Cosmetics mogul faces 3rd divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Cosmetics heir Ronald Perelman's third marriage is going the way of bright blue eye shadow.

Perelman

The Revlon billionaire secretly filed for divorce after he found his wife of nearly two years wearing a tape recorder — albeit one that hadn't been switched on — during a conversation with him, the New York Daily News reported Thursday.

Patricia Duff, 42, reportedly had met with a lawyer months ago to map out a legal strategy to maintain custody of the couple's 20-month-old daughter.

Perelman, 53, discovered the tape player during an attempted reconciliation at his home.

The couple got into a fight after she attended a party at the Democratic National Convention against his wishes. Perelman flew home from Chicago in his jet, leaving his wife and daughter to take a commercial flight, the Daily News said.

The divorce papers, filed last Friday, are titled Anonymous vs. Anonymous and are sealed.

Perelman's spokesperson, Howard Rubenstein, would neither confirm nor deny the divorce filing.

Ducruet flees Monaco for Morocco

PARIS (AP) — Princess Stephanie's faithless husband is finding out that when it gets really hot in Monaco, North Africa begins to look pretty cool.

Hounded by the celebrity press since steamy photos were published of his poolside tryst with the reigning Miss Nude Belgium, Daniel Ducruet fled to Morocco, RTL Radio said Thursday.

Stephanie, the youngest daughter of Prince Rainier of Monaco and Grace Kelly, said through her lawyer this week she intends to divorce Ducruet, her former bodyguard.

Italian magazines broke the scandal Aug. 28, publishing 40 pages of explicit photos showing Ducruet, 32, cavorting naked at a villa outside Monaco with Fifi Houteman, 26.

Estefan catches flu, cancels Hartford show

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Gloria Estefan's band was ready, the fans were waiting ... and she was a no-show.

The flu kept the two-time Grammy winner from performing at the Meadows Music Theatre. An hour before showtime Wednesday, the show was canceled.

"Her band sound-checked, her crew was here and ready to go," said Lisa Millard, a Meadows official.

No new concert date was set.

Life imitates art for 'Dear John' star

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dear Melissa, I need some space. Jere.

Jere Burns, a former star of TV's "Dear John," filed Wednesday for separation from his wife, Melissa, citing irreconcilable differences.

The couple have been married since 1982 and have three children, ages 10, 11 and 13.

Burns is starring in the new NBC sitcom "Something So Right" — about a newly married couple and their three children from previous marriages.

Rosh Hashana brings new year for Jews

Tracy Potocki
The Daily Iowan

Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year, begins tonight at sunset, marking the start of the Jewish holy season.

The start of the Jewish New Year is a time of reflection and prayer that marks the beginning of a 10-day period of penitence.

This holiday is one of the most holy on the Hebrew calendar, said UI sophomore Heather Persky.

The celebration is based on Jewish oral tradition counting the year from the beginning of creation. Tonight, the year 5758 begins.

Elliot Zashin, Hillel Foundation youth director and member of the Association of Campus Ministers, said Rosh Hashana has profound spiritual significance.

"This is the time of the year when God judges us," he said. "It's the most solemn, serious observance of the year."

Rosh Hashana rituals include the blowing of the shofar, a ram's horn, which is a call for individuals to repent. However, the first day of Rosh Hashana falls on the Sabbath this year, which will prohibit the use of instruments. Jews will also participate in a Tashlich ceremony. They gather at a bed of water and ask for forgiveness of their sins, which are symbolically cast in the water by the throwing of bread. This ceremony will take place at 4 p.m. Saturday at the Iowa River.

Individuals also reflect upon what they've done spiritually over the past year and how they can improve themselves, UI junior Dax tonight at 8 in the Union Main Lounge, following a 6 p.m. dinner at the Hillel, 122 E. Market St.

Services will continue Saturday morning at 9 a.m. in the Union Main Lounge and at 8 p.m. at Agudas Achim, 602 E. Washington St. The synagogue will hold 9 a.m. services on Sunday as well.

UI senior and former Hillel president Ian Dubin said this is a very special time of the year to be spent with family and friends.

"A lot of people are going home, so it's difficult for the Hillel to throw a second dinner because there won't be that many people in Iowa City," Dubin said.

He will be holding a dinner at 6 p.m. on Saturday at his apartment, 413 S. Johnson St., Apt. 4, in celebration of the new year. A traditional meal includes challah, white egg bread eaten by Jews on holidays, and apples dipped in honey, signifying a sweet year.

The months of the Hebrew calendar are based on a lunar cycle and are a month shorter than the 12-month solar year. They correct the system by periodically adding an additional month. Therefore, annual holidays can vary up to two weeks, said Zashin.

"It's a serious time, but not an unhappy time," Duskin said.

Orthodox Jews and American Jews celebrate Rosh Hashana in the same way, by going to synagogue tonight, Saturday and Sunday, Zashin said. Jews spend the majority of Saturday in temple. For local Jews, services will begin

Florida State named No. 1 party school

Shirish Date
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Go, Seminoles! Florida State University is No. 1 in partying.

FSU was named the top-ranked party school nationwide in the latest Princeton Review's "Advantage Guide to the Best 310 Colleges."

It dethroned three-time champion University of Rhode Island, which banned alcohol on campus last year. George Washington University in Washington, D.C., was No. 2 and arch-rival University of Florida came in third.

"Oh, that's good," said Tom Guilot, a 22-year-old junior at FSU. "We beat 'em again. We beat 'em in everything."

Florida State was ranked fourth in partying in the guide's first edition in 1993, and then came in second three years in a row behind Rhode Island. This is the first year it has reached first place.

So, does that mean the Seminoles are last in academics?

"If you read the whole thing, it's really not all bad," said FSU President Sandy D'Alemberte, noting the nice things the guide said about the friendly atmosphere, good climate and "bargain-basement" tuition.

Rounding out the top 10 party schools: University of California, Santa Barbara (4); Emerson College (5); University of Wisconsin, Madison (6); St. Mary's College, St. Mary's City, Md. (7); State University of New York, Albany (8); Colgate University, Hamilton, N.Y. (9); University of Vermont, Bennington (10).

The Princeton Review, the New Jersey-based company that provides test preparation classes and is not affiliated with Princeton University, publishes the annual guide to colleges for high-school seniors. Its party-school ranking was based on a survey of 56,000 students at the 310 colleges listed.

The survey also ranked "Great food," (Deep Springs College was No. 1); "Dorms like palaces,"

Today in history

Today is Friday, Sept. 13th, the 257th day of 1996. There are 109 days left in the year. Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, begins at sunset.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 13th, 1788, the Congress of the Confederation authorized the first national election, and declared New York City the temporary national capital.

On this date:

In 1759, during the final French and Indian War, the British defeated the French on the Plains of Abraham overlooking Quebec City.

In 1803, Commodore John Barry, considered by many the father of the American Navy, died in Philadelphia.

In 1851, American medical pioneer Walter Reed was born in Gloucester County, Va.

In 1943, Chiang Kai-shek became president of China.

In 1948, Republican Margaret Chase Smith of Maine was elected to the U.S. Senate, becoming the first woman to serve in both houses of Congress.

In 1949, the Ladies Professional Golf Association of America was formed in New York City, with Patty Berg as its first president.

In 1971, a four-day inmates' rebellion at the Attica Correctional Facility in upstate New York ended as police and guards stormed the prison; the ordeal and final assault claimed 43 lives.

In 1977, conductor Leopold Stokowski died in Hampshire, England, at age 95.

In 1989, Fay Vincent was named commissioner of major-league baseball, succeeding the late A. Bartlett Giamatti.

In 1993, in an historic scene at the White House, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and PLO chairperson Yasser Arafat shook hands after signing an accord granting limited Palestinian autonomy.

Ten years ago: Miss Tennessee, Kellye Cash, was crowned Miss America at the pageant in Atlantic City, N.J.

Five years ago: Virginia Gov. L. Douglas Wilder declared his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination. President Bush, who had suffered an irregular heartbeat because of a thyroid condition, was pronounced in "incredible physical condition" after a check-up by his doctors.

Hop aboard the Hawkeye Express

Mike Waller
The Daily Iowan

Imagine boarding a passenger train in Des Moines in the early 1940s en route to a Hawkeye football game. As Iowa farmlands whiz by, the Hawkeye Express carries you and more than 300 other excited football fans away from thoughts of war and into Iowa City, fast forward to Sept. 14, 1996.

Jim Breining, director of Five Oaks Charters, a bus service based in Des Moines, has revived the Hawkeye Express in an effort to give Hawkeye fans in the Des Moines area a chance to capture a piece of Iowa history while traveling to Kinnick Stadium.

"We've had an unbelievable response," Breining said. "We may have actually sold more tickets than we should have for the Iowa State game, but we think people will still find the trains comfortable and fun. There is lots of room."

The train belongs to Uncommon Journeys, a company based in Walnut Creek, Calif. Restored to the condition of the 1940s and '50s — the heyday of the Hawkeye Express — the cars offer 72 deluxe class seats, with tickets for $129, and 260 coach seats, with tickets for $69, Breining said.

The cars will be pulled by Iowa Interstate Railroad, an Iowa based freight train company. Breining said the company usually handles freight, but made an excuse, in this case, to transport passengers. Traditions return in a sesquicentennial year

"Trains have had a huge impact in the history of Iowa," Breining said. "They've faded in the past 25 or 30 years, and now I can see why."

Iowa Hawkeye Football Express
 ■ Tickets are $69 for round-trip, coach class and $129 for deluxe class. A five-game pass is available for $330.
 ■ Tickets are available through Five Oaks Charters in Des Moines at (515) 244-4919.

DI/ME

Breining said he wanted to run the train to all six of Iowa's home games, but encountered difficulties before the Arizona game last Saturday.

"It used to be a tradition," he said. "Railroad travel is another world in its own, but I didn't realize all the intricacies associated with it. It's not as easy dealing with a train service as it is a bus service."

Linda Noble, manager of parking operations at the UI Parking and Transportation Department, said she likes the idea of bringing the train back, and hopes it will help ease congestion around the stadium.

"I think (the train) is great," she said. "If people who would normally drive to the game take the train, it might cut down traffic."

Details
 Breining said all of the seats to the Iowa State game are sold out. The train will leave Des Moines on Saturday at 10 a.m., with loading beginning at 9 a.m., and will run non-stop to Iowa City. Breining said subsequent departure times will vary due to changing game times, but he estimated a departure four and a half hours prior to kickoff.

The train will sit on the tracks outside Kinnick Stadium throughout the game, but for security reasons, the public will not be permitted to see the inside of the train.

Train tickets are still available for all remaining games, though some are close to selling out, such as the Oct. 5 train to the Homecoming game against Michigan State. Blocks of tickets also are available upon request.

Use of the train during future seasons will hinge on its success over the next five games. Breining said about halfway through the season, he'll decide the status of the Hawkeye Express for next year.

Police offer advice on keeping safe in Iowa City

Will Valet
The Daily Iowan

Following the brutal rape of a woman on South Gilbert Street Sept. 6, the Iowa City Police Department has issued tips on how women and men can stay safe while walking the streets of Iowa City.

Sgt. Mike Lord of the ICPD said the best protection in an assault or molestation situation is to draw attention to oneself, primarily by making noise.

"When a victim makes noise, it tends to scare the attacker, and that gives the victim the upper hand," he said.

Besides screaming, Lord also recommends carrying a whistle or pocket alarm to scare an attacker and get help.

Lord said cases such as last Friday's rape by a stranger are uncommon in the Iowa City area.

"We don't have many reported attacks like that," he said. "Most of the sexual assault or molestation cases are by acquaintances of the victims."

Reported sex offenses have decreased in number in the last five years, from 76 in 1991 to 50 in 1995, Lord said. Sex offenses include rape, forcible fondling and sexual assault with an object.

Lord has worked on several sexual assault and molestation cases in the Iowa City area since 1990. He said one of the last major cases of sexual molestation occurred two years ago.

"We had a rash of reports of a man running up to people and grabbing them somewhere on their body, then running away," he said.

The incidents ended with the arrest of a man fitting victims' descriptions.

Safety Tips

- When walking at night, stay in a well-lit area.
- Do not walk alone. If must walk alone, stay close to another group of people.
- If you must walk alone, notify a friend or roommate you will be out.
- When walking on a sidewalk, walk closer to the street than nearby buildings.
- Always be aware of your location.
- Be careful with Mace or other weapons, they can often be used against you.
- If you are attacked, do whatever is necessary to survive the attack.

Rural areas face growing drug problem

Charlotte Eby
The Daily Iowan

Stereotypes about lack of violence in rural areas are deteriorating as small towns in Iowa face growing drug use and domestic violence.

As methamphetamines, or crank, grow in popularity, smaller towns are seeing an increase in violent crime and behavior, whether it's domestic abuse or drive-by shootings, said Ken Arduser, of the State Division of Narcotics Enforcement.

Des Moines and Waterloo are the two cities in Iowa that are recognized as following urban crime patterns, such as drugs and gangs, but these cities are usually five years behind the crime trends of larger cities in the Midwest, such as Kansas City.

Tracy Koogler, a UI sophomore from Pella, Iowa, said she was very unaware of crime in bigger cities while growing up. She said a bust of methamphetamines this summer in her small town surprised residents.

The drugs of choice in small town and rural areas are marijuana and LSD, said Dean Wright, professor of sociology at Drake University in Des Moines. These communities are usually not plagued like large metropolitan areas with drug problems, such as cocaine and heroine, but have been affected by the increase of use and manufacture of methamphetamines.

Wright said an increase is linked with higher rates of violent crime, especially domestic abuse. Wright said domestic abuse is as common in rural areas as it is in urban areas.

"Methamphetamine creates violent reactions in people," said Arduser. "Anyone who is a meth user for 30-60 days sees the effects of it. The effects include paranoia which causes violence."

Martha Coco of the Iowa Department of Public Safety said while Iowa cities of 50,000 or more have the highest rates of domestic abuse per 100,000 people, towns in Iowa with populations of 6,000 or less have the second highest rate.

But these small towns don't have the advantages of cities when it comes to manpower for enforcing laws.

"Generally, small towns are not as well-financed and don't have the crime control apparatus that larger towns have," said John Stratton, professor of sociology at the UI.

Wright said officers who go through the police academy in Iowa and work in small towns have excellent training, but larger forces can afford to have officers travel and take time off to gain more specialized training.

"In rural communities, it's more informal justice than formal justice," said Wright.

Trailer collision on Interstate 80 ends kills 1

Two semi tractor/trailers were involved in a rear-end collision, killing one driver and injuring the other early Thursday on Interstate 80.

Donald J. Robey, 32, was pronounced dead at the scene after his semi rear-ended a semi driven by Thomas Cullen, who received lacerations.

Cullen was transported to the UI Hospitals and Clinics and was listed in stable condition.

Cullen was standing outside his vehicle, which was stalled and legally parked facing east on the right shoulder with its reflectors on, when Robey's semi went off the road.

On impact, Robey's tractor exploded and came to rest in the left eastbound lane, while Cullen's semi rolled into the ditch.

Robey's trailer, containing boxed edible meat, sustained water and fire damage, while the collision tore open Cullen's trailer and scattered inedible scrap meat across the road.

The accident happened between the 254 and 255 mile markers eastbound on I-80 around 1:45 a.m. Thursday.

The accident is still under investigation by Iowa State Patrol.

Quotable
Iowa State game

"It will be a crazy weekend, that's for sure. The whole state of Iowa will be focusing on this city this weekend."

Dan Beck, president of the UI chapter of Beta Theta Pi, on Saturday's Iowa vs.

Welcome to 'Let's Have a Scandal!'

Johnny Fraud: Hi, I'm Johnny Fraud, your host for America's favorite new game show, "Let's Have a Scandal!" And now, please welcome our first contestant, campaign strategist Dick Morris! Please welcome our second contestant first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton! And please welcome our third contestant, President Bill Clinton! How are you three doing today?

Dick and Hillary: Fine.
Bill: I want to reassure my fellow Americans that I will work harder than I have ever worked before to win this ...

Johnny: Okay, thank you, Bill! Now it's time to explain the rules. One contestant will try to answer questions from an "issue" category. For each correct answer, he or she will get a $100 donation to their own Legal Defense Fund. The other contestants can steal the "issue" for which they will score extra points toward the Re-election Round. Today's champion will receive a sympathetic media willing to look the other way. The losers will send the nation into a major constitutional crisis. Okay, today's categories are: Sex and Drugs, Buck Passing, Act Indignant and Credibility. Okay, Dick, you get to go first.

Dick: I'll take Act Indignant.
Johnny: Okay. A presidential campaign strategist has been caught having an affair with a call girl and passing on sensitive campaign information to her. What should he do?

Dick: Issue a statement in which he resigns because he doesn't want to subject his family to sleazy yellow journalism.

Johnny: Correct! You get $100. Next category, Dick?
Dick: I'll take Sex and Drugs.

Johnny: Okay, the media continuously hounds a presidential candidate about his alleged marijuana smoking. How should he respond?

Dick: I didn't do it.
Johnny: No, sorry, Dick. Hillary?

Hillary: I didn't violate U.S. law.

Johnny: No, sorry, Bill?
Bill: I didn't inhale.
Johnny: Yes, that's correct! Okay, Bill, you choose.

Bill: You mean I have to make a decision? Oh, no! Well, let's see ... I'll take Sex and Drugs, no ... ah ... Buck Passing ... no ... Credibility.

Johnny: Okay. A former FBI agent writes a scathing book about a president's administration. What should the administration do?

Bill: Claim the author has zero credibility.
Johnny: That's right! One-hundred dollars for you. Now choose again.

Bill: Okay, I'll take Buck Passing.
Johnny: It's been discovered that the White House has invaded the privacy of prominent Republicans by illegally obtaining their FBI files. What should the White House do?

Bill: Umm ... say it was an innocent bureaucratic snafu and blame it on Craig Livingstone.

Johnny: Yes, that's correct. Oh, this question has a bonus issue attached to it. Whichever contestant can correctly answer it gets $200! Now, who hired Craig Livingstone?

Hillary: The dead guy, Vince Foster?
Johnny: Yes, that's correct! Two-hundred dollars for you. Okay, Hillary, choose the next category.

