Mike Waller The Daily Iowan

Students who lack the transportation to get to the grocery store now can have the grocery store come to them.

On Monday, Hy-Vee began grocery delivery, the only grocery-delivery service among the large chains in Iowa City.

Al Dix, store manager for the new Hy-Vee, 1740 Waterfront Drive, said the new service has been successful in its early stages. It is an expanded service his store offered to a few people who were unable to shop for themselves.

"We did it for a few people who were shut-ins before," he said. "But now we've expanded our service so that anybody can call in and have their groceries delivered.

Dix said Hy-Vee hired one person to take grocery orders. That person receives the orders via phone and fax in an office in her home and then faxes the orders to the appropriate store. Groceries are delivered to the the next day.

The delivery comes with a $5 charge plus 10 percent of the total bill. Dix said these charges are to cover the store's costs for gathering and deliver-

Garofalo family files civil suit

14 months after the death of Matthew Garofalo, Lambda Chi Alpha and 3 of its members are being sued by his family

Kelley Chorley The Daily Iowan

"I'm not going to be callous. If (those being sued) did what we think they did, they will not be ruined as much as they have already ruined the Garofalos' lives. Just because they are young, they are not exonerated. The law provides the option to sue. And if the Garofalos did not sue, there would be an impression left that what they did was OK," Wise said.

Although the UI and Chad Diehl, a former member of the Lambda representing the Garofalos, said Chi fraternity who was found the family has been contemplating guilty of a simple misdemeanor charge of providing alcohol to persons under the legal age, are not being sued at this time, they are under investigation.

THE JOB SEARCH

The Daily Iowan

While many UI graduates face closed doors in their job searches, those with engineering and computer skills are finding a wideopen job market with numerous opportunities.

UI senior Kate Spedl, an industrial engineering major who will graduate in May, already has had eight interviews and two job offers.

"Right now I'm trying to decide if I want to go into manufacturing or consulting," she said. "I want to get into management and they're both good for that, but manufacturing is a faster track.

Cathy Colony Bunnell, a program associate in Engineering Career Services, said there are ample employment opportunities

Burger King grilled for use of Seminoles

Brendan Brown The Daily Iowan

The Burger King Corporation has come under scrutiny in the past month for creating college football commercials perceived as racially insensitive, this time towards Native Americans. In a nationwide television advertisement focusing on the Florida State University (FSU) Seminoles, Burger King incorporated the Seminole chant performed by fans during games, usually accompanied by the "tomahawk chop."

UI Associate Professor of American Indian and Native studies Laura Donaldson, who is Cherokee, said she was upset by the cultural representations conveyed in the latest commercial.

"My reaction was pretty negative," she said. "The issue is a broader one than just talking about a football team. In fact, they are perpetuating the stereotype of the Indian as a savage." In October, African-Americans objected to commercials they felt were degrading featuring Grambling coach Eddie Robinson.

Burger King Corporation spokesperson Kim Miller said Burger King has a commitment to all cultural groups. She said the Florida State Seminole advertisement, which recently ended its onair run, was intertwined with the traditions of FSU football.

"In all our college football commercials we try to capture the

Misinformation abound on the super highway

Laura Heinauer The Daily Iowan

While the Internet invades culture in the '90s as a powerful electronic medium, the road to the 21st century may be paved by the "mis-information" super highway.

UI Professor of English Brooks Landon said the Internet's rapidly sprawling growth leads to inaccurate, unchecked information.

He cited veteran newsman Pierre Salinger's recent humiliation stemming from a long-discredited piece of e-mail. Salinger went public on a bogus Internet source that said the U.S. Navy was responsible for the explosion of TWA flight 800 near Long Island, New York.
"Rumors and inaccuracies such as this are everywhere on the Web," Landon said. "If I want to publish a 50-page article on the Web, it doesn't cost much beyond the server space, and there are no limitations.

Landon said restrictions would be hard to set on the Internet because of it's unregulated nature.

"The problem is that there are no guidelines on the Net and a wonderful essay that turns up one day is not necessarily guaranteed to be on-line the next," he said.

Mark Palmberg, a research assistant in the Liberal Grants Office, said the Internet is a valuable tool that provides a virtual encyclopedia at the users finger-

"I use the Web everyday," Palmburg said. "It's fast, there's a lot of information and it's easy to use. Students can use the Internet on campus to find things they can't find anywhere else, and professors can use it to comment on homework and hand out assignments."

However, Palmberg said students have to learn how to tell the truth from make-believe.

"Students will have to use their common sense," Palmberg said. "They have to be cautious, just like they always have when they are citing a source. A capable student will be able to deal with it just like they always have."

Landon teaches a class focusing on Internet technology in the Information Age and its parallels throughout history. He said the

Falsely accused butler leaves fortune to charity

LOS ANGELES — The butler once accused of murdering tobacco heiress Doris Duke is leaving the fortune he inherited from her to her favorite charity. Bernard Lafferty's will, filed Wednesday, left an estimated $3.5 million to the Doris Duke Foundation, which benefits such pet causes of Duke's as the arts, medical research and the environ ment. Lafferty died Nov. 4 at 51.

A nurse once accused Lafferty of conspiring with Duke's doctor to kill the billionaire, but no evidence of foul play was found and no charges were filed.

"He's giving everything back basically to Duke. He always considered it her money and he's giving it the way she would have wanted," said Charlotte Hassett, Lafferty's lawyer.

Lafferty left nothing to his closest relatives - four aunts and a number of cousins.

Time to fix what affirmative action has done

n Nov. 5, voters in the state of California approved Proposition 209 by a wide margin. Also known as the California Civil Rights Initiative, 209 ends affirmative action policies in hiring practices and university admissions processes in that state. It's about time. Affirmative action is a failure and it is time to face up to it.

When affirmative action was first instituted in the 1970s, it was intended to be kind and compassionate. This policy would aggressively recruit qualified minorities to fill positions in universities and the workplace to atone for past discrimination. In reality, it has made the problem of racial injus-

A look at the admissions process at the University of California at Berkeley shows how damaging affirmative action has been. The policy at Berkeley established a preference system for the admissions process. Each racial group in society must be represented among the student body roughly equal to their proportion in the population. These preferences must be met regardless of academic qualifications. Thus, if a student does not have an adequate GPA and SAT scores to attend Berkeley, he or she can be admitted if the quota for their racial group has not been filled.

The first problem with this system is it discriminates against white and Asian students. Many white and Asian students who apply to Berkeley who have met the GPA and SAT requirements are turned away, even though they have better scores than many other minority students who are admitted. The reason is once the quota for white and Asian students are filled, no other white and Asian students can be admitted, regardless of their qualifications. This is doubly unfair in that few, if any, of these students who are denied admission have ever participated in discrimination against other minorities.

The affirmative action policy at hurts those it is supposed to help, namely African-American and Hispanic students. Due to poor socioeconomic circumstances, much of it caused by past discrimination, there are not David Hogberg enough qualified African-and Hispanic students to fill the quotas. University administrators, eager to fill the quotas and show they are sensitive to racial concerns, admit minority students who do not meet the minimum GPA and SAT scores necessary for admission. Yet, these students, once at Berkeley, must try to compete with their better-prepared white and Asian counterparts. Indeed, they have been set up for failure; the dropout rate for African-Americans at Berkeley is 66 percent, and for Hispanics it is more than 50 percent. This policy may have been intended to be kind and compassionate, but how kind and compassionate is it to set students up for failure? This phenomenon is not unique to Berkeley.

Most major universities in the nation follow similar policies with similar results - high dropout rates for African-Americans and Hispanics. A 1990 study found that since affirmative action was adopted by universities in the mid-1970s, the rate of blacks graduating from college has dropped. This is at a time when the number of blacks graduating from high school has increased. By doing away with affirmative action, students will only attend universities for which they are qualified, thereby increasing their chances of success.

By creating disparities among racial groups on campus, affirmative action also results in the Balkanization of these groups. Many major universities have separate facilities for minority students separate residence halls and eating facilities, separate sororities and fraternities, etc. Under these conditions, is it any wonder racial tensions have increased in recent years on most campuses? If the recent past is any indication, political trends that start in California generally sweep across the nation. Here's hoping the Proposition 209 is the beginning of just such a trend. The nation as a whole would be better off for it.

Too comfy to get educated mericans are an ignorant bunch when it comes to Adomestic and world affairs. Hardly any time or effort is put into self-education of current issues that impact the lives of millions of people in this world.

It would be a feat to find a person on the street who could tell you who replaced Bob Dole as Senate Majority Leader; or who Boutros Boutros-Ghali is; or the influence of Helmut Kohl; or what a flat tax would mean for the poor.

This stems from the fact that everything on this planet is relatively stable. There are no huge wars going on in America, the world economy is booming and the threat to peace has been subdued. There are no more great evils to conquer, no more political atrocities that need to be attended to. Most people are comfortable with the way the world is run and they find better things to do with their time than keep up with the state of the nation.

But this time of prosperity and security that turns America's attention from politics and current events makes us absolutely unaware of where we stand as a nation. Fifty-six percent of AmeriIt would be a feat to find a person on the street who could tell you who replaced Bob Dole as Senate Majority Leader; or who Boutros Boutros-Ghali is; or the influence of Helmut Kohl; or what a flat tax would mean for the poor.

cans claim they are dissatisfied with the direction of this country. However, the reasons they are not happy are distorted by their own

A recent survey shed light on America's hideously uninformed face. When asked what the current unemployment rate was, the average American thought it to be 20.6 percent. Almost one in four surveyed thought the unemployment percentage to be more than 25 percent, the same jobless rate at the worst point of the Great Depression! In actuality, the unemployment rate is 5.4 percent, about onefourth of what people think. Also, according to the public, the inflation rate is at 13.5 percent, when it is really 2.9 percent - quite a dif-

With the public believing America to be in that bad of shape, no wonder people are discontent with the direction of this nation. It is the public's own lack of information that breeds ill-feelings toward the government and where it is leading America.

