planned for 2 UI buildings

Melanie Mesaros The Daily Iowan

The UI will unveil plans for a new biology building and skywalk at an Iowa City City Council work session tonight.

The project's Phase I, which includes the construction of the new facility on the corner of Iowa Avenue and Dubuque Street and a skywalk across Dubuque Street that would connect the existing Biology Building to the new one, will cost $17.7 million, UI Director of Facilities Services Group Richard Gibson said. The UI will seek approval by the council for the skywalk at a later

While building plans are still being formulated, Gibson said the plans include a contemporary architectural building with limestone to match Van Allen

"The new building is going to have a modern research lab, a partial basement, plus three stories, plus a greenhouse on top," Gibson said.

Gibson said also the building will house a lecture hall and the skywalk will be constructed of as much transparent material as the budget will allow.

Councilor Karen Kubby said she is concerned about the loss of open space and the sculpture on the corner of Iowa Avenue and Dubuque Street. "If it is not designed just right, the ceiling of openness is lost," she said. "We will lose some city art." Kubby said the UI considered an underground tunnel connecting the buildings, but grade issues and the cost of elevators would be too expensive.

"I wish the grade issues would have worked so they would have gone underground," Kubby said.

Kubby said she would like to consider feedback from other groups, such as the Downtown Strategy Committee, before she makes her final decision about the project. Phase II involves the remodeling of the old biology building and will cost around $13 million, Gibson said.

"The $13 million is not yet funded," he said. "There will be a request in for the year 2000 to the (Iowa state) Board of Regents."

The UI also will need approval for the construction of the project from the Board of Regents on Nov. 21, Gibson

"We hope to get started on the construction sometime in April or May on Phase I of the project," he said.

However, Gibson said the UI will begin an air-conditioning and chilled water project for the new building and existing building on Dec. 23, provided it receives approval from the Iowa state Board of Regents.

This project will maintain one lane of traffic on Jefferson Street and will make intersections partially open.

Skywalk SCOPE desires Carver face-lift

Jennifer Cassell The Daily Iowan

UI sophomore Allison Bair has spent numerous hours traveling from Iowa City to Ames to attend concerts by Tori Amos and Natalie Merchant.

But with the efforts of the Student Commission on Programming and Entertainment (SCOPE), Bair will be able to attend big-name performances right here at the UI.

SCOPE, along with Campus Programs, is looking to renovate rigging in Carver-Hawkeye Arena to allow larger bands to perform there.

The committee plans for construction will begin in the April/May time frame and will take about six to eight weeks to complete, David Grady, director of Campus Programs, said.

Although it is possible to hold minimal-maintenance concerts in Carver-Hawkeye currently, Grady

"We want to make sure the venue is safe for patrons of concerts and for the people who hang the lights."

David Grady, director of Campus Programs said rigging inside the arena has to be modified in order to house bands who require lots of equipment and hanging lights.

"We want to make sure the venue is safe for patrons of concerts and for the people who hang the lights," he said.

Dan Smith, public relations director for SCOPE Productions, said their ultimate goal is to bring the concerts to Carver-Hawkeye that would provide new music experiences for UI students.

Bair said traveling to Ames is a "pain in the butt" and she would much rather see concerts at the UI. "The fact that I wouldn't have to travel three hours to get (to Ames) would be great," she said.

UI junior Adam Jones said he would like to see some big tours come through Iowa City. "I've never gone to Ames to see a concert," he said. "But I think it'd be great if some big names came through Iowa City. If they brought good groups here, I'd go.' Grady said Campus Programs, SCOPE and the UI Student Government have been working together to get the project under-

However, Smith said the technical facilities of the arena prohibit most concerts, and Nine Inch Nails paid for all of the damages in UI graduate student Nate Brixius attended the Nine Inch Nails concert and said if crowds could be controlled, Carver-Hawkeye Arena is a good concert venue.

"The security was nonexistent at that concert," he said. "But it's not a bad place to see a concert."

