Steve O'Donnell, president of Local 12 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said the union represents 5,000 UI merit employees. The protest offers some of them a chance to voice their opposition to the downsizing and loss of jobs many of them face, he said.

"The fate of the employees at the hospital is in their hands now," O'Donnell said. "If there's interest, people will be there. It's really going to be a labor issue on Friday."

The protest will not be a demonstration; instead, it will play an informative role, O'Donnell said.

As Freddy Jones Band fans fill the Union Main Lounge tonight, Carver-Hawkeye Arena will stand empty - haunted by failed attempts to bring bands like R.E.M., Phish, Bush and the Goo Goo Dolls to the UI.

UI senior and SCOPE Director Mark Achey said the UI has lost some big names to Iowa State University because of a lack of catwalks at Carver.

Clicking your way to an exotic vacation

The Daily Iowan

Did you suspect the last time you planned a vacation that your travel agents were holding something back? That if they only rooted around on their computer terminal a bit longer, they'd be able to find you a cheaper flight?

With one new World Wide Web site, you can book your own flights, spend hours looking for the lowest possible fares and travel vicariousy to the most exotic destinations. Travelocity (www.travelocity.com) is a site that offers free access to the commercial airline reservation system - once only available to travel agents and users of online information services such as CompuServe, America Online and Prodigy.

The site requires new users to register, but this is free and does not require any personal financial information, such as a credit card

How about a long weekend in Paris? It is April, after all. Log on to Travelocity's site, and within minutes you'll find out that a round-trip economy class flight from Cedar Rapids to Paris, leaving Thursday afternoon and arriving Monday morning (you'll miss a few classes), will only put you back $1,105 per person. The same trip first-class will cost you $5,029.

Besides getting you there, Travelocity will help you find things to do while you're there. The site offers tourist information on nearly every city in the world. But the site is a bit slow, so you may want to check out a few other sites to help plan your travels.

Lonely Planet, famous for its down-to-earth travel guides that feature out-of-the-way sites in places all over the world, maintains an excellent travel Web site (www.lonelyplanet.com) for wouldbe adventurers. The site includes a section on unusual destinations.

Lonely Planet's information on Timbuktu. (A round-trip flight from Cedar Rapids to a destination within a long bus ride from Timbuktu costs $4,269 economy class, and $5,687 first class.) Why go there? Lonely Planet explains: "Travelers who make the pilgrimage witness a city lost in the desert, overtaken by both history and geography. It seems only a matter of time before the encroaching sands of the Sahara blanket the city forever.'

Maybe Timbuktu is too pricey or you just don't have the time to fly halfway around the world but there are hundreds of Web sites featuring things to do in the Midwest. Chicago's official site (www.ci.chi.il.us) includes an electronic tour guide with listings about nearly every official attraction the city offers. Or if you prefer to do without leaving home, or a little more excitement, visit without leaving your computer.

If April in Paris isn't your idea Bianca's unofficial guide to the city of a far enough escape, check out (biancago.tezcat.com/chicago), where you won't find any museum reviews or tourist sites.

> Bianca claims her site will show "the Chicago you want to live in, not just visit: the neighborhood bars and clubs, the second-hand stores, the tattoo parlors, the performance art theatres, the indie music and movie stores; the part of Chicago you won't find on the corporate servers."

> And if school only lets you get away for a few hours, the Iowa Vir-

(www.jeonet.com/tourist) begins with a clickable map of the state and nearly every destination you could wish to explore. Clicking on Iowa City will send you to Iowa City Com (www.iowacity.com) where - if you're lucky - you might even discover something fun

Medical imaging expert named UI radiology head

The UI College of Medicine has named Dr. Michael Vannier head of the Department of Radiology. Vannier's appointment is effective

June 1. Vannier comes to the UI from Washington University in St. Louis, where he is professor of radiology at the Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology. He served as vice chairman for research at the institute from 1993 to 1994.

In addition, he is a staff radiologist at the Children's Hospital, Barnes Hospital, in St. Louis.

In announcing the appointment, Dr. Robert Kelch, dean of the College of Medicine, called Vannier "an outstanding scholar and research leader in the field of medical imaging.'

"We are very pleased Dr. Vannier has agreed to become head of our radiology department," Kelch said. "He brings to the position an outstanding record of teaching, research and service. His broad experience will serve us well in this time of great changes in academic medicine."

Vannier holds bachelor's degrees in mechanical engineertucky and in engineering science from Colorado State University. He earned his medical degree from UK.

Vannier is internationally known as an authority in the field of medical imaging, especially using computed tomography (CT) and magnetic resonance imaging to portray three-dimensional representations of parts of the body. His research has involved a wide array of CT applications, including the examination of many medical conditions in humans, anthropological measurements of the brains of prehistoric hominids ing from the University of Ken- and studies of brain size and shape in primates.

In addition, Vannier has used his engineering background to develop new tools and applications for computer-assisted medical imaging.

Vannier replaces Dr. Edmund Franken, Jr., who stepped down as department head on July 1, 1994, after 15 years in that posi-

Dr. Wilbur Smith, Jr., a professor in the department, has served as interim head since that time.

Wilder didn't apply "good pro-fessional judgment" in showing the Bertolucci film "1900" in his logic and debate class, the Jefferson County school board said Monday in voting unanimously to dismiss him.

Officials objected to nudity, drug use and violence portrayed in the movie about Italian fascism, which starred Donald Sutherland and Robert De Niro.

Bertolucci testified by telephone in support of Wilder in February. He defended his portrayal of Italian fascism as an accurate depiction of the atrocities of the time.

Wilder, 61, was suspended in March 1995 after he showed "1900" without obtaining permission from the school's principal.

Microsoft mogul to launch Ansel Adams' work into 21st century

NEW YORK (AP) - One day you won't have to leave home to gaze at the splendor of Yosemite.

