UI construction: An end's in sight

Cary Jordan
The Daily Iowan

Drivers and pedestrians at the UI will soon see relief from a major construction project that has clogged campus walkways and rerouted traffic for almost a year.

The Madison Street construction, which has closed a two-block stretch of the street for drivers, is in the final stretch of a four-phase chilled water pipeline project nearing completion.

"Actually, (workers are) a bit ahead of schedule," said George Klein, director of the UI Physical Plant. "They should be finished by June 1."

The pipeline project, which began in January, will provide air conditioning to the English-Philosophy Building and the UI Main Library.

The new pipeline will replace the buildings' current cooling systems, which are in bad condition and could have used the renovations last summer. Cooling the water at a central location will make the system more efficient and less costly, he said.

"Basically, we're taking care of some deferred maintenance needs, getting buildings ready for use this summer," Klein said. "If we hadn't started this in the winter, the library and EPB wouldn't have had

COULD BECOME A TRADITION

Block party steals RiverFest's thunder

Evelyn Lauer
The Daily Iowan

More than 500 people turned the 200 block of Bloomington Street into a giant party Saturday, and organizers said the success of the party will likely make it an annual event to rival RiverFest.

Party organizers — Kevin Fair, creator of the cartoon "The Fairgrounds," UI sophomore Kristian Hass and UI juniors Andrew Erickson and Kevin Kaye — got permission from neighbors to hold the event, which lasted all day and featured 11 local bands.

UI students who went to the block party at "The Fairgrounds" said they enjoyed having an alternative to RiverFest this weekend.

"It made RiverFest look like a bingo tournament," UI junior Shawn Currie said.

RiverFest officials had problems of their own to face as the Battle of the Bands went up in smoke Saturday morning when the sound system malfunctioned at about 10:30.

After about eight hours of scrambling to locate and set up a new sound system, three local bands were sent home without getting any stage time.

The Battle of the Bands, which originally featured three local bands and three out-of-town bands, was pared down to three acts because of time constraints, Soundstage Director Mitch Gordon said.

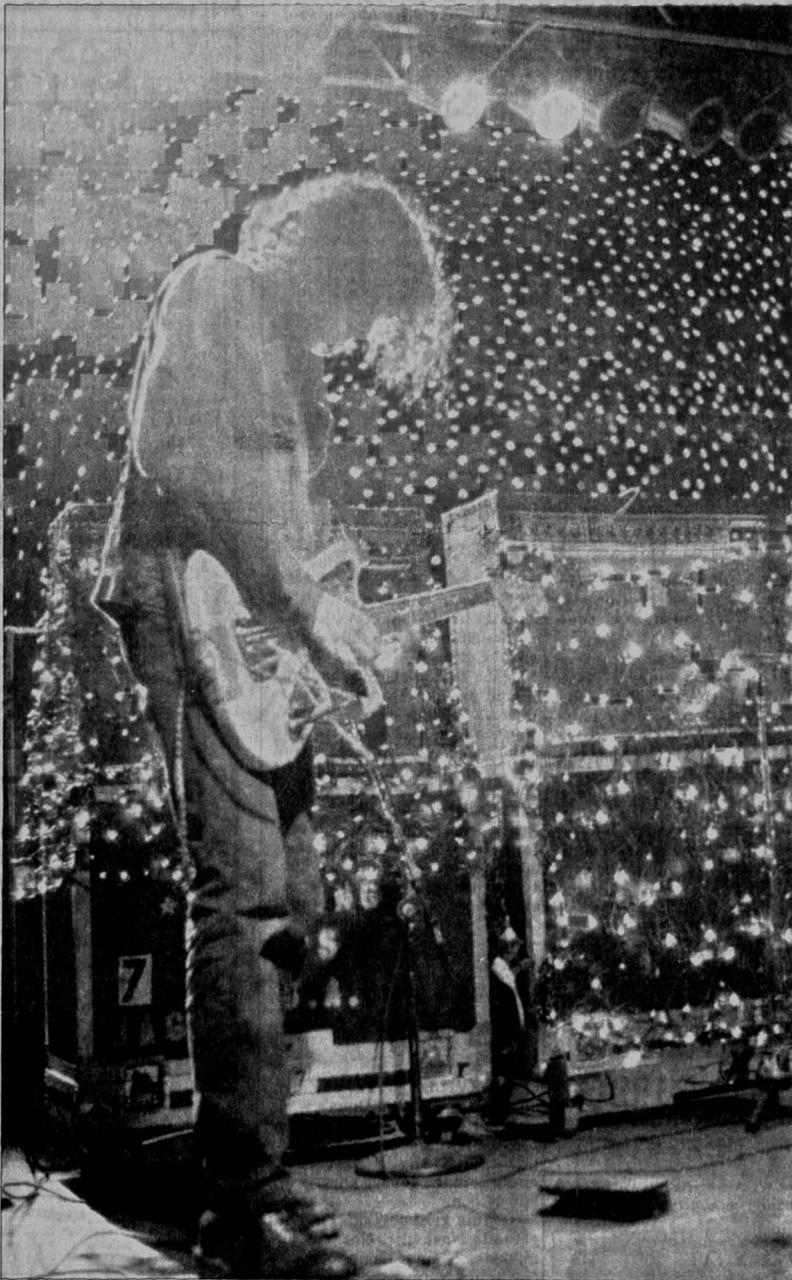

Five Year Jacket, The Buzz and Nurse Rick were selected to play at 6 p.m. in the abbreviated Battle because they had traveled from Illinois.

"The three local bands that were participating were cooperative and understanding," Gordon said.

But local band Earl Howitzer got its chance to play later in the day when it showed up at the block party to entertain UI students who gathered to listen to music, grill food and drink beer.

CHILD BRUTALLY BEAT INFANT

6-year-old boy charged with attempted murder

Richard Cole
Associated Press

RICHMOND, Calif. — He's a poster boy for three-strikes laws — burglary, theft, assault and finally the murderous beating of a tiny infant, prosecutors say.

But he's only 6 years old, his legs too short to reach the floor from a chair in a juvenile courtroom.

The youngest child in the nation ever charged with attempted murder has confounded juvenile authorities debating whether to punish or help the boy — and how.

He listened impassively Friday to a prosecutor's chilling account of how he beat a neighbor's month-old baby with his fists, feet and an inch-thick stick.

two places, his brain damaged, his survival chances slim.

Prosecutors say the boy recruited two 8-year-old boys to break into the house days after he went to the Bermudez house and was thrown out.

"He entered the house with the idea of doing something," says Ignacio Bermudez Sr. "He had a large stick. I threw him out. I'd never seen him before then."

The 6-year-old, a first-grade special education student, already had a reputation as a bully and a thief who liked to hit other kids with sticks. He would roam the "Iron Triangle" neighborhood in this San Francisco suburb while his mother worked — ironically, in a day-care center.

CLOTHESLINE PROJECT PROMOTES ABUSE AWARENESS

Haunting exhibit symbolizes victimized women

John Hunter
The Daily Iowan

This weekend Iowa City got a visual wake-up call to the violence against women that often goes unnoticed by society.

The Pedestrian Mall was transformed into a sea of color Saturday when Iowa City's Clothesline Project went on display as part of Sexual Assault Awareness Month.

The display — created to give a voice to women who have experienced violence — was a clothesline of T-shirts decorated to represent different women's experiences with violence. Each shirt was made by a survivor of violence or someone who cares about her.

Eight different colors represented different forms of violence victims have faced. Yellow shirts represented women who have been battered or assaulted; red, pink and orange represented women who have been raped or sexually assaulted; blue and green were for survivors of incest or child sexual abuse; purple was for women attacked because of their sexual orientation; and white was for women who have died as victims of violent acts.

UI senior Jennifer Krulick got involved with the Clothesline Project through her work with the Rape Victims Advocacy Program, 17 W. Prentiss St., and served as a listener for people who felt overwhelmed by Saturday's exhibit.

"A large part of these shirts for survivors is making it real for other people who don't necessarily believe violence against women is happening," she said. "These shirts prove that a lot of women are hurt every day."

As the 247 shirts swayed in the breeze, sounds rang in the background as an audible reminder of violence against women. Every 10 seconds a gong sounded to indicate a woman being battered. A whistle was blown every minute to represent a woman being raped somewhere in the nation. Three to four women a day are killed by their batterers in the United States and throughout the day a bell was rung to reflect that statistic.

For Renee Heatherly, a Tulane University student visiting Iowa City, the exhibit was a powerful reminder that violence is always happening somewhere.

"I always thought about abuse, but when you see all these shirts and read the statistics, it's amazing," she said. "Each shirt is repre-

Horoscopes

Here's your life: It's all in the stars

*Horoscopes for the week of 4/29/96 - 5/5/96

Aries (March 21-April 19): You may have overexerted yourself over the weekend, but your reputation has been enhanced, as well as your ego. For the first time in a while, you feel comfortable and eager to tackle life's challenges.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Stop listening to others and start relying on yourself. Still, you may just find the one you don't trust is the one who is most worthy. Don't count people out too quickly.

Gemini (May 21-June 21): Hop out of bed in the morning and rip open those curtains. It's a beautiful day and it should be acknowledged regularly. Sure, it may be raining, but you're surrounded by so much love that others are jealous.

Cancer (June 22-July 22): Stopping and smelling the roses will make you miss that for which you are shooting. People are in awe of your work ethic and soon it will pay off. Just one more week and then all the world has to offer is yours.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't slack off at school or work because this week will throw you more obstacles than you might have expected.

Astral Boy & Star Girl's Horoscopes

At the end of the week, take time out for some exercise to clear your head.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take a walk on the wild side. Life is too short to waste on deadlines and insurance policies. Once you've released yourself from the chains of society, life can become wholly enjoyable, not just in spurts.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go buy some new clothes; a late run on spring fashions will make for a cheerful week. Just picture it: that new smell, shiny colors and ... ooh la la ... envious eyes.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Testdrive a new car or sample a new flavor of ice cream. Getting yourself out of that rut won't be too difficult, but initiating the effort may be. Once commencement is out of the way, your path is clear.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): By Wednesday you'll be so ready for a break that all your problems will seem insignificant — and justly so. There's no reason your life must be consumed by stress, especially when you have so much in favor of your success.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A recent family visit was untimely and unexpected, but still pleasant. A break from routine was what you needed, but now it's time to buckle down. There will be plenty of time for indulgence in the near future.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Concentrate on what demands your attention now, not what weighs on your mind for the future. This will be an extremely busy week, but one you can handle with the help of loved ones. You may be swamped, you may be overwhelmed, but if there's one thing you're not, it's alone.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): I wouldn't put too much faith in that new Lionel Richie album. Many of the songs are from a formula and your life will become mundane if you follow suit. Look more toward Top 40 or the big-band era for inspiration.

If your birthday is this week: This may be the week to make the change that has clouded your mind in recent months. The time is right; people are behind you and you are loved by family and friends. Your life won't get better until you take control. You're a strong person at a strong personal time — seize the day.

UI adjunct associate professor to head mental health facility

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously to appoint Craig Mosher as Coordinator of Mental Health/Developmental Disabilities Services, over seven other final-cut applicants.

Mosher, an Iowa City resident, will leave his position as Regional Director and Director of Planning and Evaluation at Hillcrest Family Services in Ceder Rapids to head the newly created Johnson County Department of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities.

"The mission of this department is to enhance the quality of life for the consumers of mental health and developmental disabilities services through continuous improvements in the quality of care that we provide and through the efficient use of taxpayers' dollars," Mosher said.

His appointment is part of a state mandate requiring all Iowa counties to centralize their mental-health facilities in exchange for state aid to fund these services. Mosher's primary responsibility will be allocating and monitoring state funds, while the implementation of services will remain in the hands of the mental-health care providers.

