PUNCH LINE IS MISSING:

With a talented comedic cast, including Steve Martin, Dan Aykroyd and Phil Hartman, "Sgt. Bilko" sounds like it should be loaded with laughs, right? Wrong. "Sgt. Bilko" is a joke, but it is definitely not a funny one.

Unabomber suspect has Iowa ties

Kaczynski's mother graduated from UI, family lived in Lisbon

Cary Jordan

The Daily Iowan

LISBON, Iowa — They were an ordinary family.

When the Kaczynskis moved to Lisbon in January 1966 from Chicago, everything about them was normal. The father, Ted, worked as a manager at Cushion Pak, a foam-cutting plant in Lisbon. The mother, Wanda, was attending the UI, and their son, David, was a student teacher at Lisbon High School.

The other son, Theodore, didn't reside with his family in the small eastern Iowa community, but spent time there during the summers of the late 1960s.

More commonly known as the suspected Unabomber, who is responsible for the bombings that killed three people and injured 23 in nine states in the past 18 years, Theodore Kaczynski seemed like an average young man.

"His father brought him into the plant and introduced him to all the workers," said Diane Shelton, a Lisbon resident who worked with Ted Kaczynski at Cushion Pak and remembers meeting the suspected Unabomber.

"I really didn't think anything about it," she said. "I saw him a couple other times at the plant. He came off very nice. There wasn't anything strange about him."

While the Kaczynski family seemed to fit into the small-town environment, Wanda Kaczynski wasn't quite as sociable as her husband and son. She was seen as a caring mother who was always

"I saw him a couple other times at the plant. He came off very nice. There wasn't anything strange about him."

keeping busy.

"I don't think she was an overly neighborly person," said LaVonne Bova, a Lisbon resident for 68 years.

Bova lived in the house across the street from the Kaczynskis for 42 years and said nothing about Wanda Kaczynski struck her as out of the ordinary.

"We spoke at times, usually passing each other on the street," Bova said. "But we never had conversations over tea or anything. She seemed very busy."

Wanda Kaczynski attended the UI from 1966 to May 1968, when she graduated with a degree in English. Following her graduation, the family moved to Geneva, Ill., where Wanda Kaczynski took a job as a schoolteacher.

Now 78, the Wanda Kaczynski who was once nestled in the small Iowa town has left Lisbon residents who remember her wondering how such a quiet, friendly woman could have raised a son suspected of being the worst serial bomber in U.S. history.

"To say that they were strange — no, they weren't," Bova said.

Earl Willson, a Lisbon resident and owner of Willson Grocery, said in retrospect, he thinks some of Theodore Kaczynski's actions while he was in Iowa seemed out of the ordinary.

"He went down to Coralville a couple of times when he was here," Willson said. "No one ever knew why he was going there. Now some people say it could have been the beginning of a character pattern."

David Kaczynski, like his brother, lived a reclusive lifestyle in Texas not more than five years ago, Bova said. When he met a woman down there, that type of living pattern ended.

"If we only knew all it took was a woman," she said. "Maybe none of this bombing would have happened."

Residents waited 3 hours to call for help

Chad Graham

The Daily Iowan

As Iowa City resident Tim Schumacher searched through the charred remains of his home of four years, he salvaged a stack of singed mail, a blackened math book and a charred Three Stooges picture.

Schumacher, along with six other renters, started to put his life back together Monday after a fire completely gutted his 915 E. Washington St. apartment building Sunday night.

"I'm kind of blank right now," he said. "(I lost) pretty much everything I owned in the world."

Pointing to what is now a large hole surrounded by burnt debris, Schumacher explained how he

"The smoke just got so thick, I grabbed my wallet and I almost went back for my car keys, but the smoke was unbearable. My last act on Earth is not going to be going back in for car keys."

Roger Bradley, Iowa City resident was in his first-floor apartment when he and his roommate, Iowa City resident Roger Bradley, saw and smelled smoke coming from the basement.

"I never thought it was going to be a big fire," Bradley said. "The smoke just got so thick, I grabbed my wallet and I almost went back for my car keys, but the smoke was unbearable. My last act on Earth is not going to be going back in for car keys."

The fire, which started in the basement, may have had a different ending if the residents had called for help right away, Iowa City Fire Department Fire Marshal Roger Jensen said. The ICFD ended its investigation of the fire Monday.

"It started in the basement and was most likely faulty wiring," he

Debate heats up as union vote nears

Chad Graham

The Campaign to Organize Graduate Students may hit a roadblock on the route to the official unionization of UI graduate students if Students Against COGS gets its way.

At a press conference Monday night, members of SAC voiced concerns about COGS, citing a lack of information and student representation, and urged graduate students to vote "no" in the upcoming affiliation vote.

On April 16, UI graduate students will vote to decide if they want COGS and the United Electrical Workers Union (UE), Local 896, to represent them in a union that has bargaining powers with the UI administration.

Surgery may allow man to regain hearing after 15 years

Josh Hunt

The Daily Iowan

A hearing-impaired staff member at the UI Hospitals and Clinics underwent innovative brain stem surgery Friday that could help him hear.

Mukunda Kantamneni, a senior program analyst in the Department of Otolaryngology, is expected to make a full recovery from the 14-hour surgery, UIHC otolaryngologist Dr. Bruce Gantz said.

The surgery, a first-time event for the UIHC, was performed by Gantz and UI neurosurgeon Arnold Menezes. Kantamneni has been hearing-impaired for about 15 years because of tumors growing on his hearing nerve.

The process required removing one of the tumors from the nerve and implanting a hearing device, Gantz said. The device — usually connected to a patient's inner ear — was connected to Kantamneni's brain stem because his hearing nerve had just been operated on.

"The implant is for patients who have lost hearing in their inner ear," Gantz said. "The device changes sound waves into electrical pulses that stimulate the brain stem."

Kantamneni will wear a speech processor device on his belt, which will send a message to a quarter-sized microphone earpiece that takes in sound waves, Gantz said. The earpiece changes the waves to electrical pulses and sends them to the implant, which then decodes

Wahoo woos late-night great

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Can David Letterman be bought for a frozen enchilada? Maybe. Folks in Wahoo, Nebraska, hope so. CBS-TV's "Late Show" host Letterman is counting up the bribes he's received from the town of Wahoo, which wants to replace Grand Rapids, Mich., as the home office for his Top 10 list. "Grafteroo. That's what it's all about," said Late Show spokesperson Donna Dees, ticking off the following bribes:

- Letterman gets a full golf membership at the Hilltop Country Club.
- Free meals for everyone on Letterman's staff at the Wahoo Hard-ees.
- T-shirts with "WA" on the front and "HOO" on the back.
- An admiralship in the Great Nebraska Navy for Dave.
- Some frozen enchiladas.

Nebraska isn't necessarily known for enchiladas. Has Dees sampled them? "I have not," she said. Was Dave especially delighted with the enchiladas or any of the other bribes from Wahoo? She couldn't say. What would it take to force Letterman to drop Grand Rapids like a rock? "Grafteroo," she said. From Grand Rapids, Letterman has received a fax listing the top 10 reasons the home office should remain there, Dees said. And what were they? Dees didn't have the fax handy. The gag began after Letterman commented about how much he liked to say the word "wahoo" and the Wahoo Chamber of Commerce and Gov. Ben Nelson started urging the relocation to Wahoo, 14 miles north of Lincoln. Nelson noted the home office was based in Lincoln in 1988-89, saying it was time for the show to return "home to the good life." Dees said Letterman would decide by the end of the week, basing his choice on which town can fill up a 6-foot-deep glass tub with "grafteroo." Any clues as to which way Letterman was leaning? She said the last time it came up on the show, Feb. 14, Letterman said of Grand Rapids: "They've had a long, cold winter, and we don't care."

Spotlight on Student Groups

RIVERFEST COMMISSION

"I think people are tired of doing the same thing every weekend. People should do something different and stop by Hubbard Park Thursday through Sunday. They should see what the RiverFest is all about and find a way to support the university."

Tara Pease, RiverFest executive director

SOMETHING TO WRITE HOME ABOUT: The Commission has arranged for a nationally known band, the Flaming Lips, to headline at the free concert on April 27 at 8 p.m. in Hubbard Park. WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU: RiverFest offers student groups an opportunity to get involved on campus. There will be tournaments, entertainment, food and concerts for everyone to participate in. On April 28 a 5K and 10K River Run will take place at 8 a.m., and a one-mile Fun Run will be held at 7:30 a.m. There is a $13 registration fee, if paid before April 12, to participate in the runs. After April 12, the fee is $15; on the day of the race the cost is $20. Registration materials are available at the Campus Information Center in the Union or at the Fieldhouse. THE INS AND OUTS: The RiverFest Commission coordinates all aspects of RiverFest. RiverFest is a celebration of spring and offers everyone a time to relax, come together and experience the diversity on campus. WHO'S INVOLVED: 19 members. PLAN OF ACTION: The Commission would like to increase attendance and involvement on campus. Also, they would like to become self-sufficient. They now receive part of their funding from the UI Student Government. WHERE TO TURN: RiverFest begins April 25 and continues through April 28 with various events every day in Hubbard Park. Admission is free. GET INVOLVED: A student group interested in sponsoring an event or participating should contact the UI relations director at the RiverFest office at 335-3273.

Spring Supplemental Funding deadline is April 11. This is the final funding period for the semester. If you have any questions contact Rob Wagner in the Student Government Office @ 335-3576.

UIHC surgeons perform rare transplant

A 40-year-old Albion, Iowa, woman became the first patient to receive a small bowel transplant at the UI Hospitals and Clinics Friday.

Debbra Taft, who needed the transplant after surviving a near-fatal car accident in 1991, was listed in stable condition after the 12-hour procedure. UIHC transplant surgeons Youmin Wu, Maureen Martin and Donald Hillebrand completed the procedure using the small bowel from a teen-age donor. UIHC transplant teams also transplanted the donor's heart and liver, while other tissues, including a cornea, were used by other patients. The donor's kidneys went to patients elsewhere, bringing to five the number of patients benefiting from the donated organs. "Everything went extremely well," Martin said. "We're very pleased to get our small bowel program off to a successful start." Small-bowel transplants present more complications than most other transplant procedures, Wu said. Patients requiring small-bowel transplantation experience a condition called short bowel syndrome, in which they lack a complete small intestine. Some children experience short bowel syndrome because of other conditions, while people of any age can experience infections, diseases or accidents that cause the condition. Taft required the transplant because of complications stemming from a serious car accident on May 23, 1991. The accident, which occurred near Marshalltown, Iowa, cost Taft segments of her large and small bowel and her gallbladder, appendix and spleen. She also sustained two broken legs, a broken right wrist and gashes in her right knee and left ankle. As part of the life-saving care she received at the Marshalltown Medical & Surgical Center, doctors transfused 42 units of blood into her system. "I wasn't supposed to make it," Taft said. "My bowel was dying, so they had to go back into surgery to remove all but 18 inches of the small bowel and 5 feet of large intestine. That's why I needed the transplant." Since most people have 25 feet of bowel, Taft's abdominal organs for digesting food were severely compromised. Until the transplant, she had been required to perform nightly, time-consuming intravenous feedings.

