News Brief

A UI student reported a rape in Iowa City, police said.

"Due to the recent increase in reported crimes in Iowa City, police must continue to investigate all reports of suspicious activity," police said.

"We encourage all students to be aware of their surroundings and to report any suspicious activity to the police," police said.

"In the event of a rape, it is important to seek medical attention immediately," police said.

"We remind everyone to remain vigilant and to report any suspicious activity to the police," police said.

"We encourage students to take necessary precautions to ensure their safety," police said.

Feathered fossil finding strengthens suspicions dinosaur-bird connection

NEW YORK — Chinese paleontologists have found the remains of a 121-million-year-old feathered dinosaur, or "feathered beast," that may have been the first bird to fly. The discovery is considered a significant find in the study of the evolution of birds.

Photographs of the fossilized creature show an unmistakable downy stripe running down its back. If the feathered dinosaur is confirmed, it would challenge the commonly held belief that birds evolved from terrestrial ancestors.

"This is not a bird, but it does have feathers," said Jack Horner, director of the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

"It's not a new story, but it's a new species," he said.

Harkin, Lightfoot square off in debate

Mike Glover

DES MOINES — Democratic Senatorial candidate Tom Harkin and Republican rival rep. Jim Ross Lightfoot wanted to tie in today's campaign debate Thursday to what they viewed as the primary issue of the election: jobs.

"I think we need a strong job bill," Harkin said.

"I think we need to bring our economy back," Lightfoot said.

Harkin praised the recent contraction of the economy and said that he had been the driving force behind it. He also noted that the unemployment rate had fallen to a record low of 4.4 percent.

"And I think we need to build on that," Harkin said.

Lightfoot acknowledged the economic progress but said that more needed to be done.

"We need to create jobs and we need to create them now," Lightfoot said.

Harkin and Lightfoot also discussed the importance of education and healthcare in today's economy. Harkin said that his plan would provide tax credits for families to help them pay for college and that his healthcare plan would provide coverage for everyone. Lightfoot said that his plan would provide tax credits for businesses to help them create jobs and that his healthcare plan would focus on reducing the cost of healthcare.

Harkin and Lightfoot also addressed the issue of the minimum wage. Harkin said that he would raise the minimum wage to $15 an hour, while Lightfoot said that he would support a raise to $12 an hour.

"I think we need to raise the minimum wage," Harkin said.

"I think we need to make sure that everyone can make a living wage," Lightfoot said.

The debate was held at Drake University and was moderated by CNN's John King. The debate was broadcast live throughout the state, and viewers, and subjects ranged from Medicare to taxes to the environment.

"I like the way the candidates talk," said one viewer. "They're both very good."
Grant money would buy a lot of beer

The University of Iowa was hosting a student media event in celebration of the release of Michael Moore’s latest film, Fahrenheit 11/9, and the opportunity to speak with the director himself. The event was set up in a room that could accommodate several hundred people, and it was packed to the brim. Michael Moore, the self-proclaimed “ stał 11/9,” was to speak about the making of the film and answer questions from the audience.

Moore managed a warm welcome, and pretty soon we learned that he had been to the University of Iowa the previous night, at the student cafeteria. Moore’s story is one of rising from poverty to becoming a director, and he was well-known for his documentaries and political commentary. He was known for speaking his mind, and it was clear that he was comfortable in front of a large audience.

Moore gave a brief impromptu talk about the film, which was met with a burst of applause. He then went on to answer questions from the audience. Moore was an engaging speaker, and he had a way of making complex issues accessible to everyone. He was very knowledgeable about the political and social issues he spoke about, and he had a knack for getting people to think critically about the world around them.

Moore’s talk was followed by a screening of Fahrenheit 11/9. The film was a political documentary that covered a range of topics, including the US’s engagement in Iraq, the role of the military-industrial complex, and the impact of corporate influence on politics. The film was well-received, and the audience was engaged throughout.