Because the public doesn't go out to get the correct information, people have incorrect perceptions of our country. The public closes its eyes to a time of economic growth, stability and peace. All the progress the world has made goes unnoticed. And when this happens, a road of contempt for our government and its policies opens. Americans cannot see all the good, but hear sound bites of the bad.

Americans do not know where they are, nor do they care. They believe the bull of an economy is running at them with horns down, when really he is running to give them a ride.

was just what I needed - might I say a godsend? The final, and seventh, service of the day takes place at 7:30 p.m. Chris and I went, sitting in the guest section of the chapel - removed from the monks, but close enough to feel their centered and contemplative presence. The service, called "compline," took place in the dark. The monks were singing, it was raining outside and it was beautiful.

When the service ended, one of the monks came over to the cordoned-off guest area and invited us but I figured he said something like, "want to come in and look around?" It turned out that's not what he said at all. Not yet knowing this, I followed the other (Catholic) retreat guests into the sanctuary. thought we were going to get a tour.

It was no tour. The guests, who seemed to know what was going on, lined up in front of the monk. I was then I got my first sensation of panic, my first realization they were about to do something Catholic. I then saw the monk pull out some kind of mallet like on "The Gong Show," dip it in water and extend the watery instrument toward the will ing participants as each bowed his or her head to receive this water. "What's going ON?" I whispered in a panicky voice to Chris. "Holy water," she told me, as she went to receive her dousing.

I turned tail fast, my face hot with embarrassment. I felt I had been disrespectful. I don't know tons about Catholics, but I do know there is a thin called Communion, which involves eating a cracket that symbolizes the body of Christ. Communion is a very sacred act, and non-Catholics should not take part in this sacrament. Was holy water the same way?

I felt terrible that I thought he wanted to give us a tour, when what he really wanted to do was to bless the believers. I wanted to find him and apole gize, but, as I said, these guys avoided us pretty seriously. Now, I thought I knew why. He was probably pissed at me.

I did find another monk, though. He was adjust ing a large grandfather clock when I came upon him. I was flushed and breathless from the holy

"Can I ask you a question? You know at the end when that guy let us in to do the holy water?" I knew I was saying it all wrong, and probably offending this monk by calling his brother "that guy," but he nodded me on. "I thought he was just going to show us around. I did not know he was going to put holy water on people. I am Jewish, and

At this point, he interrupted me. His eyes lit up 8 bit. "You're Jewish? How wonderful! You know, we are part Jewish, too," he informed me in his Irish accent. "And you know," he confided, "my closest, dearest friend in the whole world is Jewish." It took me a minute to figure out what he meant. He then went on to tell me I would have been welcome to partake in that ritual, had I been com fortable doing so, the monk with the mallet would not be mad and his order has a great respect for the Jewish people and for our philosophy. He then told me a joke about a priest and a rabbi

Shame on Painter

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my outrage at Kim Painter's Nov. 11 editorial titled "Dangerous precedents." The sex scandal unfolding at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds is inexcusable. The trust between trainer and trainee has been violated in the worst possible

Instead of cohesively condemning this incident, Painter attacked the entire military in an ignorant fashion. As a former infantryman who served Germany, Egypt and the 101st, I can assure Painter that those responsible for this crime would choose the hand of God over the Uniform Code of Mil tary Justice.

I can also assure her that women in the military are professional, dedicated soldiers in a high state of readiness for war. She assumes our female soldiers are helplessly waiting for someone like herself to come along and "dismantle that club" of evil men who recently pro moted the first female to the rank of three star general. She alludes to unknown "someones," "certain types of men" and "low-functioning men" in the service that degrades women at every turn. I did not see any of this in my fou to illustrate what a corrupt, moneyobsessed and inventive university this is We can't park at the library, to learn, without paying our blood monbecause the university has smaller exercise quarters than schools one-fift their size (but of course we can pack ourselves into the "fitness loft" if we pay). What kind of university charges

Whil the government raises subsidies to "net" the U.S. education system, the university wants to take advantage an ask for more money. While users in lowa City can get access from local providers for as little as $5 for 20 nours, the university wants to charge twice as much. What does this say? What do our computer fees pay for every semester? Obviously nothing. The labs are exploding with people, but hey, why not charge extra for

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my outrage at Kim Painter's Nov. 11 editorial titled "Dangerous precedents." The sex scandal unfolding at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds is inexcusable. The trust between trainer and trainee has been violated in the worst possible

Instead of cohesively condemning this incident, Painter attacked the entire military in an ignorant fashion. As a former infantryman who served in Germany, Egypt and the 101st, I can assure Painter that those responsible for this crime would choose the hand of God over the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

I can also assure her that women in the military are professional, dedicated soldiers in a high state of readiness for war. She assumes our female soldiers are helplessly waiting for someone like herself to come along and "dismantle that club" of evil men who recently promoted the first female to the rank of three star general. She alludes to unknown "someones," "certain types of men" and "low-functioning men" in the service that degrades women at every turn. I did not see any of this in my four years of service. To make matters worse, her uninformed attack comes on the day we remember those who served to keep the United States free. In all of her unrestrained rage, she could not stop shaking long enough to say, "Thank you, veterans, for your years of service

MCI Internet deal means one more bill

To the Editor:

As usual, the university is looking for any new way possible to bleed the students dry. For the past four years, I have watched the university repeatedly invent new ways to take what little money students have, while providing less in return. The MCI Internet plan continues to illustrate what a corrupt, money-obsessed and inventive university this is.

We can't park at the library, to learn, without paying our blood money to meters; we can't keep in shape exercise quarters than schools one-fifth their size (but of course we can pack ourselves into the "fitness loft" if we pay). What kind of university charges extra to keep healthy and research/learn? These are just minor points that I have often questioned. And now the university wants to charge extra for Internet access. While the government raises subsidies to "net" the U.S. education system, the university wants to take advantage and ask for more money. While users in lowa City can get access from local providers for as little as $5 for 20 hours, the university wants to charge twice as much. What does this say? What do our computer fees pay for every semester? Obviously nothing. The labs are exploding with people, but hey, why not charge extra for Internet access. What's more interesting is that the university chose MCI as their partner. Maybe the student population would be interested to know that MCI offers free hours to ANYONE who wants them. Yes, ANYONE! MCI customer or not ... Why didn't the university mention that to people? Because, as usual, this university wants to GET MORE AND OFFER LESS. I think I speak for nearly all university students when I say that the University of Iowa is a model school of higher financing.

Skepticism of police is good for safety

To the Editor:

In his Nov. 8 editorial, "There is no place for police-bashing," Craig Stevens paints a dire picture of those who lately have questioned the competence of the lowa City police. He insists that police officers are saviors and heroes, and passes off as a mere 'accident" the tragic killing of Eric Shaw. Pervading his article is a sneering contempt for law enforcement, an unfortunate attitude in my opinion, and one I sincerely hope is not adopted blindly by residents of this commu-

It is not a mark of disrespect to be skeptical about the motives of police officers. On the contrary, because the police wield real immediate power over us, I would suggest that accepting the "knight in shining armor" cliché puts us all in jeopardy. It deludes us into seeing the police as aloof, superethical creatures, whose actions are by definition honorable and worthy of

The sad fact is that the police abuse their power rather regularly. When they do, innocent people are harmed. Rodney King was beaten senseless on a public highway, in full view of scores of witnesses and, later, America itself. Mark Fuhrman bragged on tape about beating black and Hispanic suspects and manipulating evidence. Now a man is dead in Iowa City because one police officer saw fit to shoot first and ask questions later. How many times are these scenes reenacted across America each day? How many times are they reenacted out of the public

My point is simply this: The stakes are too high to accept Stevens' gradeschool image of the police. Although most are upstanding men and women who perform their duties in good faith and with good intentions, we know many are not. The problem, from a citizen's point of view, is how to tell the bad from the good. The answer, I think, is a healthy dose of skepticism. We should doubt what the police tell us. We should demand greater access to information about what goes on inside police departments. Above all, we should demand that the police live up to our expectations, and adhere strictly by rule of law. That's not police-bashing, Craig, it's looking out for your rights.

A comment on Malaysian culture

To the Editor:

We would like to correct a misconception presented in the article "Forum discusses world views of homosexuality" published in the DI on

According to an anonymous man from Malaysia, most marriages in his (and our) home country are arranged. We would like to assert that this is not true. In certain provinces that are more conservative, arranged marriages may be more commonly practiced, but in our own experiences, most Malaysians are free to choose who they want to spend the rest of their lives with.

That aside, we sympathize with our countryman's limited freedom in expressing his sexual preference back home. This is because the majority of Malaysians do not accept homosexuality as it runs counter to traditional values which still very much influence our ways of life.

We hope that this will dispel any inaccurate impressions about Malaysian cultures.

Political activism shouldn't stop after election

To the Editor:

Last week, the 1996 election cycle came to a close and the political pundits analyzed the results to tell us what has transpired. However, now that the campaign ads have ended and the consistent barrage of phone calls and other campaign paraphernalia have ceased, we must not let our involvement end. While to most, casting one's ballot on election day signals the end of their involvement, this is a false presumption.

To fully participate in the American political process, we must realize that casting our ballots is only the first step of our involvement. With so much at stake in the coming term, it is imperative that we continue our involvement. This can be done by writing a letter to your congressman, writing a letter to the editor of the newspaper, collecting signatures for a petition in favor of an issue of importance to you or getting involved with an interest group. Finally, one could get involved with local government.

This year, issues such as campaign finance reform, Medicare/Medicaid. crime and education will be key issues discussed in Washington and across America. Unfortunately, if we, as American citizens, do not take part in the political process, we will have no control over what happens and how it affects our lives.

America is the greatest country in the world, and we pride ourselves on our democratic ideals. Now is the time we must not only talk about democratic principles, but institute them.

