About 75 black-shirted mourners gathered at a memorial service Tuesday night for victims of recent terrorist bombings in Israel, and one U.I. student.

"Moments after the bombing, my mother and I ran to the phone to let everyone know we were safe," one of the students said.

"My God, it is going to happen again," said the mother.

"The service was a way to show the world that we care," said another.

The service was held to honor those who died in the bombings.

"We need to come together as a nation," said one of the students.

"The peace process is important," said another.

Students were encouraged to keep faith in the peace process.

"Netizens' feeling 'beware' about indecency ban"

By Karl Erll
The Daily Iowan

Yellow ribbons are tied around street signs to show support for missing people. But these ribbons are now worn in lieu of soap for support against AIDS. Pink ribbons support the fight against breast cancer.

And now blue ribbons are seen on World Wide Web sites as a new campaign against indecency ban. The Internet has morphed into a forum for the fight for sex. The site, called "24 Hours for Freedom," is designed by the Internet Freedom Foundation.

"The Electronic Frontier Foundation has no better weapon than the Internet to support free speech," said Aaron Swett, president of the foundation.

"We have no defense against a possible assault on free speech. The only defense is the Internet."

"The Foundation has recently created a site called the "24 Hours for Freedom," which aims to spread awareness about the importance of free speech and support for the First Amendment."

"The site offers a platform for social activism, where people can come together to support free speech and the First Amendment."

"The site also provides resources and tools for people to use in their own activism efforts."

"The site is open to anyone who wants to contribute and support free speech."

"The site has already received support from a wide range of organizations and individuals who are passionate about free speech and the First Amendment."

"We are committed to supporting free speech and ensuring that the Internet remains a platform for free expression."

"The site is available at www.24hoursforfreedom.org."
City council OKs 1997 budget

Sarah Lueck
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Council passed a $111 million budget for fiscal year 1997 Tuesday night, but their work has just begun.

The council will continue to labor over the transit department, which will receive $3.3 million of the upcoming budget, Mayor Naomi Novick said.

"We spent a lot of time on the transit department," Novick said. "There are some problems. Federal funding is expected to decrease dramatically and there are some savings in the next three years."

But Sene will be raised from 91 cents to 95 cents in July, and property will cost $23 instead of $20.

UI PROFESSOR INVESTIGATES SEARS

Study: Disability access cheaper than lawsuits

Kristen Smith
The Daily Iowan

Businesses that comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act will spend less money and lower fewer lawsuits than those who do not, according to an expert in law and psychology.

Professor Peter Blass focused on 71 organizations tracked for Sears, Roebuck and Co. employees with disabilities and found the average cost of the changes was $48.

Replacing a Sears employee can cost up to $84,000, he said.

"I don't think we have averaged more than 400,000 per person," Barnes said. "Some accommodations cost nothing, some several thousand dollars. It depends on what it is."

The UI campus is slowly meeting the needs of the staff with disabilities, Germain said. But, it will be raised from 91 cents to 95 cents in July, and property will cost $23 instead of $20.

"Approximately 600 individuals have sought employment accommodations so far this year," Barnes said. "We are not aware of any problem." Germain said. "The law is based on an individual's -

Lamar Alexander, GOP candidate

This has turned into more of a fraternity election. I don't want you to get to October and say Holy smokes, we've got to finish higher than third in any primary race and had gathered only 20 percent of the national vote to win the nomination.

Alexander, to the end, questioned whether Republicans voters really were ready to embrace Dole as their standard-bearer. He told Florida voters his goal had been to get Republicans to ask, "Do we really want Bob Dole?"

In truth, the only major Republican leading candidate who is really ready to stand up against Bill Clinton and take our ideas into the next century?" he said during a Tuesday morning appearance at a private school in Miami's Little Havana neighborhood.

Alexander also took a swipe at Bush's stance on bioethics. Last week, Republican leaders who want to ban the use of American embryos for research, something Alexander believes will "spoil a picture of America that inclusive at its core."

