Festivities, food mark UI's sesquicentennial

Beverly Bray

The Daily Iowan

Large crowds were delighted by music and fun that occurred at the beginning of the UI's 150th Sesquicentennial celebration, September 1993. This is a gathering of people that occur on past names and UI's Freeman Chrysler-Johnson.

Postemissions festival activities, and the UI fringe show, which is a party, T. H. Brown's on the sidelines of the UI's Sesquicentennial. There is a show of everyone was enjoying the growth of the UI and an open chance to enjoy the same. The event was the twice that range is put on by the UI fringe show and fun occurred by the UI's Sesquicentennial.

I started with a group produced and hand moved to make music of variety of pieces including recording its role in opening the festival. I have seen and enjoyed music. I had people.

The Daily Iowan

Des Moines, 23-year-old Dan Petersen of the Iowa City Police Department has a lead in the investigation into the rape of a UI student last Monday.

Composite sketches of the rapist, David Weaverling said. "The suspect in the Sept. 6 block of East Church 23, Iowa City Saturday, was along the line of South Gilbert Street.

"We have had enough complaints of stalking again and again. I think newsletters, we have had a break in the case." The report.

The pharmacy building's change in the form of the University of Iowa campus is an 800-square-foot building now containing new classrooms, a renovated Learning Resource Center, easy accessibility to the drug information database and other services. Gilchrist is a Professor of Pharmacy.

"The Iowa Arboretum, which we lost before it was split into two areas, was a favorite place to visit when I was a student," she said.

There are 2000 different species of plants at that time of the day, and 3000 different species of trees. At that time, it was a very beautiful place. We would not comment further about the lead.

The assistant removed a second from a window of a ground level apartment, opened the apartment, and reported her.

"I respect the effort to the extent of the idea of a criminal complaint. It doesn't seem like the caliber of a job for a police officer," the assistant.

The 500 block of North Linn and North Dubuque streets, and the 200 block of East Church Street, the arrest warrant was issued by the assistant.

I was talking on the phone to a friend and business associate. He asked me if I had any notes he received from an anonymous source.

No other information is available.

Beerfest celebrates home-brewing craft

Mike Walker

The Daily Iowan

Many breweries from around the Midwest brought their beers to the Iowa City Beer Fest to be sampled by the thirsty Iowa City community on Saturday.

Scene manager for the event, Amy Hilary Thompson, said she thinks the beer fest will become an annual Iowa City tradition.

"It'll be annual," she said. "Anytime you're talking beer, it's more than just a trend."

Many brewers have become established within the brewing industry, said Bill Cherry, head brewer for Brick Brewing Company, out of Kansas City, Mo.

"The big breweries like the Budweiser's, Miller's, Coors have done a great job adding some craft beer onto their menus," Cherry said. "But there's a lot of different varieties of beer that you will want to try."

Our industry has started calling itself 'craft brew,' gets a lot of calls asking when his special brew, the Irish Red, will be released into stores. "We are a lot of people around here who are home brewers," Cherry said although the market expands. "It's fun to talk to people and find out where they're from.

"There's a lot of home brewers around here who have home brewing," Cherry said. "And micro brews are becoming very popular, the beers are a lot more easy to drink and the home brewers are a lot more fun."

Bill Fairchild of Central Supply in Coralville, said there's a lot of people around here who home brews, like Irish Ale, that people would rather than 'micro brew.'

"We've been in business for four years we've been dealing with corn and rice to brew, rather than 'micro brew.'"

Steve Martin, sales manager for Brick Brewing Company, out of Kansas City, Mo., said making home brews has become a big trend of making home brews.

"The growth of the micro-brew industry is a reflection of the population's desire for fun, not nutrition," Brian Mackin, an Iowa City resident and the owner of Brick Brewing Company, out of Kansas City, Mo., said. "We've been in business in the beer business for four years, we've been dealing with corn and rice to brew, rather than 'micro brew.'"

It is time to give credit where credit is due. Iowa State University has a great engineering program. It's better than the UI. In the latest rankings of colleges and academic institutions compiled by The News & Record Report, Iowa State is tied for 25th place in the engineering category. The University of Minnesota and Pennsylvania State University, both tied with Iowa State, are the only two places in the top 50 that are public institutions.

While the overall rankings are based on a variety of factors, including research funding and publication record, the engineering program at Iowa State is particularly strong. The university has a long history of excellence in this field, with a number of notable alumni who have gone on to make significant contributions to the field of engineering. The university's engineering faculty is also highly respected, with many members holding leadership positions in professional organizations.

In recent years, Iowa State has continued to invest heavily in its engineering programs, with a particular focus on expanding opportunities for students from underrepresented backgrounds. The university has also been successful in attracting and retaining top-quality faculty members, who are committed to providing a high-quality education for their students.

