Fran devastates coastline

Biggest hurricane since Hugo leaves at least 22 dead

Ted Anthony
Associated Press

RALEIGH, N.C. — Their neighborhoods are in tatters, but their resolve largely is intact as residents of hurricane-battered areas turned Sunday to cleaning up formidable messes, watching swollen waterways and adjusting to life without electricity. At least six people were still reported missing.

Five electric utilities reported a total of 488,000 customers still without power. Water, and especially ice, remained crucial commodities and lines formed at stores offering supplies — many for free.

With many areas flooded with sewage-tainted water and thousands of trees on the ground, life was hardly returning to normal. But, on a muggy, torrid day, people ventured out with rakes and chain saws, and utility and municipal crews and private tree-clearing contractors plowed the streets and back roads.

"We're so sophisticated in this age of technology and science, but Mother Nature comes through and we're back to 400 B.C.," said Linda Daigle, clearing foliage from her lawn Sunday.

Hurricane Fran slammed into coastal North Carolina late Thursday and turned north, cutting a capricious swath of destruction as far inland as Raleigh and Winston-Salem before flooding Virginia and West Virginia with heavy rain.

The storm and its aftereffects killed at least 22 people — 17 of them in North Carolina — mostly by falling trees, flooding and traffic accidents. The Federal Emergency Management Agency had declared 34 North Carolina counties disaster areas as of Sunday afternoon.

A 60-member team on Topsail Island, in the hardest-hit coastal region, searched for five people who were reported missing, emergency officials said.

In Raleigh, rescuers searched for 17-year-old Jackson Edward Griffin, who disappeared Saturday while swimming with a friend in

City to address shooting death

Mike Waller
The Daily Iowan

The City of Iowa City will hold a news conference today at 8:30 a.m. regarding the shooting death of Eric Shaw on Aug. 30.

City Manager Steve Atkins and Iowa City Police Chief R.J. Winkelhake plan to update the investigation of the shooting and discuss actions that will be taken by the city in the aftermath of the shooting.

The Shaw family attorney, John McLario, said he hopes the news conference will finally give the family a reason for the death of their loved one.

"The family is just waiting for a reason or excuse for the shooting," he said.

Shaw was shot while talking on the phone at Iowa Vending, 1132 S. Gilbert St. It was reported that he was approximately 6 feet from Officer Jeffrey Gillaspie when the fatal shot was fired.

Johnson County Medical Examiner T.T. Bozek said the .40 caliber bullet was tracing a downward path at the time it entered Shaw's chest.

Bozek wouldn't speculate what that would mean to the investigation, only saying it was in line with what was reported by the state medical examiner.

"We just report what we find," Bozek said.

McLario said the path of the bullet could indicate a couple of different things.

"It could mean he was sitting down," McLario said, "but it also depends on how the officer was holding the gun. It may have been held up near his eyes and fired downward."

Officer Gillaspie, the officer who fired the shot, as well as officers Troy Kelsay and Darrin Zacharias have all retained counsel and hired an investigator, and McLario said the County Attorney's office is beginning to set up defense for a possible lawsuit.

Despite these moves, McLario still denies any legal action in the works on behalf of the Shaw family.

"A lawsuit is the farthest thing from the family's mind," he said. "The family just wants answers."

The Shaw family will also hold a press conference Tuesday afternoon at 2 p.m.

Garofalo death brings awareness

Sarah Lueck
The Daily Iowan

In the year since Matthew Garofalo's death, the Greek community and administrators have made an effort to improve alcohol-safety measures on the UI campus.

The alcohol-related death of Garofalo, a UI sophomore and Lambda Chi Alpha associate member, probed the implementation of several new policies, Cari Tarnowski, president of the Panhellenic Council, said.

"When something as serious as a death within the community occurs, it takes quite some time to get past," she said. "We learned a lot, and we are trying to be proactive and stay on the track we're on."

Tarnowski said the Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic Council have clarified the events policy, stressed the need to register all Greek events and held a public relations crisis management workshop.

"Our focus has been on educating the Greek community in how to make their activities and functions as safe as they can be," she said.

On Sept. 8, 1995, Garofalo was found dead at the fraternity's house. The cause of his death was determined to be pulmonary edema, or fluid in the lungs, caused by acute alcohol intoxication. His blood alcohol level was estimated between .25 and .30 at the time he quit drinking. A level of .40 is considered deadly.

UI President Mary Sue Coleman said alcohol misuse is not solely a Greek problem.

"I don't want to single out any group," she said. "It's everyone's responsibility."

In July, the UI applied for a $700,000 grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. The grant will be used to focus on mak-

Bon Jovi drummer weds supermodel

SEA BRIGHT, N.J. (AP) — Supermodel Eva Herzigova married Bon Jovi drummer Tico Torres at a star-studded wedding on the Jersey shore, where the groom's band got its start playing at local bars.

Herzigova

Band mates, including lead singer Jon Bon Jovi and guitarist Richie Sambora, served as ushers for a crowd of 350 guests on Saturday, among them Claudia Schiffer, Sambora's wife Heather Locklear, fellow Garden State musician Little Steven van Zandt, and Donald and Marla Trump, said publicist Gina Frano.

Herzigova, 22, and her forty-something husband first met two years ago, but delayed their wedding until Bon Jovi completed its most recent tour. The couple plans a month-long international honeymoon, said Frano, who served double duty as a bridesmaid.

Taylor's latest ex-husband evades drug charges

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor's most recent ex-husband, who she met in a drug rehabilitation center, won't be facing drug charges after his arrest last month while apparently high.

Prosecutors elected not to pursue charges against Larry Fortensky because a drug test came back negative, said Alina Freer, a Riverside County deputy district attorney.

Fortensky, 44, of Los Angeles was arrested in Hemet, Calif., on Aug. 21 after an officer knocked on the door of an illegally parked motor home lacking license plates. Fortensky answered the door and was uncooperative, acting like he was under the influence of drugs or alcohol, Sgt. Gil Kammerzell said.

Fortensky met Taylor in 1988 at the Betty Ford Clinic, where they both were being treated for substance abuse. He was the seventh man she married. Taylor filed for divorce in February.

Hemet, in Riverside County, is about 75 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

Armani declares 'fashion is finished'

NEW YORK (AP) — Just as he's about to open two Manhattan stores that bear his name and sell his elegant designs, Giorgio Armani said fashion is dead.

Armani

"Fashion is finished," Armani declared. "That is, 'This is fashion, and you must dress this way' — is finished. Fashion is what a woman makes. She puts on an Armani jacket, a skirt by Gigli. This is fashion."

The designer, known for his classic men's power suit and a relaxed, comfortable, luxurious style, has long eschewed the novelty and abrupt changes marking much of haute couture.

"In the last 10 years, too much has been done too fast, with everybody always looking out for something new," he said in the Sept. 16 issue of New York magazine. "And this is the negative side of fashion, in a sense, that has made it a bit ridiculous today."

Armani, 62, will be in New York this week to promote his two new signature stores.

UI student has heroic weekend

Melanie Mesaros
The Daily Iowan

When UI freshman Andrew Olesen went home for a relaxing Labor Day weekend, he never expected to come back to the UI a hero.

On Aug. 31, Olesen said a county dispatcher contacted his friend's family with a frightening call while he was at their home. The dispatcher said his friend had been involved in a jet-ski accident. They rushed to the hospital, beating the ambulance.

When the ambulance finally arrived, the opened doors revealed two of Olesen's friends, not one.

"Since I am an EMT (Emergency Medical Technician), I helped unload the ambulance and took him into the emergency room," he said. "Then we began to work on the first patient. We stabilized him enough to fly."

Olesen said he had to help his friends, especially since the staff and hospital were small.

"They only had two nurses and a doctor on call," he said.

Unfortunately, his friend that was taken by airlift died the following day from extensive head injuries.

"It was pretty intense," Olesen said. "I was just really glad that I was there helping instead of just standing there crying."

Olesen's heroics didn't stop there. On his way back to school Sept. 2, he spotted a semi truck on fire near the Williamsburg, Iowa, exit on I-80 and couldn't help stopping for the stranger.

UI freshman Kate Howe was driving Olesen back to school when he told her to pull over, she said.

"At first, the fire trucks hadn't gotten there and I didn't think that much of it," Howe said.

Olesen said he didn't think twice about stopping.

"I didn't really decide," Olesen said. "I just did it. I didn't really look at it as a decision. I ran up to the semi and made sure (the driver) got out of the cab," he said. "I got him away from the semi because he was standing right next to it."

Howe stayed in the car, but said she could tell a few seconds later the fire had reached the fuel tanks of the truck.

"It blew up and it was big," Howe said. "The grass was on fire and then I got kind of scared."

Olesen said although the driver of the truck was out of danger, he didn't seem to be.

"One of the diesel tanks blew up and I got a bunch of diesel in my mouth," he said. "It was actual raw diesel fuel."

Howe said she couldn't believe what her friend was doing after the fire trucks arrived.

"The fire trucks came and he grabbed a hose and started fighting the fire," she said. "I was kinda worried because he didn't have any gear on."

Olesen said he thought he was going to be all right and drove back to Iowa City. However, after he got back to his room, he had to be taken to the UI Hospitals and Clinics for overnight treatment and observation.

"I went home and I was feeling really sick to my stomach," Olesen said.

Adrienne Murdah, an employee in the hall coordinator's office at Burge Residence Hall, said she found out about what Olesen had done after she learned one of their residents had been in the hospital.

"I called him at the hospital and I wanted to make sure he was doing okay," she said.

Murdah said she couldn't believe Olesen encountered both situations in the same weekend.

"The really wild thing about this whole situation is that this is his second heroic act in a weekend," she said.

"It was pretty intense. I was just really glad that I was there helping instead of just standing there crying."

Program offers insight into modern medicine

Stephan Ilten
The Daily Iowan

Students of all majors will soon have the opportunity to get a behind-the-scenes look at today's world of medicine.

Beginning Sept. 24, the UI College of Medicine will run a six-week program called the Mini-Medical School, designed to give the general public a better idea of how the human body works and what modern medicine is all about.

The sessions, which will run for six consecutive Tuesday evenings, will be taught by College of Medicine faculty in the UI Hospitals and Clinics, said Dr. Allyn Mark, associate dean in the college and director of the program.

"The Mini-Medical School will bring together some of the best teachers in the college who will present material in a way that is understandable and interesting to the general public," Mark said. "We think the people who attend will find it enlightening and enjoyable."

The course sessions will include presentations on controversial issues, like genetic engineering ("Modern Miracle or Messing with Mother Nature?"), as well as everyday experiences, such as pain and aging.

Instead of grades and homework, participants in the Mini-Medical School will have refreshments and an opportunity to continue discussion with faculty presenters after the meetings.

The program, which is limited to 170 participants, filled up within a

"That shows that there are many people out there who may not be medicine majors but still care about these things," said Tom Schmidt, a UI associate professor of physiology who will be one of the lecturers. "The idea of this program is to aim it at the level of a non-major."

Schmidt said the program will help people appreciate the nature of medicine and the human body.

Today in History

Today is Monday, Sept. 9, the 253rd day of 1996. There are 113 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 9, 1776, the second Continental Congress made the term "United States" official, replacing "United Colonies."

