our 1996 puzzle."

With the Boggs signing complete, the Yankees seem set to announce a deal that sends Martinez from Seattle to New York for third baseman Russ Davis and pitcher Sterling Hitchcock. Watson also planned to meet Wednesday with free agent pitcher David Cone and his agent, Steve Fehr.

Craig Biggio, one of the top free agents this offseason, narrowed his list of teams slightly Tuesday by dropping the Mets.

"I think they figured he was too rich for their blood," said Biggio's agent, Barry Axelrod.

Colorado, Houston, St. Louis and San Diego remain interested in Biggio, who rejected a $20 million, four-year offer from the Astros.

Mark Grace, another Axelrod client, remains interested in Cleveland, St. Louis and the Chicago Cubs.

The Florida Marlins, who traded outfielder Chuck Carr on Monday, agreed Tuesday to a $1,275,000, two-year contract with outfielder Joe Orsulak. He was coming off a $1.7 million, two-year contract with the New York Mets and gets $625,000 in 1996 and $650,000 in 1997.

Third baseman Tim Wallach, not wanted back by the Los Angeles Dodgers, agreed to a minor-league contract with the California Angels.

Wallach, 38, made $1.5 million last season. If he makes the Angels roster, he would earn $400,000 and have the chance to make $100,000 more if he has 225 plate appearances. If cut before opening day, Wallach gets $50,000.

Free agent signings figure to pick up this week. Many clubs will be interested in signing players after Thursday, when those free agents not offered salary arbitration will be available without draft-pick compensation.

College's best big men collide

Jim O'Connell

AMHERST, Mass. — Outstanding matchups have been almost commonplace this season, with highly ranked teams facing each other a number of times. And there's still 18 shopping days until Christmas.

There was already a confrontation of point guards when Georgetown sophomore Allen Iverson went against Georgia Tech freshman Stephon Marbury the day before Thanksgiving. On Wednesday night, there will be a rarity when Tim Duncan and Marcus Camby go at it in the low post in a clash of college basketball's two best centers. By the way, the game is No. 10 Wake Forest vs. No. 3 Massachusetts.

"It should be a great game and a great atmosphere," said the 6-foot-10 Duncan, a native of the Virgin Islands who many felt would have been the NBA's No. 1 pick had he left Wake Forest after his sophomore season. "These are the types of games that players enjoy being a part of."

Camby, an inch taller but 15 pounds lighter than the 230-pound Duncan, stayed closer to home, leaving Hartford, Conn. for Massachusetts. Projected as a forward when he moves to the NBA — which he also considered in the offseason — Camby is still a devastating defensive force with 103 blocks as a sophomore and his offensive improvement has been impressive in the early season.

"Tim has a variety of good low post moves where I like to run the floor and beat my man for easy baskets, play on the perimeter more, be more of a slasher," Camby said. "This game has been hyped since the beginning of the season. I want to play, play my hardest and get it over with. After it, I'm not going to look at how I did and how Tim played. We just want to hit our stride around tournament time."

The NCAA tournament is three months away and all eyes right now are on this game. The last true center matchup like this was Patrick Ewing of Georgetown and Hakeem Olajuwon of Houston in the 1984 NCAA title game. The last regular-season center confrontation of this magnitude was Dec. 11, 1982, when Ewing and Virginia's Ralph Sampson met at the Capital Centre.

Wake Forest coach Dave Odom was an assistant to Virginia coach Terry Holland then.

"I would say it is extremely unfair to both Tim and Marcus to compare them as players to Ralph and Patrick and I resist that at all costs," Odom said. "I would suggest that this is a similar event in that it is a game put together by television and put together because two teams have at this time the best-known big men in the country. Notice I didn't say best because they haven't proven to be the best yet. But I would say this is the most similar since that time."

The Ewing-Sampson matchup, won by Virginia 68-63 with Sampson getting 23 points and 16 rebounds to Ewing's 16 and eight, was syndicated nationally and drew tremendous ratings. Duncan-Camby will be on ESPN and has been the talk of the early season schedule.

"ESPN called and suggested the game," Massachusetts coach John Calipari said when asked how the intersectional matchup came about. "I said if Marcus stays, yes. If Marcus leaves, no."

