Speaking to a capacity audience in the Main Lounge of the Union Monday, activist Julian Bond presented a passionate look at the civil rights movement's evolution as he reflected on Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday.

"We are in the midst of a renaissance of nonviolent resistance," Bond said. "We are about to begin a new chapter in our history."

Bond spoke about the arrest of four protesters at a demonstration in Washington that had just been declared illegal by the federal government.

"We are about to begin a new chapter in our history," he shouted.

"We are about to begin a new chapter in our history," Bond continued.

Football player faces sanctions

By Kyle Law

The Daily Iowan

UI linebacker Marcus "Tex" Montgomery was accused of an alleged crime that violated a university policy.

"Violence is unexpected of any of our student athletes," said UI Athletics Director Jim Bielema.

Montgomery was charged with simple assault and battery Thursday in connection with an alleged incident that occurred Jan. 12, according to Johnson County court records.

Montgomery and his roommate, sophomore Mike Rhoades, are accused of "assaulting" a student who presumably is a woman.

"We were working on finding a specific policy against this kind of violence and the immediate response," Bielema said. "We do have a specific policy against these things out."

In a similar case, Nebraska's Phi Delta Theta fraternity kicked off Phillips the day they heard a complaint about an alleged assault on a former member.

Two days later, Osborne announced the fraternity kicked the floor and decided to leave the floor open for Phillips' return after the player sought counseling.

"It's going to be difficult to get these things out." Bielema said. "In these kind of cases, we are going to have to set the precedent and act quickly."

The UI No. 1 Cornhuskers went on to sort these things out.

On Wednesday, Montgomery was arrested by the UI Police Department on charges of simple assault and battery.

"As a result of the student's right to privacy and confidentiality, Montgomery could face is one year in jail and a $1,000 fine," Bielema said.

Montgomery's only comment is that he has a "right to privacy." He did not return for comment.

If convicted, Montgomery could face a variety of sanctions, including a trial April 11, and a possible suspension.

The maximum penalty Montgomery could face is one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

"I'm going to take the student's right to privacy and confidentiality, Montgomery said. The dressing room was independent of the court's decision in April.

"The policy which Montgomery's case specifically because Montgomery's case was independent of the court's decision in April."

"It's not clear whether the student's right to privacy and confidentiality was or was not clearly stated in Montgomery's case," Bielema said.

CONCORD, N.H. — Republican presidential candidates vied on Monday for high marks in the New Hampshire primary, which is scheduled for Tuesday, and the attention of the New England electorate in front of a possible 1.5 million estimated audience.

The New Hampshire primary is the first in the nation and is expected to be critical in determining the candidates' chances to win the nomination.

On Monday, the candidates took part in a roundtable discussion with New Hampshire voters.

The roundtable was held at the New Hampshire Institute of Politics at Saint Anselm College.

The candidates discussed issues such as the economy, health care, and national security.

Top GOP Debate Slams

9-year-old swiped from neighborhood while riding her bike

James Zaniga Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas — The standoff between 9-year-old Donna Whitson and her friends played so eerily similar Monday to scenes of the 1920s that they had school with her streams on the fringes of the country.

The girl hasn’t been seen since she was last seen leaving her home early Tuesday morning.

Police said they are investigating the disappearance of 9-year-old Felicia Lee, who was last seen leaving her home Monday morning.

A neighbor told police she last saw Lee at about 9 a.m. Monday, when she was last seen walking down the street.

Donna Whitson and her husband Richard Hageman, of Arlington, Texas, were last seen Monday morning.

Heeding his words

Martin Luther King Jr. would have been 83 Monday. If an assassin's bullet could not take his life, I cannot imagine he would have wanted to see him so soon celebrating his birthday. His assassination did not put an end to the movement he presided over and continued him but rather continued him with increased fervor.

In the last year we have seen a further deterioration in race relations in the United States and the world. The tragic death of Martin Luther King Jr. at the hands of a white, upper-class, racist assassin in 1968 was the beginning of a period of racial polarization that started with the Watts riots and ended with the downfall of the nation's capital.

As we reflect on the day we remember, it is fitting that we recognize Martin Luther King Jr. as the leader who paved the way for us to be the best of who we are. He was a leader who believed the cause was worth fighting for and fought for it with all his might. He was a leader who believed in the power of love and worked to show us that it could overcome even the darkest of hatreds.

Heeding his words, I encourage you to reflect on the lessons of Martin Luther King Jr. and let his spirit guide you in your daily lives. Let his words inspire you to be the best version of yourself and to work towards a world where differences are celebrated and understanding prevails. Let his memory be a reminder to us all that love can overcome even the most challenging of circumstances.

Prisoner exchange fails as Dayton deadline nears

George Jahn

WASHINGTON — A prisoner swap meant to demonstrate the will for reconciliation among Bosnia's warring factions failed Monday, likely subjecting war zones freed instead of the handover to them, said Arnor Masovic, the Bosnian government official whose names have been handed to the United States.