On this date:

In 1850, California became the 31st state of the Union.

In 1893, Frances Cleveland, wife of President Cleveland, gave birth to a daughter, Esther, in the White House; it was the first time a president's child was born in the executive mansion.

In 1926, the National Broadcasting Company (NBC) was created by the Radio Corporation of America.

In 1943, Allied forces landed at Salerno and Taranto during World War II.

In 1948, the People's Democratic Republic of Korea (North Korea) was created.

In 1956, 40 years ago, Elvis Presley made the first of three appearances on "The Ed Sullivan Show."

In 1957, President Eisenhower signed into law the first civil-rights bill to pass Congress since Reconstruction.

In 1971, 25 years ago, prisoners seized control of the maximum-security Attica Correctional Facility near Buffalo, N.Y., beginning a siege that claimed 43 lives.

In 1976, 20 years ago, communist Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung died in Beijing at age 82.

In 1990, President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev held a one-day summit in Helsinki, Finland, after which they joined in condemning Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Ten years ago: Frank Reed, director of a private school in Lebanon, was taken hostage; he was released 44 months later. A jury in New York indicted Genadiy Zakharov, a Soviet U.N. employee, on espionage charges, three days after the Soviet Union formally charged U.S. News & World Report correspondent Nicholas Daniloff with spying.

Five years ago: Boxer Mike Tyson was indicted in Indianapolis on a charge of raping a beauty pageant contestant. (Tyson was later convicted.)

One year ago: Bosnian Serbs blamed U.N. forces for a shell that killed 10 people at a Bosnian Serb hospital the day before. Amtrak's Broadway Limited service between New York and Chicago made its final run.

School board candidates bring concern

Jennifer Cassell
The Daily Iowan

The five candidates for the upcoming Iowa City Community School Board election share a common bond. They are all mothers concerned with the education of children, grades kindergarten through high school.

Betsy Hawtrey, who has been a member of the school board for nine years, is seeking to be re-elected for her fourth term. Although she does not have any children currently enrolled in public schools, she is a mother of four who understands the importance of parental involvement in the schools and in the educational decision-making process.

One of her reasons for running again is her desire to continue pushing the objectives the board has focused on throughout the years. There will be several new board members this year, and Hawtrey wants to make sure the board runs as smoothly as it has in the past.

"We've functioned well together. We differ on issues every now and then, but we discuss them instead of arguing with one another. It's a good example of democracy in action," she said.

Linda Levey, who raised three children in the Iowa City Community School District, said building a new kind of middle school (grades 6-8), is developmentally important to help students deal with peer pressure before they get exposed to it in high school. As a board member, she said she would like to work with the community to create organizations dealing with student substance abuse.

school, they are already getting in trouble because of peer-pressure issues. We have to prevent that before it gets to that point," Levey said.

Renee Manders, a full-time working mother, is primarily concerned with the growing population and the overcrowded schools in the north corridor area. She said many people don't know that Coralville, Hills and North Liberty are part of the Iowa City Community School District. Her main goal is to bring representation there, she said. If she is elected to the board, Manders would like to make sure the board deals with issues before they become a huge problem.

Susan Mims understands both the problems of the parents and of the educators, because she is both a professor and mother of four. One of her goals, if elected as a board member, is to visit every school in the district so she can meet teachers, administrators and students to see if they have insights into problems the board hasn't dealt with.

For seven years, Cindy Parsons has been involved with many parental organizations. One of her main goals if elected is to increase the number of parents actively involved with their child's education. She would like to have time set aside for parents and teachers to be able to discuss issues or concerns they have with the board members.

All seven of the board positions are non-paid and the term lasts three years. There is no limit on the number of times members can be re-elected. Elections for the three available board seats will be held at various polling locations on Tuesday.

Gephardt, Rush predict Dem. majority in House

Stephan Ilten

The Daily Iowan

Eating pancakes and talking politics, U.S. House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt and Bob Rush hosted a breakfast for about 250 people in Cedar Rapids Sunday.

Rush, who is attempting to defeat 20-year incumbent Jim Leach in the 1st Congressional District this fall, said he expected the Democrats to recapture the majority in the House. Gephardt agreed Democrats would again dominate, with Rush as one of the members.

"In the 1st District, we have the opportunity to determine the direction the U.S. House of Representatives will go," Rush told the breakfasters. "Because by electing Bob Rush in this district, you will give me the vote to elect the next speaker of the house, Dick Gephardt."

Rush later said education will be a crucial factor in the upcoming election.

He called the current Republican congress "no friend of education," and said he would try to tackle problems like teen-age pregnancy and political apathy among young voters by educating them.

"Our investment is in children and in making sure that they've got educational opportunity," he said. "In the long run, we all benefit by raising the education standards not just in Iowa, but in Illinois, Alabama and across the country."

Gephardt said the upcoming election will show a higher turnout of young people than past elections because students see college loans at stake.

"I've seen much better turnouts on college campuses, much more interest in the campaign and I think that will bring a lot of young people back into politics," he said.

However, in order for student loans and other popular entitlement programs like Medicare and Medicaid to survive, cuts will be inevitable.

"We've got to cut everything," Gephardt said. "And we have cut everything. We're going to have changes in Medicare, in Medicaid, in education, in the defense budget more than anything, the intelligence budget; all have to be scaled back."

Gephardt said the Democrats are nonetheless committed to keeping those programs alive.

Rush said student loans are important to make higher education possible, and students should be given some time to settle and get a job after college before having to pay them back.

"We have to work with students to pay back loans," he said, "and we want to help students pay back their loans by spreading payments out."

Woman sexually assaulted in Iowa City

A woman was sexually assaulted early Friday morning in the 500 block of South Gilbert Street.

At approximately 4 a.m., the woman noticed a man approaching her quickly from behind who then forced her between buildings and assaulted her, an Iowa City police report said.

The suspect is described as a black male, approximately 23 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall and 150 pounds with short, curly black hair. He was wearing a long-sleeved red polo shirt and dark blue jeans.

The man apparently put a white T-shirt over her face and stuffed something into her mouth to muffle screams. He then raped her and left her in the alley.

Sgt. Mike Brotherton of the Iowa City Police Department said anyone with information is encouraged to contact him at 356-5275.

Superman and medical ethics

"What's the difference between O.J. Simpson and Christopher Reeve?" someone asked me on the eve of the trial verdict. The punch line came: "O.J.'s going to walk."

A cruel joke, but it turned out to be prophetic. Now we have engaged in the collective forgetting of O.J. Simpson, and replaced him in the national consciousness with the courageous struggle of Christopher Reeve.

It is hard not to be moved by Reeve's optimism, by his determination or by the irony that the actor who portrayed Superman is now completely helpless. Reeve has brought national attention to the plight of those with spinal-cord injuries and the new research that promises to help them. He has become an inspiration to us all, who moan and grumble about our daily lives and then look up and see him fighting to draw breath on his own.

Thus he spoke at the Democratic National Convention, the light of optimism beaming from his eyes.

Optimism is very important in political campaigns; the candidate assessed as the most optimistic invariably wins. Just think of Ronald Reagan's "Morning in America" campaign kicking the guts out of a malaise-ridden Jimmy Carter's. Clinton is far more optimistic than the crabby Bob Dole, and thus leads the polls by 21 points. Reform Party candidate Dick Lamm, nicknamed "Governor Gloom," during his three terms in Colorado, lost out to Ross Perot (a man who has exhibited symptoms of paranoid delusions) after running on a platform that called for making "inevitable" cuts in Medicare now, arguing that people have a "duty to die."

No doubt Dick Lamm would also oppose the lawsuit Reeve has filed against his insurance company, protesting the $1.2 million cap on his insurance policy. Reeve's medical care costs $400,000 a year, less than half of one cruise missile. Certainly we are a rich enough society to show this kind of compassion, to keep him alive until the medical breakthrough that allows him to take care of himself.

On the other hand, $400,000 is enough to keep 33 AIDS patients for a year on the new three-drug therapies that also show so much promise. It would pay for a great number of free breast-cancer screenings and education. In the Third World, $400,000 could provide a lot of vaccinations and rehydration therapy for the tens of thousands of children who die daily from preventable causes, such as diarrhea.

Reeve has attempted an economic argument for funding paralysis research, claiming that most paralysis victims are young, and thus society is not only saddled with the cost of their care but deprived of their earning potential. But according to Time, the number of spinal-cord injuries each year is small, about 11,000. AIDS also strikes young people, and there are thought to be over 1 million Americans carrying HIV. Breast cancer also strikes young women in their prime earning years, and is far more common than paralysis.

Medical technology is boundless in its possibilities and also boundless in its costs. Medical ethics are a murky, touchy subject. Consider this: Reeve was injured while participating in an anachronistic and obviously dangerous patrician sport, horseback jumping, that few urbanized Americans but the rich have an opportunity to participate in. Had Reeve been an uninsured kid on a motorcycle, it is probable the attending physician would not have been so eager to save him, and a natural death would quietly have been allowed to take its course.

From an economic point of view, it makes sense to keep the former Superman alive, at least for now. Books and the inevitable made-for-TV movie will generate more than enough revenue to justify his existence. From a social point of view, Reeve inspires the virtues of compassion and perseverance, of endurance and hope.

The canonization of our new St. Christopher, however, also participates in our worship of technology, for it is the unfulfilled promise of technology that will make Superman walk again. And it evades and obscures the greatest problem of medical ethics, how to ration care among the many deserving of it. There are other types of courage, such as facing up to death, and there are other virtues, such as self sacrifice for the good of the others. We should honor and value these as well.

FIRST AMENDMENT AMENDMENT

No alternative to Pearl Jam

The release of Pearl Jam's latest album, No Code, reminds one of the band's arrival into popular music in the early 1990s, when their music was described as "alternative." The moment that label gained widespread usage was the same moment it ceased to have any precise meaning.

The label itself begs the question, "alternative to what?" To this, the traditional answer is short: Alternative to mainstream. If this is so, to call Pearl Jam an alternative band is inaccurate, given the popularity of their music.

Perhaps a more appropriate way to characterize the alternative music genre would be "Not Hootie & the Blowfish." Groups like Nirvana, Stone Temple Pilots and Rage Against the Machine are therefore "alternative bands," even given their diverse and far-reaching audiences.

It is curious that if mainstream means popular, and alternative means not mainstream, the label continues to be loosely applied to the aforementioned billboard-charting artists. More interesting still is the listening public's determination to ignore this apparent contradiction in terms and seek out groups bearing the alternative label.

Perhaps a more appropriate way to characterize the alternative music genre would be "Not Hootie & the Blowfish."

Lead singer Eddie Vedder made it clear his music was not for everyone with Vitalogy's, "This is not for you." Is his disdain for mainstream audiences not a form of elitism? If elitism is the notion that the masses are not intelligent enough to take part in quality culture, alternative music is the notion that the masses are not "cool" enough to take part in creative culture.

Both ideologies are united by the concept that the mainstream is blind to artistic sensibility. Yet few would claim to be elitist, while a significant number profess an allegiance to alternative music, or at the very least, a suspicion with mainstream tastes.

