The first half flopped and the comeback failed. But most UI students perked up their lagging spirits from the afternoon's Iowa-Ohio State game and still managed to have a good time Saturday night.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. -National Guard troops pulled out and a state of emergency was lifted Sunday, three days after a race riot ripped this city with fires and angry mobs.

In the neighborhood where the violence broke out after the shooting death of a black motorist, a Baptist minister urged worshipers to seek God's help to ease racial tensions.

"We come here today to thank you ... to raise our hands, not to throw stones, sticks and bottles, but to say hallelujah," said Rev. Greg Seay, who spoke to 350 people at Bethel Community Baptist Church.

Earlier, some 200 guardsmen. sent by Gov. Lawton Chiles to assist local police, left a downtown sports complex. They used it as a staging area in the wake of rioting that broke out Thursday night after a white police officer shot and killed black motorist Tyron Lewis, 18, during a traffic stop.

At least 11 people were injured and 28 buildings burned in the violence that followed.

Calm prevailed Friday and Saturday night and a police state of emergency - preventing sales of guns and of gasoline in containers - ended at 6 p.m. Sunday. The city planned to scale back the number of police on the streets. The number of officers on duty Sunday was not known.

The local chapter of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference called on Chiles to assure the integrity of the investigation into possible criminal charges against the officers involved in the shooting.

A poll conducted one day after the riot found 37 percent of black residents said discrimination against them has increased in the past five years. Only 19 percent gave that answer during a similar poll in 1980.

Suncoast Opinion Surveys, a research division of the The St. Petersburg Times, conducted the telephone survey of 78 blacks and 154 whites. It has a margin of error of 6 percentage points.

Forty-one percent of blacks also said police discriminate against them, the poll found, while 9 percent of whites agree blacks are victims of police discrimination.

Members of the UI Cigar Society puffed away Sunday night, conversing through hazy smoke in an aroma-filled room at their first dinner of the year.

With three times as many members and several more women since the group started last February, the Cigar Society has added "diversity" to the UI campus, said UI Student Government President Marc Beltrame.

Ryan Lumsden, a UI junior and the executive president of the UI Cigar Society, said sharing cigars with friends helps set the atmosphere for good conversation, whether it's with men or with women. Two women attended the first meeting last spring, and Lumsden said this semester there are more than 10 female members in the group, which has more than 50 official members.

WASHINGTON - Calling Bob Dole a hero, Jack Kemp expressed disappointment Sunday fellow Republicans appear to be abandoning Dole in his "moment of need" to focus on Congress instead.

With Election Day looming and Dole still well behind President Clinton in the polls, Kemp also made another plea to Reform Party candidate Ross Perot, beseeching Perot to drop out and throw his support to Dole. "Ross, I beg you. You should be supporting the one man who can bring about these reforms in America," he said on CBS' "Face the Perot, who last week rebuffed a Love it or hate it, the "Macarena" dance has been given its own holiday by fans.

Chris Dennis, who organized International Macarena Month on his Macarena-themed Web site, said he got the idea for the would-be holiday by seeing its popularity on the Web and in other places.

The song, which originated in Venezuela, became a hit in Spain in 1993 and the trend has continued ever since.

"There's a lot of DJs that hate it, but the general public loves it," he said. "There are lots of Web sites devoted to it, and you see it all over the place. Anyone between 8 and 80 can do it, and it doesn't take any special skill or anything."

He believes Guatemalan laborers and U.S. workers have few differences in the ways they are treated by giant multinational corporations. Workers in both nations struggle with the same issues and fight for similar rights, Hertzler said.

Written in the stars

s I watched the countless hours of television coverage devoted to analyzing and predicting the outcome of the presidential election, I came to an obvious conclusion: Bill Clinton's face is extremely red. I imagine it is either from extended tantrums or prolonged drinking binges, both of which cause breakage of the facial blood vessels giving one the appearance of a ripe tomato. I can hardly blame the guy, he does hold the most pressure-filled position in the country - being married

A second, and probably less important, conclusion I reached is that all of the reporters and political analysts are going about their prediction-making all wrong. Instead of basing their decisions on polling data and interviews with potential voters most of which wouldn't know an issue if it came up and bit them on their collective MTV-watching ass - these "experts" should talk to some real professionals. And I'm not talking > about the kind of professional Dick Morris would pay $200 an hour to dress up like Little Bo Peep and advise President Clinton on foreign policy over the telephone. I'm talking about astrologers.

startling predictions. The answers to all questions like will

Clinton get four more years and if so, how long will it take him to appoint a federal task force to locate Al Gore's personality? - can be found in the stars.

Clint McCord

Let's start with Bob Dole, who was born under the sign of Cancer. In astrological terms this means he is astute, responsible and fiercely loyal. Just add courteous and obedient and Dole would make one hell of a boy scout. But would he make a good president? Probably not, but that's due mainly to the fact he's fast approaching the springtime of his senility. Besides, his main selling point appears to be a pledge to return to the Reagan era, back to the days when everyone had a job and we kicked Commie butt up and down the Eastern Hemisphere. Of course, in the process we managed to run up a national debt that caused Japan to use our currency as toilet paper, but so what? Put Dole in the White House and he'll show that pasty-face wimp Yeltsin what it really means to be a democratic power! Now, if we could just do something about Dole's speech impediment — namely his speeches.

Clinton, on the other hand, is a fine speaker, which is one of the characteristics of a Leo. He is also warm, gentle and sensitive. All we need to do is hose him down with saltpeter and he'd be Richard Simmons. Which raises an important question: Do we really want a sensitive president in the White House? We've had plenty of sensitive, do-gooder presidents throughout the years, and what have they done for us? In case anyone's forgotten, these are the guys who got us into Vietnam.

Actually it turns out Clinton isn't so sensitive after all, opting for heartless Reagan-style social programs. That gave him a boost with the conservative right who would love to do something about welfare mothers - such as starve them to death. Don't worry, though, he probably only did it to get that meanie Dole off his back. In his next term he will undoubtedly return to governing in the grand tradition of Democratic presidents who started out as Democratic governors of obscure Southern states. Peanuts anyone?

In all honesty it probably doesn't matter who you vote for, or what their sign is. Whether we elect Bob "I can be another Reagan" Dole or Bill "I swear I never touched her" Clinton, we can be sure one thing will remain the same: Political campaigns will continue to be as stimulating as Al Gore on Quaaludes. But if we don't take them too seriously - I'm speaking to all of the religious nuts as well as the Socialist tree-huggers out there - then we can continue to live in a country where we're all entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of whatever we damn well please.