Despite its lack of adequate facilities, Carver-Hawkeye has seen performances of several big-name musicians in previous years, such as Elton John, Garth Brooks, Guns 'N' Roses and Billy Joel. Smith said if the renovations do allow for big-

'Naked Truth' gets new network, identity

NEW YORK (AP) - Tea Leoni's sitcom "The Naked Truth" has a new home, moving to NBC to join "Friends" and "Seinfeld."

Leoni's character of Nora, however, is getting an identity transplant, according to Entertainment Weekly.

When the series was on ABC, Nora was a klutzy photographer for a trashy newspaper. When it shows up on NBC in January, she will be a writer for a slick entertainment magazine.

"It was suggested that a pink elephant walking into a circus was not as funny as a pink elephant walking into a tea party," Leoni said.

'ER' doctor to play killer in 'Cold Blood' remake

NEW YORK (AP) — There's no sugar-coating in the remake of "In Cold Blood," starring Anthony Edwards of "ER" and Eric Roberts in the murder saga by the late Truman Capote.

"We made it look exactly like what would happen if you put a shotgun two inches from someone's head and pulled the trigger," director Jonathan Kaplan

"But it was all shot in a way that would be acceptable to network television," he told Entertainment Weekly.

Edwards was drawn to the TV miniseries, set for broadcast on CBS later this month, by the difference between his "ER" character as a life-saving doctor and the "Cold Blood" role of real-life killer Dick Hickok.

"The spirit of it is just bizarrely sick," he said.

Saturday night fire causes extensive damage

A two-alarm fire Saturday night at 2412 E. Washington St. took the Iowa City Fire Department approximately 30 minutes to control and caused almost $70,000

The fire began in the attic of the residence, but the cause of the fire is not yet known. There were no injuries in the fire.

Three engines, one ladder truck and the Battalion Chief responded to a fire call and found heavy flames showing from the roof shortly before 10 p.m.

The heavy fire was confined to the attic area. Fire crews had to pull parts of the ceiling off to extinguish the fire. The roof sustained heavy smoke and water damage and the rest of the house sustained considerable structure damage.

ICDF called in 10 off-duty firefighters and requested assistance from the West Branch and Coralville fire departments.

CIA image problems

little Friday night insomniac channelsurfing led my twitchy thumb to one of the more interesting bits of public theater I've seen in quite a while. C-SPAN was televising a town hall meeting at a high-school auditorium in South Central Los Angeles, where CIA Director John Deutch addressed community concern over recent allegations the CIA was a major contributor to the crack explosion of

For those who haven't followed the story, in August the San Jose Mercury News published a series called "Dark Alliance," which charged that Nicaraguan cocaine traffickers, linked to and protected by the CIA, had brought large quantities of cocaine and automatic weapons into this country and exported millions of dollars of drug profits to help finance the anti-Communist Contras. The series was later critiqued by the Los Angeles Times, The New York Times, and The Washington Post.

But as the editor of the Mercury News pointed out, all of the critical articles accepted parts of its core finding as fact - drug dealers associated with

The "Dark Alliance" series charges, however, that the CIA-linked traffickers essentially created the crack explosion. No doubt Director Deutch was ready for a hostile audience at Locke High School, judging from the phalanx of LAPD stationed along the walls, or the stone-faced phantoms who hovered in the curtains behind the podium. Yet even Deutch seemed surprised at the anger and skepticism of the audience. As Representative Juanita McDonald repeatedly called for an end to the hoots, jeers and applause that followed each denunciation of the CIA and the government in general, few people in the audience seemed to believe the promised investigation by the CIA's Inspector General would be anything but a farce.

Many of the audience's "questions" had nothing to do with the actual controversy. The second woman who spoke asked what Deutch was planning to do to help revitalize South Central after the riots - as if he were the Secretary of HUD. McDonald agreed they needed federal money to rebuild, and said she was working on it. Another speaker charged that Representative McDonald didn't really care about her constituency, that her son probably went to Duke, while he himself had been carried over as a slave "across the Pacific in 1866." One man asked McDonald how she could even "think of bringing that man [Deutch] here." Another asked when Deutch was going to allow Rev. Louis Farrakhan to "raise us up." The session ended in chaos, with a woman standing on her chair shouting about Medicare over McDonald's futile protestations, like those of a substitute teacher who has completely lost control of her classroom.