Mosher, expected to start May 1 with an annual salary of $47,600, said aside from monitoring state-allocated funds, he expects to make few — if any — changes in the current organization.

"Johnson County has a remarkable system of services already in place," he said. "It's unusual to have such a high level of commitment in both funding and implementation of mental health and developmental disabilities programs. I've worked in several different places in the state — it's not that way everywhere."

Mosher, also an adjunct associate professor in the UI School of Social Work, where he teaches a class on substance abuse, said though he predicts the next few months to be busy ones, he was excited to lead the new department.

"It's a neat opportunity to develop a managed health-care system that has a human face to it. That's the challenge, but I think we can do that more easily in Johnson County than in most places," Mosher said.

Mosher received his doctorate in psychology from Union Graduate School in Cincinnati. He will share his new office at the Social Services Building, 911 N. Governor St., with one other staff member, who has yet to be hired.

Penn, Wright wed in secret

NEW YORK (AP) — Sean Penn and Robin Wright married this weekend at a closely guarded ceremony in Santa Monica, Calif., the New York Post reported Sunday.

Penn, 35, and Wright, 29, met eight years ago and have had a stormy relationship that produced daughter Dylan Frances, 5, and son Hopper, 2.

The location of Saturday's outdoor wedding, at a private home, was a secret even for the 40 invited relatives and friends who included Jack Nicholson, Warren Beatty, Tim Hutton and Marlon Brando, the Post reported.

Penn, Oscar-nominated for "Dead Man Walking," was married to Madonna in 1985. They divorced in 1989.

Wright has starred in "Forrest Gump," "Toys" and "The Crossing Guard," directed by Penn. Her latest film is the upcoming "Moll Flanders."

The reunited pair planned to attend the Academy Awards together in March, but missed the ceremony when Wright had to be hospitalized overnight.

Princess still feels pain of accusations surrounding mother's death

NEW YORK (AP) — Fourteen years after her mother, Princess Grace, died in a car accident, Princess Stephanie still feels the sting of accusations it was her fault.

"My mom died and everyone said I was responsible," Stephanie says in the May 4 issue of TV Guide. "You're already in the grief of losing a loved one, and suddenly everyone points at you. And it's like they're saying 'Why is she still around if ...'"

Stephanie was just 17 when she and her mother tumbled down a Monte Carlo cliff in their car. Reports implicated the teen-ager in the accident — saying she had been driving and had been fighting with Princess Grace.

The palace maintains Princess Grace was driving.

"You try to convince yourself you don't care what people say, but it hurts," Princess Stephanie said.

John Tesh to donate to needy elementary-school music programs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Call it Mr. Tesh's Opus.

John Tesh, the "Entertainment Tonight" host and pianist, hits the concert trail this summer to promote his Discovery album and elementary schools across the country will benefit.

In an effort to promote music education, Tesh is donating $1 from each concert ticket to the neediest elementary school in each of 50 cities the General Motors Corp.-sponsored tour takes him.

The school facing elimination of its music program will also receive a Yamaha keyboard and sheet music from Cherry Lane Publishing.

"Administrators across the country have cut back on music programs because they are thought to be a luxury within schools' curriculums," said Tesh. "My mission this summer is to illustrate the value of music education."

The "GMC John Tesh Undiscovered America" tour begins June 1 in Minneapolis and continues through September during Tesh's time off from his "Entertainment Tonight" hosting duties.

Reporter says Ito sat him next to Goldman family for sympathy's sake

NEW YORK (AP) — Was it just coincidence Vanity Fair reporter

Dunne was seated next to Ron Goldman's family during the O.J. Simpson trial? Dunne doesn't think so.

"(Judge Ito) put me next to the family of Ron Goldman because he said I would understand how to speak to them,"

Dunne says in the May 4 issue of TV Guide. "It was very sensitive of Judge Ito. He never mentioned my daughter's death, but that's what he meant."

Dunne says televising the trial helped expose the "rot" in the nation's legal system — something he says he first recognized while sitting through the murder trial of his daughter's killer. Dominique Dunne was strangled by an ex-boyfriend in 1982.

"The man who murdered my daughter, John Sweeney, came into court every day dressed like a sacristan at a Catholic seminary, carrying a Bible," Dunne says. "This was a man who never went to church."

Country star Dunn feared scootin' to Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country star Ronnie Dunn's wife said her husband balked at the idea of leaving his Oklahoma home for Nashville, but went ahead with the gamble anyway — and he won.

"Ronnie kept saying, 'I'm not going to Nashville. Not leaving my kids,'" Janine Dunn told The Nashville Network. "And when we were still broke, still scared, we did it. We sold the (Tulsa) ranch. Loaded up — just like the Beverly Hillbillies — and moved to Tennessee."

After relocating to Nashville six years ago, Dunn teamed up with partner Kix Brooks and they recorded the hits "Boot Scootin' Boogie," "You're Gonna Miss Me When I'm Gone" and "Rock My World (Little Country Girl)."

Despite rain, RiverFest not washed out

Sara Voreis
Chris Gardner
The Daily Iowan

A sunny Saturday led to the highest turnout ever for a RiverFest Mainstage band, but the four-day event was marred by technical difficulties and poor weather on Friday and Sunday.

"Thursday and Saturday were an absolute success, but Friday we had to take down the Collegiate Health and Fitness Fair because of cold weather," said Tara Pease, UI senior and RiverFest executive director. "Things didn't go exactly as we planned, so we brought the bands inside."

Wind forced Chicago band Citrus to play in the Main Lounge of the Union Friday night.

On Saturday morning, faulty sound equipment resulted in a scramble for a new sound company. Mainstage act The Flaming Lips went on an hour late, and the "Battle of the Bands" was limited to three out-of-town acts.

"Three bands still played, even though the battle was prolonged," Pease said. "But the turnout for Flaming Lips at the Mainstage event was the best we've had in four years."

Pease estimated 2,500 people came to hear the headliner band.

More than 3,000 UI students and Iowa City residents flocked to RiverFest on Saturday afternoon to sample local cuisine and other events that reflected community diversity.

"A Taste of Iowa City" featured several Iowa City restaurants, gathering lines for ice cream, gyros and pizza while raising money for the Ronald McDonald House. Acacia fraternity, which organized the event, solicited 18 vendors for the food festival this year and hopes to attract 20-25 restaurants next year.

"We feel for our event, it was one of our best years for contributions to the Iowa City Ronald McDonald House," said UI junior and "Taste" Director Matt Martin.

A team of five judges, including UI President Mary Sue Coleman, awarded Windy City Dogs best sandwich honors, and Pizza Pit won best pizza. Iowa City's Best Gyros and G.A. Malone's tied for best overall, and Heyn's Ice Cream was crowned best dessert.

Other contest judges included Dean of Students Philip Jones and state politicians Minnette Doderer, Mary Mascher and Mary Neuhauser.

Martin estimated the event raised $3,000-$5,000 for the Ronald

Other events included multicultural performances organized by UI student groups and the Riverbank Art Fair, which featured an array of work designed and constructed by Midwestern artists. Games ranged from 3-on-3 basketball to an original version of "Double Dare."

"I think the four-day festival made for an action-packed weekend," Pease said. "Spending a year preparing an event for the community and the university with such a good turnout really made all of our hard work pay off."

Sunday's activities, though dampened by another rainy day, were jump-started by more than 600 walkers and runners for the 17th annual RiverRun.

Participants were given the option to race in either a 5- or 10-kilometer competition, with courses running around either City Park or Hancher Auditorium.

UI senior Amy Owens decided to run the 5-kilometer race with friends because it was similar to a course she runs on a regular basis.

"It's nice to get up early and run, but the Dubuque Street hill at the end was tough," she said. "It's a way to congregate people and do something as a community."

Iowa City resident Charles Lutz, who won the overall men's division of the 5-kilometer race, was surprised at his first-place finish and was pleased with his run.

Although Lutz crossed the finish line first, he was not officially named first-place winner, since he was part of a team. Only individual runners could qualify for places.

Regent calls for end to special meetings

Jay Dee
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa state Board of Regents will elect a new president May 1, but one regent said he shouldn't have to spend all day doing it.

Regent Tom Collins said he wants to eliminate the special meeting the board has every two years to select its leader.

The board will meet at the Des Moines Airport Wednesday, vote for a new president, deal with some routine business and then adjourn. Collins said the business of this short meeting should have been taken care of at last month's meeting.

"I could not figure out why we are doing this," said Collins, whose proposal to elect the board's president during regularly scheduled meetings will be debated at Wednesday's meeting. "People have been doing it this way for so long, sometimes you have to set off a stick of dynamite to get them to listen."

When Marvin Pomerantz was elected regents president in 1995, the meeting cost taxpayers more than $2,600. The costs included airfare to Des Moines, conference room rental and a $50 expense payment to each regent.

Since presidential terms end April 30 — between the regents' April and May meetings — the regents have traditionally scheduled a special meeting to elect a successor.

"In the past, they've always had it in person, since it is such a critical vote," said Louise Houseworth, director of business and finance for the regents.

But Regent Beverly Smith said she favored Collins' idea.

"In terms of my time, it would be great (not to have the extra meeting)," Smith said.

For the Pomerantz election, a plane chartered by the board flew three or four regents to Des Moines for the vote, Smith said.

"If there's no reason for a special meeting, let's not have one," she said.

Despite the limited number of issues the board will address Wednesday, Smith said she expects an animated meeting. With as many as five potential candidates for the board presidency, the race is wide open.

"At this time I've heard of four names," Smith said.

Manchester physician John Tyrrell and Atlantic homemaker Nancy Pellet are likely candidates. Both have said they would seek the office if nominated by another regent.

A member of the board since 1991, Tyrrell is the longest-serving regent, while Pellet lost a 5-4 vote to Pomerantz in the last presidential vote.

Others mentioned as possible candidates include Owen Newlin of Des Moines, Tom Dorr of Marcus and Ellengray Kennedy of Bancroft.

"I don't think we'll know who the candidates are until they're nominated," Smith said. "It's the first time that we don't have a clue."

DIE-HARD FANS TURN OUT

Racing in the Criterium — 'It's really just a chess game'

Al Austria
The Daily Iowan

Burnout wasn't a concern for Jerome Nadel when he started training for Sunday's Old Capitol Criterium.

Nadel, a Coralville resident, won the 30+ Masters division of the Criterium. He competed in three races last week in preparation for Sunday's event. He won the last of the three previous races.

"Racing is the best training for racing," he said.

Nadel proved that by blowing away the field of about 20 cyclists by the third lap. The 30+ Masters event was one of 12 races held for licensed racing cyclists Sunday near the Coralville Rec Center.

Sunday's wind, rain and 40-degree temperatures kept spectators at the annual bike race limited to die-hard racing fans and friends and relatives of cyclists.

Iowa City resident Kara Frantz, the only woman on the Lefler Quantum Racing Team, won the Women's Open race and the Women's Overall Trophy presented by Chezik-Sayers Honda.

"It's OK to not have teammates. I'm just learning what I'm good at," she said. "But it would be fun to have a tactical advantage."

However, Frantz said a teammate would have been welcome because they could have worked together in the race. She said a cyclist uses one percent less energy per mile when following someone closely than when leading the pack because of the aerodynamic drag.

"Cruising at 20 miles per hour, you're using 20 percent less energy," she said.

A rider then must decide when to ride with the pack and when to attack and ride alone ahead of the pack.

Nadel, who rode a $3,500 steel-framed bike with $800 carbon composite wheels at speeds of up to 45 mph on the straight-aways, said fitness was important in his victory.

But the race was more psychological and tactical than physical, he said.

Nadel's Iowa City Spoke/Chezik-Sayers Honda teammate, Lloyd Tabing, agreed.