Let us examine the objects of such mainstream tastes. One is Hootie & the Blowfish. Here we have a band whose lyrical and instrumental creativity is nothing stellar. But the greatest abomination of all is the success of the "Macarena," which last week was the top-selling single in America. Imagine your friends telling you about the dance for the first time, "Well, it's kind of like country line-dancing — except not as difficult — to a song with no harmony, and you just repeat the exact same movements over and over again, while spinning around in a circle. Even Al Gore can do it."

Perhaps those who seek to distance themselves from this sort of sound have good reason. However, rather than pursuing music that is unpopular so as to separate themselves from the ignorant masses, listeners should seek out what sounds good to them, based on their own musical tastes, and not public opinion. Just as there is bad mainstream music, there is also good mainstream music, like Pearl Jam.

The error is in imagining that because Pearl Jam disavows association with the mainstream, the band is not, in some ways, a part of it. Pearl Jam is a part of it.

While it may be a better band than many, Pearl Jam is no more alternative than Hootie & the Blowfish.

Issues? Nope. It's the polls, stupid

It looked like the usual pitifully dull exercise in platitudes as the Democrats convened in Chicago. Then Dick Morris, the president's political god, was introduced to Americans at grocery check-out counters as Dick Morris the john when a $200-an-hour hooker told all. This development promised some fun for the merriment parched, but the promise was only briefly fulfilled.

The Sept. 9 New Yorker prints two of the best Morris one liners. Second place goes to the delegates' response: "Now we know what that giant sucking sound was that Ross Perot described in 1992."

First prize goes to a "bitter Democratic strategist." According to author Michael Kelly, this politico grumped, "It takes a village, all right. A village with a whorehouse in it."

Days after the convention, it's clear the Morris debacle did not cause so much as a disturbance to the president's Christophe haircut. President Clinton is on a roll, and will roll over GOP candidate Bob Dole and back into the Oval Office for four more years come November. This certainty bolsters remarkably few Americans. In fact, the wake of the nation's 1996 political convention season amounts to a clinical depression among the electorate. Rhetoric aside, voters are the opposite of energized.

Everyone knows how this happened. It's the polls, stupid. Polling and market survey results wielded by the mandarins of our political era, the consultants, have turned conventions into safe bets. Speakers' time allotments are enforced by rostrum insiders with the zeal of Mussolini timing a train. Talk of true political grit is stifled. The more heated the issue, the more impossible it is to find it openly discussed.

As a result, stupidity reigned at both conventions. Those who should have known better had a responsibility to set the tenor of national debate at a decent level. Instead, they couched the issues in the language of voter ignorance. For example, both parties trumpeted welfare reform as fiscally and morally crucial. There are no facts to support this claim. Seventy percent of those on welfare are on it once, and off again within two years. Yet reform was touted as if system "abuse" threatened the pocketbook and spirit of our nation. Both parties lied, and both will do the same thing in four years because polls say it helps.

Bob Dole signed his campaign's death certificate the day after the Democrats wrapped up in Chicago. He wouldn't describe it that way, but one had only to hear him whining to see the writing on the wall and feel a flood of sympathy.

"Why should he be elected president again? Why shouldn't I be elected president? They're my ideas!" The hey-he-stole-my-ideas approach was not a good thing. It ceded Clinton territory he'd stolen without a fight. Dole was left sounding like an older convinced the bank had cheated him out of thousands in savings, one penny at a time. The ferocity with which Dole tried to slap and claw the president was so unseemly that many turned off the television whenever the Kansan's nasal drone began.

That Dole's camp couldn't turn the Morris flap into anything more than one vitriolic speech from a campaign aide signaled a disappearing candidacy. If that seems exaggerated, consider the way they backed off Vice President Al Gore. His speech wrung every drop of emotion out of his sister's death from cancer, but omitted any reference to the family's financial gain from tobacco, which did not stop until a good four years after she died.

As for the GOP's vice presidential candidate, no sooner did Jack Kemp accept the party's nomination than he disappeared from public view. Dole's early bold stroke is thus reduced to a couple of good days on a campaign trail that has developed all the enthusiasm of a forced march across a desert.

It is hard to know what the Republicans think they're doing. Their special prosecutor in the Whitewater case has locked Susan McDougal up with the help of a judge, who cited her for contempt for exercising the Fifth Amendment privilege. McDougal took her case to Larry King's show, where for a full hour she blasted the investigation as a "witch hunt" and declared the Clintons blameless. Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich, with the highest negative rating of anyone so low on the political spectrum, was turned loose at the convention to regain some respect. Instead he squandered two minutes talking about beach volleyball. All the while their candidate tries to act presidential when he needs to act like Leon Spinks if he's going to upend Clinton.

Bill Clinton is so strong right now that the tabloids could catch him with a $200-an-hour hooker's foot in his mouth and it would not derail the 21st Century from its tracks. In the wake of two disappointing conventions, that is the long and short of the presidential election in 1996.

Stick this up your...nose

We here at the Bureau of Medical Alarm hope you had a restful, carefree, fun-filled summer. But before you get back into "the swing of things" for fall, we'd like to take just a moment to remind you that practically everything can kill you.

At the moment we are particularly concerned about: LATEX GLOVES OF DEATH. We have here a health advisory issued June 27 by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. This advisory begins with the following statement: "In the spring and summer of 1995, the spontaneous combustion of powder-free latex patient examination gloves caused four fires in different states."

The advisory states all four fires involved large quantities of gloves stored in hot warehouses. But we here at the Bureau of Medical Alarm are asking ourselves: What if a single glove (this is sometimes called "The Lone Glove" theory) were to burst into flames? What if this happened while the glove was on a doctor's hand? And what if the doctor's hand was, at that very moment, INSIDE YOUR PERSONAL BODY? One thing that would happen, of course, is the doctor would charge you a lot of money. The underlying philosophy of our entire health-care system is the more scary, painful, dangerous and unnecessary a medical procedure is, the more it should cost. So you would definitely pay top dollar to have a flaming glove thrust into what is technically known as the booty region.

And here's a related item to be concerned about: An alert dental surgeon named Ian Hamilton sent me the June 1996 newsletter of the Canterbury Branch of the New Zealand Dental Association, which contains a letter to the editor, accompanied by a photograph, concerning a latex medical glove that was found to have a MOTH embedded in one of the fingers. Yes. This means you could wind up with a BURNING RUBBERIZED INSECT inside your body. Imagine the bill you'd get for THAT: Flaming Booty Moth Treatment (FBMT) - $578,000; Recharge Fire Extinguisher - $23; Damage to Doctor's

Dave Barry

Golf Grip - $54,000,000,000. We know what you're wondering at this point. You're wondering: "Wouldn't 'The Flaming Booty Moths' be a great name for a rock band?" Yes, it would. But right now you have other important medical things to worry about, such as:

DEADLY ITEMS UP YOUR NOSE. We have here a news item from The Denver Post, written by Jim Kirksey and sent in by many alert readers, concerning a man who arrived at a hospital "with a device in his sinus cavity that potentially had the explosive force of five powerful M-80 firecrackers." The device was a trigger used to deploy automobile air bags; the man worked at a factory that manufactures the triggers, and an explosion had caused one of them to become - in the words of a surgeon - "lodged into his nose."

Fortunately, the device was safely removed, but the doctors were very nervous it might go off during the surgery. Here at the Bureau of Medical Alarm we are wondering: Why doesn't the federal government require auto manufacturers to warn us air bags contain devices that could be deadly if we get them up our noses? This is especially critical if we have very young children, who can get anything up their noses. We think the government should require the following statement be printed on automobile steering wheels: "WARNING: DO NOT ALLOW VERY YOUNG CHILDREN TO DISASSEMBLE THE AIR BAG AND INSERT THE EXPLOSIVE TRIGGER DEVICE WAY UP THEIR NOSE. ALSO YOU SHOULD NOT ATTEMPT TO READ THIS WARNING WHILE OPERATING THIS ... LOOK OUT!"

On a related medical note, we received a letter from Gail White, who works at a large hospital that shall remain nameless, and who relates the following incident:

"A man appeared at the emergency room with his hands over his face, demanding to see a MALE doctor, and to see him ALONE. A doctor (dreading to see some horrible disfigurement) complied with his wishes. When the man removed his hands, he was revealed to have a brassiere caught in his nose by the hooks."

No, we do not know how the brassiere got caught there. Nor do we know how many men are, right now, suffering from Brassiere Nose, but are too embarrassed to seek medical treatment. If you are one of these unfortunate people, we urge you to seek medical help; your doctor can tell you about a revolutionary new procedure to correct this condition. Tell him you definitely want the moth.

Franz won his second Emmy as outstanding lead actor in a drama series for his role as hardboiled detective Andy Sipowicz in ABC's "NYPD Blue."

Baker picked up her third Emmy as outstanding lead actress in a drama series for her role as physician Jill Brock in CBS' now-cancelled "Picket Fences."

"This wasn't supposed to happen again, goodness," she said. "I think it's clear by now to everybody that 'Picket Fences' has been very, very good to me."

Helen Hunt, winning her first Emmy for playing winsome wife Jamie Buchman on NBC's "Mad About You," thanked multi-Emmy winner and star of "Murphy Brown" Candice Bergen for her "generosity of spirit" for pulling out of the nomination process this year.

John Lithgow picked up his second career Emmy, as outstanding lead actor for his role as the alien physics professor on NBC's "3rd Rock From the Sun." He held up his statuette and quoted his character's triumphant line: "God bless television!"

For the third straight year, NBC's "Frasier" won as outstanding comedy series. Producer Peter Casey accepted the award, saying the secret of the show is "it sends a message to the pompous, long-winded and incessantly fussy of America ... there is a place for you."

Tyne Daly became television's most honored dramatic actress, collecting her fifth Emmy in 10 nominations for her role as Miss Alice in CBS' canceled schoolteacher drama "Christy."

Ray Walston, the sharp-tongued Judge Henry Bone on the CBS series "Picket Fences," won the best supporting dramatic actor award for the second consecutive year.

Walston, 77, called the award a tribute to the show's final season.

Julia Louis-Dreyfus, who crossed her fingers and mouthed "Please" before winning best supporting actress in a comedy series, took home her first Emmy in five nominations for her role as Elaine on NBC's "Seinfeld."

"A lot of people say that our show is about nothing, but of course it's been about plenty of something for me," she said tearfully.

Rip Torn, who plays the harried producer on HBO's "The Larry Sanders Show," credited its star for his supporting actor in a comedy honor.

"I stand here — it's all due to my boss Garry Shandling and his comic genius," Torn said.

Best comedy series writing went to "Frasier," giving the show four Emmys, including two in the week-end's preliminary awards.

HBO's "Dennis Miller Live" won outstanding variety, music or comedy series, beating CBS' "Late Show With David Letterman" and NBC's "The Tonight Show With Jay Leno," among others. Miller's show also won a writing award.

Alan Rickman claimed the lead actor's trophy in the miniseries category for his role as the wild-eyed mystic in HBO's "Rasputin," while Greta Scacchi won outstanding supporting actress for her role as Alexandra in the same show.

Tom Hulse took the supporting actor's award in the category for "The Heidi Chronicles."

NBC's "Gulliver's Travels"

claimed the best miniseries award. It also received a writing honor.

"The Kennedy Center Honors" picked up two trophies, one for best variety, music or comedy special and another for directing.

