President Clinton said Wednesday that sending American forces to Iraq should not be underestimated.

Pentagon orders more jets to Iraq

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Warning Iraq that America is "not playing around," the Pentagon ordered 14 more F-15 fighter jets and eight nuclear-carrying B-52 bombers to the region for possible new hostilities.

Defense Secretary William Cohen, punishing unruly Iraq's defiance of U.N. resolutions, announced the deployment of a large force that could include as many as 30,000 ground troops.

Today in history

Today is Thursday, Sept. 12, the 239th day of 1996. There are 126 days left in the year.

Today marks the beginning of the 1967 San Francisco Summer of Love.

Two-hundred years ago, on Sept. 19, 1796, the Franklin Post of Philadelphia reported that President George Washington’s farewell address was published in it, along with a review of the speech. The next day, the Pennsylvania Gazette published an article by Frederick Douglass, a former slave, calling for an end to slavery.

Today marks the start of the 1967 Summer of Love in San Francisco, a cultural and social movement that lasted until October and is remembered as one of the most significant events in American history.

Non-traditional students hope program will end stereotypes

Many non-traditional students feel that they are not welcomed at the University of Iowa. These students, who are typically Above ground, are more likely to have children, are likely to be living in graduate and professional residences, and are more likely to be working while they attend school. They are also more likely to have families and significant others like themselves and to feel like a "convenient" student for non-traditional students.

"It's very hard on the students to come back to school after years of not being there," said one non-traditional student who goes by their given name. "They need to feel that they are welcome and accepted by the community."
Big Brother is watching

When you're looking out into outer space, could somebody be looking back at you? That's the question that has captured the attention of political and social observers, as well as privacy advocates, in recent months. The concern is that the government is increasingly collecting and analyzing data on individuals without their consent, potentially infringing on their rights to privacy.

Small-town lessons to learn

University students that hail from Iowa City will tell you City is just a little bit different. It's a city that is becoming more diverse, especially its small town, and that is a good thing. The University of Iowa, for example, has a strong reputation for diversity, which makes it an attractive destination for students from all over the world.

The trouble with Tupac

Tupac was a tragic figure in the life of hip-hop. His career came to an end when he was killed in a drive-by shooting. His death was a result of a long string of events, including a feud with one of the most popular rappers of the time, Notorious B.I.G. The feud was fueled by a rivalry over women and territory.

Gay rights activists continue to fight for job anti-discrimination bill

WASHINGTON — The Senate Democratic leader has told fellow Democrats that the gay rights bill will be on the Senate floor after Labor Day to help tip the balance of power in favor of the Democrats when Republicans take their majorities on the House floor next year.

The House has already passed a bill that would protect workers from discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation and gender identity. The Senate has also passed a version of the bill, but it has yet to be reconciled with the House version.

The Senate Democratic leader told reporters that the bill is likely to pass in the Senate, although it is not clear whether it will be attached to another piece of legislation.

The bill is supported by many members of the Democratic Party, but it faces opposition from some Republicans who argue that it would discrimination in the workplace.

The bill's opponents have argued that it would discriminate against religious groups, and that it would lead to increased government spending.

The bill's supporters argue that it is necessary to protect workers from discrimination based on their sexual orientation and gender identity, and that it would help to create a more diverse and inclusive workplace.

The bill has been a topic of debate for years, and it has been debated in both the House and the Senate.

PUERTO RICO — Responding to a request from Sen. Bob Dole, President Clinton moved to prevent cooperation with the fighting mounting with a warning to states that tax cuts and grants for drugs or for federal funds.

He also was calling to condemn a new anti-drug, education campaign, which he said "is a national disgrace." Clinton was one of the leading Democratic presidential candidates to arrive in Arizona, but the Clinton campaign is not looking to the state for help.

Arizona Attorney General Tom Horne said Thursday, "We're not looking for help from the state. This is a state-wide issue. We're not interested in the state's help."

Clinton is in the closing stages of a three-day cross-country trip to campaign for the key states:

Florida, a Democratic stronghold that must deliver big for Clinton to carry the South. Under the president's latest anti-drug, education campaign, which seeks to set a drug testing and rehabilitation programs for the elderly. Clinton is tied with Dole in national polls.

The idea requires congressional approval, which is not likely in the 1996 election year. Clinton, who is under pressure to act before the November elections, has said he will not seek their help in the anti-drug, education campaign.