"Everyone thinks the most fit guy is going to win," he said. "That's really not true. It's really just a chess game."

Tabing, who finished second in the Masters race, did some sprint training earlier in the week to prepare for the race.

"I take it easy before the race so I'm well-rested," he said. "I just do these to have a good time."

Frantz said she didn't want to run out of her energy before the end.

"I want somebody to pull me up the hill, so I can be first or second going into the last turn," she said.

Her strategy was to stay with the pack, and pull, or take the point on the pack, when she had to.

"All the racing happens in the last 15 seconds of the race if you stay with the pack," Frantz said.

Julie Bill/The Daily Iowan

Second place at the Old Capitol Criterium Race for the USCF Masters division was up for grabs until the last lap Sunday afternoon. Lloyd Tabing beat out the pack in a sprint from the fourth corner to come away with second-place honors.

Budget fights still tangling up legislative adjournment

DES MOINES (AP) — Legislative leaders are trying to be upbeat about their chances of adjourning the 1996 session this week.

But even they admit that House and Senate negotiators are finding agreement hard to come by in their bargaining over budgets for key government projects, including the new prison slated for Fort Dodge.

"As easily as things could come together, they could just as easily fall apart," House Speaker Ron Corbett, R-Cedar Rapids, said.

Corbett and House Majority Leader Brent Siegrist said the budget bill that includes the prison may be the toughest issue to solve this year.

Members appointed to a special negotiation committee made little headway in their talks last week.

Democrats on the committee are sticking to their plans to give grants to local governments that want to build or expand county or regional jails or community-based crime prevention programs.

Republicans want to go ahead with the Fort Dodge prison and renovate an abandoned cellhouse at the maximum-security state penitentiary in Fort Madison, but want to put off the Democrats' grant proposal and study it over the summer.

“ It made RiverFest look like a bingo tournament. ”

Shawn Currie, UI junior, on the daylong block party held Saturday in the 200 block of Bloomington Street.

Moore manners

■ Michael Moore's speech at the Union was informative and entertaining, except for the boorish behavior of some of the audience members.

Filmmaker, television producer and author Michael Moore spoke at the UI April 26 as this year's RiverFest lecturer. The nearly 1,000 people in the Union's Main Lounge often interrupted the director of "Roger and Me" with cheers and applause as he criticized politicians, lambasted corporate greed, opposed racism and supported organized labor.

His two-hour lecture began and ended with video clips from his television program, "T.V. Nation." His talk was an energetic, heartfelt litany from the Left — an invigorating improvement over fellow progressive Ralph Nader's recent UI visit and his droning denouncement of the status quo.

Moore's talk had one embarrassing low point that marred an otherwise interesting evening. Too many people stood up during the question section of the lecture and asked for money, or to pose with him for a picture or both.

Whether talking to the camera, a single person, ten people or 1,000 people, Moore comes across as a genuinely nice guy. But he also describes himself as an introvert. These two qualities, together with crass and boorish behavior from too many listeners in the audience, created an uncomfortable situation.

Meeting with reporters before the lecture, Moore spoke with pride about the Center for Alternative Media, the foundation he established with some of the proceeds from "Roger and Me," the highest-grossing documentary of all time.

The foundation gives out around $10,000 a month to independent filmmakers, Moore said, more than $500,000 to date.

Moore cited an African-American female documentary filmmaker as a recent example of a grant recipient. Moore said the woman needed $10,000 to finish her film. He later went on to tell a strikingly similar story about trying to finish "Roger and Me" by selling it for $10,000 to PBS.

Rather than wait to speak with him after the lecture or take the trouble to write a proposal requesting a grant, nearly a half-dozen thoughtless and selfish people thought it more important to take up valuable time with pleas for money and requests for pictures.

The first request came from a man who started out wanting to know more about Moore's foundation, but after prompting from Moore finally asked for money to start an "underground" newspaper.

Hopefully, Moore was simply caught up in the spirit of the moment when he agreed to give the naive young man $2,000. But it set a tone. Dignity was more or less abandoned for a rush for money, pictures, autographs, a kiss and a pointless request to trade hats. Time that could have been spent listening to Moore's witticisms was spent watching him squirm uncomfortably in response to inappropriate, intrusive questions that obviously made him feel uncomfortable.

Moore said he hadn't slept for nearly 24 hours preceding Friday's lecture. We can only hope his weariness will help him to forget the offensively greedy nature of some of his hosts and remember the warmth and appreciation of so many others.

Chat rooms — more than conversation

To the Editor:
I would like to clarify a couple of major misrepresentations in April 28's front-page article, "Help! I'm addicted to computer chat rooms."

In the article, Hunter writes about "ISCA" and how people can get addicted to these "chat rooms." If Hunter would have investigated further, he would have found the usage of the word "ISCA" is inappropriate. ISCA stands for Iowa Student Computer Association. It encompasses many projects, one of which is ISCA-BBS, the subject of the article. By only stating ISCA, the article gives the reader a false impression that ISCA-BBS is the only service offered by ISCA.

And that is far from the truth. ISCA offers many diverse services to the university and Internet communities, including ISCA-BBS, Macintosh/PC/UNIX file archives, Panda, World Wide Web, various mailing lists and entertainment projects. Future projects include working closely with the university and community organizations to establish educational speeches and field trips.

The labeling of ISCA-BBS as a bunch of "chat rooms" is also a misrepresentation. A reader will assume the BBS is of an entertainment nature. Again, this is far from the truth. Out of a couple of hundred active forums on the BBS, only a dozen or so are devoted to idle "chats." Most forums involve real-life issues like politics, gender and racial issues, AIDS awareness and current events, plus forums for people who have questions about their computers, pets, travel plans, etc. As you can see, this "ISCA-BBS" is much more than just "chat rooms."

Preacher pontificates

To the Editor:

As an infrequent, local Pentecost preacher and summer Ped Mall preacher, I decided to respond to Jon Bassoff's April 19 column, "Living life by the 'good book.'" I mention "local" because I have lived in Iowa City for 15 years. And I know better than to think I can verbally abuse college students and subsequently minister to them. But whereas I am local, I am not loco. For example, I don't pontificate: "We Christians no longer sin." I also don't single out homosexuality as an unforgivable sin. Neither do I tell women who disagree with me they are experiencing PMS. Such "gotcha" button-pushers, to be sure, rile students and draw crowds. However, the trashy merchandisers ironically "lack any value in restraining the sensual indulgence" they are preaching against (Colossians 2:23).

Having heard loco Pentecost preachers for years, and having publicly challenged some of their false representations of the Bible, I finally decided to preach on the Pentecost myself. However, I seldom draw large crowds, because I strive to preach: 1) against sin (without being caustic) and 2) forgiveness. Nevertheless, some listen.

In his column, Bassoff referred to a person who went to her grave a devout atheist. I passionately hope she repented at the end of her life, as did the thief on the cross. Of course, I am not her judge — God is. But I can nonetheless remind people of Jesus' audacious words: "I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me" (John 14:6). Such exclusivity doesn't sit well with our "pluriversity." But, then, God never asked man for his opinions as to how to come to the Father. In spite of our carnivalesque culture, God is not offering rides on a Tilt-a-Whirl on the Midway of Opinion.

There's no time for silence

Within the next two to four years, Hawaii will complete its well-documented marriage rights war in the courts. The outcome probably will signal victory for gay couples wanting to marry, a prospect that has not gone unchallenged.

Resistance to the legislation comes from a host of conservative alliances. Everyone is in on the act to discredit homosexual marriage, from Charlton Heston to Randall Terry of Operation Rescue fame. Back in February, most of the GOP presidential hopefuls joined the din. The forces against homosexual marriage rights enjoy great financial underpinning, media savvy and a formidable zeal for their work.

Listening to reasons supplied in casual conversation, it is hard to fathom the popularity of today's homosexual political inertia. Reasons offered barely register on any rational scale of self-preservation. You hear a lot from those who "don't want to be labeled." Others say "radical political activists don't represent me."

One might expect every gay man and lesbian in the United States to be on some form of alert over their actions. After all, individual homosexuals stand to incur real harm as surrealist propaganda videos about "the gay lifestyle choice" are shown in small-town meeting halls to stir people up against gay marriage. This is already happening, along with much worse. Yet in many places, only a small percentage of gays and lesbians take an immediate interest in battling the misleading portrayals of gays supplied to families, colleagues and neighbors by conservative Christian media mills.

Listening to reasons supplied in casual conversation, it is hard to fathom the popularity of today's homosexual political inertia. Reasons offered barely register on any rational scale of self-preservation. You hear a lot from those who "don't want to be labeled." Others say "radical political activists don't represent me." They have found no comfortable place in which to make their own noise as politically moderate gay people. Still others say of the two "m" words — military and marriage — that they are unwilling to invest energy in these battles. They simply don't believe in either.

Adopting such attitudes are the individual right of any person, but they also are dangerous for American homosexuals to embrace today. We are living in a time in which one of our two major political parties, the GOP, seems to require its presidential hopefuls disapprove of homosexuality. Every day, we hear weak and confused arguments against recognizing our marriages. It's time for the floating population of American homosexuals — those who forgo politics for a kinder, gentler sort of life — to think again.

The fact is, you are being drawn out of the greatest circle of privilege and responsibility our society offers. It is self-destructive in the extreme to stand by and watch that exclusion happen to you. It is infantile to point to heterosexual marriage failure rates and stammer that you want no part of this.

Most of the smartest things said of marriage are true: There is nothing finer than meeting the person with whom you wish to spend the rest of your life. There is nothing more sobering and joyous than declaring a commitment to that union before the eyes of society. And there is nothing about a commitment to a person of the same gender that negates or diminishes your need and right to partake in such a ceremony. Nothing about your bond disqualifies you from receiving all the social recognition — and social expectations — it will confer upon you for the rest of your married lives.

Gays are being treated like wayward children in the denial of marriage rights. The level of our silence is seen by many eager eyes as proof that we are wayward children. We must remind society that our life commitments to one another confer upon the greater social order the same benefits as any married relationship. These benefits are not minor, and we should go about the business of claiming our right to marry with an earnestness indicating it is a right we prize and a commitment we will honor.

The weather stinks, but Iowa's OK

A recent Des Moines Register poll asked the following question to Iowans: "Looking at the state of Iowa overall, do you think things are generally going in the right direction, or have they gotten pretty seriously off on the wrong track?" Only 25 percent of the respondents said they thought Iowa was on the wrong track, while 66 percent thought the state was heading in the right direction.

In 1993, the numbers were substantially lower when the same question was presented to Iowans, with 44 percent saying the state was on the right track and 39 percent saying it was on the wrong track.

Now maybe I'm biased, having lived my entire life in Des Moines, but I'd have to agree with the 66 percent who feel Iowa is on the right track.

The Register poll posed the same question about the rest of the country — this time, 48 percent thought the country was on the wrong track and 39 percent thought the country was on the right track.

These results tell us that although Iowans aren't especially happy with the way things are going in the country overall, they seem to be quite positive about their state.

As graduation rapidly draws closer, perhaps this poll can provide one final lesson to graduating UI seniors preparing to join the work force — Iowa isn't that bad.

year to year. Some summers, you may not see a drop of rain for weeks on end, while others, you may find yourself living in the seventh floor lounge in Rienow because Mayflower is completely flooded. Some winters are unseasonably mild, while others are so unbelievably frigid your car won't start unless you pay a lot of money to have a new battery delivered to your apartment.

