Despite efforts by hundreds of UI students and two regents to lower the proposed tuition increases for the 1996-97 school year, the Iowa state Board of Regents voted 7-2 to raise undergraduate tuition by 3.9 percent for both in-state and out-of-state students at their meeting Thursday afternoon.

Students cope with midterm stress

Tracy Potocki The Daily Iowan

UI sophomore Tory Garber drank so much caffeine studying for midterms last year that she actually missed one because she passed out on the way to her test.

This year she knows how much preparation is necessary, and she said she is handling the stress much better.

Today ends the eighth week of school, and UI students are feeling the midterm pressure as they crack open their books, consume extreme amounts of sugar and stay up all hours of the night trying to memorize those last pieces of information before the big test. With only eight weeks remaining in the semester, these next weeks bring forth a constant feeling of stress and aggravation. With midterms both in October and November, followed by finals in December, many students are bound to feel overwhelmed.

Students must be disciplined when studying, UI Honors Program Director David Klemm said.

"Students must not allow their desire to have fun interfere with their responsibility to obtain a quality education," he said. "Students should go out as a reward for their hard work.'

Most students said they felt they were prepared enough for their midterms, having studied on average about three nights ahead o

The issue of lighting on the UI campus and in the residential Iowa City area has been an ongoing concern for students, especially since six women have reported being raped since Sept. 6. Breaking and entering is also a big concern for UI students. This lack of lighting frightens students who feel genuine fear in the wake of multiple reports of crime and sexual assault, UI senior Jill Hazard said.

A UI student reported a rape to Iowa City police Wednesday that allegedly occurred approximately a month ago.

The alleged rape is the sixth sexual assault reported to the Iowa City Police Department since Sept. 6, five of which were alleged rapes, bringing the total number of ICPD reported rapes for 1996 to 15.

ICPD statistics show there were 16 reported rapes in all of 1995.

ICPD Detective Deb Petersen is investigating the case. She said the victim knew her alleged assailant.

The alleged rape occurred in the vicinity of East Market Street four or five weeks ago, Petersen said.

The investigation is in the very early stages, but Peterson said she wants to get it done as soon as possible.

"I hope to move on this quickly," she said.

HBO purchases film rights to latest Stephen King thriller

LOS ANGELES (AP) — HBO reportedly will pay $1.5 million for the Stephen King thriller "Rose Madder," making it the first cable firm to buy film rights from the best-selling horror novelist.

The amount is the highest the cable company has ever paid, unidentified industry sources told the trade publication Daily Variety.

The story of "Rose Madder" focuses on a woman trapped in an abusive marriage. She flees from her psychotic husband and escapes into the world of a mysterious painting she bought in an antique store.

"We've periodically made inquiries and were always politely declined," said Richard Waltzer, a senior vice president for HBO Pictures.

jurors to stand and take their oath. Superior Court Judge Hiroshi Fujisaki told the jury to return Tuesday for opening statements.

Also dismissed was a black man who violated the judge's admonition about seeking information outside the courtroom — he obtained some information about DNA.

Those three were dismissed for legal cause.

The fourth dismissal - and the one that triggered Thursday's Defense attorney Robert Blasier defense complaint - was of a black woman who said she was struck by her husband and responded by pushing him over a balcony, causing him to break his arm.

In the Simpson case, the plain-tiffs likely will allege that a history of domestic violence by Simpson escalated into the murder of his exwife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

Simpson has said he was the victim of domestic violence by his exwife and during most of the confrontations, he was only trying to repel blows from her.

On Wednesday, peremptory challenges were used by the plaintiffs s nive black jurors and by the defense to eliminate three white jurors.

Michael Moore, my TA and me

he last time filmmaker/television personality/author Michael Moore came to town, it nearly caused a riot. See, following his lecture, Moore made the mistake of giving one enterprising young man a few thousand dollars just for asking. Then, like a deranged freshman on his first beer buzz, every two-bit schmuck in the entire auditorium had to beg for their share. The whole thing degenerated into a "Beg Mike for Money Festival." I half expected Sally Struthers to show up.

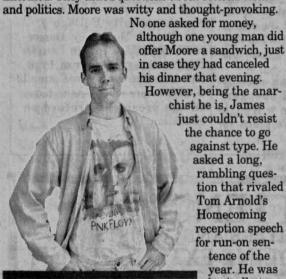

I was pretty ashamed of some of my fellow Iowa Citians that day. I didn't think Moore would want to come back, and it was a big surprise when I opened up the paper and saw he would be appearing for a book signing in Buchanan Auditorium (in the Pappajohn Business Administration Building).

When I arrived, a man informed me Moore had missed his plane and would be late. I'm sure for Moore the impulse was great just to skip the whole thing. After all, he had a dinner in Des Moines later that afternoon that people actually had paid to attend.

Just before Moore appeared, I saw James Lewes, one of my old Teaching Assistants, lurking around. James looks like a Welsh Einstein on a bad hair day. He's also the coolest TA I have ever had. Talking to James is like being in a planetarium during a tornado — it's disorienting, but also vaguely educational.