Tammy Faye undergoes surgery, wears makeup during procedure

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tammy Faye Messner, ex-wife of PTL evangelist Jim Bakker, won't give up her trademark heavy mascara — not even during cancer surgery. "They didn't make me take it off. I had wonderful doctors and understanding nurses. I went in fully made up and came out fully made up," Messner told "Entertainment Tonight" in an interview for broadcast today. She underwent surgery for colon cancer on March 7 at Eisenhower Medical Center in Rancho Mirage, where she lives with her husband, Roe Messner. She said that in spite of bleeding, she had put off a cancer examination for a year because she was embarrassed to see a male doctor. Finally, she found a woman doctor and made an appointment. "If there's one thing I would like to tell people, it is, 'Don't wait when something happens — get it taken care of,'" Messner said.

'Hogan's Heroes' actor thought series was immoral

NEW YORK (AP) — "Hogan's Heroes" turned into a big surprise for Werner Klemperer, who played the bumbling Col. Klink on the hit comedy series about a Nazi prisoner-of-war camp. When he was first offered the role, "I thought it was a serious weekly series about a concentration camp," Klemperer told the Daily News. "I am a Jew; my family had just gotten out of Germany after Hitler came to power. The whole idea seemed so bizarre and immoral. I couldn't imagine a more unlikely series."

Ted Nugent plugs bow hunting

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Ted Nugent took up arms — literally — against booze and drugs Monday. The rock star demonstrated archery as a healthy activity for youngsters. "Get your kid a bow and arrow and you won't have to worry about nothin' — except maybe a few dead squirrels. And they're yummy," Nugent said during a demonstration on the Capitol lawn. The avid hunter will serve as archery commissioner for the Great Lakes State Games in Lansing June 21-30. Nugent said bow hunting is a good family activity that promotes a natural high for children who accompany their parents. "They're not gang members. They're not sniffing paint," he said. "We get high, we get challenged ... by the mystical flight of that arrow."

Quayle suggests 'dinner talk' in new book release

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Quayle has some advice for America's parents: Regulate what your kids watch on TV. In case you were wondering, the former vice president does let his three children watch "Murphy Brown." "They'd say, 'Hey Dad, your favorite TV show is on!'" Quayle said in an interview in the April 12-14 edition of USA Weekend magazine. Quayle's book on family values, "The American Family," came out this week. In it, the 49-year-old Republican also tells parents to talk to their children at meals. "You should have breakfast talk, lunch talk, dinner talk," he said. During the Bush administration, Quayle began a controversy when he criticized the fictitious Murphy Brown, a TV reporter played by Candice Bergen, for having a child out of wedlock. Queen fires Scottish bodyguard members for renting castles LONDON (AP) — Two landowners who rented their castles to CBS for a movie about Princess Diana's affair with her former riding instructor have been fired from Queen Elizabeth II's Scottish bodyguard. The mostly honorary Royal Company of Archers gave the boot to Lord Palmer and Alastair Hay. Palmer rented his 108-room Edwardian mansion, Manderston House, and Hay let the cameras into Duns Castle. Both men refused to say how much they were paid. "I was given no alternative but to resign ... but I don't intend to treat this as a black mark," Hay said Monday. The estates will represent Kensington Palace and Prince Charles' country home, Highgrove, in the movie, "Princess in Love."

Iowa Senate keeps 65-mph interstate speed limit

DES MOINES (AP) — The legislative fight over speed limits in Iowa continued Monday, with the Senate turning down a House proposal to raise the legal speed for cars on interstate highways.

The House wanted to raise the interstate speed limit for cars to 70 mph, but keep trucks at 65. Opponents said the different limits could create dangerous driving conditions.

The House proposal also would make changes in the state's so-called "right-to-speed law" that means a driver's first two speeding tickets for less than 10 mph over the speed limit don't count against his insurance records. That law only applies to tickets on roads with speed limits up to 55 mph. The House wanted to raise that to include roads with 65-mph limits.

"I think raising it up to 65 is a little bit much," Sen. Don Gettings said.

Some senators tried unsuccessfully to keep the change in the right-to-speed provision.

Governor considers tougher domestic abuse bill

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A bill that would give tougher penalties to repeat domestic abusers has been sent to the governor.

"Violence in the home is a terribly serious issue because not only does it affect women — and we know how many women are killed this way — but it has a direct effect on children," Sen. Elaine Szymoniak said Monday. "And it is part of the pattern of increasing violence we see throughout society."

Szymoniak, D-Des Moines, sponsored the domestic abuse bill. Under the measure, anyone convicted three or more times of domestic abuse would be guilty of a Class D felony, with a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $7,500 fine.

Penalties for some domestic abuse incidents can be as little as 30 days in jail or a $100 fine. Penalties currently don't increase for subsequent abuse incidents.

'The Godfather' criticized for saying Jews 'own' Hollywood on 'Larry King Live'

Constance Sommer
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Marlon Brando has come under attack from Jewish leaders for saying in an interview that Jews "own" Hollywood.

"Mr. Brando's comments about Hollywood being controlled by Jews is about as sloppy an anti-Semitism as saying that Jews control banks," said Rabbi Harvey Fields of the Jewish Federation of Los Angeles.

In an appearance Friday on CNN's "Larry King Live," the Oscar-winning star of "The Godfather" said, "Hollywood is run by Jews."

"It is owned by Jews and they should have a greater sensitivity about the issue of people who are suffering," Brando said.

He enumerated negative stereotypes that he said have been depicted in the movies.

"We've seen the nigger and the greaseball. We've seen the chink. We've seen the slit-eyed, dangerous Jap. We have seen the wily Filipino. We've seen everything," Brando said. "But we never saw the kike because they knew perfectly well that that's where you draw the wagons around."

Abraham Foxman, national director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, said Monday Brando's comments were "utterly false" and called on him to apologize for perpetuating ethnic stereotypes.

"Mr. Brando owes an apology to the Jewish men and women who work in Hollywood for vilifying them and to all Jews for his stereotyping and use of an anti-Semitic epithet," Foxman said.

Brando, 72, who has been active in the civil-rights movement, denied during the program that his comments were anti-Semitic.

"I will be the first one who will praise the Jews honestly and say, 'Thank God for the Jews,'" he said. "The Jews are amazing people."

The militant Jewish Defense League said it will stage protests at Brando's next movie. On Sunday, someone stuck a paste-on swastika on the actor's star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

GM TOPS LIST

Fortune 500 ranks biggest companies

Joyce Rosenberg
Associated Press

NEW YORK — They could write a management textbook for the '90s and call it "Making More With What You've Got."

The companies that comprise the 1995 Fortune 500 collectively enjoyed a fat 13 percent profit gain last year but did it with roughly the same number of workers.

The magazine's annual ranking of the nation's biggest companies, released Monday, reflected the huge corporate overhaul that began during the last recession and continues today. The list also reflects the big mergers of 1995.

But the top five companies on the list held their places from 1994: No. 1 General Motors Corp. was followed by Ford Motor Co. in second place, Exxon Corp. in third, Wal-Mart Stores Inc. in fourth and AT&T Corp. in fifth.

Fortune, which is publishing the 500 list in its April 29 edition, ranks publicly owned U.S. companies by annual revenues. The magazine also looks at their earnings, and found they made $244 billion in 1995, up from $215.25 billion in 1994.

Yet total employment at the 500 barely budged from the previous year, rising 0.2 percent. That suggests many companies have learned to do more using about the same, or fewer, workers.

At No. 88, Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. revenue was up 7.1 percent and profits rose 7.8 percent although employment fell 2,700 to 87,390. At No. 7, General Electric Co. revenue rose 8.3 percent and profits jumped 39.1 percent as the company increased its work force by 1,000 employees, or about .04 percent.

For other companies, such as No. 40, Boeing Co., job losses did mean lower revenue.

But not all the job reductions were due to layoffs or the elimination of staff.

Suspect's brother had writings privately analyzed

Michael Sniffen
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — His suspicions raised by the Unabomber's travels and writings, a fearful David Kaczynski launched a private investigation of his brother last fall. He was anguished to learn from a retired FBI analyst that there was a 60 to 80 percent chance Theodore Kaczynski wrote the Unabomber's manifesto.

"David wanted very much to believe that Ted was not involved and still would like to believe that," David's attorney, Tony Bisceglie, said Monday. Now, David "is somewhat in shock. I think that he believes that his brother is involved."

When Clinton Van Zandt, the FBI's retired chief hostage negotiator, and two of his experts finished analyzing two of Theodore Kaczynski's personal letters at yearned, he telephoned David's private detective that "we felt very strongly this individual could be the author of the Unabomber's manifesto and she needed to immediately get her client to the FBI," Van Zandt said in an interview.

"There are similarities in ideology ... in phraseology and ... in the spelling of certain words," Bisceglie said.

The private agony of David Kaczynski and how the 46-year-old Schenectady, N.Y., social worker came to tip off the FBI about his older brother was detailed by Bisceglie at a news conference here.

Simultaneously at the Justice Department, federal prosecutors from seven states — California, Connecticut, Illinois, Massachusetts, Montana, New Jersey and Utah — met for three hours to plan their legal strategy against Theodore Kaczynski. The 53-year-old former math professor, charged in Montana with possessing bomb parts, is suspected of the bombings that killed three people and injured 23 in nine states over the past 18 years.

Federal investigators have placed Theodore Kaczynski in northern California on dates when bombs were mailed from the region, a law enforcement official said Monday.

In a preliminary discussion of where and how many federal cases might be brought in the Unabomber case, the prosecutors noted two killings, one in northern New Jersey in 1994 and another in Sacramento in 1995, occurred after the federal death penalty was restored to laws that might apply, a senior federal official said on condition of anonymity.

Merrick Garland, chief aide to Deputy Attorney General Jamie Gorelick, was put in charge of the investigation, the same role he filled after the bombing of a federal building a year ago in Oklahoma City.

Bisceglie was hired by David Kaczynski during the first week of January to relay his suspicions to the FBI. Among the first things Bisceglie told an FBI agent in Washington was the result of the Van Zandt team's comparison of writings by an unnamed individual and the manifesto. "The information was taken very seriously," Bisceglie said.

At that time, neither Bisceglie nor David knew there was a $1 million reward. If they collect the money, the Kaczynskis are considering giving it to families of Unabomber victims.

"Our hearts are with Ted. Our deep sympathies go out to the victims and their families," the family said in a statement Monday. Bisceglie said family members had had no contact with Theodore since he was charged but would see him if he agreed to.

David Kaczynski told their mother, Wanda, about the investigation only two weeks ago. "She expressed her sincere belief that Ted could not be the Unabomber, but she also stated that if he were, then he had to be stopped," Bisceglie said.

In an interview, Van Zandt, a veteran of 25 years with the FBI, said that last December he was given a 10-year-old, four-page letter and a one- or two-year-old, one-page letter by Chicago private detective Susan Swanson, who was working for David.