There were some disturbing allegations made as well, including those of a white former LAPD cop named Mike Ruppert, who claimed he had been kicked off the force and shot at for trying to investigate CIA-linked drug dealers 18 years ago. Several older women spoke quite movingly of losing their grandchildren to crack-inspired violence. But the general tone of the event could be heard in the comments made by a convicted drug dealer due to be sentenced on Tuesday along with Ricky Ross, who provided the conduit from the Nicaraguans to the black community and became rich in the process. Why was he being sentenced to five years, he demanded, and Ricky Ross to life, when the CIA had brought the drugs in in the first place?

At the end of the meeting, Deutch thanked the audience for coming and said their comments had inspired him to redouble the agency's fight against the drug plague. Then, he headed for the exits, the man who had rather briefly represented the U.S. government in toto — negligent father, evil slave master — looking much relieved the whole ordeal was over.

Unfounded arguments

To the Editor: I am writing to express my anger at David Hogberg's article "Time to fix what affirmative action has done" (DI, Nov. 15). His assumptions concerning the reason why African-Americans drop out of "major universities" are unfounded. What exactly is a major university? I wonder if the drop out rates for historically black colleges show that same trend. I wonder if it has ever occurred to Mr. Hogberg if there were other reasons, besides academic, for the increased dropout rate? Financial difficulty may have played a large part.

Also, since Mr. Hogberg is not African-American, he does not know firsthand what it is like to be a black student at a predominantly white university. In addition to completing our assignments, studying and performing well on exams, many black students also have to deal with living in an environment where they are treated differently because of the color of their skin. Since Mr. Hogberg is not black, I doubt he would know what that is like.

African-Americans make up less than 3 percent of the student population at the UI. If affirmative action is meant to fill quotas representative of each racial group present in society, then someone must have forgotten to mention that to the African-American students that were not admitted to UI.

I find it insulting for Mr. Hogberg to insinuate that racial tensions exist because there are separate organizations for minority students. Racial tensions exist because discrimination and prejudice still exist. The organizations exist in order for minority students to connect with other minority students. It is very difficult to go to a school where there are very few people that look like you. Since David Hogberg is not African-American, he will never know what that is like.

I very rarely run across other African-American students on this campus. The reason is that there aren't that many in first place. If there are quotas to be filled, lowa doesn't seem to be filling them.

Conservative solutions To the Editor,

First of all, I would like to say that your choice of timing for the article 'Dangerous Precedents" (DI, Nov. 11) by Kim Painter, was very poor. In light of the celebration of Veterans Day, her commentary showed how little regard people have for this great nation and the people who fought to make it free.

The men and women who have sacrificed for us to be in this country deserve more respect than what Painter or you have given them in last Monday's paper. They have given us the right to be free, to do as we please and yes, for those of you who are liberal, the right to whine and cry about those very people who put us here.

As for the police department, and her underlying messages in regard to the recent killing of Eric Shaw, she has no idea what it is like being in the situations an officer is put into each day. These officers are human — they do experience fear and they do make mistakes, which is an unfortunate fact of life. No amount of training or experience can change that fact.

Kim Painter has liberal political views and I do not think anyone would argue that. I am sure that her views on gun control will follow every other liberal in this nation: No guns. The funny thing about that is, if private citizens are able to own guns and use them if need be, there would not be the need to be "protected" by the police.

I do not see her signing up for the military, trying to change this "testosterone-driven" country. I think she needs to remember that this country was built on the testosterone of men and women (women have testosterone too). I think she needs to reflect on that fact. I realize that this is an opinion that may be negative to your paper, but I sincerely hope that this letter will be published for all to read, so the veterans of this country get the respect they fought so very hard to counter at Wal-Mart, give your videotape and CD covers a good look. The store may be trying to sanitize your mind. This stunning bit of news arrived recently as The New York Times paid some heightened attention to the chain giant's policies on censorship. Wal-Mart touts itself as a family store. This may mean different things to different people, but it means very specific things to Wal-Mart. Increasingly, artists in film and music find their work being retooled to receive this imprimatur and the access to golden Wal-Mart shelf space it provides.