Anyway, James and I barely had a chance to say hello when Moore arrived, complete with two cameramen in tow. It turned out that Moore is making a documentary on his book tour. It was slightly terrifying to know these cameras, which resembled Buck Rogers death rays - only slightly more phallic, could be on you at any moment.

Moore gave a brief impromptu talk and then he opened the floor up for questions. I was worried, but this time people were surprisingly subdued and wellinformed. They asked questions about societal issues tion that rivaled reception speech for run-on senear. He was basically trying to ask why Bob Dole and most other Republicans seem repulsed by their wives, but he did it in the most indirect way humanly possible.

Moore managed a graceful answer, and pretty soon it was time to move on to the book-signing part. After waiting in line, James had another long talk with Moore. Then, just when James had left, Moore motioned for one of his Buck Rogers camera goons to follow him.

I got over my astonishment that my TA was being interviewed by Michael Moore (or at least his cameraman) long enough to get my own book signed ("To Gern — Michael Moore"). Then I set out to find James.

I found him in the Pappajohn courtyard, talking nonchalantly to the cameraman as if it happens every day. Maybe it does for him, but I was in awe. Then, as if awe weren't enough, James invited Moore & Co. over for coffee. The man accepted, saying he and his boss would love to.

At this point I was still recovering from astonishment when James' wife, Helen, invited me to come

James, his wife and myself ended up over at his house. We had coffee and we waited. We talked about politics. We waited some more. We talked about school. We waited even more. Pretty soon we gave up on everything else, and we just waited. Nothing. Apparently Michael Moore had ditched us.

Maybe this is some elaborate revenge scheme to get back at Iowa City for having dumped thousands of dollars here. More than likely, he just had to hightail to Des Moines. But any way you slice it, it was a sad day in Mudville.

All things considered, it was his loss. Moore really needs to meet James.

So, Mr. Moore, I have found my most holy of quests. I am going to follow you around from town to town until you agree to have coffee with James. I am going to be like that reporter on "The Incredible Hulk," only with a better wardrobe and slightly more punctual. After all, the Hulk never had an itinerary.

The Incredible Gern is coming, and I'm bringing Sally Struthers with me.

Grant money would buy a lot of beer

he University of Iowa: the binge drinking university. A grant totaling $830,000 was just awarded to the UI to address the binge-drinking problem, which is estimated to affect 60 percent of UI students

The fueling of the drinking fire comes from many sources.

It is a case of pervasive attitudes and policies that are so deeply rooted it would be nearly impossible to alter them. Take for instance the attitude of Harvard students. In a listing of the most taboo things for them to do, drinking beer was No. 1. Quite a difference from the UI, where beer-drinking would be listed as one of the least taboo. This does not make the UI bad or wrong; it merely shows a different lifestyle and culture is evident. As hard as it would be to make Harvard students into raging alcoholics, it would take the same kind of effort to change the habits of UI

No alcohol-awareness program will curb drinking at the UI; a major philosophical change about drinking is the only thing that could stifle this phenomenon.

When students arrive here, they find bars that accommodate 19year-olds, and their parents are out of the picture. Thousands of patrons pack the bars on the weekends, and underage drinkers represent a good chunk of the pie. Whether an older person buys for them or the bartender just does not check IDs, anyone can get alcohol with ease. For the unlucky underage drinker, the police ambush, and a paltry fine of $35 and a warning to go home is given. This is like saying, "Next time we will slap you on the wrist, so watch

What the law says about tattoos

f you are thinking about getting a tattoo, you should think twice before deciding exactly where you want to have it done. Although Iowa passed certain laws in 1989 that are specific on the practice of tattooing, they aren't always enforced.

One major problem experienced in Iowa is listed under the general provisions section of the Chapter 22 law of the Iowa Code on the practice of tattooing, which says: "No person shall tattoo a minor. Violators shall be guilty of a serious misdemeanor."

Unfortunately, many tattoo artists just want the money and will agree to tattoo almost anyone, even when a picture ID is required. According to certain tattoo artists (who asked not to be identified), this is the main problem Iowa has: Minors being illegally tattooed.

When a person has a traveling shop that goes from state to state, the rules can get blurred a bit because every state is different. There is no federal law regarding the safety of tattooing. Twenty-seven states have no regulations at all on tattooing; 17 states have changed their rules over the past There is no federal law regarding the safety of tattooing. Twenty-seven states have no regulations at all on tattooing; 17 states have changed their rules over the past 15 years; and seven states prohibit tattooing at all.

15 years; and seven states prohibit tattooing at all.

A really good tattoo shop will have disposable, sterile, single-customer use needles, but these are not necessary. Shops can have reusable needles that are only required to be steam-sterilized or dry-heat sterilized between patrons. Even sterile gloves aren't required by the state of Iowa they are only recommended.

Any blood-borne disease can be acquired through bad tattooing. Fortunately, there have been no reported cases of HIV transmission through tattooing with a contaminated needle (there is only a 0.3 percent chance of contracting it this way), but there is a 20 to 33 percent chance of contracting Ul senior.

