Brown presumed dead

Commerce secretary among 33 feared lost in crash

In a statement offering one of the few pieces of comfort for the day, the National Transportation Safety Board's executive director told The Daily Iowan that the crash could have been prevented.

"What a senseless, horrible thing to happen to these people," said Andrew P. Leavitt, a member of the NTSB's executive committee.

"We are very concerned about the loss of life in this incident," he said.

Leavitt said the NTSB is working to determine the cause of the crash, which occurred early Wednesday morning.

The crash occurred when a Beechcraft 1900, a twin-engine turboprop, crashed near the Continental Divide in the state of Montana.

The plane was carrying 33 people, including 12 passengers and 21 crew members.

Leavitt said the NTSB is working to determine whether the crash was caused by mechanical failure or human error.

"There are so many factors that could have been involved," he said.

The NTSB is also investigating whether the plane was properly maintained, whether the pilot was properly trained, and whether the weather conditions were too severe.

Leavitt said the NTSB will release its final report on the crash within the next six months.

"We need to do a thorough investigation to determine what happened," he said.

"We will do whatever it takes to find out the truth," he added.

Leavitt said the NTSB is working with the Federal Aviation Administration to ensure that similar crashes do not happen in the future.

"We are taking every step possible to prevent this kind of tragedy," he said.
News of the Week

Easter Eastern U. treated to "poetry of the heavens"

MIAMI (AP) -- Sky watchers in the eastern United States enjoyed a spectacular display of a comet that first showed itself bright enough to be seen with the naked eye Wednesday after a week of activity in the southern sky.

Paul, Florida, the night offered a rich view of the comet, which is on its first journey through the solar system since it was discovered in 1974.

The comet, called Hyakutake, is named after the Japanese astronomer who discovered it. The comet was visible throughout the night, but this one was by far its best.

The comet, which is in the constellation of the northern hunter, was visible to the naked eye with the help of binoculars.

The comet is expected to reach its peak brightness on Friday morning.

Hyakutake is the moon and the sun. The result is an eclipse of the moon, which is visible to the naked eye.

Two days prior to publication. Notices printed on a sheet of paper.

The former Planetarium director said he intends to leave the planetarium along with the recent eclipse, but this one is so bright. "It is a naked-eye cluster," he said.

We all know we exist. Everybody expected the moon to be as bright as the sun. But this one is so much brighter than a pale disk.

About 50-year-old Harris, a student of the Albert Einstein Planetarium, was shown, along with the recent eclipse, that the moon is visible to the naked eye.

The moon is an easy target for people to see. It is the only celestial body that can be easily seen with the naked eye. The moon is also visible to the naked eye with the help of binoculars.

Study concludes test could prevent cervical cancer

Paul Rorke
Associated Press

BETHESDA, Md. — Almost 5,000 American women die of cervical cancer annually, and nearly all could be saved if they had regular Pap tests, health officials reported Wednesday.

In theory, cervical cancer is a cancer that we can completely prevent," said Dr. Patrick Brady, a gynecologic cancer specialist at Louisiana State University and the co-author of a study published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

"You can prevent cervical cancer by having regular Pap tests," Brady said. "It's a no-brainer." He emphasized that women should start having regular Pap tests when they start having sex — or by age 21 if they start having sex before age 16.

For months, we kept hearing of criminals moving up near Waco, Texas, and the rancher's wife who lives nearby. "For 11 days, more than 4,700 civilian cancer cases are diagnosed every year. It is second to breast cancer in the United States."

About half of the women diagnosed with cervical cancer in the United States have never had a Pap test. Even worse, according to the study, not even 50% of women over age 65 have ever had a Pap test.

Northwestern's study abroad programs sound great. Prague, Czech Republic; Alexandria, Egypt; and South Africa. They'd all be great opportunities to earn college credit, and they've all been changed so much in recent years. With the three- to six-week program in Prague, I could learn about Czech politics from the inside, visit parts of Bohemia and Moravia, enjoy Czech pubs and restaurants, and experience the interesting architecture. In Alexandria, Egypt, it has advantages. A five-day Nile cruise, a visit to Cairo's Great Pyramids, and all the festivals, beaches, and bars. Can't forget South Africa. The wildlife viewing in Durban is supposed to be incredible, and the program also includes the Kalahari desert, Cape Town, and Johannesburg. 1996 will be a hot summer!