Van Zandt, a psychiatrist and a linguist compared them to the 35,000-word manifesto on the inhumanity of industrial society. They looked at "how the sentences were structured, the wording and use of phrases to profile the author's academic training," Van Zandt said. The team also "looked at the ideas expressed for a psychological profile, whether he was a loner or member of a group, in society or separate."

That team concluded there was a better than 60 percent chance the same person wrote the letters and the manifesto.

A couple weeks later, Van Zandt and two communications experts concluded a separate analysis of "the overall themes, the style and form" and concluded there was more than an 80 percent chance of one author.

"I consider David to be a national hero," Van Zandt said. He said the discovery of a partial and a complete pipe bomb at Theodore's Montana cabin indicates David "could very well have saved lives by coming forward."

David's first suspicions about his brother arose late last summer when he read about the Unabomber's suspected travels, Bisceglie said.

"You're pregnant."

Those words were hard to hear.
The decision was harder to make.

After I struggled with what to do, I realized that I just couldn't face a pregnancy at that point in my life. I decided to have an abortion, but I didn't know where to go or who to turn to. Then a friend recommended that I call Planned Parenthood.

No one at Planned Parenthood was judgmental. They left the decision up to me and they assured me that my visit would be completely confidential. I appreciated that.

From the start, they were kind, sensitive, and professional. They explained everything in detail and answered all my questions. They really seemed to care about me.

I'm thankful that Planned Parenthood was there for me. I hope none of my friends ever have to face such a hard decision. But if they do, I know Planned Parenthood will be there for them, too.

This Republican National Committee party video shows current GOP convention manager Bill Greener pretending to interview a woman for a job. In the skit, Greener asks the woman "What are your qualifications?" then gawks as she strips to flimsy lingerie.

GOP Christmas party video gains attention for lewd skits

John Solomon
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A video produced for the Republican National Committee Christmas party last December featured top GOP officials in skits parodying cocaine use and lewd behavior.

In one parody of a job interview, GOP Convention Manager Bill Greener asks a woman, played by a GOP staffer, "What are your qualifications?" He then gawks as she strips to flimsy lingerie.

"I'm an ass man, but you still got the job," a smiling Greener says on the video. The skit was filmed in 1985 but was dusted off for the 1995 video.

Another scene portrays a man sitting in a chair and apparently receiving sexual favors from a woman who is under a table.

Another decade-old clip shows Mary Matalin, George Bush's campaign political director in 1992, donning dark glasses as she pretends to snort a line of cocaine.

An announcer introduces the skit with a play on words involving Matalin's current job as co-host of CNBC's "Equal Time" political talk show.

"Long before Mary Matalin was doing Equal Time, she was more interested in doing equal lines," the announcer says.

The tape's disclosure comes at a sensitive time for the GOP, which is fending off a lawsuit that includes allegations from three female former employees that Republican National Committee headquarters in Washington is rife with lewd behavior, racism and gay-bashing.

The RNC is contesting the lawsuit allegations and said the videotape, which was first aired by CNN, has no relevance to the suit.

"Ridiculing inappropriate behavior is the polar opposite of condoning it," the party said in a statement Monday.

"To suggest old Christmas Party lampoon videos reflect reality at the RNC is like suggesting that reruns of skits from 'Saturday Night Live' reflect the working atmosphere at NBC," it said.

Greener said someone else had scripted his scene back in 1985, and he did not object to doing it because everyone recognized it was satire and did not reflect the way he or other RNC officials really acted.

"The reality is, no offense was intended at the time, and in the 11 years since then, no one has ever expressed any offense," he said.

"I think what you see is one more indication of why what many people would consider would be innocent humor is now something that lots of people give a very serious look at," he said.

Matalin said her skit was done in 1984. "I do recall those were in the days of 'just say no.' That was obviously a spoof. You never saw a bunch of straighter people in your life," she said.

As for the Greener skit being resurrected in 1995, Matalin added: "That was certainly cut in less politically correct days. I don't think anybody would do that today."

RNC spokesperson Mary Crawford said employees each year produce a lampoon tape for the annual Christmas party for staff at RNC headquarters and that last year's makers apparently wove together new skits with old clips.

Interspersed throughout the video are takeoffs on popular television shows like "Home Improvement," "ER" and "Friends" or mock newscasts that poke fun at fellow Republicans or President Clinton. RNC chairperson Haley Barbour appears in some.

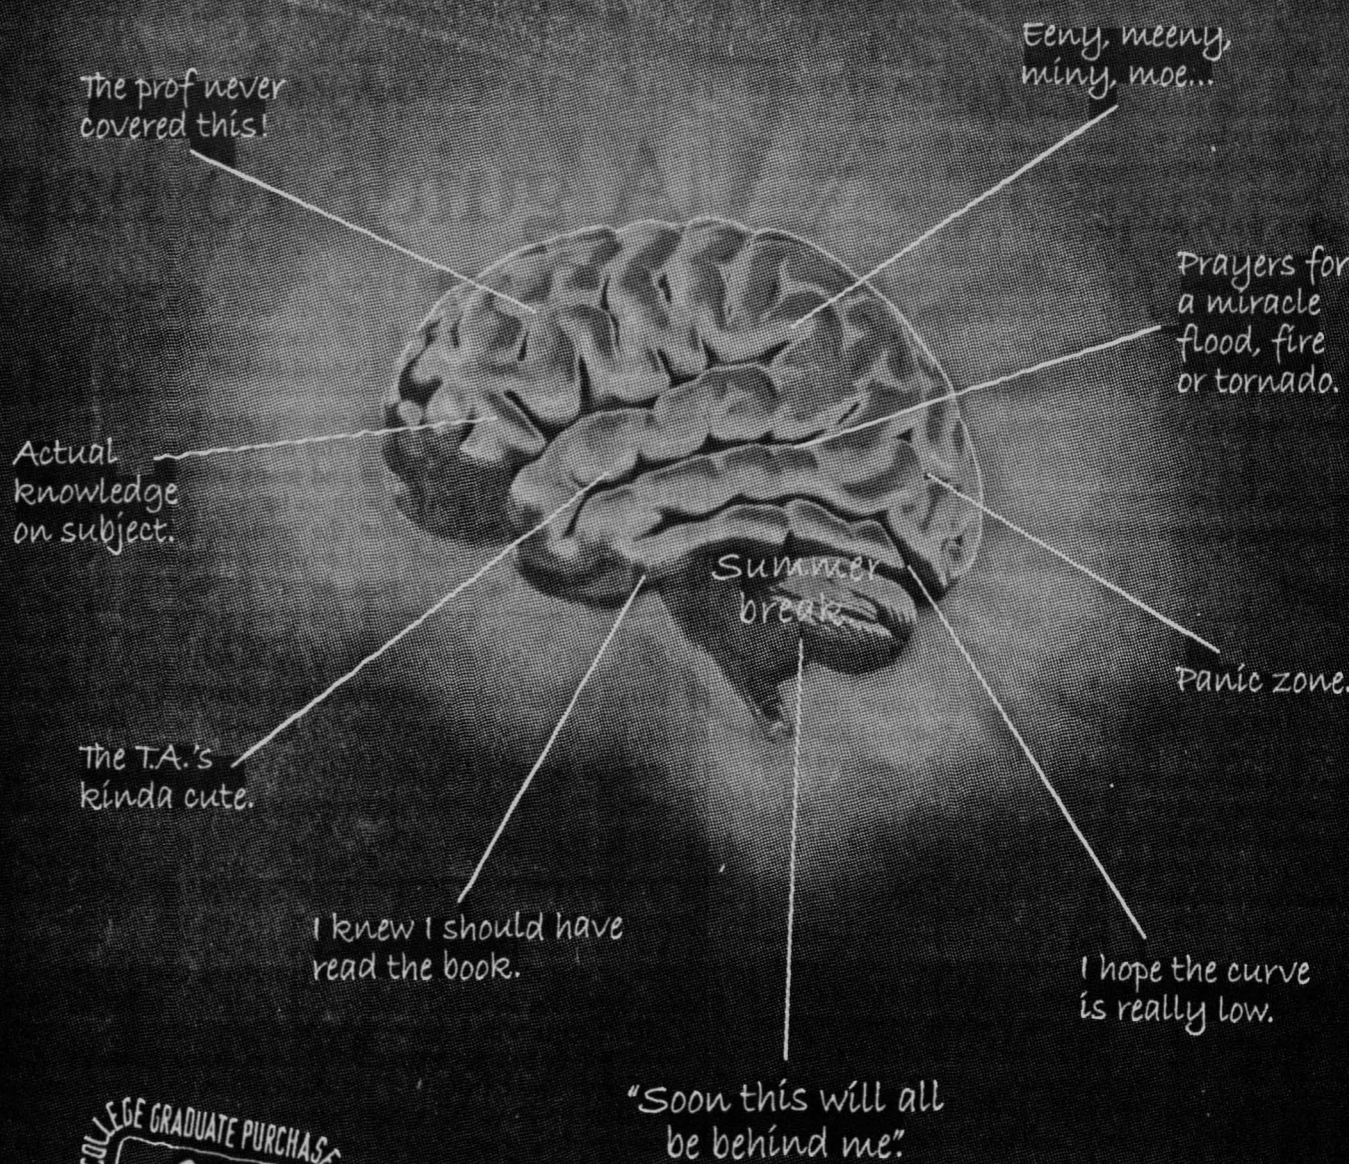

In one skit, RNC Political Director Curt Anderson interviews a fictitious black candidate for mayor of Washington.

The candidate gives a ludicrous answer about handling the city's homelessness problem before pulling out what appears to be a bag of cocaine from his briefcase.

"The difference between me and that man you got running now ... This stuff here, I don't mess with it," the candidate says.

Crawford said the skit was meant to poke fun at Mayor Marion Barry's misdemeanor drug conviction.

Church against state

■ As the strict separation between church and state is challenged in Tennessee we should keep in mind the religious rights our forefathers were protecting.

Conservatives in the state of Tennessee are pushing to ban the teaching of evolution in schools. They say the science of evolution calls into question their personal beliefs. But if they ban evolutionary science, they will be ignoring the separation of church and state, one of the main principles on which this country is based.

The separation of church and state is very important, and many people seem to forget or ignore its purpose. We must remember the writers of the Constitution were Christian, so by no means were they attempting to squash Christianity. Instead, they simply believed religion is a church matter and that law is a secular matter.

The Constitution was written not long after hundreds of women in Europe and colonial America were senselessly tortured and burned to death for "witchcraft." Preceding this was the Spanish Inquisition, when thousands were murdered because they were not Christian. Those who drafted the Constitution knew that when religion rules a state, it opens the doors to tyranny and oppression justified with biblical passages. The separation of church and state is merely a trouble-shooting mechanism which ensures the problem of religious oppression will never happen again. It has nothing to do with oppressing

If evolution makes some Christians uncomfortable, then it is a personal issue. Many Christians believe evolution is simply God's method. Regardless, suppressing scientific evidence is intellectually irresponsible at best and outright oppressive at worst.