Hepatitis-B. Hepatitis-B is the easiest blood-borne disease you can acquire if you are tattooed with insufficiently sterilized needles.

Ideally, anything used, whether it be needles, razors or tubes of dyes or inks, should be used only once. Even though the rate of acquiring disease through sterilization is close to none, it keeps a person's mind at ease knowing their body was the only one to have touched the equipment used.

Also, tattooing cannot be done in somebody's residence. A person can have a shop that is connected to their apartment or house, but there has to be a clear barrier between the two and a separate door for people to enter into the shop. Customers cannot enter the shop through the residence.

The best way to find the safest tattoo shop is to do your own research, ask different shops what their policies and procedures are and check out their past artwork. If the artwork looks bad, then chances are their services are going to be bad as well - including safe-

Fear: Even in the women's locker room

NDRESS AT YOUR OWN RISK!!" These words greeted me as I entered the women's locker room at The Fieldhouse (the UI building, not the bar). Apparently, there are "men at work" in the women's staff changing room, and we, The Fieldhouse staff, are being warned that we remove our clothes only at

My first thought was: When has this not been true for women?

My second thought was: Why don't the men working get signs addressed to them, saying, "Women showering and changing in here. Enter at your own risk"? My third thought was: If a "man at work" sees me naked, covered in soap lather or putting on my lip liner in front of the sinks, what exactly is it that am I risking?

Embarrassment? Surely he would be more embarrassed than I. Shame? I am not ashamed of how I look without lip liner. Assault or harassment? Apparently, I risk that anyway, every day, in every place, public or private, to which I bring my female

Lea Haravon

My final thought before I undressed at my own risk was: I refuse to rearrange my life and go to class sweaty and unshowered out of fear of being seen naked in a WOMEN'S LOCKER ROOM. This is too stupid. Besides, if a guy does come in, I have weapons. The hot curling iron, hair spray, blow dryer and pungent perfume sitting on the counter top could easily be put to alternate uses. I headed toward the showers with my soap, shampoo and straight-edged razor.

How ironic to see a sign that reads "undress at your own risk" after the recent barrage of sexual assaults on and around campus. Ever since I heard about the rapes, I have been feeling that taking walks in the evening, running in the early morning, living alone, wearing skirts and being a woman all are experiences in which I engage "at my own risk."

Is it less risky to sleep next to a screened-in window, as the woman who was raped a few blocks from my house was, than it is to take a shower in The Fieldhouse staff locker room?

At home, I have taken to changing my clothes behind my closed closet door. I feel dumb when I am doing it, but my fear overshadows these feelings of stupidity. At night, I don't sleep well. I see moving shadows and imagine I hear people, men, approaching in the night. I have nightmares that the entryways into my home and into my body are being forced open. I am scared to get out of bed to check that my doors are locked.

I wonder how other women are feeling, and why we don't talk about it. I wonder how the men are sleeping that night.

Then I feel angry that I am afraid to be home, afraid to be on the street and afraid to be in the library, and, now, I am angry that I am told even in the women-only space of a locker room, I may change clothes only "at my own risk." Advice regarding the recent local assaults is directed at women. For example, we are told to walk with a "buddy" at night and never to go out alone. But what happens when that "buddy" leaves me at my doorstep and I must go home, alone, and face the monsters in my own mind? What happens when the ones who, buddyless, may be walking on my street that evening?

Rather than women having buddies, shouldn't men have a curfew? Then the streets would surely be safe. I imagine this suggestion would anger many men. They might protest: "We didn't do anything wrong, why should we have to restrict our freedom because of some jerk? We should be free to walk the streets; we are innocent." My point exactly. If it seems ridiculous for the "good" men to sequester themselves and to be off the streets by a certain time, then why does no one blink when women are told the same thing? There is a secret mythos - never spoken but always implied - that the desires, violent or otherwise, women's bodies seemingly provoke are somehow I want to live in a world where the mere fact of living in a woman's body does not make one guilty of a crime someone else commits. In my world, being naked would not make women feel unsafe, ever. A penis would not be used as a weapon. I could run around at all hours of the night wearing a sexy dress, soap or even lip liner with no fear for my safety.

As it is now, some of the strongest women I know are scared to turn off the light.

aiting in a throng of muscular-legged runners for the Hospice Road Race to begin, I listened to our national anthem being sung by a microphoned male voice facing the crowd. The phrase "the land of the free" gave me pause. Am I really free? Free to be safe in a body that is female?

Then he sang "home of the brave," and I picture all the women I know who, even though they are scared in their homes, go on with their lives and try to act as though the world really is a safe place.

The race started. And so did I, choosing my own pace and moving through the crowds steadily and at my own risk.