Computer software mogul Bill Gates has obtained electronic rights to the works of acclaimed nature photographer Ansel Adams.

The deal, announced Tuesday, gives Gates the electronic rights to Adams' 2,500 images of the American wilderness. About 9 million books, posters and calendars based on the stark and moving photos have been sold.

The Corbis Corp., a Bellevue, Wash.-based company owned by Gates, is in the process of putting together an enormous digital library. Last fall, Corbis purchased the Bettmann Archive and its collection of millions of historical photos.

The specific terms of the deal were not disclosed, but Corbis will have exclusive rights to distribute Adams' photos electronically for 20 years. Adams died in 1984 at age 82.

"The goal is to try to take Ansel's work into the 21st century," said Bill Turnage, managing trustee of the Ansel Adams Trust.

Corbis will produce a CD-ROM title based on Adams' photography to be released in the fall of 1997.

"Heart on a Chain" Video and Discussion About Dating Violence

Room C, Iowa City Public Library, 4-6 pm This workshop begins a unique series of presentations specially designed to give educators a preview of some of the programs that

P.O.W.E.R. (People Out Working to End Rape) peer educators can provide for junior high and high school students. Instructors, counselors, administrative staff, students in Education and parents are especially invited to attend and increase their own awareness of the dynamics and impact of sexual abuse for adolescents and teens.

The Power Tools of Oppression (brown bag discussions) FRIDAY:

False Empowerment: Sometimes women are oppressed by the very people and things that promise to support them. Women's Resource and Action Center (WRAC), Noon - 1

Every Friday in April, RVAP will offer a place to come together for a frank discussion of some of the hidden, but powerful, means by which women and men in the 90's are still limited to gender roles and how these contribute to sexual violence. We will also explore those places where advances have been made in exposing and tearing down the wall of oppression. Please bring your lunch and share

All programs are free and open to the public. For more information call

UI senators elect executives

Elections were conducted during a scheduled caucus session during which the three separate senates accepted nominations for executives and voted on them by secret

Senators elected Allison Miller as executive to the Undergraduate Activities Senate (UAS), Meghan Henry as executive to the Undergraduate Collegiate Senate (UCS) and Paul Young as executive to the Graduate and Professional Student Senate (GPSS).

"I'm so excited to be an executive, since I have been working with the UAS since I was a freshman," Miller said.

UISG executives meet separately to address issues specific to their senate and work with other executives to share ideas. The UAS repents the concerns of UI student groups, the UCS addresses undergraduate academic issues and the GPSS communicates interests of graduate and professional stu-

Miller said her first project will be to establish a system of student leader round tables. Group representatives will first meet in an interest-specific discussion within the areas of academic affairs, religion, politics, minority affairs and campus life. Leaders from the smaller round tables will then meet in a bimonthly president's round table discussion to voice concerns and share resources.

"Student groups need to get to know each other so they can work on programs and help each other," Miller said. "It could be an incredible system.'

UCS executive Meghan Henry said she wants to place academic programming at the forefront of

"We are student representatives for any kind of collegiate problem that's why we have two undergraduate senates," she said. "Students assume they don't have a voice here. We want power in numbers."

Paul Young won the position of GPSS executive after a tie during the first round of caucus elections. Young previously served as president of the Graduate Student Senate, a Class II organization which addresses collegiate issues affecting graduate students.

Informational leaflets will be handed out to everyone who attends.

One staff member who plans to attend, Denise Scott, cook 1 in the hospital cafeteria, said the protest will probably get mixed reviews from the public.

"I think it will draw a lot of attention within the community," Scott said. "But I don't think it will change anybody's mind."

The UIHC plans to cut $65 million and 130 jobs through a fiveyear program. It is now in its second year of downsizing.

Dean Borg, information director at the UIHC, said the informational protest probably won't have any material effects, and he doesn't see any problem with it.

- most recently on March 31, 1995 - knows what to expect from a crowd that will be overwhelmingly college-aged.

"The last few times we've been there, it's been out of control," Healy said. "And since I'm the master of ceremonies, it'll be my job to make it out of control. I'm sure there'll be security problems, crowd-surfing and general chaos and if not, I'm going to whip it into

Freddy has been on the road almost nonstop since the band formed in 1991, racking up more than 1,000 shows across the country. But keeping the fires burning while playing between 250 and 275 shows a year isn't difficult, Healy

"My motivation is that I like to play live music and I get to jam on my guitar — it's what I'm here to do," Healy said. "People say it's so hard traveling, but it's not. You get on the bus, smoke a fatty, hang out all day somewhere cool like Seattle, eat some killer seafood, then go back to a nice hotel. It's a bueno schedule.'

The barrage of shows has influenced the band's sound, and its third release, North Avenue Wake Up Call, is a tour through the United States alongside the five musicians. The songs cover a variety of experiences from the band's tours, including somber events like the death of Horrocks' father in 1994 and more light-hearted moments like in the opening track, "Wait-

"'Waitress' is about one of our old bus drivers who was kind of an asshole," he said. "He was rude to waitresses at truck stops and I just fired him one day."

Although touring was the influence behind North Avenue Wake Up Call, Healy acknowledged there are downsides to being a vagrant the majority of the year.

my girl - I miss my soul mate, but

I'm a good boy, so she doesn't need to worry," he said. "It's not the easiest thing, but it's better than working nine to five. I'd go crazy if I had to do that. It is a sacrificial thing guys have wives and friends they're away from and we miss a lot of weddings and parties and things. But it's a sacrifice we're making because we believe in our music." Freddy, which has always been known as an upbeat band, even during the wave of depressing grunge sound, gets its energy from ts crowds and from each other. Before every show, the band gets in a huddle as a way to create that bond, Healy said.

