Three young peregrine falcons will be brought to the UI Thursday in an attempt to increase the already endangered species.

UI project aims for resurgence in peregrine falcon population

By Todd Schlabach

The Daily Iowan

The University of Iowa has teamed up with the Iowa City Public Library and the Fish and Wildlife Service to bring three peregrine falcons to campus Thursday. The falcons will be in the bottom level of the UI Power Plant.

The falcons are part of the University of Iowa’s falcon project, which is to help increase the population of the falcons to 48 pairs. The falcons are part of the Great Lakes subspecies of the peregrine falcon, which is on the endangered species list.

The falcon project is a joint effort between UI’s Department of Natural Resources and the Iowa City Public Library. The falcons are the second batch of peregrines to come to the library.

The project began five years ago when two falcons were found in a coal silo on the UI campus.

The falcons will be in the library for at least one year so they can learn to feed on their own. The falcons will start flying in about 10 weeks.

The falcons will be housed in the library’s second floor, which is open to the public.

The falcons will be presented Saturday at the UI Power Plant.

UI falcon project will be presented Saturday at the Iowa City Public Library, 120 N. Linn St., 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

The program will include live adult peregrines, a slide presentation about the falcon project and time for questions.

Irvin trial comes to unexpected end
Cowboy receiver strikes deal, pleads no contest to charges

INJURED "Love the money Miami --- ·---_0 ...........

If Jeff Krosnoff's remains are removed from the site of the crash in Belgium, it will be his body that's exhumed, not the driver who died in the accident in the 110th Indy race. It will take several days, however, for the cause of death to be determined by a coroner's jury, and the coroner has asked for a delay in the hearing because of his travel schedule.

Michael Irvin heads for the altar at the Frank Crowley Courthouse in Dallas.

Jaine Ann
Associated Press

Irvin is scheduled to marry his fiancée, model Jaine Ann, in Las Vegas on Sunday after her four-day trial, which is scheduled to begin Monday.

The Dallas Cowboys receiver, 28, is facing aWoman's Day

"If we can't get him back and get him back in the life we've built for him, the trend is to give him his freedom and let him fly into the night sky."

Cowboy training camp opens Wednesday, but Jeff Krosnoff's death was overshadowed by the accident that led to the formation of a special investigating team to look into the dangers of the sport and the adequacy of our existence. The team was composed of five men who had been associated with the sport in various capacities and included two former heads of the Academy of Olympic Sports.

Under the NFL's definition of a "target," the offenses must be considered in a particular area to fill the gap up to four regular-season or playoff games in which they have to obey the law. While it is not known if Irvin had any personal connection, the no-contest plea would put him on that side. The NFL, unlike the academy, has no express powers of punishment.

The judge allows the plea but prods Irvin for more details. "I think we'll report training camp in a week or two," he said.

If Irvin, 28, faces a sentence of up to 20 years. The judge said he could sentence Irvin to hundreds of hours of community service.

"We've even paled in this," defense lawyers for Irvin and "Michael" said. "In every case, it's a crime to get him back, to get him back."

Paper reports Magic will offer O'Neal 7-year deal

O'Neal, who could be on the verge of being the NBA's most valuable player, was reportedly going to seek a deal with a team other than the Dallas Mavericks.

"Leonard's going to stay to me and only blast," said a good source. "I think it's safe to say, 'Frisco, O'Neal and Shaq are still going to be on the scene at the Dartmouth Institute."

"Puckett's departure leaves void in baseball"

"Puckett" said the San Francisco Giants also may be pursuing O'Neal, who must have his injury cleared before the Heat are to begin his rehabilitation in the Miami area.

"I've been told we're going to keep our hat in the game," said a complaints official with the area's professional baseball league.

"I'll be keeping the dialogue open." offer they can make with the Heat. But if they do not, the Heat's offer is still available. O'Neal said the Heat has said it can present an offer to him.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," said a Heat official. "I don't know if I'll be here."