Kim Painter

According to The Times, Wal-Mart sold 52 million of the 615 million CDs purchased in the U.S. in 1995 and boasts overall the highest popular music sales in the country. The store's policies have begun to warp the music and film industries in such a way consumers may not even know when steps have been taken to accommodate them.

labels and bands will design new covers and booklets, drop songs from their albums, electronically mask objectionable words and even change lyrics in order to gain a place on Wal-Mart's shelves," the paper reported.

In cinematic terms, "film studios are recutting movies, removing scenes and changing video boxes, often without the director's consent," and not just for Wal-Mart. The Blockbuster video and and bring the same pressures to bear with similar results. Amazingly, there's no requirement to warn consumers of the alterations - though a push is on to get Congress to update consumerprotection laws in light of the trend. Given the current configuration of Congress and its tendency to legislate (if not practice) morality, success seems unlikely. The new form of corporate extortion seems to have come over America like a thief in the night. You may be hard-pressed to get upset because a band called White Zombie chose to alter song lyrics to get shelf-space at Wal-Mart, but you should be upset. While the lyrics excised by White Zombie may or may not be to your taste, the censorship mania does not stop with White Zombie, raunchy rappers or gore-splashed video inger Sheryl Crow released a self-titled CD in September. A Wal-Mart press release explains the store's decision not to carry the work, which is said to have cut 10 percent off Crow's sales.

"Specifically, Wal-Mart objects to the lyrics in the song 'Love is a Good Thing,' suggesting that Wal-Mart sells guns to children, allowing them to 'kill each other.' Even though the message of the song was anti-violence, we believe the reference to Wal-Mart selling guns to children is an unfair comment. It is particularly offensive to our associates who work hard each year helping their communities with the needs of our youth.

So, you can make a living as an artist in America, as long as your art reflects the self-perception of the commercial giants who retail and make millions off your work. And what a castle in the sands of delusion that self-perception is! The big chain stores blow out local competitors on arrival, then face widespread allegations of mistreatment from the local workers they hire. They are the bottom feeders of America's economy. If a person had to choose which is worse: The worst lyrics of White Zombie or Wal-Mart's effect for the soul of America - to say the very least, it would be a tough deci-

One supposes Wal-Mart would have denied shelf space to Thomas Paine's "Common Sense" in the context of the pre-Revolutionary colonies. The corporate giant should be ashamed, perhaps most of all because of the many people who shop there who would be hard-pressed to get by without the bargains. America's families may deserve a price break. They certainly deserve more corporate honesty than Wal-Mart, Kmart and Blockbuster seem willing to give them.

Some of the music and films altered to fit their view of the world probably deserve to languish on the floor. But the implications of the Sheryl Crow case indicate what one might expect: Corporations will never know where to draw the line. This often has been the case with American censors, and it is the main reason America has had the wisdom to reject so many forms of censorship.

Here's hoping that wisdom continues to thrive, and America finds a way to rebuke its favorite places to buy cheap.

Kim Painter's column appears Mondays on the Viewpoints Pages.

We can fight for tuition waivers and real health care now because thousands of working people who never met us (members of the United Electrical Workers) supported our campaign with their union dues.

Solidarity is a powerful force, and it is sometimes the opponents of collective action who understand this best. One of my keenest memories from Iowa City protests of the Gulf War is of an hysterical young man shouting from the edge of a large anti-war demonstration. "What you're doing is futile! What you're doing is futile!" he said over and over again.

Group Effort

The young man was wrong, of course. But then the point of his statement was persuasion, not description. What he understood, if only in a half-conscious way, is that the best means of combating the power of solidarity and collective action is to deny its existence, to persuade others their actions are futile.