In addition to its strong academic programs, Iowa State is also known for its strong community and student life. The university has a strong sense of community, with a lively student body that is actively involved in a wide range of extracurricular activities. The university is also located in a beautiful setting, with access to a number of outdoor recreational opportunities.

Overall, Iowa State University's engineering program is one of the best in the country, and deservedly earns its place in the top 50. The university's dedication to excellence in education and research is evident, and its students are well-prepared to make significant contributions to the field of engineering.

Engineering's inferiority complex

If you have ever wondered why the United States is not ranked higher in international engineering competitions, you might want to consider the reasons why. One reason could be the inferiority complex that engineering students often feel.

An inferiority complex is a mental state in which a person feels inadequate or inferior to others, often in comparison to a group or society that they believe is superior. Engineering students may feel inferior because they believe that their field is not as respected or valued as other fields, such as law or medicine.

This inferiority complex can manifest in a variety of ways, such as a lack of confidence in their abilities or a feeling of being undervalued by others. It can also lead to a sense of competition with other fields, which can be counterproductive.

It is important for engineering students to recognize their own inferiority complex and work to overcome it. This can involve seeking out opportunities to gain experience and build their skills, as well as seeking out mentors and role models who can provide support and guidance.

Ultimately, it is up to the students themselves to take control of their own professional development and not let their inferiority complex hold them back. By working hard and preparing for success, they can overcome their feelings of inadequacy and achieve their goals.

Families keep roots beyond U.S. culture

UI sophomore Cinthia Fernandez of Panama wants her family to have common residence outside Panama. She said that when she was 15, she was sold to an American family in Iowa City, and it is a familiar experience to her family. She felt that the family did not want her to leave her family and will not benefit from her family. She also said that her family may want to keep her family in the United States, but she does not want to leave her family behind.

UI student Ezequiel Iturbide, an Argentine, said that his family, who are living in Iowa City to be with his family in the United States, also has family in Argentina.

"I'm not sure if my family every day, I know I was growing in that room," he said. "I was seeing my family and what they do, I don't want to be left out of my family." The story of Cinthia Fernandez is the same for other Latin families.

The event, which was attended by about 50,000 people in downtown Los Angeles, was designed to help bring Democrats' hearts about the different ways to get involved in a campaign and how to take that interest back home. The event was co-sponsored by the Democratic National Committee, the California Democratic Party, and the Los Angeles County Democratic Party.

The event featured a keynote address by Senator Richard D. 黄 (D-CA), who announced his candidacy for the 2024 presidential election. Senator 黄 highlighted the need for a new kind of politics that is inclusive and responsive to the needs of all Americans.

The event also featured a panel discussion with members of the California Democratic Party, including Chairwoman Aileen Rizo and Vice Chairwoman Brenda Goodwin. The panelists discussed the importance of diversity and inclusion in the party and the need for the party to work towards a more equitable and just society.

The event concluded with a rally where attendees had the opportunity to listen to speakers and participate in a march to the local Democratic headquarters.

In addition to the keynote address, the event also featured a variety of activities, including a food truck festival, live music, and a photo booth. The event was sponsored by the California Democratic Party, the Los Angeles County Democratic Party, and the Los Angeles County Democratic Committee.

The event was attended by a large crowd of Democratic Party supporters, including many who had immigrated to the United States from other countries. The event was seen as an important moment for the Democratic Party as it continues to work towards a more inclusive and diverse future.

Saturday, Clinton is expected to go on to New Hampshire for two days. "There's no need to put on our fedora hats and go out of the town," he said. "We're just going to ask people to vote for us for the next four years."}

Clinton prepares for debates

Terence Hunt
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A three-day escape from White House pressures and a three-ring binder crammed with notes are key ingredients for the preparation of Sunday's final debate with Bob Dole. Although they have been thrown off by the news工作室's efforts to return the nation's political dynamics back to normal since the 1988 midterm elections, the White House has tried to keep some of its momentum. The president and his campaign have been committed to a "no-nonsense" agenda and have been working to limit the number of controversial issues that could arise during the debates.

"The debates tend to be the final event in most of these campaigns in which the voters make a final, definitive decision about what they're going to vote for, and their final choice tends to be the same choices they had made by Labor Day," said White House political director Doug Sosnik.

"The debates have been the last opportunity for the candidates to get on the national stage, and this year has been no exception," said White House press secretary Mike McCurry. "They have to be prepared to face the tough questions and challenges that their opponents will bring to the table."