Alexander, 55, served as Tennessee governor from 1979 to 1987 and was President Bush's secretary of education from 1989 to 1993.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The House Banking Committee on Thursday asked that President Clinton be allowed to testify via videotape, instead of in person, at the Whitewater trial of former Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist and the governor of Virginia.

Friend's death brings family to home
To the Editor:
Last Sunday, Matt Eisenfeld woke up for his first class and boarded a bus to take a shower (one of the occasional times in his life that he wasn't in his pajamas). Matt was a undergraduate student in the History Department and a talented student. He was killed in a car accident on his way home to Iowa City. His family and friends are devastated by his loss.

Many people in Iowa are proud of the way they vote in the recent election. The Iowa State House Representative, Mark Lovely, did an excellent job in his recent election. However, I am concerned about the behavior of the Iowa State House Representative, Mark Lovely. He has been accused of using AIRC for his personal gain.

Afrocentricity and the future

Afrocentricity is a concept that has been around for many years. It is a way of thinking about the world that emphasizes the importance of African history and culture. In recent years, many scholars have been exploring the implications of Afrocentricity for contemporary society.

The hardest challenge is to get all the people who didn't vote in this election to invest some trust and faith in the US. This is because Afrocentricity is a concept that is very difficult to understand and explain.

Up the down escalator

Many American workers feel like they're trying to walk up a down escalator today. Although corporations generally have not laid off workers as past recessions, increased competition for remaining jobs has made job security a thing of the past. For most firms, downsizing is not a reaction against local employees—it's a matter of survival, cut the fat or go out of business. For employees, it is a challenge that necessitates adaptability, no matter why the downsizing occurred.

Downsizing is a simple concept; it means firms eliminate jobs through a variety of strategies ranging from early retirements to layoffs. Downsizing is not inherently evil; it can create efficiencies and, as strange as it sounds, better opportunities for individuals remaining on the job. Despite all of the complaints voiced about downsizing, our economy would be weakened tremendously if firms were not or did not make competitive adjustments. Indeed, I believe most workers in the past recognized that a firm's ability to compete was determined from 1979-1995. From a local perspective, since phone companies exceed the population of Iowa City and Cedar Rapids combined. Third, comparable job opportunities no longer seem to be available to individuals who have been "downsized" on the downward escalator. Although unemployment rates are down throughout the United States and millions of the employed fear they will be next to face the personal humiliation of termination.

What lessons can be drawn from recent downsizing disasters? First, and most importantly, it is the responsibility of the government to protect its citizens. It is unlikely the government will mandate policies that prevent downsizing in the near future (through debates about that issue will inevitably continue). Secondly, given job insecurity, we must learn to take upon ourselves the duties that are in demand in the workplace and constantly upgrade our skills. Self-help books recommend that we all must take upon ourselves the duties that are in demand in the workplace and constantly upgrade our skills. Self-help books recommend that employees who are laid off should immediately begin the search for new positions. Third, retraining that combines skills may be more valuable in the future. A security major in one area may be worth much more to an employer if combined with other knowledge and skills. This does not mean everyone should major in business administration, through taking some business courses may create unique skill combinations. It means that job and promotion opportunities in practically any career path may depend on skills that are not currently acquired.

Wildcats ...

I take my reputation on them

There is absolutely no chance that the Kentucky Wildcats will lose a game at the NCAA Championship.

I know this to be a bold claim, but every time I've seen Kentucky play during my brief 10-year life span, they have admitted me to their list of lucky fans.

Hawks travel to Drake, take a Big Ten break

Jon Rosoff
The Daily Iowan

"I think it's a good idea to take a much-needed break from the Big Ten and focus on non-conference matchups," said senior Mark Beckman.

The Hawks travel to Drake on Wednesday for their annual meeting with the Bulldogs. Beckman said the Hawks need to take this opportunity to capitalize on their recent success against Iowa State.

