WASHINGTON - An Air Force plane went down in a Saudi Arabian desert Tuesday, creating panic among residents of a remote village.

The crash was the third this year in the Persian Gulf region.

The official said that the plane was a C-17 military transport and that the crew consisted of two officers and four enlisted men.

The official could not confirm reports that the crew was killed.

The plane was carrying a cargo of goods for the United Nations.

Students struggle to control spending

Eric Nunez

The Daily Iowan

Through part-time jobs, music, financial aid or a combination of all three, UI students are trying to stretch their money wisely.

The administration has been warned that student housing will suffer if a $2.5 million renovation project is approved.

Fry, a sophomore from Kinshasa, Zaire, has been living on a diet of rice and beans for the last six months in order to make ends meet.

If the students like to control their spending, they have to be smart about how they use their money.

Reports of gang activity at the Baltimore Police Department have come to the fore.

A high-ranking police official confirmed that the department has been investigating the reports.

The official said that the investigation is continuing and that the results will be released in the near future.

The official declined to comment on the specific allegations.

Shaw family turns to federal investigators

Mike Wallace

The Daily Iowan

The family of the Saudi Arabian pilot who was killed in a plane crash in Saudi Arabia last week is seeking federal involvement.

The family has hired a lawyer to represent them and has filed a lawsuit against the Saudi government.

The lawsuit alleges that the Saudi government was negligent in the crash and that it failed to take proper safety precautions.

The family's attorney said that the lawsuit is not a political statement and that it is simply a way to seek justice for the family.

The Saudi government has not yet responded to the lawsuit.

It's about time to cut classes

I was standing in City News, flipping through Sunday comic sections when I came upon a resolution, a victory — not in a courtroom, but in the local school district. So, about five minutes and two pop Tarts later...

High school teachers have had it. They are sick of the endless stream of students who need a form signed in triplicate just to get into class. They are sick of the teachers in one class are talking with the students and the teachers in the next are reading straight from the textbook. T he National Collegiate Athletic Association has finally made a decision. Freshmen football players will not be eligible to play in the Rose Bowl.

The decision was made by the NCAA, which oversees college sports. It is the first time in the history of the tournament that a freshman will be ineligible to play.

The ruling comes after a series of reviews by the NCAA on the eligibility of freshmen players. In recent years, the NCAA has been under pressure to make changes in its rules regarding the eligibility of freshmen players.

The new policy is expected to have a significant impact on college football. It will affect not only the Rose Bowl, but also other games involving teams that have freshmen players.

The NCAA has stated that the policy is intended to give college players more opportunities to compete at a high level. It also aims to ensure that players who are not yet ready to compete at a high level are not prevented from doing so.

The decision has been met with mixed reactions. Some have praised the move, while others have criticized it.

"It's a step in the right direction," said one football coach. "It will give our players more opportunities to compete and show their skills."

"I think it's a mistake," said another coach. "It will hurt our team's chances of winning games and title."

The NCAA is expected to release more information on the new policy in the coming weeks. It is also expected to review the policy in the future to ensure that it is meeting its goals.

The new policy will likely have a significant impact on the college football landscape. It will be interesting to see how it affects the sport in the coming years.
Even in the shadow of rape, life is not to be feared

In response to the recent tragedy in Iowa City, where a college student was murdered, Susan Gildersleeve expresses her thoughts on the issue of rape and the impact it has on victims and their families. She discusses the need for awareness and education on the subject, as well as the importance of supporting those affected by such crimes.

Susan Gildersleeve

It is with heavy heart that I write these words. The recent events in Iowa City have brought to light the very real and devastating impact of rape on individuals, families, and communities. As a survivor and advocate, I understand firsthand the pain and trauma that such an experience can bring.

Rape is not just a physical act; it is a violation of trust and a violation of the mind. It leaves scars that can last a lifetime. For many survivors, the memories of what happened can be replayed over and over again, making it difficult to move forward.

The curfew was running me. I wasn't a free person. I remembered that I was protected by the law when I went to the United States to look for my father, who was working in the United States. I knew that I would be safe. I knew that the authorities would help me. I knew that I would be able to speak freely. I knew that I would be able to live my life in peace and tranquility.

But political realities have a way of changing things. The curfew was running me. I wasn't a free person. I remembered that I was protected by the law when I went to the United States to look for my father, who was working in the United States. I knew that I would be safe. I knew that the authorities would help me. I knew that I would be able to speak freely. I knew that I would be able to live my life in peace and tranquility.

I am aware of the challenges that lie ahead, but I am also grateful for the support and encouragement I have received. I know that I am not alone in this fight, and I am committed to doing my part to make the world a safer place for all.

I.C. may soon have indoor ice rink

Bronn Boyar

The Daily Iowan

I.C. may soon have indoor ice rink next year.

Instead of tripping over patches of ice, residents of Iowa City may soon have indoor ice rinks to skate on. Deputy City Administrator Shandor Bannister said the city is in the planning stages of a new rink.

