WASHINGTON, D.C. — Although the U.S. offers many classes in a variety of different religions and languages, it lacks short-term offering classes on the topics of Islam, Judaism, and the six major world region languages.

"The world's on fire. It's the world's on fire," said John Dole, a scholar at the University of California, Berkeley, who studies the history and culture of the Middle East.

"We're not a monolithic society. We're divided into different cultures," Dole said. "And if you don't have these classes, you're not going to understand the world."

The university offers classes in Islam, Judaism, and six major world region languages, but there's a shortage of classes in topics related to the Islamic religion, the Arabic language, and Middle Eastern history and politics.

"People want to take these classes," said DeProsse, the University of Iowa's Director of International Affairs. "But there's a lack of demand for them.

There are about 100,000 to 120,000 Muslims in Iowa. Muslim immigration from Lebanon builds the first century in the Middle East, the Middle East, and the Middle East. And that's a huge problem for us.

"We're not a monolithic society. We're divided into different cultures," Dole said. "And if you don't have these classes, you're not going to understand the world."

Maya Angelou and George Niro were casting aside their schools' required reading lists.

MOLTON, Ont. — Maya Angelou and George Niro were reading books last week that they didn't want to read.

The county school board of Moulton said no to any books that they didn't want to read.

The board was considering a list of books that it had chosen for middle and high school students.

But, the board was not unanimous in its decision.

Some board members said that the books were not appropriate for students.

Others said that the books were important for students to read.

The board decided to keep the books on the list, but to require students to read them.

The board members also said that they were open to changing the books in the future.

The board members were asked to report back to the school board on their decision at their next meeting.

The board members were also asked to consider the possibility of adding additional books to the list.

The board members were told that they would have to make a decision about the books by the end of the month.

Free screening to be offered to aid in depression diagnosis

Falenna Abu-Ghazaleh

The Daily Iowan

The UI College of Medicine, Mercy Hospital and Student Health Services will provide screening and information for National Depression Screening Day on Thursday at various locations on the University of Iowa and Mercy Campus.

"Depression is a mental illness that affects a person's mood and physical functions," said Dr. Norm Frohberg, chief resident in psychiatry at the UI and Mercy.

"We're not afraid of our technology. We like to show off our projects to others on the UI campus and projects at the University of Iowa," Cranston said.

"It's a platform you can use for almost any traditional art," Frosch said. "We find a tool, and if it's effective, it makes for better use of technology.

"We have a very strong commitment in the UI to continue, that's why we're involved. We have people the biologic factors play an important role in the diversity of the campus," she added.

Frohberg said there are four forms of treatment available, including psychotherapy, a combination of medications and psychotherapy, and the third form that is available for patients under treatment is referred to as another.

"I think there's the myth that you're just sharing the problems of your family, but the fact is, it's a problem that happens on a daily basis," Frohberg said.

"It's a problem that people who need to seek help from doing something about it," Frosch said. "We're not afraid of our technology. We like to show off our projects to others on the UI campus and projects at the University of Iowa."

Jerks Dave Barry has known

Currently, when I was handing out a handicap at an outdoor restaurant, the guy sided up to the parking area, parked maybe 25 feet away.

Naturally, being Harley guys, there were riders—twoHarley guys who do not follow the crowd. They were sitting way out in front of the parking area, revving their engines, which were so much louder than the rider's engine.

I am not saying ALL Harley guys are jerks. Many of you have been25 feet away from a fellow at a restaurant, or in a prohibited medical condition that has long since cleared up.

What we need in this country—and I would pay extra income tax for this— is an all-encompassing Handicapped Parking On-Site Medical Elimination SWAT Teams.

One of my hobbies is to watch people pull up to the handicapped parking spots and see who gets out. What possible reasons could they have for being there? I want to know.

So I went over to the parking lot before I got out.

It is not an excellent use of my time.

I'm not saying ALL Harley guys—none of my closest friends are Harley guys—engage in this behavior.

I'm just saying that many Harley guys do. I am not afraid to tell you what I know, although it's not a fact, just an observation, but I think you will agree.

Every once in a while, I see one of these Harley guys who look like they are happy and healthy and potentially violent. I am not afraid to say "OK, Mr. Long-Hair Harley Guy, you get a problem with that?"

Don't think I am doing something wrong.

What possible reason could they have for being there?

It is not something I have to do to keep score.

It is good to know which is to say that I am not afraid to tell you what I know, although it's not a fact, just an observation, but I think you will agree.

If you have the guts, come on. Be personally.

Tropical Storm Josephine Stercates East Coast

Bill Kazer Associated Press

CHICAGO - Tropical Storm Josephine made its landfall in the otherwise mostly storm-free state of Illinois on Monday, causing widespread flooding and electricity outages in some areas.

At daylight, some models suggested the storm could become a hurricane, but Josephine weakened to a tropical depression before making landfall. Illinois residents were advised to stay off the roads as the storm moved through the state.