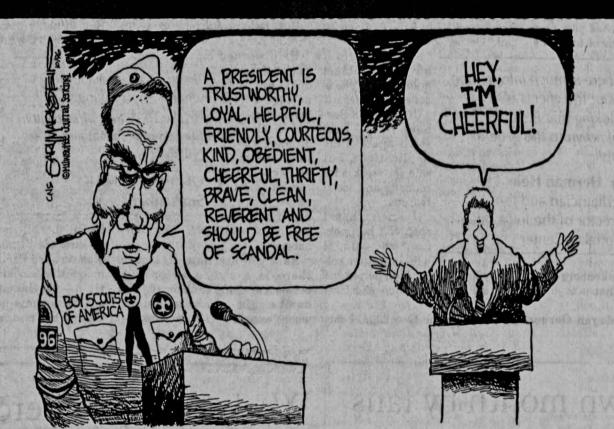

Now if you'll excuse me I have an appointment with Dionne. She hasn't had a hit single in a while, but she reads one hell of a palm.

Curbing the bicycle nuisance

The popularity of bicycles is booming That's a good thing, no doubt about it.

Downtown Iowa City has a problem with automobile congestion, no doubt about it.

And the use of bicycles can help alleviate the pressure on limited parking and cramped streets, no doubt about it.

But it is doubtful all these twowheel travelers know how to responsibly ride a bike. Just because most bicyclists have been riding since they were kids doesn't mean they are good or safe riders. Some blow through stop signs. Some ride at night without lights. Some careen through the Pedestrian Mall and along sidewalks. Many ignore the rules of the road, and others don't yield the right of way to pedestrians on sidewalks. It's amazing more accidents don't hap-

Bicycles and pedestrians don't mix, no doubt about it.

Iowa City is in an unusual - and unfortunate - position for a college town. The town is laid out and built police. With increased bicycle use, in such a way there are no true bike paths downtown. Building them tions has been stepped up. So far now would be almost impossible. this year, the police department has Byron R. on streets crowded with cars, to ride on sidewalks. Where can pedestrians, fearing travel on sidewalks jammed with bikes, go?

Iowa City is right to ban bicyclists from traveling on sidewalks in the downtown commercial areas. Sidewalks are called sidewalks for a reason: They're designed for pedestrian use. If they were meant for heavy bike traffic, they'd instead be called bike paths, no?

"Most of the accidents between bicyclists and pedestrians happen downtown," said John Yapp of the Iowa City Planning Department. There's not enough room for bicyclists and pedestrians on the side-

But many cyclists don't get it, not for a lack of effort by the Iowa City police enforcement of bike regulations; that's up from 43 in all of 1993. A ticket can result in a $28 fine.

"We had to do something before somebody really got hurt," said Sgt. Craig Lihs of the Iowa City police.

Unfortunately, the UI doesn't follow the same path. UI regulations do not outright ban bicyclists from campus sidewalks. And the UI woefully enforces what regulations it does have. Bikers are allowed to travel through congested areas at speeds no faster than the surrounding pedestrian traffic. But who knows about — let alone pays attention to — this rule? UI Department of Public Safety officials had no recollection of any recent tickets given to unsafe bike riders. It's not because all bicyclists riding through campus follow the rules and ride

At an urban campus, like the UI's, makes little sense to allow bikers to ride on heavily traveled sidewalks when there are plenty of streets in the area. It would be the smart and safe - thing for the UI to ban bicyclists from sidewalks in the heart of campus.

No doubt about it.

Improved access to the Internet

hange moves at a rapid pace in the world of computers.

To accommodate that change, the UI has signed a contract with MCI Telecommunications which will provide students and faculty with an improved method of accessing the Internet. The service will cost $12 per month, plus a $10 initiation fee. "The 6200 pool of modems was built before the Internet existed," said Pete Trotter, a technology adviser for ITS. "Trying to get the original modem pool to handle the current level of Internet activity is like trying to soup-up an old Volkswagen for the race track.

The UI clearly needs to keep pace with technological change to remain a quality institution. Yet some students are left wondering why staying up-to-date should cost them so much money. Don't UI students already pay tuition and computer fees? Shouldn't efficient Internet access be included in the price of a basic college education?

The committee that determines how student fees are used doesn't think so. Under the present system, the only price to pay is high busysignal rates. The contract with MCI will not alter service currently available. Efficient Internet access could be considered a luxury, one for which $12 a month will gladly be

At least, that's what the computer fees committee hopes you'll think, and they may be right, for now. However, Trotter anticipates a future when most students will begin to demand reliable Internet access, and professors will make students responsible for class material on the Web. Years from now, paying for your Internet service when you're already paying tuition may seem as ridiculous as having to buy your syllabus. Or, it may be accepted as one of the costs of higher education, just as paying exorbitant amounts for textbooks is more or less accepted.

While waiting for this phenomenon to develop, consider another Brian Sutherland is an editorial writer Internet-related project the UI is and UI junior.

"What now takes a half-hour, I want to be able to do in half a second," said William Kearney, director of the UI College of Medicine Nuclear Magnetic Resonance Facility. Hmm.. this sounds vaguely familiar ... let's see ... what he does now, he wants to do faster. Why, that sounds exactly like what students have been saying about the Internet! It is doubtful professors will pay for the privilege of using Internet II. Why do professors and researchers have special status? One might reply their work is a bit more important than applications students use the Web for, such as downloading the guitar tabulature to Bob Marley's "Redemption Song." They also acquire big research grants recently the UI received a large sum to study alcohol consumption.

There's a good chance researchers will discover most alcohol is being consumed while frustrated students wait for their computers to connect with Weeg.

On families and dirty diapers

ootie?" Jessica, the woman I intend to marry, was speaking. Her query was insistent. "Kimberly, just what is a pootie, exactly?" Oh my God. The good news was the most wonderful, intelligent woman on earth had fallen into my life and was on her way with me to meet my family. The bad news was she had just encountered the lunacy that is our adoration for the single grandchild, 9-monthold Daniel.

"Uh, pootie." I uttered the strange term in a quiet, declarative sigh. A line of sweat broke across my brow and over my upper lip. I was dead meat on the hoof here, but like George Washington I could not tell a lie. I sucked in my gut and confessed. "Pootie is what we call it when the baby poops his diaper." She could have piloted the car through the yawning silence that followed. "What we call it she tilted her head in a skeptical way. "We the whole family? The whole family says 'pootie' when the baby poops his diaper?" She was breaking into a state of quiet but discernible glee. Yes, her beloved's family was whacko, was in fact actively coining whacko vocabulary, and it was clear she would not soon let her beloved forget it. I gave a lame nod. "Yes - all of us." From the ages of 73 to 31, regardless of professional status or generation, the whole family now says "pootie." As in, "Check the baby would you? I think he might have a pootie." I kiss the down just beginning to curl at the nape of his neck and detect an aroma. "Little man? Did you have a pootie?"

