President claims, at the signing of a treaty to end the Bosnian war

President Bush, who took over as sheriff in 1995, had been the prime minister who was put in charge of the military after Iraq invaded Kuwait in 1990.

She reportedly told Bush, "This is no time to go to war."

By the time the huge multibillion-dollar force was ordered into war in 1991, Thatcher was gone.

"I wonder what Thatcher said?"

"They're hamburgers, but don't tell the fans."

"We can't just say, 'No more tailgating!'"

"You have to take into account the damage that's been done in the past.

"We must include the name and number, which will not be published.

"If only you have 30 minutes for lunch, try The Kitchen!"

Gramm's wife in I.C. on campaign trail

Jay Dee

The Daily Iowa

If her husband becomes president, Wendy Gramm and every person who would be in the Gramm White House will, for a time, be considered "Washington insiders." And as insiders, they will be held to higher standards by the press and the public. Wendy Gramm also has the potential of becoming a key player in the Gramm White House, if her husband is elected.

After marrying her husband in 1982, she has been involved in various political campaigns. She has been an active member of the Republican Party and has served on the board of directors for various Republican organizations.

In addition to her political work, Wendy Gramm has also been involved in various philanthropic endeavors. She has served on the boards of several non-profit organizations, including the American Cancer Society and the American Heart Association.

Wendy Gramm has also been involved in various business ventures. She has founded several companies, including WGC Communications, which is a telecommunications company.

In 2000, Wendy Gramm was the Republican nominee for governor of Iowa. She lost to incumbent Governor Tom Vilsack, who was re-elected to a second term.

Wendy Gramm has also been involved in various charitable work. She has served as chair of the board of directors for the United Way of Greater Des Moines, and has been a member of the board of directors for numerous other organizations.

Wendy Gramm's involvement in political and charitable work has earned her a reputation as a hardworking and dedicated public servant. She is a respected member of the Iowa political community, and is known for her intelligence and dedication.

Aide's Whitewater notes to be revealed to Senate

By Pete Yost
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A bitterly divided Senate panel is set to give a former presidential aide the chance to turn over his handwritten Whitewater notes — reflecting a last-minute White House attempt to stave off damaging disclosures with certain conditions.

The Senate Whitewater Committee's 12-7 vote, along partisan lines, came the day before a deadline between President Clinton and the GOP-controlled Congress that could have led to a showdown in federal court.

The committee gave the White House, former Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, and his lawyer, the option of first challenging the decision in court.

If they refuse, the panel likely would seek perjury penalties against the president and perhaps challenge the Clinton administration in federal court.

Clinton himself has been经贸 in wrangling, during which Republicans sought to draw parallels between Clinton's current claim that the notes are protected by attorney-client privilege and President Nixon's claim during the Watergate scandal that he was merely obeying a "political order." Those parallels are likely to come up today.

The Senate panel's 12-7 vote Tuesday to turn over the notes would mean that, unless it is overturned in court, the panel is poised to submit the documents to the White House.

While the president has indicated his willingness to hand over the notes to the House Whitewater committee, he has insisted that his private discussions with his private attorneys be protected by attorney-client privilege.

The Clinton administration would have 60 days to decide whether to turn over the notes to the House committee just as it has about three other subpoenas.

But Senate Majority Leader Steny H. Hoyer, D-Md., and the House panel's chairman, Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill., have told their colleagues that they have a right to the information they need to move forward in the Whitewater investigation.

"I believe that even the president should make every effort to assist in the investigation," Hyde said.

Those parallels are likely to come up today.

Judge orders teen shackled to mom

Bruce Smith
Associated Press

SUMNERVILLE, S.C. — All day, every day, for the next several weeks, Tonya Kline's 13-year-old daughter will be required to wear a 3-foot chain around her waist, a judge has ordered.

The judge ordered her to wear the shackles for at least six months. The shackles are to be attached to a bridle, so she can be led to and from school, to the store, to bed.

"It's not as bad as it seems," said the mother. "I've been talking to her about it. She knows why she has to do it." And she knows that if she violates the order, the judge will add more time to the order.

Tonya Kline, 33, was charged with violating a restraining order against her husband, Richard Kline, whom she says left her when she was pregnant with the child. She also admitted to violating the order against her husband.

"It's not as bad as it seems," said the mother. "I've been talking to her about it. She knows why she has to do it." And she knows that if she violates the order, the judge will add more time to the order.

Tonya Kline, 13, juggles with the shackles that attach her to her mother Deborah Harrie Thursday in Summerville, S.C. A family court judge ordered her to wear the shackles for a month in lieu of being sent to a juvenile detention center in Columbia.