Even with weather like this, I still would have a difficult time leaving Iowa. There are other people who agree with me, and not all of them are native Iowans. Matt Schikore, a UI employee originally from St. Louis, enjoys the slower pace that seems to envelop Iowa. "Other than my family, the only thing I really miss about St. Louis is the Cardinals," said Schikore, who has lived in Iowa City for the past five years. Lionel Kimble Jr., a graduating UI senior, has chosen to stay at the UI to work on a master's degree. Kimble, who is from Chicago, admitted the quiet, easygoing atmosphere of Iowa influenced his decision, and conceded, "It's not really that bad, except on Sundays when everything closes at 5 o'clock."

OK, so "Iowa — it's not that bad" doesn't exactly have the makings of a new state motto, and it probably wouldn't encourage any great masses of people to migrate to the state. But maybe that's the true charm of Iowa: It sneaks up on you. People come to Iowa from big cities to work or go to school, and after spending a considerable amount of time here, they aren't all that anxious to leave.

In a lot of cities, it takes more than an hour to get home from work. In Des Moines, Iowa's largest city, you can get from downtown to the suburbs in less than a half-hour, even during rush hour. The cost of living is considerably lower here than in most states, and contrary to popular belief, there are things to do in most Iowa cities. Crime does exist, especially in some of the more populated areas, but it is nowhere near the problem it is in larger states. Iowa may be one of the best-kept secrets in the country.

Of course, it is easy to badmouth the Hawkeye state, and the slower-paced lifestyle isn't for everyone. Jeff Phillips, a graduating UI senior and Chicago native, is heading back to Chicago after he graduates. "Iowa looks great if you're looking at it through beer goggles," he said. UI sophomore Ryan Guttridge, originally from Canada, said sarcastically, "I don't miss Canada at all. How can you miss great fishing, good beer and a drinking age of 19?"

Yes, there are states that are far more scenic, have better climates and have an abundance of things to do. If you give Iowa a chance, though, you may realize you really do like it, even if you don't want to admit it. There are more young men and women graduating from Iowa colleges who decide they do like it and stay in the state. As a graduating UI senior, I have signed on for at least three more years as an Iowan, this time as a Drake University law student. I don't know what the future holds for me, but I do know that wherever I end up, I will always be an Iowan at heart.

BLOCK PARTY

UI sophomore Scott Adamson, drummer for Earl Howitzer, was disappointed with the Battle of the Bands and said the event was "really unorganized."

"They wouldn't tell us what was going on," Adamson said. "The PA blew before 11 a.m., and they didn't tell us what they were going to do until 3:30."

RiverFest Executive Director Tara Pease said her group did everything it could to salvage the Battle of the Bands.

"We looked more at rectifying the situation than pointing a finger at someone," she said. "We'll deal with that next week."

She said most of the RiverFest crowd stayed after the sound system went out.

But those who participated in the block party said it was a better time than RiverFest.

Zach Westerachl, bassist for Mounting Me, played at the block party. It was a better environment to play in than RiverFest would have been, he said.

"It was more personal," he said. "It was cool to play around some house. It was more of a party than some school-sponsored event."

The block party also provided a more intimate setting than RiverFest to listen to bands, Kaye said.

"It was a little getaway," he said. "Everyone got to be friends with each other by the end of the night. Sure we got to drink some beer, but I think people would have come even if we didn't have it. It was a nice alternative to RiverFest."

And RiverFest may continue to have some competition, Kaye said.

"We're looking to make this an annual event," he said. "We're super-happy everything turned out the way it did. Everyone had a smile on their face. It was terrific."

Eight bands, including Sexual

Buddha, Red Coat Charmers and Pompeii V, were originally scheduled to play at the party beginning at 2 p.m., Fair said. But after the sound system failed at the Battle of the Bands, local bands such as Earl Howitzer came to the block party and played.

"It got crazy at times," Fair said. "It turned into something much bigger than I thought it was going to be. But we dealt with it really well."

Despite the hundreds of people and loud music, the local police just patrolled the alley until the event moved inside at 8 p.m., Fair said.

"They came and asked us to turn down the amps," he said. "One police officer said it was cool that we were doing this and he wished he could have done something like this."

A few people were arrested, but the block party itself caused no violations, Fair said.

"It was a totally cool underground festival," he said. "I'm not sure if we were even supposed to do it, but we got away with it perfectly."

air conditioning this summer."

Construction crews are also involved in a fiber-optic project, which, like the chilled water pipeline project, requires laying cable between buildings on campus.

The combination of the two projects results in bigger, more noticeable holes in the ground.

Stephen Buckman, a senior architect with UI Architectural/Engineering Services, said the fiber-optic project was necessary and had to start in conjunction with the chilled water pipeline project.

"If we only worked on this during summer months, it would increase the overall length of the project threefold," Buckman said. "It's been a big project, and we know it's been disruptive."

There are five fiber-optic projects

"If we only worked on this during summer months, it would increase the overall length of the project threefold."

that have been active, Buckman said, and several others are in the early stages of design. The fiber-optic project will provide a communication network between university buildings, Buckman said.

"Not all of our buildings now have a dependable communications pathway to the outside world," Buckman said. "Fiber optics will allow us a more dependable and larger capacity for transmitting data."

Other continuing construction projects include the $8.9 million renovation of Schaeffer Hall, slated for completion in July 1997, and the construction of the Levitt Center, the 112,000-square-foot building that will serve as the future home of the UI Foundation, the UI Alumni Association and the UI Division of Alumni Records and Services.

While the construction projects are necessary, the crews do their best to make it as accommodating to UI students as possible, Buckman said.

"We are aware of the impact (construction) makes on student life," he said. "We try to address it whenever we can."

CHILD CRIMINAL

"He was always sneaking out of the house on his mother," said neighbor Lola Ponce, and routinely stole toys from her yard. "When his mother would arrive home late, she would come to our house and ask for him. I would just point down the street the way he went."

The boy would travel the streets with stick in hand, threatening other children and trying to knock them off their bicycles, pointing it at them like a gun, she said.

In school, he couldn't keep still, tripping other children in the aisle. Many families wouldn't allow their children to play with him. Those who did often regretted it.

"He was always getting into trouble," said neighbor Sara Kammer. He liked to sneak into neighbors' homes. He'd steal whatever wasn't tied down — sometimes even tires.

Last Monday, the day of the beating, he hooked up with 8-year-old twin brothers from his elementary school who have good grades and no history of discipline problems. "Model citizens," said their principal and teacher.

The twins' mother is slowly dying of cancer. Their young aunt and other relatives try to take care of them, and said they rarely go out unsupervised. Except that day.

The 6-year-old told them he had a plan to steal a Big Wheel tricycle from the Bermudez home. They went along.

On Monday, the Bermudez family borrowed a friend's car to take the family grocery shopping. Ignacio Jr. had a cough, so his parents left him with his 18-year-old half-sister, Maria Bermudez.

While the baby slept in the bassinet, the sister went to the bathroom. At that moment, the three boys slipped in, apparently through an unlocked back door.

They found the Big Wheel. But the 6-year-old had another agenda as well, authorities say. He found the baby in the bassinet and went on a rampage.

"He beat this baby in the head with his feet, his fists and ultimately with a stick," deputy District Attorney Harold Jewett said. A piece of broken stick was found in the bassinet.

"They didn't really make any noise, the baby didn't even cry," Maria Bermudez says. "They must have hit him so hard in the head he was in shock."

One of the boys picked the baby up and put him on a nearby bed before leaving with the Big Wheel. Police wouldn't say whether the boys felt remorse or were childish trying to hide their crime. They left with the Big Wheel.

Maria Bermudez found Ignacio Jr. on the bed and began to pick him up. She realized something was wrong and screamed loud enough for neighbor Kammer to hear.

The boys were spotted trying to hide the Big Wheel in the bushes. When a girl who found out about the attack said she was going to the police, the 6-year-old threatened her.

Now the boy sits in Contra Costa Juvenile Hall — the youngest child ever confined in the building — while the courts and society grope for an answer.

Prosecutors want him sent to a juvenile youth facility for years if a judge decides at a hearing he attacked the baby. The boy faces a preliminary hearing on Friday. His two 8-year-old friends were released to their parents, charged only with burglary.

Dan Macallair, associate director of the Center on Juvenile and Criminal Justice in San Francisco, called the idea of locking up a 6-year-old ludicrous. The boy should be sent home unless there is a drug or abuse problem in the household, he said.

"If we just want retribution, we can do what we do with teenagers," Macallair said. "Send him off to the California Youth Authority to be warehoused in a violent environment so he'll come out worse."

representative of a person's real-life experience."

The original Clothesline Project started in 1990 with 31 shirts in Hyannis, Mass., and has since expanded to communities across the country and the globe.

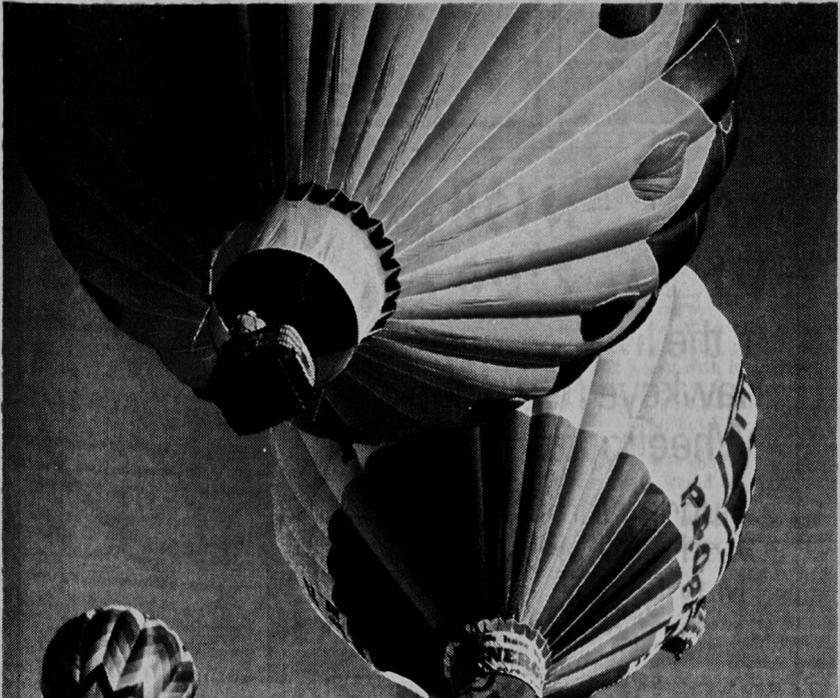

Its purpose is fivefold: to bear witness to the survivors and victims of violence, help in the healing process, educate society, document violence against women and provide a network of support for communities starting their own Clothesline Projects.

Inspiration for forming an Iowa City chapter came from the National Clothesline Project, which appeared at the Union in March of 1995 and drew more than 2,000 visitors, said Nicole Cook, director of education at RVAP, which sponsors the Iowa City project in conjunction with the Women's Resource and Action Center, 130

N. Madison St., and the Domestic Violence Intervention Program. Many of the T-shirts on display Saturday were created at that event.

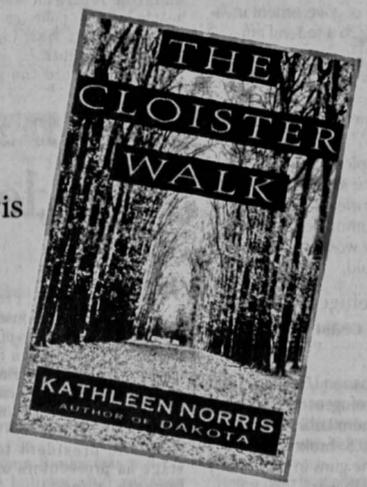

"It gives a greater awareness about violence against women in your own community," Cook said. "It's a powerful display that brings on a myriad of emotions ranging from anger to sadness. But I do believe that ultimately, strength comes from the display."

Federal agents break up pipe-bomb-making ring in Georgia

ROBERTA, Ga. (AP) — Ten pipe bombs and bomb-making materials were confiscated after the arrests of two leaders of a small militia group that federal officials said was preparing for a government invasion.

