Just two weeks from a crucial vote that will determine if UI graduate students will unionize, opposing sides of the volatile issue insist the vote will swing their way. And as the vote nears, the debate is getting increasingly heated. The decision to unionize goes up for vote April 16.

Supporters say a union would increase graduate students' bargaining power with UI administrators for tuition waivers, adequate health care benefits, fair working conditions and effective grievance

"The university has avoided recgnizing our employee status," said Doug Anderson, Campaign to Organize Graduate Students member from the Department of English. "The university wouldn't function if none of us were working."

But Sheldon Oppenheim, a graduate assistant in chemical and biochemical engineering, said there is absolutely no need for a graduate student union, since UI administrators plan to increase graduate assistantship compensation.

"They want to increase compensation by 12.5 percent in two years - few unions can do better than that," he said. "COGS ignores procedures that already exist.'

The opposing sides may be deadlocked on the merits of unionization, but both resoundingly emphasize the vote is essential.

"I wish the views of opposition would be given more respect - no one can tell what unionization is going to do," said former Graduate Student Senate President Mark Wrighton. "It's important that all 2,600 grad assistants go out and vote and that we leave no doubt. Those who don't vote will shortchange themselves and their col-

The Iowa head coach was named 1996 Associated Press Coach of the Year Thursday, edging out Louisiana Tech's Leon Barmore by two votes. The accolade comes following a 27-4 season in which the Hawkeyes climbed as high as No. 6 in the AP polls, won the regular season Big Ten Conference Title with a 15-1 record, and advanced to the NCAA's Sweet Sixteen.

"I am real surprised," Lee said. "This is a real honor and something that I didn't expect. It's a real compliment to my players, assistant coaches and Dr. Grant for giving me this opportunity."

Lee inherited a talent-laden team that finished 11-17 the previous season under C. Vivian Stringer, and turned things around. Minus three key graduated seniors - Tia Jackson, Arneda Yarbrough and Antonia Macklin - Lee managed 16 more wins this season than Stringer did the year before.

"She really found the right team chemistry and unity that kept the team together this year," senior point guard Karen Clayton said. "Her young, spirited attitude that she brought to the team caused us to play more relaxed and have more fun.'

Replacing the legendary Iowa coach was no easy task for Lee. She studied under Stringer as an assistant for six years, and played for the twelve year coach for another. In addition, Stringer is Iowa's all-time winningest men's and women's basketball coach, and became the Big Ten's all-time winningest women's basketball coach while at Iowa.

"The idea of replacing Vivian was something that I tried to put out of my mind," Lee said. "I just

Chad Graham The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Police Department ended its investigation into an incident two weeks ago in which a pedestrian claimed UI basketball player Mon'ter Glasper threatened him with a handgun.

The ICPD has finished questioning witnesses to the incident, and officers who were at the scene will turn the police reports over to the Johnson County Attorney today.

Iowa City police Chief R.J. Winklehake said the Johnson County Attorney's office will review the report. It will then be decided if action should be taken against the arresting officers or the Glasper

Battling the boredom of spring break

The Daily Iowan

This spring break was a real winner.

My friends in Utah had already wrapped up their breaks when I went home for mine, so I found myself parked on the couch watching reruns of "The Dukes of Hazard" and "Eight is Enough" - whoa, stop the fun.

So for all of us who had crappy spring breaks, I have collected stories from students who experienced March madness without the basket-

Cruising Iowa counties

For the record, the following spring break is the kind which results from spending too much of your hard-earned money on things like your U-Bill and pastries from the Union Pantry.

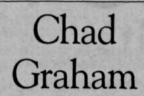

Over their break, two Iowa State University sophomores, Adam Caraher and Matt Tremmel, hopped into their 1984 Chevy Celebrity and visited every county in Iowa - there are 99 of them - to take pictures of each other in front of each and every courthouse.

"Adam came up with the idea about a month before spring break," Tremmel said.

"Originally, we were just going to get our car into the counties, but my dad said he'd buy the film if we took pictures of all the courthouses. Adam was navigating and I drove.

The two spent between $300 and $400 on the trip, which lasted from March 9-16, and captured Kodak moments in front of about 15 courthouses a day.

I wondered if, during this whirlwind court-house blitz, Caraher and Tremmel had time to party with the opposite sex.

'We saw two women from California at the bridges of Madison County," Tremmel said. That was the part of stupidity. We're idiots; we didn't even talk to them. We have no idea why they were there, but we had no idea why we were there, either.'

Tremmel said he and Caraher have talked about - but decided against - visiting a different state each year to photograph courthouses. Tremmel offered some awe-inspiring words of wisdom for anyone who might want to follow in their footsteps next year.

"Do it if you're really that bored," he said. "We listened to a lot of Weird Al, played trivia and yammered on about nothing in silly, incoherent voices. Anything to keep our minds mov-

Finding those heart-warming tourist

While spring-breaking in California, UI sophomore Beth Greger spent one day of an otherwise normal vacation visiting the site of the Nicole Brown Simpson and Ron Goldman murders and the graves of various celebrities.

"There are still cars all over and people are swarming looking at (Simpson's house)," she said. "Then we went by Nicole Brown Simpson's ideas for next year.

house and they still had the 'No Parking' signs and it was still taped off. We got out and parked and walked by it, and it's so close — about five steps and you're where the murder happened."

Greger, who was traveling with her family, also drove by the Messaluna restaurant where Nicole Brown Simpson ate dinner the night she was murdered.

But the fun didn't end there.

"We went and saw where George Burns and Gracie Allen were buried," she said. "We looked for Clark Gable's grave but couldn't find it. It felt like I was invading their privacy; I didn't like being there at all."

If all else fails, dance naked

UI junior Matt Leddin and his friends had planned to go to Denver for the NCAA Sweet Sixteen if the men's basketball team won both of their tournament games in Arizona.

