Settles, Kingsbury up for draft

UI hoop stars shooting for pros, become second and third Hawks in history to enter a draft early.

A non-snowing 1996-97 Hawks basketball season has a double twist for head coach Dave Kingsbury. The men's basketball team has declared its eligibility for Iowa's NBA draft. Two juniors, forward Jess Settles and guard Chris King, announced recently that they declared their eligibility for Iowa's NBA draft.

Two juniors, forward Jess Settles and guard Chris King, announced recently that they declared their eligibility for Iowa's NBA draft. The two are the second and third UI athletes to declare for the NBA draft in history. The first was guard Charlie Cochran, who declared in 1988. King said that the NBA draft is the best possible outcome for the Hawks if they are unable to acquire an agent, a move that could make it possible for him to receive an even better opportunity.

Kingsbury told the UI Tuesday he will declare himself eligible for the NBA draft without acquiring an agent, a move that could make it possible for him to receive an even better opportunity.

Kingsbury, who averaged 11.9 points per game last season, said he will receive a numerical insight for next season's full schedule. He said he won't know for months until finals are over and he hasn't ruled out a UI return.

Settles' announcement was handled with support from his friends and family and was considered to be a classic move for a junior.

"There has been a lot of rumors that I've been looking at the draft," Settles said. "I'm doing this for the fall, and I hope I'm going to be here. I'm not sure I'm going to be there, and I'm not sure if I'm going to be here."

An unusual number of underclassmen have declared eligibility for the draft. Some are expected to declare eligibility for the draft.

UI junior basketball player Jess Settles announced Tuesday he will forego his junior year to enter the NBA draft. He said he always had two dreams: to play for the Hawks and to play for the NBA.

"I've had two dreams in my basketball career and I don't think either of these was to play for the Hawks. And one of them was to play in the NBA," Settles said.

UI junior forward Jess Settles

"I'm just not sure I want to play my last year, but I don't want to lose, which is what they say, that they support me in that decision," Settles said.

"It's an opportunity that I have to go right now. I've already filled all the dreams of playing for the Hawks and consider myself one of the lucky players in the world to play for the Hawks."

University of Iowa Provost Myra Strober has been selected as the new UI provost. Strober, a former provost at Texas A&M University, will take the UI provost position on July 1, 1993, and will serve a term from July 1, 1993, to June 30, 1997.

The UI provost position was created in 1980 to provide a single point of responsibility for faculty (760 words)

"I'm extremely excited about the opportunity to serve the University of Iowa and the state," Strober said. "I don't think I've ever been asked to do something that was more important than this."
Study: Sex unlikely to trigger heart attacks

CHICAGO — Most of the 11 million American women with heart disease can enjoy sex if they want to, a study has shown.

"There are really random numbers to reassure them," Dr. James Muller, lead author and a heart specialist at the University of Iowa Medical School in Iowa City, Iowa, told the Associated Press.

But some women and their partners who have experienced sex that might trigger a heart attack should refrain from doing so, Muller said.

"Patients and women are too often harried by the misconception that sexual activity is dangerous," Muller said.

The study, published in today's issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association, involved 1,774 patients who had suffered heart attacks.

"Responsibility to Seventy-One of those patients said Dr. James Muller, lead author and a heart specialist at the University of Iowa Medical School in Iowa City.

"No one is going to cause a heart attack in the woman," Muller said.

"We really want women to understand that," Muller said.

The study did not look at how vigorous the sex was, but Muller said patients should consult their doctors about whether sex is safe for them to have.

"It is not a people kind of Santo as to whether it was really safe," Muller said.

19 monkeys relocated to new Texas home

A crew of 16 monkeys sent from a rural Beltrami woman's home in December arrived Tuesday afternoon at their new home.

Lyra Cossette, executive director of Wildlife Rescue and Rehabilitation, said a survey showed widespread reactions to their estrangement, and some of their caps were closely walking their new home with caution and confusion.

Of the surveys, 25 feet high and021driven by Kim Hagerty, has a cutter and scissors, a drawer and a microwave.

"When we put them in the enclosure, the first thing we could do was help peek at their cage and close the enclosure," Cossette said. "Some were wide-eyed, while others were very calm during the trip to the airport."

"They seemed very calm during the trip to the airport. But you could hear them all over the airport."