A top federal law-enforcement official discounted early reports the bombs were to be used to disrupt the Summer Olympics in Atlanta.

Robert Edward Starr III and William James McCranie Jr. were charged Friday with conspiracy to possess unregistered explosive devices. Both were held at a county jail in Macon pending a hearing today, Justice Department spokesperson Carl Stern said.

Starr and McCranie headed the Georgia Republic Militia group, which officials said has 11 to 15 members. The group apparently wanted to store the bombs at their homes in case of government invasion, according to a federal affidavit.

Despite earlier reports, federal officials said there was no indication of any connection to the Olympics.

"The Olympics only came up once during the investigation when at one of their meetings, one member said if a bomb goes off at the Olympics they would get blamed for it," Stern said.

Lebanese refugees return home after cease-fire takes effect

QANA, Lebanon (AP) — Tens of thousands of refugees streamed home to southern Lebanon on Saturday after a U.S.-brokered cease-fire silenced the guns in the 16-day Israeli-Hezbollah war.

Barely minutes after the truce went into effect at 4 a.m., hundreds of buses, vans and cars were crawling bumper-to-bumper, packed with many of the 500,000 refugees and their belongings: from mattresses and suitcases to kitchen utensils.

The Beirut-Tyre coastal highway, a favorite target of Israeli gunboats during the fighting, was almost all one-way traffic — southbound.

"We are returning. All of us are resistance," said leaflets that guerrillas of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah handed out to the motorists.

Bad luck hampered U.S. search of Ron Brown's plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — A raging storm, misinformation and Croatian roadblocks led to a frustrating series of futile attempts by the U.S. military to find and reach the wreckage of Commerce Secretary Ron Brown's plane. By the time Americans got there — a half-day late — the bodies had already been counted, according to a document obtained by the AP.

Croatian police had taken such control of the search-and-rescue that they kept the U.S. commander waiting at a roadblock for an hour, said the U.S. military log of the crash that killed 35 people, including 33 Americans.

The log, a 16½-hour, detailed account of the U.S. military response to the April 3 tragedy, outlines in 87 terse entries a fruitless search in the Adriatic, helicopters fighting sleet, rain and wind to try to reach the crash and an interminable wait for a commander and ground troops.

Auction of Jackie O.'s private life draws huge public reaction

NEW YORK (AP) — The very private Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis — who hid behind sunglasses and dignified silence in life — finally revealed herself.

Her personal side was not only on display, it was for sale, at the frenzied auction of her estate.

Her things told about a life of privileged jet-setting, triumph, tragedy, family, fame and plain hard work.

And her fans, with wallets wide open, put a dollar-figure on the story told by the 6,000 items for sale. The grand total: $34.5 million.

Sotheby's had estimated the four-day auction would bring, at most, $4.6 million.

Gunman slays 32 at Australian tourist site

Rick Rycroft Associated Press

PORT ARTHUR, Australia — A gunman who slaughtered 32 people at a popular tourist site and nearby pub was captured today by police, after he set fire to a guest cottage where he held three hostages.

The gunman, whom police identified as a 29-year-old with a history of psychological problems, had opened fire with a semiautomatic rifle Sunday afternoon on tourists at a colonial prison site on the island of Tasmania.

It was the worst shooting massacre in Australia this century.

"Various massacres would pale into insignificance when you look at what has happened in Tasmania," said Tasmanian Police Commissioner John Johnson.

The arrest ended a some 12-hour standoff at the bed and breakfast, where the gunman had barricaded himself with the cottage's two owners and a guest. The hostages' fate was not immediately known, but police said the gunman was the only person they saw inside the house after it was set ablaze.

Among those killed at the Port Arthur historic prison complex were two Canadian tourists and 30 Australians, including several children and a baby, witnesses and police said. One American was among 18 people injured; police said only that the man, from Washington state, was not badly hurt.

Witnesses said the gunman, a blond surfer-type, had mingled casually in the crowd at the prison complex before pulling a rifle from a tennis bag and shooting methodically at visitors.

He moved on to a local pub, shooting and killing more people, before fleeing to the nearby Seascope bed-and-breakfast cottage at about 5 p.m. Sunday. By early today, more than 200 local and special police units had surrounded the guest house.

Police had tried to negotiate by phone with the gunman, who fired at them with two heavy caliber military-type rifles, Deputy Police Commissioner Richard McCreadie said.

The top and bottom floors of the cottage were burning when police arrested the gunman outside. He had suffered burns. Witnesses said a helicopter landed nearby and an ambulance headed toward the blazing cottage. Other details of the arrest weren't immediately available.

About 500 tourists were milling about the prison compound at about 1:30 p.m. Sunday when a young blond man drove up in a Volkswagen with a surfboard strapped to the roof, a witness said. He carried a tennis bag.

He had been chatting to people calmly when he went into the cafe, pulled a rifle from his bag and started shooting.

An unidentified Melbourne woman told Australian Associated Press she hid under a table. Afterward, she told AAP, "There were people just sitting there in their chairs where they'd been eating — dead. ... There was a weird sort of calm, as if no one could believe what they were seeing."

Wendy Scurr, who was working at the front desk of the historic site, said the gunman left "shooting as he went, shooting everybody he could see." She said she called for help and "ran for my life along with hundreds of other people at the site."

He continued shooting outside the cafe, firing methodically at screaming tourists trying to flee.

"He wasn't going bang-bang-bang-bang — it was 'bang' and then he'd pick someone else out and line them up and shoot them," witness Phillip Milburn told Australian Broadcasting Corp. radio.

The gunman next shot at two buses, killing several tourists in each and one driver. He fired on cars approaching the gates to the site.

Witness Karen Jones told Australian radio that a little girl was killed.

"The guy that we were with had to go and help take a stretcher in," she said, "and the mother was saying, 'You have to get my baby to the hospital, quick, quick.' But it was already dead."

The gunman moved next to a local pub, and then to the guest house about three miles away. AAP reported he had stolen a car.

The Age newspaper of Melbourne identified the hostages as David and Sally Martin, the guest house owners. The guest was an unidentified Australian.

The old Port Arthur prison colony is on the Tasman Peninsula, connected to Tasmania's mainland by one road on a narrow isthmus. Police closed off the road into Port Arthur, the landing site of some of the toughest convicts England sent into Australian exile in the 1800s.

The prison complex is Tasmania's most popular tourist attraction after the island's parks and wilderness areas. Its neat green lawns surround the ivy-covered remains of a Gothic church and the crumbling sandstone ruins of the old penitentiary, where 30,000 repeat offenders, political prisoners and highly dangerous convicts were sent from 1830-1877.

The penal complex served two functions: a release center for convicts sent from England and a prison for people who committed crimes in the British colony. Before penal system changes in 1852, the convicts were kept in line by the threat and use of lashings and other tortures.

TESTIMONY LASTS MORE THAN 4 HOURS

President Clinton testifies on tape in Whitewater trial

H. Josef Hebert Associated Press

WASHINGTON — From the confines of the White House, President Clinton gave 4½ hours of videotaped testimony Sunday as a defense witness in the criminal trial of his former Whitewater business partners.

After months of seeking to stay in the background of the Whitewater case, the president took center stage as prosecutors and defense lawyers questioned him behind closed doors throughout the afternoon.

After testifying for the defense for about an hour and a brief break, the president faced more than three hours of cross-examination by the prosecution. No details of his testimony could be learned as participants were under a court-imposed gag order.

The White House emphasized Clinton is not a defendant in the case and has not been accused of any criminal wrongdoing.

The taped deposition has been sealed by the court pending its showing to the jury hearing the case in Little Rock, Ark.

2ND ROUND OF TALKS

Gritz re-enters Freeman ranch

Tom Laceky Associated Press

JORDAN, Mont. — The former Green Beret colonel who helped end a 1992 standoff in Ruby Ridge, Idaho, re-entered the remote Freeman compound Sunday for a second round of talks as the FBI kept watch for the 35th day.

James "Bo" Gritz, who spent more than seven hours with the anti-government group Saturday, returned to the 960-acre ranch accompanied by retired Phoenix police officer Jack McLamb.

Gritz had wanted Randy Weaver, whom he persuaded to surrender at Ruby Ridge, to go with him. However, there were indications that Weaver, who accompanied Gritz to Montana, had left town Sunday. He said Saturday the FBI would not let him enter the enclave about 30 miles northwest of Jordan.

Gritz, who gave the first public report of life on the compound Saturday, said the Freeman appear to be running low on food. He also said all of the adult men he saw wore pistols and that there were numerous rifles in their farmhouse.

The Freeman may be persuaded to surrender peacefully, though, he said.

"I think their hope is that they (the FBI) will just go away — and I don't think that will happen," Gritz said.

He saw 16 people in the main house on the Freeman ranch, but was told there were 22 people on the property. The FBI's estimate has been 18.

Clinton's testimony had been sought by defendants James and Susan McDougal, the president's two partners in the Whitewater land deal in the 1980s, to rebut claims by a key prosecution witness about allegedly improper government-secured loans.

The questioning unfolded in the ground floor area of the president's residence in a room once used for top-secret briefings during World War II. Clinton entered at 1:12 p.m. EDT. He emerged at 5:38 p.m., according to his attorneys.

McDougal, his former wife, Susan, and Arkansas Gov. Jim Guy Tucker are charged in a 21-count indictment that accuses them of misusing nearly $3 million in government-backed loans in the mid-1980s. The trial is being conducted in Little Rock, Ark.

Clinton was subpoenaed by the McDougals' lawyers to rebut the testimony of former municipal judge David Hale, the prosecution's key witness. Hale alleged Clinton, then Arkansas governor, was involved in arranging an improper $300,000 loan from Hale's federally backed lending company to Susan McDougal in 1986.

Clinton repeatedly has dismissed Hale's allegations and called them a "bunch of bull." Hale was sentenced to jail in March on separate fraud charges.

While Clinton has said he was anxious to cooperate fully, the taping and lengthy cross-examination prompted an uneasy mood at the White House on a day when the president would have preferred to focus his attention on the visit of Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres, who was staying at Blair House just across the street.

Nevertheless, Clinton sought to portray Sunday as a normal day, beginning with an early-morning jog and later a trip to church with his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton. Even as he was being questioned on Whitewater behind closed doors, the White House issued a Clinton statement on the exporting of Alaska oil and the administration announced new initiatives on cooperation with Israel.

Later Sunday evening, Clinton was to speak to an Israeli policy conference and then meet privately with Peres before flying to Florida early today for a speech on combating illegal drugs.

"He's always said he will cooperate. He has nothing to hide," said White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta when asked about the Whitewater testimony.

The McDougals and their attorney entered the White House grounds shortly after the Clintons returned from church. As defendants in the trial, they were allowed to sit in on the taped testimony, which will later be used in an attempt by the McDougals to rebut prosecution testimony.

U.S. District Judge George Howard Jr., who is presiding over the proceedings from Little Rock, via satellite, has ordered the Clinton testimony sealed for at least 30 days. The satellite transmissions were being scrambled to prevent eavesdropping.

Clinton aides, for days, have expressed concern that while the president is not a target of the trial, the tape would be used by political opponents, with snippets showing up in campaign attack ads.

Haley Barbour, chairperson of the Republican National Committee, said Sunday the GOP considers Whitewater an issue that is fair game.

Bucks dump Dunleavy as coach, retain him as GM

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mike Dunleavy, fired as coach but retained as general manager of the Milwaukee Bucks, says his NBA coaching days aren't over.

"I'll coach again in the NBA. I'm well respected around the league," Dunleavy said after he and team owner Herb Kohl failed to reach agreement on a buyout that would have released him from both jobs.