Suppressing rational scientific ideas because they are inconvenient to religion is nothing new. It was only three years ago that the Catholic Church admitted Galileo was right and the Earth is not the center of the universe. In 1633, Galileo was forced to recant his theory and spent the last eight years of his life under house arrest. The church issued their apology a few hundred years later. How long will it take the church to catch up with Darwin and evolution? How many more ideas will be suppressed because they are "uncomfortable?"

One of the reasons we have so many freedoms in this country is because of our secular law. We need only look at the history of countries without secular law to see we are quite fortunate for having it. Churches and Christian government officials in this country should stop trying to subvert the separation of church and state and learn to appreciate it. It gives them the right to question evolution and the choice of whether they want to believe it. But it doesn't give them the right to suppress it.

Symbols aren't at fault

To the Editor:

I am writing to respond to the editorial "Symbolic slavery" by Rima Vesely in the April 1 issue of the DI. I regret the writer has taken the use of the Confederate flag by racist groups to mean that all who use this flag are racists. The Ku Klux Klan and other racist groups also use the flag of the United States and the Christian cross without leading the writer to believe that all who use these symbols are racists.

For many southerners, the Confederate flag is a symbol of those soldiers, including, of course, those African-Americans who served in the Confederate military, who fell in the defense of the Confederacy during the War Between the States. The existence of slavery in the Confederacy is a shameful part of the history of the South. However, I must remind readers that slavery was not unique to the Confederate States of America, but was legal in some states of the Union (Delaware, Maryland, Missouri, Kentucky) until after the war.

Racism is an on-going tragedy in this nation. I am disturbed by the very existence, much less growth, of white supremacist groups such as the Ku Klux Klan. I also disagree strongly with recent moves toward weakening affirmative action. I feel efforts to dismantle institutional racism should be increased, not abandoned. However, bigotry against southerners and the perpetuation of negative stereotypes about the South will not aid in this effort. The problem lies with the bigots, not with the symbols they adopt.

Funds help disadvantaged

To the Editor:

We are writing to provide some details about how the LIFE Skills Inc. Housing Support Program has utilized CDBG funds to benefit low and moderate income Iowa Citizens. The Housing Support program provides assistance with locating housing and educational services to people who are in danger of being evicted. We also assist with accessing community resources, budgeting, home maintenance skill development and addressing other concerns that may lead to homelessness. The LIFE Skills Housing Support Specialists also provide liaison services between tenants and landlords in addition to aiding tenants with communication skills if necessary.

As a private non-profit human service agency, LIFE Skills Inc. works closely with other local human service agencies to continue to reduce the number of homeless in our community and provide education and awareness activities to bring the issue of homelessness to the attention of the community. The continued granting of CDBG funds allows LIFE Skills to offer services that assist local agencies in achieving their goals of housing placement. The Housing Support program also directly benefits those individuals it works with to obtain housing.

By the end of the 1996 fiscal year, the LIFE Skills Housing Support program will have served over 50 individuals or families. One of the benefits of the Housing Support program is the reduction of stress and overcrowding in our local shelters. Even more importantly, it assists in reducing the stress of homelessness on those individuals who are affected.

Saying good riddance to Dancers

I would like to tell you about the time I went to Dancers in Coralville.

It was last year. I had had a few margaritas. I got what my mother would call "a bug up my ass."

I went for many reasons: curiosity, novelty, but mostly, I went to settle a score with an old boyfriend.

Walking into Dancers, the first thing I noticed was the smell — oily. I showed my ID to the bouncer and got out my cash. He provided me with the most delightful irony.

"You don't have to pay. The ladies get in free."

With such a respect for women at Dancers, who needs Ms. magazine?

The place was smaller than I imagined. I had hoped it would be larger, with some place to hide. There are no dark corners to hide at Dancers because in each corner is a naked woman.

Upon seeing my first dancer, a tall girl with teased up hair and very large breasts, I thought to myself, "Does she have a better body than me?"

A voice on the intercom said, "All right, guys, we've got a very special lady for all of you. Run up and get a chair, and get ready for Cindy!"

The music started. A woman came out in a red bikini top and shorts, and shiny red shoes with lacy, little-girl socks. She stepped up to the catwalk and strutted across it, bouncing haughtily.

Her breasts were large, her legs were muscular and her thighs were shapely. But her face was haggard and smeared with makeup. My eyes rested on her face only momentarily — it was her body I was so jealous of. It is bodies, after all, that bring men to Dancers.

Stephanie Wilbur

She walked around seductively, rubbed up and down on a pole, moving it up and down to the beat of the music. She did the splits in front of a man in the audience.

Cindy ended wearing only a G-string, straddling another man. The announcer said, "Hold up your money and Cindy will come over to you for a special private session." A man held up a ten and she strutted over to him, breasts swinging from her chest, bra swinging from her finger.

It was at Dancers I realized no matter how hard I tried, no matter how sexy I was, how smart, pretty, funny, aggressive, submissive, religious or good I was at chugging beers or making Christmas ornaments out of toothpicks, it would all come down to one thing eventually — my body.

I am tied to the strippers because I am sexual, have a body and like to dance. But I am much more than this (and so are they). There is nothing wrong with sexual pleasure from a visual stimulus. There is something drastically wrong with that stimulus being a blatant objectification of women and glorification of a body standard few women can achieve.

There's something wrong with asking a girl to bend over for you, before you ask her where she's from.

Every time a man goes to a strip bar he conveys to the world that only a woman's sexual attributes are of value, and that women must strive to achieve the body ideal he sees at Dancers in order to be attractive to him.

I am angry people ignore what strip joints do to women's psyches. I am angry at the culture for slashing the hell out of women's self-esteem and providing unreachable goals.

I am angry because I had to drag myself out of bed in the morning to go to aerobics so my boyfriend wouldn't criticize the cellulite texture of my butt. I am angry because of the night I stayed up late preparing for a mock job interview only to have my instructor tell me my skirt was too short. I am angry because of the all the boys who teased my friend, Rebecca, to tears because of her flat chest — and because she let them copy her geometry homework anyway.

I am angry because of all the things I hear and see that tell me I can be the "everything" woman. They point to Gloria Steinem and Cindy Crawford; "I can bring home the bacon, fry it up in a pan," and forget that few people want me to be that.

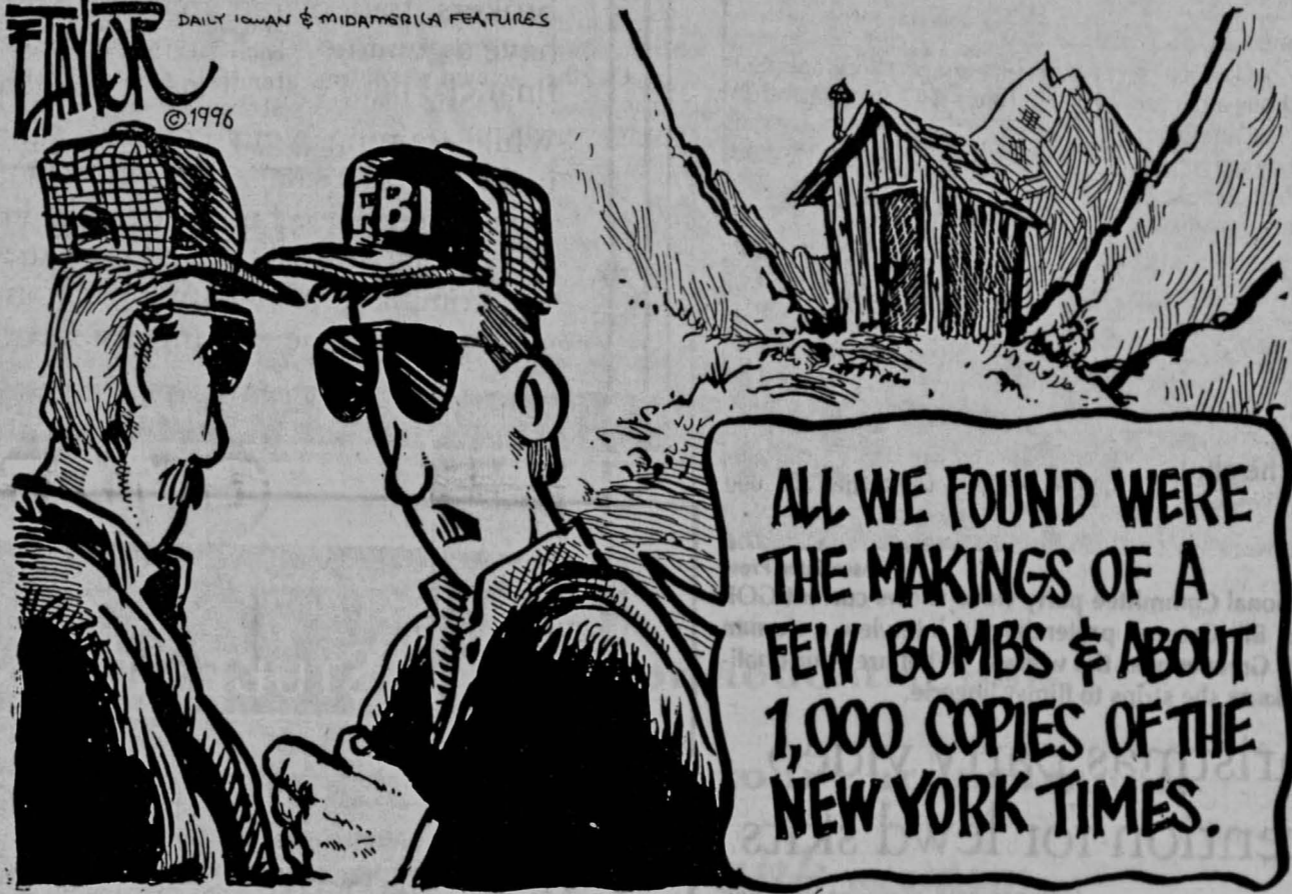

I left Dancers comatose. It was the first time I realized I had been living a lie.

Saturday night the curtain goes down on Dancers. Though it won't cure the world's ills or my own demented struggle with buying control top pantyhose, it will be a small step in the right direction.

I will probably do a little dance myself in honor of the event: a jig, I think.

Or maybe a polka.

A guide to happy Ped Mall passage

Catching rays on the Burge Residence Hall sun deck. Playing frisbee in Hubbard Park. Reading with friends on the Pentacrest. Piling into a convertible and cruising out to the Coralville Reservoir.

As the mercury begins to rise in the thermometer, the beginning of spring in Iowa City presents itself in those ways and many others. But this time of year is not without its dangers.

No, I am not talking about the perils of skin cancer from sunbathing or the higher rate of absenteeism that invariably occurs as finals uals, whose appearance alone should raise a giant red flag.

First, the clothes. These kids dress as if they walked into the closet with their eyes closed. They are usually wearing pants that would fit Dom DeLoise comfortably and in colors often reserved for the old 1970s couch which sits in your parent's basement. While their pants are loose, the same baggy principle does not apply to their shirts. The shirts are so tight, they appear as if they were last comfortable in the third grade.