Moore’s talk and the screening were followed by a Q&A session. The audience was eager to ask questions, and Moore was happy to engage with them. He was open and honest in his answers, and it was clear that he was passionate about the issues he spoke about.

At the end of the event, Moore signed copies of Fahrenheit 11/9 for the audience. It was a fitting end to a thought-provoking evening, and the audience was grateful for the opportunity to meet the man behind the camera. Moore’s message was one of hope and action, and it was clear that he was dedicated to using his platform to effect change.
Cambus Etiquette 101: Lessons for the big yellow bus

A ll right folks, this is Cambus ETiquette. There are certain things you need to know about riding the Cambus. To summarize, the basic concept is simple: be courteous, be on time, and above all, be patient. We realize riding the bus may be a new adventure for you, but because these helpful hints in toto will make your public transportation experience palatable for both of us, we hope you won’t be an all-around, but above all, understanding Cambus passenger.

1. Keep bus, and we mean ANY bus, that pulls up and stays right in front of you when you want to get on, even if they make you wait 30 minutes for the bus ahead of you. If you must pull in front of it, and wait, we will appreciate it.

2. If you are in a hurry, or are running behind, and are 100 people standing in front of you, please get off 30 feet before the bus comes to a complete stop. We will appreciate it.

3. When it’s cold and rainy, ducks crossing the road, keep in mind that the Interdorm is 700 feet down the road. It will still get you there faster than walking.

4. If the driver has the kind heart to stop for you, and you want to stay, be patient. The bus will make your public transport experience palatable for both of us, and make sure you are able to get there safely.

5. Most of us have been driving a bus long enough that before it baffles us, we know what we are doing. Due to unforeseen circumstances, occasionally, we just get you there as fast as we can. It is much more effective if you pull the bell PRIOR to your stop. This helps us avoid throwing people into the windshields... and our brakes appreciate it.

6. For a summary, wait for people to move to the back of the bus before you get off. This is not a good idea. Surprising as it may be, you police may write you a ticket for disorderly conduct, even if this is only your first time on the bus. This is your only exercise you will get all day, we as drivers feel very mildly compensated for your efforts.

7. Things like this have for people to move to the back of the bus. They are keeping an eye on you. Even if this is the only exercise you get all day, any, or dream will had acclimatized for your efforts.

8. Most destinations in Currituck Residences Hall and you board a bus at Macbride Hall, you can, we sometimes have to make it to hurry. Even if the driver has the kind heart in his or her heart to wait for you, please, no lay by at least 15 minutes. If this is the only exercise you get all day, any, or dream will had acclimatized for your efforts.

Volunteers needed to help the UI bloom

Five thousand daffodil bulbs will be planted this Saturday at 10 a.m. on the campus west of the Old Capitol in celebration of the sesquicentennial.

"My big stress in organizing this event was how to get the bulbs placed," said Nelda F. Johnson, director of the Office of Community Relations. "I'm sure that people will come out to help and that we will have a great event.

"We have about 2,000 bulbs to place, and we need volunteers to help us. We will have a schedule for volunteers to follow, and we will plant the bulbs in the morning and afternoon. The bulbs will be placed near the Old Capitol and the Pentacrest.

"We also need volunteers to help with the cleanup after the event. We will have a schedule for volunteers to follow, and we will have a clean-up crew to help with the cleanup.

"The event is open to the public, and we hope that people will come out to help and to plant the bulbs. We will have refreshments and snacks available, and we will have a program to celebrate the sesquicentennial.

"If you are interested in helping, please contact Nelda F. Johnson at 319-335-1111 or email her at nelda.johnson@uiowa.edu.

"We would love to have you come out and help us celebrate the sesquicentennial of the University of Iowa.

"Thank you for your support."

The morning after the second and final presidential debate, strategists from both campaigns studied polling data so their candidates could strategize a day-by-day campaign's closing stretch.

Dole and Lugar Republicans said they were hindered by the final debate performance of their party president and at the same time, they acknowledged Clinton's overall win.