Kim Painter

Now Jessica was hearing the word "pootie" for the first time, and I was pretty much sure it was going to be the end of our relationship. She shook her head as a wisp of a smile played across her mouth. I fidgeted in the passenger's seat, mulling over the dive my vocabulary had taken since the birth

Poop has become pootie, loud noises from neighboring yards are boom-booms, his bottle is ba-ba, diapers are dites. We have collectively lost our minds, and are pleased with the results. I try to think about it rationally. Some people, somewhere, must speak to babies just as they speak to everyone else. But I can't imagine what fun that would be. I think of Shakespeare. Surely someone cooed to the infant Bard, perhaps in sonnet form. Heisman trophy winners' parents have coined whacko vocabulary over their babes, then watched them go on to traverse fields of athletic glory. For every Navy Seal or Green Beret in the armed services, at least two parents and maybe some sibs were idiotically delighted every time their tiniest family member grinned, wiggled his toes, or had a pootie.

John Wayne, Norman Schwarzkopf, Mother Teresa, Janet Reno and RuPaul - all were adored as babies, because that's what babies are. Adored. Extravagantly adored. Monumentally adored. The only baby I can think of who wasn't properly adored according to public accounts was Prince Charles - and look how he turned out. A person could become positively righteous about baby wor-

As it happens, the word "pootie" did not end my relationship. Everyone loved Jessica, even my father the traditionalist. He couldn't believe how great a dessert she'd baked - or that it came from the 1932 "Joy of Cooking" recipe for "fruit paradise." It spoke to him in his own language, the language of things that should never change.

"It's a great cookbook," she said. "People back then knew how food was supposed to taste. People today don't remember." I thought my father might fall over from the unexpected delight of the moment, t took months for me to understand what I experienced that day thanks to the love of a durable Midwestern family and a woman of great understanding. Some things should never change. Among them is family love. It is to the shame of our culture that so much of this whole-hearted love has been driven underground by politics and money-grubbing preachers. In another age they'd have been itinerant. Today, they enjoy media empires and have an odd stranglehold on part of America. Despite their rhetoric, their grip is anathema to family love. It is a death grip many can't escape.

Most of us don't routinely think of ourselves as lucky. But I can count many blessings. I have a great love, a loving family, and a little one to be unabashedly stupid about. I hold the sleeping babe He doesn't know I'm in love with a woman, he just knows my love for him. Someday he will have to think of these things. He will be a man in a world where politics and religion swim together in the same muddied waters.

When I pray over him, I pray the very things you might imagine praying. Let him have good sense, and a large and loving heart. Give him strength and understanding. Life is complicated, and not always fair. Justice is hard to come by. Sometimes you have to seek it with an unbending will amidst the ridicule or apathy of your peers. But you have good bones, little man. Do good, and always remember the love of those who came before you. It is larger than you can know.

Out of respect to the approaching fifth anniversary of the November 1st shootings at Van Allen Hall, I was going to share some of my reflections on how our community healed in the aftermath of the tragedy. I feel one of the crucial steps in maintaining community is in sharing our stories and history with those who have more recently made their homes here. The story of our healing holds great meaning and beauty and is very much worth the telling. I had hoped by sharing my thoughts I could, in some small way, honor the memories of the victims of the shootings and contribute to the strengthening of com-

Then I read a letter to the editor which ran on Oct. 14. It was submitted by Angad Mather, an Iowa City third-grader. Angad asked a very good question and concluded with a reasonable request: "Why are children's winter coats so expensive when kids catch cold and fall sick very fast? I hope grown-ups will think about this." This letter reminded me community is made of many things besides reflections upon the past. Community is today. Community is tomorrow. Com-

of the shooting spree, loved children. She was very involved in the lives of her nieces and nephews and the kids who lived in her neighborhood. She always made the effort to give them her positive, caring attention. At a memorial service for all the victims, her brothers said the best way to memorialize her was to emulate her life. I did not know Anne Cleary, but I think she would have approved of what I have chosen to do. I have chosen to leave the telling of our past to others. I will instead look to the future of our community. The questions of children deserve honest, thoughtful answers. By trying to give Angad an answer, I believe I will come much closer to my goals of ening the community.

> ear Angad, name Helene, and I write a column for The Daily Iowan. I am not an editor, but I wanted very much to try and give you an answer to your question. It doesn't seem very fair, does it? When I was about your age, I had some of the same questions. I couldn't understand why children in some places didn't have enough food or clothes or even medicine when they got sick. I couldn't understand why people who had more than they needed couldn't just give some of it to the people who didn't have enough. When I asked the grown-ups 'why?', they told me honoring the victims and strength- about capitalism and economics and other big words and ideas. The one thing you have to do is keep asking questions, because questions help people to realize the world can be made bettelling you about ter. because no question ever has just one answer. Think about what different people will say. Decide what you believe. Then think about what new questions come into your head, some people to get the things they and start asking about them. If someone says you are asking too many questions, then that should tell you your questions are good ones. Difficult questions are the best ones because people have to think to answer them.

Some grown-ups get very uncom-fortable when children ask difficult questions. They might say, "You're too young to understand" or "I don't know ... that's just the way things are" when you ask them a good question. I find it best to thank them for their time and then I go and ask somebody else. Whatever they say, keep asking your questions. Just by asking, you are making the

And somewhere within all those answers is the way for every child to get the coat and food and medicine they need. If we keep looking for the way, we will find it.

Fury over ads bruises tenor of Iowa Senate race

Mike Glover Associated Press

JOHNSTON, Iowa - The contenders in this year's U.S. Senate race are sending signals the closing days of the high-profile race may turn combative.

Also during the weekend, each raised questions about the other's ties to the state.

Incumbent Democratic Sen. Tom Harkin said Republican rival Rep. Jim Ross Lightfoot has broken a clean campaign pledge by allowing surrogate groups to air attack com-

"My opponent recently has broken his word," said Harkin. "He gave his word that they were not going to run attack ads. Right now there are seven groups, seven outside groups, now running ads

Lightfoot rejected the claim, saying he hasn't aired attack ads nor sought them from outside groups.