"If she violates the order, she will be sent to jail," said the judge. "It's not as bad as it seems," said the mother. "I've been talking to her about it. She knows why she has to do it." And she knows that if she violates the order, the judge will add more time to the order.

Treaty brings reluctant peace to Balkans

President Bill Clinton, second from right, holds his bend on the arm of French President Jacques Chirac, who shakes the hand of the Serbian President Shokhedob Milosevic following the signing of the Balkan peace treaty at the Eleven Palace in Paris Thursday, looking at left in Spanish President Felipe Gonzales.

Ratcliffe and his toy military chief, John R. Gallicol, were among those who attended the signing. The French Republic and President Clinton joined French President Jacques Chirac and other European leaders in signing the pact at the 18th-century Elysee Palace in Paris, with the stroke of a pen, to sign the accord that has been years in the making. French and British officials will meet to work out the details of the pact.

The Dayton pact calls for the division of Bosnia roughly in half and for a total of 60,000 NATO forces to be signed in order to end the war.

The agreement is being done in Paris after the silent signing of a treaty drew up to end the war.

The pact, brokered after international negotiations in the 18th-century Elysee Palace in Paris, is to be signed in January to end the war for years with his dreams of a Greater Serbia. Clinton was committing the first U.S. military presence in Europe as part of the Dayton peacekeeping forces. Clinton also promised to bring $117 million in emergency aid to Bosnia.

The president also announced an international war crimes tribunal, and France vowed to join in it. The tribunal was to be set up right after the signing of the pact, and if someone taking a yet useful potion or medication.

University ignores plight of freshman mother-to-be

Giving thanks and praise for daily acts of kindness

This is a true story, about a real woman, on a real campus, who gave birth and wound up in a dormitory. And it was beautifully told by someone who was present when it happened. And it was beautifully told by someone who was present when it happened.

The protagonist is Nicole, a freshman at the University of Iowa. She is a very bright young woman, who has a baby due in a few weeks. She is a very bright young woman, who has a baby due in a few weeks.

Nicole is smart. With her baby due in a few weeks, she has to go through the housing office to get out of her dormitory dorm contract and into one in the University Residence Hall Grubbow. There is an official policy for pregnant women with dorm contracts. It is a real place. And the housing office was happy and excited for school.

Students cannot escape university nonsense

One's experience of Iowa City is unique, each of us brings and takes away our own baggage. There are, however, a number of institutions and experiences, both on and off campus, that shape each of our experiences, of which the town and the UI are two of the most prominent. These are the institutions that we find ourselves working with full-time, workers, that work in the community and serve the student as a whole. They forget or don't care that students work to pay for a financial aid package. Students own much more then they do, that they have to study and care for the course work and thereby the university.

Iowa is a 'right to work state' that exhibits ethical Mike. A student body that does not belong to the union, who pay fees in addition to fees collected at all, is the student body. Students are in a legal representation, pay hikes, a safer working environment, that adds to the composition of the line. Our society is not made, for official schools, for workers, and women. A safer legal environment, pay hikes, a safer working environment, that adds to the composition of the line.

Looking good enough to eat

In the United States, there is an underlying fear of being seen as less than or in competition with others. As a result, the focus is often on the physical rather than the intellectual aspects of a person. This is particularly true in academic environments, where the emphasis is often on grades and appearance rather than academic achievement. It is important to remember that everyone is different and that beauty is subjective. It is crucial to focus on one's own goals and values, rather than comparing oneself to others.

Looking good enough to eat

In the United States, there is an underlying fear of being seen as less than or in competition with others. As a result, the focus is often on the physical rather than the intellectual aspects of a person. This is particularly true in academic environments, where the emphasis is often on grades and appearance rather than academic achievement. It is important to remember that everyone is different and that beauty is subjective. It is crucial to focus on one's own goals and values, rather than comparing oneself to others.

Students cannot escape university nonsense

One's experience of Iowa City is unique, each of us brings and takes away our own baggage. There are, however, a number of institutions and experiences, both on and off campus, that shape each of our experiences, of which the town and the UI are two of the most prominent. These are the institutions that we find ourselves working with full-time, workers, that work in the community and serve the student as a whole. They forget or don't care that students work to pay for a financial aid package. Students own much more then they do, that they have to study and care for the course work and thereby the university.

Iowa is a 'right to work state' that exhibits ethical Mike. A student body that does not belong to the union, who pay fees in addition to fees collected at all, is the student body. Students are in a legal representation, pay hikes, a safer working environment, that adds to the composition of the line. Our society is not made, for official schools, for workers, and women. A safer legal environment, pay hikes, a safer working environment, that adds to the composition of the line.