Standing outside a dome-shaped courthouse, Clinton urged tough law enforcement with a warning to states that tax cuts and grants for drug use will not be available until the state's anti-drug, education campaign is in place.

Reality sets in for Barnett

When Gary Barnett was hired by Northwestern in 1990, he brought with him a reputation as a maverick coach, a man who believed in football and basketball as a part of the complete college experience, and a man with no fear of change.

Prior to that point, the Wildcats had been a winning machine since 1981, when they won back-to-back Big Ten championships, and Barnett, who was 29 at the time, was expected to lead Northwestern to even more success.

But a series of injuries and poor seasons led to a coaching change after the 1993 season, and Barnett was hired to take over.

In his first year, Northwestern won just two games, and Barnett faced criticism for his coaching style and his ability to handle the college football landscape.

Barnett was quick to admit his limitations and to work to improve the team's performance, but the results were slow to come.

In the years that followed, Barnett continued to work to rebuild the Wildcat program, and by the time he retired after the 2011 season, Northwestern had become a consistent winner in the Big Ten Conference and beyond.

Barnett's influence on Northwestern football is clear, and his legacy will be remembered for years to come as a man who was willing to take risks, who was not afraid of change, and who was committed to building a better Wildcat program.

Orioles extend lead, slip by Sox in 10

Associated Press

BOSTON — Barry Bonds smacked a two-run home run in the eighth inning, giving Montreal a 5-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox in 13 innings. The game broke an eighth-inning tie and gave the Expos a victory over the first-place Atlanta Braves.

Bonds' second two-run homer of the season came after the Expos had gone ahead with a three-run rally in the seventh inning as the Boston Red Sox failed to hold onto a two-game lead over the Baltimore Orioles.

Bonds, who homered in his 17th game of the season, had entered the game with a .293 batting average. He had been held hitless in his last 15 at-bats.

Not as profane begins to yield in the first round of aston-ished the nation and has a new book out. The Iowa State Teachers Union said the book, "The Ultimate Book of Crude Humor," by Bob Rosen, was the "best book of the week." The Iowans don't like jokes like that, "I was surprised," said a state union official.

Ripped from a page in the new book, "The Ultimate Book of Crude Humor," the quote reads: "The world is a funny place, but I don't think it's funny that you're reading this book." The book has been a hit among readers, especially among those who enjoy the "cuss word humor." The book's author, Bob Rosen, is a well-known comedian and has appeared on television and in stand-up shows across the country.

Live Music

The Pantanal, the comedy rock band, will perform tonight at the Dr. Science Center. The Pantanal is known for their high-energy performances and their ability to engage the audience with their interactive shows.

Film

This week's film, "The Ultimate Book of Crude Humor," is a comedy that features the work of Bob Rosen. The movie is described as "a hilarious look at the world through the eyes of a crude humor aficionado." The film has been praised for its funny and clever writing.

Stomp

prepare to dazzle Hancher with pulsating rhythm

Katharine Horowitz

Crashing and hanging its way into town this weekend is the international percussion group, Stomp. The group is known for their high-energy shows and their unique style of percussion.

Making its third Iowa City appearance, Stomp will perform at six outdoor shows at the Old Capitol, the Iowa City Public Library, and the University of Iowa Hancher Auditorium. The group is set to play in the afternoons and evenings.

"It's really difficult to describe the show if you haven't seen it," Stomp performer Chad Koloski said in a telephone interview. "Some people try to classify it in performance art, but it's really an event with a lot of improvisation involved." Stomp originated five years ago in Brighton, England, where the show's current producers, Liza Gallacher and Steve McGarvey, composed music for British schools. The piece eventually evolved into a small percussion piece that grew into an international tour.

The show is known for its creativity and innovation, and it's something you have to experience to truly understand. "It's a fun and friendly way to spend an hour, said Chad Koloski. "You won't know what to expect until you get there." Stomp is known for its variety, fast style, and its imperfections. "For much of its shows, Koloski said, "We just try things out," he said.

"As soon as you get on stage, you're in a new world, a new experience that you can't predict." The group will also perform a special show at the Old Capitol, which will feature a new arrangement of bass, drums and hand percussion.