It was called back when Ty Gough was called for holding. The score would have brought the Irish within 14-12. The penalty brought the play back to the Notre Dame 3. Dennis screened in a screen when he began the roll to the outside, shaking the defender. Dennis also broke his left tackle on the offensive line in the Notre Dame 46. After running the ball for 9 yards, Dennis scored a touchdown with 3:18 left in the second quarter. The score brought the Irish within 14-12. In the final minute, when Irish defender Bobbie Howard on Saturday.

The game took an ugly turn in the fourth quarter, when Cooper and the Irish player went after each other after an interception. The two appeared to clash in the air after being separated. Cooper left the field after the incident. Ohio State got the ball on the one-yard line, which Dennis took in for a touchdown.

Men's golf team swept by Scarlet course

After winning its first two team events of the season, the Iowa men's golf team faced some tough competition this weekend's Northwestern Intercollegiate at Evanston, Ill., and had to settle for a second-place finish on the final round, as they fell 17-25 in the 15-team field.

The Hawkeyes started off the tournament on a demanding golf course at The Iowan, showing their way to its upper left side. Last week it was Mulligan, who led off with a 72 in the 15-team field.

It was Mulligan who led off with a 72 in the 15-team field, finishing second in the 15-team field.

The tournament started out strong for the Hawkeyes, as he scored an ace by Jill Schmidt. The Hawkeyes finished their second round, as they fell behind, 17-25 in the 15-team field.

"They know what they want to do, but it's not getting to be too aggressive a lot earlier," Mulligan said.

"They made an effort to be more aggressive, but it's not getting to be too early."

"Their early struggles better than when rally scoring was used.

"When Mulligan was put together at the tempo of the other teams, we see to it that Mulligan was put together at the tempo of the other teams.

Andersen, McGwire fans rare and nonexistent

ANDERSON, S.C. (AP) -Register

It's Steve Anderson's 15th big league season, and he's the only member of the 1980 World Series champion team left. The 39-year-old pitcher spent the past two years in Japan. The Mets announced yesterday that they had signed Anderson to a one-year contract. He will get $1.5 million for the season.

New York Yankees' pitcher Steve Blass, who will be 43 this week, is in a hole at 2-7. But the Yankees' ace in the second game of the season against the Baltimore Orioles is 2-7 with a 4.54 ERA. Blass allowed three runs in the seventh inning and left the game with two outs in the ninth.

East Rutherford, N.J.—The fourth-quarter tripling tune too often is run by fans, and yesterday’s score was no different. The game ran on as a tight end to end, but New England’s winning touchdown was the Giants’ best effort of the season.

It was a New England shutout of sorts, too, in that the offense was airtight. "I think it was just another game," said Bill Parcells. "When you go out there and execute," the Patriots shut down the Jacksonville defense.

Then Bill Parcells went on record: "We won’t be as good as we should be, but we’ll continue to improve." They might not have improved their standing in the AFC East, but the Patriots gave the Jaguars a taste of their own medicine.

"There was no excuse for us," said the Jaguars. "It was a bad game for us. But we’re not going to make it any worse." The Jaguars had been and maybe we caught the Jaguars underestimating us," said Bill Parcells. "But we went out there and executed.""-

Jacksonville and dominated the second half, scoring 17 of their 26 points in the last half.

Penn State win sets up showdown

Erick Rosebloom

The Nittany Lions just got a much-needed win over the Wolverines on Saturday, and now the focus turns to the upcoming showdown with the Buckeyes.

Thanks to a strong performance by the defense, the offense scored 17 points, and the team ran for 266 yards. The win has propelled the team to the top of the conference, and they will face Ohio State in a crucial game.

The defense was key in the win, holding the Buckeyes to 17 points. The team also had 10 sacks, which helped limit Ohio State's quarterback to just 13-of-30 for 154 yards.

Ohio State's defense was also strong, holding Penn State to 13-of-18 for 143 yards. However, the team's offense was able to score 13 points in the win.

The win has put the team in a great position for the rest of the season. With a win over Ohio State, the team will likely secure a spot in the conference championship game.

The team will need to continue to play well on both sides of the ball to secure a spot in the championship game.

Cyclones’ Davis continues to silence doubters

Davis had 320 yards and three touchdowns on 26 carries for the Cyclones, who improved to 6-2 overall and 3-2 in the Big 12 with the win.

Iowa State (6-2, 3-2) will face Oklahoma State (7-1, 3-1) in Stillwater, Oklahoma, on Saturday.

Davis, who was dismissed from the team in 2013, has been a model of consistency this season. He has rushed for at least 100 yards in 12 of his 13 games this season.

Davis’ performance against Oklahoma was his best of the season. He rushed for 320 yards and three touchdowns on 26 carries, including a 7-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter.

HOMECOMING COUNCIL
MISSION STATEMENT

Homecoming is a celebration of the institution of The University of Iowa.