A democracy cannot succeed without the participation of the masses!

U.S. troop commitment may linger into 1998

John Diamond Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The U.S. troop deployment in Bosnia, originally set to end in December, is expected now to stretch well into 1998 and involve up to 10,000 Army soldiers, NATO's top official said Thursday.

The entire mission would involve 30,000 troops from 30 countries, including the United States, NATO Secretary General Javier Solana told reporters.

I had conversations with the (NATO) foreign ministers," Solana said, "I would say that all of them ... are moving toward Option C," the option among four being considered that would keep troops in the former Yugoslav republic. In Washington, Solana met privately with Vice President Al Gore.

Apparently caught off guard, White House press secretary Mike McCurry and State Department spokesperson Glyn Davies told reporters Gore made clear to Solana that President Clinton had not signed off on the troop commitment.

Speaking anonymously, administration officials confirmed Solana's description of the primary plan under consideration.

These officials said Clinton was to approve the extended troop commitment as early as Thursday night.

The issue is quite sensitive. A year ago the Clinton administration was assuring lawmakers that 19,000 American soldiers in Bosnia with a 60,000-member NATO peacekeeping mission would be home by December. The U.S. force, now about 14,000, is scheduled to leave y mid-March.

Renewed fighting in Bosnia this week has heightened worries over the possible departure of NATO peacekeepers. Top advisers to the resident - particularly diplomat Richard Holbrooke, who negotiated the Bosnia peace agreement in 1995

- vigorously urged Clinton to continue a U.S. presence to avoid resuming the vicious 3 1/2-year ethnic war that Holbrooke's agreement

"A congressional staffer speaking on condition of anonymity said the round-troop option in Bosnia involved 8,000 to 10,000 Army troops joining in the international effort. The mission would extend from mid-March for perhaps as much as another year. The U.S. troop level would gradually decline during that time.

BOSTON - People suffering from long-term liver failure of the sort often seen in alcoholics and drug addicts will no longer be first in line for new organs.

The shift, approved Thursday by the agency that sets nationwide transplant policy, is aimed at giving top priority to patients with the best chance of surviving the operation, rather than those who are the sickest.

In recent years, some people have questioned whether patients who ruined their livers through drugs or drink deserve new organs - a debate that was renewed in recent years when Mickey Mantle and "Dallas" star Larry Hagman

WASHINGTON - A natural protein that some hoped would be a magic bullet" for weight control may have a dark and dangerous side. New research links the compound with diabetes.

The protein, called leptin, received a flurry of publicity last year when studies showed it caused extremely obese mice to lose up to 30 percent of their weight. The mice also exercised more and ate less. Some researchers raced to develop leptin or related proteins for use in Menachem Rubinstein, a biochemist at the Weizmann Institute of Science in Rehovot, Israel, said when leptin is put on human liver cells in the laboratory, it disrupts a normal action of insulin, the hormone essential for control of sugar in the blood.

"We know that obese individuals have a high level of leptin and we know that obese individuals have a tendency to develop diabetes," Rubinstein said in an interview. "There might be a linkage. It might rupts the gluconeogenesis function excess poundage.

He said clinical studies with leptin should be approached with cau-

"One should look very carefully into using leptin as a weight-reduc-ing agent," Rubinstein said. "It should not be ruled out that a longterm treatment with leptin doesn't induce Type II diabetes.'

Amgen Inc. of Thousand Oaks, Calif., a biotechnology firm, started human clinical trials with leptin in May to determine if the protein causes any toxic side effects. The firm plans clinical studies next year to determine if leptin actually will

David Kaye, a spokesperson for Amgen, said so far researchers for the company have detected no harmful side effects from leptin.

Rubinstein said his laboratory experiments showed leptin will link up with liver cells and interrupt a series of chemical reactions that normally are directed by insulin.

Insulin is produced by the pancreas and has two basic functions. It works in the blood to break down glucose, a type of sugar, into glycogen and fat. It works also in the liver to control the conversion of stored fat back into glucose, a process called gluconeogenesis.

be that leptin is one of the agents of insulin. This could cause blood sugar levels to rise inappropriately, Rubinstein emphasized his experiment involved only cell cultures and that leptin could react differently in the whole body.

Arthur Campfield, a researcher at Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. in Nutley, N.J., said the Rubinstein study "is an interesting result," but he cautioned that other research is needed to confirm leptin's full effect on the

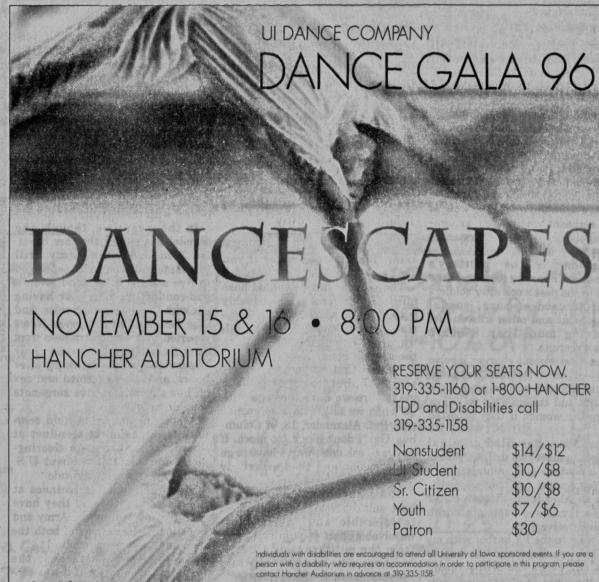

"It is a big jump to conclude from this study that leptin is a cause of diabetes," he said.

Kaye said Amgen's scientists are aware of the Rubinstein study, but have drawn no conclusions.

The Amgen clinical trials of leptin are being monitored by a safety committee, said Kaye, and no problems have been detected.

Researchers at Rockefeller University first isolated leptin. The scientists cloned a gene, called OB, that was linked to obesity and then found that the gene made leptin.

The research last year that showed leptin's slimming effect on mice plugged into a major U.S. health concern: obesity. Experts estimate about a third of all Americans are overweight and they spend about $30 billion a year trying to Leptin, said Rubinstein, inter- sweat, strain and starve away

Starting this week, the Postal Service will begin selling prepaid phone cards nationwide.

The cards, a joint venture with American Express, have been tested since last year in several cities across the country.

"Positive response from our product test indicates that America's postal customers also find that prepaid phone cards add value when visiting our offices," Allen Kane, chief marketing officer for the postal service, said.

The FirstClass PhoneCard will be offered in $10, $20, $50 and $100 units, which can be recharged using major credit cards.

The cards are authorized with a prepaid amount of money and can be used to pay for calls from any touch-tone phone.

When used up, they can be recharged by calling a number and punching in a credit-card number.

American Express Telecom Inc., is handling the technical arrangements for the post office with MCI acting as the long-distance carrier.

A $5 card is good for nine minutes of calls, $10 buys 20 minutes, $20 is good for 45 minutes, $50 for 125 minutes and $100 for 300 minutes, regardless of distance within the United States.

The cards are expected to build revenue for the post office, which is no longer subsidized by taxes.

Carrying the mail is the core business for the post office, but it has occasionally tried other endeavors, including marketing cups, T-shirts and other souvenirs with postal themes and providing fax services.

Those efforts were discouraged by Congress, however, following complaints from businesses about competition from the post office.

Army base tense amid controversy

Alex Dominguez Associated Press

ABERDEEN, Md. - Drill sergeant Todd Hilliker said he felt a chill when he walked into the PX barber shop. Sadie Alexander, an 18-year-old recruit, complains she now has to take a female "buddy" wherever she goes. And instructor Robert LaFrancois thinks the classroom atmosphere is poisoned.

"I understand the charges involve women, but even if I touch a male soldier while teaching, he can say something," LaFrancois, a staff sergeant who teaches generator repair, said. "There's more caution now.'

Tension at the military's Aberdeen Proving Ground has risen in the past week after soldiers were accused of rape, sexual harassment and other misconduct involving more than a dozen women recruits.

The most serious charges involve drill sergeant Delmar Simpson, who is charged with raping three recruits and threatening to kill or injure the women if they reported duty with almost no choice, Hilliker said. "It's a career-ender if you don't go," he said.

The Army has filed criminal charges against two drill sergeants and a captain and administrative charges against two trainers at the base in Aberdeen. Fifteen other instructors have been placed on administrative duty.

The scandal has prompted base officials to enforce a strict buddy system under which trainees, especially women, must have their buddy, usually their roommate, with them at all times.

"When I first got here they didn't say much, but now they want to make sure we have someone with us when we talk with a sergeant," said Pvt. Alexander, 18, of Columbus, Ga. "I don't like it too much. If I have to ask one thing, I have to go get someone and then everybody knows your business.

The scandal undoubtedly will hurt unit cohesion, but the damage is tolerable and the problem unsolvable short of banning women son this weekend and the barber from the military, said Charles says 'Oh, here's the drill sergeant Moskos, who studies military and his son.' "That's why all-male units are still basically combat units.

Laura Miller, a Harvard University sociologist writing a book on gender relations in the Army, sees some good things resulting from the scandal.

"People who are afraid to report things before will now come forward, and this will first of all purge people who are engaging in criminal activity out of the military," Miller said. "I also think another positive effect is it will instill confidence in the military's willingness to deal with these issues."

In the meantime, though, the scandal has spread to other bases. On Wednesday, an Army drill sergeant in Missouri was sentenced to five months in jail and given a bad-conduct discharge for having sex with three women recruits. And The San Antonio Express-News reported that women trainees from Fort Sam Houston kissed their supervisors while drinking after hours, and one performed oral sex on her supervisor. Five sergeants were disciplined.

A hot line set up to field complaints of sexual misconduct at Aberdeen has become a clearinghouse for complaints about U.S. military personnel worldwide.

Still, many female trainees at Aberdeen publicly said they have been treated well by the Army and questioned the actions of both the men and the women involved.