'It's just a positive vibration where we all get together and all the positive energy flows into Freddy," Healy said. "We're just getting our minds on playing; it's a way to get our minds on the job at hand. It's like a team — you see the Bulls do it, and if it's good enough for Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen, then it must be good enough for Freddy.

"It reminds us to have a good time, smile and wave to the cute girls. It's team time — it just says, Jump in, boys."

The band has played the H.O.R.D.E. tour twice with bands like Blues Traveler and Rusted Root, but has yet to break through with massive record sales and heavy-rotation airplay like other bands of its genre.

The constant touring has helped the band tighten its style, improve its musical quality and gel as a unit. The band is known for its improvisational skills and spontaneity, and has been known to vary songs to keep audience members on their toes.

"We don't play with a set list anymore," Healy said. "We decide on the first couple songs and then go from there. We're wide open on stage. You just look at the people on stage with you and go. Everyone's on the same wavelength. It keeps "I'm not in my apartment, I miss everything fresh and different." In past shows, the band has effort to keep that live feel while recording their fourth album in September. The band will continue playing shows to keep the spontaneous vibe in their music and will also try to reproduce the conditions of the road while they're in the stu-

"Don't take a shower, don't wash your hair, don't eat on a regular schedule, don't sleep on a regular schedule - just act like we do on the road," Healy said. "We'll be on the road a few days and record for a few, then go back out - just to catch some of the touring vibe.'

The band has played with the gamut of big alterna-rock groups including Jackopierce, Blues Traveler, Sheryl Crow and Capricorn Records label mates Widespread Panic, and have shows scheduled this summer with the Dave Matthews Band.

But, Healy said, more often than not, when these bands break through they remain friends and there's seldom jealousy or competi-

"Last night I hung out with Mark (Bryan) from Hootie and the Blow-- we went to his house and had dinner with him and his fiancee," Healy said. "We've played lots of shows together, and success has not changed those guys at all. They've sold 12 million records and he can still pick me up and we can go out, just like before when they hadn't sold 12 million records and we were all hanging out backstage at a shitty little club."

Freddy will have plenty of opportunities to forge new friendships, develop new styles and have songworthy experiences when they head west next week for another round of shows that will last all summer.

We're just gonna be working hard all summer," Healy said, "traveling, playing and partying."

SCOPE had a Seattle company draw up plans for the construction of new catwalks, but the plans have raised concerns by the UI Athletic Department about how catwalks might change Carver's appearance. There are also concerns about the plan's $500,000 price tag, Achey

"People shouldn't be looking up (at the catwalks) when they are at a basketball game," Achey said. "The step right now is trying to decide if this half-a-million is worth spending on this project. Their plan covers the whole ceiling in catwalks. What we'd like to do is to extend the catwalks that only have to be done."

The athletic department isn't against using Carver for concerts. but the costs for renovation are too expensive, said Del Gerhke, facilities manager for the athletic depart-

"There's a $500,000 price tag, so that's why it's been aside until a cheaper design comes here," he said. "We're not fighting it and saying we don't want concerts. Origi-price was said."

Gerhke said Carver would have to be reinforced, which is included arena's appearance could change if catwalks are added.

"The athletic department is concerned about the aesthetics of the building," he said. "We would like to keep the building looking the same. If there can't be a cheaper alternative than $500,000, then I doubt if it will ever be done."

At its Feb. 20 meeting, the UI Student Government voted down SCOPE's request to receive 80 cents per student. Instead, SCOPE will receive 70 cents per student next year, up from this year's funding of 65 cents per student.

said UISG would like to see SCOPE become more independent, though he hopes Carver can hold concerts in the future.

The situation between SCOPE and student government in terms of funding has been interesting, to say the least," he said. "The sentiment nally, we received an estimate of from student government has been $150,000 and there were some eye- against giving a lot more funding venues.

brows raised when the $500,000 because the sense is SCOPE should be self-sufficient."

Beltrame said SCOPE can make money with the Union shows, in the $500,000 estimate, and the though they may have to put on more concerts.

> "If you check the balance sheet, the Main Lounge shows make good money," Beltrame said. "They have to do more of them, but they consistently make money off of them. My understanding is we'll never be able to bring in the shows that Iowa State brings in because they go through a private production company there.

ISU, with its 15,000-seat Hilton Coliseum, has some big-name concerts coming, Mark Miller, director of programing, said.

"Right now we are selling tickets UISG President Marc Beltrame for Rod Stewart, Steve Miller, and The Band," he said. "The concerts are managed by Ogden Entertainment. We have outside concert promoters that bring the groups in."

Achey said even if SCOPE doesn't get catwalks installed in Carver, SCOPE will continue to use the Union and look to establish Hubbard Park and the Wheelroom as

Word power

■ The images behind words can enslave people to a perpetual stereotype. This is the second of two editorials on institutional racism.

Tikki Giovanni, a militant black poet, calls herself an american Black. She refuses to let herself be categorized; rather, she claims her identity as a woman who is Black first and american second. Fighting against institutional racism in this country, Giovanni adheres to her self-definition and uses words as her tool, her expression of indi-

She uses words carefully. And she does not write what she does not mean. Images of slavery thrive in words; she, too, uses that weapon. She has taken the word "black" and claimed it for herself, giving it a

Black means something in everyone's mind. For Nikki Giovanni, it means pride. But for conservative, deficit-reducing Republicans, it means welfare mothers and prison inmates eating up taxpayers' money. For small-town inhabitants, it means big-city gangs, guns and rap music. For far too many, it means a difference that is feared rather

Growing up, children are taught to notice difference, in shapes, colors, etc. They are taught to notice similarities. They are also taught to put connotations on both: "to fear what is good and hate what is evil." Andnow, through institutions, whether they be social, political or religious, human beings are taught to cling to similarities and fear differences. These fears are perpetuated through words, which bring images to mind.