Camby stayed and that's why we'll see the game and why the Minutemen (3-0) are ranked third. He matched his career-high with 32 points in the opening win over Kentucky, Massachusetts' third straight year beating a No. 1 team in November. He came up big down the stretch in a defensive battle with then-No. 19 Maryland and had 30 points against Florida to win MVP honors in the Franklin National Bank Classic.

"I worked on my game this summer and the team looks up to me for big baskets," said Camby, who has been most impressive with his drop step move and turnaround jumper. "Seeing how things have happened so fast and that there are still 30 games left, I have been impressed with myself so far."

While Massachusetts has played a tough early schedule, Wake Forest (3-0) has beaten Mount St. Mary's, Oklahoma State and Lehigh. Duncan has dominated in all three, looking most impressive against the best of the three, Oklahoma State, while the Demon Deacons try and find a way to replace star guard Randolph Childress.

"They play with a little more speed, quickness and a little more verve than we do, especially at this time of the year," Odom said. "It's more likely that UMass could win and Camby have a bad game than Duncan could and Wake Forest wins. I think that's fair, maybe it's not. I don't think this game will be viewed by Tim Duncan as an end unto itself. He is hoping to improve against one of the best players and best teams in the country on their homecourt. Those are reasons to play well. Those will get your motor started."

Al Davis' 'cancer' keeps on trucking

Craig Horst
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY — Most of all, Marcus Allen enjoyed the AFC West title he won on his first trip to Oakland.

His coy smile, however, reflected his feeling about his other accomplishments against the team that drafted him. Particularly because they came in front of Al Davis, who sent him packing three years ago after calling him "a cancer."

"It is very satisfying," said Allen, who became the first player in history to rush for 10,000 yards while catching passes for 5,000 more as the Chiefs clinched the AFC West Sunday by beating the Raiders.

"But I don't care about personal marks. I care about winning. I care about the Kansas City Chiefs winning. That transcends personal goals. Records are made to be broken. They are not indelible."

Allen gained 124 yards in the Chiefs' 29-23 victory over Oakland and caught passes for 33 more. He has rushed for 10,723 yards and has 5,004 yards receiving in his career.

Allen always seems to produce

Kansas City Chiefs' Marcus Allen forces his way past Oakland Raiders safety Eddie Anderson to the one-yard line Sunday.

against his old team. Last year, he helped the Chiefs clinch a playoff spot by rushing for 132 yards on 33 carries on Christmas Eve.

He holds several Raiders records but fell into Davis' doghouse and languished on the bench before his contract ran out, agent.

Allen remembers fumbling to lose a game and feeling terrible as he went into the locker room. He remembers Davis coming up to him, screaming an obscenity at him and yelling, "I should have traded you."

"The nerve of someone to come up and say something like that," said Allen, a proud man with a well-earned reputation as a man to go to when tough yards are needed.

The result: He says he will go into the Hall of Fame as a Chief rather than a Raider.

"Most people will remember me as a Raider. I'm just thankful for the opportunity the Chiefs gave me when really no other team felt I could play after the age of 33," he says.

Allen's contract is up at the end of the year, and he says he has talked with the Chiefs about an extension and playing one more year.

It probably will be the last year fans can watch his nimble footwork as he buys time to let his great field vision find an opening.

"You have to exhaust your opportunity, and play as long as you can," he said. "Once you are gone, you are gone. I want to exhaust it, get it out of the way and go on to something else. I don't want to wake up in the middle of the night and say, 'Damn, I could still have played.'"

MAYBE, MAYBE NOT

Haley out for season, retirement is possible

Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — Charles Haley, the Dallas Cowboys' star defensive end, unruffled again Tuesday, then returned to California for back surgery.

"My career might be over this year, but I'm looking forward to next year and getting back into the grind again," Haley said before leaving. "I hope I can possibly play this year, but if not, then maybe I'll have an opportunity next year."

Haley had told The Dallas Morning News on Monday he was retiring. It was the fourth time in his career Haley had announced his retirement. Right on form, he recanted again.

"I'll probably have surgery tomorrow (today) and try to make an effort to come back and play this season if I can make the playoffs," said Haley, who has a herniated disk.

Coach Barry Switzer said there was no way Haley could bounce back from surgery this season.