But when the Hawks fell to the Arizona Wildcats, ending their tournament run, the group headed east for a different form of entertain-

"About eight of us went to the nudie bar in Davenport," Leddin said. "We were hanging out and I started talking to a dancer - it was weird, we were connecting. I bought her a drink and I got her phone number. I haven't used it, but I may have to.

"It made up for an otherwise boring spring break. My friends were in total awe; they probably think I am a total God."

See, there's nothing like a little free therapy from the DI to make you feel better about your lame spring break. Maybe you even got some

County OKs mental health department

The Daily Iowan

Amid concerns about straining mental health care funds, the Johnson County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously Thursday to approve plans for a new Department of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities.

Following months of public debate, the plan comes in response to Senate File 69, a state act passed in 1995 aimed at reducing county property taxes for Iowans. The act promises financial aid to Iowa counties for the administration of mental health programs, but also requires counties to lower property taxes, a large funding source for many county services.

The board had until April 1 to develop a plan in response to the

Whitewater witness admits to forgery

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A government witness who implicated President Clinton in a deal which brought charges against Clinton's business partners admitted Thursday he sent a forged document to a federal agency.

The witness, Bill Watt, testified he did so to pressure David Hale to pay off a $10,000 loan he said Hale conned him into taking from Hale's federally backed small-business lending company.

Watt testified in the federal trial of Gov. Jim Guy Tucker and Clinton's Whitewater real estate partners James and Susan McDougal. Hale is expected to be the government's chief witness in the trial, which is in its fourth week.

On Wednesday, Watt said he was told by Hale that Clinton pressed Hale to complete an $825,000 loan in another transaction which is at the center of the indictment accusing Tucker and the McDougals.

Hale also has publicly alleged Clinton pressured him to make a loan of $300,000 in 1986 to Susan McDougal. Clinton has said Hale's tale is "a bunch of bull."

Hale is a former municipal judge in Little Rock. Watt, a traffic iudge, said he often acted as Hale's right-hand man, and agreed to take out the $10,000 loan with the understanding Hale would pay it back.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A group of Reform rabbis endorsed the legalization of homosexual marriages Thursday but stopped short of recommending rabbis perform

The 1,750-member Central Conference of American Rabbis is the first major group of Jewish leaders to formally oppose government bans on same-sex marriages.

"As Jews, and specifically in the reform movement, we've always expressed concern for those we feel aren't treated fairly," said Rabbi Robert Klensin of Arnold, Md., before an overwhelming voice vote.

Most of the comments during the vigorous debate centered on an amendment specifying the group was not deciding the controversial issue of rabbis officiating over single-sex ceremonies.

"You cannot call upon the state to allow these marriages and then refuse to perform the marriage," said Rabbi Eric Wisnia of Princeton Junction, N.J.

But Rabbi Simeon Maslin, the conference president, said the resolution "is a matter of civil rights. It is certainly not connected to any question of rabbinic officiation.

Maslin said the organization expects to vote on single-sex marriage officiation at next year's meeting in Denver.

I could use some extra credit this summer, and I think Northwestern's the place to go. Summertime means smaller classes and better access to some of Northwestern's most popular professors. They even have a course on the Beatles, and if I get ambitious, I can earn a full-year of college credit with Northwestern's eight-week intensive course sequences in physics, chemistry, and nine languages. It'd be nice to go back to school in the fall with a few extra credits on my transcript.

Summer in the Windy City sounds like a hot time. Chicago has jazzfests, bluesfests, and gospelfests, Cubs and Sox games, some of the best museums and art galleries in the world, and ethnic festivals all summer long... I'd have plenty to do, and it's all just minutes from the Northwestern campus.

I never thought of Northwestern as a summer hot spot, but the campus is right on Lake Michigan. They've got beaches, intramural sports, arts and crafts workshops, wine-tasting and pottery making minicourses, basketball and volleyball tournaments, campus musicals and theatrical performances, outdoor movies, and hiking and canoeing trips in Wisconsin. GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip - Suha Arafat threw back her head and laughed heartily when asked whether her husband, Yasser Arafat, sings nursery rhymes to his 8-month-old daughter, Zahwa.

"No, he whistles to her," she said. "I tell him, "Talk to her. Don't whistle.' But he doesn't listen.'

Relaxing at the couple's villa in Gaza City, Suha Arafat spoke with the AP about the challenges she faces as the wife of one of the world's most controversial leaders and as a Westernized woman living in a male-dominated community that thrives on gossip.

"Being the wife of Yasser Arafat means you have to pay for everything you do."

"There's a lot of stress around me. I do one hour of aerobics every day to release the tensions," she said, adding with a twinkle in her brown eyes: "Thank God for (beauty) creams. They hide the bags under my eyes.

But she has been determined to make a home for her family in Gaza. She has weathered the jibes of Palestinians shocked by her expensive tastes and by her decision to deliver her baby in Paris and hire a British nanny.

"I used to feel hurt by the criticism, but now I don't care," she said. "Being the wife of Yasser Arafat means you have to pay for everything you do."

"In Paris, I can live without having all eyes watching me critically," she said. "Here, if I went to a shop, people would say, 'She bought the whole boutique.'

Suha Arafat said she spends much of her time reading French and English historical novels, entertaining foreign visitors and receiving Palestinians who need problems solved.

She also has stepped in to help her husband: Through her contacts in France, she has managed to get 750 tons of wheat into Gaza this month to help relieve the siege Israel imposed on the strip after a spate of suicide bombings.

Suha Arafat, a Palestinian Christian and the daughter of a West Bank journalist, met her husband while working as his secretary at PLO headquarters in Tunisia in the late 1980s

In 1991, she married the then-60-year-old revolutionary in a secret ceremony in Tunis.

Setting up house has not been easy. Arafat, who used to sleep in a different place every night to foil any assassination attempts, couldn't understand why his wife considered their one-story house in Gaza City too small.

As she spoke, a cry rose from the brightly furnished nursery. Zahwa, who has her father's eyes and nose, had awakened.