Efforts to convince people their actions are futile are usually more sophisticated than this - a process of selective memory, distortion, insinuation. Hence, when the UI administration revoked its homophobic classroom materials policy last year, no mention was made of the hundreds of graduate students, undergraduates and faculty who had opposed the policy in word and deed.

Last month, when the administration reversed a decision to exclude graduate employees from faculty searches in Rhetoric, not a word was said about the 24 graduate instructors who filed a grievance and pressed for reconsideration. And last summer, when the administration acceded to union arguments and raised the minimum salary by $2,000, it was silent about the negotiations that produced this victory. Substantial pay increases were planned all along, the administration claimed. Never mind the weeks of intensive discussion with COGS' negotiators. Never mind the signed agreements increasing base pay. Never mind the union has had to fight to enforce these agreements in the Business School and elsewhere. The source of progressive change, the administration insists, is never our activity but always the UI's benevolence.

These suppressions and distortions should not surprise anyone. As a corporate entity with its eye on the bottom line (just ask 250 downsized UI Hospitals and Clinics workers), the UI wants passivity from its work force, not participation. And as a bureaucratic institution largely insulated from democratic control by its academic and staff communities and the students it is supposed to serve, the UI cannot afford to recognize the success of collective action. Tasting success, these communities might unite around issues of tuition costs and class size, of working conditions and real public accountability, and demand that the UI serve all our needs.

Graduate employees have tasted success, and we will move forward if we act together. We must continue to build our union and mobilize to improve our working conditions. Those of us who haven't joined the union must do so. Those who have joined the union but remain inactive must contribute what we can of time and energy. All of us must work for a contract that supports graduate lives and graduate studies.

For the past several weeks the administration has dragged its feet in negotiations, refusing to seriously consider our proposals for improved health care, for tuition waivers and for contractual guarantees against discrimination, saying, in effect, "What you're doing is futile." Our most effective answer, as always, will be found in our numbers and our solidarity.

Gingrich under fire as House picks heads

David Espo Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Judging from appearances, it's hard to tell the winners from the losers as newly elected members of the House gather to elect leaders for the Congress convening in January.

Having just led Republicans to their first back-to-back triumphs in almost seven decades, Speaker Newt Gingrich will be renominated today despite being under strong fire from some of his own troops.

Having just lost the House for a second consecutive election, Democrats appear ready to reaffirm their entire high command, beginning with Minority Leader Richard Gephardt, without a hint of struggle.

This stands in sharp contrast to two years ago, when Gephardt had to fend off a conservative's challenge while chants of "Newt, Newt, Newt" filled the House chamber as Republicans anoint-

This time, Gingrich is struggling against a backdrop of ethics charges and a persistently bad public image. Some rank and file Republicans seem chastened by searing reelection campaigns in which many were attacked as puppets whose strings were pulled by their unpopular leader. Others chafe at the power Gingrich has accumu-

With the panel still deliberating, they've obviously also become a source of concern for some Republicans.

Rep. Christopher Shays, a moderate and longtime ally of the speaker, said he didn't want to vote for Gingrich on the House floor until he could see the panel's report on the subject. Shays watched in dismay this lican candidates.

Rep. Steve Largent, a conservative from Oklahoma, kicked off the public expressions of concern by telling a television interviewer it might be a good idea for Gingrich to step aside while the ethics charges are resolved, with Judiciary Committee Chairperson Henry Hyde becoming temporary speaker.

Asked if others in Congress shared his view, Largent said, "I think behind closed doors there would be, but publicly people are maybe fearful to say that on national TV."

To the relief of Gingrich's office, Hyde quickly disavowed any interest. Largent talked with Gingrich two days later in what aides to the speaker said was apologetic terms. "I believe he regrets any problem this created for the speaker," spokesperson Nick Thimmesch said on Friday. He said Largent will vote for Gingrich today.

Officials look into weight sensor for air bags

WASHINGTON - Trying to prevent more child deaths from inflating air bags, highway safety officials are exploring whether weight sensors could be used to shut off air bags when small children occupy passenger seats.

As the number of youngsters killed by air bags mounts - so far 30 children's deaths are attributed to the devices - officials are pushing automakers to come up with a viable solution.