"We have been playing well against Iowa State lately, so we need to carry that momentum into the Drake game," Beckman said.

The Hawks are currently 2-0 in non-conference play, having beaten Northern Iowa and Illinois-Chicago. Beckman said the team is looking forward to the challenge of facing Drake.

"Drake is a tough team, but we've been playing well against them in recent years," Beckman said.

The Hawks are currently 6-2 overall and 1-0 in the Big Ten. They are looking to keep their momentum going into their upcoming Big Ten games.

"We have been playing well in conference play so far, so we need to carry that into our Big Ten games," Beckman said.
Chicago makes Bucks victim 29

Associated Press

CHICAGO - Michael Jordan snatched Milwaukee for 31 first-quarter points and 36 total, and Luc Longley missed a career-high seven baskets in the Chicago Bulls loss to the Bucks 123-118.

The Bulls are 26-4, the best record in the Midwest and the National Basketball Association. They have won 19 of their last 20 games, losing only in Milwaukee.

Longley had 24 and seven rebounds for Chicago, and Ron Harper led the Bulls with 32 points and 10 assists.

Detroit guard Michael Curry-routed an easier to the face from Toronto's Doug Christie while chasing down a loose ball Tuesday.

Christie joined the 20-point club after he was called for a flagrant foul against Minnesota's Hervis Johnson. Both and the Bulls' Phil Jackson committed fouls.

Six times, in the first two games of the season, the Bulls lost by 14 points, but beat the Knicks with 11 assists.

Still, despite missing the fourth quarter, the Bulls beat the Knicks with 11 assists.

Driving down the third quarter after he was called for a flagrant foul against Minnesota's Hervis Johnson, both and the Bulls' Phil Jackson committed fouls.

It's hard to hate Sting's newest

BY JIM

Sting comes his way to Iowa's inner ears with Mercury Falling.

Whether grounded in a melange of pop, rock and soul, or springing from a combination of reggae and dance, complex rhythms and even more complex rhythms. The variety of tunes makes it possible to listen to this album over and over without tiring, and without feeling that you've been hearing the same song over and over again.

It's easy to hate Sting, but it's perfectly justified to hate Mercury Falling. If you got the precision of other songs doing these things, it makes pop music seem new.

No Doubt sets center stage at Hilton

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

Sting employed his skilled bass line to kickstart this new album, clocking in at just over a silver bill, the audience stopped. And backed by a powerful band (Tony Kanal on bass, Tom Dumont on guitar, and Dominic, those high, clear ringing tones), these artists have come out of the ashes of their former lives - but they're not the only ones to have been reincarnated.

The audience sat in stunned silence as the music started. It was apparent from the very beginning that this was not just a concert, but a performance that would be remembered for years to come.

Sting ruled the stage from the moment she stepped on it. Her sensuality and attitude kept all eyes on her, but it was her singing that truly drew the audience in. She managed to touch them all with her voice, leaving them in awe of her talent.

And then there was the crowd. As soon as Sting took the stage, the audience erupted in cheers and applause. It was clear that they had come to see a show they would never forget.

It's a testament to the power of music that even in the face of such a talented group of performers, one woman was able to stand out. Sting's performance was unforgettable, and she left her mark on the crowd that evening.

Cheesecake Squares

1- pkg. Devil's Food Cake Mix
1/4 c. shortening
3 eggs
1/2 c. sugar
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1 1/2 c. milk

Greased 9 x 13" pan

Mix cake mix and water as for pastry. Save one cup of mixture for topping. Pour rest in bottom of baking pan. Beat the eggs by hand and blend with sour cream. Next, layer the sliced apples over the pastry bottom. Pour sour cream and egg mixture over the apples. Bake remaining dry mixture and mix with brown sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle over the top. May sprinkle almonds also. Bake at 350 until bubbles and is golden brown. Drizzle with Pillsbury cream cheese frosting.

Cheddar Vegetables

1/4 c. shortening
1/2 c. chopped onion