"If they were attacked, the sergeants should pay. If it was consensual, then they both are at fault," said Pvt. Tara Adelman, 18, of Milbank, S.D. "My trust in the Army and the military hasn't changed."

And Staff Sgt. Deborah Clinton, who recently finished two years as a drill sergeant at Aberdeen, said she is concerned the scandal may hurt promotion opportunities.

"Everybody will say, 'Oh, you were at Aberdeen," "she said.

Bunnell said Career Services offers students programs such as résumé and cover letter workshops, mock interviews and information about employers. She said students who go through their program are required to attend workshops, but once completed, student résumés remain on file in their office.

"Our résumé-referral program is used a lot," Bunnell said. "We get calls from companies asking for all of our mechanical engineering résumés or civil engineering résumés, requests like that."

UI senior Sam Brandt, a mechanical engineering major who will graduate in May, has gone through six on-campus interviews in the past two weeks. Brandt said he has worked with Career Services and said the job market is looking good for him.

Texas' Gonzalez edges Seattle's Rodriguez as MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Juan Gonzalez of the Texas Rangers beat Seattle's Alex Rodriguez by three points Thursday, matching the second-closest victory margin ever in voting for the AL Most Valuable Player award.

Gonzalez, who hit .314 with 47 homers and 144 RBI, got 11 first-place votes and 290 points. Rodriguez, who hit a league-leading .358 with 36 homers and 123 RBI, received 10 first-place votes and 287 points in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

It was the closest vote since 1960, when Roger Maris beat New York Yankees teammate Mickey Mantle 225-222. The closest AL MVP vote was in 1947, when Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees beat Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox 202-201.

Fitzgerald one of three Butkus award finalists

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Canute Curtis of West Virginia, Pat Fitzgerald of Northwestern and Colorado's Matt Russell were nominated Thursday for the Dick Butkus award as college football's top linebacker.

The three were chosen from a field of 11 semifinalists by a 25member committee of sports writers and commentators making the selection for the Downtown Athletic Club of Orlando. The award will be presented Dec. 14 at Walt Disney World.

Fitzgerald, a 230-pound senior, has 69 solo tackles, two interceptions and a fumble recovery in 10 games for Northwestern.

"For the last two years we've had an outstanding defense here, and I've just been another member of it," said Fitzgerald. "I'm really proud of our defense."

"Everybody wants a linebacker that will lead you into a war," Northwestern coach Gary Barnett said. "But the difference is that Pat will lead all the plans and the strategies and knows all the ins and outs.

Despite losing its final game of the season, the Iowa field hockey team was happy to discover it was one of the top four seeds in this weekend's NCAA tournament.

Twelve teams made the field, but as one of the top-four seeded teams Iowa will receive a first-round bye and the right to host the first two rounds of the tournament. Those granted a top-four seeding (in order) were North Carolina, Old Dominion, Iowa and Connecticut.

Prior to the announcement of the tourney field, Iowa coach Beth Beglin had a hunch her team would take one of the top seeds.

"I was pretty confident that we would host a regional," Beglin said. We finished 18-2 with several wins over top-20 competition. I didn't think that a loss to the No.

we got out of town as fast as we could with a tight win."

But Iowa knows it has to beat the best if it wants to take the title. "It doesn't matter to me who we play," Beglin said. "At this stage in the game, everybody is a quality team and you have to play your best to win. You can't get away with playing a bad game or even a half and expect to advance into the next round.'

Beglin concedes that this year's team is one of her better teams she has had while at Iowa. With only two losses in 20 games, only her '89 and '92 teams fared better in the but hold a 5-2 record against them.

"Top to bottom, this is one of the most talented," Beglin said. "Individually it would be tough to top the '92 squad, but individual talent doesn't win you championships, team talent does."

The bracket certainly gives Iowa an edge. The Hawkeyes have not only played five-of-12 teams in the field (Boston, Maryland, Massachusetts, Northeastern, and Penn State),

> "Teams will probably say that we are best benefited by the bracket, but whoever makes it out of a regional will be tough. Everything is on the line," Beglin said.

As the No. 1 seed, North Carolina (20-1) is looked as the favorite to win the championship, by the NCAA and Beglin.

"UNC has more talent and experience than anyone," Beglin said. "They have been one of the top teams for years."

If Iowa is still alive after regional competition, it will play Old Dominion, Maryland or Penn State in the Final Four held in Boston. Mass., Nov. 23.

way, though.

The Citrus Bowl can select the Big Ten runner-up or the highestranked Big Ten team in the CNN-USA Today coaches' poll. Right now, No. 14 Northwestern stands alone in second place, but No. 11 Penn State is ranked higher. The Citrus Bowl, then, would have a choice to make.

The next three bowls have even more options. They get their choice of all remaining Big Ten teams, but they are not allowed to invite a team with two fewer wins than a team which has not yet been selected.

The Daily Iowan's

That rule won't help Iowa, though. The Hawkeyes can finish no better than 8-3 and Michigan, Northwestern and Penn State already have at least seven wins apiece. Unfortunately, all three are more attractive selections than the Hawkeyes.

for the Alliance.

Should the Alliance snatch the sixth.

But don't pack for El Paso just just yet, either.

The first thing that could help Iowa climb the ladder is the Bowl Alliance. The Alliance takes the top eight teams in the country and pits them against each other. Penn State or Northwestern may finish strong and be an attractive choice

Big Ten runner-up, everybody else in the conference moves up the pecking order. The Florida Citrus Bowl gets third choice, Outback picks fourth, Alamo fifth and Sun

But don't pack for San Antonio

The Alamo isn't good enough for the Hawkeyes. It's still in Texas, it's not on New Year's Day and the Hawkeyes would prefer to forget their last trip to the Alamo - a 37-3 loss to California in 1993.

So Iowa needs to become the fourth most attractive team in the Big Ten conference. And to do that,

Michigan has to slip.

A Wolverine blow-up is not an unlikely scenario. Michigan lost to unheralded Purdue last week and has to play Penn State and Ohio State to finish the season. If the Wolverines lose both, they will end the season with a 7-4 record and a three-game losing streak.

So there you have it. Root for Penn State to get into the Alliance. Root against Michigan in its final two games. And most importantly, cheer on those Hawkeyes against Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Packers want revenge on Dallas

Dave Goldberg Associated Press

A few times this season, the Dallas Cowboys have been caught looking ahead. The Green Bay Packers have spent the entire season looking ahead to their visit to Dallas on Monday night.

They probably couldn't have picked a worse week.

After losing Robert Brooks and Antonio Freeman, their best wide receivers, earlier this year, the Packers lost Mark Chmura, one of their two tight ends, last Sunday, when they fell at Kansas City.

But Mike Holmgren came out of that loss in a remarkably upbeat mood, almost as if the team's second loss of the season would make it better this week.

All this started last January, when the Packers lost the NFC title game in Dallas, their sixth straight loss at Texas Stadium over three seasons.

It intensified when the schedule came out. "Why do we play there every year and they never come here?" Holmgren asked.

That's the idea of this game. A Green Bay win and any playoff Forget the new Big 12 Conference playoff game. The real battle begins Saturday at Boulder, Colo.

Three Big 12 teams sport 8-1 records - and all are in the North: No. 5 Nebraska, co-No. 6 Colorado and No. 9 Kansas State. The best the South has are Texas and Texas Tech, both at 5-4.

Kansas State, which has a 5-1 conference record after losing to Nebraska 39-3 earlier in the season, travels to Boulder for Saturday's game against Colorado. The Buffaloes and Cornhuskers have 6-0 conference marks and a future

Both K-State and Colorado believe in going by air - the Wildcats' Brian Kavanagh and Colorado's Koy Detmer have each thrown for eight touchdowns in the last two games. And while Colorado's Rae Carruth is the conference's leading receiver with 1,033 yards, K-State's Kevin Lockett is second with 767.

Then there's freshman linebacker Mark Simoneau, who just happens to lead K-State in tackles this year, including 51 unassisted

"Mark Simoneau is playing as well as anyone we have," K-State coach Bill Snyder said. "He's a good player." Cornerback Marcus Washington has been looking forward to this

"When I eyeballed the schedule, there were two games I saw that made me smile," Washington said: "Michigan, because I hadn't played them before ... and this Kansas State game, because I know they throw the ball a lot."

And the big receiver is Lockett, who leads the league and is 14th in the nation with 6.3 catches a game. "He might be one of the top five

At 126, Nick Dohrmann and Wil Kelly will face off tonight. The winner of that match will meet Mike Mena on Saturday. Mena was a three-time All-American at 118.

"I don't know if (Mena) is going to stay there or not," Gable said. 'We'll see how he even does in the tryout situation. I think both those guys he's wrestling have proven that they are pretty tough."

has opened 118 for fifth-year senior Jessie Whitmer, who is one of four uncontested Iowa wrestlers. Whitmer hasn't spent much time in the Iowa lineup during his career, so he's excited for this chance.

'It's a great opportunity for me," go out there and represent what John Whitmer match Saturday. Gable is trying to teach. I've been waiting a long time."

Iowa's other unchallenged 150, defending national champion a few pounds to get to 150, anyway."

Mena's movement up the ladder Joe Williams at 158, and Lee Fullhart at 190.

The second Hawkeye trying to move up, Mike Uker, is doing things a little differently. He's looking to move up not one, but two weights, to 167. Uker, who finished eighth in the nation last year at 150, will go against Whitmer said. "It's a good feeling to the winner of tonight's Justin Decker-

Uker doesn't feel the change will be as difficult as it seems.

"I grew a lot over the summer, wrestlers are Lincoln McIlravy at muscle-wise," he said. "I was cutting

Cross country teams head to District meet

Even after his team put out a Women's cross country performance two weeks ago at the Big Ten meet, men's cross county coach Larry Wieczorek still feels his team's best performance is yet to come. Both he and his team IV meet Saturday in Champaign, Ill.