Hillary: I'll go with Sex and Drugs.

Johnny: Okay. A former lounge singer has come forward to say she had an affair with the president. She has a tape recording of a phone conversation she had with the president in which the president makes an inflammatory remark about Gov. Mario Cuomo. What should the president do?

Hillary: Deny the affair.
Johnny: No, sorry, that's not sufficient. Bill?
Bill: Deny the affair and apologize to Mario Cuomo.

Johnny: Yes, that's right! Okay, Bill, next category?

Bill: I'll go with Credibility.

Johnny: Okay, the president and first lady's former business partners, the McDougals, are convicted of financial wrongdoing in a shady land deal. In order to obtain a lighter sentence, James McDougal agrees to cooperate with federal prosecutors and will probably implicate the president himself. If this happens, what should the president do? Dick?

Dick: Claim McDougal has no credibility.
Johnny: No, sorry. You see, the president already testified on behalf of McDougal as a character witness. Bill?

Bill: Say he used to be credible, but now due to all the pressure and stress he is under he is just no longer trustworthy.

Johnny: Yes, that's right. Another $100 for you! And, now it's time for the Impeachment Round ... oh, sorry, were out of time. Tune in next week, when one of these lucky players will get to compete in our tournament of champions for the grand prize, a Presidential Pardon. Returning champions will be former Speaker of the House Jim Wright, Oliver North and Richard Nixon. Of course, Richard Nixon has passed on, but Hillary has been so nice as to loan us her psychic so that we can channel with Mr. Nixon's spirit. See you next time on "Let's Have a Scandal!"

Dave Hogberg's column appears Fridays on the Viewpoints Pages.

Rainbows are nothing to fear

In 1979, a drag queen from San Francisco named Gilbert Baker, who was used to sewing together his own ball gowns, made a rainbow-colored flag to take to a gay pride festival. That was history in the making, for in the years to come, that flag became the international symbol of pride and love for gay, lesbian and transgendered people.

Seventeen years later, you can see this rainbow on everything from key chains to candles (not to mention the most common — bumper stickers).

For many, bearing a rainbow-colored bumper sticker on one's car shows the pride and familiarity in what and who they are.

Still, putting yourself on the line could present some serious repercussions in some communities. Slapping a sticker on your car to show who you are, whether African-American, Hispanic or gay, could present a potentially dangerous situation, no matter how insensitive it may seem.

In more metropolitan cities, where unwelcome diversity is likely, as well as raging ignorance and hatred, some bigots will pick out minorities at random and cause violence against them. Being gay is harder to detect than ethnicity, and pointing out to everybody that you are, especially in some neighborhoods, could spell out trouble. Gay men and women are all too aware of this gay bashing.

Gay men and women are all too aware of this gay bashing.

In the world we live in, anything can happen to anyone at any time. People should not be scared to tell others what they are, especially if they are proud of it. But the facts are: Some people just aren't nice or as politically correct as we'd want or assume they should be.

Since its creation, the rainbow has gained widespread community support. People have adopted it all over the world as a symbol of unity, not just gay unity, but for all people.

People, no matter who they are, should be able to express themselves however they feel. After all, that's what this country was founded on.

But as long as people are scared and ignorant of others, expression will be limited.

No chance for Lambda Chi Alpha

In a time when many Greek organizations are having trouble getting members, the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity is making its bid to rejoin the Greek community. After Matthew Garofalo's alcohol-related death last year at their house, the UI forced the fraternity to close its doors.

Now, a proposal has been sent to UI officials on behalf of Lambda Chi Alpha detailing measures by which its members are willing to abide in order to be allowed on campus again. The provisions include: being completely substance free (which may include smoking), a live-in house director, an alcohol awareness/alcohol poisoning program and exceeding the all-UI men's GPA. The earliest this could happen is fall 1997.

Their persistence in trying to gain their house back is very admirable, but the hardships won't pay off if they are allowed back on campus.

One of the major factors that will hurt Lambda Chi Alpha if it returns is the lack of membership. The last two pledge classes have passed them by, and when rush rolls around next year, the only members left will be seniors. Seeing the uphill battle to build the fraternity back up with little reward other than moral satisfaction, these few members will likely be reluctant to devote much time to the quest.

The students who are rushing would undoubtedly be told of the fraternity's recent reinstatement and the death of associate member Garofalo. If that is not enough of a turn off, there's the fact that Lambda Chi Alpha would be completely substance free. Translation: No alcohol ever on Lambda Chi Alpha property no matter what your age. This is not saying the members cannot go elsewhere to party, but the house itself would be rather docile.

In each fraternity, there is a continuum of brotherhood that goes from pledge class to pledge class that bonds the fraternity together. In Lambda Chi Alpha, this string is broken and would be next to impossible to start up again now that two pledge classes have been lost. In essence, they are starting from scratch as a new fraternity, except they have added burden of overcoming the consequences of one tragic September night in 1995.

Lambda Chi Alpha had its own personality, which is now gone. The students who would join the fraternity would most likely not fit that traditional Lambda Chi Alpha personality, which would make it even a bigger change and a more discouraging task.

The undergraduate members' proposal to return to campus was one filled with responsibility to design a fraternity that embodies the true greek spirit: scholarship, leadership and service. There is a market out there for a fraternity of this type. But under the name of Lambda Chi Alpha.

Lambda Chi Alpha should pack it up and cut their losses. As commendable a fight as it is to save one's fraternity, it is time to go; failure is imminent.

Today is Lea's lucky day

Today, while you read this column on the bus, at your desk, over coffee or under duress, I will be preparing to defend my dissertation. At first, my editor kindly offered me the week off. I was going to take her up on it, but then I realized running a column on the day of my defense might be a great opportunity for me to make a final and public plea of leniency to the committee members.

I hope the committee members see this column. But what if they are all so busy reading my 231 page tome that they don't have time for today's DI? Oh, well, it's worth a try. Here goes:

"Hey, esteemed professors of my dissertation committee, you who hold the balance of my academic future in your hot little hands, you who have read my proposal and have given me so many suggestions as to how to amend its flaws, you who were given a 231 page document a few weeks ago in your mailboxes, hey guys, be nice to me, OK? After all, it's Friday the 13th."

Defending my dissertation on Friday, Sept. 13, was actually my adviser's idea. It seemed like as good a day as any: better, in fact, because this year Friday the 13th is also the beginning of the High Holy Day season in the Jewish calendar. Tonight, many of us will be worshipping together and celebrating the new year, which commences a period of solemnity, introspection and transformation. I will arrive at services fresh (or bedraggled) from my defense, at which time I will either be "Dr. Haravon" or I won't.

I decided to do a little research on the number 13, just to see what the big deal is about this number. I have always liked the number 13. Odd and prime, it sits between the rather banal and easily divisible 12 and 14. Here's what I found out:

According to a book on tarot, 13 used to be "one of the most sacred of the numbers, signifying the end and the beginning." It is also "the magical lunar number of witchcraft and the ancient religion of the Goddess." No wonder people are scared of it. Witchcraft and the Goddess have been conflated with Satanism, evil and other such unrelated practices.

As far as my defense goes, I figure I can use as many deities as I can rattle up at one time. How can I go wrong with Goddesses, the Jewish New Year and an Iowa vs. Iowa State football game all on the same weekend? I guess I'm stretching it with the football, but I'll take what I can get. Because I'm pretty nervous.

To calm myself down, I perused a copy of the paper. The paper happened to be the Chronicle of Higher Education. The article I chanced upon happened to be about the dissertation process. Big mistake.

Of the dissertation defense, one professor said, "I have a lot of sympathy for graduate students. I think never again are you in a situation where there's such a power inequality, where your entire professional destiny depends on this one oral experience."

Reading that really helped me relax and put things into perspective. But not as much as the words of a fellow graduate student in the same article: "the only thing I could compare (a dissertation defense) to would be if you had a child and you were raising the baby with a team of child psychologists, and on the child's 7th birthday, everyone got together to evaluate how you've done." If you've done a bad job, you lose the child.

I can't believe I have spent all this time writing a newspaper column when I am about to lose my only child! I gotta go!

But before I do, I would like to offer another way of looking at the dissertation defense process. I don't know where I got this one, but you can be sure it wasn't from the Chronicle. What if the oral defense is a process in which our committee members, after thorough examination of our efforts, welcome us into a community of scholars? What if the student moves through a rite of passage, an initiation in which the faculty on the committee lose a student and gain a colleague? Just some thoughts.

Off I go. I'll take a deep breath, do my best and comfort myself with the words of one of my professors and committee members who said, "If dissertations were meant to be perfect, graduate students would not be the ones writing them." If all goes well today, I won't be a graduate student any more, at which point this quote ceases to be reassuring. Will I have to be perfect post-defense?

I'll worry about that later. For now, I'll just hope Friday the 13th is my lucky day. Happy New Year.

Looking for a few good cartoonists

To the Editor:
In David Schwartz's column "Jim's Journal" is gone and that's OK" (DI, Sept. 11), the editor makes two distinct points regarding the cancellation of the popular cartoon strip. While his reason for discontinuing "Jim's Journal" is legitimate (its distributor has not cooperated to renew The Daily Iowan's subscription), it is Schwartz's seemingly baseless assessment of Kevin Fair's "The Fairgrounds" with which I take issue.
According to the editor, "Kevin Fair is far and away the top strip cartoonist on the UI campus, and we wouldn't be running his strip if he weren't." In contrast to the subtle and minimalist "Jim's Journal," "The Fairgrounds" usually contains, as cartoon strips go, a well-developed "plot." Many times

I've even found it quite funny (albeit in its irony: it is an unfortunate, though accurate portrayal of the lives of many students). Yet for Schwartz to, "with a clear conscience," state that it is the best by far a UI student could do, leads me to question the standards by which he measures not only humor but artistic maturity.

As a published cartoonist (Record Herald and Indianola Tribune of Indianola, Iowa; Weekly Vista of Bella Vista, Ark.), I challenge the editor to thoroughly search this large university community of talented artists and excellent young writers for the true heir to the "Jim's Journal" throne—Let's see who can really earn the privilege to be called "the top strip cartoonist on campus."

What would it take, ICPD?

To the Editor:

What a shame! In the midst of what has been several investigations referred to as an unprovoked killing by an Iowa City police officer, Iowa City Police Chief R.J. Winkelhake decides that "... the officers acted correctly according to department procedure." (DI, Sept. 9, "City to address shooting death")

One wonders what it would take for such an action to be in some way incorrect in the eyes of ICPD procedure.

The mere possession of a badge does not make me a target and you a gun-toting enthusiast on a firing range, Winkelhake. I do hope the ICPD will not further attempt to pretend this killing was somehow a reasonable act.

The committee behind the tenure guidelines

On Aug. 30, the FYI printed a copy of proposed procedural guidelines for tenure and promotional decision-making. An accompanying explanation said only that a "faculty committee" had recommended these guidelines would be "both fair and more consistent across the university than past procedures," and invited faculty members to make any suggestions to the Faculty Senate. As members of the committee that drafted the guidelines, we thought faculty members might find some additional background information helpful.

The committee was appointed by then-Provost Peter Nathan in the spring of 1995 because the provost, the vice president for Health Sciences and the ombudsperson's office were all concerned the existing system for making tenure and promotion decisions was often working badly. The specific concerns were that, in many instances, candidates for tenure and promotion were treated inconsistently or were treated according to guidelines that were unspecified, unknown, or even nonexistent. It was recognized that, in some instances, the absence of established ground rules may have led the candidate to be mistaken in feeling unfairly treated, but that too was felt to be undesirable.

The committee was charged to develop recommendations for centralized procedures and for parameters for procedures that should be the province of the academic colleges. The committees' charge to make recommendations concerning procedures did not encompass any consideration of the academic standards of the university, colleges or other units, and the procedures developed do not deal with these existing academic standards.

As the academic colleges of the undersigned committee members should demonstrate, the committee was drawn from diverse parts of the university. A representative of the provost's office participated in the committee's deliberations throughout and, as a consequence, ... in many instances, candidates for tenure and promotion were treated inconsistently or were treated according to guidelines that were unspecified, unknown, or even nonexistent.

the committee was continually reminded of specific illustrations of procedural problems throughout the university.

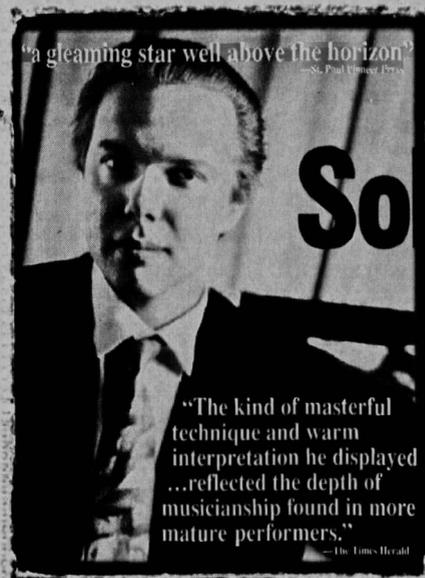

In December 1995, the committee circulated an earlier draft to a wide group of interested and affected persons within the university (including the vice president for Health Sciences, all college deans, the president of the Faculty Senate, the presiding officer and investigating officer of the Faculty Grievance Procedure and the president of the University of Iowa chapter of the American Association of University of Professors) from which a substantial amount of feedback was received and made the basis of extensive revision of the committee's work. The former ombudsperson commented on that earlier draft and also contributed to refining the revised draft. The University General Counsel also reviewed and influenced the committee's work at both of these stages.

We have submitted the proposed Procedural Guideline to the provost as his predecessor requested us to do, and the provost is now seeking advice through a consultation process. The consideration by the Faculty Senate is one part — and an important part — of this process. Eventually, in light of this consultation and his own judgment, the provost will decide whether to adopt our proposal (with or without revisions).

More protesters than reported

To the Editor:

Did your reporter really attend the Civic Center protest against the police killing of Eric Shaw (DI, Sept. 11, "I.C. residents call for citizens' review board"), or did someone just make up the story while sitting in a residence hall room watching reruns of "Cops"?

You stated "about 20" people expressed their views on the Shaw killing to the Iowa City City Council Tuesday night. And your story left the impression that only 20 people participated in the protest rally.

If you want the facts, here they are. More than 150 people joined the protest before the start of the city council meeting. We have the petition signatures to prove it!

Some 75-100 of the demonstrators went into the meeting, producing a standing-room-only crowd that overflowed into the lobby. According to the Iowa City Press-Citizen, not 20 but 37 citizens actually spoke at the meeting.

The Shaw family is already suffering deeply from the effects of police brutality and a cowardly city council.

Your irresponsible coverage only adds to the Shaw family's pain. It also harms citizen efforts to make sure Iowa City police don't kill innocent people again.

Proud of Chief Winkelhake

To the Editor:

I am writing to you in support of Iowa City Police Chief R.J. Winkelhake.

Winkelhake has done Iowa City and its residents much good. It is unfortunate that he is being referred to as scapegoating the "Shaw shooting." Eric Shaw's death is tragic one. I empathize with his family. If it were possible to undo this terrible incident, we all would want that (including R.J. Winkelhake and Jeffrey Gillaspie). But making hasty decisions will not benefit any of us. Some people are acting a bit irrational right now; please do not allow yourself to do the same.

To terminate or accept a resignation from R.J. Winkelhake would be an act of cowardness and a great injustice to our community.

We have a wonderful police force. I am proud to say I have lived in Iowa City for 25 years, and it keeps getting better. Our officers need to know that we still have faith and respect for them. That goes double for our police chief.

Hortense hits islands, eyes U.S.

Jose Luis de Leon (right) struggles to keep Cassandra Gomez, 1, from being swept away by flood waters caused by Hurricane Hortense Tuesday. Cassandra, her three siblings and her father were trapped inside their home by the floods for nine hours, but were eventually rescued.

Niko Price
Associated Press

NASSAU, Bahamas — Packing 130-mph winds, Hurricane Hortense took a swipe at the Turks and Caicos islands and barreled past the Bahamas Thursday on a track that could threaten the northeastern United States over the weekend.

In Puerto Rico, where at least 13 people died in the storm Tuesday, residents and work crews continued their arduous cleanup — from sorting through soiled clothing to clearing roads and bridges.

Their misery was compounded by widespread water and power outages — about 40 percent of the island's 3.6 million people still had no power Thursday — but federal help was on the way. More than 7,600 people were registered at 115 shelters Thursday.

At 5 p.m. EDT Thursday, Hortense was centered about 730 miles south-southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C., or about 310 miles east of Nassau. It was moving north at 12 mph, with hurricane-force winds extending outward up to 70 miles from its center.

Heavy surf from the storm could reach southeastern U.S. shores by today, and there is a slight chance the storm could threaten Long Island, N.Y.; Rhode Island; or Cape Cod, Mass., on Sunday, forecasters said.

Meanwhile, another hurricane was menacing Mexico's Pacific coast. On the lower half of Mexico's Baja California peninsula, flights were canceled and ports closed to all vessels as Hurricane Fausto moved closer, with sustained winds of 120 mph, up from 90 mph on Wednesday.

Thursday afternoon, Fausto was located about 115 miles southwest of Cabo San Lucas, on the peninsula's southern tip. Its outer winds were already buffeting the peninsula. The hurricane was moving northward at 10 mph, possibly reaching the southern portion of the peninsula by Thursday night.

Hortense was expected to continue north and increase speed to 20 mph today, according to the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

The hurricane pounded the Turks and Caicos islands with 90-mph winds, but inflicted no serious damage. No injuries were reported. In the Bahamas, residents stowed property and boarded up windows for the second time in two weeks — Hurricane Fran narrowly missed the islands last week — only to awaken Thursday to sunny skies.

"Everybody battened up and did hurricane preparations and no one was allowed to go to work yesterday, but nothing happened," said Marion Cartwright, a telephone operator on Great Inagua Island.

The death toll from Hortense reached 15 with the discovery of a man's body on a beach in Patillas in southeastern Puerto Rico late Wednesday. The storm, which delivered as much as 20 inches of rain, killed 13 people in Puerto Rico and two in the Dominican Republic. Most were drowning victims.