Jameson National Authority

LITTLETON, Colo. — Johnston, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, did not call for the removal of any CIA director during testimony Wednesday before the hearing on the operations of the Central Intelligence Agency. However, he said that if he were chairing the hearing, he would not allow former CIA Director William J. Casey to testify.

Johnston made the comments at the beginning of the hearing, which was held to examine the CIA's role in aiding and abetting the Mujahedin-e-Khalq. The Mujahedin-e-Khalq is a group of fundamentalist Muslims who fought against Iran during the 1980s war.

Johnston said that if he were chairing the hearing, he would not allow Casey to testify because of the political controversy surrounding the agency's involvement in the Middle East. He also expressed concern about the agency's role in supporting extremist groups, such as the Mujahedin-e-Khalq, which he described as a "terrorist organization." Johnston said that he would not allow Casey to testify because of the political controversy surrounding the agency's involvement in the Middle East.

This guy can't stop thinking about summer.

I never thought of Northwestern as a summer hot spot, but the campus is right on Lake Michigan. They've got beaches, intramural sports, arts and crafts workshops, wine-tasting and pottery making mini-courses, basketball and volleyball tournaments, campus musicals and theatrical performances, outdoor movies, and hiking and canoeing trips in Wisconsin. All with Northwestern Summer Session '96... Pretty cool.

Summer in the Windy City sounds like a great time. Chicago has jazz, blues, fado, and gospel music, and the best museums and art galleries in the world, and ethnic festivals all summer long. I'd have plenty to do, and it's all just minutes from the Northwestern campus.

SAARISILTI, Finland— Under the protection of U.S. troops, war crimes investigations threaten a Midwest-sized mass grave in a field that sits only feet from free-fire zones.

On April 4, 1996, a field in the heart of the U.S. Midwest was turned into a mass grave for the second time in a week. The site, located near the town of Sanger, Nebraska, was used as a temporary disposal area for human remains after the 1995 Oklahoma City bombing.

The arrival of spring in the first year of peace in the former iron curtain has thrown the ground around several hundred suspected war graves sites all along the line of the分割nerian and Russian border. The next stage may soon be called forth.

"The Sanger field, which sits on the east side of a basketball court, is one of 280 sites in the U.S. Midwest where as many as 7,000 Muslims were believed to have been killed by cult sects and drug cartels in the former Soviet Union during the 1990s.

The site, which contained areas where bodies had been buried or水体 had been tampered with, appeared to have disappeared with the memory of Sanger last week from the field. On one side of the site was a field of empty graves. To the east, another area of pits and graves was just visible as a direct perpetrator of the operations was said to have been killed on a helicopter.

The site was officially declared a "mass grave" by the United States, and in line with the U.S. military, it has been closed to the public. The site is not imminent," he said.

Hale: Clinton present at development talks

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Then-Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton met with the president and President Clinton, gave the Arkansas governor a heads-up on a deal development that later was completed by Clinton using savings from a $600,000 loan, a banker testified Wednesday. The meeting was in early 1986 when McDougal’s office in a trailer at one of the land developments he wanted to develop next to Little Rock, Hale said. Hale also testified that in the meeting the three talked about a loan in the amount of $300,000. But Hale’s testimony did not address whether there was a federal law for the land development — a point of contention.

Hale testified in the fifth week of the trial of a 21-count indictment against Gov. Jim Guy Tucker, McDougal and McDougal’s Advertising Co. for alleged violations of bribery and campaign-finance laws.

Two federal appeals courts have disagreed about a natural death, to bring the natural course of events. Hale testified Wednesday that the land was used by the FBI as working capital for more funds. McDougal’s lawyer, David Kendall, said Tuesday that the president had given an “unequivocal denial” about any wrongdoing. Hale has told investigators and defense attorneys that he was not present at the meeting.

Hale testified Wednesday that he was present at the meeting. Hale said he was present in the meeting where the president and Hillary Rodham Clinton discussed developing land south of Little Rock. All of the parties say they had the loan application approved, eventually gave it to the FBI.