The purpose of the UI Homecoming Council is to plan and implement programs which positively affect a large and diverse group of students, alumni, staff, as well as the larger Iowa City community and beyond.

An ongoing goal of the Council is to incorporate the participation of student groups which traditionally have not been involved in the UI's largest autumn celebration.

Homecoming, a week-long UI festival, is planned to incorporate as many exciting and creative events as possible. In particular, every attempt will be made to promote school spirit, a worthwhile and meaningful experience.

Homecoming, in short, is a unique and long-standing Hawkeye tradition which attempts to bring festive educational and cultural experiences to The University of Iowa.

University of Iowa Nondiscrimination Statement

The University of Iowa does not discriminate in employment or in its educational programs and activities on the basis of race, national origin, color, religion, sex, age, disability, or veteran status. The University affirms its commitment to providing equal opportunities and equal access to University facilities without reference to affectional or associational preference. For additional information on nondiscrimination policies, contact the Coordinator of Title IX, Section 504, and the ADA in the Office of Affirmative Action, telephone (319) 335-5708, 302 Jessup Hall, the University of Iowa, Iowa City, 52242-1516.

Individuals with disabilities are encouraged to attend all University of Iowa-sponsored events. If you are a person with a disability who requires an accommodation in order to participate in this program, please contact the Homecoming Council in advance at 335-3280.
Welcome to The University of Iowa, alumni and friends - this is YOUR celebration. Once a Hawkeye, always a Hawkeye! In fact, it doesn’t matter how long you’ve been part of the University—the only thing that matters is where your heart is. I’ve been President only since the end of last December, but I’m always and forever a Hawkeye!

This year our Homecoming celebration is especially exciting, because this is our Sesquicentennial celebration as well. We now have 150 years of great achievements to put behind our display of Hawkeye pride. For more than 100 of those years, we’ve been playing football. And for many of our honorary Hawkeyes, that’s their first introduction to The University of Iowa. It’s a great way to begin. I know, because I became a Hawkeye at the Sun Bowl in 1995—probably the most fun anyone ever had as a university president!

But Homecoming is a big, broad, inclusive celebration of the whole University and all that it stands for. It gives us a chance to show off our academic buildings, museums and libraries, our cultural programs, and our multi-talented students, faculty, and staff. Most of you probably came to see your former classmates, revisit familiar spots, soak up the atmosphere, and recall happy times of the past. But while you’re here, we hope you’ll also explore new parts of the campus, meet new people, and gauge the University’s progress toward a new century.

Whatever brings you here, I look forward to seeing you at the parade, the pep rally, and the game. And when the festivities are over, please remember that you’re always welcome, next Homecoming or any other time of the year. You’re a Hawkeye—one of us—now and always.

Hayden Fry's Homecoming Address

Welcome back to Iowa City and The University of Iowa campus! It's great to be celebrating another Homecoming with friends and fans of the Hawkeyes.

My 18 years as head football coach at The University of Iowa have been marked by many great achievements by members of The University of Iowa family. It could be a graduate making a breakthrough in the world of medicine or a student-athlete earning a gold medal in the heat of Olympic competition, I'm never surprised by the successes of our faculty, staff, alumni and current students and student-athletes.

This year is no different than any other. Your university continues to be a leader. Doing it the right way ... the Iowa way ...

"I'm never surprised by the successes of our faculty, staff, alumni and current students and student-athletes,"

Head Football Coach
Hayden Fry.

Old Capitol Week 1972 Sparked Homecoming Community Connection

By Lisa Howe

The year 1972 was much like this one. The Homecoming game was set against Michigan State University, the University of Iowa was celebrating a birthday, and the traditional Homecoming badge blazed an image of the Old Capitol. The difference, however, was rooted in the official week’s title. In 1972, the second annual week-long Homecoming celebration was tagged Old Capitol Week and the overriding theme stressed a unified university community.

The 1972 Homecoming Council’s decision changing Homecoming’s title to Old Capitol Week was sparked by the restoration of Old Capitol and the 125th anniversary of the University of Iowa.

“We’re trying to create a new atmosphere,” said Guy Wendler, co-chairman of the 1972 Homecoming Council in an interview with the Daily Iowan.

Rather than focus primarily on athletics and alumni, the week aimed to include all members of the university community and public at large. Without eliminating the traditional Friday night parade and pep rally, the Council provided diverse events throughout the week by tailoring Pentacrest-centered festivities.

The week’s line-up began with Sunday’s “Peace Day” where students and community gathered to hear speakers and music on the Pentacrest in the early afternoon. A tree planting ceremony was planned by Project Green and library tours were offered.

Monday’s “Election Day” gave individuals an opportunity to vote in a general mock election on the Pentacrest, and Wednesday’s “International Day” offered an international dinner featuring foods from India.