Tugging at her mother's whiteand-black suit, Zahwa sucked milk from a bottle decorated with cartoon characters.

Suha Arafat worries about bringing up Zahwa. She wants to give her as normal a childhood as possible, but she is surrounded by bodyguards even when she is taken out for a short stroll.

5 VOTES SHORT Minimum wage boost thwarted by Republicans

Marcy Gordon Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Congressional Democrats failed again Thursday to force a vote on raising the minimum wage, but promised to keep the issue alive this election year and challenge Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole.

Republicans accused them of political opportunism and partisan attacks on Dole, who is President Clinton's certain election rival.

Knowing they face a tough fight. the minority Democrats said they'll try again and again to bring up the issue, which they are framing in terms of family values.

"The fact is the Republican Party has declared a war on working families," Dole's counterpart, Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., told reporters before the Democrats tried for votes in both the House and Senate. "This war on working families has got to stop."

In a 55-45 tally on the Senate floor, the Democrats fell five votes short of the 60 needed to shut off debate and force a vote on an amendment, proposed by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to national parks legislation. The amendment would boost the minimum wage from the current $4.25 an hour to $5.15 an hour in two 45cent steps over the next two years.

Despite the setback, key Democrats later told reporters they were encouraged by the size of the vote in their favor and its bipartisan character. "We have more than enough votes to pass minimum wage," Daschle said. "Sooner or later, this will pass. ... We'll be back offering this week after week until we get it passed."

Across the Capitol in the House, Republicans beat back two attempts by Democrats to attach an increase in the minimum wage to a measure increasing the government's borrowing authority.

Both were procedural motions. Republicans defeated one of them by ruling that raising the minimum wage would violate a "Contract With America" law enacted last year that forbids the federal government from imposing regulations on local governments without compensating them for their cost. The Republicans "are doing procedural pirouettes to avoid a real debate and preventing the public from seeing where they really stand on this issue," Labor Secretary Robert Reich said in an interview. "At a minimum, the public deserves to have its representatives stand up and be counted."

Wrighton said COGS - which was organized in 1993 in an effort to affiliate with a union, achieve stable bargaining powers with the UI administration and improve graduate student working conditions - does not accurately represent the issues of graduate students.

But unionization backers argue formally organized graduate students - many of whom are Teaching Assistants - is the only way to protect their interests.

Vote failed once

The vote on unionization, to be held April 16, marks the second time the volatile issue has been decided at the ballot box.

A previous attempt at unionization in 1994 was voted down. Since the 1994 vote, COGS has been regrouping for this year's vote, Anderson said.

"We spent the time reorganizing and finding new people to continue out effort," he said. "We now have a full membership of more than Those opposed to COGS have expressed a concern about voting procedures, Oppenheim said. Elections will be held for one day at two polling sites, whereas elections in 1994 were spread over two days in several buildings throughout the UI campus.

Opponents say the voting format will hurt their side because they have not organized as formally as COGS and fewer people might turn out because of the limited polling

'They're already assuming they're going to win even though they lost last time," Oppenheim said. "They don't care about people who don't agree with them.'

Anderson said COGS members signed authorities saying they have taken the initiative to inform graduate students about the urgency of unionization through home visits and membership meet-

Spangler may not be the only Hawkeye to compete in Atlanta this summer.

"We're hoping Ellen Grant can make the Olympic team for Jamaica," head Iowa women's track Coach Jerry Hassard said. "She's a very good prospect for the Jamaican team.'

Grant is hoping to represent Jamaica in the 400-meters.

Head men's Coach Ted Wheeler said there are a number of current and former athletes with visions of Atlanta dancing in their heads, including alum Anthuan Maybank. Maybank, who is running for Nike and has been training in California with long jumper Mike Powell, among others, has already been projected as an Olympian in either the 200- or 400-meters.

Maybank said he is confident about his chances of making the team because his current coaches wouldn't be wasting their time on him if it were out of reach.

"I'm sitting pretty well," Maybank said from his home in Iowa City Wednesday. "I had a great season last year. The first thing is to get out of this cold weather and get (back) out to California."

A current Hawkeye with a good chance of joining Maybank on the U.S. team is senior Andre Morris.

"The most important thing we try to do is make sure they keep some clarity and focus and not have things put pressure on them."

UI track coach Ted Wheeler

Morris qualified for the Olympic team record-holder in the hurdles, trials in the 400-meters with a time of 45.15 last year and currently ranks seventh in the United States in that event. The top six finishers will make the team.

The Hawkeyes may also be wellrepresented on the Canadian National team.

Dion Trowers, Chris Davis and Monte Raymond are all in a position to make the team. The number of qualifiers for the Canadian team depends on Olympic qualifying times, rather than the U.S. policy of choosing a certain number of and it's working for me." After coming in only a half-second off the qualifying time last year, Raymond is confident he will make the team this year.

"The only thing that can stop me is injuries," he said. "My running technique has been improving. My strength is there and my speed." Davis is also confident he will make the Games in the 400-meter

"It's going good so far," he said. "Out in California, I just ran a personal best in the 200, so obviously, I'm in shape physically."

Davis said he also has a chance to qualify in the 200, but is focusing on his stronger event - the ting their sights on the trials. Herd is hoping to qualify in the 10K, Page in the 200 or 400-meter dash and Yamini in the long jump.

Although the Hawkeyes hope to break their Olympic dry spell and qualify several runners, Wheeler said he prefers to keep the pressure off his athletes.

"The most important thing we try to do is make sure they keep some clarity and focus and not have things put pressure on them," Wheeler said. "It's a very pressureoriented circumstance. ■ The U.S. Congress has stepped out of bounds by interfering in the internal policies of other nations and forcing American policies.

he U.S. Congress is getting out of control. Acting more like a body made up of an impassioned and vindictive mob, the current Congress is acting more and more as if it were the legislative body for the whole world - without having been elected to such a

The way American legislators are attempting to control the world is rather creative. Basically, they pass legislation setting U.S. priorities in a particular field - fighting drugs, for instance. However, the same legislation requires the president to make annual determinations as to whether other nations are meeting U.S. expectations in fighting drugs in their own countries.