"I've told them not to run negative ads," said Lightfoot. "I've heard one commercial and it's not an attack ad. It doesn't say to vote against him, it just says call him and tell him what you think."

Lightfoot argued he can't control outside groups, but Harkin scoffed at that argument.

"Give me a break," said Harkin. 'Of course you can control them." Harkin said environmental groups earlier in the race were preparing to attack Lightfoot until

"I'm going to give him the opportunity, will he get those ads off the air?" said Harkin. "They've been running for two or three days."

Harkin wouldn't say what step he would take if the commercials kept running, but pointedly left open the option of firing back. "If, as some of the rumors are circulating, the senator's getting ready to engage in some nasty, negative, personal attacks, obviously I'm going to reserve the myself," said Lightfoot, who insisted, "I have no arsenal ready to unleash. But he warned "I tell you what,

After months of civility, Republican Michael Mahaffey has gone on the attack against Democrat Leonard Boswell, and strategists said it's boosted Mahaffey's stand-

During their appearances Saturday, the two also traded charges over ties to the state.

Harkin said Lightfoot routinely campaigns by arguing he's always lived in Iowa, though that isn't the

"I've never had a residence in another state, he has," said Harkin. "I've never voted in another state, my opponent has. I've never paid income taxes in another state, my opponent has. I've never run for office in another state, my opponent has."

Lightfoot acknowledged he has lived elsewhere but said Harkin's attack was a diversion from the charge Harkin is a creature of Washington.

"I guess he's nervous that he hasn't actually lived here in 25 years," Lightfoot said.

KABUL, Afghanistan - The thud of bombs and staccato bursts of anti-aircraft fire over the capital Sunday disrupted the wailful sound of morning prayers.

Fighter jets belonging to northern warlord Rashid Dostum made bombing raids over Kabul. His soldiers also battled the Taliban Islamic army on a second front in western Afghanistan.

The Taliban forces retaliated with a bomb attack to the north on Jebul Siraj, the headquarters of deposed military chief Ahmed Shah Massood who has allied with

Olympic bombing suspect cleared

ATLANTA - Now cleared of suspicion as an Olympic terrorist, said Roy Black, the defense attorney who represented William Kennedy Smith in his rape trial. "But, to be honest, this is one of those times that there is a wrong with no real remedy.'

The security guard's life turned upside down when his name was leaked as a suspect in the July 27 bomb blast at Centennial Olympic Park that killed one person and injured more than 100.

Though he never was charged with a crime, Jewell became a virtual prisoner as federal agents and reporters staked out the apartment he shares with his mother.

A letter Saturday from federal prosecutors clearing Jewell of suspicion helps only so much, his attorneys said.

There will always be people out there who believe Richard is the bomber," said Wayne Grant, one of several attorneys representing Jewell. "There will always be people who stare. There will always be whispers of recognition.'

That controversy will make it difficult for Jewell to return to law enforcement, as he wants to do,

His attorneys have threatened to sue news organizations and reporters who they believe tried to make Jewell fit a profile of a bomber as possibly a former police officer, military man or aspiring policeman seeking to become a

Joseph DiGenova, a former U.S. attorney who now works as a criminal defense lawyer in Washington, said both Jewell's lawyers and federal officials should focus now on finding who was responsible for leaking Jewell's name. "It is absolutely essential that

D'Amato, Swiss officials squabble over WWII bank accounts

Clare Nullis

Associated Press

GENEVA - The war of words between Switzerland and a U.S. senator sharpened Sunday, with Alfonse D'Amato saying the government was providing "half-truths and distortions," and a Swiss official calling the accusations "insulting and utterly unacceptable."

D'Amato, a New York Republican, has accused Switzerland of dragging its feet in tracing funds that belonged to Jewish victims of the Nazi gas chambers.

"I completely reject his charges," Swiss Foreign Minister Flavio Cotti told the SonntagsZeitung news-paper in comments published Sun-

"What they are doing is adding to this gruesome chapter by today failing to act responsibly. I think theirs is at least as great a sin and misdeed as those who initially brought it about."

Criticism of Swiss dealings with the Nazis during World War II has mounted in recent months as investigators — inside and outside the country — try to find out what happened to Holocaust victims' Swiss bank accounts.

asked Tuesday's meeting be open to the public. The board voted 3-2, with Sharry Lenhart, Lorraine Stamus and Bob Crane voting to terminate Dameron, and Cam Campbell and Anita Sehr voting against the motion.

"It would be a fair summary to say the board regards your leadership and communication skills as not satisfactory," Campbell, the board's chairperson, said in the cover letter of the complaints. Specific complaints include charges that Dameron doesn't satisfactorily prepare and present long-range public health programming for the board's consideration, doesn't work harmoniously with subordinates, peers and the general public, is not dependable, doesn't satisfactorily select, employ and discharge staff, and shows too little initiative.

Dameron declined comment on the charges until Tuesday's meeting, and Campbell said the board would not comment on the termi-Zimmermann said Tuesday's meeting will be a chance for Dameron to publicly defend himself and to open the possibility one of the board members will change their vote against him.

"We are hoping that one of the three board members will consider the evidence put on and objectively determine that, really, termination is not the proper remedy for the grounds laid out," he said. "We just want a chance to straighten this

Nancy Lynch, who teaches UI courses on environmental health and has attended board meetings for a year as a member of the League of Women Voters, said the the majority of the board. decision to fire Dameron was based on personal reasons rather than his performance.

"The quality of his work and his performance should be the basis he is judged on, and Graham has performed adequately in those areas, if not better," she said. "The board has been openly hostile to Graham and the staff ever since I've been going to the meetings, and to hear the way they talk about the people on staff is appalling."

Lynch said Dameron and members of his staff are more committed to environmental projects than he said.

"They started a program to educate people about how to better take care of their septic tanks, and some board members don't want them getting into areas that have to do with environmental issues at all," Lynch said. "I don't know why they wouldn't."

Zimmermann said he and Dameron will appeal the decision if the board does not overturn its previous decision on Tuesday.

Iowa, on the other hand, is going to need some help to reach the bowl game. The Hawkeyes now have one loss in the conference. Even if Iowa wins the rest of its games, the Buckeyes would have to lose twice before the Hawkeyes would go to Pasadena.

Wetteland earns MVP after four Series saves

Ronald Blum

Associated Press

NEW YORK - John Wetteland's presence was short. His influence was huge.