The government also has said it stands Bosnian government Masovic said.

"No agreement has been reached about the release with the Serb side," because the Serbs refuse to do what happened to 24,742 people whose names have been handed to them, and hence the swap charged with overseeing POW exchanges.

Masovic said 4,000 of those are thought to be prisoners. The rest are stuck at the same level.

"The first time I read it, I thought the Big Ten was going to be hit by the same kind of thing that happened at the University of Illinois," said Coleman.

But Coleman's interest in Big Ten and other university officials is not just for sport's sake. Coleman also supports other causes, such as "America's Black Forum."

"It's just a shame that we can't do things like that in the Big Ten and the universities."

"I don't think they can get any worse," he said. "I know they can't get any better."

An abbreviated version of the Iowa State's track and field team's round-the-season expectations is contained in the Hawkeye Open on Saturday.

Despite running without student-athletes Dezmond Pittman, Des Newton, Ed Brown, and George Pages, and despite not having the entire team, head coach Kathy Rose was pleased with the squad's performance.

"We were down a lot of people. But that's what's great about this team. They know their numbers. They know they're going in and contribute. And again, just that they are here means a lot."

LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Michael Jordan scored 27 points, passing Chamberlain as the NBA’s career scoring leader, as the Bulls won their eighth straight game, 116-109 over the short-handed Washington Bullets.

Chamberlain died after a heart attack Thursday. Jordan acknowledged after the game that thinking about theaptop before taking the court.

The Bulls (17-2), who had the best record in the Eastern Conference, defeated the Bullets (10-11) for the sixth straight time.

Bulls guard Steve Smith scored 11 in the fourth quarter to rally the Bulls from 10 down.

PACKERS UNABLE TO SHAKE DALLAS JINX

By Jim Farley

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburh Steelers, who have never lost to the Dallas Cowboys, are now tied for the lead in the National Football Conference, and they want to keep it that way.

The Steelers played their first game of the season against the Dallas Cowboys on Sunday and won 21-7. The victory gives the Steelers a 1-0 record and keeps them atop the NFC East.

"We're not going to the Super Bowl this year," said Steelers coach Bill Cowher. "But we're going to make sure we're in the playoffs, and we're going to play our best football to do that."
"Monkeys": An enthralling sci-fi

Nathan Gropper

It's no secret that Bruce Willis and David Schramm are two of the most talented actors in Hollywood. In "12 Monkeys," they deliver powerful performances that are sure to leave audiences on the edge of their seats.

The story follows a man named Cole (Schramm), who is sentenced to die for a crime he didn't commit. As he awaits his execution, he is given a choice: die by lethal injection or volunteer for a mission to stop a time traveler who has sealed the Earth in a protective dome.

Cole accepts the mission, and through his journey he discovers the true nature of the world's end and the role he must play in preventing it. With the help of Willis, who plays Dr. Bruce Simms, Cole learns to trust his instincts and fight against the forces of evil.

"12 Monkeys" is a thought-provoking film that explores themes of fate, free will, and the human condition. The visuals are stunning, and the performances are outstanding. A must-see for fans of sci-fi and action genres.

Homosexual characters populate TV programs

Associated Press

In a world where homophobia and discrimination are still prevalent, it's refreshing to see more and more TV shows featuring gay characters.

On ABC's "American President," the character of Secretary of State Channing Tatum, played by Bruce Willis, is one of the most memorable. Tatum's character is portrayed as a straight man who is struggling with his own sexuality.

On NBC's "Friends," the character of Phoebe Buffay, played by Lisa Kudrow, is revealed to be gay in the season 10 episode "The One with the Backward Episode." This was a groundbreaking moment for the show and the network.

On Fox's "The Daily Show with Jon Stewart," the character of "La Jetee," played by Chris "La Jetee" Jones, is a closeted gay man who is outed in a revealing monologue.

These are just a few examples of how TV shows are becoming more diverse and inclusive. It's a step in the right direction for representation and acceptance.

The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Tuesday, January 16, 1996 - 58
Fruiting a responsibility to work toward it, I decided to invest in an article on preparing a meal that I could not get out under that food that I had not been happy to put together.
Sometimes the time
that I had spent on the meal was not as long as I had expected, but generally it was more than I had expected.

The final ingredient is
- and this is the least important one, but it's important to note that the recipe uses one bunch of blueberries.

First, I mixed the ingredients for the crust together (I used almond flour and bitter chocolate),
and then added my favorite to the mix.

Next, I added some
butter to the mix,
and then baked it in the oven for 20-25
minutes. This made the crust a nice
brown color.

Finally, I put the blueberries on top
and baked it for an additional 20-25
minutes. The result was a delicious and healthy treat.

I hope this recipe inspires you to try making a similar dish!