If a country is determined by the United States to have failed to meet the requirements set forth in American laws, U.S. foreign aid to that nation is cut, or, worse, that nation's access to the American market is curtailed

Through this type of legislation the United States is, in effect, imposing its priorities on other hapless nations. American legislators are imposing their values and priorities on other nations without those nations having any input. Other countries are not told directly what they must do - that would be too blatant a violation of international law. Instead, they are told to do as Americans wish, lest they

In an alarming amount of legislation, Congress is resorting to this type of coercive measure in order to shape the internal policies of other nations. For instance, in the recent, mindless expansion of sanctions against Cuba, law permits Cuban-Americans to sue non-American corporations for the alleged use of their former properties in Cuba. Some foreign executives doing business in Cuba are also prohibited from coming to the United States

American law may control the behavior of American corporations in foreign countries. However, American law may not control the behavior of foreign companies doing business in other countries. The rest of the world does not agree with the new sanctions imposed by the Unit-

There is great resentment towards the practice of exposing non-American companies to liability in U.S. courts. The United States is trying to force a change in the policies of other nations vis-à-vis Cuba. This is unacceptable. The European Union and Canada have chal-

In the post-Cold War era, a vindictive, almost mean, streak of Americans has appeared on the world stage. No longer worried about the Soviets, America is taking its friends for granted. American law currently imposes senseless, often mean-hearted punishment on other nations for exercising their sovereign rights. This cavalier attitude will get the United States more enemies and little respect.

UI shouldn't support student cigar group

To the Editor: As a dental hygienist and coordinator of a Tobacco Intervention Program, I am appalled that, as Ryan Lumsden stated in the March 11 Press Citizen article, "Lightin' up," he "encountered no resistance" — in fact, "he only had positive support" - in the formation of the newly formed student organization, the UI

Tobacco is an addictive substance and a major public health problem in our society. I believe the UI needs to re-evaluate its policy on approval of groups they recognize.

One thing I can guarantee is the members of this group will have stained teeth, smoker's breath, a tobacco odor in their clothes and hair and increased risk of various health problems including emphysema, oral cancer and periodontal diseases. They will also, as a group, increase the health care costs for each person in the state of lowa. The cost of cigars is not the "$3, $6, or even $15 and up," as stated by Lumsden. The actual cost should be measured in loss of life, lost days from work or school and related health care costs, as well as the poor example being set for younger non-users. I spoke to Lumsden on the phone and he appears to be an intelligent individual. As a health care professional, I am sorry he has chosen an obviously destructive behavior such as cigar smoking. If he realizes the risks and chooses to continue the behavior, that is his choice. If he wants to organize a group and meet monthly, that is his choice, too. The problem I have is the university's support for such a group. I feel the UI should stand for what is morally, philosophically and intellectually correct and not support this group in any way.

Conference center needed in I.C.

To the Editor:

As the last urban renewal parcel is marketed, I urge the Iowa City City Council to consider the concept of a conference center linked cooperatively to a cultural center as it develops the RFP. A feasibility study, funded by the city and completed in 1994, studied the concept of a linked conference and cultural center, a mixing of non-art and cultural uses. The study laid out guidelines for the development of such a facility, which indicate the strength of this cooperatively linked concept.

Art supporters understand that economic realities may dictate the cultural center component be accomplished in phases. Community needs must be balanced against community resources. However, once completed, a combined conference and cultural center could be of primary importance to the continued vitality of Iowa City as downtown merchants confront the challenge of the planned regional mall.

A mixed-use facility would bring business, culture, shopping, education and entertainment activities together in a manner which would enhance the unique image of lowa City and — along with the Iowa Arts Festival, Friday night concert series, lowa City Jazz Festival and the family fun day - attract people to downtown Iowa City. Clearly, a vibrant, thriving downtown lowa City benefits

Striving to achieve freedom

Uncle Sam's Welcoming Address:

"Attention ladies and gentlemen ... and minorities. You have just entered the United States of America. This is the greatest country in the world and if you think otherwise there is a plane awaiting your departure. In this country you will honor everything American - from the National Anthem to apple pies. Even though this is a capitalist economy whereby white males own all resources, all of you will feel the false notion of democracy. If you dare oppose the American norms, you will be suppressed, oppressed and eliminated. We will not entertain any persons or groups who try to

The NBA has a rule stating "all players are to stand in an orderly fashion in honor of the National Anthem." This country was founded on freedom of expression, freedom of speech, and freedom of religion, but today, freedom seems to be connected to a very short leash.

rebel. Don't fret, for you have complete freedom as long as you do not step out of American boundaries. This is a government of the people, by the people and for the people. This is also a government dominated by white men. I welcome you to the United States of America, the land of the free and the contained."

Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf, guard for the Denver Nuggets, was suspended by the National Basketball Association for not standing in honor of the National Anthem. He has recently been reinstated, only after agreeing to stand and pray during the ceremony.

Tysie McDowell

This is a very clear sign of oppression. The NBA has a rule stating "all players are to stand in an orderly fashion in honor of the National Anthem." This country was founded on freedom of expression, freedom of speech, and freedom of religion, but today, freedom seems to be connected to a very short leash.

There is little reason why any person of African descent should honor the National Anthem. The lyrics pertain to European-Americans only. As Abdul-Rauf said, "it is a sign of oppression and tyranny." The song was written at a time when Africana people were property and it is a song about freedom which was obtained solely by and for whites.

I am not surprised by the NBA's decision to suspend Abdul-Rauf. All American institutions perpetuate the norms and values of the mainstream culture. What I am frustrated with is the passiveness of the Africana NBA players. Many players announced they supported Abdul-Rauf, yet they continued to run up and down the court, jumping and dunking every time their master said so. Instead of standing firm in their beliefs, the players backed down and let brother Abdul-Rauf fight this one alone.