President Clinton declared four Puerto Rican towns disaster areas, making residents eligible for federal grants, low-interest loans and emergency housing. More towns could be added to the list as Federal Emergency Management Agency officials survey the island.

Damage estimates for Puerto Rico reached $155 million and were certain to rise, Gov. Pedro Rossello said. Agricultural losses alone reached $128 million, with coffee and banana plantations severely damaged.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a move cardiologists hope will make devices for treating cardiac arrest as common as first-aid kits, the Food and Drug Administration has approved the smallest and cheapest machines that can shock a heart into beating again.

Experts said a third of the 300,000 Americans who die of cardiac arrest every year might be saved if emergency workers had delivered an electrical shock to restart the heart during the critical first minutes.

Paramedics carry defibrillators to do that, but the machines are so bulky, complicated and expensive that most police officers and firefighters — typically the first to respond to emergencies — don't carry them, costing precious time in treatment.

Cardiologists are demanding smaller, more affordable defibrillators that every emergency worker could carry as easily as they carry fire extinguishers or first-aid kits. The Food and Drug Administration on Wednesday approved the first in a new wave of such units, Heartstream Inc.'s ForeRunner.

About the size of a book, it weighs just 4 pounds, half the weight of the smallest unit now available. It will cost between $3,000 and $4,000, somewhat cheaper than the $5,000 to $7,500 price tags common for today's defibrillators.

ForeRunner "has some very definite advantages," said Dr. Roger White of the Mayo Clinic, who led a campaign to put defibrillators in the police cars in the clinic's hometown of Rochester, Minn., a move that gave the city the nation's highest survival rate for cardiac arrest.

Cardiac arrest is not a heart attack, it's worse: The electrical signals that tell the muscles to pump go haywire so the heart actually stop. Victims pass out almost immediately and the average survival rate is just 5 percent.

"If you defibrillate early, you can have high survival rates, and it's the only thing that works," explained Alan Levy, president of Seattle-based Heartstream.

the Defense of Marriage Act, 85-14, which would outlaw same-sex marriages, and rejected a bill that would have barred job discrimination against gays, 50-49.

Mona Shaw, public relations coordinator for the UI School of Music and a board member for the association, said this was the first time in history two important gay issues were brought to the floor of Congress.

"The Republican party is coming around," Shaw said.

"The vote for equal opportunity on the job was close.

"Since we never seem to lose ground, next time it could be very possible to win.

"The vote against the Marriage Act won't last forever. It might take longer to pass, but it creates discussion throughout the public. Because the subject has been brought up, more people will have an opinion about it."

David Tingwald, a LesBiGay member, said, "For having a Republican congress, this was a big win."

The association, which meets once a month, was founded in 1990 by about 20 faculty members. There are now about 180 people on the "National Coming Out Day" mailing list.

"The group is mostly made up of faculty and staff members," said Meredith Alexander, a faculty member in Theater and Opportunity at Iowa. "I wish the climate was more open here.

"That would make some students feel safer to come out, if that's what they wanted."

The organization, which does not require its members to be lesbian, gay or bisexual, intends to serve a major advocacy role on campus, and provide education for individuals trying to overcome homophobia in the workplace.

The association also allows a network for faculty to meet other people, Linda Kroon, co-chairperson of the association, said.

"Our group helps to give a face to the University role in showing diversity," Kroon said.

IRAQ

Agency, likened the recent turmoil to the period six years ago just before Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. He said Kuwait's rulers were in "evil collaboration with America in conspiring against Iraq's people."

He did not say if Iraq would take any military action to counter the Kuwaiti move.

The past two weeks have seen Saddam undertake his biggest military venture since the end of the 1991 Persian Gulf War, sending troops Aug. 31 into the north to help Kurdish allies rout a rival Iranian-backed Kurdish group.

With that victory, Saddam effectively wiped out the Kurdish safe haven that the United States and its allies established at the end of the war, giving him control of the north for the first time in five years.

In response, the Americans showered cruise missiles on Iraqi air defense sites in southern Iraq last week and expanded a southern no-fly zone set up to protect Shiite Muslims.

The expanded zone makes it even more difficult for Saddam to move his troops around the region without attracting notice from the U.S.-led air forces, which fly scores of sorties every day.

The U.S. actions against Iraq received a cool reception in the Arab world, even among partners from the Gulf War coalition. But Kuwait, which still considers Iraq a serious threat, has been fully supportive.

A spokesperson for U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher, who met Thursday with a delegation of ambassadors from Persian Gulf countries, said regional support for the U.S. effort remains strong.

"The coalition remains very much in place and remains very much active and engaged," said spokesperson Glyn Davies.

that's for sure," said Dan Beck, chapter president of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. "The whole state of Iowa will be focusing on this city this weekend."

Beck said the Iowa-Iowa State game offers an opportunity for Beta houses from the two schools to get together, enjoy the game and continue a rivalry of their own.

The associate members from the UI chapter and the Iowa State chapter will go head to head in a flag-football game that takes place every year either on the UI or Iowa State campus.

"If the UI wins and we win, it's a double bonus," Beck said.

"It's kind of an excuse for them to road trip here and go to the game, and they can have a place to stay."

Chuck Green, director of the UI

Department of Public Safety, said he is anticipating a larger crowd than was in town for last weekend's Arizona game, and more traffic problems because of the loss of parking at Hancher Auditorium. A late afternoon performance at Hancher Auditorium will cause about 1,000 fans to find alternative parking.

"We feel we're going to have more of a traffic jam, and it's a later game," Green said. "So that's more of a concern."

Although later game times have traditionally caused increased tailgating, Green said he doesn't expect any more problems with this weekend's game than on other football weekends.

"We are just hoping that fans will keep it under control so that everyone can enjoy the game, and leave having a safe and wonderful time," he said.

UI sophomore Keri McGuire said the fierce rivalry between the two teams makes for crazy Kinnick crowds, which enhances an already fun event.

"I love the crowds because it makes the games more exciting when there are a lot of people cheering them on," McGuire said. "I think everyone's just coming here to have a good time, and once everyone leaves the stadium, they're all friends again."

McGuire said she'll attend the game with friends from Iowa State and the University of Northern Iowa.

"We are going to go out downtown (tonight), and Saturday we will tailgate before the game," she said. "We will probably go out again Saturday night, too."

The victim did not know her assailant, which is the most brutal and frightening aspect of the case, Brotherton said. This fact also creates a dilemma for law enforcement.

"He could have come from anywhere," Brotherton said. "For all we know, he may live in the area or he may move from city to city committing this type of assault."

The composites of the assailant will be given to all ICPD officers and distributed to other agencies around the state.

Beyond that, Brotherton said there isn't much they can do until an officer or agency identifies a possible suspect or the assailant strikes again.

Brotherton said he hasn't heard of any other assaults of this type, but hopes this incident would inspire other possible victims to speak out.

"To the best of my knowledge, this is an isolated incident," he said.

"But if there are other victims, we'd like them to come forward; (the ICPD guarantees) complete anonymity, and we wouldn't do anything without the victim's permission or approval."

If anyone has any information regarding this crime or any other similar crimes, Brotherton can be contacted at 356-5275.

KING

The Daily Iowan, "My dad got me a guitar, and I used to listen to the radio at night and jam to it. On the farm, we plowed with mules, cut timber, harvested corn and cotton. But I wanted to get out on my own, and at age 17 I did ... my whole life has been good."

Connolly said King has been in Iowa City for four or five years. He was a resident of Hillcrest Supported Living, 326 S. Clinton St., but recently fulfilled his dream of independent living by renting his own apartment. His roommate Rick Weber said he would often play the guitar for King when King was tired.

For many, King's energy is legendary. Downtown employees easily recalled the many hours King would spend outside their stores.

"Monroe would be here from the time we opened until we closed," said Tim Dickens, an employee of Herten & Stocker Jewelers, 101 S. Dubuque St.

Iowa City residents Steve and Susan Fugate said King was always willing to sing "Happy Birthday" to people in the Pedestrian at Mall.

He adored children, Connolly said. "He would give suckers to the young children and say 'Yeah, little one,'" Connolly said.

It was his charm and his distinctive voice that made him stand out. Iowa City resident Brad Meister said he loved how King would begin singing softly and get progressively louder.

"You would be walking through the Ped Mall and then all of sudden you would hear Monroe really start singing loud," Meister said.

Iowa City resident Carl Bodreau said there is more to Monroe than meets the eye. He said King is a gentleman who would happily share the space where he played in the Pedestrian Mall with fellow street musicians.

"Monroe seemed to live by a Southern code of honor," Bodreau said. "He had an old-fashioned sense of fair play that would shine through."

Monroe added a charm to Iowa City that came to be expected by those in the Pedestrian Mall. His genuine smile and heartfelt songs will be missed, Connolly said.

"Monroe never had any money in his pocket, but he had a universe full of love in his heart," Connolly said. He said King's friends have raised money for his burial in Mississippi, where he will be laid next to his father.

Cards of support can be sent in care of Monroe King to the UIHC.

"Sittin on the Dock of the Bay."

Play it one more time, Monroe.

Iverson ready to sign contract with 76ers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers have reached contract terms with Allen Iverson, the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft and the player the team hopes will lead Philadelphia's revival.

The team scheduled a Friday news conference for Iverson to sign the three-year contract, which according to sources was worth $9.6 million, the most money allowed under the NBA's rookie salary cap.

Iverson, 21, averaged 23 points during his two-year career with Georgetown. He left the Hoyas after his sophomore season.

The Sixers expect to move Iverson to point guard, where he will be expected to deliver the ball to shooting guard Jerry Stackhouse and power forward Derrick Coleman.

Nike pulls plug on Griffey presidential campaign

BEAVERTON, Ore. (AP) — Move over Phil Gramm, Pat Buchanan and Steve Forbes. Ken Griffey Jr. has abandoned his presidential bid, too.

Nike has quietly pulled the plug on the tongue-in-cheek advertising campaign that had the Seattle Mariners' center fielder running for the highest office in the land.

The fact that the Mariners aren't likely to make it to postseason play figured prominently in Nike's decision.

"For reasons that Steve Forbes and Pat Buchanan could get into, sometimes you end your run a little earlier than you thought you would," Nike spokeswoman Robin Carr-Locke said Thursday.

New mask gets green light

TORONTO (AP) — Toronto Blue Jays catcher Charlie O'Brien received word Thursday from baseball's rules committee that his innovative, hockey-style mask can be used in a game.

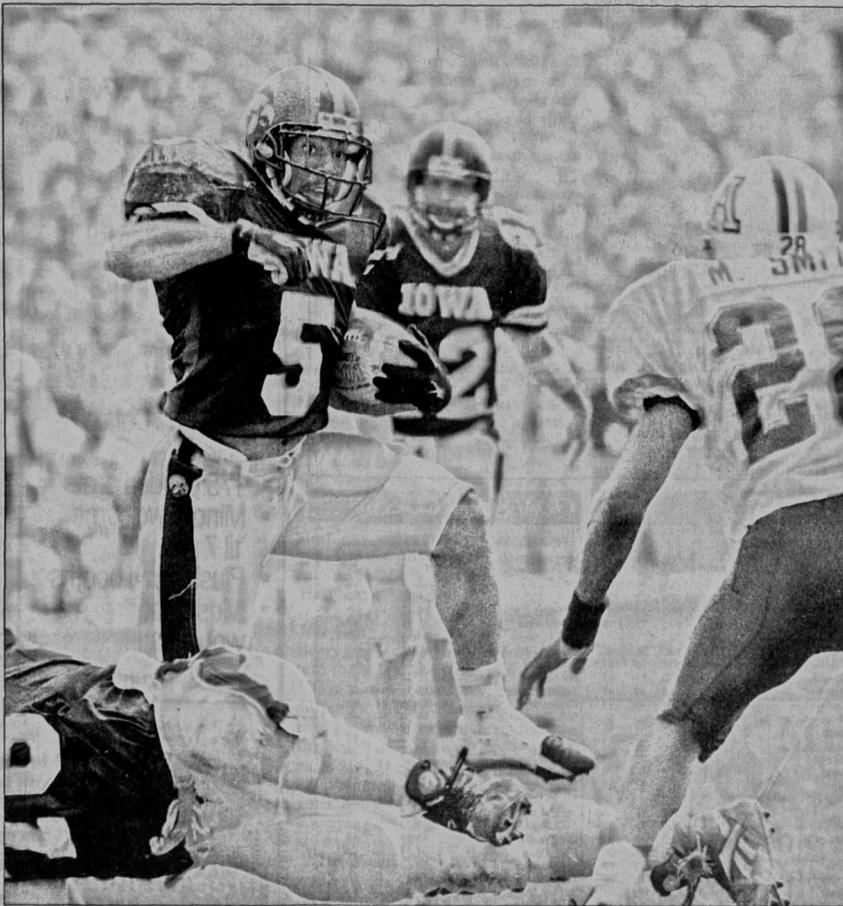

O'Brien has been wanting to use the mask since it was developed in the spring. The delay came from the commissioner's office over safety concerns.

"It wasn't much of a surprise when he first came to us," said Bill Murray, executive director of operations in the commissioner's office. "It's something we could see people using."

The mask is personalized the same way NHL goalies Curtis Joseph and Patrick Roy personalize theirs. It has a fierce-looking Blue Jay painted on it, along with O'Brien's signature phrase: "Catch ya later."

Rivalry roars into Kinnick

Sedrick Shaw leaps over an Iowa offensive lineman last week against Arizona.

Cyclones have 13 reasons to get riled up

Wayne Drehs
 The Daily Iowan

The Iowa football team enters Saturday's game with Iowa State with absolutely nothing to gain, but everything to lose.

A loss to the Cyclones would not only drop No. 21 Iowa well out of the rankings, but would also end its 13-game winning streak against its intrastate rival.

Kickoff is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Kinnick Stadium.

"Can you imagine all the garbage we'd get from the media, the fans, the Cyclone fans and the president of the University if we lost," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said. "They'd be fifty feet off the ground."

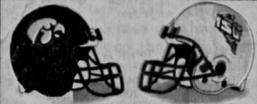

The Cyclones are led by 1995 Heisman Trophy finalist Troy Davis, who after last year's Iowa vs. Iowa State game, predicted the streak would end at Kinnick this year.

The pick did not go ignored by Iowa running back Sedrick Shaw.

"I heard about him predicting the victory in the papers, and that's a pretty straight forward statement," Shaw said. "I guess he spoke what he felt."

Davis rushed for 2,010 yards in the 1995 season, earning All-American honors at the running back position. So far in 1996, he's rushed for 146 yards in the Cyclones' 41-38 loss against Wyoming last weekend.

Trophy finalist," Iowa defensive end Bill Ennis-Inge said. "We know we must be at our peak on Saturday or it's going to be a long day. Period."

Davis isn't all the Iowa State offense has to offer. Senior quarterback Todd Doxzon is a mobile passer who has performed strong as of late.

"They are not a one-dimensional team," Ennis-Inge said. "They have a great passing game and a great quarterback."

Hawkeye-Cyclone rivalry: no competition, no excitement

After boldly predicting a 31-13 Hawkeye victory last week, then watching the one-point win, I've decided to get out of the predicting business.

Instead I'll put my dad on the spot. He claims to have predicted last week's one-point spread correctly, and now confidently forecasts a 37-21 Cyclone stomping.

Score predictions don't really matter this week, though. However many points the Hawkeyes choose to win by will determine the final result. Troy Davis, Darren Davis... it doesn't really matter. This game's a yawner.

Now, Colorado-Michigan, that's an exciting ball game. Even Notre Dame-Purdue could be a little suspenseful. But Iowa-Iowa State, it's kind of hard to get fired up anymore.

What is it now, 13 straight wins? 31? 109? It's hard to keep track. I know this game used to mean something because I remember, as a strapping young lad, that the only two Iowa games I used to watch were Illinois and Iowa State. Now, the Cyclones are no different from New Mexico State or Tulsa or any of the other preseason freebies. The Cyclones can't even provide bulletin-board material.

Troy Davis said after last year's loss, "It will happen next year. It will definitely happen next year."

That doesn't get my blood boiling or tick me off. I just think it's kind of funny, and maybe a little pathetic.

Hell, no, this won't be the year, Troy. You're not flipping a coin or rolling dice. If you want your turn to come, you have to actually show signs of improvement.

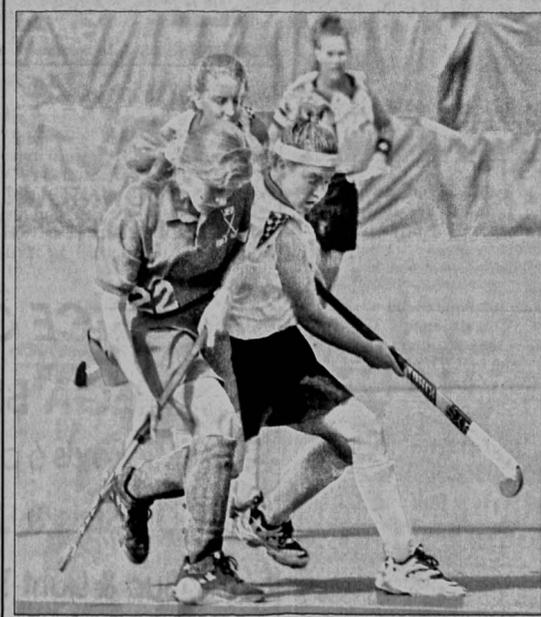

But don't get me wrong. I'm still counting the minutes until Saturday. I saw my good game last week, now I'm ready to see an offensive display.

Sedrick Shaw, I figure, ought to be good for about 166 yards, give or take a decimal point. Tavian Banks will most likely break one for 60 or so, too. And Matt Sherman will be an entirely different quarterback when he's not licking the stripes off the turf.

Arizona recorded five sacks last week. But if the Cyclones want any sacks, they can follow the cotton-mouthed drunks over to Melrose Market for paper or plastic at halftime.

Don't ever accuse the third-ranked Iowa field hockey team of playing a soft schedule.

Last week the Hawkeyes escaped an east coast road trip with two close victories over ranked teams. But things don't get any easier when Iowa hosts the Hawkeye Invitational at Grant Field Saturday and Sunday.