It is not the actual word, but what the word means that enslaves people. The present-day title of "African-American" evolved from colored to black to more politically correct terms. Perhaps more gentle in the images it conjures up, it nonetheless places African-Americans in a certain category. The enormous significance of a expression lies not with the denotation, but with the meaning that is put upon it.

And negative connotations continue to be perpetuated by this nation's institutions. The simple fact that a person is asked to categorize his or her race today, in a society where it could be and often is used against him or her, is proof of that. That word, expressing skin color and nationality, marks who that person is in the minds of the people in power. More than putting that person in an ethnic or racial category, it is putting that person into a stereotypical bracket about which certain assumptions are made.

If affirmative action is the only way certain groups are given a semblance of power, so be it. They have begun their battle against the stereotypes in other ways.

Much of it has been done by reclaiming derogatory language and putting their own connotation on it. "Nigger" has been taken back by blacks; "Queer" has been taken back by the homosexual community. The double language is confusing, but significant. Individuals are reclaiming themselves with the words that define their identity.

'Words are dangerous to those who dare use them," psychoanalyst Rollo May writes. In a mass-media society where chatter surrounds us and silence is frightening rather than golden, the significance of words has become even more dangerous. Language more than ever is used as a tool of oppression; physical slavery may no longer exist, but mental slavery is alive and thriving.

Language continues to be a main tool of oppression. It is time for a reclaiming, for an embracing, for a restoring. The best way to fight words is with words that have been examined, reshaped and most of all, understood by people who use them.

Wrong male model

To the Editor: Matthew Strawn is living proof that the UI is in desperate need of more literature GERs. In his April 2 column, "Men's last safe haven in I.C.," he makes the case that poetry readings are feminine entertainment, the likes of which threaten his masculinity.

First of all, women are still fighting for equal space on bookstore shelves, which attests to the fact that poetry is not a female-dominated art form. Strawn, had he ever taken a poetry class, would be aware of this.

Also, has he ever heard of Robert Bly, one of the most famous and widely read poets of 20th-century America? Robert Bly is responsible for the current Men's Movement in America. This movement encourages young boys to seek their masculinity within themselves, not from women or any other external force. However, he does not encourage sexism or the objectification of women, as does Strawn in his column. Had Strawn been more thoughtful, he would have realized his brand of masculinity is not as secure as Bly's. Strawn's is built on societal oppression of both sexes as to what their roles should be. He takes his masculinity from a naked woman. Does he realize the woman is not dancing for him, but for his money?

And one more point: Has Strawn, the moral voice of the UI, read his Bible lately? King David, one of the most heralded warriors and kings of the Old Testament, wrote beautiful poetry. Look it up, Strawn. It's in the book of Psalms.

Article questioned

To the Editor:

Sara Voreis' article about graduate student unionization that appeared on Friday, March 29, contained a number of errors, although I will only address two. The first error credits me with the erroneous statement that COGS "pulled out" of the Graduate Student Senate's proposed forum on unionization. In fact, I had stated in a telephone interview with Voreis that COGS agreed to the forum under the condition that the administration participate, since it is the administration that will have the responsibility to negotiate tuition waivers, health care and job security. However, the administration declined to participate under any circumstances. This is one reason the GSS decided to cancel the

The second and more serious misquote implies the members of COGS wish to stifle the concerns of students opposed to unionization. On the contrary, COGS supports free and open debate about graduate employee issues. We hope those opposed to unionizing will eventually see the benefits of having a union once we begin to negotiate tuition waivers and improvements in health care. The misquote is a truncated distortion of the statement, "We (the COGS coordination committee) have reservations about participating in a GSS forum in which one or two grad students . opposed to unionization will appear to be as well-represented as students in favor, who number well over 1,100."

Editor's Note: Reporter Sara Voreis has extensive notes from a telephone interview with Jolene Stritecky. The Daily Iowan stands behind the article and the quote attributed to Stritecky that read "This is not an issue of grad students against grad students but an issue of grad students against the administration. We have reservations about giving the opposing view equal representation."

Getting past a childhood fear

When I was about eight years old, I got an autobiography of Helen Keller for my birthday. I had nightmares for years about that book. I even remember hiding it in the garage so I would not have to see the picture of Keller on the cover. Although this book is intended to be a story of triumph and courage, I, as a child, only gleaned from it how scary it would be to lose one's ability to see and hear, as Helen did as a baby. I remember thinking I would be much more scared to lose my hearing than my sight. As Keller wrote, "blindness cuts one off from things, deafness cuts one off from people."

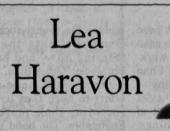

I still remember one of the lines from the book: "She could feel the tap-tap of the vibrations of her mother's feet against the porch floor " I remember reading that and trying to understand that Helen could not hear her mother's presence, but could only feel it. What would that be like?

One time, I tried to tell my Dad about my fear. We were taking a walk. "Dad," I told him, "I am afraid of deaf people." But he thought I said "dead people." He didn't hear me. I didn't Although I am ashamed to feel this way, it is a fear which has lingered.

This spring break, my sister invited me to spend Friday with her at her job in Queens, New York City, where she works at the Lexington School for the Deaf. She had been sending me a lot of articles about her school, her work and about deaf culture. She remembers my fear and nightmares from childhood and is sympathetic, but she also thinks I should get over it. And I know she is right. So I went.

As I walked through the halls of the K-12 school with her, I saw what seemed like a regular New York City school, except the kids were signing rather than speaking. The little ones were learning how to spell with their fingers. It looked very complicated to me. The older ones seemed to be doing a lot of flirting, which did not look complicated at all - just like a regular high-school class.