U-N-I-T-Y! The NBA is almost 75 percent Africana. We must begin to realize our potential power when it comes to situations like these. If the players had bonded together, walked off the court, and demanded their freedom of expression, the NBA would have overturned its decision. Africana players know the NBA is simply nothing without them. We all know the power of the dollar, and the players could have had the NBA begging on its knees. American institutions change by fundamental economic shifts.

Economic boycotts were highly exercised in the '50s and '60s. Africana people knew how to hurt the system and they did so by carefully spending money in certain areas. The Montgomery Bus Boycott and the national boycott of Woolworth stores are only two of the many economic plans which worked for people of African descent. The same financial plans can be executed today if we organize and pull our resources together.

Resources are hard to come by in most Africana neighborhoods. Shops and stores owned by everybody except Africana people flood Africana communities. When Africana shops do open up, it is hard for them to compete with the larger, well-established shops. This is a critical time for our people to stop spending their dollars in the other stores and start supporting our brothers and sisters. Support will not come from anybody but ourselves.

There are many Africana organizations which have revolutionary goals. They all want equality, yet their individual ways of achieving equality vary. If these groups joined together, with other diaspora African groups, the possibilities would be endless - and beautiful.

We must utilize the few resources we do have. The theory of "divide and conquer" has been exercised extensively by European-Americans. Realizing this, we need to unite and support each other and begin building our own foundation. Only through communal efforts will. we take steps towards ultimate liberation.

THE FINEST THE UNIVERSITY HAS TO OFFER?

Riding the wave of fan loyalty

A snapshot from spring break: I'm having lunch with a friend I haven't seen in more than a year. We're comparing experiences, telling scandalous tales of mutual friends, when I start detailing my return to college. My friend stops me and asks, "Have you become a Hawkeye fan

The answer to my friend's question is no, not really. The likelihood of my becoming passionately attached to the Hawkeye basketball or football team is approximately equal to my becoming passionately attached to the UI Chemistry Department. The widely chronicled adventures of this institution's athletic teams simply have nothing to do with why I'm here today and what I'm doing now. It's not that I don't like sports. I do. I'm addicted. I had to force myself to put down this week's issue of Sporting News to work on this column. It's just that it's too late in my life to form new fan loyalties. But the question got me to thinking about just what fan loyalty is.

Over the last 20 years, the rise of adversarial sports journalism, the influence of cable television and the fabulous amounts of money to be made in the industry have raised fandom to something far beyond the simple leisure-time diversion it was for the better part of a hundred years. Everybody, it seems, needs somebody to follow. Here in Iowa, it's the Hawkeyes.

It's said the intensity of Hawk fans has much to do with the fact that there's no major professional sports franchise in the state. That's probably true. In Illinois, for instance, Fighting Illini teams are definitely second-tier behind Chicago's pro teams. In Iowa, the Hawks rule, but those of us who live in or close to the state's big cities may not realize that out on the windblown, grain-elevator-studded prairie, Hawkeye fandom borders on religious

Last fall I was invited to one of the regional I-Club banquets, an annual event for which a few hundred boosters pay twelve bucks a head. Sportscaster/MC Jim Zabel gets off a few unfunny lines about drinking and driving, a few UI coaches hype their upcoming seasons, and a university fund-raising executive reminds the faithful their freely-given dollars are the only thing which makes it all possible. It was a deeply weird evening for a detached observer, made even weirder by the realization that the most rabid fans in the place seemed to be either very young - preadolescent - or somewhat older - late forties and beyond. There didn't seem to be a lot of twenty- and thirtysomethings there.

This brings into focus a second snapshot from spring break: I'm in Minneapolis during the second weekend of the break, when the NCAA men's basketball regional is in town. I see dozens - maybe hundreds -of people walking around wearing University of Kentucky paraphernalia, the Wildcats being one of the four teams playing in the event. Almost none of these people look to be student-aged; some are very young, but the vast majority appear to be much older. They look a lot like the prosperous businessmen of small-town Iowa I saw at the I-

And so it occurs to me that perhaps the passionate attachments of our sporting lives have a particular curve. The loyalties form when we're very young, and like many obsessions of those years, they're total. We reach our middle years, high school to late thirties maybe, forced to concentrate on other things - getting the degree. the job, the house, the promotion and so on. It's more important to pay for the kids' dental work than to buy a logo jacket, even though we'd really like one. After a few more years go by, we can concentrate once again on our youthful loyalties. We dress in the colors from head to foot We follow our team halfway across the country to the regional, not blinking at tickets with three-digit face values and hotel rooms which are even more pricey.

The curve may not hold for everybody. Perhaps you jump on and off bandwagons without a second thought. But I've seen it happen - the curve gets most of us sooner or later. It's why L happily pay scalper's prices for Packers tickets now, and why in a few years, you might start making donations to the UI athletic department, although you don't care much today That's fan loyalty coming home to roost. You can run, but you can't hide.

Clinton protects public housing

Sonya Ross Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Clinton ordered eviction Thursday for anyone committing a violent or drug-related crime in public housing, declaring a "one strike and you're out" rule was needed to make such housing safe.

The president signed a directive ordering Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros to issue national guidelines for housing authorities to incorporate the policy through tenant screening and lease agree-

The policy means any resident could be evicted for being involved in a drug-related or violent crime, or for allowing a guest to take part in those activities. Conceivably, a family could be left homeless by the actions of one of its members.

-For some, one strike and you're out sounds like hardball. Well, it is," Clinton said. "If you mess up your community, you have to turn in your key. There is no reason in the world to put the rights of a

lim Abrams

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Congress gave final approval early today to farm legislation that would end price-based subsidies and government planting controls that have been the basis of farm policy since the Depression.

