1 PERCENT RISE DISCUSSED

City Council considers local sales tax increase

Sarah Lueck The Daily Iowan

Shopping in Iowa City could cost a little more next year if voters approve an Iowa City City Council

City Council members discussed the option of a 1 percent, local sales tax - something some see as a solution to long-term budget problems - at their work session Monday night. A majority of the council supports having a bond referendum on the issue.

Voters could see the issue on the ballot as early as November.

If 50 percent of the population physically connected to Iowa City votes in favor of the tax, it will take effect in all of those areas. Councilor Karen Kubby said. A number of communities, such as Cedar Rapids and Washington, are interested in the sales tax, Councilor Ernie Lehman said.

An increase in the cost of shopping in Iowa City could have a negative effect on local businesses, Lehman said. Coralville will have the option of dropping the tax after one year, he said.

"The key thing is whether or not

Coralville will keep it after a year," he said. "With the new mall out there, if Iowa City has a sales tax and Coralville doesn't, it's a definite detriment to Iowa City.'

Iowa City Mayor Naomi Novick said the council will work to gain other communities' cooperation.

UI freshman Angela Lyon said the sales tax is not a good idea if Coralville drops the increase. Lyon said the people she knows in Iowa City are on "incredibly tight budgets," and a 1 percent sales tax could drive them to Coralville.

"I don't have a car, so I'm pretty much a captive of Old Capitol Mall," she said. "But if people have access, I'm sure that will make them go there.'

The council also discussed where the revenue from the sales tax would go. Some possibilities include water/sewer rate reduction, transit and downtown improve-

UI freshman Karen Figiel said though she is "concerned" about the increase in prices, she can also see the good it would do. "Transit would be a good place," she said. "Any improvement

Kremlin breaks out the silver

Earlier this year, the Kremlin ordered 6,000 sumptuous pieces of hand-crafted sterling silver, including caviar bowls, champagne buckets and flatware, to outfit four presidential residences

German silversmiths Robbe and Berking won't say how much the total order was worth, but the company's dessert spoons cost $95 a piece. The average Russian worker earns about $150 a month.

And unlike some Russian workers who haven't seen a government paycheck in months, the company asked for cash up front.

"In Russia, we have heard so many different stories (that) we made especially sure we had the money in advance," said export manager Werner Erdbrink.

The silver order has not been reported by the Russian media, and Kremlin officials were not eager to discuss it.

Murder trial unravels 'family tragedy' over $25 dispute

Gary Sousa The Daily Iowan

Prosecutor Janet Lyness described the trial as "a modern Cain and Abel," a murder rife with jealousy, rage and sibling rivalry. Defense attorney Doug Russell called the sto-ry a "family tragedy" in which the accused, Keith Jackson, accidentally killed his older brother, Raymond Jackson, in an act of self-defense.

These were the concluding statements counsel offered to the jury Monday in Johnson County District Court, following nearly four hours of closing arguments.

Jackson is charged with first-degree murder in the stabbing death of his brother during an argument on Nov. 4 outside Keith Jackson's apartment house at 620 S. Dodge St. Raymond Jackson died 11 days later at the UI Hospitals and Clinics, having never recovered from a single stab wound to his heart.

While the jury was led from the upstairs courtroom, a third Jackson brother, Odell, defended his brother's innocence.

The family honestly and truly believes that this was an accident," establishing Jackson did indeed stab his brother, his brother died as a result of the injury, the defendant acted with malice forethought and the crime was deliberate and prerequired for a first-degree murder chest."

In reviewing the trial testimony of witnesses and written statements obtained from the defendant, Lyness tried to convince the jury Jackson could have avoided killing his brother if he had made more of an attempt to diffuse the argument, which was reported to have

"Hundreds and hundreds of people are involved in the process of raising money for the university, inside and out," UI Foundation President Darrell Wyrick said.

The 1995 total — $2.3 million higher than in 1994 — came from a record setting 44,044 contributors, around half of whom were alumni. This total does not include bequests, gifts. Including these, the total in private funds given to the UI Foundation in 1995 was nearly $57 mil-

Gifts to the UI come in many forms including securities - such as stocks and bonds and land which is often auctioned off unless it can be used by the university. There have also been more unusual gifts, like farm equipment which was donated last year.

Wyrick said much of this year's increase in contributions came from the visibility of the fund-raising programs, and the growing number of pledges or other forms of planned UI staff, faculty and volunteers who are helping to raise money.

"More and more people are becoming involved in the process of raising money in the university," Wyrick said. "We also had an unusual number of capital campaigns around the university. For that reason, we had a lot of special interests."

Wyrick said while the economy occasionally affects donations, the number of donations the UI Foundations receives usually increases with each year.

"In general, it's been growing for all 40 years," he said.

Democrats turn up minimum-wage pressure on Dole

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration and leading Democrats turned up the pressure Monday on Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole to schedule a vote promptly on legislation to raise the minimum wage.

"It's time for Senator Dole to lead, follow or get out of the way," Labor Secretary Robert Reich said.

"Let the majority rule. Let the Democrats and Republicans who support a higher minimum wage have a vote," Reich told the spring meeting of the AFL-CIO Building Trades Council. "The time for talk is Senate Democratic Leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota also urged Dole, the Kansas Republican virtually certain to face President Clinton in the election next November, to move quickly.

"Senator Dole says he is a doer," Daschle said. "The time has come to stop talking and start doing. ... Let's do it. Let's pass it."

Democrats are seeking a 90cent increase in the wage floor, spread over two years. They contend that when adjusted for inflation, the current $4.25-an-hour minimum, adopted in 1991, has the least buying power of any minimum wage in almost 40 years.

Mitsubishi shuts down U.S. assembly plant

CHICAGO (AP) — Mitsubishi Motors shut down its sole U.S. assembly plant Monday and brought more than 2,000 workers to Chicago on buses to demonstrate outside a federal agency that accuses the automaker of sexual harassment.

The EEOC filed a class-action lawsuit against Mitsubishi two weeks ago after investigating complaints by 29 women who brought their own federal lawsuit in 1994. The EEOC said Mitsubishi management turned a blind eye to "gross and shocking sexual discrimination" at its plant in Normal.

Bell Atlantic, Nynex approve merger

NEW YORK (AP) — Bell Atlantic and Nynex agreed to the largest merger in telecommunications, a $23 billion deal that creates a colossus connecting 37 million phone lines from Maine to Virginia. Some 3,000 jobs will be eliminated, the company said Monday.

Both companies' boards approved the merger over the weekend. It will create the nation's second-biggest phone company behind AT&T Corp. and will offer vastly simplified service to businesses and consumers in the Northeast, the nation's most important regional phone market.

The merger also will rank as the second-biggest in U.S. history, behind the $25 billion purchase of RJR Nabisco by the takeover firm Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co. in

"This is a merger of equals in every sense of the word," Raymond Smith, chairman and chief executive of Bell Atlantic, told reporters in New York. "Together we will have one of the world's best-wired networks, a global wireless compamy and international investments that rival any world-class communications company."

Bell Atlantic, as the combined company will be known, will employ 133,000 workers, be based in New York City and have com-bined revenue of $27.8 billion (based on 1995 figures).

WASHINGTON - President Clinton helped clear a flood-damaged canal, while House Speaker Newt Gingrich served as a tour guide for schoolchildren at a zoo. Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt said Americans' "love affair" with nature is putting a strain on national parks, while the Sierra Club accused the government of dumping toxic chemicals into the capital city's Anacostia River.

This was the 26th anniversary celebration of Earth Day. And some of Monday's events seemed to mix concern for the environment with a little election-year politick-

The president announced a series of actions he intends to take to boost the national parks system, which has been under severe strain because of an increased number of visitors. The package, National Parks for Tomorrow, would expand two parks in states that are pivotal to Clinton's reelection bid.

Port Reyes National Seashore in California, where Clinton and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton spent their second wedding anniversary, would be expanded by 38,000 population growth. acres. The Sterling Forest on the New York-New Jersey border would get an extra 18,000 acres.