Speaking of clothes, I wonder if someone can explain to me the necessity of having the long metal chain thing hanging down the side of the pants. What is this for? I guess I always assumed this chain allows their parents to lock them inside at night or whenever they entertain guests. Sounds plausible to me.

And the hairstyles of this skateboarding ilk. Enough said.

My major beef with these kids is their skateboarding skills. Rather their lack of skills. Time after time, I see some little freak lose control of his skateboard, sending it in the direction of some unsuspecting person. There is only one way to keep such activities from continuing. Next time you are accosted by a wayward skateboard, simply reach down, pick it up and slam it into a nearby tree or bench. Maybe then they will understand the Ped Mall is not a place for legal skateboarding.

The other group Iowa Citizens must contend with as the weather warms is the panhandlers who frequent the Ped Mall. I suppose it is no surprise that Iowa City is a haven for beggars. I am sure beggars do quite well here — a liberal community that probably views these individuals as victims of an unjust and uncompassionate society.

Personally, I am sick and tired of being bothered by these individuals when walking through the Ped Mall, especially when these beggars act like I owe them something. Let me relate an example of the "holier than thou" attitude employed by Ped Mall beggars.

Recently, while walking out of Burger King with lunch in hand, my roommate encountered a beggar seated on a bench. After being asked for money, my roommate said he spent it all on his lunch and began to walk away. As he walked away, the beggar began cursing him for not being compassionate and helping others. Of course, this scene took place no more than 10 feet from Burger King, which prominently displayed a "Help Wanted" sign in its window.

I am not saying people should not help beggars by giving them money, but it produces two problems that all of us must contend with in the Ped Mall: It increases the number of beggars and it increases their level of persistence.

If you still feel obligated to give away money in the Ped Mall, I suggest saving it for those individuals who produce something, usually the musicians. Even I, the cold-hearted conservative, am guilty of occasionally throwing two bits into the rusty paint can of the old, folk guitarist in the Ped Mall, provided he plays a Jim Croce tune or two.

Defense chips away at testimony of key witness in Whitewater trial

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The defense attacked David Hale's credibility in the Whitewater trial Monday, forcing the prosecution's star witness to admit he couldn't recall details of key meetings about allegedly fraudulent loans.

Testifying for a sixth day in the case against the Clintons' Whitewater partners and Gov. Jim Guy Tucker, Hale also admitted he didn't pay taxes on money he stole.

Hale testified last week that McDougal pressed for loans out of Hale's lending company to help members of the "political family" in Arkansas. On Monday, however, Hale couldn't recall when the reference came up.

Hale acknowledged he couldn't even say what month he, Tucker and James McDougal supposedly drove in McDougal's Jaguar to property south of Little Rock that is at the center of the fraud conspiracy charges.

Declaring "I don't recall" more than a dozen times, Hale thought the drive in the Jaguar was in October or November 1985. He wasn't sure exactly how long the three men had stood there and examined the property or precisely what was said.

Under questioning by Tucker attorney George Collins, Hale acknowledged he funneled $280,000 in federally backed loans to himself so he could buy a burial insurance company. Hale admitted he disguised the theft by siphoning the funds through a shell company named Sunbelt and never paid taxes on any of the money.

Collins pounced when Hale suggested he might not have owed taxes because he suffered financial losses that year.

14 years after acquittal, racist sniper says he shot Vernon Jordan

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The racist acquitted 14 years ago in a sniper attack on Vernon Jordan says he did indeed commit the crime, and he has detailed for the first time how he ambushed the civil rights leader in the dark.

Joseph Paul Franklin, 45, already is serving six life sentences plus 31 years for murder. He is in jail in St. Louis, awaiting trial in yet another slaying.

In a jailhouse interview with The Indianapolis Star and its sister newspaper The Indianapolis News, Franklin said he went to Fort Wayne from Chicago in 1980 after failing in an attempt to stalk and kill Jesse Jackson.

In Fort Wayne, Franklin said, he hoped to target "race mixers." But after hearing on the news that Jordan would be speaking at the Marriott Hotel, Franklin decided to go after Jordan, then president of the Urban League.

Franklin said he learned Jordan was staying in a corner room at the hotel, so he parked next to a highway, raised the hood to make it look as if he had car trouble, and waited in the grass with his hunting rifle, about 140 feet from his target.

Grisly accounts revealed as Bosnian refugees emerge

George Esper
Associated Press

SAHMERI, Bosnia-Herzegovina — "Don't cry, my mother," the 16-year-old Muslim youth said as the two embraced, reunited nine months after the massacre at Srebrenica — a town that has come to symbolize the horror and suffering of Bosnia's war.

Bekir Husejinovic was one of six men to emerge from hiding in the past few days, stunning relatives. "Is it the truth that my son is alive?" his mother, Zineta Husejinovic, cried. "I can't believe my son is in front of me."

The Muslim enclave fell to the Serbs in July, and thousands of men are believed to have been hunted down and slaughtered. Bekir and five other men arrived in government-controlled territory only Saturday, telling reporters and local TV stations that they survived for nine months by hiding in bunkers just a couple of miles from Srebrenica and eating corn kernels and potatoes.

Their extraordinary story comes just as spring's thaw is uncovering suspected mass grave sites. War crimes investigators are collecting evidence at several sites believed to hold the remains of hundreds of men who eyewitnesses said were marched away from Srebrenica and systematically executed. Most estimates are that the bodies of 7,000 men await discovery.

It was impossible to verify the accounts of the six men. Randolph Ryan, a spokesperson for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, said, "We have not interviewed them and have no knowledge of the case. If it's true, it's an amazing story."

A Western official who deals in Bosnian affairs said that although he had not interviewed the men, he had doubts about the accounts he has heard so far about how they survived.

"One possibility is that they got some assistance from somebody along the way, possibly a Serb family which helped them survive," said the source. "And they want to protect them."

"The other possibility is that they came out some months ago and for some reason somebody didn't want to publicize their case until now, possibly for propaganda purposes," the source said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Three of the men interviewed by the AP, including Bekir, Adnan Spahic, 20, and Muhamed Smajic, 26, gave essentially the same account.

After fleeing the Serbs, they kept themselves warm with wood stoves in their bunkers and with blankets. They managed to rig up a radio with an old 12-volt alternator they found, generating electricity to run it with a makeshift wooden spinning wheel propelled by a rope.

Over the radio, they learned of the Dayton peace agreement late last year. They decided then to return to Bosnian government territory, but they waited until the snow had melted and until the agreement had taken hold, establishing zones of separation and calling for freedom of movement.

Finally, about two weeks ago, they made their move from the hamlet of Lehovici near Srebrenica, about 45 miles southeast of Tuzla. They zigzagged to Tuzla in 11 days to reach government territory.

The 16-year-old Bekir seemed nervous and rarely smiled as he and Adnan told their stories, surrounded by family and friends. Regardless of whether their account was entirely true, the joy of their relatives appeared genuine.

Plane crash officials investigate suicide, navigation equipment

Tony Smith
Associated Press

DUBROVNIK, Croatia — A U.S. team investigating the plane crash that killed Commerce Secretary Ron Brown focused on the Dubrovnik airport's navigation system Monday, and ruled out any link between the crash and the suicide of the system's maintenance chief.

Niko Jerkic, whose duties included keeping the navigation system working properly, shot himself in the chest at his home Saturday, three days after Brown's plane slammed into a hilltop near Dubrovnik in a windy rainstorm, killing all 35 people aboard. Brown and a group of U.S. business leaders were looking into business and investment opportunities in the Balkans.

The Croatian Interior Ministry issued a statement Monday saying Jerkic was not working Wednesday, the day of the crash.

He "neither had any connection with the operational service of the control tower, nor did his death have any connections with the tragic crash of the U.S. aircraft," it said.

U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Ray Shepherd, spokesperson for Brig. Gen. Charles Coolidge, who is investigating the crash, said the U.S. team had received the statement and was satisfied Jerkic was not responsible.

"That's enough for us," he said Monday.

Jerkic died before the U.S. team got a chance to question him in an interview Shepherd has described as routine.

The team will probably spend two days examining the navigation equipment, Shepherd said. The system relied on technology that is about 50 years old, but both U.S.

and Croatian officials have described it as reliable. The Yugoslav army stripped the airport of a more sophisticated landing system in 1992 and the equipment never was replaced.

Police, who originally reported the maintenance chief's name as Niko Junik, have refused to release any details of the suicide. Jerkic's family refused to talk to reporters Monday.

Airport officials also declined to be interviewed about Jerkic, but neighbors described him as serious and somewhat reclusive and said they hadn't seen him since the crash.

Jerkic shot himself about an hour after the bodies of the 35 Americans were flown out of the airport back to the United States.

The 46-year-old bachelor lived on the ground floor of his parents' three-story home overlooking Dubrovnik's harbor. He almost always used a private garage exit rather than the main house entrance to come and go, said the neighbors, who would not give their names.

Report: Simpson was deceptive during lie-detector test

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — O.J. Simpson was still on medication just two days after his wife's killing when he took a surprise lie-detector test and scored badly on it, KCBS-TV reported Monday.

The report did not cover what questions Simpson was asked, but said he scored a minus 6, which is considered deceptive.

The station reported that Simpson and longtime friend Robert Kardashian drove to polygraph examiner Edward I. Gelb's office on June 14, 1994, at the urging of attorney Robert Shapiro.

Simpson believed he was going for medical tests and was angered when Shapiro arrived and told him about the test, KCBS said.

Simpson agreed to take the test, however, and when he scored badly he offered to take another, KCBS said. He was advised not to, partly because he was on medication, the television station reported.

A jury acquitted him of murder last October.

Shapiro did not immediately return a call to his office for comment.

Attorney Robert Baker, who is representing Simpson in a wrongful death lawsuit filed by the families of Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman, declined to discuss the lie-detector test. But he said Simpson's denials that he killed his ex-wife and Goldman have always been consistent.

UNION DEBATE

questions unanswered, UI graduate student and SAC member Mark Wrighton said.

"Personally, I am voting 'no,'" he said. "Students are uninformed on the issues, and COGS has done some things that are not worthy of representing us at the bargaining table."

Wrighton handed out a list of questions for COGS members, none of whom attended the conference. The conference included discussion of a Feb. 23 letter from COGS member Leslie Taylor to Mary Jo Small, associate vice president for Finance and University Services, and Kevin Ward, director of Employee Relations.

In the letter, Taylor said COGS and UE members would like to begin bargaining with the UI over wages, hours and other employment conditions, something SAC said she shouldn't have done without majority approval from graduate students.

"Graduate students across the university should be concerned about this letter," Wrighton said. "COGS is saying, 'We don't care what you think.'"

Taylor said the letter was normal procedure under Iowa's labor laws. "We can ask (the administration) to voluntarily negotiate with us," she said. "This is part of normal labor procedures. (The administration) said 'no' — we figured that and said 'thank you.'"

SAC member Sheldon Oppenheim said graduate students who receive a specialized type of grant — a Research Training Grant — not paid by the UI would be affected by COGS' decisions, but would not be allowed to vote in the elections. Taylor's letter says these groups are excluded from the union.