The House passed the bill 318-89 shortly before 1 a.m., hours after Senate approval by a 74-26 vote. President Clinton has voiced "very serious reservations" about the bill but has said he would sign it.

WASHINGTON - Bob Dole led a pep rally for Republican lawmakers Thursday designed to head off internal squabbles and reassure any doubters he is no moderate or conciliator - but a "party animal."

Joined by House Speaker Newt Gingrich in the public show of party unity, Dole outlined in general terms an ambitious election-year legislative agenda which includes a second try at items already vetoed by President Clinton: welfare reform, tax cuts and a balanced budget heavy with spending cuts.

"It's going to be probably a do-too-much Congress," Dole quipped. "The trouble with Clinton, he got mixed up," Dole said. "He signed the bad bills and vetoed the good bills. But that won't happen in my administration. I'll sign the good bills and veto the bad bills." But Democrats were already promising a bitter fight.

"This group is extremist and radical," House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri said.

Tom Daschle, the Senate's Democratic leader, derided Dole's agenda as "old Republican ideas that are dressed up in designer clothes. You strip away those designer clothes and you get Herbert Hoover in a leisure suit."

The South Dakota senator also renewed a pledge to try and force congressional Republicans into an uncomfortable vote on increasing the minimum wage. Three times already this week, Democrats in

Once again, political gadfly Ross Perot has said he will run for president if "the volunteers" ask him to enter the campaign.

So what are the volunteers say-

"It's about split on whether we want Mr. Perot to run," said C. W. Miller, president of Perot's United We Stand organization in Iowa.

So even though Dole has his party's nomination wrapped up early, he will have to wait all summer to know who his third-party challengers will be. Once again, the major parties are waiting for Perot.

Easy being green? While potential Perot and Buchanan candidacies would hurt Dole, another already real, thirdparty challenge may hurt President Bill Clinton.

Guns and money

The U.S. House of Representatives passed a bill last week to repeal the assault weapons ban, but the vote had more to do with the 1996 campaign than the Constitutional right to bear arms.

Opponents of the ban knew the Senate would not even take up the measure, and a Clinton veto was a guarantee. So why bother with a

Big brother says Marbury's on his way to the NBA

NEW YORK (AP) - Is one season at Georgia Tech enough to convince Stephon Marbury he's ready to play in the NBA?

One of Marbury's older brothers said the freshman guard will enter the NBA draft, but Yellow Jackets coach Bobby Cremins insists Marbury is still considering

"No, Stephon has not made the final decision," Cremins said. "Everything I've been hearing about caught me totally off guard. We are in the exploratory stage right now."

Cremins said an announcement about Marbury's future will be made Tuesday or Wednesday.

Donald Marbury Jr., one of Stephon's three older brothers, told the Daily News in New York the decision already has been made.

"He's definitely coming out," Donald Marbury said. "That's what he wants to do. He said, 'That's my dream. I just want to follow my dream."

Hawkeye swimmer and divers compete at NCAA's

The lowa men's swimming and diving team captured a 15th- and 26th-place finish in Day 1 of the NCAA Men's Swimming and Diving Championships in Austin, Texas.

Three Hawkeyes are representing the lowa men's swimming team at this weekend's meet. Divers Vico Hidalgo and Tete Gil, along with swimmer Marco Minonne made the trip to Texas.

"It's the smallest group we've had at the NCAA's in a long time, but it was a tough Big Ten meet," lowa head coach Glenn Patton said, referring to the murky-green pool the Big Ten meet was held in.

Hidalgo finished 15th and Gill took 26th in one-meter diving. Hidalgo was in fourth place going into the eleventh and final dive, but missed on it, costing him a high finish.

The two divers will compete today in the three-meter board.

"I think the three-meter board is the best board for our divers," Patton said.

Patton is also optimistic about Minonne's chances. He will swim the 100 breaststroke today and the 200 Saturday.

"He's looking a lot better than in the Big Ten's," Patton said. Minnone placed second in the 200 and third in the 100 at the Big Ten

"(The three competitors) atti-tudes are very good," Patton said. "They're positive. We're looking forward to a great day tomorrow."

You've read all the preseason I picked four-of-six division winwinners. Of course, I also picked the 62-81 Cardinals to take the wildcard and last-place San Francisco to win its division, but let's not think about that.

Instead, let's focus on the present. Enough intro, it's time to find who's going to win what and by how much.

AL East

Simply put — Baltimore is loaded. The Orioles are going to prove that a combination of free agency and a strong farm system is the way to go. Atlanta was the first to prove this little theory. Cal Ripken, Brady Anderson and Mike Mussina are the home-grown boys. Rafael Palmiero and Roberto Alomar are the high-priced talent.

Oh yeah, let's not forget about Bobby Bonilla and David Wells. New Baltimore GM Pat Gillick's only flub thus far was signing closer Randy Myers, which will prove costly in the AL Championship.

And the biggest Orioles addition? No, not Alomar. Look no further than the bench and new manager Davey Johnson. As one of the four best managers in the game, Johnson - a former player for Baltimore - is destined to lead the birds down the same road as his last two teams, the Mets and Reds: the postseason.

As for the rest of the division, no wildcard for the East. Boston should come in second. The Red Sox have a decent manager and their top of the order is jam

Chris James The Daily Iowan

It's put up or shut up this weekend when the Iowa men's gymnastics team travels to Columbus, Ohio for the 1996 Big Ten Championships.

The meet takes place Saturday and Sunday with competition beginning at noon each day.

"This was the meet we were looking forward to all year. We're definitely aiming for Ohio State and I hope we get a chance to beat them in their own

Tom Dunn, lowa men's gymnastics coach on the Big Ten tournament

It will be no cake walk for the Hawkeyes as five Big Ten teams are ranked in the Top 10. Ohio State is No.1, Iowa is No.3, Michigan State and Penn State are fifth and sixth respectively and Minnesota is 10th.