3. When it's cold and rainy outside, most people do not enjoy walking to class. Therefore, the bus gets a little cramped. So, when there are 150 people standing at a stop wanting to get on, we try to get as many people on as possible. When the driver says to move to the back of the bus, this does NOT mean the back doors. Believe it or not, there is a good 7 feet behind the back doors where people can stand up. Yes, it may be uncomfortable, but if it is truly that bad, you may want to reconsider riding the bus. If seeing the doors close with the rain still dipping on your head is not a cherished memory, then MOVE TO THE BACK OF THE BUS!

The morning after the second and final presidential debate, strategists from both campaigns studied polling data as they debated strategies on issues, advertising and travel for the campaign's closing stretch.

Dole and fellow Republicans said they were buoyed by his final debate performance. They predicted Dole's questions about Clinton's ethics would motivate GOP base voters and convince independents to give the GOP nominee another look.

"I'm breathing easier," said Dole campaign manager Scott Reed. But he and other Republicans conceded there was a long way to go if Dole is to reverse Clinton's lopsided lead in the quest for 270 electoral votes.

"I think he needs to drive home two messages: one is trust and the other is taxes," said Republican pollster Ed Goeas. He conceded Dole's task was gargantuan, but found encouragement in the debate and recent polling data suggesting Republican voters were growing increasingly motivated as the elec-

U.S. backs Yeltsin's ousting of Lebed

Susanne Schafer Associated Press

MOSCOW - The United States threw its support behind Russian President Boris Yeltsin in his break with his maverick security chief Thursday, but said it sees no evidence the fired Alexander Lebed actually planned a coup.

"I think those were overblown," Defense Secretary William Perry said of the coup allegations.

Perry, in the Russian capital when Yeltsin sacked Lebed, joined other top administration officials in saying the Kremlin power struggle would not alter America's relationship with Russia.

Yeltsin fired Lebed hours after an emergency government meeting of security chiefs called because Interior Minister Anatoly Kulikov, who runs Russia's police, had accused Lebed of plotting a mutiny.

In Washington, D.C., Secretary of State Warren Christopher refused to comment on "an internal Russian matter" but said: "The (U.S.-Russian) relationship is a stable one and moving forward in a routine way."

Christopher's spokesperson Nicholas Burns said Perry was told "a couple of minutes ahead of time" that Yeltsin was about to dismiss Lebed. The advance notice enabled Perry to cancel a meeting with Lebed scheduled for about the time Yeltsin announced his dismissal.

elected in 1,000 years of Russian history - made a decision this morning, which was, in strictly legal and constitutional terms, his decision to make," Burns said.

President Clinton was campaigning in Orange County, Calif., where his spokesperson Mike McCurry said Yeltsin "seems to have acted in ways consistent with (his) constitutional prerogatives" of appointment.

The U.S. ambassador in Moscow said the administration is watching developments closely.

"It will be very important to wait and see where the various pieces fall," Ambassador Thomas Pickering said. Important, he said, is how Yeltsin will "deal with what may be a potential vacuum" in the absence of a chief security adviser.

"He's been a considerable force in Russian internal politics. We'll have to wait and see what this particular event produces," Pickering Lebed's surprise dismissal caught Perry's delegation of top U.S. defense officials and senators off guard. The announcement came as Perry met with reporters to discuss his testimony earlier in the day before Russia's lower house of

Like his colleagues in Washington, the secretary said the development will not change the "strong

"The elected Russian president and growing" defense relationship the first Russian president between the United States and Russia. Perry came to Russia on a three-day visit to continue a series of meetings with the new defense minister, Igor Rodionov, and meet with Russian lawmakers on ratification of the START II arms-control treaty.

Perry said he canceled his meet-ing with Lebed because "it did not seem wise" to schedule such a session. He said U.S. officials "never really had a chance" to get to know Lebed well.

Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D. Conn., traveling with Perry, said the ousting of the popular retired army general is "clear evidence that Yeltsin is still very much the president. ... It's clearly an assertion that Yeltsin is very much in Lieberman, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, pointed out Perry met earlier Thursday with Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin. The prime minister gives every evidence that Russia has "a very stable government," Lieberman said.

Perry, Lieberman and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., spoke earlier in the day with members of the Duma, Russia's lower house, many of whom expressed sharp opposi-tion to ratification of START II and distrust of U.S. support for NATO's enlargement to include former Warsaw Pact members

The dismissal came just a day after Lebed's bitter rival for authority in security decisions -Interior Minister Anatoly Kulikov accused him of plotting to form his own 50,000-man army with sights on seizing power in a

No evidence surfaced to back this sensational charge, and Yeltsin ignored talk of coups when he announced Lebed's ouster on national television.

Scowling, moving stiffly but speaking clearly and more resolutely than he has in recent appearances, Yeltsin declared Lebed's unilateral actions, excessive ambition and outspokenness were damaging to the country.

With hands clenched into fists on the table in front of him and eyes narrowed, the president looked angrier than he has in years and healthier and more in command than he has in weeks.

"I can't tolerate the situation any more," Yeltsin said, slowly and deliberately signing a decree dismissing Lebed. He spoke at the health spa where he has been resting up for heart bypass surgery next month.