Clinton and Vice President Al Gore joined volunteers on a towpath along the C&O Canal in Great Falls National Park, a few miles north of the capital in Maryland. The path is popular with hikers and bikers, and many have helped repair damage caused by floods earlier in the year.

"We can and we must protect the environment," Clinton said. "None of our children should have to live near a toxic waste dump, or eat food poisoned by pesticides. Our grandchildren should not have to live in a world stripped of its natural beauty."

Also, the administration announced plans to curb commercial flights over national parks and to increase the amount of land designated as wilderness within the

The love affair Americans have with their national parks is creating a huge set of management and maintenance and fiscal problems," Babbitt said during a White House briefing. There are 300 million visits to national parks each year, he said, a number which outpaces

In Atlanta, Gingrich toured the city zoo with a group of school children - and said his environmental stance is far from new.

"I believe deeply in preserving the environment," Gingrich said. He pointed out he taught environmental studies at West Georgia College during the 1970s, and gave speeches to help raise money for Zoo Atlanta to obtain two new black rhinos, Boma and Rosie.

Meanwhile, environmentalists accused the federal government of dumping toxic pollutants into the Anacostia River, threatening the health of residents nearby.

The Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund said it would file suit in 60 days against the Navy and the General Services Administration, charging that the Washington Navy Yard and the Southeast Federal Center have discharged PCB's and heavy metals such as lead, mercury and arsenic into the Anacostia in violation of the Clean Water Act.

Navy officials denied polluting the river. Beth Freese, safety environmental director for Naval District Washington, said tests conducted last November did not find evidence of pollutants.

HONOR CONCEPT DETERIORATES

Midshipmen troubles riddle Naval Academy

Tom Stuckey Associated Press

ANNAPOLIS, Md. - Whatever happened to the honor concept at the United States Naval Academy? A string of scandals suggests it has gone the way of the four-masted schooner and the daily ration of

This month alone, five midshipmen and four former students have been accused of crimes ranging from car theft to molesting a child. Last fall, five midshipmen were charged with selling LSD, and 19 more were accused of using it.

Nevertheless, the man assigned to swab the academy's decks after a cheating scandal nearly two years ago says the academy is

"I think we've made enormous progress in the last 20 months. I think the institution is turning; the rudder is taking hold," Adm. Charles Larson said in an interview last week.

Larson, sent to the academy on the Severn River with orders to restore its image, said he believes the recent events are unrelated and don't indicate something "systemically wrong here."

Others are not so sure. Why, for example, have these things happened at the Naval Academy and not West Point or the Air Force Academy?

James Barry, a Naval Academy professor of ethics and leadership, maintains there is a culture of hypocrisy at the academy and throughout the Navy that tolerates misbehavior and encourages covering up problems.
"The Navy system is ethically corrupting," said Barry, who angered his superiors by writing an article for The Washington Post last month critical of the academy. "If you are going to change the behavior of the midshipmen and the officers, you are going to have to change the system.

Even though Larson insists the academy is on the right course, he ordered a one-week stand-down that began last Tuesday. Midshipmen who normally may leave campus in the evenings were directed to stay to discuss the problems and possible responses.

Academy midshipmen take a pledge never to lie, cheat, steal or tolerate such behavior by other midshipmen. It's called the honor

But that ideal has taken a beating in a decade that opened with the 1991 Tailhook convention, at which dozens of Navy and civilian women were sexually assaulted by drunken aviators.

Just this month:

• A midshipman and four former students were charged with taking part in a car theft ring.

• A top-ranked midshipman officer was thrown in the brig in Quantico, Va., accused of sexually harassing four women and threatening one who reported him.

· A midshipman was arrested for allegedly fondling a toddler while visiting an Annapolis home on leave.

· Two midshipmen were arrested after they got drunk and crawled in the second-floor window of one student's former girlfriend.

The problems began early in the decade with charges of sexual harassment that included an incident in which a female midshipman was handcuffed to a urinal

FORT SMITH, Ark. - Firefighters went from house to demolished house Monday, searching for more victims of tornadoes that killed four people, including two children, and smashed hundreds of homes.

"I just started praying," said Leisa Didway, who rode out the storm Sunday night in her closet with a friend and the friend's 1-year-old son. "I held her and the baby. I was just praying to God because I didn't know what else to do.'

State troopers patrolled Fort Smith to guard against looters after five people, who police said were about to start looting, were arrested and charged with prowling. The National Guard ordered 45 members to report for duty.

The Red Cross said 636 houses, 30 apartment units and 217 businesses were damaged. Of those, 35 houses, five apartments and 78 businesses were beyond repair. Damage was put in the millions of dollars.

The tornadoes were part of a series of storms that moved into Arkansas from Oklahoma.

Radio and TV reports had warned that storms were coming, but a tornado knocked down telephone lines that would have carried word to emergency workers to start the sirens, Fort Smith police Cpl. Tim Randolph said.

In Fort Smith, a 2-year-old girl and a 5-year-old boy were crushed to

"It just disintegrated as I understand it," Deputy Bill Mason said.

The man's wife was critically injured. Their names were not immediately released.

In Fort Smith, firefighters expected their house-to-house search would last into the night. The worst damage was in a historic district downtown - where some of the buildings date to the 1800s - and a residential area 11/2 miles away. Several buildings downtown collapsed.

The main sewage treatment plant "just disappeared" as well, Randolph said. "There were several buildings down there and they are just gone."

Roger Weaver, 32, of Alma, said he had been up all night helping remove debris from the streets so ambulance and fire trucks could pass. On his way to the scene, he said, he saw four tractor-trailers on injury was reported. Interstate 40 on their sides, "all of them pointing in different direc-

PAN GRAVY — DON'T EVEN TRY IT

Cooking meat too long increases risk of cancer

Daniel Haney

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Like your steak well-done? Lots of pan drip-Not a healthful choice, says the National Cancer Institute. The latest research suggests cooking meat too long - and at too high a temperature - increases the risk

And pan gravy? Better not even think about it.

Red meat has long ridden high on the list of questionable foods, largely because of its high-fat link to heart disease. But meat-eaters are also known to have a higher-than-usual risk of some kinds of malignancy, especially colon cancer.

So researchers set out to see if the way people fix their steaks and hamburgers has a bearing on this risk. Their study was conducted on beef-loving Nebraska farmers - 176 stomach cancer victims and 503 healthy people - and is the first to examine this question.

"We found increasing risk with increasing doneness," said Mary Ward, a cancer institute epidemiologist who presented the findings Monday at a meeting of the American Association for Cancer

Her team discovered that folks who prefer their meat medium, medium-well or well-done are about three times as likely as those who eat their beef rare or medium-rare to get stomach cancer.

unappetizing name of heterocyclic agents - and they are formed when animal protein known as creatinine is heated to high temperatures.

About 22,800 Americans will be diagnosed with stomach cancer this year. The risk has declined substantially throughout this century, probably because of better ways of preserving and storing food.

"There are still ways to eat meat," said Rashmi Sinha, another cancer institute researcher.

They found that people who eat mostly roasted meat, which cooks at a much lower temperatures than frying or grilling, have no increased risk of stomach cancer, even if they like their roast beef well-done.

However, even though roast beef does not have heterocyclic amines, the juice that bubbles in the bottom of the roasting pan does. So gravy made from these drippings is high in carcinogens.

For those who enjoy steaks, the researchers said a prudent choice is to cook meat through - blood-dripoing rare isn't a good idea either but not so it's well-done. And cook it at a relatively low temperature so the outside doesn't turn brown.

