DCI releases shooting details

Mike Wafer

The Daily Iowan

In the aftermath of the shooting, the Iowa Department of Criminal Investigations (DCI) is slowly piecing the puzzle together. The DCI released a statement Tuesday containing information regarding the incident. Following is the report on the incident as released by the DCI:

Officer Troy Balley of the Iowa City Police Department, was on foot and in plain clothes patrolling a recent rash of Iowa City burglaries. The men in Tuesday's shooting details was a suspected burglary in progress and proceeded to respond. The officer then contacted another officer to call for backup when he saw a possible burglary in progress and proceeded to respond. The officer then contacted another officer to call for backup when he saw a possible burglary in progress and proceeded to respond.

According to the principles stated in the Iowa City Police Department's guidelines, the officer had reasonable cause to believe that a crime was being committed. He suspected a possible burglary in progress and proceeded to respond. The officer then called for backup.

A woman who seemed to be dancing when she entered his office, Nicknamed "Ann," by people who know her, Des Moines Register writer Jami Blotcher was talking to his editor when U.S. Attorney General John Ashcroft was discussing his plans for the future.

The editor was just a few feet away from Blotcher, who once worked as a reporter for the Des Moines Register.

Ashcroft said the victims were not remembered, and the editor was surprised.

“Ani,” came into his office. Nicknamed "Toto" worked closely with the Indonesian victims. The editor was excited to be here, the editor said.

“Thank you for your work,” the editor said.

Students laud ease, safety of new photo IDs

Karen Sudnowski

UI students have until Nov. 1 to obtain their new student IDs.

"Pictures are a good idea," said UI senior Jeff Sojka under whose name a new student ID is required to obtain one of the new photo IDs by Wednesday afternoon in the Union.

"Pictures are a good idea ... I'm glad that I don't have to show two forms of ID at all these bookstores," said UI sophomore Aprille Clarke.

Future applications for the new student ID, with the exception at university-wedding registration machines and laundry machines and door access to residence halls, will be required. Although the new card holds all the information one now has on the old identification card, students have mixed feelings about the addition of a photo to the card.

"I haven't seen anyone who has a good picture yet, so I'm kind of afraid," said UI sophomore Stephanie Drake.

Students are encouraged to replace their "gold cards" with the new new card, no one has been printed on a card.

UI junior Dan Feenstra said the magnetic strip on the ID card will prevent false names being issued on the days. He said, "A friend of mine lost his card last week, and he was able to get it back in a day without his knowl of the address."

The new student ID cards are available for $25 on the side of the river Lucas-Dodge Center, 8 a.m. to noon, Saturday and 10 a.m. to noon, Sunday, Sept. 28, and will be available on a weekly basis.

"Students have until Nov. 1 to get their new student IDs." 2A - Sept. 28, 1986

Group seeks to recover plane flown by Kinnick

Mike Walter

The Daily Iowan

A proposed project to retrieve and restore the S-38, a plane flown by Heisman Trophy-winner Nile Kinnick, has gained attention in the sportspages of newspapers across the country.

However, the project, which would cost an estimated $1.8 million, still needs a major donor.

A group led by Al Couppee, a member of Kinnick's 1939 team, recently purchased the plane in a small, obscure auction in Europe on eBay.

“The plane is part of our university lore,” he said. “It’s part of the things that have been bestowed upon us still in the embryonic stages,” he said. “There’s a lot of untapped questions.”

Kinnick, a star athlete at Iowa, used the plane for hunting and fishing. A member of the Navy reserve during World War II.

“If we can get up on top of the southeast corner of Kinnick Stadium looking like it’s going to World War II, we haven’t been thought about. Nobody even knows what kind of a project this is. We will have to speak with the Navy about it,” he said.

Couppee has also sent out letters requesting assistance from the U.S. Navy to help recovery the plane, but so far, no one has responded.

“We haven’t heard from the Navy yet,” he said. “If we don’t hear back from the Navy, we’ll have to call it off.”

Despite the excitement surrounding the idea, UI Men’s Athletic Director Rob Reinhart said the project has not been thought about in the university level.

“Some of the things that have been bestowed upon us are still in the embryonic stages,” he said. “There’s a lot of untapped questions.”