Pegged by many as Yeltsin's likely successor, Lebed was characteristically unbowed. He announced plans to start campaigning soon to replace Yeltsin, who many suspect is too ill to serve out the rest of a term that lasts until 2000. Lebed denied the coup allegations, and has insisted he wants to gain office only through the ballot box.

He said he would not launch his campaign while the president is alive. "Today he's an elderly and ill person," Lebed said. "It's not for me to kick the one who is down."

Lebed's departure could end for now the noisy Kremlin infighting that has created a widespread impression of chaos.

But with Yeltsin sidelined from full-time duty until at least early 1997, the government is likely to remain weak, beset by internal bickering and external criticism bound to increase now that Lebed is on the outside.

But the firing creates new obstacles to a lasting peace settlement in Chechnya, where Lebed was the architect of controversial August agreements with separatist leaders that halted 20 months of fighting. A rebel spokesperson said Thurs-

Lebed's signing of a Chechnya accord, criticized by many top politicians as a sellout of the Russian army, only boosted his popularity among Russians who made the political newcomer a surprise third-place finisher in June presidential elections.

In a nationwide survey last month, Lebed was deemed Russia's most trusted politician with more than twice the rating of Communist leader Gennady Zyuganov, who came next. Yeltsin was a dis-

Speaking to reporters Thursday night, the bluntly outspoken Lebed took some parting shots.

He blamed his firing on Yeltsin's strong-willed chief of staff, Anatoly Chubais, who has taken over many of Yeltsin's administrative duties in the president's absence. "I was very much in his way," he said, accusing Chubais of harboring presidential ambitions of his own.

"I honestly tried to do all I could to stop the war, to carry out military reform, to organize a war against crime," Lebed said, "But the last straw. it's useless when people with rotten cores head law enforcement structures.

"victim to the 'party of war' that one, involving the ouster of three top hard-liners in June, came immediately after Yeltsin brought Lebed on board to ensure the backing of the 11 million people who voted for Lebed in the first round of elections.

Since then, Yeltsin has spent only a few hours in the Kremlin as his heart problems worsened.

He was hospitalized for three weeks and is now working several hours a day at the Barvikha sanatorium outside Moscow

In his absence, Lebed has clashed with the president, Chubais, Kulikov and others in a drive to acquire a bigger government role and more power.

Yeltsin complained Lebed made decisions without consulting the president and the rest of the government. "There must be a united team," the president said. "The team must be close-knit and work as a single fist." Lebed had offered to resign last month, but Yeltsin had encouraged him to be patient, and to learn to get along with the other Kremlin officials. The furor around the coup allegation, however, appeared to be

HIV-infected Morrison considers fight in Japan

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tommy Morrison, the HIV-infected heavyweight, will decide by Friday whether he will return to the ring next month in Japan, his longtime promoter said Thursday.

Morrison is considering fighting on the undercard of the George Foreman-Crawford Grimsley bout Nov. 3 near Tokyo, but he has not agreed to a fight as reported in a Tokyo newspaper, promoter Tony Holden said.

"They've been pretty aggressive trying to get Tommy on the card, but there's been no confirmation from Tommy's camp," Holden said.

The fight against a still undetermined opponent would be Morrison's first since he announced his retirement in February after testing positive for the virus that causes AIDS.

Locker room talk leads to arrest of six football players

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The talk in the locker room was about cars, girls, clothes - and, according to police, the holdups some high school football players committed to pay for it all.

Six members of the Granger High football team, including two varsity starters, were being held Wednesday in juvenile detention after police say they confessed to robbing 20 fast-food restaurants and other stores.

"If they didn't have any money, they'd go do a robbery, split up the cash and go on a date," said Sgt. Jerry Mendez. "They spent it on the things that high school kids spend money on dates, clothes, fixing up a car.

"The only thing we know they weren't spending it on was dope. They weren't into drugs at all," he said.

The string of holdups that began in June ended Tuesday night with two more robberies and the arrests of the suspects, ages 15 to 17, on suspicion of armed robbery.

The Iowa football team's 27-20 loss to Tulsa on Sept. 21 dampened the hopes of many for a Big Ten championship sea at No. 10 Penn State this weekend, though, would put the Hawkeyes right back in the thick of the conference race.

The Braves capped their comeback with the biggest blowout in postseason history, a 15-0 humiliation in Game 7 of the NL championship series Thursday night that completed a remarkable rally from a 3-1 deficit.

Pitcher Tom Glavine hit a bases-loaded triple that highlighted a six-run first inning, and 52,067 crazed fans spent the rest of the evening partying as the Braves earned a chance to defend their World Series title.

Game 1 will be Saturday night in New York against the Yankees. The Braves have reached four of the last five World Series, making it this time by outscoring St. Louis 32-1 in three straight games.

"You wouldn't expect this many runs from any team," Cox said. "You would never imagine it. I thought every game here would be very tight, low scoring.