And for that, on this night that the Yankees made it back to the top, he became only the third relief pitcher ever to be voted Most Valuable Player of the World

He already had saved all three of his team's wins. And now, he was about to become the first pitcher to get four saves in a Series, about to throw the pitch that would bring the Yankees the title and send the 56,375 fans in Yankee Stadium into choruses of "New York, New York" that hadn't been sung this loudly in 18 years.

It didn't come easy. After three hits and two outs, there were Braves on first and second, the count was full, the runners were moving on the pitch.

"It seemed like every pitch I was digging a new hole," Wetteland said. "It was definitely filled with anxiety." There was no margin for error: A

And suddenly there was this explosion, horses streaming onto the field through gates in the outfield fence, Yankees running out of the dugout to mob Wetteland on the mound.

"It was absolute elation, mayhem," Wetteland said. "It was a tremendous feeling. All of a sudden that went to tremendous pain in my ankle. I was screaming for someone to get off - actually 10 to get off. I thought my ankle was going to break, I honestly did. It was scary."

Certainly a lot of casual fans found themselves pulling for the Yankees, mostly because of Torre. He'd lost his brother, Rocco, to a

The Yankees showed their strengths and exploited some of Atlanta's weaknesses. They also stayed even with the Braves' great starters as David Cone beat Tom Glavine, Pettitte decisioned John Smoltz and Jimmy Key downed Greg Maddux over the final three games.

Boggs, with a bad back, was among several players Torre had on the bench at one time or another. O'Neill, slowed by a sore hamstring, wound up making a saving catch for the last out in a 1-0 win in Game 5, while Darryl Strawberry, Tino Martinez and Luis Sojo also made contributions.

Braves pinch-hitters, meanwhile, went 0-for-22 in October, putting them in a postseason record slump of 0-for-24 going back to last year's World Series win over Cleveland.

Then again, the Braves had more than the Yankees hitters, pitchers and fielders to contend with. There was the Torre story, too.

Iowa needed a little luck if it was going to beat Ohio State on Satur-

Unfortunately, the only luck the Hawkeves seemed to get was bad luck. Especially on defense.

"We contained their offense,' linebacker Matt Hughes said. "We just had a lot of bad luck today. Bad field position and bad breaks, which happens, but you've just got to take it and go with it."

Midway through the third quarter, Iowa trailed 38-6, a score which unfairly gave the impression Hawkeye's defense was playing Actually, it was the defense that gave the Hawkeyes a chance to make things interesting late in the game. Time and time again, the Iowa defense had its back to the wall, as the Buckeyes took advantage of seven Iowa turnovers to give them great field position.

The Buckeyes started five of their six scoring drives on or inside the Iowa 35.

"I think we would have won the ballgame had we not given them all that field position," Fry said.

With its first drive starting on its own 20-yard line, Ohio State went backward. With the Buckeyes second drive, the Iowa defense forced Ohio State to punt.

Two possessions, no points and only one first down. The Hawkeye defense was making a statement early, but that was one of the few times the Buckeyes were without great field position.

Soon after, bad luck set in for the Halfway through the opening quarter, with Ohio State looking to defense came up with the big play it needed.

Bill Ennis-Inge stripped the ball away from Ohio State tailback Joe Montgomery and the Hawkeyes recovered. While one official ruled it a fumble, which the replays appeared to show true, Montgomery was ruled down by another official and the Buckeyes retained

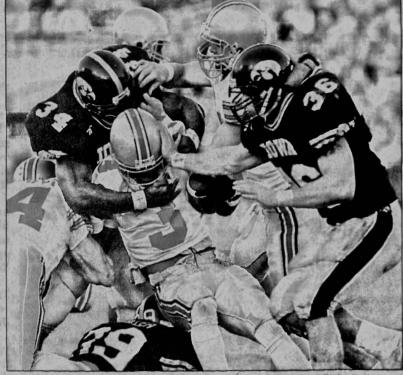

"It's kind of hard to describe because we pulled the ball out when he was still standing on his feet," Ennis-Inge said. "Then when the ball hit the ground, that's when starting again on the 20 on their I heard the whistle and I thought we had the ball because the ball was between my legs.

"It's kind of hard for him to have been down because he was on two other guys, but sometimes that's how the ball bounces.

It seemed that the ball was bouncing in favor of the Buckeyes all afternoon. But it wasn't just Ohio State causing the Iowa errors. Four interceptions, a blocked punt and a failure to catch take advantage of a Matt Sherman the ball on a lofty Ohio State kickinterception, it appeared the Iowa off combined to give the Buckeyes such great field position.

"I don't think Ohio State had anything to do with our blocked punt. That was our fault for not blocking them," Hughes said. "And they didn't create that turnover on the kickoff.

"Bad breaks happen. We just had more of them today. In the past we've done pretty well, today we

Injury helps Fry's QB decision

Chris Snider

The Daily Iowan If Matt Sherman had been forced to leave the game Saturday, Fry would have looked to either walkon Kory Hauser or freshman Randy Reiners to step in.

Back-up quarterback Ryan Driscoll had a shoulder injury and couldn't throw very hard, Fry said. In fact, Fry had Driscoll warm-up in the hallway of the lockeroom, so Ohio State wouldn't see that Iowa was hurting at the quarterback position.

'You could see he didn't have the velocity on the ball," Fry said. "They were just like dying quails."

Had Driscoll been healthy, Fry said he may have considered taking Sherman, who threw three firsthalf interceptions, out of the game.

"There was a time where I would have talked to him. That's for sure," Fry said. "He didn't have a good first half, but I just couldn't see putting Randy Reiners in there with no experience.

Reiners threw for 62 yards in Iowa's 1996 spring game on six of 14 accuracy, but has not played in a game this season.

Nick Gallery's 73-yard punt against the wind in the third quarter was the second longest of his career. His long is a 75-yarder against Ohio State last year.

Fry was less than pleased with the job of the officials on Saturday. On one play, Iowa had an apparent fumble recovery, but the play was ruled dead.

"The official on our sideline calls the fumble when we stripped the ball and the referee overrules it and gives it back to them," Fry said.

Then, after a penalty late in the first half, Iowa thought the clock was dead and there would be time for one more play, but the clock started and time expired before the snap.

"I can't tell you how many times they told us something and then they changed their minds," Fry said. The Iowa coach also felt the officials missed an obvious offsides call in the game. "One time, their big tackle jumps and they didn't throw their flag,"

Fry said. "I asked the official if he had a flag and he said, 'Yes.' I said, 'Did you see the guy jump?' He Ohio State No. 1 said, 'He just twitched.' I said, 'Do Fry who has be you have a twitch flag?" Fry wasn't the only one upset with the officiating. The Iowa fans were

Hawks struggle, look to second half

James Kramer The Daily Iowan

The first half of the Big Ten season did not go as well as the Iowa volleyball team would have liked. Now the team wants to concentrate on what's ahead.