Yang had said about $28,000 through private donations, but that it doesn’t come close to covering what he estimates to be a $1.8 million project.

Couppee said the group has received letters from other internet providers, but that amount doesn’t come close to covering what he estimates to be a $1.8 million project.

The people who are alive feel terribly lost. We're going to get by this crisis in our country, but we have to get by it in a way that everyone is safe. —President George W. Bush

Mud wrestling for the presidency

Last Friday night, as Iowa City's first lady, Suzanne Biggs, raised her hand to cast her vote for Kaufman's nephew, she was thinking for the first time in her life about her future. She had raised a family and gone on to have a successful career as a public service employee. But now, as she stood at the podium, she realized that the future of the state and nation was at stake. She knew that if she didn't vote for Kaufman, she could lose her job.

ICPD needs to say something

Last month, after 30 years of service, Bob Keller, the chief prosecutor in the state, went on leave. His retirement had been planned for many years, but the news was still a shock to the community.

Who?

The past few weeks have been filled with an array of fascinating individuals. From the charismatic and influential to the enigmatic and mysterious, each person has left their mark on the world in their own unique way.

"We're not forgetful of the thousands of people who have been affected by hurricanes," Wheeler said.

A hurricane watch was posted for the U.S. coast from north Florida to North Carolina, where the storm was forecast to pass by late Monday, with sustained winds of 85 mph.

"We're not forgetful of the thousands of people who have been affected by hurricanes," Wheeler said.

"It could be anywhere from Florida to North Carolina at this point," meteorologist Martin Nelson said. This is a forecast of gross errors in terms of one · fifth.

A hurricane watch was posted for the Bahamas from Abaco Island inland northwest — including the islands of Nassa and Freeport. A tropical storm warning was in effect for the central Bahamas from Abaco Island to Cat Island.

"Conditions will gradually deteriorate," Nelson said. "We're showing a forecast of gross errors in terms of one · fifth.

Buchenholz residents said they expected the hurricane's eye to pass over Abaco and Grand Bahama Bay. But by Monday evening, no hurricane had begun, meteorologist Jay Butler said.

"We are really holding out until we know the warning," he said. "We need to do a little bit more prep."

Butler added that residents were doing whatever they could to get ready. Some were on the five-minute's drive.

Some residents of the tiny town of Acklins Island, about 50 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral, in central Florida, were worried about the storm.

"We're not forgetful of the thousands of people who have been affected by hurricanes," Wheeler said.

Suburban Dutch city goes into drug business

Members of the Amsterdam Chamber of Commerce and the city hall decided Tuesday to open a small, official marijuana shop in the city.

"The drugs trade does exist and it's unbearable, I'm afraid," said Peter Vermeulen, city manager. "We have to fight it by opening a small shop and not by regulations that'll take you "out of this society," he added.

Vermeulen said the Chamber, with about 360 members, "does not approve of such an activity" but will support it as a "first step toward solving the problem in a logical way." He said he had asked the city hall to open the shop now.

The idea of a police-run honey trap shop is based on a similar experiment in the city of Amsterdam last year.

Police said Amsterdam opted to take control of the marijuana trade with a City Hall-sponsored marijuana shop.

Kevorkian helps cancer patient die in 39th suicide

Associated Press

DETROIT - A physician who helped a cancer patient to die against the wishes of his family has been charged with murder.

Dr. Jack Kevorkian helped Michigan resident James Earl Ray, 72, to die on Aug. 11, the Detroit Free Press reported Tuesday.

Kevorkian, 58, is a retired Detroit area pathologist who became a controversial figure when he helped several terminally ill patients die after 1990.

Kevorkian's lawyer, Joseph Granda, said his client was not available for comment Tuesday.

"I wasn't attempting to inaugurate a new right to die," Kevorkian told the Free Press.

Kevorkian's trial, which is expected to last about six months, is to begin Oct. 15.

Kevorkian, who is black, was a former pathologist at three Michigan hospitals.

Last week, Kevorkian was convicted of murder in a different case for helping a woman die.

On Tuesday, the Michigan Court of Appeals granted Kevorkian's request to appeal the conviction.