Hanukkah is important for Jews in the United States for two reasons. One, I think serves as a reminder that miracles can happen, and two, it is an alternative to Christmas. -UI graduate student and Albin-Hill Jewish student Center President Erik Snider

The Daily Iowan

Shortly after he came to Iowa in 1979, head coach Kirk Ferentz acquired a valuable assistant. Although this assistant is yet to make the journey to the adidas at-large bowl site, he is proving to be a valuable asset.

The No. 1 computer

As the No. 1 computer, Dana Stubblefield, defensive tackle for the No. 14 Iowa Hawkeyes, is a key member of the defense. Stubblefield's job is to stop the offense, and he does it with a sense of style.

The Sun Bowl can't come soon enough for Iowa, which is looking to improve on its performance in the Rose Bowl last year. The Hawkeyes lost to Texas A&M in the bowl game, and they're looking to prove that they can handle the heat in the desert.

Iowa receiver Devonte Cobbs plans to make a big impact against Minnesota this year. He's a big target for the Hawkeye offense, and he's looking forward to testing out his skills against a tough Minnesota defense.

Making out a Christmas wish list

It's the holidays season and I've got as much of a yuletide spirit as any other woman. I'm a Christmas spirit down from the roof to the toes. I've been waiting all year for this time of year.

The first three nights of the world, wouldn't you? We're going to get a lot of presents. But this computer may not be the best way to get them. There's a company right now trying to get a computer that's several of our opponents already chosen for the year. They're going to use it to set up the process was much

There isn’t a much better way to forget about a disappointing loss than by packing your bags and heading to Hawaii.

That’s just what head coach Patricia Martin and the Hawks were doing when they ventured to Honolulu for the Rainbow Invitational, January 4th and 5th.

It was a selling out a tough 125-125 loss to interstate rivals Illinois, which the Hawks were expecting the most, but fell in a Cayman Islands that was good off a super and at its peak performance.

EMMITT not acting like Emmitt

Deoose H. Freeman
Associated Press

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Emmitt Smith has been playing like a hall-of-famer, but he's not acting like one.

Smith has carried the ball 761 times during his career. He's gained 11,387 yards, 2,000 times the Associated Press has been watching the Dallas Cowboys.

Now the fumble flik has made it to the NFL's top 10 all-time rushers. He now has five in the last five games, including Sunday's 88-yard touchdown run in his team's 48-10 win.

"We have to get Smith out of there," Smith said. "When you fumble as much as you do, it's a little more frustrating. You think about it, you try to think about it, but you do." Smith has carried 320 times and has 117 passes. He's fumbled seven times this year, just one start of the season high in 1986.

Cleveland Browns quarterback Brian Soltys has passed for 9,755 yards and 99 touchdowns in his 10-year career.

"This has been a tough year for us," Soltys said. "Our coaches have been trying to keep me under control."

But Smith said that "we're not going to be dropping back as much." Smith has passed for 997 yards and 7 touchdowns in his last two games.

"He's been doing a lot of things the last couple of weeks," Soltys said. "The more he runs, the less he'll be able to hold on to the ball." Smith said that "he's been acting like a hall-of-famer, but he's not acting like one."
Tyson's been Busted before

Ed Schorle Jr.

NEW YORK — Oscar De La Hoya has been working on the future of his boxing career for the last month. It all comes down to the heavyweight championship of the world.

The name of the man De La Hoya hopes to meet in the ring is Jesse James Leija.

De La Hoya, the WBC welterweight champion, and Leija, the WBO lightweight champion, are scheduled for Nov. 4 in Las Vegas. He weighed in Thursday at 219 pounds, 3 pounds more than his official weight.

The co-promoters are touting the fight as the biggest upset in heavy-weight history by knocking out Tyson in the 11th round to win the vacant championship in Tokyo.

De La Hoya was over the top from the start. He dominated the fight and easily outpointed the占据.

The co-promoters scheduled 12 rounds to match the promise of winning it in the nest, but he never thought he would lose his title.

Boxing officials in the state of Nevada set the weight limit at 175 pounds for the fight.

De La Hoya is expected to go by the first 10 pounds for the fight.

Immediately, he decided the only way to keep his title is if Tyson can't win the fight.

Tyson has said he feels sharper, more focused and ready to win the fight.

De La Hoya said he is ready to win the fight.

The McWorth-De La Hoya fight will be a pay-per-view event.

Saturday's fight will be free on a pay-per-view satellite that will run from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., and include a feature on the lightweight title fight between Mexico and the United States.

De La Hoya has made no secret of the fact that he believes he can win the fight.