"The problem is you're going to have to suffer the same," Oppenheim said. "You end up suffering, but you don't get to vote."

UI graduate student and training grant recipient Jeff Wilson said he was told he wouldn't be allowed to vote in the elections.

"The grant I'm on is a one-year renewable, going on three years now," he said. "I will be affected if the union comes through. I'm left without a voice right now and not allowed to vote."

Taylor said COGS members approved a measure at their April 2 meeting to allow all graduate students to become COGS members, regardless of whether they were receiving training grants.

"Anyone who is a graduate student could be a union member," she said. "Any graduate student who would sign the union card would get full rights and privileges to vote."

UI graduate student Katherine Brown said she hopes the April 16 vote won't go through, and that many of her peers in the Biochemistry Department do, too.

"I don't approve of the method and how they've established a union here," she said. "I don't think with myself in biochemistry is going to benefit from this. I don't know anyone who's for it. We already have an excellent program."

FIRE

said. "Three hours went by from the time the resident smelled smoke before calling the fire department. They should have called the fire department sooner if they smelled something. This was not a positive result."

Standing on a nearby shed and trying to see with binoculars the damage done to the third-floor apartment she has lived in since August, UI senior Denise Montgomery said she doesn't want to think about how much she lost.

"I had a furnished apartment with a TV, stereo, chair, clothes," she said. "Every five seconds I think of something I've lost. I had to go and buy all new books with six weeks left of school. It burned a long time before it got to my floor. It's weird to see water (from the fire trucks) going into your room. It's really surreal."

Montgomery said her second-floor neighbors warned her of the smoke and told her to get out.

"When they knocked at the door, there was white smoke in the hallway," she said. "I grabbed my coat and wallet and stopped for 15 seconds, and the hallway was coated with thick black smoke. Panic kind of took over and I ran for the door."

Iowa City Police Department reports stated the ICPD responded to the blaze at 10:28 p.m. and spent the next three-and-a-half hours controlling it. At 6:30 a.m.,

"I had a furnished apartment with a TV, stereo, chair, clothes. Every five seconds I think of something I've lost. I had to go and buy all new books with six weeks left of school."

fire units were still on the scene keeping spot fires in check.

The results were even more disastrous because the majority of the building's residents didn't have insurance, Jensen said. The ICFD estimated the total damage at $200,000.

"Only one in four (apartments) had renter's insurance," he said. "It could have been a lifesaver in terms of losses."

The building's manager, North Liberty resident Tom Ries, said he was just glad everyone was alive, and doesn't know yet if the owner will rebuild.

"I'm happy all the folks inside made it out safely," he said. "I live out of town and received the call. The wife and I and the kids rushed here to make sure everyone was all right."

A building's owner has the duty of making sure premises are safe, said UI law Professor Sheldon Kurtz. A possible lawsuit could follow if the owner neglected his duties.

"Landlords have the obligation to provide premises that are safe," he said. "To the extent the premises are not safe and a personal injury results, there could be a possible lawsuit if the landlord was negligent."

Ries said the owner, who is his father-in-law, would have to meet with attorneys. He didn't know if negligence played a part, because the ICFD hasn't fully determined if the building's wiring was faulty.

Both Schumacher and Bradley will stay at the Heartland Inn, Coralville, courtesy of the Red Cross. They aren't sure where their future home will be.

"The Red Cross does a super job. They have all the answers," Bradley said. "I'm just going to start buying some stuff and doing a lot of shopping in the next couple of weeks."

the information.

"It takes about a year to learn how to use it," he said. "It's just like learning Russian if you've never heard it before."

The device could be turned on at any time, but Kantamneni's implant won't be turned on until May so his brain can fully recover from the surgery, Gantz said.

"There is swelling around the incision, outside of the body," he said. "There is also some reaction as the tissue grows around the implant."

Jiji Kantamneni, Mukunda's wife, said she'll help her husband get used to his new implant.

"Once he starts using it, we'll see what side effects he'll have and cope with that," she said.

Side effects can include facial twitching and stimulation of the voice box, Gantz said.

"There can be side effects to the implant, but they are not major ones," he said. "The implant may cause stimulation of other nerves."

Kantamneni was moved to his room Sunday from the UIHC's Intensive Care Unit and is doing well, Jiji Kantamneni said.

"He's talking normally and he's walking," she said.

The history of the implant is a moderately successful one, Gantz said.

"Although not all patients can hear everything, there are a couple of patients who understand words and not just sounds," he said.

The UIHC is one of five hospitals in the country that has performed the surgery, and hopes to do three to five of its kind per year, Gantz said.

"We are following a few patients with tumors on their hearing nerves," he said. "As they lose hearing, we will begin to put in implants."

MOLESTER RELEASED

abusing some 240 children, was heading to San Antonio, 250 miles away, where he was to live at the Central Texas Parole Violator Facility, a privately managed institution housed in the former county jail.

McQuay originally was scheduled for release last week to a Houston halfway house, but that was scuttled after a victims rights group criticized the move.

He had written letters to the group, some signed "child-molesting demon," promising to kill his next victims if he ever gets out.

The San Antonio center will be "much more secure than a conventional halfway house, not in a neighborhood," said Allan Polunsky, chairman of the State Board of Criminal Justice.

The 32-year-old McQuay, who has served six years of an eight-year term for attacking a 6-year-old boy, qualified for mandatory release under state law. He must serve two years in the San Antonio center.

McQuay will be kept under lock and key in a private cell, will be under 24-hour surveillance and will have four parole officers assigned to his case, Victor Rodriguez, the chairman of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles, said.

He also must wear an electronic monitor on his ankle and will be accompanied on all trips from the facility. In addition, he may not go outside Bexar County without written permission from the parole board, officials said.

McQuay must tell any prospective employer about his history of abusing children and can't have any contact with children, officials said. They stressed that if he gets a job under those circumstances, someone will be assigned to accompany him at all times.

"He has agreed to the restrictions of his mandatory release, which are some of the most restrictive ever issued to an individual," Criminal Justice Department spokesperson Larry Todd said earlier. "I don't think there's any problem using the word 'unprecedented.'"

"He signed his release certificate and has agreed to all the conditions of his mandatory release."

McQuay repeatedly has sought castration, saying it would help him avoid repeating his past crimes. State officials previously had denied the request, saying it was elective surgery.

Officials also noted that a majority of clinicians who have written on the subject believe no surgical procedure — including castration — can be considered a foolproof method of curing sex offenders.

Rodriguez said castration remains elective on McQuay's part.

"This is an independent action on his own doing and what he arranges for that is when that will happen," he said.

Arizona dumps Kreig, brings in Boomer

The Arizona Cardinals signed quarterback Boomer Esiason Monday to replace quarterback Dave Krieg, whom the team waived.

Rams deal Gilbert to Redskins for No. 6 pick

ASHBURN, Va. (AP) — The Washington Redskins, in desperate need of a defensive lineman, traded their first-round No. 6 draft pick to the St. Louis Rams for Sean Gilbert.

The Rams also have the 13th overall pick in the draft.

They reportedly wanted to move up to be in a position to select Nebraska running back Lawrence Phillips, who visited with Rams officials last week. However, Phillips is also coveted by Baltimore, which has the fourth overall pick, so the Rams would have to put together a package, including the sixth and 13th picks, to move up.

Heavy umpire Gregg takes leave to lose weight

NEW YORK (AP) — Reacting to the death of John McSherry, baseball officials gave a leave of absence to umpire Eric Gregg Monday so he can lose weight and get in shape.

Gregg, listed at 325 pounds but visibly heavier, has long been an example used by critics of overweight umpires. The decision to give him a leave was made following a Sunday night meeting among AL president Gene Budig, NL president Len Coleman and umpires union head Richie Phillips.

"In light of recent events, I feel this is the right time to take a serious look at my weight and conditioning," said Gregg, an NL umpire since 1975. "My goal is to be a major league umpire for many years to come, and to accomplish that I need to take a closer look at my overall health."

During Sunday night's meeting, Phillips asked for training machines such as treadmills and Stairmasters to be installed for umpires at each major league ballpark. He also would like umpires to remain in a single city each week, rather than rotate after every series.

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Washington Bullets rookie Rasheed Wallace, who is sidelined with a broken left thumb, was arrested over the weekend in North Carolina and charged with misdemeanor assault.

Wallace was arrested Sunday and charged after allegedly failing to obey a restraining order filed against him by Chiquita Bryant, police said. Bryant is Wallace's ex-girlfriend and mother of his son Ishmiel, according to police.

Grace builds lead, Servais saves it

Associated Press

DENVER — With a bright sun and a temperature of 70 degrees, it was, as Chicago's Mark Grace noted, "a perfect day to play baseball."

Grace was plenty perfect himself. He went 4-for-4, including three doubles, and drove in three runs — and still had to yield the spotlight to teammate Scott Servais, who drove in a career-high five runs with a home run and a double.

The Cubs blew a 6-0 lead but Servais' three-run homer in the seventh gave them a 9-6 win Monday and spoiled the Colorado Rockies' home opener.

"Scotty Servais had an awesome game," Grace said. "He drove in some huge runs for us, and the bullpen made it stand up."

The Cubs, winning their 10th straight road opener, built a 6-0 lead off Kevin Ritz (1-1) after two innings, then finished off Ritz in the seventh.

With one out, Grace doubled for his third hit of the day. One out later, Luis Gonzalez was intentionally walked and Servais homered to left.

Reliever Terry Adams (1-0) gave the Cubs four solid innings, striking out his last four batters. His four innings and six strikeouts both were career highs. Doug Jones pitched the ninth for his first save.

Both Grace and Servais are on early-season tears for the Cubs, who are hitting .304 as a team. Grace is batting .500 (15-for-30), and Servais is batting .455 (10-for-22).

Dodgers 1, Braves 0

LOS ANGELES — Hideo Nomo, the 1995 NL rookie of the year, pitched a three-hitter in the Dodgers' home opener and Los Angeles beat Tom Glavine and the Atlanta Braves.

Nomo (1-1) pitched the first shutout of the 1996 season, striking out six and walking five. He did not allow a runner past second base until the ninth inning, when he retired Javy Lopez on a fly ball with a man on third to end the game.

A sellout crowd of 53,180 saw Raul Mondesi drive in the only run with a third-inning single, one of just five hits off Glavine (1-1) in seven innings. Glavine struck out nine and walked two.

Padres 9, Marlins 2

SAN DIEGO — Ken Caminiti, Tony Gwynn and Wally Joyner kept up their torrid hitting and the San Diego Padres rallied to run their winning streak to five with a win over Florida in their home opener.

The Padres, unbeaten since their first game, are on their longest winning streak since taking six straight from May 27-June 1, 1994.

Caminiti tied the game at 2 with an RBI double in the fifth inning off Chris Hammond (0-1), and two more runs scored when former Padres third baseman Gary Sheffield

Hornets sting win streak

Chicago falls at home for first time

Associated Press

CHICAGO — The streak is over. So is the mystique. The Chicago Bulls are not invincible at home.