Anti-Semitism

Although it has remained underground for years, anti-Semitism is still here and needs to be addressed so that further oppression will be wiped out.

nti-Semitism is back. In fact, it never left. When the Nazis were defeated in Germany and the truth of the Holocaust was made public, most of the world was horrified by the atrocities. But anti-Semitism didn't go away; it just went underground for awhile. People learned to keep their rotten bigotry to themselves or suffer public scorn. But, while most of us know better, there seems to be an increasing number of us

Big cities like Los Angeles are plagued with skinheads with spray paint, steel-toed boots and billy clubs. Marlon Brando accused Jews ("kikes," he said) of running Hollywood. Louis Farrakhan fights to defend the civil rights of blacks all over the world, but hypocritically resorts to Jew bashing. St. Martin's Press plans to publish a book which glorifies Joseph Goebbels, the Nazi propaganda minister, and argues the Holocaust is a fatuous lie. Pat Buchanan calls Congress "Israeli occupied territory" and denies the Nazi gas chambers functioned as "a killing apparatus." Time magazine ran an article which revealed there is at least one neo-Nazi organization in all but three of the lower 48 states.

Yes, anti-Semitism is back and it's flourishing. It's what the famous historian Robert Wistrich refers to as a "miasma of nightmarish paranoia, millennial fantasy and homicidal hatred ... that defies any ratio-

We have tried (and failed) to instill a sense of shame in our society, so that those with an openly bigoted attitude are criticized. Yet, Brando has no scruples about sharing his paranoid and bigoted beliefs with millions. Was he unaware that what he was saying was offensive? Does he care that his kind of thinking was what led to the murders of six million people in Europe earlier this century? How can someone like Farrakhan struggle for racial equality, yet openly attack Jews?

The sense of shame is deteriorating. Many seem to believe it's OK to hate Jews. Many believe that since Jews are economically more successful as a group than other minorities, they can't possibly be oppressed. Many still believe Jews are oppressing the rest of us. Buchanan said it and he ran for president.

Part of the problem is historical amnesia and conspiracy theories about the Holocaust. Many people are surprisingly ignorant that six million Jews were murdered by the Nazis. Many people believe the whole thing was a hoax. They pay no attention to the thousands of witnesses, the countless numbers of books documenting it, the films and photos of the gas chambers, the cattle cars and the bone piles. Steven Spielberg understood this and filmed "Schindler's List," a true story, so he could get several hundred Holocaust survivors on film before they died.

Every time we hear or read about anti-Semitism, there needs to be a public cry of outrage. As a society, we need to safeguard ourselves from the kind of thinking that led to Hitler's Germany and Tomás de Torquemada's inquisition in Spain.

Because the old fear is back. The Nazi propaganda is here. And it's not going away.

Taxing questions

■ The Iowa Legislature has proposed property tax cuts but there are still questions about how future budgets and school funding will be affected.

he much-debated $117.5 million cut for Iowa taxpayers looks like it's well on its way to becoming reality, but it will not benefit students or others who are not property owners. The $85 million portion of the total package aimed at reducing property taxes probably won't even inspire landlords to ease up on rental rates. Contrary to the logic of the election-year tax-cutting mentality, some legislators have voiced concerns that such a huge cut could lead to a budget deficit in a couple of years. But the majority of the Legislature has concluded, quite rightly, a cut in property taxes will be looked upon favorably by the more lucrative and the largest voting percentage of its constituency: the land owners.

There is nothing wrong with cutting taxes. Despite the assurances of the federal government, the economy is not all that rosy, especially for the lower and middle classes. However, the Iowa Legislature will probably find itself having to reduce, or eliminate altogether, the current cuts in a few years. This is of no concern to Gov. Terry Branstad, who has stated this will be his final term. The responsibility for the increase — which is how it will be viewed — will fall on someone else's shoulders.

That's all in the future, though. What we should worry about now is the largest part of the cut: the aforementioned $85 million intended to give property-tax relief. The money is supposed to go toward increasing the state's share of school spending. In other words, instead of being legislated on the county level, spending on education will be decided statewide by the Legislature in Des Moines — not entirely, of course, but to a greater degree than it has been before. That means county residents will have less say in how their schools are financed; power will be shifted away from school boards, with their local, more personal touch, and onto a central bureaucracy that never sees the teachers, administrators, parents and students it's allocating money to.

National and state standards for education are fine as goals, but only on the local level can money be funneled to the places it's most needed. Computers in every classroom and a state-spanning, fiberoptic network are dandy tools, but students also need desks and a positive environment in which to learn. Finally, there has been no mention of how this $85 million dual property-tax cut/increase in state education spending is going to be financed. Does the government just have that money? Since that amount of cash doesn't just exist in coffers somewhere, the Legislature must increase other taxes in order to cover both the cut and school spending. This may be a case in which the right hand doesn't know what the left hand is doing. The Legislature in Des Moines should come clean on this issue and explain where the money is coming from and why part of the power of local officials is being absorbed by big

Brilliance is no excuse for evil

Some people are brilliant. Some people are stupid. Some people are both.

During the past few weeks, the two biggest newsmakers in Iowa City have straddled the brilliant/stupid polarization like mad scientists. I speak of UI freshman Joseph Hentzel, the accused computer hacker, and Ted Kaczynski, the accused Unabomber. Both of whom authorities firmly believe are the perpetrators in each Kaczynski first. The minute he walked out of his Thoreauian lean-to and into the waiting arms of the FBI, he has been heralded for his brilliance. Newsweek's first cover story about him last week, "The mind of the Unabomber," called Kaczynski brilliant three times, along with "genius," "nerdy" and "a math and science whiz." The magazine pointed to the fact he skipped two grades in school and entered Harvard at the age of 16.

But I do think the minute you become too smart for your own good is the minute you cancel out your brilliance entirely.

An Associated Press story in Monday's DI was topped with the headline "Kaczynski's spiral - insecure boy genius to embittered hermit." The story called him "too smart for his own good."

The same could be said for Hentzel; computer Boy Wonder and E-mail Predator. Genius screams from the headline in the April 16 issue of the DI — "UI hacker bored but brilliant in high school." One of his high-school principals is brilliant young man who just couldn't be bothered with the formal steps of education."

I don't think you can be too brilliant. I don't think brilliance automatically destines you to deviance. I don't think all super smart people are undiscovered criminals waiting for the day they can stare straight into a camera, with wild hair and an orange jumpsuit, and smirk arro-

But I do think the minute you become too smart for your own good is the minute you cancel out your brilliance entirely.

You can make mistakes. You can screw up pretty terribly, in fact. I would argue that Dr. Jekyll was not really stupid when he drank the potion the first time. He made a stupid mistake. When Dr. Frankenstein shouted "It's alive!," he really didn't know what he was doing. He just thought he was stepping deeper into the depths

It was when Jekyll drank the concoction a second time that he forfeited his brilliance. It monster a bride that he gave up his plaque in the Brainiac Hall of Fame.

And when Kaczynski allegedly sent his first bomb through the mail, he lost it all. Before, he was a brilliant recluse, a man I might have quoted in the story saying, "He was a brilliant, admired for his rejection of material objects and society's crazy labyrinth-like hierarchy. I will even give him the benefit of his first forays into firecrackers and home-made bombs. He didn't hurt anyone in the beginning. But when a package injured a guard at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., he made his Frankenstein a

The same goes for Hentzel - the alleged teen-age tech pirate. The first time he got into someone's private e-mail correspondence, he made a mistake. The second time, he flushed his genius down the toilet. The 2,387 times after that were a gluttonous addiction to a peison like the one which turned Jekyll into Hyde.

Both Hentzel and Kaczynski, if they are guilty, sacrificed their brilliance for evil. They traded in Cadillacs of intelligence for beat-up El Caminos of idiocy - Jalopies that drove them straight to hell.

You never hear about really brilliant people because they are smart enough to remain anonymous. Real brilliance is in the artist who dies penniless, but who reaches an enlightenment the rest of us will never see. Real brilliance is in the medical researchers who burn oil late into the night in sterile, cold labs, who will find a cure for cancer, AIDS and canker. sores. Real brilliance is in the teacher who invented recess

But stupidity lies in Kaczynski and Hentzel, in Heidi Fleiss and Charles Manson, in Leona Helmsley and Donald Trump. It lies in the was when Frankenstein decided to make his mother who became the press agent for his now-dead daughter, Jessica Dubroff. It lies in anyone who had a talent, but used it repeatedly to mess up other people's lives.