Iowa dropped a pair of conference matches on the road this weekend, to Penn State Friday and Ohio State Saturday. The Nittany Lions had no problems disposing of the Hawkeyes in three games, 15-4, 15-2, 15-5. Iowa's match against the Buckeyes was much closer, as

49ers lose Young, squeak out victory

Associated Press

The San Francisco 49ers lost Steve Young once more, and won again. The Green Bay Packers lost another receiver, and won again, while Jimmy Johnson and the Miami Dolphins got hammered in his first reunion with the Dallas Cowboys.

Young got a concussion on the third play of the game and was replaced by Jeff Brohm, who completed a 20-yard touchdown pass to Terrell Owens with 4:27 left Sunday as the 49ers rallied for a 10-9 victory at Houston.

The Packers, who lost top receivers Sterling Sharpe for all of last year and Robert Brooks for the rest of this season, had to rely on their ground game in a 13-7 victory over Tampa Bay after Antonio Freeman broke his left forearm in the first quarter, an injury that will sideline him 4-6 weeks.

Dallas (5-3) scored 20 straight points in the second half to beat Miami 29-10 after trailing 10-9 at halftime. The Troy Aikman-to-Michael Irvin combination clicked 12 times for 186 yards, and Aikman was 33-of-41 for 363 yards and three TDs.

Johnson, who coached Dallas to two Super Bowl victories before being fired by Jerry Jones, was terse after the game, saying of the Cowboys, "obviously they are a very talented team. They were the better team.

Defensive end Chris Doleman was outstanding in the fourth quarter for the 49ers, with a thirddown sack and an interception on the Oilers' final offensive play.

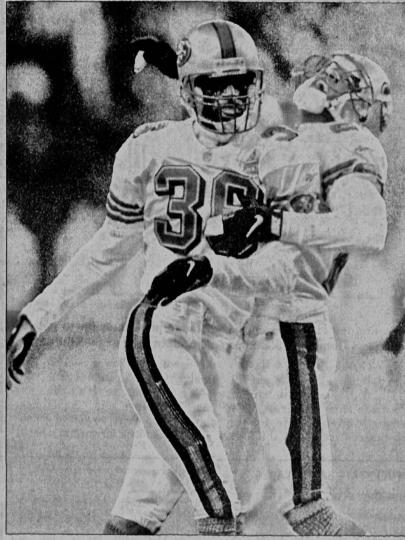

Al Del Greco's field goals of 38, 56 and 39 yards had the Oilers (5-3) leading 9-3 until Brohm finally got the 49ers (6-2) going with a 49yard completion to running back Terry Kirby, setting up the goahead score. Brohm connected with Owens on a third-and-7 from the

"This is why they're a championship team," Brohm said. "No matter who is in there, we can pull it out. I probably haven't been this exhausted in my whole career."

Last week, Young came off the bench despite a painful groin injury, and San Francisco scored Cincinnati in the final minutes after the 49ers trailed 21-0.

John Elway threw for 286 yards and three touchdowns, two to Shannon Sharpe, as Denver (7-1) took command of the AFC West against division rival Kansas City

The Chiefs' lone score came on Tamarick Vanover's 97-yard kickoff return in the first quarter. Jets 31, Cardinals 21

Adrian Murrell rushed for 191 yards, including a 79-yarder to the 2 that set up the clinching touch-down as New York won for the first time in nine tries this season.

The Jets, who had lost 12 straight overall, also got a strong game from rookie Keyshawn Johnson, who had seven catches, including a 34-yard scoring reception. Arizona fell to 3-5. Eagles 20, Panthers 9

Ty Detmer passed for a career-high 342 yards and a touchdown, while Irving Fryar, who caught eight passes for 116 yards and four touchdowns last week, caught seven passes for 143 yards for Philadelphia (6-2).

Ricky Watters, averaging 107 rushing yards, was limited to 33 by Carolina (5-3), but he did score the Eagles' other touchdown on a 3-yard run. Redskins 31, Colts 16

Terry Allen rushed for 124 yards and had his second consecutive three-touchdown game, while Brian Mitchell returned a punt 71 yards for Washington (7-1), extending its winning streak to seven.

Indianapolis (5-3), which has loss three of four after a 4-0 start, had 185 yards and 13 points at halftime, but only 113 yards and a field goal in the second half.

Ravens 37, Rams 31

Vinny Testaverde threw a 22yard touchdown pass to Michael Jackson with 10 seconds left in overtime as Baltimore avoided the first NFL tie in seven years.

The Ravens (3-5) won despite committing four turnovers and missing two field goals and a conversion. The Rams (2-6) also had four turnovers, blew a 14-point lead in the second half and botched a field-goal try in overtime. Giants 35, Lions 7

New York snapped Detroit's 10game home winning streak by forcing six turnovers.

The Giants secondary picked off five passes and helped hold Barry Sanders of Detroit (4-4) to 47 yards on 16 carries. The Giants (3-5) also recovered one fumble and blocked a punt for a safety.

For the second straight week, Atlanta came close to knocking off one of the best teams in the NFL, only to fall short in the fourth quarter.

Norm Johnson kicked a 20-yard field as time ran out, giving Pittsburgh (6-2) the victory and sending the winless Falcons to their eighth straight loss.

Bengals 28, Jaguars 21 Jeff Blake threw a touchdown pass and Ki-Jana Carter ran for two scores in Bruce Coslet's coaching debut for Cincinnati. The Bengals (2-6) broke their season-long pattern of folding at the end, scoring 21 fourth-quarter points to get Coslet a win in his first game since replacing Dave Shula.

Jacksonville (3-6) tied its franchise record with five sacks of Jeff Blake.

Seahawks 32, Chargers 13

Seattle, which had eight takeaways in the first seven games, intercepted four passes from Sean Salisbury and recovered a fumble. The five turnovers resulted in 23 points for the Seahawks (3-5), who won for the first time in four home games.

San Diego (4-4) couldn't overcome playing without injured stars Junior Seau and Stan Humphries. Patriots 28, Bills 25 New England beat the Buffalo Bills at their own game - a very close one - and made the AFC East race extremely tight.

