Oscar: I've got you, Babe
Will a pig steal the show at tonight's Academy Awards?

Nathan S. Gropper

A pig, a fantasy footballer and a comet for "planetary near miss" tonight. What a night in the Ten Conference city of Rosemont. Perhaps it's time for something other than "Titanic," starring a herd of talking animals. Animal rights activists and Bob Dole fans alike cheered this little piggy to an unthinkable thing is certain — this year's Academy Awards promise more entertainment than in the past.

When determining your predictions for tonight's Academy Awards, you might want to remember the words of a song by the group "The Mighty Mighty Bosstones:" "What would Grandpa think if he could see this?" This year's Academy Awards are typically known for not presenting anything exciting. Although, their main categories usually produce some interesting results.

The most anticipated categories are the Best Picture and Best Director categories. The former is traditionally dominated by big-budget, highly-anticipated films. The latter is usually reserved for directors who have made significant contributions to the film industry.

This year, the Best Picture category includes "Titanic," "Beautiful Mind," "Shrek," "A Beautiful Mind," and "Shrek." Some of the most competitive films in recent memory are vying for this award, making it a tough call.

The Best Director category features some of the most celebrated names in the industry, including Steven Spielberg, Martin Scorsese, and John Woo. Spielberg, who won the award last year for "Saving Private Ryan," is up for his direction of "Titanic," while Scorsese is in the running for "The Aviator."

In addition to the usual suspects, there are some up-and-coming directors who may surprise everyone. One to watch is Robert Rodriguez, who directed "From Dusk Till Dawn" and "Machete."

In the end, it's hard to predict who will take home the award, but it's sure to be a memorable night at the Dolby Theatre.

Life is a beach for the students at the University of Iowa. Between classes, workouts and late-night study sessions, it's easy to find ways to relax.

For some, a trip to the beach is the perfect way to unwind. Others prefer to enjoy a good book in the shade.

"It's nice to get out of the city and enjoy some fresh air," said one student.

"I love the sound of the waves," said another.

Regardless of their choice, students agree that the beach is a great place to clear their minds and recharge.

"I can't go out and buy a ticket for the movie," said the student.

"I've been waiting for this movie for months," said another.

"I'm.determined to see the movie tonight," said the third student.

Despite their determination, the students are left with no choice but to wait until the movie is available on DVD.

The Daily Iowan

The 1996 Olympic Games in Atlanta will show the world that the United States can still hang with the best of the rest.

"We're going to show them that we're not just a bunch of cowboys," said one wrestler.

"We're going to show them that we're still the best," said another.

"We're going to show them that we're going to bring home the gold," said the third wrestler.

The United States is expected to send a team of 10 wrestlers to the Games, including former UI wrestlers.

Mike Hoffmann, a former UI wrestler, is expected to be one of the leaders of the team.

"I'm looking forward to representing the United States," said Hoffmann.

Iowa bill to outlaw same-sex marriages dies

Zoe Wheatley

The Daily Iowan

A proposed amendment to the Iowa Legislature that would have made same-sex marriage illegal died last Thursday on a vote of 37-1.

The bill, sponsored by Republican from Boone, Granville J. Reilly, did not even receive a floor vote and was instead sent back to the Senate on the recommendation of the Senate Rules Committee.

"This bill didn't even make it on the Senate floor," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Duff, an Iowa City Democrat.

The proposal, Senate Bill 419, would have granted the same rights and benefits to same-sex couples as legally married heterosexual couples.

Duff said the legislation was unnecessary because same-sex marriage is already legal in Iowa.

The bill would have granted same-sex couples the rights afforded by the Iowa Constitution, including the right to enter into a civil union, and also would have mandated that state agencies and departments issue identification cards to same-sex couples.

"This is another effort to deny equal rights to same-sex couples," Duff said.

The proposal, which was sent to the Senate Rules Committee last Wednesday, would have also allowed for the inclusion of "male" and "female" in the Iowa marriage definition.

The Senate Rules Committee, which has the authority to decide whether a bill gets to the Senate floor for debate, sent the bill back to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

"We have a lot of things that we need to deal with," said Sen. David Young, an Iowa City Republican and chair of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Young said the committee has been overwhelmed with bills for theennes sesson.

"I'm not going to put an agenda together," he said.

Iowa Senate Majority Leader Bob Duff, an Iowa City Democrat, said the bill was introduced and voted against it.

"It was meant to show a group of people what we're about and what we're against," Duff said.

"We were not going to do a thing," said Reilly.

"We were not going to do anything," Duff said.

New $100 bill aims to put an end to phonies

Call Hartman
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A new $100 bill with a bigger, more visible picture of Benjamin Franklin and several anti-counterfeit features are expected to soon go into circulation around the world.

So far, $80 billion worth has been pressed into circulation, about a third of all $100 bills in use.

They were first announced last month by Treasury Secretary Henry M. Paulson and Federal Reserve Chairman Ben S. Bernanke.

A Bureau of Engraving and Printing employee uses a magnifying glass to inspect fresh, newly designed $100 bills Thursday at the agency in Washington.

New bills have the same size and bright color as the old bills, but one of the new security features is a large figure "100" in the top margin that makes it appear green when turned diagonally or black when seen from an angle. The paper also includes a watermark.