WASHINGTON — A Supreme Court decision seemingly unlikely to clarify the scope of Americans’ right to die will be decided today. The high court has been hearing arguments in a case brought by Karen Ann Quinlan, who is not going to die. The court in 1976 refused to get involved in a New Jersey case of Karen Ann Quinlan, who is not going to die.

The nation’s highest court in 1986 first recognized the constitutional right to die. It ruled that a terminally ill patient may refuse the medical treatment. The justices have not yet reached on such a natural death, to bring the natural course of events.

Iowa plays waiting game

Wayne Dehse
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Hawkeyes' hopes for the Iowa women's soccer program are low. "It's a poor league," said Dehse, who has been coaching the Hawkeyes for two years.

Dehse said that the Hawkeyes' season ended with a 2-0 loss to the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga. The Hawkeyes are now 2-4-3 on the season and have scored 15 goals and allowed just 13.

The Hawkeyes have struggled to find the back of the net this season, scoring only 15 goals so far.

The Hawkeyes' next home game is scheduled for April 5 against the University of Illinois at Champaign.

In other soccer news, the Iowa State University women's soccer team defeated the University of Northern Iowa 1-0 on March 28. The Hawkeyes need to win their next two games to have a chance at making the NCAA tournament.

Iowa added its first on a passed ball by Kale Wirt, followed by a single by Matt Reents and a double by Matt Monheim.

“Once again we’re seeing consistent hitting and consistency in the lineup, and that’s what we need from our team,” said coach Todd Fuller.

Matt Monheim hit an RBI single to score Reents, who had moved to second on the passed ball.

“We’re not hitting as many two-base hits, but we’re hitting plenty of singles,” Fuller said.

The Hawkeyes finished the game with 10 hits, including four doubles and one home run.

One big highlight for the team was the performance of pitcher Matt Weidman.

Weidman pitched a complete game, allowing just one run on three hits.

“I thought he pitched a great game,” Fuller said.

Weidman’s strong outing helped the Hawkeyes maintain their lead and send the game into extra innings.

After the extra innings, the game ended in a 1-1 tie, with the Hawkeyes holding onto the lead.

Both teams returned to their respective locker rooms, ready to regroup and prepare for the next game.

Spike Lee's Girl 6 parades phone sex, dreamworlds

By John Anderson

The Daily News

Spike Lee hasn't yet worked with cellular phones, but he's certainly used to the distant ringing familiar to all fans of his previous work. The director's latest project, "Girl 6," is expected to be released this summer and promises to take viewers into the intimate and sometimes uncomfortable world of phone sex.

Theresa Randle is magnificent as the eponymous Girl 6, a self-possessed but emotionally exhausted New Yorker who finds herself doing phone sex work to scrape up rent between cattle calls.

Randle is a character who could have been played by many actresses in the past, but according to the critics, Randle is able to bring a unique and nuanced performance to the role.

Lee is still working the black woman's point of view and the sexy black performers to the screen. "Girl 6" is Lee's latest film about a woman every man has loved, a woman who has loved and left him, a woman who has been betrayed and a woman who has betrayed herself.

"Girl 6" is a hard-hitting movie about a woman who is part mother, part warrior, part lover, part creator. Lee has the ability to make the audience feel for his characters and to root for their success. This film is a must-see for all Lee fans.

Film transcends defined roles

By Maria VanDaelen

Special to the Daily News

"Girl 6" is a movie about taking a chance. That may be the shortest way to say it, but it's true. It's about imagination and discovery, about transcending the so-called defined roles."

Dianna Randles, the lead actress in Spike Lee's film, offers her role with virtually nothing. She is on the phone; she is in a dress; she is in Dallas. Her role is as difficult as Randles' concept in "Girl 6." She is a woman who can't see, a woman who is blind to the world around her. But, as she says, "I am blind to the world around me."

"Girl 6" is Vangelis' first full-length score for a film. It is a bold, innovative score that uses electronic music and orchestral arrangements to create a haunting and eerie atmosphere.

The score is a testament to Vangelis' ability to create music that is both beautiful and disturbing. It is a score that is both uplifting and haunting, and it is a score that is both inspiring and frightening.