Manufacturers warn that highly sophisticated sensing systems will not appear in air bags until the next century. Those systems would use technologies such as infrared or ultrasound to detect passengers who are out of proper position on the seat and automatically adjust air bag deployment to protect

But for now, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is considering whether a weightsensor device used in German luxury cars to prevent air bag deployment in an unoccupied seat can be adapted to save lives. The goal would be to shut off an air bag for a person weighing 66 pounds or less, the weight of an average 10-system can detect weights within a margin of error of plus or minus 20 percent. But General Motors Corp. officials argue the mat could unintentionally suppress the bag for an adult, pointing out, for instance, that a seated adult loses about 35 percent of body weight when leg weight is on the floor.

"We are hesitant to rush into technology that might be pretty good. Pretty good is not good enough," said Chrysler spokesperson Jason Vines.

The engineering company's Abraham acknowledges the mats also cannot detect if there is added weight because of a child seat. That's why IEE officials recommend using the mat system with a child seat coming on the market that can "talk" to the mat.

Mercedes is introducing such a system - called BabySmart into its two-seater SLK sports cars in January.

New drug to be tested on Alzheimer's patients

The drug, used in only mild doses, was tested on students in their early 20s and on men aged 65 to 70 and the results were "particularly striking" among the older people, Lynch said. He delivered a report on the drug Sunday at a national meeting of the Society for Lynch said clinical trials of the drug consisted of memory tests conducted with and without CX-516.

The elderly could recall, on average, only one of the syllables. The score for the young men averaged four out of 10.

The subjects later were given mild doses of mpakine CX-516, then retested. "The results for the 65- to 70-year-old men

Alzheimer's disease, a progressive disorder that destroys memory and other functions of the brain and eventually kills. About 5 million Americans, mostly elderly, have Alzheimer's, and it is estimated the number will climb to 15 million over the next quarter-century as the nation's population ages.

Ampakine CX-516 has been tested only on small groups in clinical experiments to detect any toxic effects. A more definitive test will start next year at the National Institutes of Health, when 16 patients with mild to moderate Alzheimer's disease will be given the drug.

Dr. Donald Price, a neuroscience researcher at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, said the new drug is "intriguing and innovative" and that it will influence "a very important synapse" in the brain. However, he said, "I have reservations about its use in Alzheimer's, because it does not directly address the disease mechanism. It is a "I would suspend my enthusiasm until I see the results of the clinical trials. It is quite early" in the drug development process, Price Lynch and co-workers at the University of California, Irvine, discovered the drug in 1991 while searching for compounds to improve mprove the memory of patients with communications between neurons in the switches, called synapses, to remain open for a fractional second longer. This enhances the flow of an amino acid called glutamate. The exchange in effect carries a message from one neuron to another.

In 1993, ampakine CX-516 was tested on laboratory animals. Researchers found older rats given the drug had a dramatically improved ability to find their way out of a maze and to remember the route later.

"It reduced the training session for older rats from 10 to five," Lynch said.

Human trials of the drug started last year. Results will be published in January in the ournal Experimental Neurology.

Tests on humans, using very low doses of the drug, also were conducted using photoraph recognition, odor recollection and learning a pencil maze. In all of these tests, the subjects performed better with ampakine than Lynch said the improvement in memory may be even better with higher doses of the drug. This will be done only after early tests prove the drug has no harmful side effects.

People with the greatest amount of memory deficit seemed to benefit most from the drug, which makes it promising for Alzheimer's disease. Lynch said though the drug appears to sharpen memory, there is no indication it will affect some of the behavioral aspects of Alzheimer's that are not associated with mem-

Russian space program suffers blow as Mars mission dives into Pacific

SYDNEY, Australia - Russia's new space probe to Mars failed shortly after blastoff and came crashing back into the Pacific Ocean today, averting a direct hit to Australia and a remote danger of nuclear contamination.