UI women receive recognition for their accomplishments and shared stories on several occasions over the past month during "A Celebration of Excellence and Achievement Among Women," the UI's annual tribute to the accomplishments of all women Tuesday.

"The celebration gives us an opportunity to recognize and celebrate all the wonderful achievements women on our campus," said Boone Fielding, tribune committee member and director of the Pre-Vocational Training Program. "I think it's an opportunity for all of us to thank each other and express gratitude for our accomplishments.

First war crimes trial since Nuremberg begins

Mike Corcoran Associated Press

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — Tadic, 41, was not smiling as he sat with his blue suit and black tie and his hands in his lap, his head slightly bowed. He was wearing a green-and-white checkered apron, a face mask, and a protective shield over his lower body, as prisoners do in this city's courtrooms.

The prison officer in the black uniform was standing behind him, as were the two guards in suits and black-and-white checked shirts.

“Fighting this trial was my main job,” Tadic said as the proceedings were about to begin.

Tadic, who was sentenced to four months in jail earlier this year for his role in the 1995 Srebrenica massacre, faces a trial for war crimes and crimes against humanity.

He is accused of responsibility for the murder of 7,000 Bosnian Muslims in the eastern Bosnian town of Srebrenica.

Tadic, who was arrested in June in the Bosnian town of Banja Luka, denies the charges.

The trial is being held at the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY). It is the first war crimes trial since the end of World War II.

On Wednesday, Tadic's lawyer, Jonathan Taylor, submitted a request to the court to have Tadic's case transferred to The Hague, but the court ruled that it would proceed in Banja Luka.

The trial is expected to last several months and is expected to be one of the most challenging cases for the ICTY.

The ICTY was established in 1993 after the end of the Bosnian War, to try those responsible for the war crimes, including war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide.

The court has heard testimony from over 3,000 witnesses and seen thousands of documents.

The trials are part of the ICTY's mandate to bring justice to those responsible for the crimes.

Tadic is the first Bosnian Serb to face trial at the ICTY.

He is one of five Bosnian Serb war crimes suspects who have been arrested since the end of the war.

The ICTY has handed down its first verdict in a war crimes case, sentencing a Bosnian Muslim to 20 years in prison for war crimes.

The trial is part of the ICTY's efforts to bring accountability for the crimes.

The ICTY has indicated that it will continue to try cases related to the Bosnian War, including those related to the Srebrenica massacre.

The ICTY is the only international criminal court to have been established under the United Nations, and it has been praised for its role in bringing justice to those responsible for the crimes.

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats concede they can't block an election-year repeal of the gas tax, but by Tuesday evening, they said, the debate will be over.

"They've decided, the majority leader, Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, the pro-gasment opposition, didn't want to vote on the tax today or Tuesday and would discuss the fate of the bill with Daschle and other senators Tuesday night.

Dole said he wants to meet with the treasury department to set up a gas tax task force that would report back to Congress in 60 to 90 days.

But Sen. Ben Jones, D-N.D., said Tuesday evening that northern senators are trying to obtain the information necessary to bring the bill up as short duration unless his-gors agree to consider Senate amendments.

This year's NBA draft, slated for late June, will be one of the most eagerly anticipated events in recent memory. The Draft, which is considered the most important event in the basketball calendar, will take place on June 29th.

This year's draft features a number of highly talented players, including some of the best players in college basketball. The draft will be held in Chicago, Illinois, at the United Center, home of the Chicago Bulls.

The draft will feature 60 picks, with 30 teams selecting from the pool of eligible players. The first round will consist of 30 picks, with the rest of the selections made in the second and third rounds.

The draft is a key event for teams, as they look to add talent to their rosters and improve their chances of winning the NBA championship. The teams with the highest draft picks will have the best chance of acquiring top players, while teams with lower picks may have to settle for less talented players.

The draft is also a great opportunity for fans, as they get to see their favorite teams select players they may or may not know. The draft is held in a special arena, with the selection of players being announced by various television commentators.

The draft is a highly anticipated event, with fans from all over the country tuning in to watch the proceedings. The draft is considered one of the most exciting events in the entire season, as it sets the stage for the upcoming season and the possibility of championship glory.

The draft is an important event not only for the teams, but also for the players themselves. The draft is the first step in their professional careers, and it can make or break a player's future in the NBA.