NEW YORK - Muriel Wieder, 70, an accomplished New York City lawyer, committed suicide Wednesday, Sept. 5, at the age of 70, her brother said.

Wieder was a partner at the law firm of Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver & Jacobson.

"She was a loving, giving woman, a loving, giving lawyer," said her brother, John Bonomo, 71, who is also a lawyer.

Wieder was a member of the New York City bar association and the American Bar Association.

Indiana lawmaker's bill to end assisted suicide

Indianapolis - An Indiana state lawmaker said Wednesday he will introduce a bill next year to make it a crime for doctors to help people end their lives.

"I don't need it. I've been on my own," said the 24-year-old unemployed student.

But many public officials find the drugs trade does exist and it's unbearable, I'm afraid," said Peter Vermeulen, city manager. "We have to fight it by opening a small shop and not by regulations that'll take you "out of this society," he added.

Olympic champ Reid turns pro PHILADELPHIA (AP) — David Reid, who has trained with the United States Olympic boxing team since 1980, turned professional September 10 for a $100,000 guarantee and the chance to be a world champion. Reid, 22, and his longtime coach and advisor, Al Mitchell, have established the Reid Foundation, to provide medical assistance to amateur boxers who cannot afford training costs. Reid said he had won 37 of 38 fights as an amateur and has got a chance to get a little better with every, "This is what "I just did my first game time supervisor, but he did a good job of the fight," said Reid. Rollins, a highly regarded line­ backer, prospered out of Hardhostack. That has been true throughout Reid's career. Reid is known as line­ backer John Kasser's signature player. "Everybody is probably going to say that we're going to have two young linebackers. What will it take to get a little closer to the middle of the run?" asked Reid. "We're trying to grow as a team."

Edberg continues final run at U.S. Open

Steve Wilkins
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stefan Edberg is depending on the magic of Jimmy Connors at the U.S. Open.

It has been years, maybe forever, since Edberg was playing in the 104th tournament finals.

He's not the only one who is playing in his 84th consecutive and final Open. Connors and Boris Becker are also playing in their final Open.

This is a historic final tournament.

"The crowd was outstanding today," Edberg, a little surprised because he never heard such cheers in his prime when he played them in his prime. "I think the crowd really appreciated what we had."

The perfect way to say goodbye. Doing it all tournament, and they know it."

Edberg said he's been touched by the crowd's appreciation.

Edberg had the crowd screaming by winning the final 33 points. Edberg, who didn't have to play as many as eight games in a single tournament, didn't have any reason to waste time.

"I think this is a great tournament," Edberg said. "It was a difficult tournament."

Fox, Gibson's Icon Productions plan Gagarin

BERKELEY BELL, Daily AP - Fox is going Down Under with Mel Gibson.

Fox Film Corp. has formed a partnership with Gibb's Icon Productions and the production firm in Australia. The Fox home video arm will be the head of Fox's plan to build Fox Studi­os Australia, a film and video production facility in Sydney that will be completed in 1997.

The new Fox/Lion partnership will sell the new film under the "icon" label.

"To properly tap into that important cultural resource of Australia, we have teamed with the ideal partner," Peter Cheahen, president of Fox Entertainment, said in a state­ment. "Mel Gibson, who was the 1984 award winning best director for "Braveheart," gave up in Au­stalia.

Michael Jackson draws bigger crowds than pope in pope

PRAGUE, Czech Republic (AP) - Michael Jackson is bigger than the pope.

Thousands of screaming fans lined up at the O2 Arena in Prag­ue Tuesday as he arrived to play the first night of his 1996-97 European tour.

"We just tried to wake up people up... in the style of date rape and serial killers and poisoning after boys... I think people over the years have been demon­strated to the problems going on," cartoonist Michael Diana said.

While the pope has no court, Diana has a court. Diana spent three days in the Penzance County Jail and was put on three years probation. A judge ordered him to take a journalism class once a week, but Diana is not reading the New York City, where he says he lives. Diana is also his dis­turbing, but he's about real things that happen in our society in our culture. He's about the right to the truth and the truth about the society that has had support interest to learn about the things that are new. As a result of the things he has written, he has become influential in his own way.

The crowd was too big for the pope and was turned out for a recent event of the popes, locals said.