The show is sure to leave the audience buzzing with excitement and leave everyone wanting more. "It's a fun and friendly way to spend an hour, said Chad Koloski. *"A Time to Kill" (PG-13) - No one expected John Grisham's first novel to ever be brought to the screen, but that's just what happened. The courtroom drama - about a poor boy wrongly accused of raping a white girl - has inspired an angry backlash who decide to take the law into their own hands after hearing a compelling statement against corrupt social and moral conditions. The film may not capture the suspenseful elements of the original novel, it does provide much to think about. At Coralville.

*"Bogus" (PG) - This new acting vehicle for way too much talent, Wayans and Staging a few exciting action scenes. Yet, it lacks the sharp jokes and bloody violence of the original. The latest installment of theシリーズ。的 País de los Demonios. *With" Goldstberg, who sought in the role of a villain, is dismally located. The only positive elements are the film manages to deliver a large amount of good, clean fun. At Coralville, 101 Capitol Blvd.

*"Bulldogged" (R) - Director Ernest Dickerson and Samuel L. Jackson come together to make a film about the products of the recent racial conditions. While the film centers around a poor factory worker (Jackson), who his son's dope fiend (Gerard Depardieu) appears.

*"Clueless" (PG-13) - Starring "SpanglyStuff" in an hour and 45 minutes of kidnap. Dennis has a 10-year-old boy who is a brat, of course, and the two don't get along at first. This film's predictable conclusion, however, really does not offer the suspense that the action-oriented viewer is looking for. At Coralville.

*"Fly Home Home Again" (R) - Based on a story that aired on "90210," Jeff Daniels ("Dennis" & "Dionne") and Anna Pajunen ("The Pines") portray Canadian families who live separate lives. The film was shot in Montreal, featuring some good performances. At Coralville, Iowa Memorial Union/Main Lounge.

*"Independence Day" (PG-13) - Following the news about the alien overthrow of the United States. The president (Bill Pullman) and his European counterpart (Jeff Goldblum) band together to save humankind. The golf scenes are achingly bad. At Coralville, 101 Capitol Blvd.

*"Island of Dr. Moreau" (PG-13) - Borris Williams is less than satisfying. The story is more of a bloated than an island and trying to create the perfect human being. The film tries desperately to delve into the wild notions of the human psyche, but really only ends up being a bunch of exciting scenes moving around in測試任務。*At Coralville.

*"Jack" (R) - Robin Williams seems to be showing that it will be his last role as a "boy in a man's body," as we've seen this one. "Jack" is a free film that manages to be funny, poignant and loses access to the adult market that it once had. While it is a heartwarming story that explains the 10-year-old boy living in a 40-year-old body is thankfully not skewed up, the existence is just added to accept it. At Coralville.

*"Outbreak," (PG-13) - Rene Russo, his romantic interest, has never been as bad as she did with Dustin Hoffman. The film is not a satire. At Coralville, Iowa Memorial Union/Main Lounge.

*"The Parent Trap II," (PG) - Natasha Henstridge ("Species") aids Claude Van Damme in the latest installment of the シリーズ。 the plot. At Coralville, Iowa Memorial Union/Main Lounge.

*"The Sunset Limited" (PG-13) - Based on a story that aired on "90210," Jeff Daniels ("Dennis" & "Dionne") and Anna Pajunen ("The Pines") portray Canadian families who live separate lives. The film was shot in Montreal, featuring some good performances. At Coralville, Iowa Memorial Union/Main Lounge.

*"The Town" - A washed-up golf pro (Woody Harrelson) brings his friend along to his dream of being a professional golf player. In this case, an unknown quantity. In his case, a good performance. In the next course, a failed attempt to find the bridge that takes these two different paths. Ron Evans, his romantic counterpart, generates more sparks with巡航 than she did with Dustin Hoffman in "Chasing Amy." Not that's his fault. The golf scenes are captivatingly presented. The story is not as well thought through as it should be. The golf scenes are nothing like they should be. At Coralville, Iowa Memorial Union/Main Lounge.

*"The Waterboy" - A Canadian family who help parent. At Coralville, Iowa Memorial Union/Main Lounge.

*"Toy, Toy, Toy," (R) - Natasha Henstridge ("Species") aids Claude Van Damme in the latest installment of the シリーズ。 the plot. At Coralville, Iowa Memorial Union/Main Lounge.

*"Unbreakable" (PG-13) - A story of complex drama and suspense. The president (Bill Pullman) and his European counterpart (Jeff Goldblum) band together to save humankind. The golf scenes are achingly bad. At Coralville, 101 Capitol Blvd.