Pieces of the probe crashed at 12:34 p.m. Australian time (7:34 p.m. Sunday CST) into the Pacific Ocean, 900 miles southeast of reentry. Easter Island and 1,800 miles west of Santiago, Chile, said Alan Hodges, director general of the federal disaster coordination agency Emergency Management Aus-

Holtz hints at possible retirement

Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz has been dodging questions about his future all week, and Sunday was no different. He hinted at leaving and refused again to deny that he wasn't - then threw in a few references to next season just to make things interesting.

"We can talk about this forever, but there isn't much I'm going to say," he said. "But there's a time and a place for everything. There's a time and a place to address certain questions, there's a time and place of who to address it to. Right now, in the media is not the time.'

Holtz is expected to announce this week that he will leave after his 11th season at Notre Dame. Though he claims he hasn't made up his mind, he's already discussed his plans with athletic director Mike Wadsworth and the Rev. William Beauchamp, the university's executive vice president.

"I think he probably has a clear idea of what he wants to do," Wadsworth said. "We're supporters of Lou Holtz, but we will honor his decision."

Iowa defense answers self-imposed challenge

Iowa defensive end Bill Ennis-Inge and free safety Damien Robinson are passionate about

That's why the two seniors were more than pleased with Saturday's 31-0 shutout of Wisconsin at Kinnick Stadium, especially after last week's 27-point loss to Northwestern.

And that's what brought. them into Iowa defensive lowa coordinator Bob Elliott's Wisconsin 0 office for a talk about the state of the Hawkeye defense this week.

"We talked solely about defense, how we had to make sure that our team was going to play a full game, no matter what happens," Ennis-Inge said. "In the Northwestern game, we kind of fell apart in the end and we never had that happen before."

Elliott wanted to make sure his defense didn't let that happen again.

"He was feeling the same thing and he challenged us - can you regain your self pride back or are you going to let someone take it again from you?," Ennis-Inge said. "When I heard that, I wanted to kill someone right at that point in time. I was ready to play."

The Iowa defense responded with its first shutout since 1992, limiting the Badgers to 128 yards of total offense and allowing them into Iowa territory just once all game. For his part, Elliott was given the game ball.

"I tell you what, I am one happy coach," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said after the game. We needed that one bad and we looked good doing it. That was a tremendous accomplishment, to goose-egg a team of Wisconsin's quality, particularly after what they've done the last couple games."

Iowa moved to 7-3 with the win, 5-2 in the Big Ten. Wisconsin, which had won two games in a row after dropping its first four Big Ten contests, fell to 5-5 overall and 2-5 in the conference.

Ennis-Inge recorded four sacks, caused two fumbles and recovered a third fumble in his final game at Kinnick Stadium.

"Billy Ennis-Inge made the greatest defensive play I've ever seen," Fry said regarding one of Ennis-Inge's forced fumbles. "He's tackling the guy with the ball and you can see he's

With a two-goal lead and only 10 minutes left between Iowa and a Final Four berth, the Hawkeyes self-destructed, allowing underdog Princeton to send the game into overtime, where they eventually won 5-4.

Ranked No. 17 nationally, the Tigers were the lowest ranked team to make the NCAA field. "I can't even put the game into words," Iowa coach Beth Beglin said after the game. "This is almost enough to send me out of coaching altogether. I have absolutely no idea what I'm going to tell those girls when I get into the locker room.

Beglin's frustration was high; the Hawkeyes suffered a similar fate last year, losing 1-0 to Northeastern in a second-round

"I can't figure it out. You work all year to get the home field advantage and the first round bye, and when the time comes (one win before reaching the Final Four) we can't execute," Beglin said.

The Hawkeyes (18-3) held twogoal leads on separate occasions and thought they had the game in check. However, the speedy Princeton attack caught the Hawkeyes off guard, retaliating with every goal.

"Without a doubt, we thought we had them down," Iowa midfielder Kristin Holmes said.

For Beglin, it just added to the disappointment. Giving up a two-goal lead with nine minutes left in the

No. 6 Hawkeyes shocked in Carver

Somebody forgot to tell No. 20 Notre Dame that the No. 6 Iowa women's basketball team hasn't lost at home since February of 1995.