I noticed people seemed a lot more physical than I am used to. To get one another's attention, students grabbed hands and held on to each other. My sister told me some hearing people think deaf people are rude because of this. She then reminded me that lots of people think Israelis are rude, too. "It's a cultural thing," she

Since she has lived both in Israel and in deaf cultures, I guess she must know what she is talking about.

She also told me the people in the Deaf movement are very forthright and outspoken, and that there is also a large gay Deaf movement. She talked about the difference between the words Deaf and deaf. As I understand it, someone who is "deaf" is someone who cannot hear. Someone who is "Deaf" embraces the Deaf movement and Deaf culture. One can be deaf and not Deaf, and, interestingly enough, one can be hearing and culturally Deaf.

An example of this would be a hearing child of D/deaf parents. As the child's first language was sign and she was raised by nonhearing parents, she would be considered Deaf.

Many in Deaf culture are opposed to cochlear implants, devices which may aid, but certainly do not perfect, hearing. Deaf activists claim these implants rob a deaf child of their culture, rendering them neither hearing nor Deaf. They sometimes make a parallel between Native American children being sent off to U.S. government schools and cochlear implants in deaf children who then are not taught to sign because, supposedly, they are hearing now. It just so happens, my sister informed me, that the UI is one of the founding institutions for cochlear implant research.

If Helen Keller was right that "deafness cuts one off from people," it also seems to be the case that "Deaf" culture shares culture and pride. While I still have my ignorances and "ableisms" about deaf people, learning what I did at the Lexington School has made me less uncomfortable and more open to exploring my fears and being respectful of a culture about which I had known nothing before my trip to Queens.

As my sister and I were leaving the school for the day, we opened a door, in front of which a man was standing looking off into the distance, obviously lost in thought. Unbeknownst to him, he was blocking our way. My sister tapped him on the shoulder, bringing him out of his reverie. He smiled, moved aside and signed farewell.

Camping: Lewis and Clark style

Spring is here, and I'm thinking about camping. Don't misunderstand me: I'm not thinking about actually GOING camping, in the sense of venturing outdoors and turning my body in to an All-U-Can-Eat buffet for insects. I'm just thinking about camping.

What got me on this topic is a book I'm reading called "Undaunted Courage," by Stephen E. Ambrose, about the ultimate camping trip: the Lewis and Clark expedition. If you're a product of the U.S. educational system, you no doubt remember this historic endeavor, in which a tiny band (they didn't even have a keyboard player) set out in three tiny ships - the "Nina," the "Pinta" and the "Merrimac" - and became the first Westerners to make the perilous voyage around Plymouth Rock and discover the Monroe Doctrine, without which the cotton gin would never have been invented.

That's pretty much how I remembered it, too, but the actual facts, as set forth in "Undaunted Courage," are these:

In 1803, President Thomas Jefferson made the Louisiana Purchase, in which he paid France $10 million for a humongous batch of land without having any idea what was in it. Why would Jefferson make such a purchase? The answer is simple: He didn't have a wife. There was nobody to say to him: "You spent $10 million for WHAT? Take it back RIGHT NOW!!" Guys without wives are always making impulse purchases that border on the insane. If hang gliders had been invented in 1803, Jefferson would have bought one of those, too.

Anyway, the United States found itself in possession of this extremely large parcel of land, and nobody knew what it contained in the way of geography, natural resources, shopping, etc. So Jefferson sent Lewis and Clark on an expedition to check it out and also see if they could find a way across the continent to the Pacific Ocean, which Jefferson hoped would be a better trade route for beaver pelts bound for the Orient. Back then, the beaver pelts had to be transported by river to St. Louis, then overland to the East Coast, then by ship to London, then by ANOTHER ship to the Orient, where they had to be burned immediately because, as you can imagine, after all that travel they smelled like the inside of Marlon Brando's laun-

So in 1804, Lewis and Clark set out in search of a better route. Reading about their brutally difficult, extremely dangerous trek across the continent, I was reminded of the summers when I was a counselor at Camp Sharparoon, and I used to set off, leading a party of boys ages 10 and 11, into the vast uncharted wilderness around Dover Furnace, N.Y., fully aware that we would have to survive for an entire night with nothing to sustain us except roughly 200 pounds of marshmallows, graham crackers and Hershey bars.

Lewis and Clark - whether because of religious reasons, or sheer ignorance, we shall never know - did not take any "s'mores" ingredients on their expedition, so they had to survive by shooting, and eating, things like elk. I am deeply impressed by this. I have always procured my meat by taking a number at the supermarket; you could leave me out in the woods for a year with a machine gun and an electronic Elk Detector and I'd still never be able to shoot an elk. And if I DID somehow manage to shoot one, I wouldn't have a clue how to eat it. I mean, what part do you eat? You can definitely rule out the eyeballs, but THEN what? You just pick up a haunch and start chewing? I don't even know what a "haunch" IS.

Guess what else Lewis and Clark ate? Dog, that's what. In fact, Lewis is quoted on page 32 of "Undaunted Courage" as saying that - bear in mind, this is after two solid years of camping out - he liked dog even better than elk.

My feeling is, you have to be pretty desperate to eat a dog. I mean, with elk, at least you know they don't like you. But a dog is going to be hanging loyally around your campsite, thrilled to be there, ready to fetch you a stick. How can you just pick up a frying pan and say, "Here,

The point is that things were pretty rough for Lewis and Clark, and since this year marks the 190th anniversary of their return, I think it would be nice if Americans commemorated their courageous effort to open up our continent. Perhaps some of us will even want to pack our sleeping bags and retrace their steps through some of the still relatively unspoiled wilderness they explored. Others of us will want to wait until there is plumbing.