Helen Mirren picked up her first Emmy for outstanding lead actress in a miniseries or special for her portrayal of a British police inspector in the PBS series "Prime Suspect."

"I'd like to thank 'Cagney & Lacey,' who led the way," Mirren said of the old dramatic series that starred Daly as Detective Mary Lacey.

The outstanding TV movie Emmy went to HBO's "Truman."

"The X-Files" was the leading show, with four Emmys in the non-television creative arts awards Saturday night. The quirky sci-fi show picked up a fifth award Sunday, for writing in a drama series.

Emmys in 28 major categories were presented at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium in ceremonies broadcast live by ABC. The show honored the 50th anniversary of the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, which hands out the Emmys each year.

swollen Crabtree Creek.

On evacuated, sealed-off North Topsail Beach, state Emergency Management spokesman Tom Hegele described by telephone a scene of devastation: trailers stacked atop each other, collapsed houses, cars buried in sand.

A dazed Glenn Sasser, a year-round resident, wandered the Surf City beach Sunday searching for his home.

"It's just gone. I had an ocean-front house and now I can't find it," Sasser said. "I just bought the house in April. I was spared by Bertha, but it's just gone."

Nearby, Mary Kulp sobbed quietly as she approached her cottage and sat on what used to be the roof of her best friend's house next door.

"Oh, my God," she said. "This is terrible."

In Washington, U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman planned a trip today to inspect storm damage and flooding. The department has a number of assistance programs that could aid hurricane victims, including an emergency food-assistance program.

Evacuees jammed hotels across the state's central region. One Raleigh Ramada Inn also held 62 tree surgeons from Alabama.

The Winn-Dixie supermarket chain gave away six truckloads of ice in Raleigh alone during the weekend before running out, and was still handing out water — two gallon bottles per adult — on Sunday afternoon.

The hardest-hit electrical utility was Carolina Power & Light, which serves much of the eastern part of the state; it reported 313,700 customers without power as of late Sunday.

A second round of flooding bore down on the coast Sunday as the rains that drenched inland communities made their ways to the sea. City streets in Wilmington were flooded again, and traffic was backed up two miles. State roads near the northeast Cape Fear River were reported submerged and impassable. Flooding also threatened Interstate 40.

At Harpers Ferry, W. Va., where the Potomac and Shenandoah rivers meet, floodwaters Sunday swamped 25 buildings of a national historical park. Park rangers were able to move 5,000 historical items, including Civil War swords and rifles and abolitionist John Brown's family Bible. But among the flooded buildings were Civil War hospitals that contain graffiti from soldiers.

Rails, too, were affected. Washington-based Amtrak said flooding, debris and damage to tracks and signal systems had caused major delays and detours to its service along the East Coast.

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, in the heart of the hardest-hit area, told students not even to approach the area until after noon today.

Though the coast was the most devastated, the Raleigh-Durham area, one of North Carolina's most populous regions and a place accustomed to experiencing only the periphery of tropical storms, suffered major damage.

In suburban neighborhoods, roads were thick with branches and repair trucks, and residents busy cleaning up their property and themselves.

Marilyn Bara emerged from neighbor Richard Morrison's house in a white bathrobe, having just partaken in a luxury — a warm shower, courtesy of the Morrisons' gas-fueled water heater.

"We're a pretty together neighborhood to begin with, and now more so," Bara said. "We've shared salmon and bagels. Now we're sharing showers."

At Christ Episcopal Church in Raleigh, some 175 of the usual 250 people showed up for a come-as-you-are service — suits and ties next to shorts and T-shirts — and a sermon about coping when the sea gets rough.

"Congratulations for making it here," Rector Winston Charles told the congregation. "We have air conditioning and coffee. ... If we only had hot showers here, we'd be all right."

STUDENTS

Burke said. "When something happens to one of us, it affects all of us."

UI President Mary Sue Coleman said the Indonesian students displayed their dedication to education — something Americans sometimes take for granted — because they chose to study away from their homeland.

"Sometimes in this country ... we do not understand the immense personal sacrifice foreign students make," she said. "We must remember what they were sacrificing (for education)."

Coleman also praised the "vision that inspired them to come so far from Indonesia."

Paul Retish, director of the Office of International Education, spoke after Coleman about his personal memories of the students. He said they had "smiling faces and a joy for learning."

Retish said the service was important for the Iowa City community as a Western tradition to share and mourn as a group.

"We have done our grieving together ... It was in concert with the Indonesians," he said.

Ibu Gunawan, president of the Indonesian Student Association, spoke of the profound effect the accident had on everyone.

"It has shaken all of us," she said. "It is a painful memory, a memory that will never go away in our minds."

Coleman said the UI will do everything in its power to assist the survivors of the accident.

"We hope that those students who are still here can still carry on," she said. "It's just a terrific tragedy for everybody and we are just so, so sorry."

The students who were injured are Heru Widiatmo, Yakuk Mardiaty, E. Catur Rismiaty and Sofyan Salam. They remain in stable condition at two hospitals and are expected to be released within the next week, Retish said. The other three students in the crash have already been released.

ing the environment safer for everyone involved on the UI campus, but especially students, Coleman said.

"Students are young and impetuous and they're not as aware of the dangers (of alcohol)," Coleman said. "We hope that nothing like this ever happens again."

Coleman said Garofalo's death heightened the UI campus' awareness of problems with alcohol, but efforts to further education should continue.

"There is always a new group of students coming in who have no memory (of the death)," she said. "We're constantly faced with re-educating the people coming in."

Last spring, the UI informed the members of the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity their house would be banned from campus for four years. The international chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha had already reviewed the situation and determined the fraternity could return to campus after a year and only if it was substance free.

The fraternity is appealing the UI's decision, said Lambda Chi Alpha adviser Jeff Emrich.

"We are guests of the UI, and the UI had to make their decision," he said. "The active members have now been given alumni status. The associate members are now free to affiliate with other chapters, and I think that has happened."

Coleman or her designate will review the appeal this week, Emrich said. Until that time, the former Lambda Chi Alpha house, 222 N. Clinton St., will be home to the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity, which is paying rent to the Lambda Chi Alpha corporation, Emrich said.

Tarnowski said although the Greek community is disappointed to lose the Lambda Chi Alpha chapter, they are excited to have a new fraternity.

"Any time you lose a chapter, it is felt by the community," Tarnowski said. "But we had a successful recruitment this year of both men and women."

The Garofalo family of Elgin, Ill., is still being represented by the Waterloo law firm Gallagher, Langles and Gallagher. Members of the firm visited the UI last October to investigate the circumstances of the death.

Netanyahu plans to resume peace talks with Syria

Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu plans to discuss strategies for restarting Israel-Syria peace talks when he meets with President Clinton this week, he said Sunday.

Netanyahu added, however, he does not feel bound by his more dovish predecessors' assurances to Syria regarding the future of the disputed Golan Heights.

"The renewal of the talks with Syria is one of the issues I will discuss in Washington, but I want to make it clear that this government is not the previous government," he told reporters. "It was elected on a different platform."

The Israeli leader meets with Clinton today.

The liberal government of Shimon Peres had told the United States that Israel might withdraw from the Golan Heights if it could be satisfied about security on the border plateau, said David Bar-Illan, Netanyahu's media adviser.

At issue were proposals for demilitarized zones on both sides of the border and an international peacekeeping force on the Golan, as well as Israel's demand for early-warning stations in territory it might vacate.

Ban doesn't wane tailgaters' spirits

Charlotte Eby
The Daily Iowan

While students tailgated in parking lots around Kinnick Stadium this weekend, Iowa City Police Department and Department of Public Safety officials tactfully looked the other way.

The alcohol ban UI officials imposed did not affect the amount of drinking, several students said. They drank beer in plastic cups instead of cans and bottles to divert the attention of officials.

Tailgater Brian Preston of Clive, Iowa, said he and his friends were reminded about the policy when security officials saw them drinking in the Kinnick Stadium parking lot. But he said officials did nothing but warn them.

"They hinted that if you have (alcohol) in a glass, they can't tell what it is," said Preston.

UI senior Angie Halpin said she knew of the new policy, but noticed no change in the drinking behavior of fans.

"It's been like every other year," Halpin said of the tailgating.

She said she had not been approached by security or seen anyone's alcohol confiscated.

UI junior Saleem Farooqui said he thought the announcement of an alcohol ban around Kinnick was a scare tactic because officials knew the ban was not enforceable. Farooqui said his game-day plans were not affected by the ban, except for the fact that he was pouring his beer into a cup.

Tailgater and UI alumnus Todd Scholl, who came from Indianapolis to see the game, was unaware of the alcohol ban. Scholl said he remembers when he was in school, students were allowed to bring flasks into the stadium.

Students said Department of Public Safety officers and Iowa City police seemed absent from the parking lots, leaving tailgaters to do as they pleased.

"We came in at 8:30 and a guy from Public Safety told us they would be enforcing the open-container law. We never saw him again," said Brian Orstad, a UI junior who came in early to stake out a spot in the Kinnick lot.

UI junior Steve Meyer said while he thought officials were not strict with tailgaters this week, he had the impression the enforcement wouldn't be so lax next week for the Iowa State game.

"They said this week they were just giving warnings, but next week they're cracking down," said Meyer.

Game Day brightens sick children

Mike Waller
The Daily Iowan

Hawkeye fans left Kinnick Stadium with smiles on their faces Saturday, but none beamed brighter than the 11 Make-A-Wish Foundation kids who attended the game.

The children, who have terminal illnesses, were invited to Game Day II, which included a pre-game tailgating lunch and a post-game celebration with visits by several UI football players, cheerleaders and Herky.

The event was sponsored by the Make-A-Wish Foundation and the Student Alumni Ambassadors.

Mark Reed, CEO for the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Iowa, said Game Day is now an annual event.

"We have probably 25 different events every year," he said. "We do this, sometimes we do activities with the (Iowa State) Cyclones, (Northern Iowa) Panthers and the Blue Angels."

Fifteen kids were scheduled to come to the celebration, but only the 11 were able to attend because some of the children were in the hospital, said Mary Ketcham, co-chairperson for the Student Alumni Ambassadors.

"These are all children who have made a wish or are waiting to make a wish," Reed said. "This gives them a chance to do something besides their wish. They can all get together and have a good time with their families."

Angela Osdoba, also co-chairperson for the Student Alumni Ambassadors, said the Game Day program is a great way for the kids to come to the UI and see the campus and games.

Brian Moore/The Daily Iowan

Ed Podolak, former football star for the UI and the Kansas City Chiefs, spends a moment with Shane Ferguson of Coralville at the Make-A-Wish Foundation's Game Day II on Saturday.

"They see the players come in here, and their eyes just light up," Osdoba said.

C.J. DeMeulenaere, a 12-year-old running back from Fairfax, Iowa, took the day as an opportunity to see his favorite Hawkeyes in action.

"I have three favorites," he said. "I like Sedrick Shaw, Tim Dwight and Matt Sherman."

Shane Ferguson, an 8-year-old from Coralville, said he likes all the players, but his favorite part of the day was being lifted high in the air by the UI cheerleaders.

"That's fun," he said. "I'm gonna go up again."

While the cheerleaders thrilled the kids with free rides, several UI football players and coaches made appearances to sign autographs for the young fans.