Thursday signaled “Discount Day” where several downtown businesses granted store discounts, while Friday night’s decorated parade and pep rally drew hundreds to downtown Iowa City.

Of course, the week-long celebration culminated Saturday afternoon with an old-fashioned grid-iron battle against the Michigan State Spartans. It was said that history shed a few rays of sunshine on gloomy Kinnick stadium that day as the Hawkeyes clawed their way to a 6-6 deadlock before an enthusiastic Homecoming crowd of 46,852.

The purpose of Old Capitol Week, as intended by the 1972 Homecoming Council, was to remind individuals of their part in a larger community, both city and university. The goal was to place Homecoming in the future.

So, did it succeed?

Curt Boelman, 1996 Homecoming Director, said, “Regardless of what it’s called, Homecoming has and always will be a community event linking people to each other and bringing them together.”

Twenty-five years have passed since Old Capitol Week was introduced in 1972. Though its shelf life as an official Homecoming title was brief—born then dead that very year—its legacy has lived on.

The differences between Homecoming 1996 and Old Capitol Week 1972 are apparent to any alum who’s seen the passage of time. However, one truth remains constant: Homecoming has and always will be a community event glorifying the past and embracing the future. On Iowa, on forevermore.

Celebrating 25 years of Service to the Iowa City Community!
A ny athlete would agree the road to Olympic triumph is long, rocky and full of potholes. But, for eleven UI graduates, such dreams and aspirations came true this summer as they represented their country in the 1996 Centennial Olympic Games.

"It gave me great pride to have the opportunity to compete for my country," said Andrea Wieland, UI graduate and goal keeper of the women's USA field hockey team.

Ex-Hawkeye and Olympic wrestling gold medalist Tom Brands agreed, "It felt real good. I'm a big God and country type."

This year marked the Centennial of the Modern Olympic Games beginning on July 19 and concluding after 16 days of competition on August 4. The first modern Olympic Games were held in Athens, Greece in 1896.

The modern Olympic Games, as inspired by the Ancient Greek Olympic Games, focuses on the inspiration and celebration of youth. Its goal, as intended by its forefather, Pierre de Coubertin, is to "unify the world through sport."

"One thing I'll cherish are the friendships that were made and rekindled," said UI graduate and Olympic Women's Marathon runner Jenny Spangler.

Spangler says she'll never forget the early morning bus ride transporting her and her competitors to their event. "I looked around and everybody was scared. It was then I realized they were all normal. It was neat because everybody was wishing good luck to each other," said Spangler.

More than 10,000 athletes, representing nearly 200 countries participated in this year's games. This figure marks the first time in history that every delegation invited to the Olympics attended.

Before sights can be set on Olympic competition, athletes must first focus on their training, the essential element needed to get them there.

Wieland says her full-time training began in January 1995 when the USA field hockey squad was first selected. Her training consisted of daily rehabilitation, conditioning, weight lifting and field practice exercises. In addition, Wieland, along with the team, traveled to scrimmages in Argentina, Australia, South Africa, and several US cities for extra training.

Spangler, running approximately 120 miles each week in preparation, says an important element of training is diet. Olympic athletes must give special attention to the nutrient composition of the foods they eat. Wide varieties of high carbohydrates and low-fat foods, such as fruits, vegetables, breads, and pastas, are staples of an Olympians diet.

Brands says discipline is the key to a healthy diet. Fasting three square meals a day allows one to regulate both weight and strength, he says.

Wieland says ultimate success lies within the overall preparation. Emotional, physical, and mental factors all come into play. Utilizing this knowledge, Wieland handles pressure by directly confronting the task at hand.

"You must train your mind to handle situations with poise and confidence," said Wieland. Brands handles pressure by making it his partner. "You must make it motivate you. You focus on what you can control," he said.

These UI graduates' ability to control their anxieties through iron preservation and resolve determination are trademarks of Olympic-caliber athletes. This characteristic put them ahead of the rest as they participated in the world's most celebrated event.

Brands says one of his biggest obstacles coming into the Games was concentrating on feet movement and body position. "I worked hard on these weaknesses and by competition I felt peaked and ready to go," said Brands.

Indeed he was. In early August, this wrestling perfectionist tasted victory winning Olympic freestyle gold at 136.5 pounds.

Brands said he could not have achieved Olympic triumph without the support and understanding of his coach and mentor, former wrestling sensation Dan Gable, amongst numerous others. "I'm a competitor first," said Brands, "but I couldn't have done it without support."

Brands also attributes his success to the support of the UI athletic program. Utilizing the UI's excellent facilities, Brands molded himself into an Olympic champion.

When asked his most memorable Olympic experience, Brands quickly replied, "Winning!" According to this competitor, an Olympic title is the ultimate in amateur wrestling.