St. Louis (0-0) and field hockey juggernauts James Madison (1-2) and Massachusetts (2-0) make up the tournament field. St. Louis will play Iowa in the first round of the tourney Saturday at 11 a.m. They are under the guidance of first-year head coach Cathleen O'Brien. Iowa has not met St. Louis since 1993.

Despite finishing eighth at the 1996 Big Ten women's golf meet and losing Jenny Nodland, the top Iowa finisher at every tournament during the spring season, the future looks extremely bright for coach Diane Thomason program.

The main reason for Thomason's excitement is the addition of the state's top three prep golfers from the class of 1996 in M.C. Mullen, Stacey Bergman and Kelli Carney.

"I'm really excited about them. They will help bump us up the ladder a little bit," Thomason said. "It's unusual for the state of Iowa. It's hard to recruit out of Iowa to begin with, just to find great talent and then to have three in the same year and to get all three is major for us."

The three freshmen bring quite a list of credentials to the Iowa program. They have combined to win the last four Iowa high school state titles, three of the last four state junior titles and many other individual tournaments.

"They have very good credentials, now they've got to go back up what everything says," Thomason said. "It doesn't matter how good your credentials are if you can't back them up when you need to, but I'd much rather have them coming in with them."

This weekend marks the first challenge they will face when the Doxzon was 17-of-22 against Wyoming for 225 yards with both a touchdown and an interception. The Omaha native also rushed for 69 yards.

"Doxzon looked outstanding against Wyoming," Fry said. "He's a lot better than the quarterback we faced last week from Arizona."

'LITTLE EARL'

Associated Press

Texas running back Ricky Williams grabs a toss during a pregame drill on Aug. 31. Williams has run for 244 yards and four TDs this year.

Texas' Williams a replica of Campbell

Chip Brown
Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — Texas coach John Mackovic is a staunch believer in passing first and running second.

But Ricky Williams, the fullback for the seventh-ranked Longhorns, is making Mackovic rethink that philosophy. In two games, the sophomore known as "Little Earl" has run for 244 yards and four TDs on just 26 carries, an average of 9.4 yards.

"Last week, I said to the coaching staff, 'We need to build more of an offense for Ricky,'" said Mackovic, whose team has beaten Missouri and New Mexico State and next faces Notre Dame at home on Sept. 21.

At 6-feet and 220 pounds, Williams blends speed with power and has gained 160 yards after contact this season. His touchdowns have come on runs of 12, 21, 32 and 10 yards, and he had what would have been a school-record 97-yard TD run called back for holding against New Mexico State.

"Whether or not we ever get to a point where we go into a game expecting to give the ball to somebody a great deal of the time, I can't forecast that right now," Mackovic said. "But if you look at last year's A&M game, in the second half, it was run, run, run, and Ricky had the ball most of the time."

Williams, whose nickname comes from his likeness to Texas' only Heisman Trophy winner, Earl Campbell, became a national sensation against the Aggies last year.

With quarterback James Brown severely hampered by a sprained ankle, success on the ground became imperative, and Williams delivered, running 24 times for 163 yards and two touchdowns as Texas beat its archrival 16-6, the Longhorn's first victory over the Aggies in five years.

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

Michigan's been waiting for its shot

Associated Press

Michigan has waited two years for another chance at Colorado.

The Wolverines had a 26-21 lead with only 6 seconds left in their last meeting in 1994, and the Buffaloes and quarterback Kordell Stewart were 64 yards from the Michigan goal, a seemingly impossible distance.

But after a long and hard-fought game, Stewart still had the time against a three-man rush and the strength to heave the ball more than 70 yards. It hit the hands of Blake Anderson, who tipped the ball, and Michael Westbrook caught it for a game-winning touchdown and a shocking ending at Ann Arbor.

Two years the Wolverines have waited for payback, and they get a chance Saturday at Boulder, Colo., where 11th-ranked Michigan meets No. 5 Colorado.

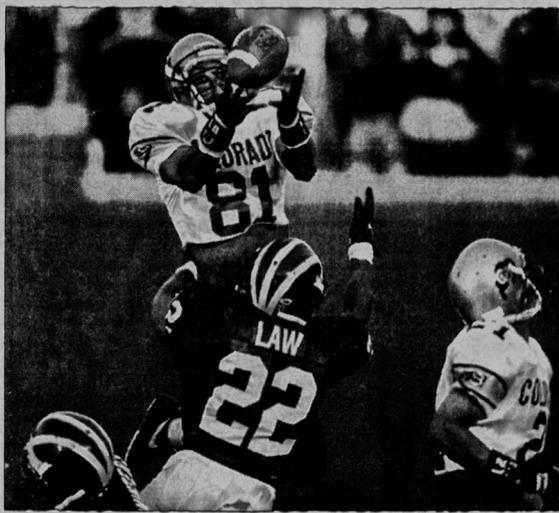

Stewart, now a Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback-receiver, scoffs at suggestions that the Buffaloes were lucky that day two years ago. After all, he's tried Hail Mary passes twice since, and succeeded both times for touchdowns.

"I don't believe in luck," Stewart said. "People say it's a miracle and all that, but, really, you have a 50-50 chance of succeeding. Either your guy catches it or the other guy. It comes down and somebody catches it. If it's your guy, you say, 'Hail Mary.'"

The play Stewart called, Rockets Jets Left, actually is very simple: Every eligible receiver ran a fly pattern to the left side of the end zone.

"I'm not surprised the ball went as far as it did," Stewart said. "I can go out in practice now and throw the ball 65 yards or 70 yards easy. But that's not after playing for one, two or three hours, when your body is tired, when you're cramping up. I guess it was just sheer power."

"He (Westbrook) caught it and I was so excited. Everybody was running onto the field and celebrating, and that got me tired. I cramped up bad. It was very exhausting."

Associated Press

Colorado's Michael Westbrook reaches over Michigan's Ty Law to make the game-winning catch with no time left on Saturday, Sept. 24, 1994.

But it's something that will be there for a long time."

Elsewhere among ranked teams Saturday, it's Northern Illinois (0-2) at No. 6 Penn St. (2-0); Purdue (0-1) at No. 9 Notre Dame (1-0); Vanderbilt (0-1) at No. 13 Alabama (2-0); No. 14 Brigham Young (2-0) at Washington (0-1); No. 15 Auburn (2-0) at Mississippi (2-0); Oregon State (0-1) at No. 16 Southern Cal (1-1); Cincinnati (1-1) at No. 17 Kansas State (2-0); North Texas (1-0) at No. 18 Arizona State

(1-0); No. 19 Virginia Tech (1-0) at Boston College (1-0); Iowa State (0-1) at No. 21 Iowa (1-0); Maryland (2-0) at No. 22 Virginia (1-0); No. 24 Kansas (1-0) at Texas Christian (1-0), and No. 25 Texas A&M (0-1) at Southwestern Louisiana (0-1). In Stewart's absence, Colorado has another strong-armed quarterback, Koy Detmer, who is 51-for-71 for 618 yards and five touchdowns in 37-19 and 48-34 victories over Washington State and Colorado State, respectively. Against the Rams, Detmer completed 14 consecutive passes during one stretch.

Detmer is fourth in the nation in total offense with 318 yards per game, but the Buffaloes haven't been pass-happy. Herchell Troutman is averaging 133.5 yards rushing and Colorado came close to gaining 300 yards rushing and passing for the first time in school history, with 364 passing and 281 rushing against Colorado State.

Michigan has been off since opening with a 20-8 victory over Illinois at Ann Arbor Aug. 31. Quarterback Scott Dreisbach had a 76-yard touchdown run in that game and threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Russell Shaw.

The Wolverines are hoping the off week helped them prepare for Colorado, but since 1988 the Buffaloes are 6-2 against teams that were idle the previous week.

Notre Dame faces Purdue, after rallying from a 7-6 fourth-quarter deficit and beating Vanderbilt 14-7 last week. Vanderbilt faces another strong defense in Alabama.

Auburn also has a tough defense, having shut out Alabama-Birmingham and Fresno State. The Tigers should get a bigger test at Mississippi. Ole Miss has defeated Idaho State and Virginia Military.

Virginia opens its Atlantic Coast Conference schedule against Maryland, which is undefeated, with victories over Northern Illinois and Alabama-Birmingham.

Virginia Tech and Boston College open their Big East schedule. The Hokies are coming off a narrow victory over Akron, while BC edged Hawaii.

THURSDAY'S ACTION

Hurricanes rip Rutgers

Tom Canavan
Associated Press

PISCATAWAY, N.J. — Danyell Ferguson returned from a two-game suspension and woke up a sputtering offense with third-quarter touchdown runs of 31 and 1 yards, leading No. 10 Miami to a 33-0 victory over Rutgers.

Ryan Clement also threw a 34-yard touchdown pass to Tony Gaiter in the third quarter as the Hurricanes (3-0) intercepted two passes and scored on three straight possessions to put away Rutgers

(1-2). Miami forced four turnovers, including one on the first play from scrimmage, and each was converted into a touchdown in the Hurricanes' first shutout on the road since 1967.

Safety Tremain Mack had a fumble recovery and an interception in leading the defense effort that limited Rutgers' new West Coast offense to 142 yards, including 24 in the second half. The shutout was the first against the Scarlet Knights since 1990 and the first at Rutgers Stadium since 1973.

QUAD CITY CLASSIC

Woods' 69 leaves him four behind

Mario Fox
Associated Press

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Tiger Woods drew the people. Larry Nelson, Joey Gullion and Charlie Rymer were content with birdies.

Nelson, Gullion and Rymer shot 5-under 65s on Thursday to share the first-round lead in the Quad City Classic. Denis Watson and Ed Fiori opened with 66s on the Oakwood Golf Club course.

Woods, making his third start as a pro, was four back after a 69.

"When you're not shooting well, it's nice to be under par," the three-time U.S. Amateur champion said. "I didn't play very well. It was just a day when my timing was off."

Rymer had seven birdies and two bogeys. He also had a chance for an eagle on the par-4 seventh hole.

"I saw the pork chop sign back of the green and said to myself, 'I'm going to get me a pork chop sandwich if I make this eagle putt,'" said Rymer, one of the PGA Tour's biggest players at 6-foot-4 and 240 pounds.

He settled for a birdie and skipped the sandwich.

Nelson made four birdies in a row, starting and finishing by holing 20-foot putts.

"I can't remember the last time I made four straight birdies," he said.

Nelson, who has 10 victories in 23 years on the tour, has returned after a month off to be with his father while he battled a serious heart disease.

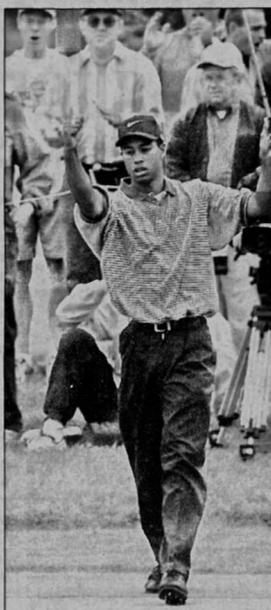

"It's almost sense of relief to be out here. Now my father is getting better. Being home for a month under this type of situation... This is like a vacation," said Nelson, who turned 49 on Tuesday.

With six birdies and a bogey, Gullion found himself in an unfamiliar position.

"It's the first time I've seen my name as No. 1," he said. "It felt good, seeing my name at the top of the scoreboard."

Crowds estimated at more than 2,500 followed Woods, limiting the viewing for many.

"I never had this much trouble seeing at the Masters," said one spectator.

Associated Press

Tiger Woods reacts to his birdie on the 13th hole during the first round of the Quad City Classic at the Oakwood Country Club in Coal Valley, Ill., Thursday.

Playing in the second to the last threesome of the day, Woods had three birdies and two bogeys. As dusk was falling on an overcast evening, he hit a bunker and bogeyed No. 17, then barely missed a 60-foot birdie putt on No. 18.

Woods' caddy, Mike McGowan, said he understands the interest in the former Stanford star.

"I like to watch him play golf, too," he said.

But Rymer said he is a bit jealous of Woods' popularity.

"The bad thing is he's such a nice guy. If he was a weasel, you could hate him," Rymer said.

Woods and others who played in the afternoon, including Rymer and Gullion, faced more difficult conditions with brisker winds and cooler temperatures than Nelson and others playing in the morning.

Chargers storm into Lambeau

Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

After the San Diego Chargers disposed Seattle and Cincinnati at home, Bobby Ross said, "Now, it gets harder."

"Harder" this week may be as hard as it gets — a trip to Green Bay, where the Packers are coming off their first Monday night home game in a decade, a 39-13 thrashing of Philadelphia.

The oddsmakers concur — the Packers are 7 1/2-point favorites.

San Diego has one thing going for it: Green Bay was out to make a point Monday night before a national television audience that included the rest of the NFL's players. Teams that win games like that often let down, even as they talk about avoiding a let-down.

In some ways, these teams mirror each other, particularly on defense.

Cheese, anyone?
PACKERS, 20-10.

Buffalo (plus 3) at Pittsburgh (Monday night)

The Bills haven't looked particularly impressive, but they've been winning.

BILLS, 19-17.

Indianapolis (plus 10) at Dallas

Normally, this spread would be too large. But the Colts (2-0) may mail this one in while saving their eight injured players, including Marshall Faulk and Tony Bennett, from more punishment.

COWBOYS, 24-7.

Detroit (plus 2 1/2) at Philadelphia

The Eagles derailed the Lions 58-37 in the playoffs last year.

EAGLES, 24-21.

Baltimore (plus 3 1/2) at Houston

Another of those Franchise Free Agency Bowls.

OILERS, 31-14.

New York Jets (plus 12 1/2) at Miami

Keyshawn may do another meaningless TD dance. Jimmy will laugh.

DOLPHINS, 27-8.

Warren Moon may be back. Too bad. Brad Johnson wins.

BEARS, 16-12.

Kansas City (minus 3 1/2) at Seattle

John Friesz won't replace Rick Mirer for the Seahawks.

CHIEFS, 24-6.

Arizona (plus 9 1/2) at New England

Vince Tobin is learning that a curse hangs over the Cards.

Buffalo's Smith on a rampage

Bucky Gleason
Associated Press

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — The way Bruce Smith played in his first two games, you would think opposing quarterbacks were members of the Buffalo Bills' front office.

Smith has jumped to the fastest start in his 12-year career this season with five sacks and 22 tackles in the first two games. He was the Bills' best player in victories over the New York Giants and New England.

"I guess right now I'm the best bargain player in the league," said Smith, the 19th highest-paid defensive player in the NFL.

Smith could have 20 sacks already — or none — and it wouldn't have any effect on his wishes for a new contract. He has two years remaining on his current deal, which pays him $2.2 million this year and next.

Smith has been terrific yet frustrated, virtually unstoppable yet subdued. The eight-time Pro Bowl defensive end has stopped complaining, at least for now, but he has channeled his anger onto the field — as New York quarterback Dave Brown and New England's Drew Bledsoe know.

"I'm still not happy about it," Smith said. "But I'm not going to walk around here every day with my head stuck up my butt because the front office isn't doing the right thing. I'm not going to do that. I'm going to play football."

ADMITS 'IT'S BEEN FUN'

Sandberg unsure if he'll return to Cubs

By Mike Nadel
Associated Press

CHICAGO — It's been fun, Ryne Sandberg says, but not fun enough for him to make a commitment beyond the final 17 games of this season.

Sandberg, who returned to the Chicago Cubs after walking away from baseball in 1994, has exceeded even the most optimistic forecasts for his comeback campaign.

He's hit 23 home runs and driven in 85 runs, and he's shown he can still play second base with the best. Nevertheless, the 10-time All-Star won't discuss his plans for '97.

"When everything's calmed down and I'm rested up, I'll make some decisions," said Sandberg, who will be 37 Wednesday. "With a one-year contract, I only geared my mind toward this season. I'm just concentrating on what I have to do."

Because he'll reach most incentives in his contract, Sandberg will make at least $4 million. If he plays in 15 more games, that goes up to $5 million. With superb per-er numbers for a second baseman, he may command even more on the free-agent market.

But money never has been the main issue for Sandberg, who had more than two seasons left on a landmark $7 million-a-year contract when he retired June 13, 1994.

"I don't think there's any question. He'll be back," Cubs manager Jim Riggleman said. "I think he has liked playing with us this season."

Sandberg has, although it's unlikely he will win a championship in his return engagement as Michael Jordan did with the Chicago Bulls.

"It's been fun," Sandberg said. "It's a good bunch of guys. We play hard and have a good attitude. We've hung in there despite adversity, like the big injury to Sammy Sosa. It's made us a close ballclub and it's good to be part of that."

Sandberg retired partly because he was unhappy with the club's direction under then-general manager Larry Himes.

He likes the new management team of president Andy MacPhail, GM Ed Lynch and Riggleman. And they like him. MacPhail and Lynch want Sandberg back. Riggleman considers Sandberg the ideal player to manage.

"His work ethic ... he's a machine out there," Riggleman said. "If you're a young player, you can't go out and not work hard when you see a veteran like Ryne Sandberg do it every day."

Though Sandberg is batting a career-low .233, he's been productive. Among full-time second basemen, he ranks first in homers and second in RBIs.

He has made only six errors and has matched his .990 career fielding percentage, the best ever at his position. If he wins a 10th Gold Glove, he'll get another $1 million.

"Ryno has exceeded all expectations, including mine," said teammate Mark Grace. "I didn't expect as many homers or RBIs. It was a good move by Riggleman to put him down in the order so he could drive in runs."

Associated Press

The Cubs' Ryne Sandberg watches his second two-run homer of the day fly over the left center field wall in the fourth inning against the St. Louis Cardinals this past May.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Rockies get revenge on Smoltz

Associated Press

DENVER — For once, the Colorado Rockies got a chance to beat on John Smoltz and the Atlanta Braves.

Tormented by Smoltz and Atlanta throughout their four years of existence, the Rockies got a small measure of revenge against both as Ellis Burks hit his 37th homer and drove in five runs in a 16-8 rout of the Braves.

In the past four years the Braves have won 35 of 47 meetings between the teams and Smoltz (21-8) had been 7-0 with 2.58 ERA in eight previous starts against Colorado.