Just when it seemed the Bills were headed for their fifth threepoint victory of the season, the Patriots scored two touchdowns in the last 1:25 for a 28-25 win Sun-

Aged quarterbacks lead Vikes, Bears

MINNEAPOLIS - In the movies, Walter Matthau and Jack Lemmon portray two crotchety old friends playing an ageless game of top-this in their small Minnesota town.

On Monday night, Warren Moon and Dave Krieg will perform the NFL's version of "Grumpy Old Men." Three weeks short of his 40th birthday, Moon is the NFL's oldest quarterback. Krieg isn't far behind, celebrating his 38th birthday on The geezers will try once again to outdo each other when the Chicago Bears visit the Minnesota Vikings, the fourth time in the last five years the quarterbacks have

"He's the kind of guy who takes care of himself (physically), that's why he's still around," Moon said.
"The same with me. Hopefully we'll both be able to play a whole game."

Moon and Krieg aren't grumpy, but they are friends and old men by NFL standards.

Moon has beaten Krieg twice in the last four years, in 1992 when Moon's Oilers beat Krieg's Chiefs and last year. Krieg beat Moon in '94 when the Vikings lost at Detroit, although Moon played less than three quarters because of a knee injury.

The two also are linked by their inability to hang onto the football. Krieg's 147 fumbles are the most in NFL history, just ahead of Moon's

"There's a lot of luck involved," Krieg said of his longevity. "I don't know how I've been able to last as long as I have. Same thing with Warren. I think we've taken good care of ourselves."

Moon has drawn more attention than Krieg for his age and his continued productivity. With 63,610 career passing yards in six CFL and 12 1/2 NFL seasons, Moon has passed for more yards than any professional quarterback.

CHICAGO - Nine coaches in the Big Ten favor a conference basketball tournament but it's a decision for school presidents when they meet in December.

Indiana's Bob Knight and Minnesota's Clem Haskins came out against the conference tournament Sunday when Big Ten coaches held their annual preseason meeting with reporters.

The Big Ten, Pac-10 and Ivy League are the only major conferences without a postseason tourna-

"To me a conference tournament detracts from the conference season," said Knight. "You're not going to get any more teams in the NCAA tournament if we play three conference tournaments.

"I don't want to take my team somewhere for four or five days and play three or four games if we stay in that long and then turn around and play in the NCAA tournament.'

Those in favor of a conference tournament cite increased exposure that would help recruiting, an atmosphere that could serve as a warmup for the NCAA tournament and a revenue boost that Big Ten Commissioner Jim Delany estimated at $250,000-$500,000 per school

Big Ten schools would, however, probably drop a game from their schedule if there is a four-day conference tournament, meaning they could lose a home gate that Knight estimated at between $250,000 and

Other concerns are that it would cost players too much time away from the classroom. The league would probably also adopt a 16- four-day tournament, would have the current 18-game conference schedule

"I don't know what the benefits of it are. If I could see some benefits to it then I could change my opinion," Knight said.

Haskins said he's not in favor of a conference tournament unless players were rewarded for it with either a stipend or a perk like having their parents flown in for the

"We're using college players to our advantage. We need to put something back in. We've got to stop prostituting the kids," he

Michigan coach Steve Fisher, once an opponent, has changed his mind, adding that his players would favor the tournament and its environment. Purdue coach Gene Keady also changed his vote and is in changed my philosophy towards that because I really don't care," said Keady, whose teams have won three straight conference titles. "If I win the (regular-season) league I don't want it. If I'm on the bottom half, I would want Delany said the tournament if approved - would not be a panacea for the Big Ten's dismal showing the last two years in the NCAA tournament where its teams have compiled a 3-11 record.

He said the presidents will study the financial, competitive and academic impacts of a tournament and if they give the OK, it could begin as early as 1998. Details of the format, which would probably include all 11 teams in a game league schedule to replace to be worked out. Potential tournament sites are Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Minneapolis or Indianapolis.

New York Yankee third baseman Wade Boggs rides a police horse around the field after the Yankees defeated the Atlanta Braves 3-2 in Game 6 to win the World Series at Yankee Stadium in New York, Saturday.

It was the first World Series victory of Boggs' illustrious career.

FAMILIAR SCENARIO

Atlanta settles for second

Paul Newberry Associated Press

NEW YORK - It's a scene that's become all too familiar for the Atlanta Braves.

Once again, they were sitting in a somber clubhouse after losing the final game of the season. Once again, they were trying to figure out why they fell just a little short of a World Series championship. Once again, they had missed a chance to ensure their legacy as one of the best teams in baseball history

Division titles and league championships are nice, but there's only one true measure of a team's greatness. For all their victories during the 1990s, the Braves have managed to win just one World Series.

"I still think this is a good ballclub," Fred McGriff said, trying to cope with Atlanta's third Series loss since 1991. "There's a lot of talent in here. We just came up a little short this time.

"And," he added quietly, "all the other

The Braves have captured five straight division titles (not counting the 1994 strike season) and four National League pennants. The only World Series championship, however, came last year, a six-game victory over the Cleveland Indians.

"It's very hard to get here, period," said Greg Maddux, who took the loss Saturday night when the Yankees wrapped up the Series with a 3-2 victory in Game 6. "What has it been, five of the last six years? That's an amazing accomplishment. We just got outplayed this week."

The Yankees, with their deep bench and outstanding middle relief, exposed those same two areas as major weaknesses for the Braves.

must contribute.

Greg McMichael gave up three runs without getting an out in the eighth inning of Game 3, allowing the Yankees to break open a close game. Steve Avery walked in the winning run in Game 4. The pinch-hitters were hitless in 22 postseason at-bats. Ryan Klesko (.100) and Terry Pendelton (.222) gave the Braves hardly any production at designated hitter.

Overall, the Atlanta hitters demonstrated a maddening inability to execute the more subtle skills, like driving in runners from third with less than two outs. That's why the Braves lost even though their pitchers had a 2.33 ERA and the Yankees hit only .216 as a

Trailing 1-0 in Game 5, the Braves got a runner to third with one out in the ninth, but Javy Lopez grounded out when a fly ball would have tied the game. Saturday night, Pendleton hit into a double play on a 3-1 count with the bases loaded - after Yankees starter Jimmy Key had just walked in a run.

"We had a couple of chances to score some runs with guys on third base and less than two outs, and we didn't get the job done," said Marquis Grissom, the Braves leading hitter in the Series (.444). "That was the difference."

Does another World Series loss overshadow the Braves' many accomplishments in the

'No, except maybe in the minds of the addle-brained," general manager John Schuerholz said. "Reasonable thinking people wouldn't assume that. They would see this as an organization that has had great ongoing success. True, there's been some disappointments. But we're not diminished by those disappointments."