Kelly Shulista said her family had tried to bring her little brother, Andy, to some UI football spring games in the past, but due to bad weather he was unable to attend until this year.

As the 11-year-old stared in awe while UI football players signed his Hawkeye pennant, Shulista said he had a bone-marrow transplant in Iowa City when he was 1.

"They had a benefit for him in Alburnett 10 years ago," she said. "This year, he got to be the grand marshal in the (Alburnett) parade."

Ketcham said Game Day II was a success because of all the help they got from their sponsors.

"The sponsors donated everything," she said. "It's really great because you get to see the smiles on all the kids' faces; these players are their idols."

Inmate stabbing occurs at Oakdale

One inmate has been charged with attempted murder and two others have been charged with aiding and abetting the attack against inmate Jason Brewer at Oakdale Prison last Thursday.

Larry Foster, a 29-year-old inmate from Des Moines, was charged with attempted murder after he stabbed Brewer in the back with a table knife.

Investigators determined Foster stabbed Brewer because he saw Brewer talking to some black members of the Oakdale population. Both Foster and Brewer are white, prison officials said. Foster did not know Brewer personally, as Brewer had just arrived at Oakdale Wednesday night.

The investigation determined Jerry Davis, 23, and Chip Kurelko, 35, knew ahead of time about the assault and conspired to keep corrections officers occupied while the assault occurred.

Election '96

Military vote is not assured to Dole

David Foster
Associated Press

This is the first in a weekly series of stories in which voters talk about the issues of the upcoming election.

TILLICUM, Wash. — At Post 2329 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, a war hero gets respect. Here, the boom of Army artillery from nearby Fort Lewis is no annoyance — it's the sound of freedom.

Here, one would assume, Bob Dole can count on a roomful of votes.

One would be wrong. "Never assume anything," P.J. Vasseur said from his perch on a corner stool at the bar. "Only second lieutenants assume. That's why they're always falling on their swords."

Vasseur, 50, said he was a helicopter pilot in Vietnam. He said he was there five years and enjoyed every minute. He said he killed a lot of people, but they deserved it.

He makes war sound simple. Dole is too fixed on the past. President Clinton is forward-looking but weak-kneed in foreign affairs. Ross Perot is arrogant.

"Ralph Nader. That's who I like," Vasseur said. "Nader has always fought for the right thing. Is he on the ballot?"

National defense is suddenly a big issue in the presidential race. Minutes after U.S. cruise missiles struck their targets last week in Iraq, pundits started assessing how Clinton stacks up as commander in chief and how he compares to Republican challenger Dole.

But such questions always have currency in Tillicum, a little town 40 miles south of Seattle and just outside the gates of the Army's Fort Lewis and McChord Air Force base.

Along Tillicum's main street, off-duty soldiers frequent fast-food restaurants and barber shops. A few blocks away sits VFW Post 2329, a brown-shingled house with a mossy roof and a neon "OPEN" sign out front.

Inside are men, and a few women, united by a love of their country and divided by their views on who should lead it.

Bob Dole, a World War II veteran whose withered arm bears testimony to his wartime heroism, gets less support than one might expect.

Bill Clinton, a war-protesting child of the '60s, gets more.

"I'd vote for Clinton," said Bill Stahl, age 60 and a 14-year Army veteran who served in Vietnam. "There was a time when I wouldn't walk on the same side of the street as him. But I've changed."

What about Clinton's Vietnam-era protesting and his eagerly sought deferral from active duty?

"He was protesting the U.S. government more than the military," Stahl said. "It took me 14 years to figure out the government didn't know what it was doing. The whole war was political. They tied our hands and then said fight."

Staff Sgt. Darwin Franklin, an active-duty soldier with 14 years in the Army, stopped his game of darts long enough to say he didn't like how Clinton and Congress have cut military spending.

"It used to be if you did your job and you wanted to stay in the service, you could," Franklin said. "Now, once they don't need you, they just get rid of you."

He'll vote for Dole.

"Clinton doesn't have a good understanding of what the military needs," Franklin said. "He never served."

Both Dole and Clinton court the military vote. Both want their policies and budgets to appear strong on defense. But conversations with these veterans, along with polls of other Americans, suggest something more ephemeral sways preferences for commander in chief.

Character is key. Whom can people trust to have a finger on the nuclear button that still can destroy the post-Cold War world?

One nationwide poll conducted immediately after the Republican convention in August showed more people trusting Dole than Clinton to deal wisely with an international crisis.

But Clinton's decision to launch a missile attack on Iraq may have boosted his standing.

In an ABC News poll conducted after last Tuesday's first barrage of cruise missiles, 73 percent said they approved of the way Clinton was handling the situation. Should there be another war with Iraq, 56 percent said they would choose Clinton to handle it, while 33 percent said they would trust Dole more.

Such views square with those of Barry Smith, a 21-year Army veteran.

"Clinton has been doing pretty good on his calls" on defense matters, said Smith, age 54. "I think he's going to do the right thing in Iraq, which is to kick butt."

Smith is bitter, however, about a federal government that once promised veterans complete medical benefits, only to cut back in recent years.

"I served 21 years and what do I have for it?" he asked.

Barb Mullins, Smith's sister, came from Michigan in June to look after her brother, who was diagnosed with cancer in March and may have only a year to live. She loves him dearly but hates his politics. She's for Dole.

QUESTION & ANSWER

What would be your 1st act as president?

Associated Press

Each weekday, the AP reports the responses to a question asked of the major presidential candidates. This is the first in the series.

Here are the answers of the major presidential candidates to the question: "After the inauguration ceremony, what would be your first action as president?"

Bill Clinton: "My first action after inauguration, 1997, will be to continue our policies of economic growth consistent with our values, and investing in our future, ensuring that America will meet the challenges of the 21st century."

Bob Dole: "On day one of the Dole administration, I will call upon Congress to pass a balanced-budget amendment to the Constitution. From day one, I will also restore the war on drugs as a top budget and policy priority."

Ross Perot: "The first step, which would begin before inauguration, is to recruit experts in every field from Defense to Social Security to build task forces that will carefully, thoughtfully and rationally develop solutions to our nation's complex problems and challenges. These talented men and women will only answer the concerns of the American people — not special interests."

CAMPAIGNING

Dole stresses small business tax cuts

Curt Anderson
Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Republican presidential nominee Bob Dole appealed to small business for support Saturday, stressing the benefits of his $548 billion tax cut plan and citing his opposition to expanding the Family and Medical Leave Act.

Government shouldn't be expected to fix all life's problems, Dole said in answer to a question during one of his "Listening to America" events with small business operators.

"I'm not certain I can reach out and say, 'here's a program,'" Dole said. "That's the thrust of our campaign — the private sector."

Dole added his opposition to expansion of the Family and Medical Leave Act to allow parents time off to get medical attention for children, or for family duties such as attending a child's school play or accompanying an elderly relative to medical appointments.

"It ought to be left to the employees, or the state or the county — the federal government ought to be out of it," Dole said. "I believe in compassionate leave if there is a birth or a death or there is something that happens in the family, obviously. But I again wonder about the long arm of the federal government."

The Clinton campaign counter-punched, saying "Bob Dole once again is showing resistance to new ideas."

Iraqi demonstrators take part in a support rally for day to protest against U.S. air strikes on Iraq and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad Sunday to call for the lifting of economic sanctions.

Kurdish rebels lose 2 towns to rivals

Brian Murphy
Associated Press

IRBIL, Iraq — A Kurdish faction allied with President Saddam Hussein captured two towns from a rival Kurdish group in fierce fighting Sunday. The groups gave conflicting accounts of whether Saddam's forces took part in the assaults.

Iraq, meanwhile, said it fired anti-aircraft weapons at U.S. and allied aircraft patrolling no-fly zones over its territory Sunday. The Iraqi fire missed and the planes fled, the official Iraqi News Agency said. Iraq made the same claim Friday and Saturday, also claiming no hits.

In northern Iraq, the Kurdistan Democratic Party pressed ahead with its week-old offensive, marching east and taking the towns of Degala and Kuysanjan from the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan.

Both groups agreed the towns, 20 and 30 miles east of Irbil, changed hands amid heavy fighting.

But the KDP said in a statement from London that it launched the assaults on its own, while PUK spokesperson Latif Rashid, speaking to the AP from London, said the faction was overwhelmed by the combined forces of the Iraqi army and the KDP.

The conflicting accounts could not be reconciled, and Iraq did not comment on the latest battle. No details of the fighting were available, and there was no word on casualties.

Iraqi forces teamed up with the KDP Aug. 31 to capture Irbil, the de facto capital of the Kurdish safe haven established in northern Iraq after the 1991 Persian Gulf War.

The United States responded with missile attacks on southern Iraq on Tuesday and Wednesday, hammering air defense sites in southern Iraq.

Since then, the Iraqi forces appear to have refrained from playing a major role in the battles between the rival Kurdish groups.

But Iraq placed its heavy weaponry only a few miles behind the front-line positions of its KDP allies. Almost 100 Iraqi tanks could be seen in the region on Friday, and Defense Secretary William Perry, speaking on CBS' "Face the Nation," said Sunday some Iraqi troops "are still nearby and still dangerous."

A United Nations officer in Irbil, speaking on condition of anonymity, said a force made up mainly of KDP fighters, but aided by some Iraqi government troops, was moving to the east Sunday. He said the intense fighting prevented U.N. officials from going to the scene.

In Washington, Joint Chiefs of Staff Chairperson Gen. John Shalikashvili told NBC's "Meet the Press" Saddam "is clearly exploiting the difference between those two Kurdish factions."

But he said "very, very few" Iraqi troops were still in the safe haven area. "There continue to be reports of a few hundred here, a few hundred there."

The KDP said it was pushing east toward the Dokan Dam hydroelectric plant. The group said the PUK, which controls the plant, cut power and water to Irbil after being driven out a week ago. It said Irbil, a city of about 1 million, was suffering from "severe water and sanitation problems."

The offensive was also taking the KDP in the direction of Sulaymaniyah in the east, the last major stronghold of the PUK.

According to the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan, many families fled Kuysanjan, a town of about 80,000, in response to Sunday's fighting.

The group appealed for "urgent and decisive" help from the United States and its allies.

But the Americans have made it clear they do not want to take sides in Kurdish infighting. The missile attacks last week targeted southern Iraq, and Washington has taken no action in the north.

"We should not be involved in civil war in the north," Perry said. He said any retaliatory attacks would take place "where our interests are."

Shalikashvili said there are signs Saddam is trying to repair the surface-to-air missile sites damaged in the U.S. raids.

"We have warned Saddam Hussein that any attempt to repair those sites or reinforce them will be taken very seriously," he said.

TWA recovery effort back on track

Larry Neumeister
Associated Press

SHINNECOCK, N.Y. — Divers and a giant underwater robot retrieved pieces of fallen TWA Flight 800 on Sunday, the first full day of salvage work after a week-long delay caused by back-to-back hurricanes.

Rough seas whipped up first by Hurricane Edouard, then just days later by Hurricane Fran, calmed earlier than officials had expected. "We've got a good day today," said Lt. Nicholas Balice, a Navy spokesperson. "We're back in full operation. They're bringing up wreckage."