Astros 4, Phillies 1

HOUSTON — Jeff Bagwell hit his 30th homer and Darryl Kile pitched out of a bases-loaded, no-out jam in the seventh inning, leading the Houston Astros over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Astros closed within two games of St. Louis in the NL Central. The Cardinals played at night in Los Angeles.

Houston starts an eight-game road trip at Colorado on Friday night and will return home only for the final six games of the season.

Expos 5, Marlins 4

MONTREAL — Henry Rodriguez hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning as the Montreal Expos rallied past the Florida Marlins.

Moises Alou drew a two-out walk off Jay Powell (4-2), and Rodriguez followed with his 34th home run. It was Rodriguez's first homer since Aug. 25.

Dave Veres (5-3) pitched one inning of relief for the win. Mel

Rojas got the last three outs for his 30th save, tying a career high set last season.

Yankees 12, Tigers 3

DETROIT — Bernie Williams drove in eight runs, including a grand slam off the facing of the third deck and a three-run homer, and the AL East-leading New York Yankees completed a three-game sweep by defeating Detroit.

The Yankees arrived at Tiger Stadium having lost 15 of 24, prompting manager Joe Torre to call a pregame meeting before the opener. New York responded by scoring 28 runs in three days, and increased its lead to three games over Baltimore, which played Chicago at night.

David Cone (6-2) once again overcame a shaky start. He allowed three runs in the first three innings, but no more before leaving after the seventh with a 5-3 lead.

Indians 11, Angels 2

CLEVELAND — Jim Thome and Julio Franco each homered twice and Albert Belle hit his 45th homer, powering the Cleveland Indians over the California Angels.

The three also connected in succession against Greg Gohr in the seventh inning for the Indians, who completed a four-game sweep and cut their magic number for winning a second straight AL Central title to eight.

Thome hit a pair of two-run homers, and Franco added two solo shots.

White Sox 11, Orioles 3

BALTIMORE — Alex Fernandez pitched a three-hitter as the Chicago White Sox denied Mike

Mussina his 20th victory and averted a sweep by beating Baltimore 11-3 Thursday night, ending the Orioles' five-game winning streak.

The victory moved Chicago within a half-game of Baltimore in the wild-card race and dropped the Orioles 3½ games behind the New York Yankees in the AL East.

Fernandez (14-9) struck out 10 and walked two to improve to 3-0 against the Orioles this season. The right-hander has five of Chicago's six complete games.

Baltimore won the first two games of the series but couldn't complete the sweep despite sending its ace to the mound.

Mariners 8, Royals 5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Alex Rodriguez set a major league record for shortstops with his 88th extra-base hit of the season and Mark Whiten hit a three-run homer in a four-run Seattle sixth as the Mariners beat Kansas City.

Whiten's homer capped the sixth and gave the Mariners a 6-4 lead. Seattle stopped a three-game losing streak and are 4½ games behind Baltimore for the wild-card spot.

Rodriguez, leading the majors in hitting at .372, doubled during a two-run first inning. He broke the extra-base hit record for shortstops set by Robin Yount during his 1982 MVP season.

Twins 4, Athletics 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Pat Meares hit a sacrifice fly in the 12th inning to score Roberto Kelly, giving the Minnesota Twins a victory over the Oakland Athletics.

Kelly doubled off Mike Mohler (5-3) to lead off the 12th and advanced on a groundout. Oakland center fielder Ernie Young made a sliding catch on Meares' fly ball and dropped it when he came up to throw, allowing Kelly to score the game-winner.

Paul Molitor went 1-for-5 to move within six hits of 3,000.

Dave Stevens (3-3) pitched 2½ innings in relief for the Twins.

Brewers 15, Rangers 4

ARLINGTON, Texas — Fernando Vina went 5-for-6 with two homers and a triple, and Ben McDonald won for the first time in two months as the Milwaukee Brewers routed the Texas Rangers.

McDonald (11-10) gave up two runs and seven hits over eight innings and improved to 6-0 lifetime at Texas. He had lost his previous seven decisions, with his last win coming July 12 against Toronto.

The Brewers had 18 hits off three Texas pitchers.

Staked to a 10-0 lead after two innings, McDonald didn't allow a baserunner until Darryl Hamilton led off the fourth with a single.

John Jaha homered and drove in two runs, while Jeromy Burnitz had four RBIs for the Brewers.

Vina's five hits and two homers were career highs. His solo homer in the seventh increased the Brewers lead to 12-0 and his second homer, a two-run shot in the three-run ninth, made it 15-2.

CROSS COUNTRY

Iowa runners travel to Bradley

The Iowa women's cross country team gets its first test of the season Friday afternoon when the Hawkeyes travel to Peoria Ill., to compete in the Bradley Open.

Iowa coach Jim Grant is anxious to see how the team will perform. "This will definitely be a test for us. It is our first meet of the season and we have some new people on the squad," Grant said.

The Hawkeyes will be competing against 16 other teams, including Big Ten foe Purdue, on the 5K course. Iowa will send seven runners, but only the top five times will be scored.

Seniors Briana Benning, Becky Coleman, Kiersten Pauling, and Ann Paré will be leading the team of 9 runners during the 1996 season.

"This is actually the first time we've ran on this course. It doesn't seem like it will be difficult though," Grant said.

The meet will take place at Detweiler Park at 5:30 p.m. Teams competing include: Bradley, Eastern Illinois, Illinois State, North-east Illinois, Purdue, Western Illinois, Chicago State, Evansville, Indiana State, Northern Illinois, Southern Illinois, Wisconsin-Green Bay, Illinois Chicago, Olivet Nazarene, Truman State, and Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

-Becky Gruhn

Men's cross country

The mens cross country team is looking to have a strong start in 1996 as it open the season today at the Bradley Invitational in Peoria, Ill.

Although Coach Larry Wiczorek plans to bring most of his runners to the meet, he likely won't run a full line-up so he can keep some of his stronger runners under wraps for the upcoming Big Ten season.

"I'm going to use this meet as a preparation meet for when we come home on September 21st," Wiczorek said. "Anyone who has any aches and pains or that I don't think is ready, I'm not going to use."

Even though the Hawkeyes will not be running with a full squad, Coach Wiczorek expects his team to do very well and finish towards the top of the field.

Other teams that will be running in the thirteen team field today include the host school Bradley, Illinois State, Indiana State, and the Hawkeye's inter-state rival Drake Bulldogs.

Hawkeye runner Stetson Steele holds the course record for the Bradley Invitational, running 24 minutes, 48 seconds at Detweiler Park last year.

SOFTBALL

Hawkeyes start fall season at home

Chris James
The Daily Iowan

Some offseason.

The Iowa softball team heads into action this Saturday and Sunday, just two months after finishing the spring campaign. The Hawkeyes are hosting the Hawkeye Classic, taking on Oklahoma at 9 and 11 a.m. on Saturday and Illinois State in a double header Sunday starting at 3 p.m.

All games are at the Iowa softball complex.

Oklahoma was the team Iowa eliminated in last season's NCAA Mid-East Regional Final. Hawkeye head coach Gayle Blevins said it will be interesting to see the Sooners so soon after ending their season.

"They should be eager to play us," Blevins said. "They have a fine team returning and they should be pumped. But we're at home and I'm actually glad to be playing a solid team early so we can get a perspective on where we're at."

Iowa finished last season at 49-19 and finished third at the NCAA championships. It was the second year in a row that the Hawkeyes made it to the final four. Senior outfielder Lea Twigg and junior catcher Lynn Nance were named to the '96 all-tournament team. Blevins said she hopes she can field a healthy team this weekend.

"We had solid players returning but we're a little banged up right now. The purpose of this weekend is to get some work in and improve in the area's where we need to. I just wish we were a little healthier," Blevins said.

Many of the Iowa players have been in the weight room and some even started working out days after the World Series ended.

"I like the attitude," Blevins said. "Saturday and Sunday will give us an early measuring stick for progress."

Illinois State has already played two games coming into this weekend. Iowa also has another date scheduled for September 28. But Blevins said she's going to use this time to get a look at her team and not worry about who the Hawkeyes will face.

"I'm going to play a lot of people and give the younger players a chance to show me what they can do. Hopefully we'll look sound and gain some confidence from these games," Blevins said.

WOMEN'S GOLF

Hawkeyes travel to Minnesota to play in the Minnesota Invitational.

"It will take these three kids a little time to adjust to the college courses and the competition, but it will be interesting to see how they do this weekend," Thomason said.

Seniors Lynne Carothers, Karen Schroeder and Aimee Maurer, along with junior Becky Sjolholm, look to give the Hawkeyes veteran experience.

"I've seen all the seniors mature over the course of the summer," Thomason said. "Lynne has really worked hard in the weight room and conditioning and Karen has improved her short game."

Thomason feels the upperclassmen and freshmen will learn from each other.

"Hopefully these three new kids will keep the other kids going and the seniors will push the new kids," Thomason said. "Everybody has something to learn from everyone else. It will be interesting to see that happen."

Filling Nodland's shoes will be tough, as she led the Hawkeyes with an average scoring round of 80.5, but Thomason feels there are plenty of players capable of stepping in and filling the void, especially after the scores posted in their 45-hole qualifying tournament.

Bergman finished with the low score of 193.

"Stacey is really playing well right now. She really hits the ball a long way and that is really advantageous in college golf if you can keep the ball in play," Thomason said.

Carothers and Mullen finished second and third with scores of 195 and 198 respectively, while Schroeder shot a 201. Sjolholm and Maurer finished in a tie for fifth place with scores of 205.

The top six in the qualifier will represent the Hawkeyes this weekend. The 36-hole tournament features 15 teams, including Oregon, Iowa State, Arkansas-Little Rock and Kansas.

The addition of the three freshmen and the improvement of the upperclassmen gives Thomason the added dimension of depth.

"We have more individuals capable of shooting a score of 75 or better. You used to be able to have two or three good individuals carry your team, but you need a minimum of four kids shooting in the 70s and they better be 75 or better if you want to be any good. I feel we have that capability now," Thomason said.

VOLLEYBALL

a long way in helping get ready for conference."

So far this season, the Hawkeyes have juggled their lineup, trying to find a solid combination. Schoensted said she is finally comfortable with the group that will take the floor this weekend.

"It will never be an absolute certainty, but we feel very good that we now have a lineup that gives us some flexibility and strength," she said.

The probable lineup includes seniors Jennifer Webb and Jill Oelschlager, junior Jennifer Bell, sophomore Barb Zvonek, and freshmen Jill Schmidt and Julie Williams. Heather Calomese will help add depth.

Last weekend in Ames, Schmidt got her first starting assignment. Against Washington State, she had five kills in seven attempts with just one error. In Iowa's match against Dayton, Schmidt compiled seven kills and 13 digs. Finding a comfort zone has been a challenge for the Peawaukee, Wis., native.

"Things started off a little shaky this season," Schmidt said. "It was kind of overwhelming. Now I'm getting more comfortable playing with everybody on the team. It'll just take time."

Schmidt added that it is crucial for the team to have a successful weekend on its home court.

"This is a tournament we need to win to get our confidence back," she said. "(Playing in Carver) is something I've been looking forward to for the last year."

For the Hawkeyes to win three times this weekend, the team's upperclassmen will look to step up their games. While Kansas comes in with a mediocre 4-4 record, Miami and Tennessee will enter Iowa City with impressive 5-2 and 5-3 marks, respectively.

Bell is one of the upperclassmen Schoensted will depend on this weekend. Her 84 kills rank second behind Webb for the team-lead, but Bell is anything but satisfied.

"I need to work on not making silly mental errors and moving on to the next point," Bell said.

"Just being at home is so much easier, it's nice having people there to support you."

FIELD HOCKEY

Begin said. "With a new coach and the fact that we haven't seen them in a while, it is going to be interesting to see what their style of play is and how their program is doing in terms of progression."

James Madison and UMass are certainly not unknown teams in NCAA field hockey. James Madison is currently ranked No. 4 nationally, despite a 1-2 record. Just two years ago, James Madison won the NCAA championship.

UMass is coached by Pam Hixon. Hixon (255-69-18 career record) returns after taking a two-year leave of absence to coach the U.S. field hockey team. In addition, UMass may have one of the best in the business in goalkeeper Hillary Rose. Rose manned the net for the Great Britain Olympic team.

James Madison and UMass will play the second game Saturday, following Iowa-St. Louis. On Sunday, the losers of each game will play at 11 a.m., with the winners scheduled to meet for the championship at 1:30 p.m.

"UMass and James Madison are two very, very good teams," Begin said. "James Madison is young, but they are always solid and filled with desire. With Hillary (Rose) back, UMass is going to be tough to score on. The quality of the participants makes up for a great tournament field. We will have to play well to regain the title."

In previous contests, Iowa has accumulated an 11-5-1 mark against St. Louis and a 6-1-1 advantage over UMass. James Madison has not beaten the Hawkeyes in three previous meetings.

Preparing for play against the Hawkeyes is a difficult task for opponents. In only four contests, Iowa has been able to mix things up quite a bit, with 14-of-16 players receiving one or more starts.

"Position wise, we still have spots that haven't been filled," Begin said. "This year we have been playing with a lot of rotation and more effort has been put out as a result because of our freshness."

Statistically, Iowa has dominated nearly every aspect of the game. The team holds a 13-2 scoring advantage over opponents and have outshot the competition 103-30.

Lawyer: Eastwood ruined actress' career

Jeff Wong
Associated Press

BURBANK, Calif. — Clint Eastwood undermined ex-lover Sondra Locke's career by secretly interfering with her contract to direct movies for Warner Bros., jurors were told.

"This so-called deal with Warner Bros. was a dead end for her career, and that dead end was planned by Mr. Eastwood," Locke's attorney, Peggy Garrity, said Wednesday in opening statements.

Locke's $2 million lawsuit contends the studio rejected all the films she proposed because of a back-room deal in which Eastwood agreed to reimburse the studio for money lost in any of her directorial projects, Garrity told Superior Court jurors.

Eastwood's lawyer, Ray Fisher, said the actor was trying to help Locke, not hurt her, and her problems with Warner's were of her own making.

The first witness, Warner Bros. Chairperson Terry Semel, said at Eastwood's urging he offered Locke a three-year deal giving Warner Bros. "first look" rights to her projects. She was free to take rejected proposals to other studios, he said.

Eastwood, 66, sat attentively with his lawyer about 10 feet away from Locke in the courtroom.

The couple met in 1975 while making "The Outlaw Josey Wales." They began living together in 1976, while Eastwood was still married to his wife of 25 years, Maggie Eastwood, according to previous court testimony.

Locke has said her relationship with Eastwood soured in the mid-1980s. The actress filed a palimony lawsuit in 1989, which she dropped when Eastwood agreed to secure her a director's contract at the studio.

Locke, 49, was nominated for an Oscar for her role in the 1968 film "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter." She launched her career as a director with the 1986 film "Ratboy," which Eastwood produced, followed by the psychological thriller "Impulse" in 1989.

Eastwood's movie credits include the "Dirty Harry" movies, "Unforgiven" and "The Bridges of Madison County."

Spike Lee signed to create ABC sitcom

NEW YORK (AP) — Director Spike Lee will bring his perspective on race relations to television with a new ABC comedy series next season, the network announced Thursday.

The as-yet-untitled half-hour series will focus on two male characters, one white and one black, who are very close despite their different views on society and contemporary issues.

The series will be a single-camera film production, unusual for a half-hour comedy, most of which are staged like a play before a studio audience and shot with multiple cameras.

The series will originate from New York, where Lee is based. No casting decisions have been made.

The celebrated and often controversial Lee, whose 10 features include "Malcolm X," "Jungle Fever" and "Do the Right Thing," will write and direct the pilot and serve as executive producer of the series, which has been given a six-episode commitment for the 1997-98 season.

Also serving as executive producer will be Brandon Tartikoff, launching a new production company with this project. The former chairperson of NBC Entertainment and Paramount Pictures, Tartikoff resigned in July as head of New World Entertainment.

Robert Downey Jr. pleads no contest to charges

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — Robert Downey Jr. pleaded no contest Wednesday to drug and weapons charges and was ordered to remain in a live-in drug treatment program until sentencing.

Downey, 31, could get up to three years in prison at his Nov. 6 sentencing for felony cocaine possession and misdemeanors of driving under the influence, possession of a weapon and being under the influence of a drug. Under the plea, a felony heroin possession charge was dropped.

Following the plea hearing, the Oscar-nominated actor kissed his estranged wife, Deborah Falconer, and appeared relieved. Asked by reporters how his drug treatment was going, he replied, "Real good. It's working."

Prosecutors said they will probably seek some jail time for Downey, who was arrested in June by deputies who said they found crack cocaine, heroin and a .357 Magnum revolver in his truck during a Malibu traffic stop.

Hours before he was to be arraigned on those charges, sheriff's deputies arrested him again on charges of breaking into a neighbor's home, where he was found sleeping in a child's bed. Those charges are pending.

Downey received an Oscar nomination for the 1992 film "Chaplin." Some of his other films include "Less Than Zero," "Restoration" and "Natural Born Killers."

Van Damme tackles new type of role in film

Stacey Harrison
The Daily Iowan

Despite its dumb, direct-to-video title, "Maximum Risk" is mega-star Jean-Claude Van Damme's best film since his low-budget glory days of "Bloodsport."

Van Damme portrays twins, as he did in 1991's dreadful "Double Impact," but this time the dual roles are not played for laughs. In

When Alain, his identical brother, sees a corpse with a face matching his own, he is determined to find out who Mikhail was. This is a task that includes taking a trip to New York, visiting his brother's old haunts and walking a dangerous tightrope in treacherous dealings with the Russian mob and the FBI, never knowing who to trust.

"Maximum Risk" also marks the second appearance on film for Natasha Henstridge, who follows up her bravura performance as an alien in last summer's "Species." She plays the dead brother's girlfriend, who is immediately drawn into the dangerous game when she mistakes Alain for his brother.

Henstridge brings a toughness to her role, convincing viewers that, on a good day, she might be able to kick Van Damme's ass. Unfortunately, by the end of the film, her character is reduced to little more than action-hero decoration, as she waits for her man to save her from two very wimpy villains.