GUATEMALA CITY - The joyful screaming of fans drowned out the screams of the injured. Even as police opened the gate of the Mateo Flores stadium, a frenzied crowd burst into the World Cup soccer qualifying match between Guatemala and El Salvador.

"We were corpses," Guatemala's Ruben Manrique said of the tragedy before: too many spectators trampling atop one another. "All over the place!"

BARTLETT, Conn. — A man who showed up at lottery headquarters Wednesday confirmed he didn't win the $5.8 million prize on a scratch-off ticket, but he thought he had on the first round of readings.

“Not only did I not win the lottery, I now have no scratch-off ticket,” said the man who asked not to be identified.

He said he thought he had won the lottery.

“I was shocked when I found out I didn’t win and I was devastated when I heard that the second reading didn’t come out with the same number,” the man said.

Money and Power

Now, I'm not one of those Cubs fans that sits around each season with money down and hopes high. You'll never hear me say, "This is the year." Not this year. No, 1996 is a year for the buckapers, the daydreamers, the "I'll believe it when I see it" people. And maybe, if the fans demand it, the Cubs will make the world believe. If not, I'm pretty sure the grumpy old shortstop waved his helmet to a standing ovation, and the fans broke into singing "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" as the Cubs left St. Louis. Chicago's World Series team is gone, and it took out a little extra mean on their way home.

Hawks back on the road

Terry Wirt
The Daily Iowan

After two weeks of tough practicing, the men's tennis team has time to breathe when it travels to Iowa City for the Hawkeye National this weekend at the UI Parkade Recreation Center.

With the Big Ten meet just a week away, the Hawks are looking forward to the national event in order to get a good gauge on what can be expected of them next month at the NCAA Championships.

"I'd really like to get a good team performance," Coach Larry Wooten said. "We want to keep the momentum we've had coming off a big win over Michigan State last week in the Big Ten meet, so Larry Wooten said.

Wooten was hoping the two-meet-billing performance would have some fans in Iowa City, but top rowers from the Netherlands, Canada, and the Netherlands still need some practice in order to get the best out of them.

"We want to keep the momentum we've had coming off a big win over Michigan State last week in the Big Ten meet," said Larry Wooten.

Top rowers from the Netherlands, Canada, and the better players in Iowa tennis will also be showcasing their skills alongside the collegiate competition.

"There are a lot of great rowers in the top college competition in the world," Wooten said. "We want to keep the momentum we've had coming off a big win over Michigan State last week in the Big Ten meet."
Hancher Auditorium will feature classical pianist in Saturday concert

Greg Knightly

With a world-renowned pianist performing, music fans can look forward to this weekend's concerts.

The latest in an annual series of pianist performances, this year's concert will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday in Hancher Auditorium.

"Richard Goode is a very special presence in music," said University Auditorium's senior director, William Scott. "He is a pianist of extraordinary talent and artistry."

"He has a unique ability to connect with his audience," Scott added. "His playing is both technically skilled and emotionally engaging."

"He is one of the world's greatest pianists," said University Auditorium's marketing director, John Davis. "He is a musician who can inspire and move audiences with his music."

GOODE'S PERFORMANCES

Goode's performances at the University of Iowa have been highly acclaimed, with audiences praising his technical skill and musical interpretation.

"Goode's playing is a true revelation," said University Auditorium's music director, John Miller. "He is a true musical genius."

"He is a pianist who can truly move an audience," said University Auditorium's executive director, Mary Smith. "His music is both beautiful and transcendent."

Riverside Theatre play explores Russian society

Bob Merritt
The Daily Iowan

Class divisions, family traditions and a modern look at a theatrical classic are all part of "The Cherry Orchard," which opens tonight at the Riverside Theatre Company, 213 Orchard St.

"The Cherry Orchard" explores many of the dramatic differences in social class and tradition in turn-of-the-century Russia. While it is described by its creator Anton Chekhov as a "broad stroke," the fallibility of the characters of the play, but he tried to explore many classic are all a part of "The Cherry Orchard," which opens tonight at the Riverside Theatre Company, 213 Orchard St.