Iowa has a shot to avenge its only Big Ten losses of the season against Michigan State and Ohio State. But head coach Tom Dunn said it is going to be tough in enemy territory.

"Ohio State is going to be tough in their own gym," Dunn said. "But this was the meet we were looking forward to all year. We're definitely aiming for Ohio State and I hope we get a chance to beat them in their own gym.'

Senior Jay Thornton is looking to defend his 1995 Big Ten floor exercise title. Nagging injuries have kept Thornton from competing throughout the season, but he said he feels healthier than he has

"Hopefully I can stay injury free the rest of the season. It's been tough to watch from the sidelines at times but I feel I still can have a successful year if I can stay healthy the rest of the way, Thornton said.

Jon Bassoff The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's gymnastics team looks to surprise the rest of the conference this weekend at the Big Ten tournament. The Hawkeyes (7-11 overall) have dropped each of their three Big Ten meets this season. Still, the young Iowa squad has begun to gel in recent weeks and will look to put it all together Saturday night at Ohio State. Senior Kim Baker leads Iowa into action. She is completing yet another outstanding campaign. Baker is coming off a team-high 38.8 in the all-around in Iowa's last meet. Two weeks ago against Iowa State, Baker set team records in the all-around with a 39.525, on the vault (10.00), and the beam (9.875).

Iowa is also sparked by several sensational freshmen. Beth Brown, Lori Whitwer, Christine Roselli and Shrutika Sulkar all have had tremendous initial seasons.

The Daily Iowan

After posting an 18-8 record during its non-conference schedule, the Iowa softball team is ready for phase two - the Big Ten campaign.

The Hawkeyes travel to Ann Arbor, Mich., for three games end. The two teams will play a doubleheader Saturday and a single game Sunday. Both events will begin at 1 p.m.

For the most part, head coach Gayle Blevins has been pleased with how the team has played up to this point in the season.

"I think in our first three trips that we've steadily built," she moments on trips where we haven't played particularly well, but I think we have finished the second and third trips on a pretty good point."

Senior captain Tasha Reents is also optimistic as to how the sea-

"I think we're definitely going in the right direction," Reents said. "We continued to build 37-23 advantage over the Wolverthroughout our tournaments."

Blevins hopes the change in format this year from playing a series of four games to three games in the Big Ten will help her team be more consistent.

"What we're trying to do is to get better day to day and not be against the Wolverines this week- overly concerned with who it is that we're playing," Blevins said. "That's the challenge for our team this year, is to be a good day-today team. That's the sign of a mature team."

The Hawkeyes are also looking to do the little things that make the difference between winning

"It's a game of small details," said. "We have had some Blevins said. "The small parts of your game are really what makes your game.

"They did lose a couple of very big contributors, but their young kids got a lot of experience last year and they got a good recruiting class that are already in the line-up for them," Blevins said. "They're going to be pretty good. It will be a tough series for us."

The Wolverines won the Big Ten regular season title last year and the Big Ten Tournament, beating Iowa twice in the tournament.

The Hawkeyes are hoping to turn things around this season.

'There's a lot of excitement going into Big Ten's," Reents said. "Big Ten's are huge. (Winning the Big Ten regular season title is) our main goal this year. That's the title we want. That shows we can be consistent day in and day

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Struggling Hawkeyes shuffle lineup

Shannon Stevens

The Daily Iowan When life isn't a bowl of cherries, perhaps it's time to change the ingredient. After losing two-of-three matches in California, Iowa women's tennis coach Jenny Mainz decided it was time to shuffle the lineup.

Mainz hopes a switch at the No. 1 doubles position will cure the Hawkeyes' Big Ten Conference woes when Iowa (8-7) travels to Illinois and Purdue (6-3) this weekend.

Junior Kristen McCracken and freshman Erin Wolverton (3-6) will move from No. 2 doubles to the top spot with Sasha Boros and Krissy Campbell (3-9) taking over the No.

"I've always said that people have to earn their positions and Erin and Kris have certainly earned the opportunity to play the

No. 1 spot," Mainz said.

"I've always said that people have to earn their positions and Erin and Kris have certainly earned the opportunity to play the No.

The Hawkeyes have dropped all three of their Big Ten matchups thus far, but Mainz is confident that the losing streak will end this weekend.

Mainz said the recent return of anyway."

junior Robin Niemeier from a back injury should help bolster the Hawkeye attack.

"Robin Niemeier is an impact player for us, even though she's not playing in the top of the lineup," Mainz said. "She knows how to compete and when it's close I'm going to put my money on Robin."

Mainz said the Hawkeyes should have no problem if they play consistently, but stressed that they must come prepared for the match.

"There are a lot of teams out there that are deceptive, they're scrappy," she said. "The key is that they find a way to win and I think we have to improve in that area. and say 'Hey, we're not having a great day but it doesn't matter, we're going to find a way to win

WOMEN'S TRACK AND FIELD

Hawks head for Florida sunshine

Chris James

The Daily Iowan The sun and fun of spring break hasn't totally ended for the Iowa women's track team. The Hawkeyes return to Florida to participate in the Florida Relays

Friday and Saturday at the University of Florida in Gainesville. Iowa had a solid showing at last week's Florida State relays and, according to head coach Jerry Hassard, is looking to improve before rival Iowa State in Ames at the Iowa State Invitational.

"Our distance running is improving each time out and I'm very pleased with how well our sprinters have performed," Hassard said. "Hopefully we can continue this improvement into the outdoor season. We have some very tough meets coming up and we're going to have to be ready to go."

This weekend's meet is a non-next week's clash with intrastate scoring contest, with over 40 universities and club teams represented. Hawkeye junior Briana Benning has been invited to participate in the invitational portion of the meet Saturday. She will be competing in the 800-meter run.