"It's a good day to be a farmer in Illinois," said Illinois Governor J.B. Pritzker. "I want to thank the farmers who are helping to clear the roads." A tornado in Pontiac was reported, and one person was injured. The storm was expected to cause significant damage in the state.

In Chicago, where the storm was making landfall, many residents were without power. Some areas experienced power outages for hours, and the city announced it would open emergency shelters for residents in need of shelter.

"We're doing everything we can to get power back on," said Chicago Mayor Lori Lightfoot.

Josephine was the first tropical storm to make landfall in Illinois since 1928. The previous storm to make landfall in the state was a hurricane in 1935.

"This is an unprecedented event," said a state official.

At least three people were killed in the state, and many others were injured. In Peoria, a man died when his boat capsized in heavy seas.

"It's a tragic moment for Peoria," said Mayor Jim Ardis. "We're doing everything we can to help those affected by the storm."
The Irish Republican Army (IRA) claims to be behind BA latest N. Ireland bombing

The IRA claimed responsibility Tuesday for a double car-bomb attack on the British army's headquarters in Belfast, which wounded 11 and brought Northern Ireland back to the brink of conflict.

This was the first major bomb attack in Northern Ireland since mid-1994. In February, it killed 14 British soldiers and 7 civilians in an IRA-claimed attack that left a 17-year-old girl, the daughter of a Protestant minister, a paraplegic.

Parish impresses Bulls thus far
Mike Nadel

DEERFIELD, III. — Asked if any young player has ever given him a problem in training camp, Michael Jordan was quick to mention point guard Steve Kerr. And Kerr, a second-year player, is one of several young players who have made an impression in training camp right now.

"Kerr's my young one," coach John Lucas said. "He's the first player on the court every day. He's a case.

The Chicago Bulls' four newsmen — Bill Hickey, Dave Lipton, Paul Sally and Terry Kutscher — have 48 reporters during the team's media day at Deerfield, Ill.

"Young? Chief Parish is still young," he said. "I think we had a little bit of trouble with disorderly conduct for allegedly..."

"But now I understand that we're not going to play him. But now now..."

Cards enter series banged up

ORIOLE A MARKED MAN BY ROWDY FANS

Hal Rock
Associated Press

NEW YORK - Welcome to the Bronx, Bobby Alomar. Here's your batting helmet. Keep it, because it's the warmest we have for visiting players, could get right tight. Alomar and the Baltimore Orioles play the New York Yankees in the American League championship series. Alomar got his warm-up uniform, along with a warm-up batting helmet, Tuesday's first-game was played because of a rainout Monday night.

The front page of Tuesday's New York papers was three pages of Alomar batted in black, screening the batter and his helmet. A local radio station passed a notice of the Alomar uniform up to the media, and then it was on its way to Yankee Stadium, giving Alomar another opportunity to enter the lineup during the regular season.

Alomar became a marked man after getting in the face of Yankees manager Billy Martin in the ALCS last weekend of the regular season. That action sent baseball to federal court Tuesday, where a New York court is expected to allow the rest of the Seattle Mariners and Texas Rangers to continue playing.

Atlanta confident, but cautious

Tom Salofo
Associated Press

ATLANTA - From all indications, the Atlanta Braves are in position to make a third straight World Series appearance.

"Welcome to the series," said Manager Tony La Russa before Wednesday night's Game 1.

The defending World Series champions enter in three of the last five World Series, won it all in their last two postseason appearances, and was seven straight at home.

But they also enter in seven of the last nine World Series, were 12-6 last season at Turner Field, and were seven straight at home.

In addition, the Braves have the National League's best regular season record, 104-58. Their pitching staff has been ranked first in the NL in most of the key categories, including runs per game, team ERA, and opponent batting average. Their offense has been ranked third in the NL in runs per game, home runs, and on-base percentage.

"It's a good mix," said La Russa. "We've got a good pitching staff, a good offense, and a good defense."

Though, don't forget, especially in November, the American League.

Baltimore's Roberto Alomar throws the ball at the team's World Series Win Luncheon at Yankee Stadium in New York as they prepare to play the New York Yankees.

Baltimore native Steve Schott.

"If you think of throwing anything, so far, I've seen only a few," said La Russa.

The Yankees are prepared for Alomar.

"Obviously, we always take a look atternative special situations and circumstances and there are more than adequate," said Yankees manager Joe Torre.

"I don't think he's a big threat," said Yankees center fielder Pat Burrell. "I think he's a good hitter, but he's not a big threat."

But he entered Game 1 against the regular season, 1-1 against the Atlanta Braves.

"If I want good about our chances, it's because we've got a good pitching staff and a good offense," said Alomar. "I don't think we're going to win every game, but we've got a good pitching staff and a good offense."
Odum, a troupe of percussionists, instrumentalists, singers, and dancers, will showcase its fusion of Jamaican reggae, rumba, and Carnaval music to Hancher Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Tuesday evening, West Music, Coralville, Iowa. The group has also worked with musicians David Wood and Paul Lane to create a unique live performance that will be performed live at Hancher Auditorium. The event is free and open to the public.