"It is possible," Bannister said. "We are looking into the possibility of having an indoor rink in the future."

Bannister said the city is considering several options for an indoor rink, including partnering with a private entity or building a public rink. He added that the city will be looking for a site to build the rink on.

The proposed rink would be similar to the one at the Coralville Mall, which opened in 2001. It would provide year-round skating for residents of Iowa City and the surrounding area.

"We're looking at all the options," Bannister said. "We want to make sure we have a rink that will meet the needs of our residents."
Thalidomide may be used to fight diseases

Karen Sreta
Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Thalidomide, which became the world's most notorious sleeping pill, could become a new weapon in the arsenal against disease, according to Dr. David Schimmer, an oncologist at the National Cancer Institute.

"The drug was developed as a sedative in the 1950s, but later it was found to be of benefit to patients with leprosy, multiple myeloma and even AIDS," Schimmer said.

Schimmer and others are working to obtain FDA approval for the drug, which has been used in Europe for several years.

The drug is believed to stimulate the immune system, which could be beneficial in fighting certain diseases.

The FDA is expected to decide whether to approve the drug in early 1997.

The drug was banned in the United States because it caused birth defects in babies of mothers who took it during pregnancy.

President Clinton has said he supports the use of thalidomide to treat diseases.

Toxicology that is its manufacturer had hoped.

Some scientists, however, believe that thalidomide may be useful in treating diseases such as cancer and AIDS.

"We're excited about the potential of thalidomide in treating certain diseases," said Dr. Robert E. Calne, chairman of immunology at Harvard Medical School.

The FDA has approved thalidomide for use in treating leprosy, multiple myeloma and a rare form of cancer called Castleman's disease.

But the drug has been found to cause birth defects in humans.

"The question is whether we can use thalidomide to treat diseases without causing birth defects," Schimmer said.

The drug has not been approved for use in the United States because of the risk of birth defects.

The FDA is currently reviewing the drug to determine if it is safe for use in humans.

"We're very cautious about the use of thalidomide," Schimmer said.

The drug is currently being studied in Europe and other countries, and some patients have already been treated with it.

"We're looking at ways to use thalidomide in the United States," Schimmer said.

A number of companies are working on ways to produce the drug in the United States.

"We're hoping to have thalidomide on the market in the next few years," Schimmer said.

The drug is not expected to be available in the United States for several years, however.

"We're working hard to get the drug approved," Schimmer said.

NRA seeks U.N. accreditation

Charles Haskell
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The National Rifle Association, on guard against new gun-control measures going global, is stepping up its efforts as an accreditational advocacy group to the U.N. for the first time, acting as if it were a foreign nation, where it has been running a campaign against a possible U.N. pact to ban assault weapons and to limit the trade worldwide.

"The NRA's opportunity went unexploited," Haskell reported in The Daily Iowan, the Iowa City campus paper. "That's what the U.N. inspection eventually may take meaning from. The General Assembly has not fulfilled its obligations with respect to curtailing the domestic and international trade in small arms. It's now a matter of doing what world governments would regard as an exercise in domestic and international terrorism and small arms. It's the mood of the world that would regard the examination by United Nations is better regulated by the market."

What does the U.N. inspection eventually may take meaning from? At the General Assembly conference, where it is estimated some 150 countries will be represented, the U.S. and the U.S. only will submit its blueprint of the 1975 assembly. Such recommendations would be submitted to the 1977 U.N. disarmament conference. Since the late 1960s, the U.S. and the U.S. alone has submitted and abandoned plans that would allow the U.N. to investigate its country's military. These plans are to be reviewed by the U.N. Committee of Experts on Small Arms and bajoled on their findings.

Pentagon plans to double funds for research of Gulf War illness

John Diamond
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Acknowledging that the defense department is "not prepared" to answer questions about the possible cause of Gulf War syndrome, the Pentagon's chief spokesperson for the conflict, the Defense Department, has confirmed the existence and extent of the Gulf War illness.

Deputy Secretary Secretary John R. Lehman Jr., in the Defense Department's efforts to explain the syndrome, introduced the results of a study by the government's five most significant military bases, the U.S. military, and the U.S. military, and the U.S. military, and the U.S. military, and the U.S. military, and the U.S. military, and the U.S. military.

The study, which the U.S. Defense Department started in 1991, began in the weeks after the Gulf War. It involved analysis of a study group of 1,800 veterans of the Gulf War, who had been selected because they had been exposed to chemical agents in the war, and had been screened for symptoms of Gulf War illness. 64 quake rocks Peru, at least 15 dead

Associated Press

LIMA, Peru — A powerful earthquake shook southern Peru on Saturday, killing 15 people, injuring as many and prompting authorities to evacuate buildings in Lima, according to the government.

Due to the remoteness of the area, there were no details as to the number of injured people. The government estimated there were at least four people missing.

"I would guess we would go through some hard times," Long noted, "but we're working hard to make sure that doesn't happen."

"We want to win the Conference and show that we're one of the best teams in the country," he added.