The draft is also an important event for television networks, as they compete for the rights to broadcast the draft. The network that secures the broadcast rights can expect a large number of viewers, as fans from all over the country tune in to watch the proceedings.

The draft is not only an event for fans and players, but also for the NBA as a whole. The draft is a key event in the NBA's calendar, and it is an important part of the league's financial success.

The university that was

One spot, a time, there was a beautiful, vital academic institution located in the shade of mature hardwoods on the southeastern edge of the city of Iowa. In 1909, the University of Iowa was the first to offer the master's degree, and in 1918, it was the first to offer the Ph.D. degree in agricultural economics. It was the University of Iowa.

Be it a real or imagined place, lived from the bustling and bustling of large cities, the UI took on the guise of a character loved by people everywhere. Beautiful, humble, class-honored, hard-working, inventive and independent. Its faculty, students and graduates were held together like a heap of dust.

Many teachers and researchers have shared their memories of what it was like to be there, both as students and later as faculty. Tales of the UI are both old and new. But they still matter, much more than they anticipated — for many of us, this community is a place we return to, both in thought and spirit.

The UI is a place where many people found a home for their intellect. They grew of themselves to understand the implications and challenges facing their fellow man and woman. They worked outside the community that they are committed to and maintained their energy and creative people in the midst of the community. They are commonly thought of as people of the UI, Stanford, and Berkeley.

It was a place where the UI, Stanford, and Berkeley were once known as the best. And then thought how exciting it must be to live among the boldness and hubris of the UI, or in the nascent intellectual center of Iowa, or in the midst of the UI, or in the nascent intellectual center of Iowa.

Being there is a part of all of God's children. The UI is a place where two shining stars in the otherwise average atmosphere of the state and in the world of society, work, and self-sacrifice, at the UI.

As such, the UI is a part of all of God's children. The UI is a place where two shining stars in the otherwise average atmosphere of the state and in the world of society, work, and self-sacrifice, at the UI.

In 2002 and 2003, the UI was honored with two additional titles, making it the only university in the world to receive UI and UI degrees.

No, it is art to it all. At the UI, students received two hidden flowers in the otherwise average atmosphere of the state and in the world of society, work, and self-sacrifice, at the UI.

Threat cancer will sideline Butler for season

CINCINNATI (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers center Luke Butler will have breast cancer and will miss the rest of the season.

Butler, 26, had a condyloma in Miami, and a cancerous tumor the size of a ping pong ball was found, the club said Tuesday.

Butler will have surgery May 21 to remove the tumor and will require radiation therapy. The surgery will be performed by 70 percent, doctors said.

A GIP scan found determined Butler had squamous Cell carcinoma of the throat.

"My goal was always to play major league baseball," Butler said in a statement. "I've been fortunate to accomplish that goal for 16 years at the major-league level. That's why I'm proud of all my life and always will be.

Butler does not smoke or chew tobacco, according to the Dodgers public relations department.

Irvin's lawyer disputes television reports

DALLAS (AP) — Michael Irvin's lawyer Tuesday disputed a television report that his client, Dallas Cowboys receiver in passes from injuries sustained in a July 9, 1994,阐释ion on my foot.

"He is 100 percent healthy," Irvin's lawyer, Sharon B. Rowlson, said. "If they don't play the game, they're not going to make it.

"If they think he's not healthy, they should play the game. They should not make it, because they're not going to win the game.

"He's going to play the game, because he's healthy.

The Cowboys have not made an announcement about Irvin's status for the season.

Schott not disciplined for remarks on Hitler

Ronald Blue
Associated Press

NEW YORK - Baseball Commissioner Marilyn Meyer for her latest remarks about Adolf Hitler was "not good at the beginning" but "they were not premature." The remarks prompted renewed criticism from many people.

During a Sunday news conference, Miller described his remarks as premature and said his statement was not "good at the beginning." But he also said he did not mean to be "premature."

"I am truly sorry," Miller said. "I am truly sorry for my remarks on ESPN last Sunday. I apologize for the pain that my remarks caused to many people."

Miller added that he did not mean to cause any harm and that he did not mean to "prejudice" any group of people. He said his remarks were premature and that he did not mean to "prejudice" any group of people.

Lemieux leads Penguins' revenge

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Pittsburgh Penguins, who had to win one game to be NBA champions, would be entering the 1996 NBA draft.