Still, Dunleavy insisted he'll put his heart into the GM job. He'll receive $6.4 million over the last four years of his contract should he stick around through the 1999-2000 season.

"Right now I'm looking at being the general manager of this team. It will be the first time I've had a chance to do it on a full-time basis," Dunleavy said.

Men's tennis team honored by Big Ten

Two Hawkeye men's tennis players received recognition for the 1996 spring season.

Marcus Ekstrand was named Big Ten Sportsman of the Year by conference coaches. He became the second Iowa player to win the honor in the five years of the award (Klaus Bergstrom won it in 1993).

"It's a really nice honor for Marcus," coach Steve Houghton said. "He had a great year and really deserved the award."

No. 1 singles player Tom Derouin was named to the first team all-Big Ten squad.

"I think the voting was a reflection of not just this year, but the last couple of years that Tom has had," Houghton said. "The coaches really respect what he has done."

Johnson breaks Reynolds' record, but wants more

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — For Michael Johnson, breaking Butch Reynolds' Drake Relays record in the 400 meters was a nice start.

What Johnson really wants, though, is Reynolds' more noteworthy mark — the world record.

Johnson began his outdoor season by winning the 400 at Drake in 44.41 seconds Saturday. It was his slowest opener since 1991, but it still was fast enough to easily beat a talented field and break the meet record of 44.60 that Reynolds set in 1987.

It also was the fastest in the world this year.

Reynolds set the world record of 43.29 in 1988, and Johnson has been chasing that figure during his prominence in the 1990s.

Iowa junior Robert Holst remembers sitting on the bus as a freshman and waiting to find out if the Hawkeyes' 13-15 Big Ten Conference record would qualify them for one of the four spots in the conference tournament.

The record wasn't good enough and, just like every season since 1990, Iowa ended its season prematurely.

The Hawkeyes might be in the same situation this year. After taking three-of-four games last weekend against Purdue at Iowa Field, fifth-place Iowa stands 12-10 in the Big Ten, two games behind 10-8 Indiana in the loss column.

Holst said the Hawkeyes' goal was three wins against Purdue and three at Minnesota in two weeks. Then it's up to Indiana.

"It's gonna have to come down to Minnesota," Iowa junior Eric Martinez said. "We'll hopefully control our own destiny. And we'll just keep playing our asses off like we did (Saturday)."

Iowa swept the Boilermakers Saturday, sweating out a 4-3 victory, then polishing them off with a 6-1 shelling to finish the series.

Friday, Iowa lost 7-4 before coming back with a 6-5 win in Game 2.

Friday's action was the most exciting. Iowa entered the seventh inning with a one-run lead in both games, but let both leads get away.

Purdue's four-run seventh was too much to overcome in Game 1. In Game 2, however, after the Boilermakers tied the game in the top of the inning, Hawkeye Jeremy Heinen slammed the door shut with a one-out solo home run in the bottom of the inning.

"I was getting antsy," Heinen said after watching the first four pitches go by and working to a 3-1 count. "I wanted to get a pitch right where that one was. I really wanted the 3-0 pitch, but had to take it."

"I knew the pitcher was tired and I was looking for another fast ball. He had to throw a strike because he didn't want to put me on base."

Heinen, the Hawkeyes' hottest bat of late, hit a home run earlier in the day, too. In a three-game span Thursday and Friday, he tallied three doubles and three home runs.

"I'm really just swinging for singles and they're going out," he said. Starting pitcher Jeremy Meccage went the distance for the win in Game 2 despite allowing Purdue to tie the game with three runs in the sixth, then again with one run in the ninth.

Coach Duane Banks was a little leery of the bullpen after reliever Nate Freese took the first loss with four earned runs in the seventh inning. Banks allowed Colin Mattiace to pitch the entire game for the win in Game 3 Saturday. Mattiace struck out three batters in the seventh.

Holst nearly closed out Game 4.

Iowa's George Page (493) reacts at the tape as he wins the university men's 100-meter dash at the Drake Relays Saturday.

Drake provides Page's redemption

Chris Snider
The Daily Iowan

The last time George Page checked the Big Ten leader board in the 100-meter dash, he didn't like what he saw.

Page, a senior Hawkeye sprinter from Phoenix, was not at the top of the list. His time of 10.25 seconds was second to Michigan State sprinter Brad Fields' 10.24.

But at the Drake Relays Saturday, Page showed Fields why he was the defending Big Ten champion in the 100, beating Fields by over a tenth of a second and winning the event.

"It was an opportunity to run against the leader of the Big Ten," Page said. "It felt good to run against someone who had a time faster than me and people that were going to push me."

Page's time of 10.42 won the 100 finals Saturday, but he was more pleased with his time of 10.28 in qualifying Friday.

"I had a chance to beat the 10.20 barrier but I backed off," Page said. "The only thing I did real hard was come out of the blocks. I powered through the

Hawks take fourth at nationals

Chris James
The Daily Iowan

There are two words that Iowa men's gymnastics coach Tom Dunn probably doesn't want to hear in the near future. Ohio State.

The Buckeyes, for the fourth time this year, beat out Iowa by less than one point. This time it was for keeps as Ohio State eliminated Iowa from the preliminary round and also went on to win the national title at the 1996 Men's Gymnastics National Championships at Stanford University Friday and Saturday.

Iowa finished fourth as a team, but that was the only thing that didn't go right for the Hawkeyes. Iowa comes home with seven all-Americans and one national champion. Head coach Tom Dunn said he was very proud of his team.

"We had a great meet. There wasn't one negative thing I can say about anything we did. It just seemed that everybody had their best meet of the season on the same day," Dunn said.

The Hawkeyes were eliminated after the preliminaries with a team score of 230.525. The Buckeyes, doing what they've been doing to Iowa all year, edged the Hawkeyes out for third place with a score of 230.875 to qualify for the final day of events. Only the top three teams from the preliminaries advanced to the championship round.

Dunn said it was good for a fellow Big Ten school to win the title, but added that it was disappointing to lose to the Buckeyes by such a small margin.

"We could never quite get over the hump with those guys," Dunn said. "They have a fine team and it shows just how the Big Ten is, but for us to lose by .350s of a point to the eventual national champs is a little heartbreaking."

Robinson answers questions of desire

SAN ANTONIO — So much for softness.

David Robinson, after a week of brushing off questions about whether he's "soft," turned in a hard-edged performance Sunday with 40 points and 21 rebounds as the Spurs beat Phoenix 110-105 to take a 2-0 lead in their first-round playoff series.

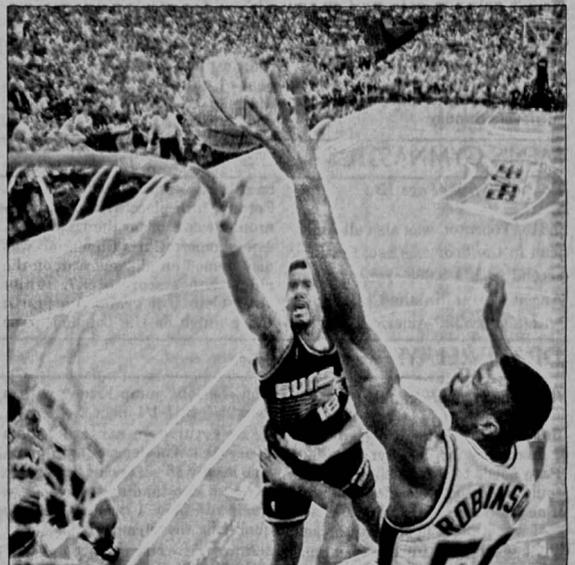

Robinson's point and rebound totals were both career playoff-highs.

"I'm not out to prove anything to anyone. The only thing on my mind is winning games," Robinson said. "We Won. That's the only thing you can really say."

Robinson scored 13 of his points in the final quarter, including a turnaround 8-foot jumper over John Williams with 1:34 remaining. He also grabbed a key defensive rebound with 1:18 left after Wesley Person missed a 3-point attempt that would have tied the game.

The Suns remained a threat until the final seconds of the game.

SOFTBALL

Iowa one game shy of sweep

Chris Snider
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa softball team concluded the road portion of its 1996 regular season, taking two of three games from Michigan State in East Lansing over the weekend.

Iowa split a doubleheader with the Spartans Saturday, winning Game 1, 4-1, and dropping Game 2, 2-0. The Hawkeyes rebounded from the loss to take Sunday's game, 8-4, in 10 innings.

Iowa now stands at 40-13 on the season, 14-5 in the Big Ten. Michigan State falls to 32-16 and 12-9. "I was disappointed how we played in the second game yesterday," Iowa coach Gayle Blevins said Sunday. "Today was a very definite positive. It reminded me a lot of our postseason play last year. We just weren't going to be denied. It was an impressive team victory."

Michigan State got a jump on the Hawkeyes Sunday, pushing a run across in the first inning. But Iowa struck back in the top of the sixth.

With one out, Lea Twigg singled to center field and Karl Knopf doubled, giving the Hawkeyes runners at second and third. The Spartans chose to intentionally walk Debbie Bilbao to load the bases for Christy Hebert.

"It reminded me a lot of our postseason play last year. We just weren't going to be denied. It was an impressive team victory."

Gayle Blevins, Iowa softball coach on Sunday's win over Michigan State

Hebert doubled, driving in Twigg and Knopf, and Brandi Macias followed with a sacrifice fly, giving the Hawkeyes a 3-1 lead.

In the bottom of the seventh, Michigan State came back, scoring two runs with one out off Hawkeyes pitcher Debbie Bilbao. Jenny McMahon came in to retire the final two batters and send the game into extra innings.

The two teams each scored one run in the ninth inning, but Iowa broke the game wide open in the tenth.

With one out, Macias and Tasha Reents each singled and Leticia Castellon advanced them to second and third with a sacrifice bunt. Michigan State intentionally walked Melissa Young to bring Melissa Wielandt, who was 0-for-4 on the day, to the plate.

Wielandt made the Spartans pay for their decision with a two-run single to right field. Twigg followed with a two-run single of her own, putting Iowa up, 8-4.

McMahon continued to shut down the Spartan hitters and Iowa held on for the victory.

"At different times, different people have to step forward for us," Blevins said. "McMahon stepped up for us today and so did Melissa Wielandt."

McMahon picked up the win in the first game as well as the third. Bilbao got the save in Game 1.

Michigan State capitalized on Hawkeye errors for its only win of the series. Iowa made five errors in Game 2, including four in the fourth inning, when the Spartans scored both their runs.

GOLF ROUNDUP

Weather hampers Iowa at King Cobra Invite

Shannon Stevens
The Daily Iowan

About the only thing missing at the King Cobra Kent Intercollegiate Golf Tournament last weekend was a tornado.

The Iowa men's golf team endured one rain delay, two lightning delays and temperatures below 40 degrees as it struggled to a 17th-place tournament finish.

The King Cobra, which featured 19 teams, was won by Miami (Ohio). The Redskins finished with a team score of 878 to hold off second-place Kent State by three strokes. Northwestern was the top finisher from the Big Ten Conference. The Wildcats were third with 886.

Iowa finished with 929.

"This was another typical weekend for Iowa golf. We had a great year last year and this is definitely a bad year."

Terry Anderson, Iowa men's golf coach after last weekend's King Cobra tournament

Iowa coach Terry Anderson said the dismal weather ruined a fine performance for Hawkeye senior Laine Brantner. Brantner was tied for 10th overall after 35 holes, but triple-bogeyed the final hole Friday to drop to 24th.

"It was terrible and we kind of got the bad end of the deal because of our tee-off time," Anderson said. "Laine was playing in almost total darkness. It was raining, blowing and cold."

Brantner said the adverse conditions were more of a mental test than a physical one.