The plot is surprisingly complex for a Van Damme vehicle. It presents some genuinely nice twists, preventing it from becoming a manner of simple mechanics, like so many action pictures are these days. "Maximum Risk" also makes an effort not to spout out a plethora of cute one-liners and maintains a level of seriousness, giving the film some credibility. Yet there are still plenty of gutsy action sequences to keep the ardent blood-and-guts fans smiling.

(Natasha) Henstridge brings a toughness to her role, convincing viewers that, on a good day, she might be able to kick Van Damme's ass.

Perhaps the film's greatest pleasures lie in its supporting cast, something almost unheard of in a movie of this ilk. Van Damme's friend and fellow officer in France (Jean-Hughes Anglade of "Killing Zoe") rises above the typical stand-by buddy role and is engaging to watch.

What is most shocking about "Maximum Risk," though, is Van Damme is playing a very different character than in his other movies — one that he should have been playing all along. Instead of the smiling, affable karate expert with a French accent, he plays a dark, brooding, karate expert with a tortured past and a French accent. He rarely smiles and this is his first film in years where he has resisted the urge to do the splits or show his butt. How refreshing!

"Maximum Risk" is still just an action picture, make no mistake. It plugs in many of the variables in the equation that makes up the action movie formula. Henstridge and Van Damme have their obligatory sex scene, the cops always show up after the fact, the bad guys are even worse shots and several fruit carts get knocked over in the chase scenes. But it seems to treat its clichés as necessary evils, giving them only brief airtime, paving the way for a very involving, entertaining time at the movies.

Doctor claims rabies caused death of Edgar Allan Poe

Matt Crenson
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Edgar Allan Poe didn't die drunk in a Baltimore gutter, according to the first scientific study of the writer's final days. The telltale facts suggest rabies instead.

Dr. R. Michael Benitez, a cardiologist who practices merely a block from the writer's grave, said it's true the master of the macabre was seen in a bar on Lombard Street on an election day in October 1849, delirious and possibly wearing somebody else's soiled clothes. But Poe wasn't drunk.

"I think Poe is much maligned in that respect," said Benitez, an assistant professor of medicine at the University of Maryland Medical Center.

He describes Poe's last days in a medical horror story as dramatic as the writer's most gruesome tales.

The author of "The Raven" and "The Murders in the Rue Morgue" entered the hospital comatose, but by the next day was perspiring heavily, hallucinating and shouting at imaginary companions. The day after that, he seemed better but couldn't remember falling ill. On his fourth day at Washington College Hospital, Poe again grew confused and belligerent, then quieted down and died.

That's a classic case of rabies, said Benitez, whose diagnosis appears in the September issue of the Maryland Medical Journal. And there are other clues, too.

During the brief period when he was calm and awake, Poe refused alcohol and could drink water only with great difficulty. Rabies victims frequently exhibit hydrophobia, or fear of water, because it's painful for them to swallow.

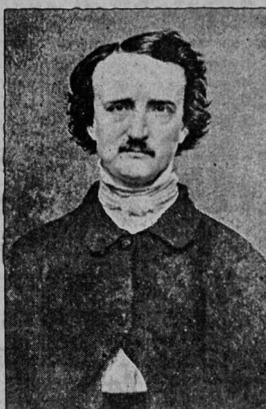

Although there's no evidence a rabid animal bit Poe in the days before he succumbed, that doesn't cast much doubt on Benitez' theory. About a quarter of rabies victims can't remember being bitten at all. And once a person is infected, the symptoms of rabies can take up to a year to appear. But once the symptoms do show up, rabies is a swift and brutal killer. Most patients die within a few days.

Poe "had all the features of encephalitic rabies," said Dr. Henry Wilde, who frequently treats rabies at Chulalongkorn University Hospital in Bangkok, Thailand.

Although it has been well-established that Poe died in the hospital, legend has it he succumbed in the gutter, a victim of his debauched ways. The legend may have been fostered by his doctor, who in later years became a temperance advocate and changed the details to make an object lesson of Poe's death.

Poe scholars welcomed the diagnosis as the first scientifically valid assessment of Poe's death. Jeff Jerome, curator of the Edgar Allan Poe House and Museum in Baltimore, said he has heard dozens of wild tales, but "almost everyone who has come forth with a theory has offered no proof."

Edgar Allan Poe is pictured in this undated photo. A professor believes he has solved the 146-year-old mystery of Poe's death.

Physician: injuries like Shakur's are often fatal

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — The record executive who was with Tupac Shakur when the multimillion-selling rapper was shot has failed to show up for police questioning.

Shakur, 25, remained in critical condition and on life support at University Medical Center with four gunshot wounds. His right lung was removed in one of two operations Sunday.

The rapper was originally given a 50-50 chance, but a University Medical Center doctor said Tuesday eight of 10 patients die from the combination of such serious chest wounds and the removal of a lung.

"It's a very fatal injury," Dr. John Fildes, chairperson of the hospital's trauma unit, told the New York Daily News for a story published Wednesday.

"Statistically, it carries a very high mortality rate," Fildes said. "A patient may die from lack of oxygen or may bleed to death in the chest."

Police say they are frustrated by a lack of cooperation from Shakur's entourage, many of whom witnessed the shooting.

Marion "Suge" Knight had agreed to talk to police investigating the Saturday night shooting, but didn't appear Monday or Tuesday, police said.

Knight, chairperson of Los Angeles-based Death Row Records, was released from the hospital Sunday after being treated for a head wound he suffered in the attack.

"We've had contact with his attorney, but as of yet haven't seen him," Sgt. Kevin Manning said late Tuesday.

Shakur, who has a history of violence and run-ins with the law, was a passenger in a car driven by Knight late Saturday when a white Cadillac with four men inside pulled up and someone opened fire. The gangsta rapper was hit four times, at least twice in the chest.

In November 1994, Shakur was shot five times by robbers in the lobby of a New York City recording studio. He lost $40,000 worth of jewelry.

Shakur, who starred opposite Janet Jackson in the movie "Poetic Justice," has been working on another film, "Gridlock." His latest album, All Eyez On Me, has sold at least 5 million copies.

ABC, NBC best CBS for top news and documentaries

Associated Press

NEW YORK — ABC and NBC took 10 prizes each to share top honors Wednesday night at the annual news and documentary Emmy Awards.

CBS and PBS were just behind with seven apiece. The 17th annual awards were presented by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

The winners were:

—General coverage of a single breaking news story (whole program): "48 Hours: America's Mission," CBS.

—General coverage of a single breaking news story (segment within a program): "Dateline NBC: Intersection (Chicago Bus Crash)," NBC; "Dateline NBC: Hazardous Environment?" NBC; "Dateline NBC: I Confess," NBC; "Dateline NBC: The Explosion (Oklahoma Bombing)," NBC.

—Instant coverage of a single breaking news story: "Coverage of the Oklahoma City Bombing," CNN; "Nightline: Oklahoma City Bombing: Moment of Crisis," ABC.

IOWA VS. IOWA STATE

to Iowa and ISU

"I don't know if it's possible to double Jim Walden's efforts. Jim became obsessed at beating us because of all the news media and the fans and whatever. I couldn't figure it out. We'll just have to wait and see how (McCarney) approaches it. Dan is an extremely enthusiastic, excitable personality and I would imagine that they'll throw the kitchen sink at us and all the fixtures.

Hayden Fry, Iowa football coach

we're going to win this year. Every year changes."

But the streak has haunted many a team of Cyclones.

"I think what happens is Iowa starts beating us and pretty soon the reputation is we can't beat them," starting defensive tackle Bill Marsau said. "And then everyone starts getting down on themselves.

"We have to turn around and get 100 percent belief that we can beat them. Any team can win any game on any day. If we keep that in mind and play as hard as we can, things will go our way."

Iowa State coach Dan McCarney, who played college ball and later was an assistant coach at Iowa, will be coaching his second game Iowa-Iowa State from behind ISU lines this Saturday.

"I definitely missed it the time I was gone," said McCarney, who spent five years at Wisconsin before taking the Iowa State job. "I don't think the entire country realizes the excitement and the glamour and the emotion and the intensity that is involved in this game.

"It may not have all the national prominence that Michigan-Ohio State or Nebraska-Oklahoma has, but don't tell the player or the coaches or the fans that. Because the intensity, the emotion, the pride is as exciting, as high and as important as anything I've been around in my life."

McCarney's predecessor, Jim Walden never beat Iowa. Neither did his predecessor, Jim Criner. Fry is a perfect 12-0 against Iowa State coaches named Jim, but not due to lack of effort on Walden's part.

"I don't know if it's possible to double Jim Walden's efforts," Fry said. "Jim became obsessed at beating us because of all the news media and the fans and whatever. I couldn't figure it out. We'll just have to wait and see how (McCarney) approaches it. Dan is an extremely enthusiastic, excitable personality and I would imagine that they'll throw the kitchen sink at us and all the fixtures.

"I thought Jim Walden did a heck of a job against us every year. Sometimes the score might not indicate it, but he was a difficult guy to prepare for. He was a good coach, and their guys played real hard. It certainly hasn't been a gimme by any means us winning 13 straight.

"Now the other fellow, he was a little bit easier — Criner."

Both Criner and Walden were fired, but Fry said it's not his fault.

"I don't think I had anything to do with Criner leaving, or Walden. That wasn't me at all. That's those folks over there."

The streak has become somewhat of a double-edged sword for the Hawkeyes. If they win, no one will be surprised — but if they lose, it will be the upset of the decade.

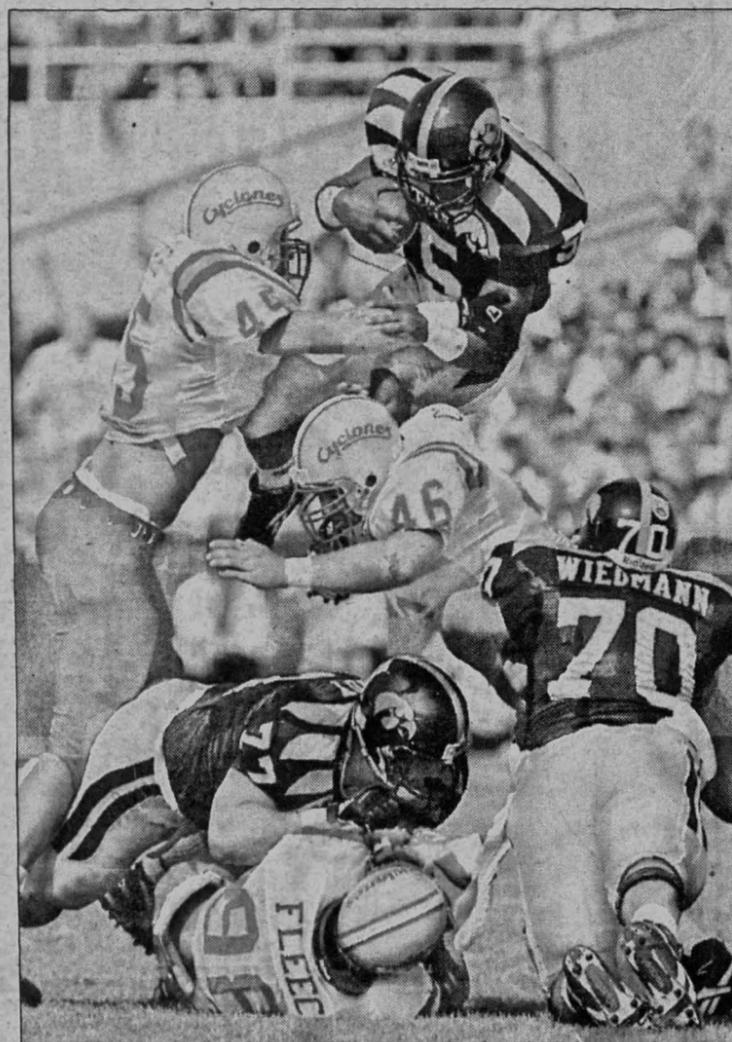

"Can you imagine all the garbage we would get from (the media), and the fans and the Cyclone fans and the president of the university. All those folks would be fifty feet off the ground," Fry said.

The players also know there is added pressure.

"This is a little more precious because if something doesn't work out, then you guys are going to tear us apart," Ennis-Inge added.

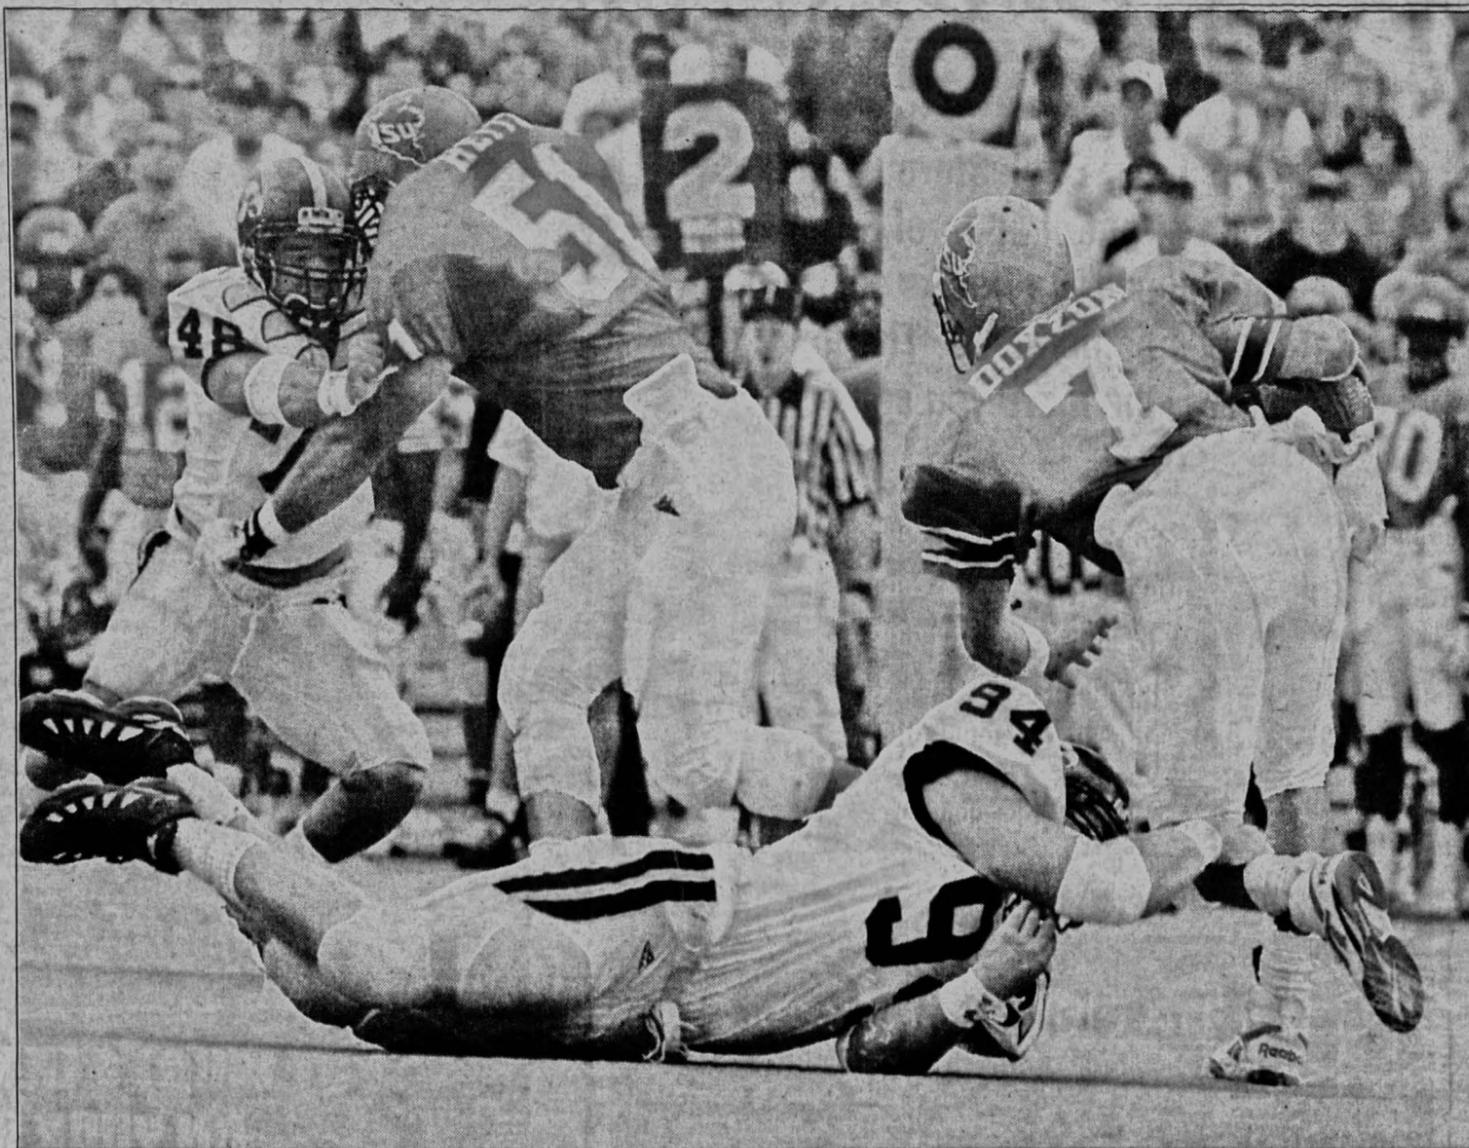

Iowa's streak of 21 straight wins over Northwestern came to an end last year. Fry hopes this streak can last as long.

"If I could go 21 years like Northwestern, I'd be real happy because I'd be out some place putting bait on my hook," he said.

STUDENT ATHLETES

Making the Grade

Andy Hamilton
THE DAILY IOWAN

Sometimes the most important decisions a college football player makes don't come on the field. Deciding how to balance time between football and academics is something each football player must do.

Some players learn how to manage their time wisely, while others don't.

Sophomore Matt Reischl is one of the players who has learned how to balance his time. Not only is Reischl a starting offensive lineman for the No. 21 Hawkeyes, but the 6-5, 285-

"Your football career is only going to be so long. The faster you as a student-athlete gets that through your head, the better off you're going to be as a student."