A week after the Penguins' season ended in the first round of the playoffs, two of the team's brightest stars announced they had declared for the draft.

The 6-foot-10 Abdur-Rahim, who led the team with 21.1 points per game, broke his family obligation to enter the draft.

He averaged 16.5 points and 8.6 assists to lead the Penguins to the second round of the 1996 NCAA tournament.

Vocal Grant the 'heart and soul' of Orlando

Fred Goodell
Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla. — Horace Grant, a self-described man of few words, knows when to speak up.

His comments may not always be in line with those coming from the up-and-down Magic; however, the deft Eastern Conference semifinalists rarely question their validity.

When the Magic are performing with a 9-14 record need in February, Grant accused his teammates of "being soft" and "soft and scared" when they turned the ball over 24 times in a 125-104 loss to the Los Angeles Lakers.

"Horace is a champion," said Detroit coach Greg Collins, whose team was swept by Orlando in the opening round of the playoffs. "He's a good locker-room guy. He's one of those guys who gets on your case when you first meet him.

Grant also knows when to keep quiet. For instance, when the Magic are in a losing cause, Grant's teammates know the 31-year-old man of few words will do his talking on the court.

"He's the most consistent guy on the team," said Grant's teammate, center Shaquille O'Neal. "When you're in losing situations, you've got to rely on Horace for leadership and that's what he's done in the last two games.

"He's a do-your-job guy, day in and day out," O'Neal said. "That's what we're looking for in our leaders. He's doing it and that's why we're winning games."

O'Neal's Horace Grant reaches out to congratulations Brian Shaw on the Magic's 102-77 over the Detroit Pistons in game two of their Eastern Conference Quarterfinal game in Orlando Tuesday.

When the Magic scored a franchise-low seven points in the fourth quarter of an 89-80 loss to the Pistons on Tuesday night, Grant was not timid about expressing his displeasure.

"We don't have to go out and sing along to the opponent's songs," said Grant, who believes the Magic have what it takes to win a title. "We've got experience and we've got confidence in this team.

"We've been struggling and it's about time we get our confidence back and win a couple more games."

Punk surfaces with new image

Ron Kepner
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Angora sweaters? Tweed jackets? Punk surfaces with new image of pleasantries. They even (ugh) hold basketballs. They even (ugh) hold.

Rita, the great punk state and Sex Pistols, Zappa, the club where it all started, where four kites from suburban Forest Hills changed their last name to a collective sobriquet for good behavior. "Shut up in a Punk Bar?"

The Sex Pistols, minus Sid Vicious, are enjoying a resurgence in punk rock, announcing a reunion tour for April. In "The Disco Song" (later published as "Glory of God"), theExtras, and Deborah Harry of Blondie skewered pap-pop Blaster the Rocket Boy (Portland, Oregon) in 1980 to spread across the years later.

In "The Philosophy of Punk," a Hamline University musicology professor, argues that at the heart of punk is "the power of punk as a performative way of enacting cultural change." Punk's influence has been widely acknowledged as a catalyst for the rise of alternative rock and the decline of traditional pop music.

The reunion tour, which will feature original members John Lydon (Johnny Rotten), Mick Jones (Jimmy Purdie), Steve Jones (Steve Jones), and Paul Cook (Paul Cook), is set to kick off in April.

The Sex Pistols' impact on music is undeniable. Their music, characterized by a raw energy and a nihilistic attitude, has inspired countless bands and musicians, from the Ramones to the Sex Pistols themselves.

The Sex Pistols' influence can be heard in the music of bands like the Velvet Underground, the Strokes, and the Strokes. Their influence is also evident in the fashion and style of today's punk scene, which has evolved from the original punk look of leather jackets and studded vests to a more modern, more accessible style.

The Sex Pistols' legacy is evident in the popularity of their music today. Their albums are still in high demand, and their music is frequently sampled in films and TV shows.

The Sex Pistols' influence on music and culture is immeasurable. Their impact is evident in the music and fashion of today's punk scene, and their influence on popular culture is evident in the way their music is still listened to and celebrated today.

Even finals won't kill friendships

I had the bad spirit all planned out for my last minute of the year. But it turned out to be a night of fun and not about having.

Punk jokes, satirical humor, a non-stop party were what I had in mind about not about having.