The words "United States of America" are printed in microscopic letters.

Four faint, hard-to-reproduction images are contained at random within the new bill and show the picture of Independence Hall in Philadelphia that appears on the $100 bill today. The Treasury says there are other security devices not yet announced that will not be revealed to the public.

"The technology is expected to be impossible to imitate in the next couple of years," said one Treasury official on condition of anonymity. "For the moment, the Treasury is not giving away the farm."

The new bills are expected to be revealed, according to the Associated Press story, not because the government can prove they are safer than those now in circulation, but because the Treasury wants to put an end to the buying and selling of counterfeit bills.

The Associated Press story notes that it doesn't take many House members to complete the $100 bill.

"It doesn't take a freshman Rep. to make it," said one friend.

With all the luxuries of a fine European sedan, it outclasses all the spruced-up 4x4s - while its road-gripping traction leaves them all in the dust. Adding security - the A6 received the highest ratings in anti-theft systems - is no drawback, either.

In a surprise move, the United States announced that it would not send a team to the 1996 Olympic Games. "We've been discussing this for some time," said Team USA coach, "and we've decided that it's not in the best interests of the athletes." The move came after a series of recent controversies surrounding the American Olympic program.

Arizona sends Hawkeyes packing

The Daily Iowan

SIDNEY, Neb. — Minutes after a program of press conferences in which she fought back tears as she discussed her pride in the growth of her Hawkeyes program, former Iowa women's basketball coach Lisa Bluder found herself being compared to the legendary Pat Summit of Tennessee.

"I don't want to be compared to Pat Summit," Bluder said. "This is the best coaching position in the country, and I don't want to fall short of that goal."

Bluder, who coached the Hawkeyes to a 20-6 season and a third-place finish in the Big Ten, was named the conference's coach of the year and earned recognition for a strong recruiting class and as a motivating force in the program's resurgence.

"I don't think there's anyone in the country who can match what Pat Summit has been able to do," Bluder said. "She's a legend, and I don't want to compare myself to her."

Bluder's program has come a long way since her first year in charge, when the Hawkeyes finished with a 4-24 record. In 1995, the team won the Big Ten regular-season title and reached the NCAA tournament for the first time.

"I think the most important thing is that we've built a program that can compete," Bluder said. "And I think we've done that in a short period of time."

The Hawkeyes, who lost to Tennessee in the NCAA tournament, are looking for redemption in the Big Ten tournament. Bluder has set her sights on a championship, and the team is confident it can achieve its goal.

"We've got a lot of chemistry, and we're playing well," Bluder said. "I think we can definitely be a factor in the Big Ten tournament."

SAV scores aside, the Iowa women's tennis team needed a win over the weekend to keep its hopes alive for a spot in the NCAA tournament.

The Hawkeyes will try to keep that possibility alive when they face the Golden Eagles on Tuesday in Iowa City. The Hawkeyes will have two more opportunities after that, one at Penn State and the other at home against Ohio State on Sunday, April 14.

Coach Kirk says that despite only having two wins this season, the Golden Eagles are one of the best teams in the nation.

The Golden Eagles are currently ranked eighth in the nation and have already won the Big East title.

The Hawkeyes will need to be at their best to have any chance of winning against the Golden Eagles.

Winning the match could be crucial for the Hawkeyes, as they need to pick up as many points as possible to keep their NCAA hopes alive.

Cohens hit home with ‘Fargo’

Movie captures the Midwest to stereotypical perfection

Kathleen Carroll

The Daily Iowan

In the tradition of Choose Your Own Adventure stories, ‘Fargo’ allows individual choices. It does not discriminate between laughable and the macabre.

... While it has not hit the silver screens of Iowa.Cit yet, film critic reviewed ‘Fargo’ as a genuine hit. Critics deemed it as one of the most provocative and original films of the year.

... "We have learned from past mistakes and now have crafted one of the best films ever made."

... "Fargo," which premiered in select cities last weekend, features:

- Steven Buscemi as a gun-for-hire in the picturesque city, Fargo, N.D.
- McDormand’s dialogue ideally, causing more laughter than the local police as she attempts to satisfy her debts.
- While many moments of ‘Fargo’ seem to patronize these bizarre innocents of the setting, the Cohen’s excellent writing the film’s unlikely hero, Chief Marge Gunderson, wonderfully captures the essence of the Midwest to laughable perfection.

... When the scheme collapses after the things start to crumble and two innocent bystanders in rural Minnesota, ‘Fargo’ takes a darker turn. Accented by the perceived accents to the humorous, but accurate, attitudes and conversations, ‘Fargo’ employs a haunting score and adventurous cinematography to�名s the midwestern screwball comedy that has hit home with ‘Fargo’

... Accurate and adventurous cinematography to hit home with ‘Fargo’

... The reviews resulted in the film being nominated for six Academy Awards, including best picture, best director, and best actress for Frances McDormand. The Cohen’s latest venture, ‘Fargo,’ based on a true story, is a bloodthirsty, offbeat comedy that has left many in awe of its creativity.

... Overall, ‘Fargo’ is not merely a film. It is a gift, an offering to the world of cinema. The Cohen’s have given us a rare cinematic treat that does not disappoint. For more information on the film, visit http://wolf.web.uiowa.edu/wooog/pics/