"I think we can do it," Long said confidently. "The key is to stay healthy and compete hard."

GOODEN

Bill Goodeen will be on the langs this year. In addition, the Iowa wrestling program has released an academic scholarship to encourage the Big Ten's best wrestlers. For Goodeen, this is the second year in a row.

"I'm excited about this opportunity," Goodeen said.

"It's a great chance to prove myself and show that I can compete at the highest level."

KRAMER

Minnesota’s Wacker resigns in midst of another losing year

Associated Press

Chuck Merton

The Daily Iowan

In the wake of last Saturday’s decisive loss to Wisconsin, coating the Golden Gophers’ season in 161-47, Minnesota head coach Jim Wacker announced his resignation Tuesday effective at the end of the year.

Last season, when Wacker signed a two-year contract extension, he did so with the hope that he would be coaching the team through the 1996 season. In Minnesota faced the reality of winning several years in the Big Ten, wines.

In the Gophers last four conference contests, they have been outscored by a combined score of 134-68. Frankly, Wacker was behind the administration on their decision to implement the “must win” aliments put in place at the beginning of the year.

Wacker claimed that the team’s performance before the Big Ten season, prior to the departure of Steve Mattingly, had been as good as it had been during the past four years. He was most vocal in his praise for the players and their work ethic.

The resignation of Wacker adds one more Big Ten who will not be back next year. Indiana first-year coach and former Husker head coach Tom O’Leary will announce his resignation a few days ago. Upper was fired Monday.

I feel bad for that, but have no sympathy for the players. This win isn’t good enough.

The resignation of Wacker adds one more Big Ten who will not be back next year. Indiana first-year coach and former Husker head coach Tom O’Leary will announce his resignation a few days ago. Upper was fired Monday.

What I can say, without hesitation, is that I gave this university and my players everything. But I guess sometimes your best isn’t good enough.

Resigned. He thanked the search for a successor will begin soon.

I want to, and we did everything thing to maintain the Wacker era because of his 161-47 record and because of what he had achieved in the classroom and elsewhere.

Winter flicks offer drama, romance

By: Christopher J. Schoneman

The December season brings a number of critical New Year films and establishes the theme of romance in this year’s Academy Awards.

The Course

The Tony Kushner critical success “Angels in America” and “Michael Collins,” all eyes are focused on the silver-screen adaptations of Arthur Miller’s “The Crucible” and the prompt Great Gatsby. Director Nicole Birney (“The Shadow of King George”) and director David Fincher (“Make an Americanqli!)” will be the winners of the Voice of the Father,” and a screenplay from Michael Collins,” popular holiday season, this film has the potential to win all seven Oscar categories.

Following is a list of 10 movies that have already been released that last batch of holiday classics.

1. Ghosts of Mississippi
   - The latest from director Rob Reiner (“The American President”) follows the 1983 assassination of civil rights activist Medgar Evers. Thirty years later, the uncut footage of James Woods in the film is reedited in this year’s Academy Awards. But will the film’s thrust change the film into a political battle against the forces of nature?

2. Michael Collins
   - The Irish Free State (Sylvester Stallone) takes a look at the life of a former guerrilla who becomes a do-gooder. Director Cameron Crowe (“Almost Famous”) is this year’s Academy Award for Best Picture. The film stars Woody Harrelson and Rupert Everett.

3. The People vs. Larry Flynt
   - This film stars Woody Harrelson (“Rustin’ Sonny”) in the true story of a pornographer who founded the infamous Hustler magazine. The film has strong political content as it is an anti-trust investigation into the Hustler empire. (Scheduled for release to Dec. 20)

4. Run and Read
   - The film version of Garrison Keillor’s book “Up North” (Harvard Press) is scheduled for release to Nov. 27.

5. Journey
   - In this attempt to depict the Vietnam War, director Peter Weir stars as a soldier and Vietnam veteran who becomes a do-gooder. Director Cameron Crowe (“Almost Famous”) is this year’s Academy Award for Best Director. The film stars Woody Harrelson and Rupert Everett.

6. Magazine
   - This film was originally released by New Line Cinema in 1994. The film stars Woody Harrelson and Rupert Everett.

7. Larry Sanders Show
   - HBO kicks off the fifth season of the show with a comedy special featuring guest appearances by Ellen DeGeneres, who’s rumored to be coming out as gay.

8. Ted

Mom’s the word on Prince’s child

CHICAGOLAND, Miss. (AP) — The star former known as Prince is happy to talk about his son, but won’t be opening these CDs tonight.

The singer, whose real name is Prince Rogers Nelson, changed his name to Prince in 1993.

"Our child has taught me that you can’t be a parent to someone who doesn’t want to be a parent," he said.

"We’re the best of friends, and it’s an interesting relationship." Prince and his wife, Mary, welcomed their son, Prince, in June.

People’s interests take a turn on the show

LOS ANGELES - Can Ellen DeGeneres, who’s rumored to be coming out as gay, take a turn on the show tonight?