Weiland found her most memorable Olympic experience in the Opening Ceremonies. "Walking in (the Opening Ceremony) was a phenomenal experience," said Weiland. "It was a sea of wonderment."

Spangler also found the ceremonies memorable. "I was standing close to Muhammad Ali when he lit the torch. Chills went up my spine," recalled Spangler.

The 1996 Homecoming Council thinks there's something special about these UI graduates. Though the games of the 26th Olympiad have come and gone, its lifetime memories remain. Graced with Olympic status, they say their aspirations are far from over. Their futures hold great promise. As honored guests of Homecoming 1996, we celebrate their success. On Iowa!

UI Homecoming Week
Rockets Downtown IC Sales

By Anne Zumwalde

As University of Iowa alumni flock to Iowa City this weekend, they will return for a few days to the carefree world left behind after graduation.

Behind the scenes in Iowa City, downtown businesses won’t be quite so relaxed. Downtown businesses must be prepared to handle the onslaught of over 100,000 people for the Friday, October 4 parade and the Saturday, October 5 football game against Michigan State, not to mention all the celebrating that will accompany the arrival of the alumni.

Accommodating large and boisterous crowds without sacrificing the quality of service proves a menacing challenge for downtown businesses. Employees must be on their toes from open to close.

It is common for establishments to see an unusually steady stream of customers throughout the day, beginning at breakfast and peaking during the late afternoon into the evening.

“The hardest thing is probably the tendency for it to get packed in Micky’s, because it is small and then for it to get too crazy. If the Hawks win you have to keep an eye out for people who get a little too rowdy,” says night manager Rick Ford, of Micky’s, 11 S. Dubuque.

Small and large restaurants alike employ a limited entrance policy when crowds swell on game days. By allowing one person to enter the establishment each time someone leaves, staff ensure that patrons inside are comfortable and movement is not restricted in a way that limits normal activities like placing orders, circulating and conversing.

“The crowds are the best thing about Homecoming, but at the same time, they are the one thing we really have to take care to handle well,” Airliner owner Randy Larson says.

Downtown restaurant managers estimate that by the time the festivities die down and the last glass is empty, profits will be double those of a non-football weekend.

According to managers, incentives are not necessary to lure alumni back to old hangouts and to landmark establishments like the Airliner, which has been at 22 S. Clinton since 1944.

“We’re awful proud of the fact that the Airliner has established a tradition as a place where you can come back and see your old friends. Everyone that works here kind of feels like they are part of something that has been around for a long time. We want the Airliner to always be a place that maintains respect for traditions and makes old customers feel comfortable,” Larson says.

New businesses in town may not be able to reminisce about the years gone by, but they still attract customers in droves. Since opening in September 1995, Malone’s has seen just one UI Homecoming.

Staff are anticipating more excitement this year.

“Got a surprisingly large number of alums because Malone’s is a new place, and alums don’t know about it, so they want to check it out,” bartender Chris Powell says.

Ambrose says Malone’s has experienced success with many students who bring their parents to the restaurant because of the ‘downtown’ atmosphere, older crowd and good food. Ambrose hopes that alumni will continue to be attracted to Malone’s for the same reasons.

“Homecoming doubles up the problems, but it is good for business and I am looking forward to it,” said Vito’s Manager David Haile.

Just like years past, 1996 UI Homecoming will offer the promise of familiar faces, and enough fun to temporarily replace adult worries with a few memorable days of youthful revelry.
For many, coming home means a trip to Hands.

Tom Arnold, Grand Marshall

By Peggy Kozal

Actor and comedian Tom Arnold was working at the Hormel meat-packing plant in his hometown of Ottumwa, Iowa before he was fired for streaking at a retirement home. Forced to devise a plan for the future, he decided to use his inmodest ways to his advantage.

Equipped in only his underwear in the dead of winter, Arnold trekked 21 miles from Ottumwa for his own fundraiser called "From Here to There in Underwear." He successfully raised $2500 in pledges, enabling him to apathetically begin school at the University of Iowa as a business administration major.

Whatever the worst kids were like that was me—the wildest and most obnoxious," Arnold said. Even though too much time was spent partying and not enough focusing on school, Arnold recognized opportunity knocking when he heard about "Open Mic Night" at the Iowa Memorial Union (IMU). He landed his first comedy gig there and started working towards his dream of becoming a famous comedian.

"It was really hard but good the first time," he said. "The second time was a disaster, and I realized you have to work pretty hard at this."

He soon dropped out of school and moved on to further his entertainment career, but never forgot his roots. Arnold said coming from Iowa and a blue collar background set him apart from other comedians.

"Iowa is great because we have a good sense of humor about ourselves," he said.