"We had a goal of winning every game this season on our home court. It was not meant to be," said Scottie Pippen, who missed two tip-in tries in the final seconds as the Bulls' 44-game regular-season home winning streak ended Monday with a 98-97 loss to the Charlotte Hornets.

Chicago's 37-0 home start was the best in NBA history.

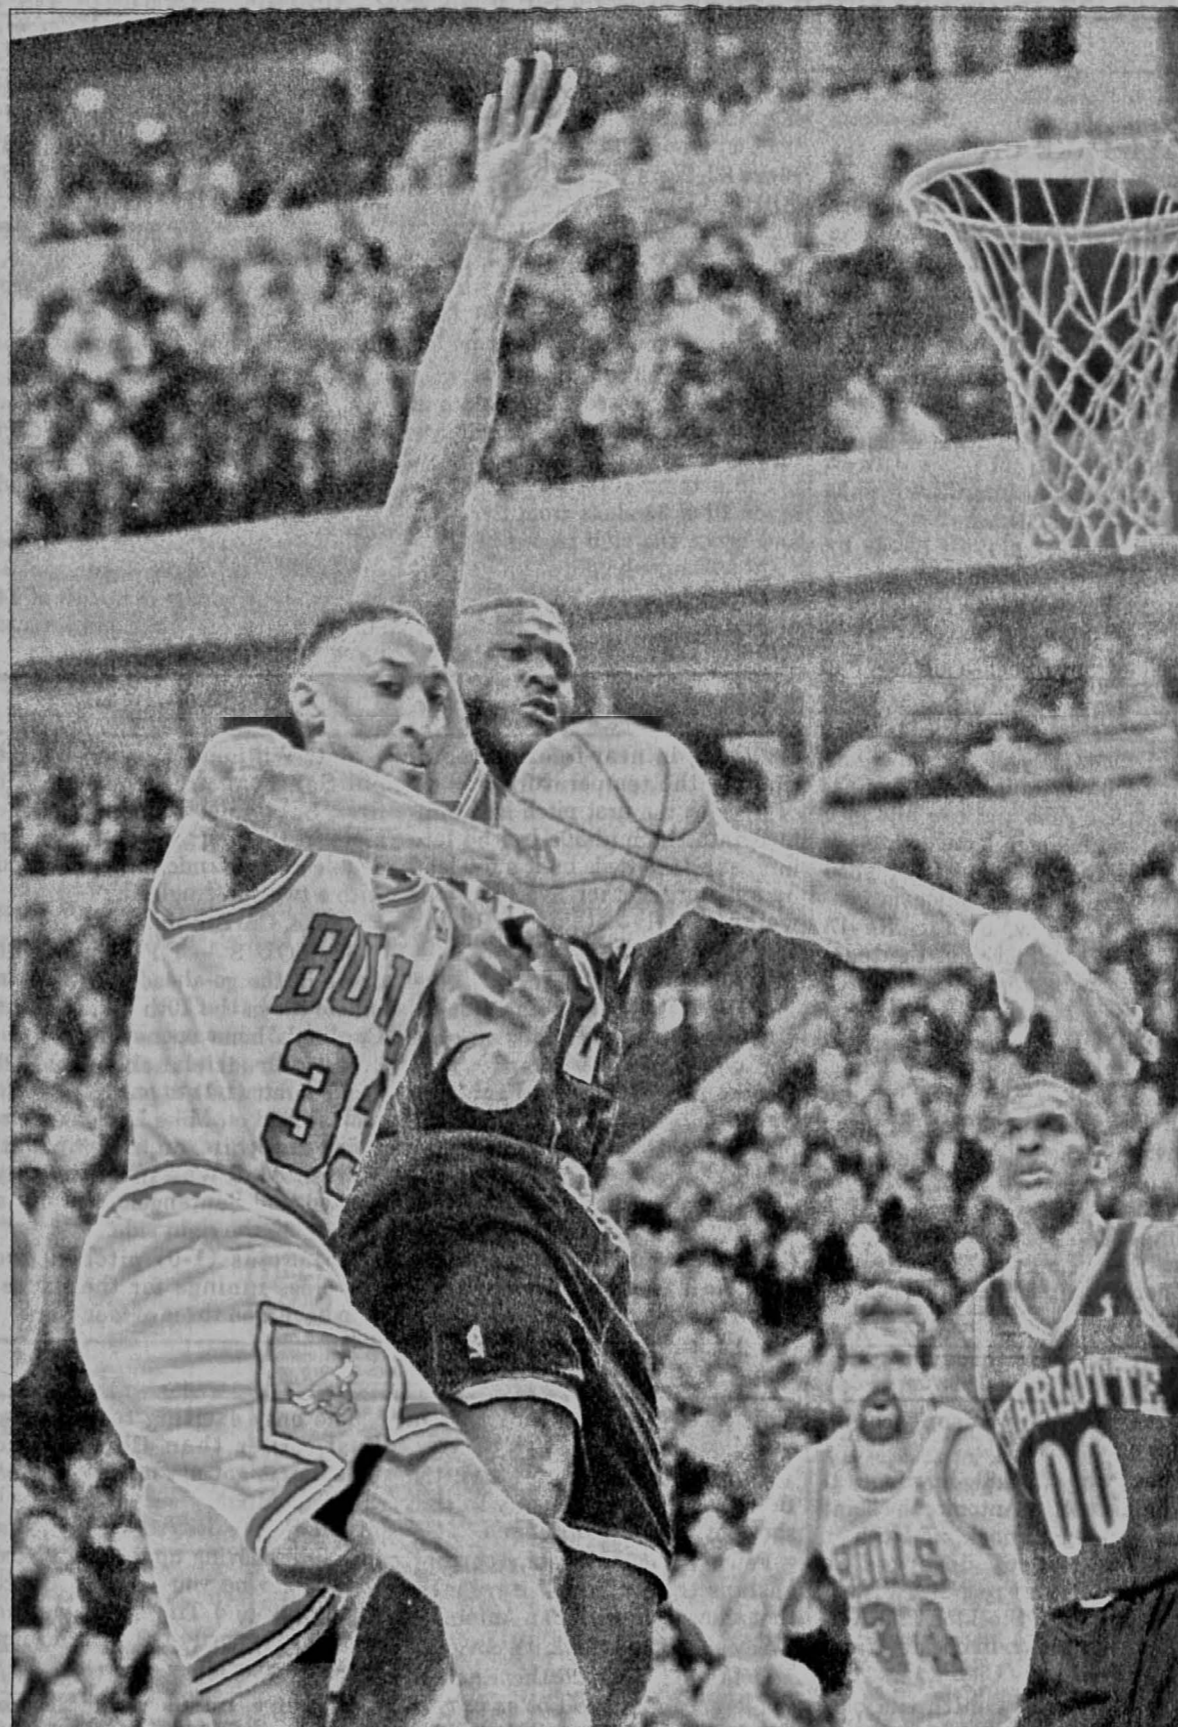

"We can look at the positive side," said Michael Jordan, who had 40 points and 11 rebounds but missed a shot before the final horn. "This really puts us in a different frame of mind, that even if we're playing at home, we can lose. We have to come out more focused. We can't take anyone lightly."

Not even the Hornets. Friday in Charlotte, the Bulls led 20-0 at the four-minute mark and embarrassed their hosts, 126-92.

"They had a right to be overconfident against us," Hornets coach Allan Bristow said. "We didn't even show up Friday. We were totally humiliated. Tonight, we played hard."

Dell Curry made two free throws with 19.4 seconds to go and scored 12 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter as the Hornets (39-37) moved 1½ games ahead of Miami in the race for the final Eastern Conference postseason spot — and the right to meet Chicago in the first round of the playoffs.

Kanaskie and Drake 'a perfect match'

Chuck Schoffner

DES MOINES, Iowa — Kurt Kanaskie, who produced winning basketball teams at two Division II schools, Monday was handed the task of doing the same at Division I Drake.

Kanaskie becomes Drake's 22nd basketball coach, bringing a 207-107 record in 11 seasons as a head coach and two appearances in the Division II equivalent of the Final Four. He spent the last eight years at Indiana University of Pennsylvania after coaching three seasons at Lock Haven.

"If there is one place I could pick and could design the type of place to live and the school to work for, it would be Drake," he said. "I just thought it was such a perfect match between my beliefs as a coach and the institution Drake is." Kanaskie, 37, received a standing ovation from about 150 Drake fans and staff when he was introduced. He succeeds Rudy Washington, who resigned last month after six seasons. Washington had a 62-

MEN'S GOLF

Pressure has gotten to seniors early on

Wayne Drehs
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's golf team is looking for ways to stop the bleeding.

Following a disappointing fall season, the team has again performed sub-par in the first two tournaments of the spring. At the Dr. Pepper Intercollegiate in Texas, March 30, the team scored 937, finishing 15th. Last week things didn't improve, as the Hawkeyes finished 16th, scoring a 942.

"It's been pretty tough," senior Scott Carpenter said. "A few of us have had to take on new leadership roles and these are positions we haven't seen since high school."

The players that have been forced to step up following the graduation last year of Sean McCarty and David Sharp include junior Chad McCarty and seniors Laine Brantner and Scott Carpenter. The three golfers are the only team members who have tournament experience from last season's NCAA Championship appearance - Iowa's first in 35 years.

"I sat down today with them and asked them what was going on," head coach Terry Anderson said. "Last year they were shooting 70's and 71's, but now they are struggling."

"What I truly think is that they are thinking differently. Last year they could free-wheel it, knowing the three guys ahead of them would score well and there was no pressure. This year, they've taken their new roles and gone overboard. They've taken it way too seriously."

Carpenter agrees with his head coach and explained why it has been a challenge to make the tran-

NBA OUTLOOK

Spurs will steamroll to second place

The Washington Bullets currently stand 10th in the Eastern Conference playoff hunt, but I say just go ahead and give them a spot in the playoffs anyway. Kinda' like giving Juwan Howard a spot on Dream Team III even though he doesn't really deserve it.

Howard's nomination to the Olympic squad means that only one of the Shawn Kemp-Mitch Richmond-Jason Kidd trio will earn a trip to Atlanta. All three guys deserve it a lot more than Howard, but leaving out Richmond would be the biggest crime.

Anyway, I'll do my part to include Richmond and leave out Howard with my "There-are-less-than-10-games-to-go-in-the-regular-season-and-this-is-how-things-will-shape-up" NBA predictions.

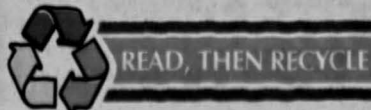

Currently Richmond and the rest of his Sacramento squad have slightly loosened the collars around their necks — the Kings were seven games above .500 and second place in the Pacific Division in February before plummeting to six games below the even mark and fifth in the division two months later. They should hang on to the No. 8 spot and squeak into the playoffs.