"The first race in November, the Big Ten, was a pretty good meet, and I think that we still have a better race in us," Wieczorek said. All year, Wieczorek has been gearing his Hawkeye squad towards the end of the season and the all-important month of November, containing the Big Ten meet and the NCAA dis-

"We're all excited, we're not burned out at all, and we're all in top shape, sophomore runner Stetson Steele said, "We've had our ups and downs throughout the year. I think that now, after the Big Ten meet, we're all gearing toward the same thing."

Iowa is ranked seventh in the district, behind Big Ten teams Wisconsin, Michigan, Michigan State and Illinois, and newcomers Notre Dame advancing to Nationals in Tucson, Ariz., the Hawks will have to run their best race of the year to be in the hunt to continue their season.

"We're a dark horse. We're on that fringe," Wieczorek said, "If we have a great race and someone else falters, you never know. Our objective is to go in there and run our best race of Big Ten championship meet two weeks ago, the Iowa women's cross country team is looking to regroup and end the '96 season on a positive hope it arrives at the NCAA District note when it travels to Champaign, Ill., for the NCAA District IV meet this weekend.

"It was really hard for us to get pumped up again after the Big Ten meet," coach Rachelle Roberts said. We had a long talk on the way home from Indiana and discussed what went wrong. Even though we were disappointed from that meet, we decided we wanted to go out and end the season on a positive

Iowa finished ninth at the Big Ten meet due largely to illness suffered by three team members. Everyone will be healthy for the Hawkeyes this weekend except for freshman Maggie Griffin, who is suffering from achilles tendinitis.

Iowa will compete against 39 schools, including eight Big Ten nd Ohio.

"We'd like to go to districts and With only the top three teams beat some of the Big Ten schools that previously beat us," Roberts said. "We really feel like we can place better than Indiana and Purdue.

The Iowa volleyball team squandered a chance at its first weekend sweep last Saturday by losing to Indiana, one day after defeating

Iowa (4-10 Big Ten, 9-16) seems to have reached its lowest point of the season. With four of their final six matches on the road, the Hawkeyes need improve quickly to achieve some degree of respectability. This weekend, Iowa plays on the home courts of the best and worst teams in the conference. The Northwestern Wildcats (0-14, 9-18) host the Hawkeyes tonight in Evanston, Ill., and Saturday, Iowa plays Big Ten co-leader Michigan State.

When the Wildcats and Spartans played in Iowa City a few weeks ago, things went pretty much according to plan. Michigan State (12-2, 18-6) swept three games from the Hawkeyes, and Iowa defeated Northwestern in four games. Iowa would like to repeat its performance against the Wildcats, but also give

"I'd like to think that we'd be so excited about winning that we'd go in and get another one," Schoenstedt said. "So hopefully what we'll do this weekend is remember how good it felt and go in against Northwestern and get a win."

THE PURSUIT OF EXCELLENCE IN SANDWICHING'

Ceballos to miss 6-8 weeks

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - The news was bad, but it could have been worse. Los Angeles Lakers forward Cedric Ceballos will be sidelined 6-8 weeks because of a partial tear of the patella tendon in his right knee.

Ceballos, 27, landed awkwardly while making a fast-break layup with just under four minutes remaining in San Antonio's 95-83 victory over the visiting Lakers on Wednesday night.

Ceballos had to be wheeled off the court after the injury, which was diagnosed after the game and confirmed Thursday when he was examined by team physician Dr. Stephen Lombardo of the Kerlan-Jobe Orthopaedic Clinic.

'Spitfire' features promising actress

Stacey Harrison The Daily Iowan

Occasionally, Hollywood tries to pull a fast one on the general public. Instead of releasing the regular piffle, sometimes a movie comes along with a brain and something to say, and doesn't feature any cast members who are making $20 million for the effort.

or 17 Iowa senior football players, Saturday's game against Wisconsin will mark the last time taking the field at Kinnick Stadium in a Hawkeye uniform.

The class of 1996 will leave the University of Iowa with a lot of memories, including appearances at the Alamo Bowl in 1993 and Sun Bowl last season.

"Time goes by fast when you're having fun," senior Bill Ennis-Inge said. "We have to really take advantage of this last game because this will be the last time we get to play in Kinnick, ever."

Senior Tom Knight has seen four final games come and go in his five years at Iowa and is starting to realize how important this game will be.

"It will be big. I've seen a lot of guys go through it," Knight said. "Mike Devlin (who played for Iowa from 1989-92), a good friend of mine, I remember when he was a senior my big thing was to get him out of here on a good note. I think I've finally realized now it is a big thing

Knight is expecting an emotional game from the Hawkeyes when they meet the Badgers, although it hasn't quite sunk in

"I don't think it's effected me yet," he said. "I know it will on Saturday. I'm kind of trying to prepare myself, but I can't even going to be like."

Ennis-Inge will accept nothing less than a win in his finale.

"It's going to be real special. This is our last time playing where we were, more or less, born - Kinnick Stadium," he describe the feeling what its said. "That's one thing that you you definitely won't forget, the outcome of the game and how you played and how the team did.

"That's something that you won't forget for the rest of your life. This is something that you have to live with, your last time playing at home.'

Ten of Iowa seniors are listed to be starters on Saturday, and all 17 have been listed on the Iowa two-deep all season long. Iowa starts four seniors on offense, four on defense. The other two are kicker Brion Hurley and punter Nick Gallery.

Of course, this will not be the last game in a Hawkeye uniform for the seniors. There is still a game at Minnesota next week d a likely howl game

For a few, there is always the possibility of an NFL career.

That's why guys are playing at this point and time," Ennis-Inge said. "You don't want to be playing just to play these last two games. You want to play college football to take this game to another level and we feel that a lot of us have the opportunity to do that.

"But we know that we can't look too far down the road. We have to take advantage of our college career at this point in time and see what comes."

Knight thinks big things are to come from Iowa's seniors, whether it be in the NFL or in

"I think we have a good group of guys that will have the opportunity to play at the next level," Knight said. "We have several guys that I think will have that as a possibility down the road.

"I think for the most part because these guys have been so disciplined throughout their careers, I think that this is a group of guys that somehow, some way will make waves 10, 15 years from now.

Brett Chambers

Chambers, a defensive end from Council Bluffs, Iowa, has started all nine games for Iowa at left end this season after starting only one game in his previous three seasons.

The physical education major has three sacks to go along with his 31 tackles on the year.

Billy Coats

Coats, a defensive back from Grand Prairie, Texas, has backed up ornerback Tom Knight this season, seeing action in six games and recording four tackles.

For his career, the English major has started eight games, recording 63 tackles and one interception.

After leading Linn-Mar High School to the Class 4A state championship his junior year of high school, Driscoll earned the starting job at Iowa at the start of his sophomore season.

He remained Iowa's starting quarterback until a broken collar bone ended his season in the sixth game of that year. He never regained the starting role and has been the No. 2 quarterback for the past two seasons.

The sociology major has thrown for 1,171 yards in his Hawkeye career, hitting over 50 percent of his passes.

Bill Ennis-Inge

Ennis-Inge, a defensive end from Kirkwood, Mo., has been a mainstay on the Iowa defense for the past three seasons and was named one of four co-captains for this year's Hawkeye team.

Rodney Filer

Filer, a fullback from Waco, Texas, is listed behind Michael Burger on the Iowa depth chart. He has four carries for 34 yards this season, and has seen most of his action on special teams.

Last season, he started nine games before suffering a season-ending knee injury on the first play of the Northwestern game. After surgery, he has been unable to regain the starting role this season.

For his career, the art major has 51 carries for 295 yards, an average of nearly six yards per carry.

Nick Gallery

Gallery, a punter from Masonville, lowa, is averaging 43.7 yards per punt this season, ranking him first in the Big Ten.

He averaged 45.3 yards per punt last year, which would have ranked him No. 2 in the nation, but he didn't have enough attempts to qualify.

The psychology major, who can also play tight end, caught a touchdown pass against Illinois in 1994.

Aaron Granquist

Granquist, a fullback from Osage, Iowa, is listed as Iowa's No. 2 fullback along with Filer. He has seven carries for 70 yards this season and 12 carries for 81 yards in his career.

The mathematics major joined the team as a walk-on in 1994 after rushing for 1,647 yards as a sophomore in junior college.

Brion Hurley

Hurley, a punter and kicker from Iowa City, earned a scholarship after joining the Hawkeves as a walk-on in 1992.

This season, Hurley has made 4-of-8 field goals, 2-of-3 from over 50 yards. Hurley has also punted ten times for an average of 32.5 yards acting as Iowa's pooch punter.

He has five of the eleven Demosesneeds Odems longest field goals in Iowa history, including a career long 54yarder.

Knight's Hawkeye career winds down

Senior's career lasts a year longer than he expected it to

Saturday will be his final game at Kinnick Stadium

Andy Hamilton THE DAILY IOWAN

n 1992, very few people thought Tom Knight would still be around to play in the 1996 lowa home finale, including himself. "I think I've been here forever," the senior from Marlton, New Jersey said. "When I first came, playing that first year, I was planning on getting out in four years and with the injury it seems like I've been here a real long time, but I think that's been good for me.

"Now that its finally here that I'm going to be leaving, I'm very glad it didn't happen any sooner," Knight said.

Getting the chance to go toe-to-toe with top-ranked Miami as a 17-year old true freshman and holding his own, Knight appeared on a path leading toward the

That road took another direction during his sophomore year of 1993, when Knight suffered a season-ending knee injury in the third game of the season.

Knight went through rehabilitation and made it back for the season opener in 1994. Six games into the season, Knight re-injured the knee, forcing him to watch the final five games of 1994 and the first two games last year from the sidelines.

"It was just one knee injury really," Knight said. "I tore it my true sophomore year and then just did some straight rehab and finally had surgery on it. I think it was just something that I kind of played with rather than get it corrected the first time and that's the only reason why it affected me for as long as it did."