Still feeling a sense of devotion as a Hawkeye fan, Arnold is lured back to Iowa for the week of Homecoming.

He will be present at the pep rally to say a few words and Thursday will host "An Evening with Tom Arnold." During this question and answer session, he is prepared to discuss what he did at the UI and how it is beneficial to his career. Afterall, it was in the same IMU where he first explored the essence of a comedian, actor, writer and producer.

Homecoming Button Expert Herb Staub Aids Collectors

By Kari Kowilich

Special edition buttons were printed, so only 100 people could have a true full set," said Staub.

"Everyone collects something, and with the number of Hawkeye Enthusiasts around, buttons are perfect for people to collect as momentos," said Staub of the popularity of button collecting.

Staub first became interested in Iowa buttons when his wife found an old, discarded UI button at Mercy College in Cedar Rapids. He later found the button dated to 1924, the first year Homecoming buttons were printed at the university.

After selling the 1924 button, Staub decided to help other people add to their collections when he realized their high monetary value. Although Staub doesn’t have a collection of his own, he says the fun comes when buying and selling them to others. "People are real appreciate when you help them find a button that completes their set," said Staub.

Staub estimates a full set of Homecoming buttons to be worth over $1000. However, because of a limited amount of special edition buttons, Staub says such a set would be extremely rare. "Only 100 of the 1982 money for something other than Homecoming expenses. The money raised from selling the 1952 special edition button, for example, was able to outfit the UI marching band.

Staub tags special edition buttons as "graphically different, commemorate a special occasion, and are officially distributed by the University."

There are many other rare and valuable buttons. According to Staub, the most valuable is the 1943 badge. In an effort to salvage metal for the war effort, these buttons were made from thick tag paper. To make this particular button even more rare, it rained during the 1943 Homecoming game, so many of the buttons were ruined. This button was commemorated in 1993 with a limited edition button.

The year 1993 also produced the first square button, a deviation from the traditional round badge, while 1995 produced the first diamond-shaped button.

This year’s button is sure to be a collector’s item as the first rectangular button. The 1996 badge sports an image of the Old Capitol while celebrating the UI's sesquicentennial. It also boasts this year’s theme "Always a Hawkeye." The first 150 of these buttons will be numbered and sold at a commemorative series through competitive bidding.

According to Homecoming Director, Curt Boelman, Homecoming buttons are important because the revenue they generate make all Homecoming activities possible.

Buttons are sold for $1.00 and can be found at participating downtown businesses, the University Box Office and various tailgate locations at home football games. Or, call the Homecoming Office at 335-3250 with any requests.
UI Senior Rob Peterson Retires Honor as Herky

By Nicole Hoch

UI Senior Rob Peterson will adorn the Herky costume for his last Hawkeye Homecoming game this Saturday. Peterson is a member of Delta Tau Delta social fraternity which has had a long history with Herky.

In 1961, Herky was "unofficially adopted" by the members of Delta Tau Delta. Twenty years later, the UI department of Men's Intercollegiate athletics "officially" recognized Herky the Hawk as an Iowa team mascot. Herky's appearances continue to be voluntarily staffed by the members of Delta Tau Delta.

When it comes to "being" Herky, Peterson admits it's not always easy. "Sometimes it may seem like Herky's lively and running around, but inside he's dying of heat," Peterson said the costume is "outdated, hot and heavy." According to Peterson, however, the athletic department has plans to purchase a lighter head.

"Herky's costume is a lot more restrictive than other Big Ten mascots," said Peterson. "(Herky's) big head does not allow us to do flips like some mascots, so we have to entertain the crowd in other ways."

One way Herky entertains the crowd is by "playing" with other mascots. "We almost always meet with the other team's mascot before the game to plan out a skit," Peterson said. In general, the mascots usually rumble for a bit in front of each other's sections said Peterson. "But, in the end, the home team (mascot) always wins."

Because Herky's appearance demands a high energy level, members of the Herky team trade-off every quarter. "It's kind of fun standing on the field watching Herky," Peterson said. "We try to top each other's performance."

Being the Herky coordinator demands a lot of time according to Peterson. There are many functions Herky attends beyond sports events. For example, this weekend, Herky is scheduled to attend a Friday morning I-Club appearance, a pep rally Friday night, and a pre-game bash an hour and a half before leading the band into the game Saturday.

As for the future of Herky, Peterson is not sure who his successor will be. "It really depends on a variety of things such as time availability, the types of events they've attended as Herky, and an overall responsibility and concern for the well-being of Herky."

Peterson plans on graduating next year with a degree in psychology and hopes to study Dentistry. As for what he will miss most about being Herky, Peterson said, "Being the center of attention is a great feeling, but I will probably miss most how Herky could make a kid's day in a second."