JORDAN, Mont. - The Freemen's religious beliefs, even more than their anti-government political views, may frustrate federal efforts to get them to leave their barricaded ranch. The Freemen's rejection of government and its monetary system ultimately led to the charges on which two of their leaders were arrested March 25, leading to the stand-off at the group's 960-acre

Among other things, the two were charged with bad check schemes and conspiring to kidnap and murder a federal judge involved in the foreclosure against the ranch.

But after a week of being confined to the snow-covered ranch, watched by federal agents who have a direct telephone line to the ranch compound, the Freemen are showing signs of leaning more heavily on the racist Christian Identity teachings that form the basis of their politics.

Appeals court reverses ban on doctor-assisted suicide

Larry Neumeister Associated Press

NEW YORK - A federal appeals court on Tuesday struck down the state's ban on doctor-assisted suicide, saying physicians may prescribe drugs so mentally competent dying patients can end their lives.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Manhattan reversed a 1994 ruling by a judge who had refused to strike down two state laws banning physician-assisted suicide.

The ruling was similar to one made last month in San Francisco, where a federal appeals court ruled against Washington state's assisted-suicide ban, ruling mentally competent, terminally ill adults have a constitutional right to die.

Tuesday's 36-page opinion came in a case brought by three doctors who had sought to speed the deaths of three terminally ill patients. The patients have since The lawsuit contended patients

Prosecutor: Espy accepted gifts

Robert Greene Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The prosecutor investigating former Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy has found evidence of payments or gifts to Espy and close associates in return for favors from the department, says a court order that broadens the investigator's reach.

The ruling by a special threejudge panel says independent counsel Donald Smaltz asked to broaden his investigation after finding "substantive evidence of violations of federal criminal law by associates of Secretary Espy."
Smaltz "has identified evidence allegedly showing a pattern of conduct involving payments or gifts to Espy and his close associates in return for favorable treatment by the Department of Agriculture," the court said.

Its Monday ruling noted Smaltz' cited affidavits from federal agents "who uncovered the new matters during their investigation.

the court gave no clue whom

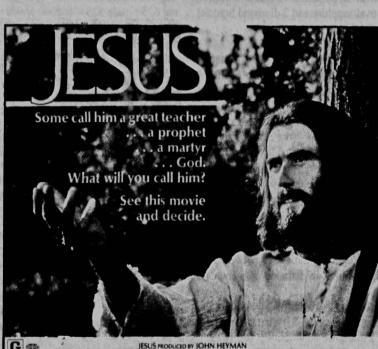

Smaltz wanted to investigate in addition to Espy, who resigned in December 1994, nor what the alleged favors were. It also gave no details of the alleged payments or gifts. Espy has not been charged in the 18-month investigation, which the General Accounting Office says had cost $3.4 million by last fall.

Smaltz has cast a wide net, examining contacts between several businesses and the department over a range of issues, including food safety, pesticides, export promotion funds, crop insurance and rural utility loan rates.

Championship game receives record-low ratings

NEW YORK (AP) - CBS' telecast of the Kentucky-Syracuse game drew the lowest rating ever for a prime-time NCAA basketball championship game. Kentucky's 76-67 victory Monday night got an 18.3 rating, 5 percent lower than last year's 19.3 for UCLA-Arkansas. The previous low for a prime-time NCAA title game was 18.8 for Oklahoma-Kansas in 1988. The championship game has been telecast in prime time since 1973.

KENTUCKY'S RISE TO THE TOP

Picture looked bleak when Pitino entered

Mike Embry

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Rick Pitino stepped into a difficult situation when he became Kentucky's basketball coach in 1989

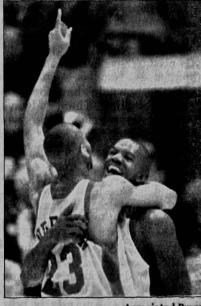

The NCAA had just placed the school on a two-year probation from postseason play for recruiting and academic violations. Kentucky had finished with a 13-19 record, the first losing season in the school's storied history since 1927. If the future was bleak, he also had no way to go but up. Pitino inherited only eight scholarship players and none taller than 6-foot-7. And blue-chip high school players weren't exactly knocking down the door to play for the Wildcats, as they had in the years leading to the probation.

Seven years later, Pitino returned Kentucky to the top of college basketball when it defeated Syracuse 76-67 for the national title Monday night at the Meadowlands in New Jersey.

"It's been a tremendous marriage for seven years," Pitino said on the eve of the championship game. "It's been exciting for me being part of that. Sometimes I think it's not the point-shaving scandals. real, sometimes I think it's a makebelieve world, but it's also very exciting."

Kentucky players Tony Delk and Derek Anderson (23) celebrate Monday night.

KENTUCKY'S RISE

Wildcats claimed another national title by defeating Seattle. Kentucky didn't win another championship until beating Duke in 1978.

Pitino came to Kentucky with the reputation for rebuilding programs. He turned around Boston University in the late 1970s, took Providence to the Final Four in 1987 and guided the New York Knicks to a division title in 1989. Kentucky was the ultimate chal-

"I think you get back to the top 10 and hope for the best," he said about returning Kentucky to respectability. "I thought it would take five years, for the first recruiting class to get to the junior year."

Despite the depleted lineup, Pitino's first Kentucky team finished a surprising 14-14 with an up-tempo style that led the nation in 3-point shooting.

Pitino then signed Jamal Mashburn, a remarkable 6-8 forward from New York, to his first recruiting class. "We got Jamal Mashburn to come when we were on probation, and he cut that building process in half,"

Pitino said. "And then a lot of great players followed because of Jamal." In Mashburn's freshman year, the Wildcats finished 22-6 and ranked ninth in the nation. Despite the probation, they had the best record in the conference (14-4). Then Pitino's program really took off.

Kentucky went 29-7 in 1992, losing 104-103 to Duke, the eventual NCAA champion, in the East Regional final that some have labeled as "the greatest NCAA tournament game ever.'