Road trips: A college student's guide

Ever since the men of Faber College's Delta Tau Chi (you know, from "Animal House") road tripped to the all-women's college for an evening of anticipated carnal bliss, college stu-dents have been packing into their old Accords, Grand Cherokees and Saturns by the dozens and cruising off to unknown lands with the anticipation of reaping substantial social

Today's column is dedicated to what may be the definitional collegiate activity: the road trip. As a self-proclaimed road-trip connoisseur, I have always realized the great pleasures and memorable stories that an excursion away from Iowa City can provide. I am certain many UI students who drove to Ames last weekend for

Although a fair number of students appreciate and engage themselves in the art of road tripping, I suspect quite a few of my collegiate peers remain clueless in the "highway sciences."

Iowa State's VEISHEA have many great stories and are probably still telling them.

Unfortunately, I personally had to pass on VEISHEA in lieu of road tripping to Indiana University for its Little 500 celebration. For those unfamiliar with IU's Little 500 weekend, just try to imagine VEISHEA on steroids. Absolute bedlam. (And I won't even attempt a comparison with the UI's sedate and hapless RiverFest. How many of your friends who attend other schools ever say how stoked they

Although a fair number of students appreciate and engage themselves in the art of road tripping, I suspect quite a few of my collegiate peers remain clueless in the "highway sciences." For those lost souls, I offer a few examples you and your friends may want to attempt.

The Campus Cruise: This is probably the most popular form of the road trip. Like the earlier examples from last weekend, this road trip involves cruising to another university or college. This is usually done on weekends and most often with the purpose of partying. The easiest trip involves going to campuses where you have friends, thus having a free place to crash. For more of a challenge, it is great fun to go to a school knowing absolutely no one, and then try to find suitable lodging for the evening.

One warning goes along with the campus road trip. For those road trippers who enjoy the delightful taste of alcoholic beverage but are under 21, make sure to know the local city's bar policy; not all campus communities are as ccommodating to 19-year-olds as Iowa City.

The Day Trip: Due to the short time left in the semester, this is a good time for this type of road trip. The most enjoyable aspect of the day trip is that it is usually taken during the week. Yes, I know this means — gasp — missing classes. Although I do not condone absenteeism,

A good example of the day trip is skipping classes, driving to Chicago, catching a Cubs' game and making it back to Iowa City in time to go downtown and show off the home-run ball you caught in your cup of Old Style in the seventh inning. Of course this means you must sit in the bleachers - as if there was any doubt.

Not all day trips need to revolve around sporting events. Other excellent day road trips include amusement parks, beaches, casines, golf courses or shopping centers.

The Impromptu Trip: This is perhaps the most exciting of all trips because, as the name implies, this road trip is not planned in advance. The impromptu road trip usually occurs at night when a group of people are sitting around complaining about how bored they are with Iowa City and decide to do something about it. In fact, I know a lot of trips to New Orleans' Mardi Gras were undertaken in such a

My personal favorite impromptu trip involved two students who, on the night before spring classes were to begin, decided to drive to Mexico for the week. Certainly, all impromptu road trips need not be as elaborate, but it was pretty

My fellow students, now is the time to take these road trips. The destination is not important, but what is important is taking command of your college experience and creating lifelong

Green said there is evidence of several types of illegal drug use on campus, but marijuana is the most popular drug among UI students.

In a 1991 survey conducted by UI Student Health Services, 18 percent of UI students who responded claimed they had used marijuana at least once within a 30-day period. The same survey done in 1995 revealed the number had risen to 26 percent.

UI junior Johanna Camarigg said while marijuana use on campus seems common, she doesn't think it's becoming more prevalent than in the past.

"I can't let go of being a housewife," she told Life magazine. "You have to be part of it or you don't know what you're talking about. You've got to empty the garbage, swish out the toilet bowls. Doing the laundry keeps you humble.

Another expert on suburban living, "Hints From Heloise" author Ponce Cruse Evans, said Bombeck's insight into daily life was uncanny.

"I think all of us, at one time or another, read her columns and said, "That's my life. How did she know that?" "Heloise said. "I used to call her and say, 'Did you have a spy in my kitchen? Did my husband call you and tell you I do that?"

Bombeck was diagnosed in 1992 with breast cancer and underwent a mastectomy. Shortly after that, her kidneys began failing from a hereditary disorder. She underwent dialysis four times a day at her home and went on a waiting list for a kidney transplant.

Doctors had diagnosed the kidney disorder, called adult polycystic kidney disease, in 1949.

She underwent the transplant early this month at the Medical Center of the University of California at San Francisco. The hospital said she died of complications following the transplant.

Bombeck was an Ohio housewife when she decided she would write a humor column about married life in the suburbs. Knowing the editors of the Dayton Journal Herald would

But she could turn serious, as in her book on children surviving cancer, "I Want to Grow Hair, I Want to Grow Up, I Want to go to Boise." The profits from the 1989 book were donated to cancer research - three years before Bombeck was diagnosed with the disease.

KIRYAT SHEMONA, Israel -In 40 years of life on the front line, Michael Mor-Yosef has lost his younger brother and 16 neighbors. His family survived a rocket attack from Lebanon that pocked the side of their fortified house.

None of these losses, however, was enough to blunt his sadness and regret for last Thursday's deadly shelling of Lebanese civilians who had taken shelter at a United Nations base in Qana, a village in southern Lebanon barely 20 miles away.

With Israeli artillery booming in the distance and helicopters hovering above, Mor-Yosef, who came to Kiryat Shemona from Morocco at age 12, recalled how war has touched his life.

In 1980, Mor-Yosef built a twostory house equipped with a large reinforced security room where all eight family members could sleep through nights of shelling.

That turned out to be a good

The 21-year-old carpenter lost 17 family members - four others remain missing - when Israeli artillery shells struck a U.N. base in southern Lebanon last week.

Amid smoke and flames, Deeb helped carry out the wounded and picked up pieces of shattered countrymen.

"Some of the bodies were too hot to touch," he said. "Others I attempted to carry just disintegrated before my eyes." With stretchers scarce, each available pallet held up to three wailing refugee babies, some missing limbs.

"He who survived is forever wounded," Deeb said in a scarcely audible voice, his meaty hands still trembling.

As he recalled the horror in Qana, flies sputtered around his blood-stained shoes. There's still no official death toll, but various unofficial counts range from 76 to more than 100.

Out of more than 20 relatives at the camp, Deeb can confirm only two survivors other than himself. He lost seven cousins, his grandfather, two uncles, their wives, two sisters and their three children.

His father, mother, brother and a sister are still unaccounted for. Deeb doesn't know if they were killed in the attack or are among the hundreds of survivors who fled Deeb had harsh words for the Hezbollah guerrillas whose rockets fired from 300 yards away drew the deadly Israeli retribution.

"Why did they come here?" he said. "They knew our children were hiding in this compound." Deeb said after the first shell fell, he looked frantically for cover. Just before the second shell exploded, he rushed inside one of the compound's tiny shelters, a room measuring no larger than four feet by six feet, that was already crammed with 40 people.

"People screamed, 'Allahu Akbar!' (God is Great) before their cries were drowned by more shells," Deeb said.

Allen declares himself eligible for NBA draft

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Ray Allen, one of the best college guards in the country, is entering the NBA draft after leading Connecticut to the best record in the school's history.

The 6-foot-5 All-American said Monday he is giving up his final year of eligibility. He is certain to be among the top selections in the June 26 draft.

Allen, the Big East player of the Year, said he hasn't yet signed with an agent, but left little doubt he won't be coming back.

"I'm definitely pushing on," he said. His voice trembling and his eyes moist with tears, Allen said he wants to financially care for his family, who accompanied him to the Gampel Pavilion news conference.