Scuba divers wearing oxygen tanks and Navy divers who receive oxygen from the surface were able to work in a 400-square-yard area of wreckage where most of the Boeing 747 landed after exploding in the sky on July 17.

The massive underwater salvage robot also was working.

All 230 people aboard died when the Paris-bound jet blew apart over the Atlantic off the southern coast of Long Island. The cause has not been determined. Possibilities under investigation include a bomb, a missile or an unprecedented mechanical malfunction.

Narrowing the cause is dependent on retrieving the remaining 30 percent of the plane still unrecovered.

Sampras, Graf reign at U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Staggered and sick one match, tight and worried the next, Pete Sampras put on an impeccable show of force and grace in the final Sunday night to claim his fourth U.S. Open championship.

From his first 125 mph service winner to his last at 117 mph, Sampras defended his title by blowing away Michael Chang 6-1, 6-4, 7-6 (7-3) in two hours — a half-hour less than the rain delay after Steffi Graf's straight-set victory over Monica Seles for the women's title.

Sampras secured his No. 1 ranking and salvaged a tortured year by dominating Chang in every aspect of the match, even winning long rallies to prove that he could beat Chang at his own game.

"I don't think I felt the rain at all," Graf said after capturing her fifth U.S. Open on Sunday with a 7-5, 6-4 victory over Monica Seles. "There is no relief of it being over. It is a joy of winning it and playing that well. I didn't expect to be able to show that kind of tennis today. That is why I am so excited."

Iowa defense comes through when needed

Mike Triplett

The Daily Iowan

The old saying, "Defense wins ball games" is one of hundreds of stale football clichés. But on Saturday, Iowa's defense did just that.

A squad that, on paper, appeared as though it might have difficulty replacing the leadership and experience of captains Chris Jackson and Lloyd Bickham and leading tackler Bobby Dia-co, played like a finely-tuned machine Saturday.

Sure there was the occasional flaw, but more than anything else the Iowa defensive machine was timely, coming through with the all-important big play at exactly the right moment, time and time again.

Though they scored once and set up two other touchdowns, the defense's first big contribution didn't lead to a single point. With 9:53 remaining in the first half, Iowa junior Jon LaFleur forced a fumble which was recovered by senior Bill Ennis-Inge and ended an eight-play Arizona drive that had taken the Wildcats deep into Iowa territory.

The Wildcats held a 7-0 lead at that point, but the turnover woke up a crowd of 68,267 and kept the Hawkeyes from a potentially disastrous two-touchdown deficit.

"We had talked about it. We said, 'We must get a turnover and get the offense the ball. We must,'" Ennis-Inge said. "And fortunately, the Lord let the ball come right to me. And I couldn't pass the opportunity up."

That play was just the beginning. Iowa's

BOXERS DENY FIX

Seldon lost to a 'destroyer'

By Ed Schuyler Jr.

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Bruce Seldon called Mike Tyson a destroyer. The fans called it a fix.

"Fix! Fix!" the ugliest word in boxing, resounded through the MGM Grand Garden after Tyson knocked Seldon down twice and stopped him in 109 seconds Saturday night to win the WBA heavyweight championship.

"I went up against the baddest man on the planet," Seldon said. "It wasn't a fixed fight. I didn't train 12 weeks to come in here and take a dive."

Wake Forest pulls off Wildcat-like upset

Associated Press

Northwestern's magical 1995 season gave every underachieving college football program in the country hope. Like Wake Forest.

The Demon Deacons blew a pair of 10-point leads before stunning the 13th-ranked Wildcats 28-27 Saturday in Winston Salem, N.C.

Upsetting Northwestern in football would have seemed absurd before last year when the Wildcats became the darlings of college football. They beat Notre Dame in their opener and went on to win the Big Ten and go to the Rose Bowl.

Only time will tell if Wake Forest, which went 1-10 last year, can become this year's Northwestern.

"We all saw what they did last year and how it helped their program. We think we've got a good thing going here, too," Wake Forest's Desmond Clark said.

Brian Kuklick combined with Clark on two fourth-quarter TD passes, including a 30-yarder with 51 seconds left, as the Demon Deacons snapped their 30-game losing streak against ranked teams.

Bill Hollows' extra point provided the winning margin in Wake Forest's first triumph over a Top 25 opponent since October 1979.

The Demon Deacons stopped Northwestern's last chance with an interception by Tom Stuetzer with 34 seconds remaining, giving Wake Forest its first victory over a Big Ten opponent in nine tries.

"The defense played better than I thought they would play," Fry said. "They got those two big turnovers and they scored a touchdown. That was real important because it gave the offense field position. Sometimes you can go a whole ball game and not get field position from your defense."

Iowa appeared ready to blow the game wide open in the second half when Tom Knight intercepted Keith Smith's first pass of the half,

On the Wildcats' next play from scrimmage, Ennis-Inge sacked quarterback Brady Batten and knocked the ball loose yet again. This time it was recovered by sophomore Matt Hughes. Two plays later, Iowa was in the end-zone again with a 14-7 lead.

"That was fun," Ennis-Inge said of a game which was decided by the opposing defenses. "It really makes Seldon is known as the Atlantic City Express, after his hometown, but his journey with Tyson was much too fast for the crowd.

But Arizona refused to back down. The Wildcats got a 50-yard field goal from Matt Peyton with 7:49 to go in the third quarter, and less than two minutes later, a 20-yard touchdown scamper from Smith, narrowing the gap to 21-17.

Peyton added his second field goal three seconds into the fourth quarter, but that was as close as Arizona would come.

Sedrick Shaw led all rushers with 115 yards on 23 carries, breaking an Iowa record with his 25th career touchdown. Tavian Banks ran 12 times for 45 yards.

Hawkeye quarterback Matt Sherman threw for 81 yards and one touchdown, completing 10-of-you have a gut-check. Because you know that every game you play is not going to be a blowout. You wonder, how can you play under pressure when it is tight? And we really came through today."

Iowa's third score was also set up by a big play from the defense. Senior Tom Knight intercepted a Keith Smith pass less than 15 seconds into the first half. Less than three minutes later, Sedrick Shaw dove into the endzone.

"We answered the call," cornerback Tom Knight said. "I think we proved a lot to ourselves."

Knight was one of several Hawkeyes who came through Saturday, not only with big plays, but with solid, consistent, no-hesitation football. Ennis-Inge and sophomore in three seasons into one that pulled off one of the biggest upsets in school history.

The Wildcats had four turnovers, and may have been hurt by their overconfidence.

"I don't care who you are playing," Northwestern coach Gary Barnett said, "if you give up the ball four times and give up a long touchdown pass, you're not going to beat that team."

days," Iron Mike said. "I'm punching harder than when I was younger."

However, it was a punch that most of the fans thought didn't land that led to the chorus of boos and the shouts of a fixed fight from the crowd, estimated at 9,000.

Vernon Rollins and Matt Hughes each recorded nine tackles to lead Iowa. Bill Ennis-Inge and Jared DeVries had two sacks apiece.

But the most telling stat for the Hawkeyes may have been the six sacks allowed. Iowa returned just two starting offensive linemen from last year's team.

"You have to credit Arizona's defense for the pressures and the sacks," lineman Ross Verba said. "It takes a lot of hard work. Five guys have to work together to protect that quarterback. Hopefully we can minimize on the sacks, but I'll take a win and give 20 sacks Jared DeVries had two sacks apiece. Linebackers Rollins and Hughes each had nine tackles. And Knight had five solo take-downs.

"The defense played better than I thought they would play," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said. "The defense just had a super day."

Despite preseason excitement, there was really no way of telling how this year's defense would perform when it finally took the field.

"You can't have any doubts. You can't have any second guesses about how you're going to play. The coaches prepare us to win, so we have to go do it," Ennis-Inge, a 1996 co-captain said.

Sherman, who was able to scramble for positive yards and avoid a sack three times, wasn't too down on his line for giving up the sacks.

"I was on my back quite a bit, but I feel good," Sherman said. "I'm not sore or anything. The offensive line is going to get better and better."

Arizona's first touchdown came when Keith Smith hit Mike Lucky on a one-yard touchdown strike with 43 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

The score came four plays after Arizona's Mikal Smith recovered a Shaw fumble on the eight yard.

Smith threw for 89 yards on 9-of-15 passes. Brady Batten completed 5-of-8 passes for 92 yards.

come together as a defense and play as one, because when you play as one, there will not be a drop-off."

The defense's superior play led its first-year defensive coordinator, Bob Elliott, to suggest a nickname, ala Arizona's famous "Desert Swarm" group. But Ennis-Inge wasn't crazy about being dubbed the "Mosquito Swarm."

"Coach Elliott said something about the 'Mosquito Bites' or something like that, but that sounds kind of crazy," Ennis-Inge said. "What we want to do, we just want to play traditional Hawkeye defense. Hopefully when you think about the Hawkeye defense, you think about a tight-knit group who plays together, who will make you scrounge and dig deep for every yard you get."

WASHINGTON 10, CHICAGO 3

Redskin 'D' shuts down Bears

Joseph White
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Coach Norv Turner gave every member of the Washington Redskins defense a game ball. And that made Ken Harvey proud as he gazed across the locker room.

"You can tell now by how many reporters are going to so many different guys," the two-time Pro Bowl linebacker said. "It's not just one person that everybody's trying to surround. It's the whole team."

The Redskins defense — maligned for the last three years as one of the worst in the league — unleashed all its pent-up fury on the Chicago Bears on Sunday, holding an opponent without a touchdown for the first time since 1993 in a 10-3 victory.

The result was a stark turn of fortunes for both teams from Week 1, when the Bears (1-1) took an emotional win over the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys and the Redskins (1-1) came out unprepared in a loss to division rival Philadelphia.

"We didn't play well, so the heck with last week," Bears linebacker Bryan Cox said.

The Redskins defense, which held the Eagles without a second-half point after a shaky start last week, had plenty of stars. Harvey had a key fourth-quarter sack. Defensive tackle Sean Gilbert was in quarterback Erik Kramer's face all game. Darryl Morrison had an interception. Lineman Dexter Nottage batted two balls at the line of scrimmage. And Stanley Richard applied the jarring hit that forced a tide-turning fumble in the third quarter.

"People don't respect our defense right now, or our team," linebacker Rod Stephens said. "We were only 6-10 last year, but this year we've come out with a lot of fire. We said just come out and play the whole game like we did the second half (last week), and I think we did that."

Suddenly, the Redskins look like the team that was supposed to challenge for a playoff spot this season — instead of the group that appeared headed for mediocrity last week.

"I don't think we felt any pressure from anyone other than ourselves, because we know what type of team we are," Harvey said. "It was, 'Do we want to go through another year like last year?' Do we want to say, 'Man the season was good, but we lost so many games by a little bit?' After losing the first one, we were kind of ticked off at ourselves that it's not going to be like this. We went out to show something different."

Terry Allen scored the lone touchdown on a three-play, third-quarter drive highlighted by two catches by 14-year veteran receiver Henry Ellard. The Bears were driving to take the lead at the other end minutes earlier, but Richard jarred the ball loose from Michael Timpson after a third-down reception at the Redskins 25.

"I feel personally that I lost our team the football game," Timpson said. "I'm not going to run from it. I'm not going to hide from it. I let my teammates down."