The following year, Kentucky reached the Final Four, losing 81-78 in overtime to Michigan in the semifinals while compiling a 30-4 record.

With Mashburn taking his game to the NBA, Kentucky slipped to 27-7 and lost to Marquette in the second round of the 1994 Southeast Regional.

Last season ended with a 28-5 record after falling to North Carolina in the Southeast Regional final.

And then the championship season. "I'm delighted for Kentucky,"

Pitino said. "I'm delighted for the guys on the team, and I'm really, really happy that I can be part of this situation."

"Today was something we really needed," Banks said. "The timing couldn't have been better. We've been struggling in the batters box lately and working hard to try and catch up.

The turning point in the game came in the bottom of the third with the Hawkeyes up 3-2. Iowa put together four consecutive hits that included two singles, a two-RBI double and Boros' shot over the right field wall. After a walk to Martinez and an RBI triple by centerfielder John Oswald, the inning concluded with the Hawkeyes scoring five runs on five hits and leading 8-2

"We've lost to Division III teams in the past, so we told ourselves, 'not everybody's been through the lineup yet and we've got nine innings to play, so let's score," senior Jeff Schley said following his first game back since suffering a concussion Saturday against Northwestern.

Iowa also turned in strong performances on the mound and in the field. Freshman pitcher Troy Wulf got his first win as a Hawkeye in five innings of work. Wulf gave up three hits and two runs while striking out four in the five-inning stint. One real bright spot for the Hawkeyes was the strong performance of senior hurler Mike Parenteau, who in two innings gave up two hits, but struck out five of the six batters he retired.

"Parenteau's had some arm problems, so it was good to see him get out there and throw well. He's so important to our team."

The win gives the Hawkeyes a 9-7 overall record, with a 4-4 mark in Big Ten Conference action heading into tomorrow afternoon's game with Northeast Missouri State.

"Our pitching has been keeping us in every ball game, it's just our hitting that's kept us behind and that came around today," Schley said. "So we're pretty excited."

competition until my later years in high school. Everything has sort of happened in a whirlwind as far as college and playing in the Big Ten toward the top of the singles line-

DI: I've heard you have some unusual training methods. Tell me about your attempt at kick boxing.

KC: I'm always trying new ways to make myself better and you hear a lot about cross-training these days. I figured I'd give it a try, but you need to have balance and coordination. DI: And you didn't have that?

KC: (laughing) There's always room for improvement and that on the court? happens to be one area where I have a lot of room for improve-

DI: A couple of years ago you roomed with Amanda Coetzer, who's currently playing on the pro tour. What kind of player was she and how would she stack up against Big Ten Conference oppo-

KC: I lived in a tennis academy for the last year or so of high school with Amanda. Amanda is now approaching the top 10 in the world professionally. She signed a million dollar contract, a clothing and racquet contract, and she's knocked off some of the top players in the world. I'd put my money on Amanda anyday. Maybe we can see about recruiting her. DI: How do you feel about players who skip college and go straight on to the professional KC: It's a personal decision. If you're mature enough and ready to go up there and make some bucks than go for it, but I wouldn't because education is what's most important for me.

DI: Who's your favorite tennis player or who do you try to imitate

KC: I guess a cross between the classy Chris Evert, who has been my idol since I started, and the more aggressive, feisty Monica Seles. I admire them both greatly. DI: What do you think about Andre Agassi's new haircut?

KC: Improvement. I guess he was into that "image was everything" phase and it stopped workand it's working. It looks much bet-

DI: Last year you and Cara

Cashon set a team doubles record for single season winning percentage and you were 18-13 in singles. How would you evaluate this season in comparison? KC: We've had a lot of changes this year. We were hurt by the loss of Laura Dvorak and then Nikki (Willette). We've all been asked to step up, I think that through the lineup we're feeling the effects of that step and I'm not quite where I expected. It's kind of a big jump, but I'm working on it.

DI: When you're on the court, you sometimes look like you're possessed by a demon. Do you play better when you're mad?

KC: I like to play mean girls because it lets me get really angry, which really fires me up. DI: You've said before that you consider yourself to be a slow player. How do you compensate for that on the court? KC: I'm slow, but I'm also a grinder. That's how I compensate. I may not get there on time, but I will get there. My goal on the court is to get the ball back any way I ing, so he changed up a little bit can. It may not be pretty, but it's gonna go back.

DI: Can the Hawkeyes salvage the season after an 0-5 start in the Big Ten and what will it take to turn things around? KC: Absolutely. We've had a tough schedule, but fortunately we've gotten the toughest teams out of the way and gotten a lot of experience. It's prepared us for getting into the end of the season where it counts the most. Coach (Jenny) Mainz has said we're a second-day team, meaning we're never out of it. That's the nature of each one of us as players. We're never counted out. We have very high expectations of ourselves and I see no reason why we won't fulfill

What is your most embarrassing tennis moment?

KC: I was doing an exhibition for an international tennis symposium for a new state-of-the-art speed training program in front of hundreds of people. The cameras were rolling and my dad was there, too. I was demonstrating a particular maneuver and going about full speed when my foot got caught in the net. I fell down, skinned both knees and had blood running down my legs. I got back up to finish it out and all I heard was hysterical laughing. I never will live that down. That net will get you every time.

CINCINNATI — Home plate umpire Jerry Crawford called it the hardest game he's ever worked. Those around him weren't having an easy time, either.

A day after umpire John McSherry collapsed and died, baseball returned to Riverfront Stadium in somber trappings Tuesday.

No one paid attention to the rock music in the Cincinnati Reds clubhouse before a makeup game with Montreal. Batting practice was subdued. Even the fans got caught up in the emotion by unfurling banners that honored McSherry and giving the umpires a standing ovation when they took the field.