Putting the injuries behind him has been one of the toughest things Knight has had to do during his days at Iowa.

"Any time something happens now, I'm not concerning with the possibilities of this ever happening again," Knight said. "If it does, you can't really control that, but the biggest hurdle I've overcome, at least for this season, is that mental part of putting an injury behind me and that's been the biggest thing.'

One season ending injury would be enough for some people to call it quits. After two, you would expect more people to give up the game, but for Knight, that really wasn't even considered.

"Coach Fry and the coaching staff has been of great assistance to me and that was never really an option for me," Knight said. "They've always been there for me, I think it would have been a letdown for everybody if I would have ever even had that thought cross my mind.

"I've been able to accomplish what I

GET OVER HERE: Iowa senior Tom Knight tries to stop Illinois running back Robert Holcombe from getting out ot bounds in a game earlier this season in Illinois.

inner motivation to keep striving through all of this and make the best of a bad situation and that's what I've been able to do and that's why I'm here today."

Through all of the injuries, one thing has never changed-Knight's play.

"Tom Knight has got to be one of the top defensive cornerbacks in the nation," coach Hayden Fry said. "That's verified each week when the pro scouts come through. They think he and Shawn Springs of Ohio State are the two best defensive corners in the country.'

For Knight, the NFL will wait. He is focused on what lies ahead of him in the

"Any time you have an opportunity, sure, you'd love to have that. I think that would be a dream come true," Knight said. "Already playing at this level and to move on to the professional level is obviously something you aspire to, but at the same time you've just got to concentrate on what you've got to do in col-

Maybe the fact that Knight is not lookwanted to do and they've given me the sing ahead to the NFL has to do with how much he enjoys playing at Iowa.

"Sure you're going to be a little bit down because you know its going to be your last opportunity to play in front of this crowd and for this team, but at the same time, its only going to be a sad time if you go out of here on a losing note. If you can go out of here on a winning note, then it makes all of this worth while."

rough all of the obstacles he has had to overcome, Knight looks back at all of the people who have stayed behind him the whole time.

"I think I've had a difficult career from my standpoint as far as having injuries," Knight said. "But I think the main thing I've learned about from being here is the crowd is always behind you and it's going to mean a lot to me to come out and play my last home game here in front of these fans that we have, but its all been great, its been wonderful. I have no bad memories.

Coming to Iowa has been everything Knight expected coming out of high school as a highly sought after recruit.

He ended up choosing Iowa over Penn State, Tennessee and Rutgers.

"The biggest thing for me was the people," Knight said. "Once I came out here I felt so comfortable, so at ease. I decided not to take my last two visits.

Entering the Iowa program, Knight was known for making big plays and that hasn't changed since becoming a Hawkeye.

Knight is the Iowa career leader in interception return yardage with 234, including last season's heroic 60 yard touchdown return to secure Iowa's 22-13 win over Indiana.

Many people would expect that moment to be the biggest thrill in his career at Iowa, but it happened during that Miami game of 1992

"When I first came out of that tunnel, the very first time was against Miami and it meant a great deal," Knight said. "I was a true freshman, I was 17 years old and didn't know what to expect, but I learned one thing on that day and that was Iowa football means a lot.

"It means a lot to the people in this state, the people at this university and to the guys that play for it. To put on that black and gold is very special and its something I've never taken for granted. I'm really looking forward to this last opportunity and hopefully we can go out on a winning note."

Going out a winner is something every Iowa fan should want for someone that personifies being a Hawkeye. And in every sense on and off the field, Knight is just that.

Hawkeye Mike Burger has made the transition to the Iowa backfield tight end, and with Scott Slutzker and Derek Price ahead of him on the depth chart, the current Iowa fullback could look forward to a long wait.

POWER FOOTBALL: Burger runs the ball straight up the middle against Michigan State earlier this season.

Fortunately for Burger, a coaching experiment early last season changed his agenda for

"I hadn't expected to play much my first two years," Burger said. "Then all of the sudden, they came up with the idea that maybe I should try fullback. I said I'd do anything to help the urger, who was a redshirt freshman at the time, needed to step up his game and try to make up for Filer's loss. Iowa still had a couple Big Ten games left and a potential bowl berth. This was a lot of pressure for a young player, but Burger said things turned out better than expected.

His chance to help the team came, sadly, at the expense of a teammate. On the first play of Iowa's game at Northwestern last year, starting fullback Rodney Filer injured his knee and was lost for the remainder of the season.

"At the beginning of the season, I was doubtful," the Iowa sophomore said. "But when I was thrown in there, I was pretty confident. You learn quick when you're thrown into a situation like that."

Burger's efforts for the remainder of the season were admirable, if not enviable. The Harlan, Iowa, native rushed 35 times for 153 yards and caught eight passes for 102 yards. In addition, Burger scored five touchdowns — three on the ground and two through the air.

ne factor that enabled Burger to make the transition easier is shielded by a black and gold helmet on Saturdays - his brain. Burger works as hard in the classroom as he does on the field, with comparable results. He was a Big Ten all-academic selection last year.

"It might be a part of my personality," he said. "I tend to pick up things pretty quick."

On the other hand, Burger added, his time spent at tight end was probably the most crucial factor in his switch to another skill position.

A solid mind can be important to making a difficult transition, but experience is the ultimate learning tool.

"Once you learn the offense at a skill position, you pretty much know what everybody else is doing," Burger said. "You pretty much have to, because it all gels together."

At the beginning of this season, Burger was in a much better position than one year earlier. He knew he was the team's No. 1 fullback, and would be considered a bigger part of the

Through nine games this season, Burger has rushed 42 times for 198 yards. Hawkeye quarterbacks have hooked up with the fullback six times for 52 yards. He has scored two touchdowns.

Unlike most Iowa teams, this year's version has not relied upon its tight ends to supply a lot of receiving yardage. In pre-vious years, players like Marv Cook and Slutzker gave the Hawkeyes a potent option that most opponents didn't have.

For a variety of reasons, quarterback Matt Sherman has not utilized his tight ends much this season. Sophomore Chris Knipper and freshman Zeron Flemiser, who have combined for just 12 receptions, are used predominantly as blockers. As a former tight end, Burger can't be shuffled around from year to quite explain this phenomenon.

"A lot of it has to do with the play-calling," Burger said. "A lot of times, the tight end isn't considered the primary receiver. Whether that's due to their youth or not, I'm not sure.

"But a lot of times, the tight end's not open. For us, it all depends on what the defense it going to throw at us."

In certain formations this year, Burger actually lines up near the end of the line to block, almost like a tight end. Offensive lineman Matt Reischl said that although Burger has done a good job, a switch like that can be difficult.

"It's a little bit of a transition," Reischl said. "Anytime you have a change in your position, it's going to put some demand on you. But I think he probably remembers a little bit from his tight-end days."

A natural question fans might ask is whether Burger would be able to step into the tight end role if the situation presents

"I don't know if I'd be 100 percent confident," Burger said. "But I think if I were thrown into that situation, I could do a decent job as far as play assignments.

"The harder thing for me would be the different routes to run with the different coverages that are shown."

or now, though, Burger is perfectly content with his position in the backfield. He seems to have found his comfort zone at the position, and the other Iowa offensive players are comfortable with him there.

In order to keep the top fullback fresh, the Hawkeye braintrust has employed Aaron Granquist as a backup for Burger. Granquist, a senior, has rushed seven times for 70 yards this season. Burger likes the sit-

"You might as well shuffle guys in there and keep us fresh," said Burger, who stands 6-foot-3 and weighs 229 pounds. "There's not a drop-off when Aaron goes in, as far as I'm concerned.

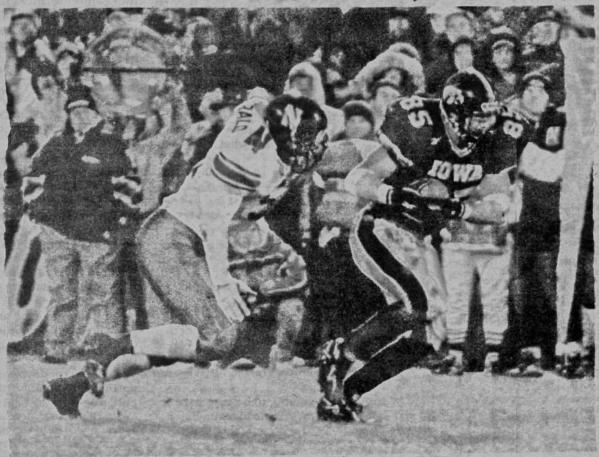

"It's worked out for us, and I hope it continues."

In retrospect, the move has truly been a blessing in disguise.

Burger likes the situation so much that he might be reluctant to move back to tight end if asked to do so. He said he would have to analyze the situation in detail.