"A couple of balls fell, and then it just steamrolled," he said. "But when we were down 1-3, we felt like we could reel off

After Atlanta good-luck charm Francisco Cabrera threw out a first ball - and before the fans broke into singing "New York, New York" — Glavine shut out St. Louis on three hits for seven innings. He got support from two-homers by NLCS MVP Javy Lopez, Fred McGriff and Andruw Jones - at 19, Jones surpassed Mickey Mantle as the youngest player to connect in a postseason game.

"The loss stings a lot because of the type of game it was," Cardinals manager Tony La Russa said. "A lot of guys are bothered by it."

The loss, making the Cardinals the only club to blow a 3-1 lead three times in the postseason, meant the end of Ozzie Smith's

Now, I'm not one of those Cubs but it's a three-fans that storms into each season word phrase with crazy dreams and false hope. You'll never hear me say, "This is the year."

But I gotta admit, 1997 has the potential of being a breakthrough season for the Windy City squad that has become synonymous with mediocrity.

Step 1 is admitting your inadequacy, which Chicago GM Ed Lynch has done. He was even bright enough to figure out in which areas the Cubs need help.

Lynch said the top priority is a starter, followed by a reliever and a power hitter. Since this is a family paper, I won't say what I'm thinking,

COLLEGE ROUNDUP Wyoming puts win streak on the line

Associated Press

Wyoming takes the nation's longest winning streak into its game Saturday against Fresno State, whose coach says beating the Cowboys in Laramie won't be easy.

"We will be hard pressed," Jim Sweeney said. "This is the best football team I've ever seen Wyoming have, and that includes Paul Roach's teams.'

Under Roach, who coached from 1987-90, the Cowboys were 35-15. Now, No. 23 Wyoming (7-0) has won 10 in a row over two seasons. Fresno State has won two in a row for the first time since a three-game winning streak in 1995. The Cowboys rank second nationally in both passing offense (381 yards per game) and total offense (533).

The only matchup of ranked teams in college football Saturday has No. 16 Auburn at top-ranked Florida likes to score early and often, and that's what has Auburn coach Bobby Bowden worried.

"You want to establish the tempo for the afternoon, and Florida has done it every week," Bowden said.

Led by the passing of Danny Wuerffel, Florida scores 52.5 points per game, the most in the nation, and has outscored its opponents 83-7 in the first quarter. Wuerffel has thrown five of his 17 TD passes on the game's first drive.

HIGH SCHOOL TO NBA

Bryant impressive in NBA debut

Rob Gloster Associated Press

FRESNO, Calif. - Teenager Kobe Bryant apparently needed a reminder of just how much his life has changed in a few months, so Los Angeles Lakers coach Del Harris gave him one.

"Hey, pass the ball. This isn't high school any more," Harris snapped after Bryant lost the ball in his NBA debut Wednesday

That turnover was about the only thing Bryant, 18, did wrong in the Lakers' 90-80 win over the Dallas Mavericks. He hit all four of his shots - including a 3-pointer and a running dunk - and added two

The 10-point performance earned Bryant, who jumped from high school directly to the pros, a serenade and a light-hearted lecture from teammate Shaquille O'Neal.

O'Neal and the rest of the Lakers already had dubbed Bryant 'Showboat" before the youngster made his first appearance.

"I believe that Showboat is the future," O'Neal crooned in the locker room after the game, just before he jokingly advised Bryant to stop giving interviews and hit the show-

Bryant, who averaged 31 points last season for Lower Merion High School in Ardmore, Pa., had missed the Lakers' first two exhibition games after fracturing his left wrist in a pickup game before training camp.

Many of the 10,274 fans at Selland Arena chanted "Ko-be, Ko-be" in unison, and a few gave him a standing ovation as he took the court for the first time with 7:49 left in the second quarter Wednesday.

He immediately mishandled the ball, but recovered and passed to Sean Rooks under the basket for an easy bucket. A few seconds lat-

After those initial signs of nervousness, he seemed comfortable and controlled - despite constant positioning instructions yelled from the Laker bench by Harris.

"It was like a half-semester at college tonight, it was good for him," Harris said. "He made some mistakes and he did some good

Bryant's first points came on a 3pointer in the second quarter. He added six points in the final minutes of the game on a smooth turnaround jumper, a breakaway dunk and a 16-foot jumper. He thought of creating something spectacular on the dunk, but eschewed his nickname and went somewhat conservative at the last

Torre contemplates Game 1 starter

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Leaning back in his office chair, wearing suspenders and a white dress shirt, Joe Torre looked more Wall Street broker than World Series manager.

Following an appearance on a morning talk show, Torre arrived at work Thursday morning unusually attired. As manager of the New York Yankees, Torre is fond of pinstripes, but accessorizing with a silk tie was

"I dressed up for you guys today," Torre said.

Torre gave the Yankees their second off-day this week as the team prepares for Saturday's Game 1 against the NL champions - the St. Louis Cardinals or Atlanta Braves.

A manager's work, however, is never done. So Torre came to the ballpark. He spent part of the morning discussing options, moves and numbers. Very broker-like.

This discussion, however, concerned a 25-man roster. Not the Dow reaching 6,000.