NFL ROUNDPUP

Steelers rebound strong against Ravens

Associated Press

If there's a sure thing in the NFL, it's that the Pittsburgh Steelers will bounce back when everyone counts them out. They did it Sunday with a boost from Rod Woodson, who was knocked out on opening day last season.

Woodson led the Steelers to a 31-17 win over the Baltimore Ravens by intercepting Vinny Testaverde's first pass and returning it 47 yards for a score as last year's AFC champions bounced back from a 24-9 loss last week in Jacksonville in which they lost All-Pro linebacker Greg Lloyd for the season.

Last year it was Woodson, a member of the NFL's all-time 75th anniversary team, who went down in the first game and Pittsburgh still made it to the Super Bowl.

"Everything was blown way out of proportion," Woodson said. "We lost one game and one great player, but we still have some good players here."

Chiefs 19, Raiders 3

In Kansas City, James Hasty burned the Raiders with a defensive touchdown for the second straight year and Kansas City handed Oakland its eighth straight loss dating back to last season. It was also the Chiefs' 13th victory in the last 14 meetings in one of the oldest, bitterest rivalries in the NFL.

The Raiders (0-2) went for the second straight week with Billy Joe Hobert in place of injured quarterback Jeff Hostetler.

Hasty's play for the Chiefs (2-0) came when Derrick Thomas hit Hobert from the blind side. Hasty picked up the ball and sped 80 yards untouched.

Oilers 34, Jaguars 27

Eddie George, last year's Heisman Trophy winner, ran for 143 yards on 17 carries, including a 76-yard run that set up Chris Chandler's touchdown pass as the Oilers (1-1) held on to beat the Jaguars in Jacksonville.

Chandler, 14-of-22 for 226 yards, had three touchdown passes for the Oilers, who had a play of at least 20 yards on five of their first seven possessions. Mark Brunell was 27-of-38 for 302 yards for the Jaguars (1-1).

Vikings 23, Falcons 17

Brad Johnson, making his first NFL start, threw for 275 yards and two touchdowns and David Frisch scored the first TD of his pro career with 10:27 to go, making the Vikings 2-0 for the first time since 1987.

Johnson, substituting for the injured Warren Moon after four years as backup, was 15-of-26. Jake Reed had four receptions for 148 yards.

Colts 21, Jets 7

The Colts maintained their mastery of the New York Jets and won their first two since 1977, when they were in Baltimore.

Tight end Ken Dilger had a team-record 156 yards receiving as the Colts won for the seventh time in eight meetings at Giants Stadium and the 15th in 19 overall for the Colts against New York (0-2) in the last decade.

New York's highlight was the first pro touchdown for Keyshawn Johnson, first pick in last April's draft, who caught an 11-yard TD pass from Neil O'Donnell.

The Colts are 2-0 for the first time since 1977, but were hit hard by injuries, including Marshall Faulk's sprained toe.

Bills 17, Patriots 10

At Rich Stadium, Jim Kelly threw a tiebreaking, 63-yard touchdown pass to Quinn Early with 5:21 left for the Bills (2-0).

On their final drive, the Patriots (0-2) reached the Buffalo 2, but Phil Hansen stopped Dave Meggett's run up the middle to preserve the victory. New England's Drew Bledsoe was 21-of-46 for 210 yards.

Panthers 22, Saints 20

John Kasay kicked five field goals for the second straight week, including a 23-yarder with 2:09 left that gave the Panthers the win.

Carolina (2-0) trailed four times and gained only 54 yards in the first half but used strong special teams play and defense to overcome the Saints (0-2). On the Panthers' final scoring drive, Kerry Collins passed for three straight first downs, then was knocked out of the game with a sprained left knee when Saints linebacker Winfred Tubbs rolled over his leg.

Lions 21, Bucs 6

At the Silverdome, the Lions overcame a sputtering offense with a defense that kept the Bucs from the end zone for the second game this year.

Barry Sanders had a 54-yard TD run for the Lions (2-0) and carried for 125 yards on 20 carries. The Lions defense intercepted Trent Dilfer twice, converting both turnovers into touchdowns, including Corey Raymond's 24-yard return for a score.

Cowboys 27, Giants 0

Troy Aikman rediscovered Dallas' lost offense by throwing three touchdown passes as the Cowboys (1-1) celebrated their home opener with a victory.

The first-team offense, which hadn't scored a touchdown since the exhibition season opener against Oakland, went 50, 81, and 71 yards for touchdowns to lead 21-0 at halftime.

Emmitt Smith showed no problems from the neck injury he suffered in a bumbling loss to Chicago, rushing for 94 yards on 25 carries, and Aikman completed 19 of 27 passes for 228 yards.

Through the first three quarters, the Giants (0-2) had minus-6 yards passing.

49ers 34, Rams 0

With Steve Young injured, San Francisco scored on a pair of safeties and registered its first shutout in seven years.

St. Louis committed four turnovers, and the 49ers' defensive pressure hounded the visiting Rams into a quarterback switch.

Steve Walsh, booed at home in St. Louis' season-opening win over Cincinnati last week, threw a first-quarter interception and was pulled in favor of rookie Tony Banks, who fumbled three times after being sacked.

Chargers 27, Bengals 14

San Diego used outstanding defense to get off to its second 2-0 start since 1981. The other time was its Super Bowl season of 1994.

Cincinnati crossed the 50-yard line only four times at Jack Murphy Stadium. It took the Bengals until midway through the fourth quarter to reach San Diego territory for the first time in the second half. But former Charger Eric Bieniemy fumbled when he was hit by Chris Mims, and Junior Seau recovered.

Broncos 30, Seahawks 20

John Elway threw two touchdown passes and scored a third on a quarterback sneak, and Bill Romanowski had three takeaways, leading Denver to victory at Seattle.

The Seahawks switched quarterbacks in the second half, benching Rick Mirer and going with backup John Friesz, who passed 23 yards to tight end Christian Fauria for Seattle's only offensive touchdown of the game. The Seahawks' Joey Galloway ran a punt back 88 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter to tie the score 13-13.

Elway, throwing a scoring pass in a club-record 14th consecutive game, broke a 13-13 tie with a 7-yard touchdown pass to Anthony Miller with 1:06 left in the third quarter.

Dolphins 38, Cardinals 10

Karim Abdul-Jabbar scored the first touchdowns of the game on a pair of 3-yard runs Arizona, and Dan Marino threw two touchdown passes as Miami won easily at Arizona.

The Dolphins took a 24-0 halftime lead on Abdul-Jabbar's scores, a 20-yard pass from Marino to Lamar Thomas and Joe Nedney's 36-yard field goal with five seconds to play.

Bill Ennis-Inge (9) beats out Arizona defenders to come up with a fumble during the second quarter Saturday.

New and old faces find end zone

The Daily Iowan

Sedrick Shaw vaulted to No. 1 in Iowa history with his 25th career rushing touchdown Saturday, but the Hawkeyes' other two touchdowns came from a couple of first-timers.

During a 25-second span, sophomore linebacker Vernon Rollins and junior wide receiver Damon Gibson scored their first touchdowns in an Iowa uniform. Rollins fell on a fumbled handoff in the end zone to kick off Iowa's scoring in the second quarter.

After the Wildcats again turned the ball over on their first play from scrimmage, Iowa quarterback Matt Sherman connected with Gibson on second-and-10. Sherman threw a short pass, which Gibson turned into an 18-yard score by speeding past the defense into the right corner of the endzone.

One player who missed out on his first-ever touchdown, however, was senior defensive end Bill Ennis-Inge. Ennis-Inge, who recovered a fumble early in the second quarter, claimed he fell on the loose ball in the endzone as well.

"(Rollins) took it from me," Ennis-Inge said. "It was myself and the quarterback, then Vernon came in. So then we tried to push everybody out. And I couldn't tell how he got the ball from me; I thought I had it wrapped up. And I looked up and I had some grass."

In the replay, it was clear that Rollins was not an original member of the pile that developed on top of the ball in the end zone, but after he dove in, he certainly came up with it. Whether he stole it from a Wildcat or a teammate is unknown, but Ennis-Inge, who said scoring a touchdown is his dream, certainly learned his lesson.

"Next time, I'm getting in there right away so the pile doesn't stack up," he said.

Another first Saturday came when sophomore tight end Chris Knipper pulled down a 19-yard pass from Sherman in the third quarter. It was the first reception for Knipper who moved into the starting lineup this season after playing behind Scott Slutzker and Derek Price a year ago.

"It was great," Knipper said. "All I can do is look forward to more."

Teams meet in prayer after game

Several Hawkeyes and Wildcats got together after the game to gather in prayer on the 50-yard line. Ennis-Inge, who holds prayer groups every week with his Hawkeye teammates, was one of the players who planned the post-game meeting.

"We talked about that before the game and the guys said we're gonna meet at the 50 after the game," Ennis-Inge explained.

"We prayed to the Man and thanked Him for giving us the opportunity to play and not having anybody hurt and that they would have a safe trip home."

Elliott enjoys first game as coordinator

Bob Elliott, who returned to the Hawkeyes as defensive coordinator this season after a year off from coaching, enjoyed his first day on the job.

"It was a fun day for me," he said.

"I had a lot of fun up in the press box — it's a different world and I enjoyed it."

Elliott served as Iowa's defensive backs coach prior to taking his new post.

Rowen and McCarty, along with sophomores Chris Englund and Brian Rupp, each shot scores of 38 for the final half round.

While Iowa was battling the Bulldogs for the team title, Rowen was in a close race with the Bulldogs' Zach Johnson for medalist honors.

Rowen and Johnson were deadlocked after the first round, each shooting a 69, and remained close throughout the tournament. But on the eleventh hole, Rowen ran into trouble when his tee shot took an unfortunate bounce and wound up in some tall grass where he was unable to find his ball. The hole turned out to be Rowen's nemesis, as he took a double bogey.

Johnson took advantage of Rowen's misfortune by firing a 37 on the final nine holes to finish ahead of the Iowa senior by one stroke.

"Sean played very well, but he could've shot better if he had any kind of luck on some of his putts," Iowa coach Terry Anderson said.

McCarty finished four strokes back with a 27-hole total of 110, while Hersch rallied from 14th place after the first round to finish in a three-way tie with Englund and Iowa State's Jason Knutson for sixth with a score of 111.

Anderson was happy with his team's performance, but not satisfied.

"It was a very balanced team effort with Rowen being a good leader. Overall, I'm very pleased, but there's still room for improvement," Anderson said.

The Hawkeye golfers will be off until September 16, when they travel to Cedar Falls for the UNI Classic.

Hundley's 40th helps beat Braves

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Todd Hundley hit his 40th home run, tying Roy Campanella's major league record for homers by a catcher, and the New York Mets beat Greg Maddux and the Atlanta Braves 6-2 Sunday.

Mark Clark (13-11), the winningest Mets pitcher, halted a personal two-game losing streak. He allowed four hits in eight innings, struck out five and walked three.

Cubs 5, Phillies 3

PHILADELPHIA — Jaime Navarro won his eighth straight decision and Scott Servais drove in three runs as Chicago defeated Philadelphia.

Padres 5, Cardinals 4

ST. LOUIS — Fernando Valenzuela cooled off the NL Central-leading Cardinals, ending their eight-game winning streak.