"The season is over for Charles and we'll see what happens about next year," Switzer said. "He could still be a good third-down player for next year if he decides to come back and play. But it's over for him this year. His MRI says he can't play."

The Cowboys moved Leon Lett from tackle to defensive end.

'Prince' lands at Riverside

Tiffany Haldeman
The Daily Iowan

After hopping planets in search of answers to questions on life, "The Little Prince" has finally landed in Iowa City.

More specifically, he has landed at the Riverside Theatre Company, 213 N. Gilbert St., but he won't be staying long. The theater is again showing its musical based on the classic story by Antoine de Saint-Exupéry Dec. 8-10 and Dec. 14-17, and then the little guy will be moving on.

"The Little Prince" has long been a favorite; it is a tale of courage and loyalty and of pride and friendship. According to the musical's director and one of the founders of the Riverside Theatre Company, Ron Clark, it is precisely these themes which have made the story so adaptable to the stage.

"These are issues dealt with well in the theater," Clark said. "I've wanted to do the play for a long time. When I heard about this version, I had to have it."

The Aviator (Aaron Cain) and The Little Prince (Ruth Bergman) star in "The Little Prince," playing this weekend at Riverside Theatre.

cherishing sunsets, even the smallest children in the audience watched quietly.

One of the most unique aspects of the musical's set is the large screen at the back of the stage. The screen shows backdrops, such as moving sunsets and star-filled skies, but primarily it is used to demonstrate the drawings of the aviator. The show's projection artist, Jeremy Smith, sits behind the stage each night and does the sketching, among many other things.

"The audience needs to see what the aviator is drawing in order to buy into the ideas of the Little Prince," Clark said. "I have seen productions where this isn't done, and I don't think it's as effective."

Bergman is a natural onstage. Though playing the part of a little boy, Bergman's portrayal was convincing.

The other three actors — Aaron Cain as the aviator, Inge Baugh as the Rose/Snake and Rip Russell, who appears as the fox and the "men on planets" — are also excellent.

Amidst a background of beautiful scenery and music, "The Little Prince" is an enjoyable play — not just for children. Clark has directed the musical in such a way that adults will be entertained while children will not be patronized.

"I'm very pleased with the way this production has turned out," Clark said. "I think it maintains its integrity and the story is fascinating to children and adults."

"The Little Prince" is a journey not just for the Prince himself but also for the audience members, who are reminded that life consists of twists and turns, and that "straight ahead, no one can go very far."

PLAY REVIEW

The musical traces the journey of the Little Prince from his own tiny planet to other small planets along the way and, finally, to Earth. On Earth, the Little Prince learns what he has been longing to know: He learns what is really important in life.

The musical takes place on a simple stage with very few props. Four actors must rely on the power of the story to capture the attention of an audience made up of viewers of all ages.

The cast succeeded. When the Little Prince, played by 10-year-old Ruth Bergman, sang a song about

Showcase presents Christmas gifts

The Daily Iowan

With Christmas looming, the Hancher Guild is offering another shopping option — thousands of unique gifts with an artistic flair.

You may have noticed the Hancher Showcase, located in the lobby of Hancher Auditorium, bustling with patrons during an intermission this semester. During next few weeks, however, the Hancher Showcase will be open in the afternoons to offer its array of goods, many unique to the Iowa City area.

The Showcase focuses on musical and artistic themes with goods from local artists and international markets alike. For instance, playing cards with Degas prints or Shakespearean characters and glass pins with musical instruments are available. Cinderella dolls for children and the latest book by UI School of Music faculty member Michael Eckert are two items illustrating the potpourri of gifts at the Showcase.

The Hancher Guild runs the Showcase to fund projects in support of Hancher's season. Money raised through the Showcase has helped to fund receptions for Gregory Peck, the King's Singers and the San Francisco Ballet. In addition, the Hancher Guild has assisted senior citizens in attending Hancher performances and local children in dancing in "Nutcracker" performances with the Joffrey Ballet.

Whether the recipient will be a younger sister, father or a grandmother, the Hancher Showcase has the gift. Holiday hours are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. through Dec. 14, and during this weekend's performance of "Cinderella."