Torre was unable to answer some unresolved questions regarding the Yankees' first World Series appearance since 1981. For now, naming a Game 1 starter, his starting rotation, Kenny Rogers' status and Darryl Strawberry's aching toe have to remain on hold.

"I have to wait until after the workout tomorrow," was a common response.

Torre has yet to decide who he'll start in Game 1, although for the second straight day he hinted he's favoring Andy Pettitte over David Cone.

He also remained non-committal on whether he'll use a three- or four-man rota-

'Not officially," he said when asked if he's announced his choice to start the opener. "If we decide to go with three (starters) I think Andy is probably better equipped for

Pettitte, a left-hander, won 21 games during the regular season and was brilliant in the Yankees' AL championship clincher over Baltimore with a three-hitter over eight innings. He made two starts against the Orioles, and Torre would love to use him three times in a World Series matchup with the Braves, who have more power from the left

If Torre decides to go with three starters, Rogers, blasted in both his postseason starts, may be left off the World Series roster or used in relief. Torre has also said he may use Brian Boehringer or Ramiro Mendoza as possible No. 4 starters.

Rogers, bothered by shoulder discomfort most of the season, threw batting practice to Yankee pitchers on Wednesday. Torre questioned Rogers' health following his Game 4 start at Baltimore and said he wouldn't keep Rogers around if he can't help the club.

"He threw fine yesterday and I think Mel (pitching coach Stottlemyre) thought so too," Torre said. "... I haven't talked to Mel yet today, but we're going to wait until tomorrow to tell everyone.

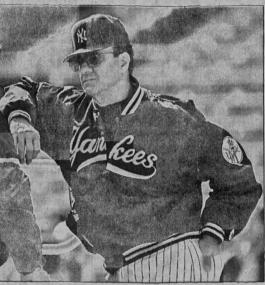

"Kenny, in my mind is still going to have to be able to pitch. I'm not just going to carry him so he's eligible. He has to be useful

Torre said if he decides to carry 11 pitchers, Rogers would be one of them. Managers have until after batting practice before Game 1 to submit their final rosters.

The fractured big toe on Strawberry's right foot is adding to Torre's roster dilemma.

Strawberry fouled a ball of his foot'in Game 5 last weekend at Camden Yards. Preliminary X-rays were negative, but when the pain didn't subside, Strawberry had a CAT scan, which revealed a hairline fracture.

The toe isn't affecting Strawberry's hitting, but he hasn't been able to run. An he said. "They both fired me.

Yankee manager loe Torre watches batting practice Wednesday at Yankee Stadium as the team practices for the upcoming World Series, which opens Saturday night.

immobile Strawberry limits Torre to two options: use Strawberry as a designated hitter at home and as a pinch-hitter in the NL

"Unless he can run around in the outfield he can't do us very much good," Torre said. "He's still a pretty good threat off the bench,

Strawberry was expected to receive more treatment Thursday but Torre thought his workout would be limited to some light hitting. Torre will get a better idea on the outfielder/DH when the full squad works out

"I'm not sure what I'm going to do yet, and that's honest," Torre said.

Torre planned to spend the rest of Thursday shopping with his wife before heading home to watch Game 7 of the NL championship. Torre played and managed for the Braves and Cardinals. He says he has no rooting interest.

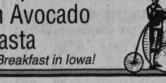

"Both clubs have something in common,"

Hawks back on the road

Tony Wirt The Daily Iowan

After two weeks of tough practicing, the men's cross country team returns to action when it travels to Kenosha Wis., to take part in the UW Parkside Invitational Saturday at 1:45 p.m.

With the Big Ten meet just a few weeks away, the Hawkeyes are looking to gain some momentum that can carry them through that meet and on to the NCAA District meet on the 15th.

"I'd really like to put a good team performance together before we go into the Big Ten meet," coach Larry Wieczorek said.

Wieczorek was hoping the momentum-building performance would have come last week in Chicago, but top runner Stetson Steele sat out with a sore Achilles tendon and a few other runners suffered an off-meet.

Upon returning from Chicago, the Hawkeyes have had two very good weeks of practice and appear to be ready to head into the meet in Kenosha and perform

"The fact that we had great workouts tells me that we have a great attitude, I expect that to carry over into competition," Wieczorek said.

The Hawkeyes' biggest competition Saturday will be from Marquette, which is coming off a big win over national power Arizona at a meet in Maine last weekend.

Some things are better left in the past. The Iowa women's cross country team, which placed last out of 22 teams in last year's Iowa State Cross Country Memorial Classic, has no intention of repeating the defeat.

The Hawkeyes are coming off their strongest performance of the season when they placed fifth out UNI. of 13 teams in the highly competitive Maine Invitational last weekend. Freshman Alienor Gilchrist and senior Ann Paré turned in season-best times at the event.

Senior Becky Coleman said the Maine Invitational has been a big record of 34 wins and 11 losses, a confidence booster to the team.

"After our performance in Maine, I think the team is really said. "Placing in the top five really percentage.