If there was a silver lining in defeat, it was During the regular season, it's easy to get the development of rookie outfielders Andruw by with a great starting rotation and an Jones and Jermaine Dye. The 19-year-old offense that relies on a few sluggers. In the Jones, especially, looked like a future star playoffs, though, the entire 25-man roster after hitting .400 with two homers and six

High School High' hits new low

A standard was set long ago in the craft of the spoof film by such classics as "Airplane" and "The Naked Gun." The effortless greatness of those movies has made it tough for any of the multitude of imitations that have come out recently to measure up.

Never has that been more true than for the mostly inept, unfunny "High School High."

Tackling a genre sorely in need of being parodied, the classroom drama, "High School High" has a few things going for it from the beginning. It is co-written by one of the dangerous minds responsible for "Airplane," David Zucker, and the first few scenes have some terrific "High School High," starring Jon Lovitz, is currently playing at Cinemas I & II, Sycamore Mall.

But some tough discoveries are made quickly. The most glaring is for Lovitz. nerves after a while, especially when he's not given anything funny to say. He was great on "Saturday Night Live," but this movie plays like one of those "SNL" skits that goes on just way, way too long.

The plot, such as it is, revolves around Lovitz, a privileged suburbanite, following his idealistic goals and going to teach in the inner city at Marion Barry High. The differences between the two societies are milked for all the laughs they can produce and some familiar mayhem and sexual innuendoes abound. Tia Carrere ("Wayne's World") is around, though it's difficult to see why. She spends most of her time being bonked in the head and being ogled over by the male members of the cast. She does, however, contribute the most hilarious element in "High School High," the idea she would ever have an insatiable lust that Jon Lovitz ("City Slickers II") After appearing in Pauly Shore's cannot carry a movie. He is a sketch disastrous "Jury Duty," one is left to ctor who begins to grate on the wonder if Carrere has wronged somebody in Hollywood to keep getting cast in these dumb roles.

The strongest suit the movie has going for it is a talented cast of supporting characters. Mekhi Phifer, who made a stunning debut last vear in Spike Lee's "Clockers," turns in the film's best performance as the students' ringleader. Louise Fletcher ("One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest") portrays the film's baddie, the school principal. Both are very funny and each scene they're in make things a bit more watchable.

One must be careful not to overanalyze "High School High," which is admittedly meant to be nothing but brain candy, but it's just not funny. There are a few laughs here and there, though nothing to justify what turns out to be an extremely long 90-minute running time.

'Sleepers' tops box office for second straight week

LOS ANGELES (AP) -"Sleepers," the revenge drama starring Brad Pitt, Dustin Hoffman and Robert De Niro, was No. 1 at the box office for a second straight week, industry sources said Sunday.

The Jon Lovitz comedy "High School High," a parody on life inside a tough city school, debuted in second place with a $7 million take, followed by the horror thriller "Thinner."

Another debut, Whoopi Goldberg's business comedy "The Associate" was among three films tied for fourth place with $4.4 million. The others were the Michael Douglas-Val Kilmer lion adventure "The Ghost and the Darkness" and the Goldie Hawn-Bette Midler-Diane Keaton comedy "First Wives Club." Final figures are released today. The top 10 films:

- "Sleepers," $9.7 million. 2. "High School High," $7 mil-
- "Thinner," $5.8 million. "The Associate," $4.4 million
- "The First Wives Club," $4.4
- million (tie). "The Ghost and the Darkness," $4.4 million (tie).
- 7. "The Long Kiss Goodnight," $4.1 million. 8. "Michael Collins," $2.5 mil-
- 9. "That Thing You Do," $2.1
- 10. "D3: The Mighty Ducks," $1.8 million.

'Annie' celebrates 20 years

Michael Kuchwara Associated Press

EAST HADDAM, Conn. - After 20 years of "Tomorrow," "Annie" is still very much a part of today.

The musical that unleashed composer Charles Strouse's ubiquitous anthem of optimism - not to mention the show-biz aspirations of thousands of little girls - has found its way back to the Goodspeed Opera House, which is where it all began in 1976.

Broadway saw "Annie" the following year, but it was Goodspeed that gave birth to the show - and still gets royalties from subsequent productions. What better way to end the theater's 1996 season than to present a revival of its bestknown cash cow, and under the supervision of its original director and lyricist, Martin Charnin.

By now, Charnin is an old hand at directing productions of "Annie." In fact, he also is overseeing a major touring company, starring Nell Carter, which begins Nov. 29 in Houston. A Broadway engagement is expected next spring.

Don't go to Goodspeed expecting a revisionist or post-modern "Annie." Charnin hasn't tampered with the musical a bit, although the Goodspeed production, done in charming comic-strip designs, is snugly tailored to the theater's tiny stage.

With familiarity as the key, "Annie" then rises or falls on the little girl playing the title character. Goodspeed has been fortunate in finding a charming, yet not precocious eighth-grader named Cassandra Kubinski to play the world's most famous orphan.

Clear and loud, she can belt with the best of them, hitting the high Opera House through Dec. 22.

notes in "Tomorrow" with relative ease. If her emoting is a little stiff, the girl displays a spunk that is appealing. And she looks great in a red dress and curly, red-haired wig.

"Annie" is not a classic musical, but it is an entertaining one. Its plot, concocted by Thomas Meehan, has a rudimentary, Depression-era story about little Annie trying to find her real parents, getting invited to spend Christmas at the home of billionaire Oliver Warbucks and getting to meet President Franklin D. Roosevelt, inspiring him to create the New Deal.

Yet it gets its laughs, particularly when Miss Hannigan, the boozy matron of the New York Municipal Orphanage (Girls' Annex), is on stage. Alene Robertson has the enthusiasm and the voice for the role, particularly when she and her cohorts in orphan-napping, Rooster and Lily St. Regis, strut their way through "Easy Street." By then Meehan's story has got the audience in its clutches.

The collection of orphans is distinctive. By the time the musical reaches its final curtain, theatergoers will be able to tell them apart, particularly a sturdy little trouper named Kaitlyn Ashley.

The bald-pated Daddy Warbucks is boomed out by Ron Holgate, a jovial baritone who is lovable and crusty at the same time. For a Republican, he is fun, particularly when he is jousting with Roosevelt, nicely impersonated by Ron Wisniski.

It's Annie, of course, who gives the Roosevelt Cabinet the courage to face "Tomorrow" and even join her in a chorus of that persistent