"It was tough with the wind," Brantner said.

"You have to have confidence that if you're aiming left of the green, the wind's going to carry it back."

Brantner ended the tournament in 26th, leading the Hawkeyes with a score of 225.

Chad McCarty (46th) was Iowa's second finisher at 229. Brad Heinrichs (90th), John Rhombert (77th), and Scott Carpenter (95th) also competed.

Saturday the weather improved, but Anderson said it was little consolation.

"The wind was already knocked out of our sails," he said. "We were in 17th place and we weren't going anywhere."

"This was another typical weekend for Iowa golf. We had a great year last year and this is definitely a bad year."

Women's Golf

Jenny Nodland turned in another stellar performance, but it wasn't enough as the Iowa women's golf team stumbled to an eighth-place finish at the Big Ten Championships in Bloomington, Ind., last weekend.

"We could have played better," Iowa coach Diane Thomason said. "But there are some very good teams in this conference. I was pleased with the effort, but we were up against some excellent competition."

Nodland fired an opening-round 77 and finished with a 78 to lead the Hawkeyes. Nodland's score of 240 was good for a seventh-place tie with Purdue's Angela Blythe in the individual competition.

No other Hawkeye shot a round under 83.

Indiana won its second consecutive team title with a three-round score of 945. The Hoosiers were led by individual winner Erika Wicoff, who became the first player in Big Ten history to win three straight conference championships.

Ohio State was a distant second with 967. Minnesota was third at 970. The Hawkeyes finished with 1,012.

"I think if the weather would have cooperated Jenny could have placed higher. But when things aren't going your way, it's tough to catch a break," Thomason said.

Becky Sjöholm (35th), Lynne Carothers (46th), Aimee Maurer (50th), Tanya Shepley (57th) and Candy Schneckloth (59th) were the other Iowa finishers.

Hawkeye Crew impresses in Madison

David Schwartz
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Crew took on a manic-depressive look this weekend, turning in both superb and dismal performances at the Midwest Rowing Championships in Madison, Wis.

Iowa's Varsity-8 squad went into Saturday's event just hoping for a strong showing in the qualifying heats. What it got was a berth in the finals and a second-place overall finish to what Coach Mandi Kowal deemed, "a very strong, very well-supported Wisconsin team."

"This is one of the most rewarding races I've ever been involved in as a coach," Kowal said.

Varsity-8 finished just over five seconds behind the Badgers, posting a time of 6:05.3, including an awesome sprint over the last 300 meters.

The Hawkeyes' first Novice-8 squad missed qualifying for the finals, but did take first in the petite finals. Kowal said she would have liked to see the Novice-8 qualify, but was pleased with the petite finals victory.

Other Crew factions didn't fare quite as well.

The Second-Varsity-8 squad didn't face heat competition, instead moving straight to the finals to compete against three other teams. The Hawkeyes ended up finishing fourth out of four teams.

"I was pretty disappointed," Kowal said. "There were some technical problems at the beginning and I knew they weren't going to have a good race."

One other Iowa finish included a fifth-place effort for the Second-Novice team

WOMEN'S TRACK

Iowa runs at Drake shorthanded

Chris James
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's track team couldn't have the best of both worlds at the Drake Relays in Des Moines over the weekend.

For the first time in a month, the Hawkeyes ran in above-freezing weather but still couldn't overcome nagging injuries to key sprinters. Junior Becky Coleman said it was tough not having the sprinters but added that it was for the best that they received an opportunity to rest.

"Big Ten's are coming up, so from a team standpoint it was probably better this way," Coleman said. "But it was good to finally run in some nice weather and I think the people that did participate gave all they had."

The Hawkeyes' 4x800-meter relay team ran a personal-best time of eight seconds and finished seventh overall. Iowa sophomore Megan Maurer was the top finisher for the Hawkeyes in the field events, coming in 13th in the discus throw. Assistant coach Allan Wirth said this was some of the toughest individual competition Iowa would face all year.

"The best athletes in the state of Iowa and maybe some of the best in the Midwest were there. But I think we held our own, especially with the situation we were in with injuries," Wirth said.

Perhaps the most disappointed was sophomore sprinter Wynsone Cole. Cole was attempting to automatically qualify for NCAA's. But on Wednesday Cole strained a hamstring and couldn't compete in Des Moines.

Wirth said the Cole situation summed up what has been a tough outdoor season for the Iowa burners.

"Just when it seems like they're ready to go, something happens. It's like nobody can catch a break. Hopefully, they can get a few breaks and get healthy by Big Ten's," Wirth said.

IOWA BASEBALL

He gave up just one run, but struggled with walks all afternoon long. Mike Parenteau came in for the save after Holst put a runner on second in the seventh.

"It seemed like it took me 15 pitches every inning before I started throwing good stuff," Holst said. "But I looked at my infielders and said, 'Stay with me. I'm here for you guys and you're here for me."

We'll be alright."

Holst wanted to finish the game, but Banks said Holst's 129 pitch-count was higher than he felt comfortable with.

"As long as they didn't score, we were gonna stick with him as long as we could," Banks said.

Iowa scored five runs in the fourth inning of Game 4. Frese knocked out a two-run homer and Martinez sent a two-run double to the fence in left field.

The Hawkeyes have now won nine-of-12 since splitting a two-game series with Indiana, and they appear to be peaking at the right time. Banks said it's been a while since he's seen a Hawkeye team play its best ball toward the end of the season.

"They just keep getting better. We do something better every day it seems," Banks said. "And I really think that's the make-up of these kids. We have a great group of young people who really want to win."

NHL PLAYOFFS

Veteran-heavy Blues could use week's rest

R.B. Fallstrom
Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — The NHL's oldest team is getting a chance to catch its breath.

The St. Louis Blues — average age just under 31 years — got Sunday off and won't begin their second-round series against Detroit until Thursday or Friday after eliminating the Toronto Maple Leafs from the playoffs Saturday night.

Nobody could have been more relieved than Wayne Gretzky, who was benched for most of the third period of the 2-1 Game 6 victory after running out of gas. He was just another interested observer when Steve Leach scored the game-winner with 7:57 to go.

"I love playing in Maple Leaf Gardens," said the 35-year-old Gretzky. "But I can guarantee you I didn't really want to go back there."

FLORIDA MOVES ON

Panthers thrilled to win first-ever playoff series

John Pacenti
Associated Press

MIAMI — Scott Mellanby almost fainted. Ed Jovanovski fought back tears. Bill Lindsay had a goal that won't soon be forgotten.

The Florida Panthers' season continues this week in the second round of the playoffs after the third-year club eliminated a Boston team that finished the regular season one of the hottest teams in the NHL.

The Bruins said throughout the best-of-7 series that the Panthers were lucky or the officiating was bad.

Now Florida players feel they may have earned some respect after a dramatic 4-3 win Saturday that clinched their first-ever playoff series.

Florida is only the third team since the 1971 expansion to win its first postseason series.

"All these people were waiting for us to fall through," said Jody Hull.

Captain Brian Skrudland added: "To a man in this dressing room, we're 100 percent proud of what we've accomplished so far. We know we've got a long way to go. We keep coming and coming. The other team doesn't know who to check."

"It would be nice to see the other series go long so we can get some rest," said coach Doug MacLean. "But we are pretty healthy right now."

For now, the Panthers are savoring their victory against Boston.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Montreal pounds Rockies

Associated Press

DENVER — Darrin Fletcher and David Segui each hit grand slams and the Montreal Expos set a team record for runs in a game with a 21-9 victory over the Colorado Rockies.

F.P. Santangelo added career bests with four hits and five RBI. Segui finished with a career-best six RBI and Fletcher's five matched his personal high.

The Expos, who had scored 19 runs six times in their 28-year history, broke an 11-inning scoreless streak when they sent 11 hitters to the plate in a seven-run first inning against Bryan Rekar (1-2). Montreal had a season-high 20 hits.

Kirk Rueter (2-1) gave up two runs in six innings with four strikeouts and a walk.

Mets 7, Pirates 5
PITTSBURGH — Bobby Jones (1-1) gave up five runs and seven hits in 8½ innings, and John Franco got two outs for his fourth save.

Rico Brogna's two-run single finished off a three-run sixth inning as the Mets, down 2-0 in the third, rallied against Pittsburgh for the second consecutive game.

Paul Wagner (3-2) gave up five runs and eight hits in 6½ innings and struck out nine.

Cubs 3, Dodgers 0
LOS ANGELES — Frank Castillo (1-2) pitched Chicago's first shutout of the season, outdueling Chan Ho Park with a six-hitter. He struck out five and walked two.

Park (2-1) allowed two runs and three hits in seven innings, including an RBI single by Scott Servais in the sixth. The Cubs nicked Park for an unearned run in the fourth without the benefit of a hit.

Astros 3, Padres 2
SAN DIEGO — Darryl Kile (3-2) held San Diego to five hits in eight innings and struck out a season-high nine. He fanned Tony Gwynn, the first strikeout in 69 plate appearances this season for the NL batting champion.

Todd Jones pitched the ninth for his fourth save.

Derek Bell went 2-for-4 and drove in two runs, including an RBI double in the eighth.

Sean Bergman (2-2) allowed two runs and six hits in seven innings, matching his career high with nine strikeouts.

Giants 10, Marlins 4
SAN FRANCISCO — Matt Williams and Mark Carreon hit back-to-back home runs in the first inning.

The Giants scored five times in the first and added four runs in the second against Chris Hammond (1-4), tagged for nine hits and nine runs in one-plus innings.

San Francisco starter William VanLandingham (1-4) limited the Marlins to one run and two hits over seven innings.

Indians 17, Blue Jays 3
TORONTO — The Cleveland Indians rocked Toronto starter Frank Viola for 10 runs in four innings Sunday en route to a thrashing of the Toronto Blue Jays.

Sandy Alomar hit a three-run homer and Albert Belle hit a solo shot and drove in four runs for the Indians, who reached a season-high in runs to win for the 13th time in 16 games.

Julio Franco went 4-for-6 for Cleveland, which pounded out a season-high 20 hits off four Toronto pitchers.

Viola (0-1), making his first start of the season, gave up 10 runs, nine earned, and 10 hits in his four innings. The 1988 AL Cy Young Award winner pitched in just his fourth major league game since undergoing elbow surgery in May 1994.

Royals 9, Red Sox 7
BOSTON — Pinch hitter Bob Hamelin hit a two-run homer in the ninth for Kansas City, which blew a three-run lead in the eighth.

The three-game sweep by what had been baseball's second-worst team left Boston at 6-19. The Red Sox, who were never more than two games out of first place in winning the AL East last year, are now farther than that from fourth.

The Red Sox trailed 5-1 before getting RBI singles from Mike Stanley and Troy O'Leary in the seventh. It was 6-3 in the eighth when Mo Vaughn's seventh homer tied it and pinch runner Bill Haselman scored on Wil Cordero's fourth hit.

But Heathcliff Slocumb (0-1) blew the save opportunity in the ninth.

Athletics 6, Tigers 3
DETROIT — Scott Brosius had his third two-homer game of the season and Mark McGwire nearly cleared Tiger Stadium's left field roof as Oakland hit five homers.

Brosius hit solo homers in the second and seventh innings. Five of his eight homers this season have come against the Tigers.

McGwire's two-run homer, his second in as many days and the 20th of his career in Detroit, was almost the fourth to go over Tiger Stadium's left field roof. The drive, estimated at 462 feet, landed midway up the roof. It gave Oakland a 5-2 lead.

Cecil Fielder hit his 10th homer, tying Baltimore's Brady Anderson for the AL lead, and Eddie Williams also homered for the Tigers.

Yankees 6, Twins 3
NEW YORK — Paul O'Neill saved a potential home run with a leaping grab against the right-field wall, then homered to break a seventh-inning tie.