McSherry death raises issue of umpire's weights

NEW YORK (AP) - A day after the death of John McSherry, baseball turned its attention Tuesday to a familiar issue: Should more be done to make sure its umpires are physically fit?

"The health and weight of our umpires is always a concern," National League vice president Katy

"We can require that they take physicals, and we do," she said. "We can recommend and encourage that they try to keep themselves in the best shape possible. But as for weight restrictions or limits, there's nothing we can do legally."

Certainly, an umpire's lifestyle is not a healthy

Umpires are on the road almost the whole season, rarely in a city for more than three days. They stay up late, often eat their biggest meals around midnight and then go to sleep.

They get no breaks during games, standing on the Froemming (238) the heaviest. The average in the field for all nine innings. They get yelled at much of AL is 204 pounds, with Ken Kaiser (288), Greg Kosc (255) and Tim McClelland (250) weighing the most.

The four-man umpiring crew including Rich Reiker, who took McSherry's place - arrived at the stadium an hour and 10 minutes before the game. They walked past reporters without comment.

Afterward, their eyes teared and umpire Steve Rippley had to cut news conference.

"I just tried to stay as focused as I could on calling the pitches," said Crawford, his eyes brimming. "I think it was probably easier for me than it was for these three guys. They were out on the bases, and when you're out there, unless there's a runner on, there's not a whole lot to do except think about what was going on."

NEW YORK - Alexei Kovalev scored two power-play goals and Mike Richter made 37 saves as the New York Rangers slowed New Jersey's playoff drive with a 3-1 victory over the Devils Tuesday night.

It was a tough loss for the Devils, who are trying not to repeat the dubious accomplishment of the 1969-70 Montreal Canadiens, who missed the playoffs after winning the Stanley Cup the previous season.

The Devils remained tied with Tampa Bay for the eighth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference at 80 scored for the Flyers, who closed withpoints. The Devils have six games left, Herald your countrymen: Jack Ingram brings 'roots country' to I.C.

Lesley Kennedy The Daily Iowan

Regarded as one of the hardestkicking ensembles to come out of Texas in years, Jack Ingram and his band have gone from listening to heroes like Merle Haggard to opening act for legendary country

Ingram will bring his selfdescribed "roots country" to Gunnerz, 123 E. Washington St.,

Ingram said listeners who are not fans of traditional country music are likely to be surprised by

"My music is not stereotypical country by any means," he said. "I play both country and rock — songs I write or really love. We play them in our own way with no frills."

As a freshman at Southern tonight as the opening act for Todd Methodist University in Dallas, Young, Steve Earl, Merle Haggard Haggard at a club in Texas.

Snider. That was beautiful," he said. "I years, has sold nearly 20,000 copies of his first two albums - a selfof his first two albums — a selftitled 1992 release and Lonesome and Merle Haggard because my Questions in 1994.

His current release, Live at Adair's, was recorded in June 1995, musical phases, ranging from Zepand showcases the energy of his live performances.

Ingram cites Willie Nelson, Neil when he was asked to open for We really smash the stereotypical Ingram is handled by the Nashville-based Vector Management, which also works with Texas singer-songwriters Lyle Lovett, Nanci Griffith and Joe Ely, as well as Los Lobos and Liz Phair. He recently signed a recording contract with Nashville's Rising Tide Entertainment.

NEW INDIE-ROCK

Snider certain to lead fans to dance floor

Lesley Kennedy The Daily Iowan

What started out as a concept album about two mountain guys named Elmo and Henry and their trip into town to join the circus turned into Todd Snider's second loud rock record, Step Right Up.

"But Elmo and Henry still pop up in the weirdest of ways, Snider said. "They're in the art-music is energetic and heartfelt. His lyrics are filled with stories romance, drinking on the street corner and violence on the local news. He'll bring that music to Gunnerz, 123 E. Washington St., tonight, with opening acts Jack Ingram and Sara Pace.

This record is very different from the last one," Snider said. "Last time, all of us in the band were pretty new to the studio. We learned a lot making the first record, and then we had a year to drive around the country talking about the next one.'

The new record is on Jimmy Buffett's Margaritaville record label and is co-produced by Michael Utley, Buffett's long-time musical guru and producer; Tome Brown, country star Joe Ely's producer; and Snider.

Snider is showcased on guitar and harmonica, and is supported by guitarist Will Kimbrough, bassist Joe Mariencheck, keyboardist/producer Utley and drummer Joe "Mac" McLeary better known as the Nervous Wrecks.

Step Right Up opens with "Elmo and Henry," a bluegrass instru-mental with circus sounds breaking through. The song is an excellent beginning to an incredible bevy of music that starts out strong and refuses to falter.

Snider's songs give you more than melodies - they give you stories and lessons. In "I Believe You," a powerful rock song, Snider lists today's empty virtues. "Side Show Blues" is a hard-rocking shuffle, targeting the often circuslike atmosphere of the media. It's a "subterranean Johnny Cash thing," Snider said.

"My phone's always ringing when I want to be alone. They try to sell me everything from heaven to cologne. Everybody's got an offer I can't refuse. It's a circus out here, mama. Your baby's got the side show blues," Snider croons.

"TV Guide," a soft ballad, is about "freedom, American style." Snider sings of drugs, gangs and keeping bars on windows. And "24 Hours A Day" is about people living on a downtown street corner.

But Snider easily turns from seriousness and sadness to hilarity. "Late Last Night," a quick little ditty about a hangover, as well as "It All Adds Up" and "Horseshoe Lake," show Snider and the Nervous Wrecks can reach beyond the slow, mesmerizing indie rock many bands are currently churning out.

Snider will not put fans in a sleep-like trance. Instead, he'll lead them to the dance floor.