Reds 8, Giants 3

CINCINNATI — Barry Larkin and Eddie Taubensee homered in a five-run eighth inning that carried Cincinnati.

Rockies 5, Astros 2

HOUSTON — Dante Bichette's double highlighted a three-run ninth inning that sent Colorado past Houston.

Pirates 4, Dodgers 1

LOS ANGELES — Orlando Merced cleared the bases with a three-run pinch-double in the ninth inning as Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles.

Marlins 2, Expos 1

MIAMI — Gary Sheffield hit his 41st home run and Rick Helling pitched seven strong innings in his first National League start to lead Florida.

Angels 4, Twins 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Jack Howell started a triple play and hit a tie-breaking home run, helping Jim Abbott snap a personal 11-game losing streak.

Blue Jays 4, Yankees 2

NEW YORK — Ed Sprague hit two home runs off 20-game winner Andy Pettitte, accounting for all of Toronto's runs as the Blue Jays defeated New York.

Iowa netters beat Iowa State in Ames

James Kramer
Daily Iowan

The Iowa volleyball team is ready to finally play at home.

The Hawkeyes defeated in-state rival Iowa State on Friday night, 15-12, 15-7, 15-8, in the first round of the Iowa State Tournament in Ames. Iowa then dropped its two Saturday matches to Washington State and Dayton.

Iowa senior Jennifer Webb said the Iowa State match, which the Hawks used to avenge last year's loss to the Cyclones, was the Hawkeyes' most solid performance of the year.

OAKLAND, Calif. — Tony Batista homered with one out in the 10th inning to give the Oakland Athletics a victory over the Kansas City Royals and a sweep of their three-game series.

FIELD HOCKEY

Hawkeyes win twice out east

Chris James
The Daily Iowan

The remnants of Hurricane Fran moved through the Northeast over the weekend but it was Hawkeye senior Kristen Holmes that made Boston U. and Northeastern feel blown away.

The sweeper from Raynham, Mass. had two goals and an assist as the Hawkeyes struck down Northeastern, 1-0, and Boston University, 3-2 in overtime. Iowa moved its record to a perfect 4-0 with the victories and exacted some revenge on Northeastern for last year's NCAA tournament loss.

"It's a terrific win for us," Iowa coach Beth Beglin said. "It was a very tough ball game and you have to give some credit to Northeastern. They have a young team and they played hard. But the bottom line is we won."

On Saturday, Iowa battled the Huskies to a scoreless tie in the first half. Northeastern had eight scoring opportunities for the whole game, all in the first half. But Iowa goalkeeper Lisa Cellucci stymied the attack, making seven saves for the game. Huskie goalkeeper Heather Stewart was equal to the task, stopping eight Hawkeye shots for the contest.

At the 20:30 mark of the second half, Iowa broke through when Holmes scored on a penalty corner. The assists went to Mary Casabian and Diane DeMiro. Saturday's win marked the third shutout of the season for Iowa. Beglin said her defense, guided by Holmes, played hard.

"We did a fine job of limiting Northeastern's scoring opportunities. Anytime you can keep teams to seven or eight shots is a sign that they can't get anything going offensively," Beglin said.

Holmes played hero again on Sunday, scoring the winning goal in overtime. Emily Smith had put Iowa on top first, assisted by Holmes, scoring with 15:23 remaining in the half.

really came together as a team," said Webb, who earned all-tournament honors for the second straight week. "It was a feel-good win."

Webb had good numbers throughout the tournament. Against Iowa State, she totaled 18 kills and 20 digs. She also had double figures in those categories in Iowa's two losses, including 29 kills and 18 digs against Dayton.

Iowa (2-4) may have used too much of its energy against the Cyclones. Seventh-ranked Washington State beat the Hawks in straight sets, 15-11, 15-9, 15-9. Jill Oelschlager had 17 digs in that match.

The Hawkeyes' loss to Dayton was especially disappointing. After falling behind two games to none, Iowa rallied and won the next two games, 15-3, 15-7. The fifth set was closer as Dayton won, 15-12.

"On Saturday, it was like we had already gone back to Iowa City," Webb said. "There is no way the Dayton match should have gone five games. We should have blown them away."

"We're still trying to find the lineup that is comfortable," Iowa coach Linda Schoensted said. "The Dayton match was a heartbreaking loss. We would probably beat them eight out of 10 times."

Iowa hosts the Hawkeye Invitational this weekend. The Hawks will play Tennessee on Friday night before meeting Miami (Ohio) and Kansas on Saturday.

'Bulletproof' hits predictability mark

Greg Kirschling
The Daily Iowan

The smartest thing about "Bulletproof," the new action comedy starring Damon Wayans and Adam Sandler, is its title.

Although the title seems to mock the heroes' immortality, "Bulletproof" doesn't account for the film's many action-film clichés. After the first five minutes, viewers have already been given to a car chase, a bar fight and a blonde in a tight miniskirt.

In fact, "Bulletproof" could have just as easily been titled "The Double Cross That Makes No Sense," "Shoot-out in the Mansion" or "The Gratuitous Scene in the Strip Club."

Yet one title could have encompassed all of these in one: "The operation.

After Carter's cover is blown, Moses accidentally shoots the traitor in the forehead. Understandably, this causes extra tension later when Carter, fully recovered, must bring Moses across the country to testify against the bad guy (James Caan).

Adrift in a familiar script, Director Ernest Dickerson, formerly Spike Lee's innovative cinematographer, provides short blasts of inspiration. The first big shoot-out is loud and fairly exciting, and it would be even more so if the ads didn't give away the plot.

Wayans and Sandler, both funny in some movies, dreadful in others are usually on in "Bulletproof."

Wayans is getting pretty good at playing the tough, cool guy, although he's funniest at the beginning of the movie before his cover is blown.

Sandler proves he's funniest when he isn't playing too stupid. Although the script relies on primarily stale and crude humor on every disgusting (and often offensive) topic one can think of, Sandler is able to take some of it and actually make it funny.

In the end, however, the unbelievably derivative and sophomoric script dogs this effort, and "Bulletproof" ends on a ludicrous and phony plot twist that further undermines what few strengths the film has.

Tupac Shakur shot on Las Vegas street

Robert Macy
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Rapper Tupac Shakur and a record company executive were shot in a car as they rode down the city's busy casino Strip, and Shakur was in critical condition Sunday.

It was the second shooting in two years for Shakur, who has a history of violence and trouble with the law.

Police didn't know yet if Shakur and Death Row Records Chairperson Marion "Suge" Knight were deliberately targeted or if the shooting was random, said Metro Police spokesperson Greg McCurdy.

"It's very unclear because of some of his past problems, some may think someone may have singled him out," McCurdy said.

Police had made no arrests Sunday.

Shakur, who starred opposite Janet Jackson in the movie "Poetic Justice," has been working on another film, "Gridlock." His latest album, All Eyez On Me, has sold at least 5 million copies.

Shakur and Knight were traveling in a convoy of about 10 cars late Saturday, apparently headed to a nightclub, after watching the Mike Tyson-Bruce Seldon heavyweight title fight, police said.

Police said Knight was driving and no one else was in the car with them.

A car with four people inside pulled alongside at an intersection and one person opened fire, riddling the passenger side of Knight's car with bullets, police said.

The 25-year-old Shakur, in the passenger seat, was shot several times in the chest and was in critical condition following surgery Sunday, said Pat Morris, a nursing administrator at University Medical Center.

A police communications supervisor who would only identify herself as Mrs. Coleman said Shakur "will survive."

Knight, 31, who was driving, suffered a minor head wound, police said. His Death Row Records produces the work of Shakur and other rappers including Snoop Doggy Dogg and Hammer.

In November 1994, Shakur was shot five times by robbers in the lobby of a New York City recording studio. He lost $40,000 worth of jewelry.

On Wednesday night at the MTV Video Music Awards in New York, he and about a half-dozen of his friends got into a menacing confrontation with about six other men at Radio City Music Hall. Police had to be called to break up the argument.

R.E.M. returns to music scene with album, tour documentary

Chris Curtis
The Daily Iowan

Two-weeks ago, Pearl Jam released what some called the most anticipated album of the fall. Now, R.E.M. will stake its claim at fame when New Adventures in Hi-Fi, the band's first album in two years, is released nationwide Tuesday.

After the its long and ailing 1995 Monster tour — where lyricist Michael Stipe, bassist Mike Mills and Bill Berry appeared to have spent more time in hospital beds than on stage — R.E.M. now look more like "shiny happy people" with their new album, an $80-million Warner Bros. record deal and a tour film to boot.

Almost entirely recorded on the road during the Monster tour, New Adventures in Hi-Fi sounds as clean as a studio album. The first single, "E-Bow the Letter," is reminiscent of 1992's depressing Automatic for the People. With a seemingly implausible combination of Stipe and the heiress of punk, Patti Smith, this dark and howling tune has been selling well, said Andrea Berthod of B.J. Compacts Discs, 6 1/2 S. Dubuque St.

After The Union, 121 E. College St., entertained its front bar with a New Adventures in Hi-Fi listening party Friday, patrons had nothing but positive comments about the album, said Joe Murin, the bar's promoter.

"Nobody complained about it, and some people were like, 'Yeah, this is really good,'" Murin said. "There was big positive feedback. No one said anything bad about it."

In support of the new album, R.E.M. engineered a five-city promotion Saturday with previews of the album, excerpts from the documentary "Road Movie" and merchandise giveaways.

And, once again, midnight sales will ravage downtown Iowa City.

NEW ADVENTURES IN HI-FI

News briefs

'Bulletproof' starts off with a bang

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The crime comedy "Bulletproof," starring Damon Wayans and Adam Sandler, made its debut as the weekend's top-grossing film with an estimated $6 million in ticket sales.

"Tin Cup" was second with $4.8 million, followed by "First Kid" with $4.3 million and "A Time to Kill" with $3.9 million, industry sources said Sunday.

"The Spitfire Grill" was fifth with $3.6 million, while "Independence Day" took in $2.9 million for sixth to top the $285 million mark in its 10th week of release.

The new film "Bogus," starring Gerard Depardieu as a boy's imaginary friend come to life, earned about $1.9 million for 11th place. It opened on 1,134 screens, about half the number of "Bulletproof."

The weekend's top 10 grossing films are:

1. "Bulletproof," $6 million.
2. "Tin Cup," $4.8 million.
3. "First Kid," $4.3 million.
4. "A Time to Kill," $3.9 million.
5. "The Spitfire Grill," $3.6 million.

6. "Independence Day," $2.9 million.

7. (tie) "Jack," "The Crow: City of Angels," "The Island of Dr. Moreau," $2.8 million.

10. "A Very Brady Sequel," $2.3 million.

Michael Jackson's court date set for slander suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Jackson will get his day in court to press a slander lawsuit against a free-lance writer who claimed he watched a videotape showing Jackson and a teen-age boy having sex.

But Jackson will have to wait until next summer. The pop star — who was investigated for alleged child sexual abuse but never charged — sued Victor Gutierrez for slander, contending he lied when he said he'd seen a 27-minute video of the purported encounter.

The $100 million suit also named the syndicated tabloid program "Hard Copy," its parent, Paramount Pictures Corp., and Diane Dimond, the show's senior correspondent who reported about the tape in January 1995. Trial will begin June 23, 1997.