O'Neill jumped to the top of the fence in the fourth to grab Paul Molitor's bid for a homer, a drive off Frank Rodriguez (2-2). O'Neill then broke a 3-3 tie with his second homer of the season. O'Neill also singled, raising his league-leading average to .398.

Mariano Rivera (2-0) who started the sixth in relief of Jimmy Key, pitched three hitless innings and struck out five. He is hitless in nine innings.

John Wetteland pitched the ninth for his fourth save in four chances.

Rangers 5, Orioles 4, 10 innings
BALTIMORE — Texas scored four runs in the 10th and then held on to defeat Baltimore for the sixth straight time.

The Rangers took a 5-1 lead into the bottom of the 10th and survived a Baltimore rally ignited by Brady Anderson's 11th homer.

Anderson's homer tied a major-league record from home runs in April, and eclipsed Frank Robinson's club record of 10 homers set in 1969.

Friday, Florida's Gary Sheffield became the fourth player to hit 11 homers in April. The others: Willie Stargell with Pittsburgh (1971), Graig Nettles with the New York Yankees (1974) and Mike Schmidt with Philadelphia (1976).

Gil Heredia (1-2) picked up his first AL victory, and Mike Henneman worked out of a two-on jam in the 10th for his fifth save.

White Sox 10, Angels 1
CHICAGO — Frank Thomas hit a three-run homer, and Ray Durham hit a solo homer and two-run single as Chicago won its sixth straight.

James Baldwin (2-0) got the win despite bruising his right forearm when he was hit by Jorge Fابregas' line drive with two outs in the fourth.

Chuck Finley (3-2) was chased after 2½ innings, his shortest out since last July 20, when Ed Sprague's hit caught him on the heel.

Durham went 3-for-4, hitting his third homer with two outs in the fifth for a 7-1 lead. Thomas hit his eighth homer with two outs in the eighth off Mark Eichhorn.

Chili Davis had three hits for the Angels, who lost their third straight.

Brewers 16, Mariners 9
MILWAUKEE — Fernando Vina had two triples and five RBI as Milwaukee outslugged Jay Buhner and Seattle.

Vina hit a two-run triple off Paul Menhart in the second and added a bases-loaded triple against Mike Jackson in the eighth.

Jose Valentin had four RBI, including a squeeze bunt that broke a sixth-inning tie.

Buhner had two homers, including a grand slam in the fifth, off Steve Sparks. Dan Wilson also homered twice off Sparks, who gave up eight earned runs and five hits in 4 1-3 innings — four homers and a double.

Kevin Seitzer tied it at 9 with an RBI double off Tim Davis (0-1). He then stole his first base this season and scored on Valentin's squeeze single to make it 10-9.

Mike Potts (1-1) got his first major league victory with 2½ innings of one-run relief.

RiverFest: Up close and personal with The Flaming Lips

Jonathan Hansen
The Daily Iowan

Despite sound-system problems and the ever-present threat of rain at RiverFest Saturday, The Flaming Lips successfully took the stage at 9 p.m., playing nearly an hour of music to a wide range of fans on a stage adorned with hundreds of Christmas lights.

After the public-address system blew out early in the afternoon, it was questioned if The Flaming Lips would be able to play. A PA system was acquired, however, and though it was smaller than what the Lips are used to, the band still managed to play old favorite songs ("Unconsciously Screaming" and a cover of Louis Armstrong's "What a Wonderful World") along with hits "Bad Days" and "She Don't Use Jelly."

"When music is done right, it feels as though it's speaking just to you, and everyone in the room feels that it's speaking just to them, which is a great thing," said band member Wayne Coyne.

"Earlier in the afternoon, I spoke to Coyne.

Amy Brandt/The Daily Iowan

Wayne Coyne, of Flaming Lips fame, performs songs from their most recent album, Clouds Taste Metallic, at RiverFest Saturday night.

You've been opening up for a lot of different bands lately, like Tool and Candlebox. It seems there's been some strange mixes between you and bands you've been opening for. Wayne Coyne: Yeah, definitely. Which was good for a while. I've seen some of those bills just get so boring with five bands of the same type of band, so we were always trying to look for kind of weird shows. We've been looking for different ways to play to different types of people. We've played so long, we just want to explore other ways of doing things. An open-mindedness of just music in general is what we're aiming at.

Your audience has been opening up lately...

WC: When you get played on MTV it helps, but that's not our audience; that's the MTV audience that will come and see whatever gets played on MTV. And the minute you're not played on MTV, you're immediately back to what audience you had before. All that stuff is so accidental, I don't know if it's worth pursuing. MTV is horrible. It's about as bad as it gets. What do you think it says when Hootie and the Blowfish is the biggest record in the world? Things are the same as it ever was. The average American listener wants to listen to conservative mainstream rock.

As you get played more on MTV, how do you see yourself stepping into that role?

WC: We're not really stepping into it. MTV and alternative radio do what they want to do whether we want them to play us or not. It's really up to them and they play it for their own reasons. A lot of bands try to cater their music to the MTV audience, but we've gone almost the opposite way. We used to think it was a big deal to be played on the radio and on MTV, but once it happened to us, now we don't really care. But we're glad to get their money. I mean, why not?

Your music seems to have changed quite a bit since the band started.

WC: I guess it would look that way if you put all the records together and heard the different stuff, but it's taken so long; things seem to happen really slowly. One sound slowly mutates to another, and there's always little bits of the old stuff mixed in with the new stuff. After twelve years, you're bound to change. Hopefully you change.

Do you see the band as more at home in the studio or on the stage, live?

WC: I think both is good. We get really bored if we're in the studio too long. After four or five months in the studio, you're sick of it. And then after six months of touring, it gets old, too, like any normal human being in a job that you have to do day in day out the same.

I know someone in Omaha who has started a church based on alien conspiracy theories and The Flaming Lips...

WC: He certainly isn't alone with that sort of thinking. If he takes it seriously, then... A lot of those ideas about UFOs and stuff like that, it didn't originate with us. I could see where people would listen to our music in just one more step in this thinking, but everyone talks about that stuff. I don't really honestly believe in UFOs. I think they're great as a mystery of the mind, but I don't believe that there's guys out there abducting people. And we're not really paranoid at all about the cover-up or conspiracies of the government and all that. From what we can tell, the government seems to be in as much of a state of chaos as the rest of society.

NEW CD INTENDED FOR SILVER SCREEN

Lyric-conscious band strays from norm of mindless pop

Jonathan Hansen
The Daily Iowan

MK Ultra, a San Francisco-based pop/rock quartet, will be playing tonight at Gabe's with local opener Stubby.

MK Ultra's most recent release, Original Motion Picture Soundtrack, has a unique and unfortunately tragic background. The band was asked to write a movie soundtrack for a film being done by friend and director Tommy Borgnine. Working from the script, MK Ultra composed 14 songs to accompany the film. The film would never reach completion, however, due to uncanny misfortune. "About a month before (Borgnine) was finished filming, his wife died in a car accident — and in the script the main character's girlfriend dies in a car accident. So he was getting a little loopy, to say the least. He kind of had a breakdown, so he took what was left of the film and moved up to Mendocino (California) and went into hiding. So the film was never finished, never made. The only relic from this is the CD," explained guitarist/vocalist John Vanderslice.

Film was an important medium to Vanderslice even before asked to compose a soundtrack.

"When I was younger I was obsessed with (director) Ingmar Bergman, and he always said that he wished he was a composer instead of a filmmaker, in that they share a lot of the same kind of structural challenges. I totally agree with that. When I think about making stuff I think about making movies, not making records," said Vanderslice.

Original Motion Picture Soundtrack features songs that have melodic appeal, yet resist falling into predictable verse-chorus-verse patterns.

"I think that lyrics, that's the beginning point for me. A lot of people would disagree with that, but it's the reason that it's being made," said Vanderslice.

Original Motion Picture Soundtrack is MK Ultra's second release. Both albums were self-produced by the band, and the quartet is now on a tour booked by themselves.

"I don't mind going door-to-door, town-to-town and playing sets in front of twenty people or whatever, and then selling CDs off the stage. I mean, that's like the golden days," said Vanderslice.

After only being together for two years, MK Ultra is clearly determined to get on the road and make things happen. The band considers its experience now at least as important as the members' various literary educations.

"We wanted to just get out there, we wanted to learn to book our own tour, we wanted to learn every aspect of it. If we ever get picked up, I'm sure we're going to be compromised severely, but at least we know what's going on and how we're being compromised, how we're getting screwed, and that's better than not knowing," said Vanderslice.

Publicity photo

MK Ultra, a band whose lyrics take center stage, will play at Gabe's tonight. The incorporation of literary talent combined with creative musicality pervades their work.

DAMON WAYANS MISSES MARK

'Celtic Pride' falls short with a brick

Nathan Groepper
The Daily Iowan

The title is misleading. More a collection of blatant advertisements than an actual film, "Celtic Pride" does not have much to be proud about. The film lifts the least appealing aspects from sports comedies, including foul humor and a formulaic plotline, to entirely miserable results.

"Celtic Pride" will not only be a disappointment for basketball fans, others will find it insulting and nearly unwatchable.

Mike O'Hara (Daniel Stern) and Jimmy Flaherty (Dan Aykroyd) are two pathetic Boston Celtic followers who would do anything to see their home team win the NBA championship. O'Hara spends his days as an elementary-school gym teacher while working out his marriage frustrations by yelling, "I am a Boston Celtics fan."

Flaherty, on the other hand, is a plumber with an endless supply of tasteless "poop" jokes. When Game 6 of the championship ends

"Celtic Pride" is a huge missed opportunity. A lampooning of dedicated, fanatical sports fans is long overdue, and handled correctly, this film could have worked.

ence much to laugh or cheer about.

The film continues its downward spiral with the duo's kidnapping of Scott while he is celebrating the victory at a local nightclub.

After a rough night of heavy drinking, O'Hara and Flaherty waken to discover they have captured, bound with duct tape and sleeping on their bed, the power to alter the Celtics' chances of attaining the championship. "Celtic Pride" descends into oblivion as the trio trade horribly cliché banter and travel on a predictable, unfunny road trip. The film's final third is so poorly crafted that the movie becomes a chore to finish.

One of the film's instantly recognizable problems is Damon Wayans is not funny. In "Celtic Pride," sequences including the drinking contest allow him to return his original, annoying style of humor, which works to enhance the loathsome performances of Aykroyd and Stern.

What is worse, Wayans looks anything but athletic in his role as NBA's greatest player as he slowly trudges down the floor. As the film wraps up, Wayans' sluggish caricature of an athlete looks less like a burgeoning NBA superstar and more like a deplorable comedian.

"Celtic Pride" is a huge missed opportunity. A lampooning of dedicated, fanatical sports fans is long overdue, and handled correctly, this film could have worked.

Whether the problems stem from the inexperience of first-time director Tom deCerchio or the poor performances supplied by Wayans, Stern and Aykroyd, all involved with "Celtic Pride" should be embarrassed.

FILM REVIEW

Celtic Pride
No stars

Director Tom deCerchio
Screenwriter Judd Apatow
Starring Damon Wayans
Daniel Stern
Dan Aykroyd

with a Celtic defeat, the hapless duo decides to wage war on Lewis Scott (Damon Wayans), the superstar player for the opposing Utah Jazz.

While the film is essentially an NBA promotion, Stern and Aykroyd present dedicated sports fans as a bunch of raving lunatics. With buffoonish, out-of-style wardrobes, appalling racist commentary and some truly odd sexual fantasy sequences, Stern and Aykroyd seem more concerned with looking and acting funny than with building any kind of actual humor.

For a sports film, these wacky portrayals, incorporated with the very unfunny issue of celebrity stalking, do not leave the audi-