Bill Ennis-Inge, Iowa defensive end

Hawkeyes find balance between sports and studying pound native of Greendale, Wisc., also has maintained a 4.0 GPA as a finance major.

Reischl, who is the youngest member of the Iowa offensive line, has devoted a good share of his redshirt and freshman seasons to academics. Now he is able to cut back a little bit with his class load in order to concentrate harder on football.

"The first couple of years I was here, I just about never went out or did anything, but study or get ready to get back out on the practice field," Reischl said. "Basically I've made a conscious decision to devote a little more time to football. I'm the youngest guy on the line and I think other teams are going to try to pick on me and I've got to hold up my part of the unit."

"There's a lot of guys who've been here busting their butts all year to get where we are and have the chance that we do, and I don't want to let them down."

Entering his third academic year with 90 credit hours under his belt, Reischl can afford to slow down a bit with his class load.

The extra attention Reischl has given to football is being noticed by his peers, especially the guy playing beside him, co-captain Ross Verba.

"For his first game I thought he did really well. He won the hustle award for the offensive line," Verba said. "Sometimes he busts assignments, which is normal for any young guy. I've been there. But we're really pleased with him."

The mental toughness it takes to be a Big Ten football player also carries over to the classroom, but where does a player get the self discipline to study after a hard practice?

"I think that home training is the key to that question," senior defensive end Bill Ennis-Inge said. "How you were raised by your parents or whomever raised you as a kid, as well as the coaching staff and other players. When you come here you really realize the situation, why you are here."

"To be a student first, then an athlete, because your football career is only going to be so long. The faster you as a student-athlete gets that through your head, the better off you're going to be as a student."

So what does a football player do when he's mentally exhausted in the middle of the week with a big game upcoming on Saturday?

"You have to put yourself in an athletic situation and say if I'm tired in the huddle, when we break the huddle, am I going to give up on this play," Ennis-Inge said. "You really have to look at it in that same aspect because we have to do this everyday. Once you get into that same cycle of practicing and going home tired everyday, having to study is just going to be an everyday thing and won't be tough anymore."

The average week can be quite hectic for a college football player.

"We have to be able to balance time between practice, working out, lifting weights and going to school and maintaining a good GPA to graduate and get a degree," senior running back Sedrick Shaw said.

"We have to go to study tables, we have tutors, we're always on a schedule," junior Tim Dwight said. "You have to weight train and you have to put up with other distractions, like the media and people singling you out because you're a football player. You've got to be a special person to be an athlete here."

Getting off to a good start as a freshman is a big key to being a successful student-athlete. Most of the players are on their own for the first time as well as adjusting to classes and spending more time concentrating on football.

"What we do is a job," Dwight said. "As a younger player I can remember having four or five classes a day and then practice. As an older player, your class schedule is so much easier."

Iowa's Office of Student Services is a big help to the student-athletes, helping with class schedules along with providing tutors.

"They get us tutors, but it's hard because of our schedules," Dwight said.

Getting a schedule with the majority of their classes early in the week is what many players look for.

"You try to get a schedule where you don't have any classes on Friday. At the middle of the week you want to start preparing for the game physically," Dwight said.

Bringing 70,000 fans to their feet every fall Saturday is a challenge for the average football player and so is doing well academically with a limited time schedule. But which one is harder?

"Both," Shaw said. "You have to draw a fine line between both of them. It's extremely hard to do both and do them to the best of your ability."

The rewards for all of the hard work on and off the field is something the Hawkeyes are waiting for.

"You've got to constantly focus on football and go to class. In a period like this you don't have a social life. We're not going to be able to go out for three months, but it's a price you pay for hopefully a Rose Bowl," Verba said.

IOWA DEFENSE

Hawkeye 'D' steps it up

Hawkeyes forced five turnovers en route to Arizona victory

Team looks forward to facing Iowa State and tailback Troy Davis

Wayne Drehs
THE DAILY IOWAN

Iowa defensive end Bill Ennis-Inge looked at the scoreboard midway through the second quarter last Saturday against Arizona and found his team down, 7-0.

Something had to be done.

The senior captain proceeded to go around and slap his teammates on the helmet to fire them up. Three plays from scrimmage later, the Hawkeyes were up, 14-7, thanks in part to two turnovers forced by the defense.

"There are times when you have lapses and you know you have to bring the team together," Ennis-Inge said. "We had to let everybody know that it was going to be all right and we were going to go out there and play great Hawkeye defense.

"That's what we believe and that's what we are taught. That's where we have to be even tighter as a team and come together even more."

By the games end, the Iowa defense forced four Arizona fumbles, and sacked the Wildcat quarterback duo of Keith Smith and Brady Batten five separate times. Iowa defensive back Tommy Knight also added an interception.

The Hawkeyes success was no surprise to first year defensive coordinator Bob Elliott.

"We expect that effort out of our players," Elliott said. "If we get that kind of effort, then good things will happen. Whether or not we get that result, we have to keep plugging and hoping things turn out all right."

Although things turned out just fine against Arizona, there were still some things that the Iowa defense could have improved on. After the Hawkeyes built a 21-7 lead, Arizona scored two field goals and a touchdown unanswered, to close within 21-20.

"We played great team defense against Arizona at times," Ennis-

Inge said. "We need to be more consistent though."

Coach Elliott agrees with his defensive captain.

"You can always plan things better and there are definitely some things that we didn't do well," Elliott said. "On the whole and given the circumstances, I thought our guys played real well and helped us win the game."

Things won't get any easier for the Hawkeye defense this weekend as Heisman Trophy finalist Troy Davis scampers into Iowa City with his Cyclones. Davis averaged 182 yards per carry last season, but was held to 139 yards against Iowa.

"Troy is a tough runner and stays real low to the ground," linebacker Matt Hughes said. "He reminds me of Emmitt Smith. I'll probably remember popping him. I am really looking forward to that."

The inconsistency in the Iowa defensive attack is due in part to the youth and inexperience in the starting lineup. The linebacker core of Hughes and Vernon Rollins are only sophomores, and the Arizona game was Hughes first start.

The youngsters performed well though, as Hughes notched twelve tackles, while Rollins tallied fourteen tackles and a sack for a 16 yard loss. Both players also had fumble recoveries, Rollins' coming in the endzone for his first career touchdown. Rollins was named Big Ten defense player of the week Monday.

"Rollins did a good job calling the signals and adjustments," Fry said. "He got off to a real good start Saturday."

"Hughes started out slow early in the game, but then really came on strong. These two linebackers will improve and should be really tough against the run."

PETE THOMPSON/THE DAILY IOWAN

SIT DOWN: Iowa's Tom Knight makes a tackle last week against Arizona. Knight intercepted a pass and recorded five tackles against the Wildcats.

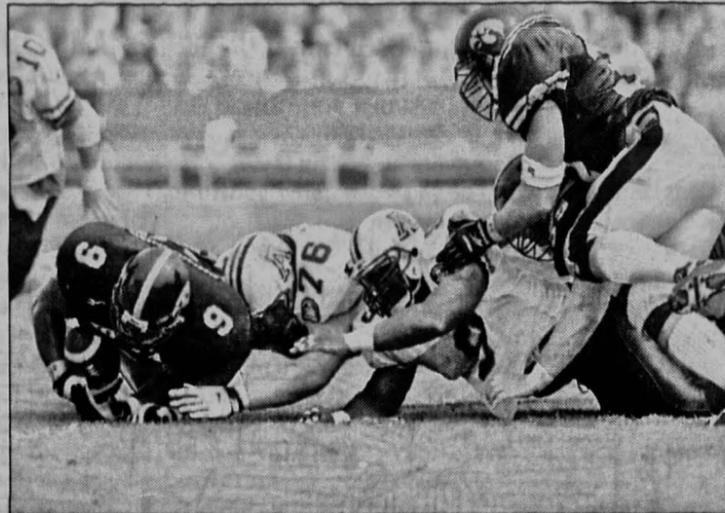

In addition to the play of the linebackers, Fry noted the play of another sophomore, Jared DeVries, as exceptional. DeVries only had six tackles, but three of them were for losses that totaled 20 yards. Two of his tackles were sacks.

"DeVries played an outstanding game and picked up right where he left off after the Sun Bowl game," Fry added.

While Iowa's numbers certainly looked good, Elliott admitted that the defense doesn't center their goals around numbers or individual accolades.

"Our goals deal with how hard we play," Elliott said. "How much we believe in one another and that type of thing. Our goals are set around intangibles that when put together, will put up good statistical numbers."

The Iowa defense was predicted to be solid this season, but not exceptional. Continuing the play displayed on Saturday would be more than pleasing to the Iowa coaches and fans alike. "Hopefully this is the kind of defense we can expect week in and week out," Ennis-Inge said. "But for this to happen, we know we have to take advantage of all the practice sessions, film sessions, and really take care of ourselves off the field as well as on the field for that to happen though."

TWO SPORT STAR

Bashir knows football... and track

Hawkeye Bashir Yamini traded his track spikes for football cleats this fall

Chris Snider
THE DAILY IOWAN

His gold Nike swoosh earring would make even Deion Sanders proud, but it's not just a taste for accessories that Bashir Yamini and the Dallas Cowboys' two-sport star have in common.

After a successful freshman season with the Iowa track and field team, in which he earned indoor Big Ten Freshman of the Year honors, Yamini decided to live out a dream of his and give football a try.

"It has been a dream of mine all my life to play college football and it feels good (to finally be out there)," he said.

Yamini, a 6-4, 160-pound wide receiver from Dolton, Illinois, had an offer to play football at UNLV out of high school, but wanted to compete in the Big Ten.

"I talked to (Iowa assistant track coach) Pat McGhee at the state track meet and I started leaning more towards Big Ten schools at that time," Yamini said.

The fact that prep teammate Eric Thigpen (now Iowa's second string free safety) was already at Iowa and Ruqayya Raheem, a friend of his, was coming to Iowa to run on the women's track team, made Yamini seriously consider Iowa.

"We were pretty close in high school," Yamini said of Thigpen. "When he signed, I pretty much was leaning towards Iowa."

So when Iowa offered the Illinois state champion high jumper a track scholarship, he took it.

Despite the fact that he was solely running track his freshman year, Yamini never gave up his dreams of playing football for the Hawkeyes.

"I came to watch them practice a few times when I first got here, with the intent and idea to come out and play football," Yamini said. "I kind of wanted to get in, get my foot in the door first and then work my way over to football."

"Physically, he can catch, he can run, he can jump. He's kind of like a Keyshawn Johnson (of the NFL New York Jets) type player. He's really smooth in what he does. He's just so young and inexperienced."

Tim Dwight, Iowa wide receiver about Iowa freshman Bashir Yamini

Track may have been his ticket to Iowa, but football has always been Yamini's favorite sport.

"I started football first," he said. "Football has always been first. As I got into high school, I started running track. Track came on from there, but I always see myself as a football player."

Another person who sees him as a football player, and a pretty good one, is Iowa wide receiver Tim Dwight.

"Physically, he can catch, he can run, he can jump," Dwight said. "He's kind of like a Keyshawn Johnson (of the NFL New York Jets) type player. He's really smooth in what he does. He's just so young and inexperienced."

Although he's only been with the team since the day school started, Yamini has caught the eye of offensive coordinator Don Patterson.

"I think he's coming along just fine," Patterson said. "He's got very good ball skills. He catches the ball well. He's, of course, a really good athlete."

"He's in the process of learning the offense. He's got a great attitude. The players like him and he seems to have fit in real well."

Just the fact that the coaches keep him around shows Yamini has some talent. Any scholarship money he receives from the track team counts against the football team's limit of 85 scholarships, making Yamini more than just you average walk-on.

"He counts against us if he gets any scholarship aid from any sport," Patterson said. "I don't know what kind of scholarship aid he gets from track, but he's certainly getting some and for that reason alone, he counts against us."

Despite the fact that he has already proven himself in track, winning the long jump at the Big Ten indoor meet and taking second at the Drake Relays, Yamini can only sit and wait his turn in football. He currently practices with Iowa's scout team.

"It's pretty much a tough transition. You've got to work your way from the bottom to the top," Yamini said. "In doing that, it will build more character for me, to realize you do still have to work on it."

In a time when more and more athletes specialize, Yamini's decision to play both sports may hurt his performance in one, or both, sports. Indoor track season starts up in mid-January, and practice starts even earlier in the year.

Counting bowl games, football season can last until New Year's Day and spring football practice falls right in the heart of the track season.

"Logically from a football coaches standpoint, it would be really beneficial to be there throughout spring ball, but the track schedule may not allow that," Patterson said. "We'll just have to cross that bridge when we come to it."

FRESHMAN SENSATION: Bashir Yamini, seen here competing in Iowa City last season, won Big Ten Indoor Freshman of the Year honors for his performance in the long jump.

Yamini may be the one faced with the tough decision when that time comes. His dream was to play college football, but his best bet at stardom may come in track.

Dwight, who ran track at time last season but stopped to focus on spring ball, knows Yamini will not have an easy time balancing both sports in the spring.

"I think he's not going to be able to put in the time in the off-season because they're going to want him over there more," Dwight said. "I think it's good for him that he's over here. I hope he gets in, in a year or two. I think he can be helpful."

In the end, Yamini thinks his double with help his performance in both sports.

"I don't think it will hurt me," he said. "I think it will make me better. For one, I think I'll gain a little more weight and power. That will help me in sprinting and long jump."

"Track and football are like sister schools. They're both linked. They help each other out."

Yamini playing football may also help the entire Iowa track program. He has already become somewhat of an ambassador between the two sports.

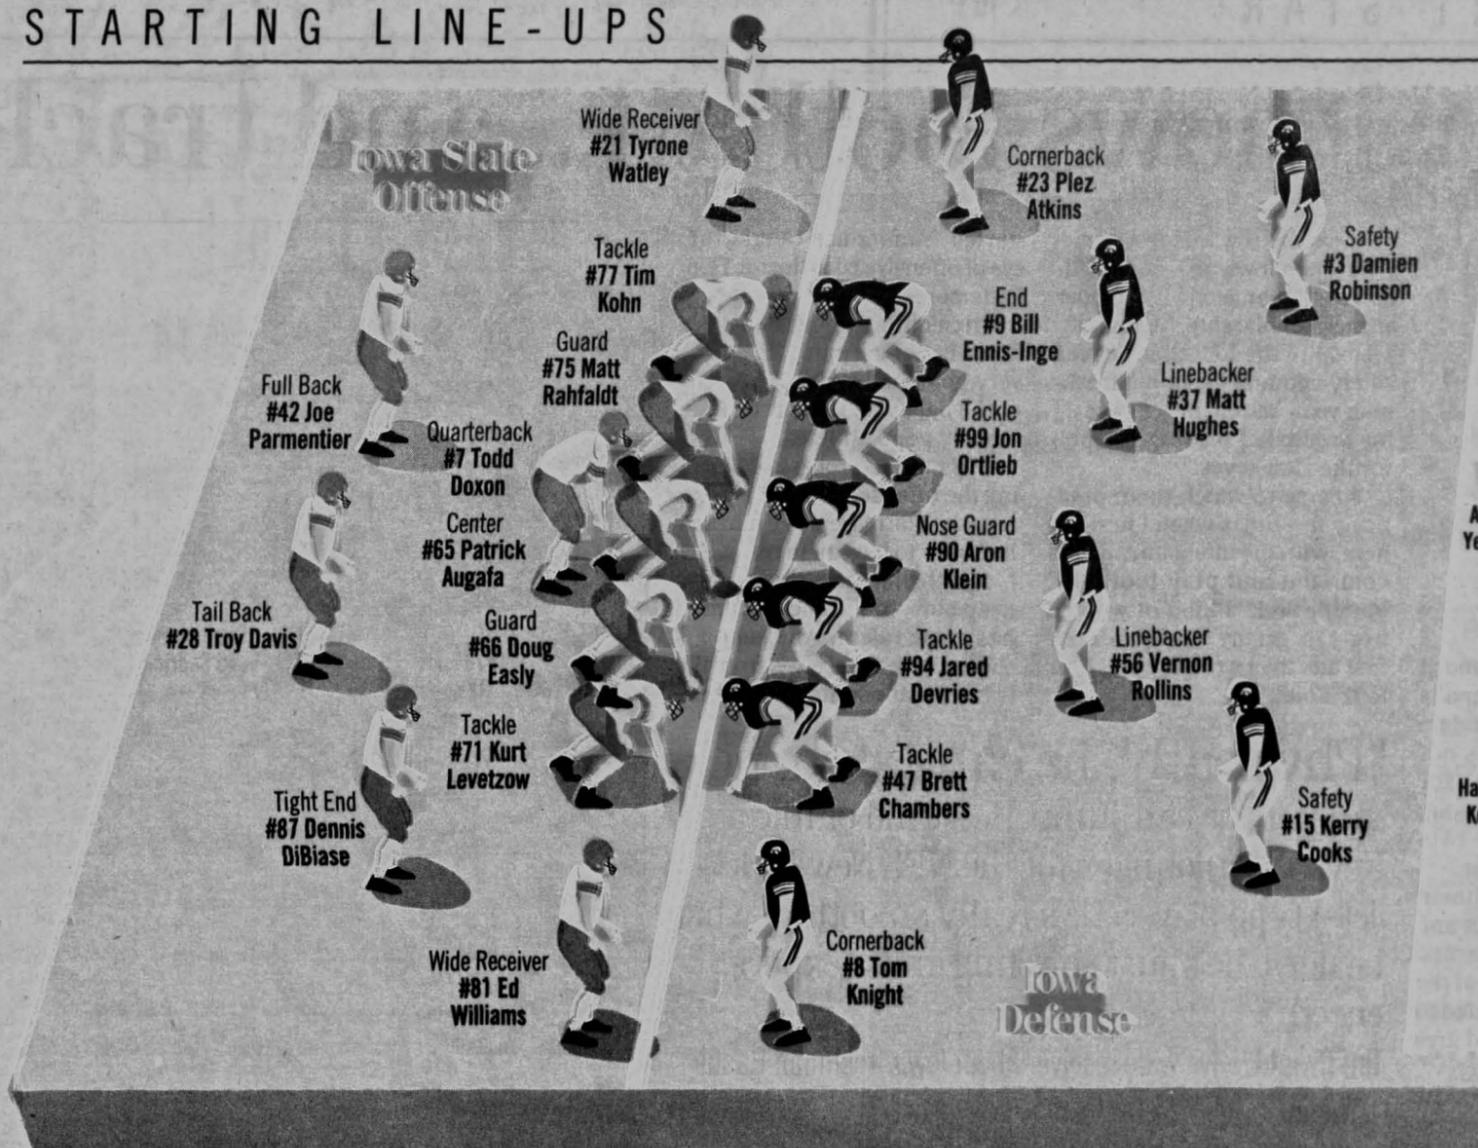

"Some of these guys like to come out for track to improve their speed," he said. "Every once in a while, I ask them if they're going to come out for indoor, but they pretty much like to come out on their own to better their speed and their quickness."

