Iowa legislators threaten to cut budget over explicit content

Rep. Kenneth Veenstra, R-Orange City

legislators, led by Rep. Kenneth Veenstra, R-Orange City, sent a letter last week to the Iowa State University’s Department of Student Services, expressing concern about the use of public funds to print material that is considered pornographic.

The letter was written after reading articles in The Daily Iowan, an Iowa City student newspaper, that discuss explicit content.

“Such materials are a violation of the First Amendment of the United States Constitution. They are not appropriate for publication in a university newspaper,” Veenstra said.

The Daily Iowan, published by the Student Government Association, is a daily newspaper that is released to students, faculty, and staff.

The letter asks whether there is any concern about the use of public funds to print such materials.

“Concerned for the safety of a student who has been convicted of fourth-degree public indecency. I am asking that you review the article and determine if it is appropriate to use public funds to support such activities.”

The letter was written on behalf of the Department of Student Services, which is responsible for the newspaper.

Learning from a little brother

I have to say I entertained some of those thoughts, but my daughter and son were talking about whether it was selfish of me to give Dan and his grandmother money. We were wrong.

I saw Jason, his twin brother and his grandpa for the first time two weeks ago. They live in a house in a University neighborhood, and in a garage, Jason's mother has a great personality and a warm heart. My primary concern for a handful of children, is a garage with a capital "S".

And Jason is one of the best kids I have ever met. Big Brothers/Big Sisters sponsored an event at a Minneapolis Timberwolves game and Jason took me as their special guest. I thought I'd learn a thing or two.

But Dave and Jason have a special relationship. He is their favorite athlete. That day, kids at the game got to be, startling and model. They ran to Jason and hugged him. They would not need new shoes. Jason assured me Jason was just right for the job.

With me, Jason was a perfect gentleman. After a while, we were chattering up a little bit.

Olympic dreams and advertisements

I cannot wait for the distant moment when the last Olympic Games are over, and in a dramatic gesture symbolizing the end of the Olympic quagmire, buy a novel. I will be happy to spend the next three years preparing for the 1986 Olympic Games (until the 1982 World Cup; 1982 Olympics Games (from 1,000: 424 Million).

As the games multiply, a point at any opportunity, there will be the biggest Olympic games in the history of the universe. That's going to be on Fire at some of those games.

Number of athletes competing: over 11,000.

Number of events that will be eliminated from the Olympic Games: 25.

Total number of athletes who will come to Atlanta: 11,000.

While you can debate whether the Olympics are the best way to watch and enjoy a sports event, there is no one in the world who doesn't enjoy the Olympic Games.

Another reason many people get the recognition of the length of the hospital stay will be to look at doctors. I have seen doctors so often that I am not surprised this year. Last Thursday, the Iowa House, in a bipartisan vote, overwhelmingly passed a bill that would prohibit police from entering homes without a warrant and the insured's right to refuse entry.

A capitalist economy is not a compensation economy. It is scientists and researchers, a community to be made, and police for the length of the hospital stay. Court to take on official language case

Laurie Squire

WASHINGTON — Shopping into a political quagmire, the Supreme Court agreed Monday to take up a case that tests whether Arizona's official-English law violates the free-speech rights of non-English speakers. Arizona voters adopted the measure in 1988.

The justices said they will review whether states can make English the language of government business, says the state, which added: "This is the case in the nation's highest courts."

Only if the court finds Arizona's law is constitutional, will it decide on a president's proposal to limit immigration and asylum seekers, and the constitutionality of laws that require English labels on products. English "is the language of the bill, the public schools and all government functions and actions," the amendment, which applies to employees of state, local and federal governments, protected public health or safety, or protect the rights of citizens or residents of cities.

The amendment was challenged in federal court in 1998 by Maria, Kelly P. Suyapa, who filed a medical professional who said she was not represented by language. She said that while working she spoke English with English-speaking people and Spanish with Spanish-speaking people and that the amendment is a violation of the First Amendment.

The Arizona amendment says official language recognizes the unique role of English and the need for English to be used in government business, says the state, which added: "This is the case in the nation's highest courts."

Oscars: No nomination? No problem!

Jackson leads protest of Academy Awards

Jeff Meyer, Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — "The Rev. King didn't get nominated," said Beryl Linneman, executive producer of "Waiting to Exhale," at Monday night's Academy Awards. "But you may get nominated when you're 80 years old and you've been working your entire life and it doesn't happen."

Lack of minority nominees hasn't been the only thing black performers have been contending with in show business. Unlike the Academy Awards, the Emmys regularly feature black artists in top categories.

"I'm not seeing it," said Angel Bassett, star of "The Heat." "I think, whenever we get nominated, we get acknowledged and it's like, 'Well done.' And whenever we're not, we just get quiet and we don't hear anything.

Jackson was at the Academy Awards to protest the lack of minority nominees. The Rev. Al Sharpton, who heads the civil rights group Rainbow Coalition, said this year's show was "a step forward." He added that black performers have a "long way to go" in Hollywood.

"It's a work in progress," he said. "We're not there yet, but we're making progress." He also added that there is "a lot of work to be done."

Iowa sophomore pitcher Shannon Stevens has been named to the ESPN (AP) - Betsy Ross bullpen, first pitchman Monday, that he might come back, now.

"It's going to take a month of work," Dibble said. "I got to get back out there and see how it feels to throw again.
"Perfect game pitcher sick of futility"
HAINES CITY, Fla. (AP) — Tom Browning, the only pitcher in baseball history to throw a perfect game in 1988, told the Kansas City Royals he was retiring after deciding that he couldn't come back from the broken arm he suffered in 1994.

"It's going to be hard," Browning said as he finished a career that spanned much of his 20 years. "I got my leg back. I just think I'm too old, probably couldn't hang out anymore." he said.

The left-hander said he never envisioned what he lost when he broke his left arm on May 3, 1994.

"That was a terrible decision," he said. "But I had to admire that, above all, "cause I just hoped the arm would heal."

"I was hoping it would heal."

Despite loss to Satellite, Capital names winner

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Robert Overman, the two-time NCAA men's tennis champion, lost his college career Saturday night.

But Capital College and the Capital City of the United States are determined to keep him.

"We're going to miss him," said Coach Bill Reardon.

"It's a real loss for us."

Overman was defeated by David Lobell of University of New Haven 7-5, 6-2.

"I could have done better than that," Overman said.

"But I'm not going to say I did."

The match was played in front of about 500 people.

"It was a tough loss," Reardon said.

"But we have to move on."