Allen has a 3½-year-old daughter. "I believe a lot has been learned by me here at this university and it is time to move on;" Allen said. "Wherever I end up after this year, I will always be an ambassador of this university."

Bolich takes over women's swimming program

Iowa named Mary Bolich the new head coach for the swimming and diving team Monday.

Bolich comes from Penn State, where she was the assistant women's coach from 1989-96, which has been ranked in the Top 20 nationally in recent years.

"I am delighted to welcome Mary Bolich as our head coach here at the University of Iowa," women's athletic director Dr. Christine H.B. Grant said. "According to Penn State head coach Bob Krimmel, Coach Bolich has been an integral part of their national success over the past several years.'

In 1993 and 1991, Bolich served as a coach at the National Long Distance Team Training Camp at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo. She was a member of the 1993 U.S. Swimming Coaching Staff for the Pre World Championship competition.

Baker, Whitwer named All-Americans

All-American honors seemed to rain down on the Iowa gymnasts at the 1996 NIT Gymnastics Tournament Sunday at Southeast Missouri State University.

Senior Kim Baker and freshman Lori Whitwer earned firstteam all-American honors, while freshmen Beth Brown and Lori Whitwer and seniors Jodie Gray and Shelly Burns captured second-team honors.

Baker earned her honors on the uneven bars, balance beam, vault and in the all-around competition. Whitwer garnered hers in the all around, vault and floor exercise, while given second team honors on the balance beam.

After seeing 30 NFL teams choose 254 different players ahead of him, Iowa offensive lineman Matt Purdy felt a little dejected. In the hours that followed, however, he was having a lot more fun.

"I'm doing much better today," Purdy said Monday after agreeing to join the Philadelphia Eagles as a free agent. "Much better."

Purdy said the phone was ringing before the draft ended last night and he looked at about five offers that sounded attractive. At about 9 or 9:30 p.m. Sunday, he decided on the Eagles ahead of the St. Louis Rams.

"It got to be a good time," Purdy said, referring to Sunday night's decision process. "I'd be on the phone with one team, then another one would beep in.

"A lot of teams let me know they wanted me.'

Even though just one Hawkeye was drafted last weekend - Scott Slutzker by the Indianapolis Colts several have been on the phone trying to find a place to fit in.

"It got to be a good time. I'd be on the phone with one team, then another one would beep in."

Offensive lineman Casey Wiegmann will join Slutzker in Indi-

Like Slutzker and the rest of the draft picks, the free agent signees will head to a five-day mini-camp Thursday. They'll report back in July and hope to survive cuts which take place in August or Sep-

"These last two days have been pretty stressful, very stressful,' Diaco said. "I'm kind of waiting to see what's the best scenario for me. I have a bundle of CFL offers and I'm waiting on some things in the NFL to pan out.

"I don't want to be a camp blockng dummy. I want to play football."

The free agent route is not futile. A year ago, undrafted Hawkeye Ryan Terry became the starting kick returner for the Arizona Car-

RANDOM THOUGHTS

Hawkeyes' '96 season looks good on paper

More random thoughts from the world of sports ...

- I'll admit the drool running down my chin at the Spring Game Saturday was because I found myself dozing off a little bit, but the Hawkeyes' roster for 1996 has me drooling even when I'm not bored out of my mind.

The only position that worries me is the offensive line, but it should gelling once the Big Ten season rolls around. That leaves special teams, running backs quarterback, defensive backfield, defensive line, linebackers, receivers ... every one a deep, solid position.

Either I smell roses or I just get excited too easily.

The first quarterback selected in last weekend's NFL Draft was Michigan State's Tony Banks - by a long shot. Huh? The next quarterback selected - Ohio State's Bobby Hoying - came 43 picks later than Banks, who was the 12th pick of round two. Florida State's Danny Kanell went 88 picks later than Banks. Nebraska's Tommie Frazier wasn't picked at all.

I don't remember Banks being anything special. But that's OK, I guess, because I also don't remember thinking much about Spartan wide receiver Muhsin Muhammad, who was grabbed with the 13th pick of round two. Huh?

- I was really happy to see the Chicago Bears grab Penn State's Bobby Engram in the second round. Engram's a terrific receiver, but it's too bad the Bears only had the 22nd pick in the second round. Ten picks earlier and they could've snagged Muhammad.

Most people would be more than a little concerned if they returned home to find that their car was missing, but Steve Boros never gets too worried when his white 1992 Chevy Blazer disappears from the parking lot.

He knows the thief. And since it's his sister he'll probably cut her some slack.

Steve and Sasha Boros put their personal wars aside when they go to battle for the Iowa Hawkeyes. Steve swings for home runs as the starting rightfielder for the baseball team, while Sasha guns for aces at the No. 1 singles spot on the women's tennis team.

it's kind of hard to fill his shoes," Boros said. "But I try not to put myself against him and say 'I've got to do as well as Matt did last year or I'm going to hurt the As a senior, Sasha holds a went 9-3 with Nikki Willette in doubles during the fall season and is 5-0 with current doubles partner Lisa Harris this spring.

Boros said her most monumental victory was coming back from a knee injury she suffered versus on as more of an adventure than Drake her freshman year.

"A lot of my memories and experiences at Iowa are coming back from that knee injury,"she said."It was hard to get the confidence back in my knee, let alone my tennis game, but those are all things that make you a better person and it was definitely a learning experience.

Neither Steve or Sasha is surprised by their active involvement in sports. Their father, who is also named Steve, has an extensive connection to Major League Baseball as a player (Chicago Cubs, Detroit, Cincinnati), and has coached or managed five teams. He is now in charge of minor league operations for the Tigers.

His two children grew up around the game of baseball and often had the opportunity to meet the play-

Each of the two athletes are called leaders by those close to them, but display different leadership traits.

Steve is described as a quiet leader who learns by example.

"Steve is different in that he's very laid back,"the elder Boros said. "He's a good competitor, but he is very good at hiding his emotions. He's the kind of athlete that can see how something is supposed to be done and then somehow be by visualizing what the hitter, fielder, or thrower might do.'

"If I had kids, I'd want them to be like Sasha Boros,"Iowa women's tennis coach Jenny Mainz said. When she needs to make adjustments as far as being coached, she's receptive to that. She wants to make changes. She wants to take her game to another level and even though she's struggled this year I believe she's done that."

When they're not busy battling Big Ten Conference opponents in their respective sports, the Hawkeye duo sometimes gets caught up in its own power struggles. On the rare occasions when the siblings do fight, one reluctant peacemaker is Sasha's teammate Erin Wolverton, who doubles as Steve's girlfriend. The major battle centers around

Steve's Chevy Blazer. Sasha is stuck with a Honda Accord that her dad calls "decrepit," while young Steve tools

"She denies it, but I know I beat her at least two or three times."

Steve says he'll miss having his sister around next year, but noted he didn't want her around if they were both wearing their black and white Hawkeye warmups at the same time.

'I don't like wearing them when she's wearing them," he said. "I feel like I look kind of stupid. I like the warmups, but if we go around walking together and we both have them on it looks like we're married or something and I don't want people thinking that."

The speech came nearly a month after Jordan, the rust showing after a 21-month retirement, botched his way through Games 1, 3 and 6 against the Orlando Magic and the Bulls were eliminated in six games in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

"He's probably still the greatest player, but he wasn't quite his old self and the people around him weren't the same," Scottie Pippen said after Jordan had his earliest playoff exit since 1988.

There's something humbling about losing by 13 runs, especially if it's to an intrastate rival.

The Iowa baseball team was thumped by Northern Iowa 21-8 on April 10. What made the loss even worse was that it came on the Hawkeyes' own turf: Iowa Field.

Wednesday, Iowa finally gets the chance to return the favor - this time in Cedar Falls 6-5, so it's no wonder that Iowa's going to win two games this week." Wednesday meeting with the Panthers weighs heavier on its mind.

"Believe me, these are big," Iowa pitcher and designated hitter Colin Mattiace said. "Especially Wednesday. We took a beating from Northern Iowa and a had a poor outing and now we're looking to pay them back."