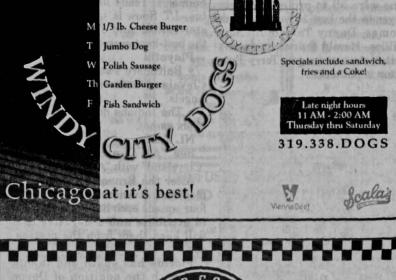

> Iowa sophomore Megan Maurer is looking to improve on her thirdplace finish in the discus at last year's relays. Maurer also hopes to make noise in the shot-put and hammer events.

Cleveland's going to win.
OK, with that out of the way, let's discuss who's going to finish second. Minnesota finished dead last a season ago. The Twins also played poor in 1986 and finished last in '90. A year later they won the series. But in those years there was no juggernaut known as the Indians.

Come September, Minny will be fighting Seattle tooth and nail for the wildcard while another member of the Central - Chicago will again try to figure out what went wrong.

The White Sox offseason additions were all to protect the best player in the last 15 years, Frank Thomas. Danny Tartabull, Tony Phillips, Harold Baines; it doesn't matter. As a manager, Terry Bevington is pathetic.

LOS ANGELES - Spike Lee is celebrating his 10th anniversary in Hollywood with the March debut of "Girl 6." Celebrating the anniversary? Surviving it might be a better

The insurgent and inventive filmmaker's new movie opened to poor reviews and weak sales, a planned Jackie Robinson biography just fell apart when a studio balked over its price tag and Lee's previous release, "Clockers," underperformed badly at the box office.

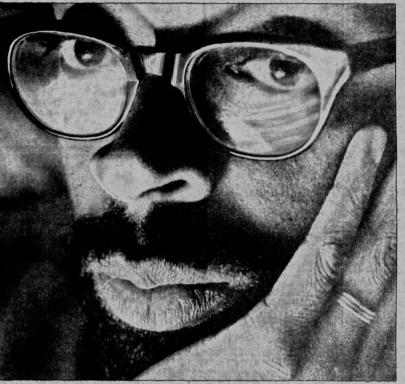

Lee was criticized in Brazil for his participation in making a music video for Michael Jackson earlier this year. Police said a drug lord played host to Jackson and Lee when they shot the video in his Brazilian slum. Lee said they did not "knowingly" work with drug

In its first weekend of national release, "Girl 6" finished seventh on the box-office charts with sales of $2.5 million. Tellingly, its opening weekend per-screen average was worse than that of "Up Close and Personal," playing in its fourth weekend.

Outside of 1992's "Malcolm X," none of Lee's last five films have done spectacularly well at ticket windows. Despite good reviews, "Clockers" made $13 million, 1994's "Crooklyn" grossed $13.6 million, "Malcolm X" $48.1 million, 1991's "Jungle Fever" $32.3 million and 1992's "Mo Better Blues" $16.2 mil-

'Mo' Better Blues,' 'Jungle Fever,'

Even for a well-known director, it was a very difficult movie to get superior just to be judged mediocre. Once a darling of film critics, reviewers have turned particularly nasty, and some of the "Girl 6" critiques were quite personal.

"I can take any shot (any critics) want to take," Lee says. "What I will say is that a lot of times these critics don't do what their job is. And that is review the film at "A lot of times they review the persona of Spike Lee, what they feel about Spike Lee. I don't know how my being court side at Knicks games can end up in a review of my films. Look at the first movie Woody Allen made after the whole (adoption) thing. Nobody mentioned (anything).

Part of the problem might be that Lee is overexposed and does too many TV advertisements. How can he be taken seriously as an artist, the argument goes, when Lee has gone so corporate - down to his $1,000 basketball seats?

"Girl 6," Lee's new film, follows an aspiring actress (Theresa Randle) who dreams of moving to Hollywood. When not auditioning for sleazy directors, Randle is support-

Look out, Babyface. Impressive debuts from artists D'Angelo and Tony Rich have set the world of rhythm and blues on

Although their sounds are dis-tinctly different, both have combined a bluesy, old-fashioned feel with today's slick crooning to produce two of the most original albums in years.

Previously known for writing the Boyz II Men tune "I Sit Away, blues back in R&B. On his debut album Words, Rich crafts classy and sorrow-filled songs which seem out of sync with his blatant, sex-filled counterparts. While love to you," Rich subtly suggests "I'll make you feel like a woman."

Rich establishes this mature, intimate feel which surrounds the entire album through careful, intricate execution. From "Grass is Green," seen from the point of view of a misunderstood criminal, to the up-tempo "Hey Blue," the emphasis is on intelligent lyrics and multi-layered harmonies.

This can be clearly experienced on "Missing You." Here, Rich spins his expert craftsmanship into a delicate ballad which is as good as anything you will hear this year from Babyface or anyone else in the R&B industry.

With his sparse goatee and black leather jacket, D'Angelo appears to be Rich's flamboyant, dangerous older brother. On his debut Brown Sugar, D'Angelo sparked interest with his traditional, bluesy sound. Where Rich uses a drum machine and synthesizer, D'Angelo dazzles on the piano and bass. The result sounds more old-fashioned and removed. D'Angelo accomplishes this Rich is on a mission to put the bygone feel with the subtle, powerful arrangement of his instruments. On singles such as "Crusin'" and "Jonz in My Bonz," D'Angelo handles the swing to infectious perfection, melting his Boyz II Men belt out "I'll make voice around the glowing harmonies. As with Rich's Words, Brown Sugar's gliding vocals and relaxed instrumentals take some getting used to.

If you are patient, you will soon find D'Angelo's earthy sound to transcend the contemporary limitations of his genre and become an engrossing expression of emotion which pleases the heart as much as the head.

With his current hit single "Lady," D'Angelo invades the crowded field where Mariah Carey and Boyz II Men reign

Whether Rich's and D'Angelo's debuts will impact their contemporary rivals has yet to be seen. The duo did combine talents to pay a well-received tribute to Stevie Wonder at this year's Grammy Awards. They may not steal the thunder quite yet, but at this rate, they are making some noise.