GAME NOTES

Iowa State coaches helped

When Iowa State football coach Dan McCarney returns to Iowa City this weekend, it may not be to the welcome arms of his former mentor, Iowa Coach Hayden Fry.

McCarney, who played football at Iowa and later was an assistant under Fry, turned out to be a major factor in Arizona's success against Iowa last weekend. After attempts to exchange tapes between the two programs went sour, McCarney allowed Arizona coaches on the ISU campus, where Head Coach Dick Tomey and company studied their future foes.

The fact that McCarney would allow such things to happen may have made Fry question the loyalty of his former assistant.

"All I can say is I'm not going to comment," Fry said. "You know how strong I am in my beliefs in something, I'll come out and say it. If I don't say anything, you might say I'm treading water."

McCarney, however, denied there was any issue.

"To me, there is no issue," McCarney said. "It's commonplace. Every staff in America shares ideas with other people. Every year that I was at the University of Iowa, we shared ideas, we talked to other teams.

"There's no issue here. We do it all the time. There's no rule against it. It's not unethical."

While McCarney said Iowa's defensive staff once went to Kansas to seek help in preparing for Iowa State, Fry said he would never do the same to McCarney.

"First of all, I wouldn't do it because I wouldn't want Iowa State to lose and I wouldn't want Dan to lose," Fry said.

Cyclone defensive line coach Sam Papalii is Arizona's connection to ISU. Papalii was an assistant to Tomey from 1987-89 at Arizona and from 1983-86 at Hawaii.

College football teams are allowed to exchange tapes of any game that they are playing in. Because Iowa exchanges with Iowa State, Arizona could watch tapes that ISU obtained from Iowa in the past as long as the tapes didn't leave campus.

But the controversy doesn't end there. The question of why

PETE THOMPSON/THE DAILY IOWAN

UNHAPPY HAYDEN: Iowa football coach Hayden Fry was at a loss for words regarding the fact that his former assistant coach, Iowa State coach Dan McCarney, allowed Arizona coaches to study Iowa game tapes on the Iowa State campus.

Iowa and Arizona never swapped tapes has led to Fry-bashing by the Tucson media. Greg Hanson of the Arizona Daily Star said in his column on Monday, "Hayden Fry's refusal to give Arizona coaches any game tapes of the '95 Hawkeyes was an unforgivable breach of

Cyclones look to end Iowa's streak

Iowa State brings talented offense into Kinnick Stadium

Young defense looks to slow down Iowa attack

Chris Snider
THE DAILY IOWAN

Despite 13 straight losses at the hands of the Iowa, the Iowa State Cyclones are not about to concede No. 14 without a fight.

"We've got a huge challenge ahead," Iowa State Coach Dan McCarney said. "They're talented, they're experienced, they're tough, they're confident. They're coming off a great win over a real outstanding Arizona team. We know it's a major, major challenge for this program to go over and play the Hawkeyes."

For McCarney, this game marks the first time he returns to Kinnick Stadium as a head coach. McCarney played at Iowa and later was an assistant coach for the Hawkeyes.

"It will be a great feeling. But this game will not be about Hayden Fry and Dan McCarney or Troy Davis and Sedrick Shaw," he said, referring to each team's outstanding running back.

"It's about two great institutions in the same state and I'm very proud to be a part of this rivalry. It's great to be back and a part of this thing. The people in this state take it very seriously."

Despite a disappointing overtime loss to Wyoming last week, the Cyclones will undoubtedly be ready for the Hawkeyes. Iowa State brings perhaps their most explosive offense in those 13 years into Kinnick Stadium this weekend.

"They're so much more balanced," Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said.

"They've got a greatly improved passing attack. They've still got that Heisman trophy guy in the backfield and (quarterback Todd) Doxzon also. I just thought he looked outstanding against Wyoming."

The Iowa State offense starts with Troy Davis. Davis rushed for 146 yards on 35 carries against Wyoming, while racking up 223 all purpose yards.

TWO TD'S: Iowa State running back Troy Davis eludes a Wyoming defender as quarterback Todd Doxzon looks on.

"It will be a great feeling. But this game will not be about Hayden Fry and Dan McCarney or Troy Davis and Sedrick Shaw. It's about two great institutions in the same state and I'm very proud to be a part of this rivalry. It's great to be back and a part of this thing. The people in this state take it very seriously."

Dan McCarney, Iowa State coach

"He's so short and solid and mobile. You can't arm tackle him. He's got great vision. His change of direction is phenomenal," Fry said.

"This year, they've got more weapons that we've got to be prepared for, but he is the biggest weapon that they have, although based on one game, Doxzon looked awful good. I was extremely impressed with Doxzon."

Doxzon threw for 225 yards last week, connecting on 17-of-22 passes. He threw one touchdown to go with his one interception. Seven of his passes went to split end Ed Williams, who totaled 82 yards receiving.

Protecting Davis and Doxzon is an offensive line that averages 292 pounds and has 13 years of experience.

"I'm very impressed with their offensive line," Fry said. "They're big guys. They were good last year and they're better this year. Of course with Troy rushing for 2,000 yards, they've got to be good."

"They've got a huge offensive line that we consider to be one of the very best offensive lines we'll face all year," Bill Ennis-Inge added. "So, (the offense has) got no weaknesses as far as I can see."

Iowa State brings a fairly young defense into the game. The Cyclones list just one senior starter on the defensive side of the ball, to go with three freshmen, two sophomores and five juniors.

"Their defense is young right now, but they're awfully talented," Iowa quarterback Matt Sherman said.

"They have speed now that they haven't had a couple years ago. This is a big ballgame for us. We're looking at it just like Ohio State-Penn State, simply because that's the type of game it is. We'll have our work cut out for us."

Although he would have liked to start the season with a win, McCarney was pleased with his team's effort against Wyoming.

"We scored 38 points. We're very happy with that," he said. "The way we started the game, how fast we started I thought was good. We held Wyoming under 100 yards rushing. We forced three turnovers and only had one. Overall, our special teams were very good."

"We had 18 kids hit the field for the first time and I think all those kids did a nice job making that adjustment and getting past the opening game jitters every young man has when he steps on the field for the first time."

BOOK REVIEW

Authors looking for Iowa City 'Madness'

Mike Triplett
THE DAILY IOWAN

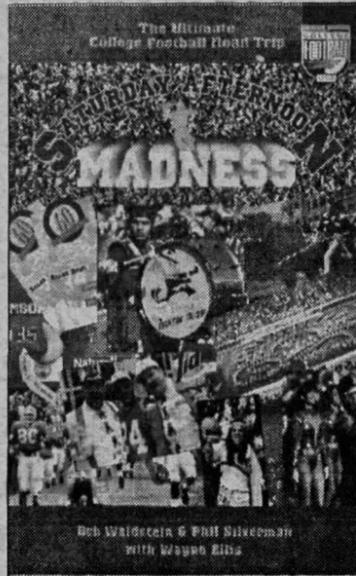

They dialed up the Paternos and talked to Coach Joe's wife Sue for 40 minutes during their visit to Penn State. That was in between visits to the Rathskeller bar, of course.

Tailgating on the Bayou on Saturday night before an LSU football game was only slightly better than Saturday afternoon on the Bayou and Friday night on the Bayou.

They even pitched a tent in the pouring rain in front of the Cameron Indoor Stadium at Duke, fighting off cops to catch a glimpse of Coach K.

And this weekend, a trip to Iowa City will hopefully provide a few more highlights from the college football adventures of Bob Waldstein, Phil Silverman and Bill Fowles.

Waldstein, who co-authored the book, "Saturday Afternoon Madness" with Silverman, is currently in Iowa City with Fowles, his partner for a planned second book, "Saturday Afternoon Madness II: Gluttons for Punishment."

Both books focus on a season-long adventure to 16 of the top college football campuses and the fanfare leading up to Saturday's games.

"We're trying to uncover what makes the Iowa football experience special," Waldstein explained. "For me, the perfect book would be to have 12 chapters and have each chapter be an argument for why that place is the single most unique place to watch college football."

"If you had to think of your dream 48 hours before an Iowa football game, starting Friday afternoon, what would it be? What would you do?"

Tonight, it's the bar scene. Waldstein and Fowles have heard good things about the beer band, which is actually the UI Marching Band traveling from bar to bar, playing inspiring music and snagging some free beer.

Tomorrow, it's tailgating and a foray into the student section. The Magic Bus is on the agenda for the duo, which considers the tailgating scene vital to pregame preparation.

But, as Waldstein explained, there must be more to the college football experience than just drinking.

"After Penn State is when we realized, we can't drink every night," Waldstein said. "We drank every single night at Penn State, literally, we were drunk the whole time. And we're not real big drinkers."

Penn State was the first week-long stay of the original road trip. But Waldstein and Silverman had trouble topping that experience throughout the rest of the journey.

While there, they decided to give the first family of State College a call, since the Paternos happen to be listed in the telephone directory.

"I've called it a bunch of times actually," Waldstein admitted.

Iowa will be the third Big Ten campus for Waldstein, who also plans to hit Wisconsin, Ohio State and Northwestern on this trip with Fowles.

On the first trip, Big Ten schools got mixed reviews. Waldstein and Silverman went from State College to Ann Arbor, Mich., where things all seemed to fall apart.

"We had a great time at the Rathskeller, made a ton of friends and just had an awesome time at Penn State," Waldstein said. "Then we get to Michigan and the limo starts to break down. We get no cooperation at Michigan, nothing works out. And we left Michigan thinking, 'this place sucks.'"

Waldstein has since warmed to Ann Arbor. On a recent trip, he allowed students to decorate the hood of his beat up Lincoln with the Wolverines' logo.

But when asked what some of his favorite excerpts from the first trip were, Waldstein said to just read the chapter on LSU. The book lists Saturday night on the Bayou as one of the 10 college football events to witness before you die and they say it's college football's greatest tailgate.

Of course, not all the journey's highlights dealt strictly with football. Waldstein coerced Silverman into a 250-mile sidetrack to his alma mater, Duke.

"We couldn't just go and watch basketball all afternoon," Waldstein said. "We had to go early in the morning in front of the Krzyzewski building and set up a tent, because I wanted to get the full glory of Duke basketball."

"It was raining and pouring the whole time and the cops came and told us we had to take the tent down. Phil told them it was an anti-apartheid protest. And they believed us and just kind of walked away."

Waldstein said Krzyzewski eventually came out and signed a basketball. Coach K didn't seem to mind the tent, but he was very upset that the duo's used limo (the original car of choice) was parked in two spots.

PREGAME'S PICK

Iowa continues intrastate dominance

Iowa 42, Iowa State 13

The chances of Iowa losing to Iowa State in football are about as good as the UI canceling classes. It rarely happens. For the past thirteen years, Iowa State has tried everything under the sun to beat the Hawkeyes, but came up with nary a victory.

This season, the Cyclones bring one of the most talented teams they have had in the past decade to Kinnick Stadium. No matter, Iowa also has one of its most explosive teams in that same time period.

Forget about what Iowa appeared to do right or wrong against Arizona.

The reason Arizona was able to have such success against Iowa last week was directly related to the amount of studying the Arizona coaches did of the Iowa team. They knew Iowa's strengths, weaknesses and tendency's better than half the Hawkeye team.

And Iowa still won. Meanwhile, Iowa State lost to Wyoming. Of course, Athlon Sports picked Wyoming No. 42 in their preseason poll, just behind Arizona (No. 40) and Iowa (No. 38). I hope they're wrong.

It just so happens the Arizona coaches were doing their studying along side the Iowa State coaching staff. Fortunately for the Hawkeyes, Iowa State's defense doesn't have the speed and talent that Arizona has, and won't be able to shut down

Iowa's potent offensive attack.

And no matter how much Iowa State knows about Iowa, you can bet Iowa coach Hayden Fry and his staff know as much or more about the Cyclones.

If Fry knows one thing, it's how to beat the 'clones. He's done it 14 times in 17 meetings.

All eyes will be on Sedrick Shaw and Heisman candidate Troy Davis when the talk subsides and the actual game begins. Davis rushed for over 2,000 yards last year, but there are plenty of people in Iowa City and the state who think Shaw is the better back.

Only time will tell for sure, but we should get a good indication this weekend.

The better battle could come between Iowa quarterback Matt Sherman and Iowa State signal caller Todd Doxzon. With both defenses keying on the other team's tailback, Sherman and Doxzon could have easy pickin's of open receivers.

One thing is for sure, Iowa wide receiver Tim Dwight will have a big game against the Cyclones. Dwight caught only four passes for 15 yards last weekend, and had another pass go right through his hands.

Dwight is too good of a player and too much of a competitor to have two straight sub-par performances. And you can guarantee the Iowa City native will be geared up to lay into a few Cyclones.

Any time you have beaten a team as many times in a row as Iowa has beaten Iowa State, you run the risk of a let down.

Had Iowa not looked less than impressive last week against Arizona, that may have been a problem, but the Hawkeyes are still hungry to show the world (and a fairly disappointed student section) that they are the explosive team we all saw in the Sun Bowl and expected to see this season.

Believe it or not, every Iowa State fan I have talked to in the past year has told me this is the year Iowa State will win. It looks like they've been serving extra helpings of false hope in the ISU cafeteria.

Troy Davis guaranteed an Iowa State victory. I hope you're not guaranteeing the Heisman, Troy.

Iowa 42, Iowa State 13.

IOWA CITY'S MORNING NEWSPAPER

THIS WEEK IN THE BIG TEN

Michigan won't avenge Hail Mary pass

As week three of the Big Ten kicks off, the theme is, "whip butt or get your butt whipped." Only four of the nine Big Ten teams in action are at home, and Michigan and Purdue visit places they may not return from.

Michigan at Colorado.

The miracle win by the Buffaloes in '94 will be in the back of the Wolverines mind as Michigan makes its first trip to Boulder since 1974.

Michigan's had two weeks off to prepare for this game, but playing Illinois doesn't count as having a game under your belt.

Colorado blitzed Colorado State for 48 points last week and that's where there the real matchup lies, Michigan's defense vs. Colorado's offense.

Michigan's defense is for real, boasting two all-American linebackers and a secondary that makes receivers update their life insurance policies. It will keep the game close. But Buffalo QB Koy Detmer knows how to win. Colorado, 27-23.

Ball State at Minnesota.

Sentences never spoken before in the history of the English language. Minnesota dismantled Northeast Louisiana, 30-3, last weekend behind freshman running back Thomas Hammer's 154 yards rushing.

Scary, but it's true.

The Cardinals will make sure that phrase is never uttered again. Ball State was fourth in the nation in total defense last season, giving up only 250 yards per game.

But the Gophers will air it out behind junior QB Cory Sauter, who has a career completion percentage over 60-percent.

Minnesota, 21-10.

Miami (Ohio) at Indiana.

The Hoosiers looked tough in their 40-6 stomping of Toledo and have a 9-3-1 advantage in the all time series against the Redskins.

Indiana's Alex Smith, who rushed for 174 yards last week, will have his work cut out for him against a defense that was 11th in the nation against the run, allowing only 110 yards per game last season.

Redskin outside linebacker Dee Osborne (126 tackles in '95) will look to tomahawk Smith and the rest of the Indiana offense. Too bad it's the Hoosiers that will be on the war path.

Indiana, 30-14.

Northwestern at Duke.

The Wildcats were smoked on Tobacco road last weekend and guess what? They get to return to a place where they are 0-3 lifetime.

Granted, the winner of this game should be who gets their medical degree first, but Duke will be pumped up just like Wake Forest was.

Northwestern will have to improve on defense, where they gave up 370 yards of offense against the Demon Deacons.

Barnett is down but not out. Northwestern, 22-9.

Northern Illinois at Penn State.

Penn State will get a wake up call if they play like they did last week in a 24-7 win over Louisville.

Starting quarterback Wally Richardson threw two more interceptions and Curtis Enis rushed for only 104 yards. Things will have to click better when 1,500 yard runner Charles Talley comes to town.

Penn State, 32-17.

Illinois at Arizona.

The Illini just can't get a break. After they personally reinstated confidence in USC's football program last week with a 55-3 loss, they now get a Wildcat team that played their butts off, only to lose by one.

Illinois's defense is going to have to play well, but if Arizona holds on to the ball after turning it over 5 times against Iowa, the Wildcats will be in good shape.

Arizona, 10-3.

Purdue at Notre Dame.

The Fighting Irish were lucky to escape Vanderbilt with a win and Lou Holtz has been drilling that into his players heads in the nine days since.

Purdue hasn't recovered from the 52-14 pasting Michigan State laid on them. Boilermaker quarterback Billy Dicken will have to take pressure off a ground attack that only had averages 2.6 yards per carry.

Purdue's uniforms look like Vanderbilt's. Yikes.

Notre Dame, 38-3.

Wisconsin at UNLV.

Badger coach Barry Alvarez better not bet on a win as the Badgers attempt to improve on their mediocre 6-5 all time record vs. WAC teams.

Wisconsin looked lackluster in their 24-3 victory over Eastern Michigan last week. The only bright spot for Wisconsin was Carl McCullough's 107 yard rushing performance.

If the Rebels Tony Burton (880 yards in '95) runs wild, it could be craps for the Badgers in the desert.

Wisconsin, 19-17.

Chris James is a UI senior majoring in journalism and a DI sports writer. He correctly picked six of eight winners last week.