This week's nonconference games are more than just tune-ups for weekend play; they're personal.

Towa State is always a big rivalry. But first, the Hawkeyes (17-13, I love to play Iowa State," Mattiace 9-9) have to get past Iowa State said. "I know a lot of the guys want today in Ames. The Cyclones fell to to play well, so we're going into it want to have at the end of the Iowa last Thursday in Des Moines, with a lot of confidence and we're year," Mattiace said.

The Hawkeyes earned a big boost in confidence this weekend in taking 3-of-4 from Big Ten Conference rival Michigan State. While some Hawkeyes would have liked the four-game sweep, Mattiace was pleased to take three, evening Iowa's Big Ten record at 9-9 and move into a tie for fifth in the conference with Ohio State.

Brantner narrowly misses victory

Wayne Drehs The Daily Iowan

It's time for Iowa senior golfer Laine Brantner to start sharing his secrets with his teammates.

Brantner finished second last weekend at the Kepler Invitational, shooting 225, just one stroke behind Matt Minister from Ohio State. Brantner's 71 Friday was the low for the tournament, which was played in Columbus, Ohio, at one of Brantner's favorite courses.

"It's a demanding course that never lets up," Brantner said. "I don't make too many birdies and that course is one in which par is good. So I play for par and that suits me well.

While Brantner shined, the No. 3 thru No. 5 spots struggled, averaging 86 strokes per round, thus dropping Iowa to a 17th-place finish.

Chad McCarty was also solid for Iowa and entered the final day of play in eighth place. A 44 on the back nine of his final round gave him an 83 on the day, though, placing him 30th with a 235.

BULLS BEGIN THE 'REAL' SEASON

72 down, but more importantly, 15 still to go

Associated Press

CHICAGO - The best regular season any NBA team ever had is over. Now, on to the REAL season.

It's playoff time for the Chicago Bulls.

"The important thing is to get 15 wins any way you can," said Michael Jordan, referring to the number of victories the Bulls need to cap a record-setting season with their fourth NBA championship of the 1990s.

Chicago will be gunning for the first of those 15 wins Friday, when it begins its opening-round series with the Miami Heat. "If we win every game by two or three points, that's OK," Jordan said. "If we win by 15 points, that would be a serious statement. But we don't expect that to happen. "The regular season doesn't really count. We just want to redeem ourselves for last year." Last May's bitter second-round loss to the Orlando Magic has been the main motivating factor for the Bulls, who this season dominated the league as no team ever had.

The Bulls set NBA records for victories road victories (33).

In his first full season after coming out of retirement, Jordan averaged 30.4 points to capture an NBA-record eighth scoring title. Dennis Rodman tied a record with his fifth straight rebounding crown (14.9 a game). And despite a late slump, Scottie Pippen affirmed his status as one of basketball's best all-around players.

"We've had a wonderful season, but now is the big challenge," said Pippen, who averaged 19.4 points, 6.4 rebounds and 5.9 assists. "If we don't win the title, the whole season will be ruined."

Could the Bulls' drive to achieve regular-season history in any way hurt their pronounced himself ready for the playoffs. championship cause?

"It's not like we were on such a mission for 70 wins that we were going to do it at all costs," backup guard Steve Kerr said. "Scottie rested. Dennis rested. Luc (Longley) rested. And Michael certainly wasn't overworked.

> Said Jordan: "I feel great. I'm always excited and ready for this time of year.' Fact is, the Bulls go into the playoffs more rested than they have been in months.

In the final weeks, coach Phil Jackson reduced Jordan's playing time. In March, Pippen sat out five games to recover from several nagging injuries, Rodman missed six games when he was suspended for headbutting a referee and Longley began a 10game respite for his sore knees. Ron Harper, the other starter, missed the season's last two games with a sprained ankle but Regardless of who was in the lineup, the Bulls kept winning. Bench players, especially talented Toni Kukoc, expanded their roles and will go into the postseason with confidence.

"From the start, there had been great expectations from this team." Jackson "I laugh when people say Michael said. "They put a carrot in front of them-point. They kept driving themselves.

"It's just a great feeling to go into the locker room after 82 games and feel that what you've accomplished is a great effort, individually and collectively.'

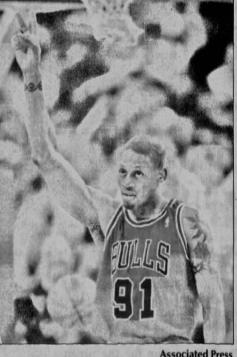

Now comes Miami, which dealt the Bulls their most embarrassing loss.

On Feb. 23, with only eight players in uniform, the Heat defeated Chicago 113-104. The Bulls responded by beating Miami twice in a three-night span late in the season, almost keeping the Heat out of the playoffs.

Coached by Pat Riley, whose roughhouse New York teams battered and occasionally beat the Bulls in the early 1990s, the physical Heat may be Chicago's ideal first-round opponent.

"It's perfect that we're going up against Miami," Longley said. "It will give us an acid test right away." The Bulls announced Monday that James Edwards and John Salley, two big players with playoff experience, will be on the playoff roster. Jason Caffey, Dickie Simpkins and Jack Haley will watch from the bench.

Chicago's Dennis Rodman flashes the V sign after sinking a foul shot after a technical was called on Washington's Calbert Cheaney Sunday.

Associated Press A look at the matchups in the first round of the NBA playoffs: EASTERN CONFERENCE

NO. 1 CHICAGO (72-10) vs. NO. 7 MIAMI (42-40) Key players: Chicago — Michael Jordan (30.4 ppg, 6.6 rpg), Scottie Pippen (19.4 ppg, 6.4 rpg, 5.9 apg), Dennis Rodman (14.9 rpg). Miami — Alonzo Mourning (23.2 ppg, 10.4 rpg), Tim Hardaway

(15.2 ppg, 8.0 apg), Rex Chapman (14 Season series: Chicago 3-1. Of the Bulls' 10 losses, the Feb. 23 game at Miami Arena was one of the strangest. One day after the trading deadline, Williams, Hardaway and Gatling weren't with the Heat, and Miami dressed only eight players. Chicago won the other three games by 22, 18 and 8. Bulls edge: Jordan is back in MVP form after struggling in the playoffs last year following his 21-month retirement. Rodman, when he has stayed under control, has had a winning history in the Heat edge: Pat Riley is 14-0 as a coach in the first round, and he'll have his players believing they actually have a chance. Mourning could dominate Longley and backup Bill Wennington.

Story line: After a 72-win season, are the Bulls on the way to a championship? Prediction: Bulls in 4.

NO. 2 ORLANDO (60-22) vs. NO. 7 DETROIT (46-36)

Key players: Orlando - Shaquille nee Hardaway (21.7 ppg, 7.1 apg), Dennis Scott (17.5 ppg). Detroit — Otis Thorpe (14.2 ppg, 8.4 rpg), Grant Hill (20.2 ppg, 9.8 rpg, 6.9 apg), Allan Houston (19.7 ppg), Joe Dumars (11.8 ppg, 41 percent 3-point shooting).

Season series: Orlando 3-1. The Magic tied an NBA record with only one field goal in the fourth quarter of their Feb. 7 loss. Orlando won by 1 (without O'Neal), 15 and 22. The last game March 19 is memorable for Anthony Bowie's triple-double that made Detroit coach Doug Collins so angry.

Magic edge: Hardaway presents a daunting matchup problem for the Pistons, and Grant should outplay Thorpe. If Detroit double-teams O'Neal, Scott and Nick Anderson will bury open 3pointers. Orlando dominated the season Pistons edge: Collins has four centers and will tell them to send O'Neal to the foul line. Hill is outstanding, and Dumars has played in 99 playoff games.