With a world-renowned pianist performing on Saturday, classical music aficionados can look forward to Goode entertainment this weekend.

As part of Hancher Auditorium's 1996-97 IES Industries Piano Series, classical pianist Richard Goode will perform works by Bach, Brahms, Beethoven and Chopin at 8 p.m. Saturday in Hancher Auditorium.

"Richard Goode is somebody we've been interested in presenting for a couple of years," Hancher marketing director Judy Hurtig said. "The idea for a piano series presented the perfect opportunity to bring him."

Yet, Goode's debut at Hancher is only one stop during a busy season in which he is performing solo recitals in New York, London, Paris, Munich and Tokyo. Famous for his interpretation of Beethoven, Goode is the first American-born pianist to record all 32 of Beethoven's

In addition to the concert, Goode will host a free master class for the public at 3 p.m. today in Harper Hall of the class give students another Voxman Music Building. During the master class, approach a particular piece of Shannon Loehrke, a firstyear Ph.D. student in piano performance at the UI, will perform the first movement of a Beethoven sonata for Goode, and she insisted she isn't nervous at all.

"The only nervousness I feel is strictly performance anxiety. It would be stupid to feel any more pressure because of who I am playing for," she said. "But I'm very interested to hear what he's got to say, and I'll be even more interested to hear his own performance on Saturday."

Goode is the second of four pianists to appear as part of the piano series, which is the first of its kind in about 15 years at the UI. Spanish pianist Alicia de Larrocha will perform Nov. 1, and French pianist Hélène Grimaud will perform April 6.

Tickets for Goode's performance are still available at the Hancher Box Office, and cost $30, $26 and $23. A discount is available for students and senior citizens, and Zone 3 tickets are $10 for students.

Goode could not be reached for an interview for this story.

Riverside Theatre play explores Russian society

broad stroke."

The Daily Iowan

Class divisions, family traditions and a modern look at a theatrical classic are all a part of "The Cherry Orchard," which opens tonight at 8 at Riverside Theatre Company, 213 N. Gilbert St.

"The Cherry Orchard" explores the dramatic differences in social class and tradition in turn-of-thecentury Russia. While it is described by its creator Anton Chekhov as a comedy, "The Cherry Orchard" manages to explore many dramatic elements.

"It's a strange mixture," said cast member Cosmo

Catalano, a former UI professor of theatre arts. "Chekhov is making a critical comment on society and the characters of the play, but he tried to approach it from a comic point of view, letting the fallibility of the people show.

The Riverside production of "The Cherry Orchard" makes use of a modern translation by David made famous by "Glenglarry Glen Ross" and "Oleanna."

"It's a very accessible production, due to the Mamet translation,' said Ron Clark, Riverside's artistic director, who also plays the character of Gayev. "These are characters that are drawn with a broad Coming on the heels of four performances at Cornell College last week, an unusual twist of this production is that it features Cornell students acting alongside professional Riverside

"They're getting to work on-stage with not just two of their teachers, but with professional actors," said Jody Hovalnd, a cast member and part-time instructor at Cornell. "And they're getting to tour (with the performances in Iowa City), which none of them have done before.

The play centers around Lyubov Ranevskaya, a landowner whose vast estate includes a massive buy the property back at the upcoming auction, Yermolay Lopakhin — a businessman and former peasant - suggests the property be divided up and leased as small cottages.

Ranevskaya refuses, out of both love for the orchard and disrespect for the peasant formerly under her employ. However, she is shocked when Lopakhin outbids the family

"The Cherry Orchard" makes use When her brother Gayev offers to of a very minimal, rather than realistic, set. Instead of a detailed living room, the sloped stage is decorated only with furniture pieces and suggestions of bare branches.

"The Cherry Orchard" will be performed tonight through Sunday and Oct. 25-27. Tonight's performance and those on Oct. 25 and 26 are sold out. Tickets are $15, $13 for students and senior citizens.

Brokaw apologizes after he slams CBS' Rather for Nixon coverage

Associated Press

tion in San

NEW YORK - NBC anchorman Tom Brokaw said he regrets repeating what he called 25-yearold gossip about his CBS rival Dan Rather — that Rather often reported false stories fed to him by the Nixon White House.

Brokaw said Wednesday he "reckless" "factually wrong a lot of comments in with a home satellite dish. Brokaw made the remark at the rehearsal when someone said Rather was reporting Colin Powell would be in a Dole Cabinet. He said seeing the face of Don-ald Rumsfeld, the chairperson of Bob Dole's presidential campaign > and a former official in the Nixon White House, on a screen at the time triggered his memory of old gossip.

"Rummy used to get even with guys in the White House by leaking stuff to Rather that didn't have any basis in fact," Brokaw told his colleagues. He added that Rather was "factually wrong a lot of the time because he was Rummy's vessel."

At the time, Rather was beating NBC on the Watergate story, Brokaw said.

"The gossip in the bureau was that Rumsfeld was his pal and — I'm sure it was envy — they said that's how he gets the stuff," he