But why should any team get excited about an eight seed in the NBA playoffs? Hey, when Seattle is your first-round opponent, you get excited. The SuperSonics, who have all but assured themselves the No. 1 seed in the West, dropped the last two first-round series, including an exit at the hands of the eighth-seeded Denver

TOURNAMENT'S LAST QUALIFIER

Stankowski squeezes into first Masters

Paul Newberry
Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Paul Stankowski was full of questions Monday as he drove up Magnolia Lane for the first time.

Where do you register for the Masters? Where is the locker room at Augusta National? Would he need a tee time for the practice rounds? When is the par-3 tournament?

"I want to soak it all up," he said, sitting in a state of awe in the locker room after someone gave him directions. "I wish I could stay awake for seven straight days. I would love to keep my eyes open and never blink."

Stankowski was the last — and most improbable — player to qualify for the Masters, winning the BellSouth Classic Sunday in a playoff with Brandel Chamblee.

Last year, Stankowski went to qualifying school just to keep his spot on the PGA Tour, and he made the cut only once in seven tournaments prior to Atlanta.

Suddenly, he finds himself right in the middle of golfing Nirvana.

"It's a weird feeling," he said. "If I had won last October or July, it would have been different. I would have all the time in the world to prepare for it, gotten a place to stay and all that stuff. But to win at the last minute, I haven't had time to think about it."

There was a slight kink in his Masters' experience — literally. Stankowski awoke early Monday with an aching neck that made it impossible to turn his head more than a few inches either way.

"I don't know what the heck I did to it. I just rolled over on it last night," he said. "It almost feels like whiplash."

Medical worries aside, Stankowski reveled in his status as the last player to qualify for the Masters. He glanced at a picture hanging above the lockers showing the 13th hole, the final leg on "Amen Corner."

"Wow," he said. "Just think. I'll be playing on that this week."

Stankowski insisted he hardly thought of the Masters while playing the final round of the BellSouth Classic.

"Twice it came into my head, but boom, it was gone just like that," he said.

"It was just amazing. Nothing came into my head that I couldn't discard."

The realization of what he accomplished finally hit after Chamblee bogeyed the first playoff hole and Stankowski's putt dropped into the cup for a birdie. As his wife Regina rushed onto the green to give him a hug, a fan yelled, "See you in Augusta."

"Oh yeah, that's right," he said to himself. "I'm going to Augusta."

Sunday night, he did some laundry, munched on pizza and made dozens of calls to friends and family. After a few hours of sleep, he packed his belongings and, with his wife, began the two-hour drive to Augusta that seemed so unlikely just a few days ago.

"When we first left, we were listening to the radio, listening to CDs, and it was pretty silent," he said. "Then Gina just cracked up and said, 'This is so cool.' Then it was silent again, then we talked a lot, did some praying. Then we cracked up again. We kept saying, 'Wow, we're going to Augusta. Wow, this is so cool.'"

Paul Stankowski, from El Paso Tex., celebrates his win over Brandel Chamblee at the Atlanta Country Club Sunday at the BellSouth Classic.

NHL ROUNDUP

Lightning rally in third with double-whammy

Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Brian Bellows and Aaron Gavey scored in an 18-second span of the third period as the Tampa Bay Lightning rallied for a crucial 4-3 victory over the slumping New York Islanders.

Bellows tied the score on a wrap-around at 11:44 of the third period, and Gavey got the game-winner after a similar attempt by Paul Ysebaert at 12:02.

Chris Gratton and Alexander Selivanov also scored for Tampa Bay (36-31-12), which needed the victory to keep pace with the New Jersey Devils in the fight for the final Eastern Conference playoff spot.

The Lightning and Devils are tied at 84 points with three games remaining.

Whalers 5, Penguins 4
HARTFORD, Conn. — Brad

McCrimmon, Gerald Diduck and Scott Daniels, who have just seven goals among them this season, each scored. Hartford, already eliminated from the playoffs, temporarily slowed Pittsburgh's drive for the best record in the Eastern Conference.

McCrimmon and Diduck, a pair of low-scoring defensemen, connected to give the Whalers a 3-1 lead. Daniels, a left wing, made it 4-1 late in the period.

Panthers 5, Rangers 3
NEW YORK — The Panthers, led by Tom Fitzgerald's two goals, beat the injury-strapped Rangers and moved closer to their first playoff berth.

The Panthers, in their third year of existence, also improved their chances for home-ice advantage in the first round by tying Montreal for fourth place in the Eastern Conference.

Associated Press

Florida Panthers center Rob Niedermayer tries to score on New York Rangers goalie Mike Richter in the first period Monday.

Blues 2, Jets 2

ST. LOUIS — Dallas Drake scored with five seconds to go in regulation, giving the Jets the tie.

Drake's dramatics extended the Jets' unbeaten streak to four games. Winnipeg now has 76 points in the Western Conference, strengthening the team's chances for qualifying for the playoffs in its last season in Canada. The Jets will move to Phoenix next season.

Brett Hull celebrated his return to the lineup by scoring twice, and Glenn Anderson picked up his 600th career assist for the Blues.

University Ombudsperson
Nominations and applications are invited for this important position.

The Search committee for the University Ombudsperson is seeking nominations and applicants from members of the University community to serve as University Ombudsperson. The individual will serve as a resource for all those in the University community who require information or help in resolving a problem. The person shall serve in an informational and conciliatory role, and shall be impartial towards all groups that make up the University. It is essential that the individual be widely viewed as informed, helpful, and fair in his/her efforts to resolve problems. The Ombudsperson should be neither a current member of the administration nor an officer of a faculty or staff governance organization and should serve as a mediator rather than a judge or final authority.

The Ombudsperson should be knowledgeable about The University of Iowa and have an outstanding reputation. More specifically, this individual should be:

1. A faculty or staff member (including emeritus/emerita) at The University of Iowa who has been active in University affairs for a number of years.

2. Knowledgeable about the administrative structure, procedures, rules and regulations at The University of Iowa.

3. Widely respected as a good listener, a rational, fair-minded person, and a problem solver.

The Ombudsperson will serve at least half-time for a term of four years. It is hoped that the individual selected will be able to take office during the 1996-97 year.

Screening of applicants will begin on April 15, 1996.

The University of Iowa is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

Letters of nomination or application should include the candidate's name and work setting, and briefly outline the candidate's qualifications. A brief resume should accompany the letter of application. Direct such letters to:

Steve Martin stars as Sgt. Bilko, in military cohorts with "SNL" veterans Dan Aykroyd and Phil Hartman.

'Sgt. Bilko' goes AWOL

Nathan S. Groepper
The Daily Iowan

With a talented comedic cast, including Steve Martin, Dan Aykroyd and Phil Hartman, "Sgt. Bilko" sounds like it should be loaded with laughs, right? Wrong. "Sgt. Bilko" is a joke, but it is definitely not a funny one.

Based on the late Phil Silvers' '50s television show, "Sgt. Bilko" follows the current trend of uninspired productions which bank on the nostalgia of the Baby Boomer generation. The film offers little besides rehearsed Army jokes and annoying performances. It is enough to make a person go AWOL.

FILM REVIEW

Sgt. Bilko

1/2 out of 4 stars

Director ..... Jonathan Lynn
Screenwriter ..... Andy Breckman
Starring ..... Steve Martin
Dan Aykroyd
Phil Hartman

Steve Martin takes a step backwards from his charming performance in "Father of the Bride II" with his painful portrayal of Sgt. Ernie Bilko. Although Bilko is in charge of the Ft. Baxter motor pool, he does not spend much time tinkering around any engines. Most of Bilko's efforts are spent organizing card games, selling raffle tickets to Army vehicles, and avoiding the wrath of his commanding officers. While this may be good for some opening laughs, "Sgt. Bilko" continues to drive the gambling joke into the ground in one half-hearted sequence after another. The comedy becomes instantly repetitious, leading to more yawns than chuckles.

Bilko may outsmart everyone, including the idiotic Colonel Hall (Dan Aykroyd), but the humor employed by the film is neither intelligent nor funny. The film continues its downward spiral with the introduction of Bilko's pathetic platoon which includes every overused Army stereotype ever filmed: a fat guy, a smart guy, an obedient guy, a wisecracking guy and a tough girl. This often recycled bunch of characters then adds insult to injury by incorporating tired jokes about being overweight and bathroom humor. The chemistry established is so irritating the film becomes almost unbearable. Unfortunately, Martin's weak performance fails to escape the stench created by the contrived humor. Although his physical humor is up to par, Martin does not provide the wit and emotion the film so desperately needs.

By the time Major Thorn (Phil Hartman) arrives to inspect the progress of a new weapon in development at the post, you will be searching for your car keys. Hartman and Aykroyd follow Martin's example and opt for comedy which hits you in the face for laughs. Apparently, the combination of being stupid, neurotic and aggravating is suppose to be enough to send viewers rolling in the aisles.

The most bothersome feature of "Sgt. Bilko" may be its missed chances. With capable actors and an excellent list of filmmakers, including director Jonathan Lynn ("My Cousin Vinny"), screenwriter Andy Breckman ("I.Q.") and producer Brian Grazer ("Apollo 13"), "Sgt. Bilko" did not look like it could possibly go wrong. This is the problem. Instead of working together to make the audience laugh, the artists have decided to relax and rely on their own presumed abilities. The outcome is a film with a few nice individual aspects, but an embarrassing final product.

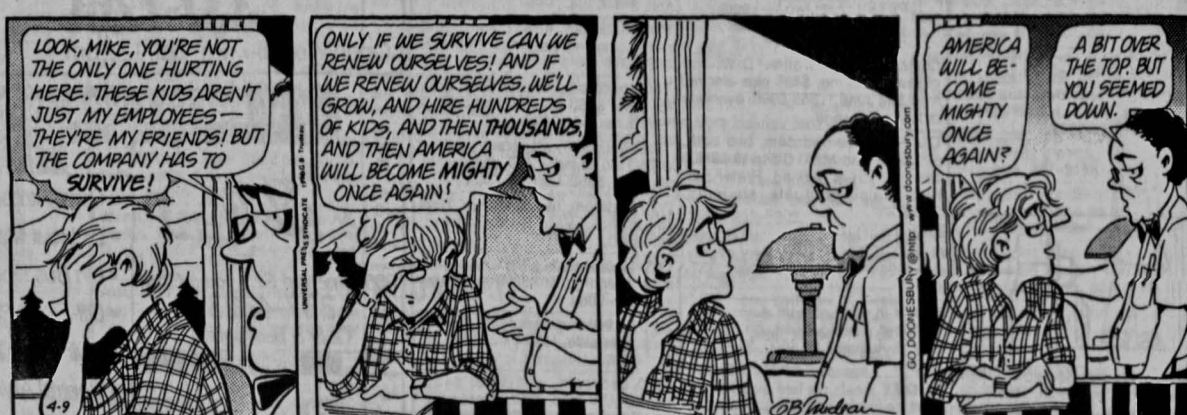

"Sgt. Bilko" embodies everything that is wrong with movies today. Its is predictable, irritating and relies on style instead of substance. If you are looking for some choice performances from Aykroyd, Hartman and Martin, try "Saturday Night Live" reruns.