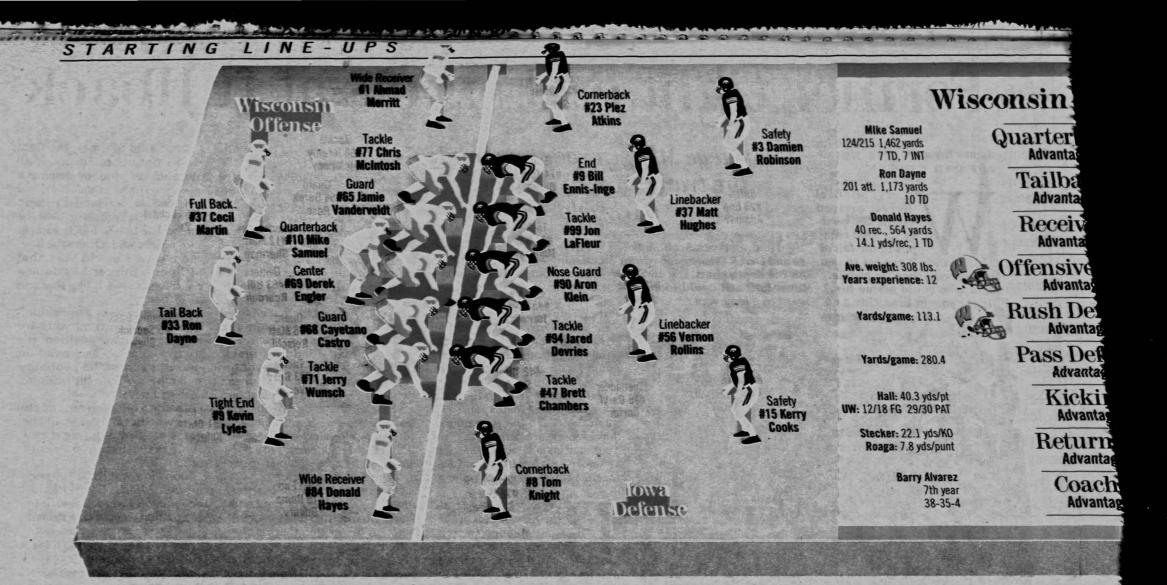

"When I moved, it was on the condition that I was going to stay," he said. "I didn't want to

"The decision is ultimately up to the player. If they asked me to move again, I'd really have to take into consideration if it would be beneficial for the team, and for myself."

GAME NOTES

One more win puts I th a 6-3 record and two games to go, Iowa coach Hayden Fry feels that his team needs one more win to reach a bowl game this season.

"I feel like we have to win one of the last two games," Fry said. "And still, that's not a land-lock. You never know what's going to happen."

Not since 1960 has Iowa finished with six wins and not gone to a bowl game. That feat has never happened in the Hayden Fry era.

"We're not going to go to a bowl game with just six victories because there are too many other teams that will be better than six," Fry said.

With six Big Ten teams already having reached the six win mark and one more within reach of that number, there is a possibility that not every conference team that qualifies will reach a bowl game this season.

"It's going to be very hard for the bowl people to extend invitations to everyone," Fry said.

Five Big Ten teams are guaranteed a bowl game. The conference has contracts with the Rose, Citrus,

The fact that Iowa draws a large crowd when it goes to bowl game has been a major factor in the Hawkeyes being selected in the past. Last year, the Sun Bowl selected the Hawkeyes ahead of Michigan State, even though the Spartans had a better record than

While he would like his team to make it to the best bowl possible, Fry said that any bowl would do as far as he is concerned.

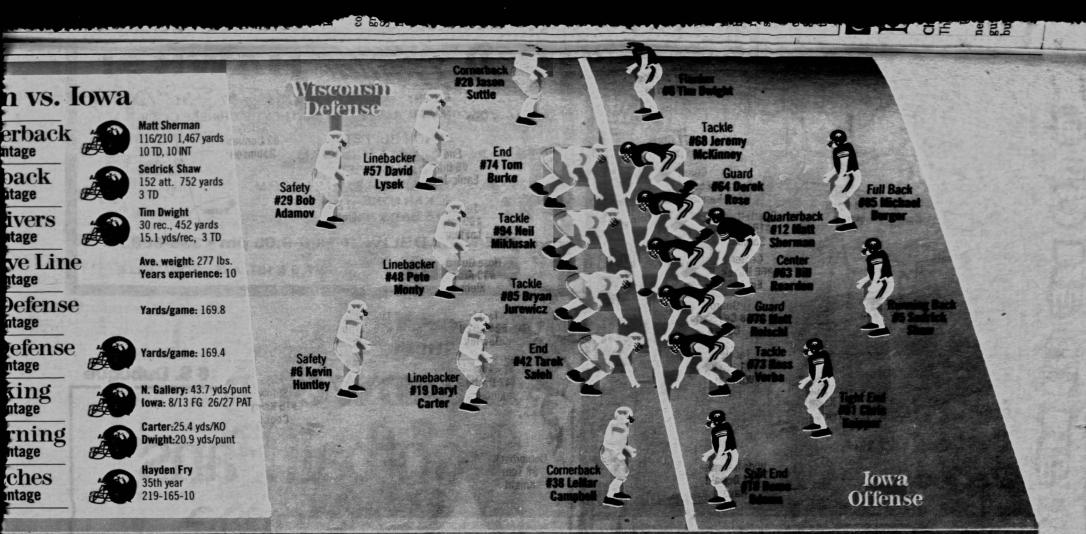

"There is no such thing as a bad bowl," Fry said. "They're all good. It's a bonus. It's a reward for the players. You make money for the University. You give your fans an opportunity to go.

"The big thing with me is we get 16 more days of practice to give our young people all that coaching which will carry over to the next year."

Those extra days will come in particularly handy if the NCAA cuts down on spring practice again this year. Currently, teams are allowed fifteen days of spring practice and only ten days in pads

"I look for them to keep cutting back," said Fry, who has taken the Outback, Alamo and Sun Bowls. Hawkeyes to 12 bowl games in 17

JULIE BILL THE DAILY IOWAN

SOPHOMORE SENSATIONS: Vernon Rollins and Matt Hughes will give Iowa a pair of talented linebacker for years to come.

Tony Wirt THE DAILY IOWAN

pposites do attract, even when you're alking about college linebackers.

Sophomores Matt Hughes and Vernon Rollins, who came from very different backgrounds, are not only the starting linebackers on the Iowa football team, but are also good friends off the field.

"We're really close," Hughes said. "We get along really well. We do a lot of things together. We lift together, We room together. We also have the common bond of being linebackers. We always have that to talk about, but that's not it, we're friends outside of football, too.

Vernon Rollins grew up in Hackensack, N.J., a large metropolitan area near New York. Hughes came from Eastland, Texas, a rural community where he graduated with a class of 48

"Our personalities really aren't that similar, but it seems like opposites attract," Hughes said. "He's from a big city. I'm from a small town. You wouldn't think that we'd be such good friends, but we have the common bond of football."

While in high school, Rollins racked up a number of awards and was one of the most prized recruits in New Jersey. He was named a first-team All-American by Super Prep, USA Today, and Parade, as well as being named the Gatorade New Jersey Player of the Year.

Hughes, however, was not as highly touted coming out of high school. In fact, he had never even played linebacker until he came to the University of Iowa. In high school, he was a running back and free-safety.

Although being recruited strongly by many Texas schools, Hughes decide to come to Iowa after attending a basketball game at Carver-Hawkeye Arena and seeing the type of fan support the Hawk ollins strong linebacker background helped him to start as a freshman last season. Hughes had to use his redshirt year and freshman year to adjust to the new position.

The fact that Bobby Diaco, who led Iowa in tackles the past two seasons, was ahead of Hughes didn't help either.

"He used to come in here in the morning and not leave until nine at night," Rollins said of Diaco, his linebacking partner last season. "So, I learned a lot from him. He used to go every play, hurt or not hurt."

But Rollins knew all along that Hughes would fill Diaco's shoes well this season.

"I feel I know Matt on the and off the field," Rollins said coming into the season. "Matt is a great guy and he'll do a great job in his first year."

And he has.

Hughes and Rollins are first and second on the team in tackles, Hughes the leading tackler with 112, and Rollins right behind with 100.

Both players have been named Big Ten Defensive Player of the Week this season, Rollins for his play in the season opener his effort at Indiana.

go along with his 100 tackles, Rollins has three sacks and six tackles for a loss. Plus, he already has two touchdowns this year, recovering a fumble in the end zone against Arizona, and returning an interception against Illinois.

Hughes is third on the team with five sacks, nine tackles for a loss, and an interception.

This play has not only gained the admiration of many Iowa fans, but they have earned the respect of their teammates as well.

'They're playing great, just as they're supposed to play," senior defensive end Bill Ennis-Inge said, "We know that if it comes down to a one-on-one tackling against Arizona, and Hughes for situation they can make the

"That's what we want to do, put the other teams in situations where they're one-on-one with our linebackers in a small hole. We know they can make the play all the time."

Not only are their personalities and backgrounds different, but Hughes also sees a difference in their styles of play.

'He (Vernon) likes to stick his head in there and create, it seems like he has no brain cells at times. He just takes people on going full speed and he'll laugh about it, where as I'll get hit pretty hard and I'll be dazed," said

One thing that the two have in common is their love for the game and their desire to win.

"We both like the assignment of playing on Saturday, we both love to win and can't stand to lose. That sense carries us through week by week," Hughes remarked.

Although they are very close, Hughes doesn't see his relationship with Rollins as a unique case on the team.

"We're all good friends, it's not just me and Vernon," Hughessaid, "It's me and Aaron (Klein) or me and Jared DeVries or me and Jon LaFleur ... or anybody, we're all good friends."-

WISCONSIN PREVIEW

Badgers holding on to bowl hopes

Chuck Blount
THE DAILY IOWAN

fter mulling through a mid-season skid which saw Wisconsin drop four games in a row, three by a combined total of 10 points to top-15 teams, the Badgers' balloon was nearly deflated.

At one point in the season, after a controversial loss to Northwestern, Badger fans were calling for the head of the man that turned the program into one of the best in the Big Ten — Barry Alvarez.

The players didn't give up, though. Since that skid, Wisconsin has won its last two conference games in dominating fashion, including last week's 45-28 thumping of Minnesota.

"When kids play as well as we did against excellent teams, it really takes a lot out of you," Alvarez said. "But our kids never did lose confidence and eventually good things did happen to us."

Wisconsin (5-4, 2-4 Big Ten) is led by freshman Ron Dayne, a player who doesn't even have his picture in the Badger media guide. Dayne has been named Offensive Player of the Week for the past two weeks.

In his last two games, Dayne has rushed for 541 yards and five touchdowns. Last week, Dayne set an NCAA freshman record with 50 carries.

"Dayne is a remarkable running back. Having him running behind that big line is going to be an extremely difficult test for us," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said.
"I don't think we will be able to stop him, we just have to slow him down."