Story line: Trying to get back to the finals, the Magic get their first dose of Hack-a-Shaq defense

Prediction: Magic in 3. NO. 3 INDIANA (52-30) vs. NO. 6 ATLANTA (46-36)

Key players: Indiana - Rik Smits (18.5 ppg, 6.9 rpg, 52 percent FG shooting). Dale Davis (10.3 ppg, 9.1 rpg), Mark Jackson (10 ppg, 7.8 apg). Atlanta - Christian Laettner (16.4 ppg, 7.3 rpg), Steve Smith (18.1 ppg), Mookie Blaylock

(15.7 ppg, 37 percent 3-point shooting). Season series: Indiana 3-1. The first three games were played in the first three months of the season, and the last game April 8 was a 2-point victory for Pacers edge: Smits can overwhelm Laettner and Sean Rooks in the middle if he stays out of foul trouble. With Smits, Derrick McKey and Dale and Antonio Davis, Indiana should win the rebounding battle.

Hawks edge: They don't have to deal with Reggie Miller (21.1 ppg), a streak shooter who thrives on the playoff spotlight. Blaylock is much faster than Jackson and everyone in Atlanta's lineup can Story line: Miller, out with a fractured eye socket, won't be back until the second round. Can Pacers survive that Prediction: Pacers in 5.

NO. 4 CLEVELAND (47-35) vs. NO. 5 NEW YORK (48-34)

Key players: Cleveland - Danny Ferry (13.3 ppg, 39 percent 3-point shooting), Bobby Phills (14.6 ppg), Terrell Brandon (19.3 ppg, 6.5 apg). New York Patrick Ewing (22.5 ppg, 10.6 rpg), Anthony Mason (14.6 ppg, 9.3 rpg, 4.4 apg), Derek Harper (14 ppg), John Starks (12.6 ppg).

Season series: Cleveland 3-1. Knicks O'Neal (26.6 ppg, 11 rpg, 2.1 bpg), had one of their worst games of the sea-Horace Grant (13.4 ppg, 9.2 rpg), Anfer-son last Thursday, scoring just 28 points in the first half. Cavs won twice on the road. New York failed to score 100 points in any of the games

Cavaliers edge: Brandon is too quick for Harper. Ferry stays outside and spreads the Knicks' defense, neutralizing their rebounding edge and clearing room for Brandon to penetrate and create. Knicks edge: Cleveland has no one to stop Ewing and will have trouble defending Mason in the low post. Veteran team has been here before and can win a slow-down series

Story line: Is this the last gasp for the Knicks, a team that went to the finals two years ago? Prediction: Knicks in 5.

WESTERN CONFERENCE NO. 1 SEATTLE (64-18) vs. NO. 8 SACRAMENTO (39-43)

Key players: Seattle - Shawn Kemp (19.6 ppg, 11.4 rpg), Detlef Schrempf (17.1 ppg), Hersey Hawkins (15.6 ppg, 38 percent 3-point shooting), Gary Payton (19.3 ppg, 7.5 apg). Sacramento - Brian Grant (14.4 ppg, 7 rpg), Mitch Richmond (23.1 ppg), Tyus Edney (10.8 ppg, 6.1 apg).

Season series: Seattle 4-0. Three of the victories were blowouts, and Seattle came back from a nine-point deficit in the final 1:44 to win the other on a last second steal and layup by Payton.

Sonics edge: Payton, the league leader in steals and a 19.3 points per game scorer, has a huge advantage over Edney and Bobby Hurley. Schrempf gets a strong nod over Billy Owens, too.

Kings edge: Seattle has been ousted in the first round two straight years, and a suspension of Kemp could have a negative effect on team chemistry, something the Sonics have improved this season. Story line: George Karl is fighting for his job as the Sonics try to break their cycle of shocking postseason failure.

Prediction: Sonics in 4.

Lakers guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson takes a shot over Portland forward Cliff Robinson in Portland, Ore., Sunday.

NO. 2 SAN ANTONIO (59-23) vs. NO. 7 PHOENIX (41-41)

Key players: San Antonio - David Robinson (25 ppg, 12.2 rpg, 51 percent FG shooting), Sean Elliott (20 ppg), Avery Johnson (13.1 ppg, 9.6 apg). Phoenix - John Williams, Charles Barkley (23.2 ppg, 11.6 rpg), Kevin Johnson (18.7 ppg, 9.2 apg), Danny Manning (13.4 ppg).

Season series: San Antonio 3-1. The Spurs won the first three by 8, 5 and 14, and the Suns snapped San Antonio's 17game winning streak in the last one April 2.

Spurs edge: Robinson should be able to dominate the center position both offensively and defensively. Elliott wins the matchup against rookie Michael Finley, although the Suns will try other Suns edge: Barkley is having another great season and still will give 110 percent to try to win a championship. Phoenix has a very deep bench that can wear down another soft Spurs team.

Story line: In the wide-open West, the winner of this series won't have to play Seattle in the second round. Prediction: Suns in 5.

NO. 3 UTAH (55-27) vs. NO. 6 PORT-LAND (44-38)

Key players: Utah - Karl Malone (25.7 ppg, 9.8 rpg), Jeff Hornacek (15.2 ppg), John Stockton (14.7 ppg, 11.2 apg). Portland - Arvydas Sabonis (14.5 ppg, 8.1 rpg), Cliff Robinson (21.1 ppg), Rod Strickland (18.7 ppg, 9.6 apg).

Season series: Utah 3-1. The Jazz shot more than 50 percent in three of the games, and Portland found no way to stop Malone

Jazz edge: Utah led the league in field goal percentage for the second straight year, and the trio of Malone, Stockton and Hornacek is as good as anyone else's top 3 in the West. Utah has had playoff success in even numbered years, reaching the conference finals in 1994 and 1992.

Trail Blazers edge: The teams haven't played since Jan. 31, and Portland has undergone a resurgence since then. The Blazers are 18-4 since Sabonis entered the starting lineup and have held opponents to 89 points per game.

Story line: No team had more inner turmoil than Portland, and no team had less than the Jazz. Will Utah ever make it to the finals?

Prediction: Jazz in 4. NO. 4 LOS ANGELES LAKERS (53-29) vs. NO. 5 HOUSTON (48-34)

Key players: Los Angeles - Vlade Divac (12.9 ppg, 8.6 rpg, 1.7 bpg), Cedric Ceballos (21.2 ppg, 6.9 rpg), Nick Van Exel (14.9 ppg, 6.9 apg), Magic Johnson (14.6 ppg, 6.9 apg, 5.7 rpg). Houston -Hakeem Olajuwon (26.9 ppg, 10.9 rpg, 2.9 bpg, 51 percent FG shooting), Clyde Drexler (19.3 ppg, 7.2 rpg, 5.8 apg), Sam Cassell (14.5 ppg), Robert Horry (12

Season series: Houston 3-1. The last three games were close, with the Rockets winning by 4 and 2 and losing by 1.

Lakers edge: Los Angeles has better forwards and could win with offensive rebounding. Johnson has been waiting four years to take the big shot in a big Rockets edge: Houston has faced playoff elimination eight times in the past two years and went 8-0. Finally won by 4, 10 and 24 and lost by four in healthy after two months of using a linethe second game of the season. Utah up of CBA promotees, the Rockets are still the team to beat.

Story line: The two-time defending champs look to surprise everybody again, and Magic Johnson is back in the playoffs for the first time since 1992.

Prediction: Rockets in 5.

Associated Press TORONTO - Brendan Malone, his team having finished its inaugural season with a 21-61 record, was fired Monday as coach of the Toronto Raptors because of differences with general manager Isiah Thomas. He was immediately replaced by assistant coach Darrell Walker, a former teammate of Thomas' who was signed to a three-year contract. The moves came one day after the expansion team completed what Thomas called a "great year." The collection castoffs and young players beat Chicago, Orlando and Seattle this season, with home attendance at 950,000. Malone, who had been an assistant with Detroit and New York for nine seasons, was in the first year of a three-year contract reportedly worth $300,000 annually.

Walker

"He was a tireless worker," Thomas said. "Everything that he did was about winning.

we had philosophical differences about the way this organization ers" who might never get better. should run and where we should go in the future."