“Sometimes it may seem like Herky's lively and running around, but inside he's dying of heat," said UI Senior Rob Peterson.

"Sports Night gives children and adults an opportunity to meet UI athletes up close and personal," said Meg Meredith, Homecoming Recreation Director.

"Sports Night gives children and adults an opportunity to meet UI athletes up close and personal," said Meg Meredith, Homecoming Recreation Director.

Kids and local community have a chance to meet their favorite University of Iowa athletes and cheer squads at this year's Sports Night on Wednesday, October 2 from 7-9 p.m. at Old Capitol Mall.

Sports Night is part of the University of Iowa Homecoming celebration and will feature representatives from numerous men's and women's athletic teams.

"Sports Night gives children and adults an opportunity to meet UI athletes up close and personal," said Meg Meredith, Homecoming Recreation Director. "Its intention is to recognize the community for its loyalty to and support of UI athletes."

In addition to the UI athletes, Herky the Hawk, the Bom Squad and cheerleaders will be on hand to perform for the crowd. Once again, children will receive a grab bag of goodies including an autograph booklet, athletic schedules and other freebies. In addition, children will be eligible to enter a drawing for bigger prizes.

Sports Night will also feature a children's art display in which the winners will be announced throughout the course of the evening. Young artists will be judged on their entries depicting Herky the Hawk and will be accepted in three age categories. The winning artist from each category will ride in the Homecoming Parade on Friday evening.

Once again, this year's event is sponsored by Old Capitol Mall. Old Capitol Mall Assistant Marketing Director, Julie Stamper, said the mall is happy to sponsoring this year's Sports Night because they really appreciate their relationship with the students. "We enjoy being involved in events like Homecoming," said Stamper.

Stamper says last year's Sports Night was a huge success and estimates nearly 500 individuals attended. She hopes this year's event will be another packed night of fun-filled festivities.

"While the event may be geared toward the children, the Homecoming Council hopes this event will bring the community together—the ultimate goal of Homecoming—through the children," said Meredith.

Admission is free and kids of all ages are welcome to attend.

Marching to the Beat of UI Drum Major Chad Smith

By Stacy Forrest

When UI junior Chad Smith first set foot on Kinnick Stadium field as a trompet player in the Hawkeye Marching Band, he knew one day he would be drum major. For the past two years Smith worked toward his goal and in March it became reality.

"I have always thought of drum major to show my Hawkeye spirit," Smith said.

At the UI, Smith, a music education major, is involved in the marching, concert, both pep bands, and the choral program, while taking 18 hours of classes.

"It all keeps me very busy to say the least," Smith said.

As a freshmen entering the UI, Smith was unsure of what he was getting himself into as a trumpet player in the band, but then realized his dream of representing the UI was coming true.

"As a member of the marching band from day one you are a Hawkeye, you are a member of the largest student organization on campus," he said.

"Band is something that I have always enjoyed and I felt it would make the transition to college much easier." Smith said.

For the year and a half leading to drum major tryouts, held in March, Smith had been working on his routine. Tryouts included a race twirling routine, demonstrations of superior marching and conducting abilities, followed by an interview.

"To help myself be better prepared for tryouts I became acquainted with the duties of the drum major and I talked to the previous drum major," Smith said.

Smith's duties include assisting in rehearsals, teaching marching fundamentals, keeping the spirit alive in the band, and entertaining the crowd at games.

Hawkeye Marching Band Interim Director Dr. Morgan Jones said Smith has taken over the duties of drum major with great success and leadership ability.

"Chad is a good leader with excellent balance between discipline and being reasonable," Jones said. "He is very well accepted by the other band members." UI junior and Hawkeye Marching Band trumpet player Jackie Kleppe said she is very impressed with how well Smith has taken on the responsibilities of drum major.

"I have known Chad since the very first day of band our freshman year. Back then we were just two freshman trumpet players and now he is one of the main people in charge," Kleppe said. "One thing hasn't changed though. Chad is still the same guy he was our freshman year - full of fun and Hawkeye spirit."

Smith hails from Kirkville, IA and in high school was involved in the concert, marching, and jazz bands. As a member of the All-State Jazz band at Eddyville High School, he was recipient of numerous awards including the Louis Armstrong Award which was given to the top jazz players in the senior class. His senior year he also received the John Phillip Souza Award, the National Choral Award and the marching band leadership award.

Both Smith and Kleppe said they feel the attitude among band members is good.

"Everybody is willing to work and get things done, but there is also a time to have fun and cheer on the Hawks," Smith said.

Smith has one goal for the year and that is to see the Hawkeye football team make it to the Rose Bowl.

"I would love to smell the roses and march the Rose Bowl Parade on New Year's Day," Smith said.