Alvarez knew he had a good one from the start, but he didn't expect the kind of results Dayne has turned in thus far.

"There aren't many people that big that can run like him or have that kind of athletic ability," Alvarez said. "But there is always that question of 'how can they adjust' from high school to college."

With 1,173 yards rushing, Dayne is second in the league in yards behind Darnell Autry (1,274), but Dayne averages more yards-per-carry than Autry, 5.8 to 5.4.

The key to Dayne's success is the Badger offensive line. Led by 6-7, 378-pound sophomore Aaron Gibson, Wisconsin boasts the league's biggest line. Averaging over 6-5 and 308 pounds a piece, five Badger starters check in over 315 pounds.

"With Gibson in there, it puts a lot of pressure on the outside linebacker," Alvarez said. "I was really impressed with the way they played against Minnesota and I really like how they are getting things done."

Sophomore Mike Samuel runs the offense at quarterback. With 1,452 yards through the air at a 57.7 completion percentage, Samuel has thrown seven touchdowns to go along with seven interceptions. He has been hot lately, though, with four TD passed and no interceptions in the past three games.

Defensively, the Badgers haven't been one of the league's premiere teams. They rank ninth overall, and have given up more passing yardage than any other Big Ten team with 2,524 yards.

"(The secondary) has had their problems," Fry said. "Key injuries at the beginning of the season hurt them. So they have been trying to compensate with a lot of blitzing and stunting."

a lot of blitzing and stunting."
One thing Wisconsin may have a problem with in the Iowa game could be the crowd. The last time Wisconsin has played a game in Iowa City was six years ago.

"None of the guys on our team have played in Iowa City," Alvarez said. "We've been trying to explain how tough it is to play there. It's one of the craziest crowds you'll find."

History will definitely be against Wisconsin. Despite a 35-34-2 Iowa advantage in the all-time series, the Badgers have failed to beat the Hawkeyes in 17 straight meetings, dating back to 1976.

Iowa is the only conference team that coach Barry Alvarez has not beaten in his seven years of coaching.

Sherman, Hawkeyes light up Badgers on paper, the Hawkeyes aren't going to win easily. But if you take into account the x-factor - last year's performance - Iowa will have what it takes to win a

Iowa's once-promising postseason outlook now seems to be aiming again toward the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas. If the must-win game Saturday.

Iowa 27, Wisconsin 24 year ago, Iowa's bowl possibilities looked bleak. The Hawkeyes had just lost a heartbreaker to Northwestern and needed to beat Wisconsin in order to work their way into a nice bowl game.

One year later, it's deja vu all over again.

Almost.

The differences between last year's game and this year's are slight, but worth noting. When the Hawkeyes faced the underrated Badgers a year ago:

· the game was at Camp Randall, not in Kinnick.

· Iowa had just four Division I victories, not six.

· Iowa had a four-game losing streak, not a one-game skid.

But even with seemingly unbearable odds stacked against them, the Hawkeyes put together one of their best performances of the season to knock off Wisconsin, 33-20, on the Hawkeyes have any say in it, that won't happen. It may look like Iowa is losing heart as the season winds down. but make no mistake, the Hawkeves will fight like war> riors in their final two battles. Don't expect Wisconsin to play dead, though. Evander Holyfield beat Mike Tyson with amazing heart and a solid game plan, but it still took him 11 rounds to knock the champ off.

Wisconsin is much better than its 5-4 record indicates. The Badgers came within three points of Penn State and Ohio State, then lost to Northwestern when they

If you look at this year's game fumbled while trying to run the clock out.

For starters, Iowa needs to silence Ron Dayne - a freshman running back who sparked the Badgers with 297 yards on the ground last week. The Hawkeyes may get trampled early, but only those with shortterm memory can forget what the Hawkeyes do to their opponents in the second half.

Iowa's win this weekend will look real familiar - like the 37-30 win over Michigan State or the 21-20 win over Penn State. In those games, Iowa trailed 23-10 and 20-14 at halftime, respectively.

Iowa will come out slow and Wisconsin will take the early edge. But if the Badgers don't take a 30-point lead into that locker room at halftime, they might as well warm up the bus.

The Iowa defense, led by runstoppers Jared DeVries, Matt Hughes, Vernon Rollins and Damien Robinson, will bruise knock him into his senior year. That will work out fine, because if Robinson gets in a few good licks, Dayne won't know what grade he's in anyway - or what state he's in, for that matter.

Then the Hawkeye offense will turn it up. The ever-increas ing Ryan Driscoll fan club will be silenced when Iowa quarterback Matt Sherman finds so many holes in the Wisconsin secondary, he makes the Badgers look like swiss cheese. (Get it? Cheese, Wisconsin?)

And running back Sedrick Shaw? Forget about it. He'll find so many holes in the Wisconsin defensive line, he'll make the Badgers look like ... OK, I'll stop Wisconsin kicker John Hall is the best in the Big Ten Conference, and he'll be the only Badger on the scoreboard in the second half. But Iowa's kicking theory is, "Two is better than one." Brion Hurley and Zach Bromert each knock in a field goal and Iowa edges the Badgers, 27-24.

An 11th-round knockout.

WEEK IN THE BIG

Ohio State cruises to Big Ten title with victory

ichigan can't ruin Ohio State's dreams this year. The Buckeyes will stamp their tickets to Pasadena this weekend while Northwestern will settle for second place in the conference.

When was the last time that sentence was spoken?

This is the final time these words will be typed by the same person whose enjoyed doing this for the past two years. It's been Illinois at Minnesota.

This might sound like a typical conversation before the game at mid-field:

"Hey Lou, how's the job treauh sorry."

"That's okay Jim how's things in Minnesota....uh sorry."

Although this is the Job Placement Bowl, I wouldn't want to play either one of these teams if my bowl hopes were on the line. Right Michigan? The series between these two teams is dead even at 25-25-3. Surprisingly, Illinois is 8-1-1 at the Metrodome.

The Golden Gophers aren't

Illini's Robert Holcombe. Holcombe ran through Minnesota's defense last year for 206 yards. But then again Illinois' defense isn't making anybody wet their pants either.

Minnesota's Tutu Atwell and Ryan Thelwell combine for 10.1 catches per game and 163 yards. This is important information for the Illini's secondary and their job security.

Minnesota freshman RB Thomas Hamner is also looking to break a radioactive squirrel record this weekend. Hamner needs 200 yards in his last two games to become only the second freshman running back at Minnesota to go over 1,000 yards. The battle of coaches who aren't really there goes to Minnesota, 21-17. Ohio State at Indiana.

Some might say that the Buckeyes will be looking forward to Michigan next week. Some might also say, I'm looking forward to my proctology appointment next week.

Ohio State gave up 130 yards of offense to Illinois last week. Twenty-nine of those yards came on a fake punt. Ouch, babe. Indi-of the week in punter Alan Sutkowski. Uh what else, the Hoosiers have nice red uniforms and turf.

The Buckeyes have the best rushing defense, best offense, and they will be taking on Heman for supreme control of the universe later next week.

Indiana might have to rely on freshman RB Jason Spear to fill in for an injured Alex Smith. Spear ran for 103 yards last week against Michigan State.

The toughest test for the Hoosiers will be how to remove the Buckeye tattoo from their rear ends after this one.

Ohio State, 45-7. Purdue at Northwestern.

Gary Barnett's boys proved they could rebound from the spanking they took in Happy Valley, tearing through Iowa City last weekend. Northwestern is now back on track for a New Year's Day bowl berth.

Purdue did their soon-to-bedeparted coach an honor last weekend by defeating Michigan, but it will be reality check time when the Boilermakers roll into games. The senior has completed 64 percent of his passes for 500 yards with a pair of touchdowns and no interceptions.

Northwestern's D'Wayne Bates has 1,000 yards receiving and 10 touchdowns. The sophomore also averages 17 yards per catch. Wildcat QB Steve Schnur scorches opposing secondaries for 225 yards per contest.

The Boilermakers have won 15 of their last 18 games against Northwestern, but so has everybody else until now. Northwestern has won the last two meetings, both in West Lafayette.

The best match-up may be Purdue's Jamel Coleman vs. Bates. Coleman needs just three picks to become the all-time leader for the Boilermakers. He also has 17 pass break ups. He needs 3 more for the team record.

Purdue will play with emotion again, but ...

Northwestern, 30-10. Penn State at Michigan.

The premier game of the week doesn't really matter in the run for the Roses. When was the last time that happened? I'm sure the Wolverines have been taking it easy, practicing in their looking forward to facing the ana did have the Big Ten player been dy-no-mite the last two nice, warm indoor facility in Ann Arbor after last week's loss to Purdue.

Even though Michigan has been untouchable at the Big House, if the Wolverines win on Saturday it will be the first time since 1986 that they finished their home schedule undefeated.

Michigan kicker Remy Hamilton owns the team record for career field goals at 58. The Big Ten record is 67. Sophomore QB Scott Dreisbach has six career 200-yard passing games, two shy of the record held by Jim Harbaugh.

On the other sideline, Penn State's Curtis Enis needs to rumble for 69 more yards to go over 1,000. But the sophomore isn't just deadly from the backfield. Enis needs just four more receptions to break the Nittany Lion running back record of 26.

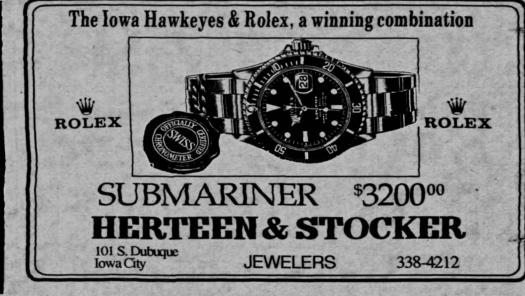

Smile, Paterno. You're on national television again. Paterno is 102-49-1 in nationally televised games. Most television stars don't last that long.

This is tough call, but 106,000 fans can't be wrong.