Malone's departure had been expected for weeks after he and Thomas openly disagreed about which players to use and when to more or less made him short-sighted and wasn't able to see the big picture in terms of where we were trying to go," Thomas said.

In separate news conferences, the Raptors and Malone called the parting amicable.

Asked if he was fired - as sources earlier indicated — or if he resigned, Malone said: "Those are just words. It was a good parting. It's a fair package. And now it's time to move on."

Nets fire Beard

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. -Butch Beard was fired today as coach of the New Jersey Nets, just two days after the team finished its second straight dismal 30-win season.

General manager Willis Reed confirmed the firing this afternoon. The outspoken Beard had criti-

Reed said the decision to fire Beard was his. Beard was not immediately available for comment. He has said in recent days that he did a good job with the talent available. A source close to the team own-"As Brendan more or less said ers said that Beard had a threehimself his competitive nature year contact, the final year being an option year at the team's discre-team a bunch of "second-line play-

The team chose not to pick up the option in letting Beard go. Beard is owed no money, the source said.

"Comments the last couple of weeks that the players were second line, that they didn't know how to win and some private comments the coach made that some people would not get better were unacceptable," the source said. "We felt a change was necessary."

But Reed said he didn't feel the comments were a big factor in his decision to fire Beard.

"I thought Butch had taken the players as far as he could," Reed said. The source said that the team hoped to hire a replacement in less than a month, but Reed said there is no timetable.

LANDOVER, Md. - Mario Lemieux assisted on all four Pittsburgh goals and Tom Barrasso stopped 38 shots Monday night as the Penguins beat Washington 4-1, cutting the Capitals' playoff lead

The Penguins, who scored on two of their first three shots, are striving to become only the 10th team in NHL history to win a bestof-7 series after losing the first two games at home.

Lemieux's four assists tied a franchise playoff record and Barrasso didn't allow a shot to get past him until Sylvain Cote got a power-play goal with 7:31 left. Barrasso yielded nine goals in the first two games. Game 4 will be held Wednesday night at the USAir Arena.

MIAMI - Dave Lowry scored two goals and goalie John Vanbiesbrouck made 37 saves as the Panthers, taking advantage of a Boston team playing without its top goaltender, beat the Bruins.

The victory gave Florida, playing in its first postseason, a 2-0 lead in their Eastern Conference series. Boston has been outscored 12-5 in the two games.

Ray Sheppard continued to victimize the Bruins, scoring one goal and assisting on three others, while Stu Barnes notched three assists and Jason Woolley had a goal and assist.

Rookie Ed Jovanovski and Johan Garpenlov completed the Panthers' scoring, while Ray Bourque and Steve Heinze scored for Boston.

The Daily Iowan

I've spent the last 10 years of my life avoiding Ozzy Osbourne; unfortunately, he hasn't been trying to avoid me.

The Satanic, bat-chomping, bighaired howler monkey first moved into my musical awareness when I was 12. In all my progressive music haughtiness, I thought he'd simply go away. He didn't and he hasn't, and here's one of those elemental truths even David Carradine's Grasshopper never learned:

Ozzy Osbourne was here before you and I arrived, and he will be here after we're gone.

Call it morbid curiosity, call it herd mentality, but when can West in Film class when a fel-Osbourne's "Retirement Sucks Tour" hit Cedar Rapids Sunday night, I knew I had to be there. Apparently, he rethought his "No More Tours Tour" sentiments from a few years back, so the least I could do was rethink my musical stance and catch Ozzy in the flesh. Deciding to go was the easy part getting there was decidedly more laborious.

Procuring Ozzy tickets things fun. Apparently, the Five Seasons Center in Cedar Rapids didn't think so, and said it reserved free stuff for papers bigger than the DI. OK, plan B.

My friend Kim and I were discussing this problem in my Amerilow named Mike, sitting at least 10 feet away, interrupted and told us he could get us free tickets.

"I'm in touch with Ozzy's people, I'll see what I can do," Mike said.

In our happy frenzy, we both gave him our numbers. Funny thing, though. Mike never called me. He called Kim instead. I guess gentlemen really do prefer

Why did Cavalera think Ozzy was still so popular in 1996, and why was his band touring with the Oz Meister?

"Ozzy's got that whole Black Sabbath thing," he said. "He's been around forever.'

Fans agreed. As Cedar Falls resrowed my pen to get Cavalera's autograph, or his number, or whatever, she told me she really didn't figuring that a little bit of Ozzy like Ozzy that much.

I never expected an Ozzy crowd to be as mild and gentle as a Judy Collins fan club, but despite all the studs, black jeans and leather bustiers, the crowd was surprisingly amicable.

even asked a Cedar Rapids cop (and Cedar Rapids cops, by the way, are friendlier and much better looking than the ones we have here in Iowa City) if there was more trouble than usual.

"It's about the same as most concerts," said officer Ron Faas, adding that although general admission crowds were a little ident Fernanda Garcia, 18, bor- harder to control, the Ozzy crowd had so far been well behaved.

We left before the concert ended, went a long way. Here's my guilty "Although he had a lot of good little secret - as much as I hate to admit it, the concert was fun. And barking at the moon, even if it's Ozzy was obviously very hip to Ozzy's 50-plus-year-old moon, is the biggest stress-reliever I've had in a long time.

MOVIE FINALLY ARRIVES IN IOWA CITY

Perfect chicken weather: 'Fargo': A really long way from 'Arizona' middle with the kidnappers, but

Tasha Robinson The Daily Iowan

Of all the creative moviemakers out there - the few who don't fall prey to the second-film slump or let their big budgets go to their head the Coen Brothers most consistently clamber out on a cinematic limb. From "Blood Simple" to "The Hudsucker Proxy," they've always been hell-bent on proving that it's possible to avoid cookie-cutter characters, stale formulaic plots and chirpy-cheerful endings.

"Fargo" is just one more notch in the brothers' belt. The Coens' latest film reaches back to "Blood Simple" and "Barton Fink" for its grim tone and buckets of blood, but still retains some of the straight-faced irony that made their "Raising Arizona" so screamingly funny.

William Macy ("Homicide") stars as Jerry Lundegaard, a Minneapolis car salesman so desperate for cash that he road trips all the way to Fargo, N.D., to arrange for his wife to be kidnapped and ransomed off to her rich, contemptuous father. Lundegaard claims he'll split the $80,000 ransom down the actually plans to demand a million dollars, and pocket the difference himself. It's a fairly solid plan for an ineffectual whiner who's already ruined his personal finances and can barely keep himself afloat. Unfortunately, Lundegaard's thuggish partners (Steve Buscemi and Peter Sortmare) complicate the plan with some messy, unnecessary murders and decide they deserve a raise. His father-in-law also seems intent on taking charge and unintentionally spoiling the plan. Every choice made by a major character turns out to be exactly the wrong one, and the Coens cheerfully twist the knife; not only does the story become more excruplan disintegrates and the bodies drama, 'Fargo.' stack up, it's painfully clear that the whole mess could have been avoided at any of a number of junc-The one break in the pattern is the obligatory cop, perky police chief Margie Olmstead (Frances McDormand). Unrelentingly chipper and voluminously pregnant, she bounces from scene to scene like a mutated Midwestern Nancy Drew with a seven-month fetus and a Norwegian accent from hell. As the film's only consistently sympathetic focus, she remains placid, practical and charming as she tracks down the kidnappers who were rude enough to decorate the outskirts of her small Minnesota town with frozen corpses.

Olmstead is an unusual enough maternal but effective hick who unforeseen twists, keeping the tale onto a limb that hasn't broken yet.

As the only protagonist whose personal decisions don't lead directly into bloody horror, she's the key to the Coens' two maudlinly simple moral points: everyone is responsible for their own fate and nice guys finish first.

But simplicity has never been a selling point for the Coens. In this case, the fortune-cookie kitsch is buoyed up by flawless direction, a perfect cast, heavily ironic humor and a plot with more tangles than Kate Moss' hair.