Five Style superfunks '70s style

Todd Norden
The Daily Iowan

If you can dig wop-chee-wop guitar choogles and thumping plucking bass lines out of some '70s B-grade flick's soundtrack, you're in for a treat.

The superfunk of Five Style will be performing at Gabe's tonight with Matchbook Shannon and 22.

The instrumental trio from Chicago, including former members of Poster Children and Liz Phair, have released a 10-song self-titled debut that sizzles.

"Deep Marsh" contains catchy guitar hooks and pure snare sound, with additional double bass drum rumbles. Tighten up your wig for the following "Hard Afro Rubalon" as it smokes with a "Shaft"-like boogie and outta sight guitar. Resonating the long-lost James Gang, "Round Up" is unadulterated white boy power grooves.

Believe it or not, "Outta Space Canoe Race" brings to mind the "Barney Miller" theme. Revel in the funk!

The only downer of Five Style ironically is their debut single "Waiting On the Eclipse." "Waiting" rips off a bit from acts like Cameo and could pass for a bastardized P-Funk minus the horn section.

Five Style may have struck a chord with its off-centered approach to the funk genre. Their debut is a groovy listen, and hopefully their show is as tight as the album.

Semisonic; Pleasure

Semisonic's intelligent, engaging and fresh Pleasure will probably go ignored because of the band's name, but this album is one of the most thrilling to come out in a long while.

Semisonic, which sounds like Badfinger on Vivarin, blends trippy '60s lyrics and a '90s crispness superbly in the song "In The Veins." "Brand New Baby" is a deeply textured pop song.

"The Prize," twirling all types of sound into an interesting far-out soundscape, opens the EP. The contemplative "Wishing Well" contains the chorus, "I fell into a wishing well now the damage is done and who have I become?"

The slow, beautiful echo of the guitar in "Star" maintains the listener's awe. Half of the songs on Pleasure are musically rich and deeply enjoyable.

"The Gift" and "Sculpture Garden" are cool and somewhat interesting but don't resonate the depth found earlier on Pleasure. The rest of the disc is full of 10-second snippets of psychedelic sounds woven into a montage which makes the brain jump.

Pleasure successfully mixes the beauty of the ideals of the Baby Boomer era with the powerful guitar fuzz found in the MTV Buzz Bin. It's certainly a pleasurable find.

Goodbye Harry; Food Stamp BBQ

Goodbye Harry's Food Stamp BBQ is a horrible mixture of patry white trash punk and lyrics laced with forced rhyme schemes. The result is a disc that tests the listener's tolerance of repetition.

Take the sounds of a watered-down Green Day and mix in half-hearted singing and you get the feel of "Bombo's Old House." Though the rhythm of the vocals and the music aren't in sync, this doesn't necessarily qualify Goodbye Harry as good punk. Rather, you get something akin to Nazareth complete with rock riffs and dumb vocals. "Rattled" goes like this: "they say sometimes it pays to bite the bullet but this time I don't think I can do it/see I been chewing lead since the second grade/I don't intend to do it 'til I'm dead, no." Huh?

Goodbye Harry also adds a little political intrigue to their lyrics as well. From "Habit Check," "mothers having kids like rabbits just to support their habits 'til they lose their habit check and the child support/until their only income is sucking c-k for dope." The political overtones about welfare mothers throughout the song aren't just tasteless, but also hateful.

"Oakland" and "Big Little" are fairly decent tracks but they come much too late after the predictability and redundancy of the initial tunes. "Oakland" carries a holier-than-thou attitude and "Big Little" copies the revving guitar of The Ramones.

Goodbye Harry's snobbish attitude shines through on the self-titled song. "We were destined to be famous when we're rich and you're broke/don't blame us." If that ever happens, I'd agree with the opinion of the band member's yell at the end of "Bombo's Old House": "that was f—king lame."

No Condom No chance

You know what I like in a guy?
Someone who cares. Someone who thinks enough of me to respect the fact that I insist on using protection. Sorry, honey, but casual sex is out. As far as I'm concerned, there's nothing casual about it. I need to know I'm safe. Don't you? Think about it, what if the guy I was with last month, or last year, was a total jerk who didn't care about me in the least? Or, what if I didn't care either?

Asking me to risk my life is the quickest way to turn me off. I insist on using a condom. I like a guy who does, too.