The Fighting Irish, led by senior center Katryna Gaither's 27 points and 14 rebounds, ended that streak, beating the Hawkeyes 61-50 at Carver-Hawkeye Arena Sunday night in the second round of the NIT preseason tournament.

Behind the effort of Gaither in the post, the Hawkeyes were outrebounded by Notre Dame, 47-35, despite a distinct height advantage for Iowa.

"That was the No. 1 key for us going into the game," Notre Dame coach Muffet McGraw said. "We had to do the job on the boards."

When asked about her team's effort on the glass, Iowa coach Angie Lee had a one-word answer.

"Poor. Absolutely and basically non-existent," Lee said. "When you see balls dropping down in front, there is just no excuse for it. That's very disappointing." The Irish also took Iowa out of its game with their 2-1-2 zone defense that forced the Hawkeyes to take shots from the perimeter shots they didn't make. Iowa congame on 59 attempts, a field goal percentage of 30.5.

"I think hesitating was what contributed to the poor shooting," Lee said. "We are not in sync as far as our offense moving, and that will come in time, but it will never be good if you hesitate when you know the shot is there.'

The Iowa men's basketball team cut a 12-point, second-half lead to one, but couldn't get any closer as Marathon Oil left Carver-Hawkeye Arena with an 89-

87 victory Sunday afternoon. The Hawkeyes trailed 78-66 with five minutes, 17 seconds left in the game, but came back via four 3point baskets, one each by Ryan Luehrsmann, Brandon Welsch, Jess Settles and J.R. Koch.

A steal and lay-up by Settles cut the lead to 84-83 with 1:19 to go, but Marathon made enough shots down the stretch to hold on for the win.

Luehrsmann, who started at point guard in the place of an injured Andre Woolridge, actually had a chance to tie the game by making three free throws with no time on the clock. The freshman made his first shot, but missed the next two.

"You can say all you want about just trying to play and learn in an exhibition game, but you get into it and you want to win," Iowa coach Tom Davis said after the game. "The competitive juices take over, so it's a tough game to lose.

The loss was the Hawkeyes' first in two exhibition games this season. "It doesn't count, but it shows you a lot of things you've got to work on," Settles said. "It was a fun game. We got a lot of young guys that got to step up tonight and we're ready to go next week."

Marathon Oil moved to 6-3 on its exhibition tour with the win, having most recently lost games to Colorado and Nebraska. Marathon also has wins over Clemson, Georgia Tech, Auburn, Georgia and Vander-

The Iowa volleyball team came back from a 2-0 deficit to defeat Northwestern Friday night, one day before losing to conference leader Michigan State.

Jennifer Webb's 22 kills and .275 hitting percentage helped Iowa (10-17, 5-11 Big Ten) mount one of its best comebacks of the year. The Wildcats (9-19, 0-15) took the first two games, 15-4, 15-9, before Iowa took three straight, 17-15, 15-6, 15-13.

Michigan State (20-6, 14-2) defeated the Hawkeyes, 15-6, 15-12, 15-5.

The Spartans swept the season series against Iowa, while the Hawkeyes' victory over Northwestern was their first sweep of the season.

"I have very little idea how that happened," UI coach Linda Schoenstedt said of her team's victory. "I think the players knew they were a better team. They really dug deep.'

Northwestern was actually serving match point at 14-11 in the third game. But the Hawkeyes were able to come together and continue the Wildcats' season of frustration. "It was pretty amazing," Schoenstedt said.

"That's volleyball. That match was just a classic

Four Iowa players had double-digit kill totals against the Wildcats. Sharla Johnson had 10 and Jennifer Bell and Julie Williams each had 15.

Northwestern outhit Iowa, however, .247 to .235. The Spartans showed why they are the defending Big Ten champions. Val Sterk had 14 kills and hit with .524 percentage and Jenna Wrobel led the team with 17 kills.

"We just don't have the horses (to compete with Michigan State), as least not yet, anyway." Schoenstedt said.

The Hawkeyes play the last of their home matches this weekend when Penn State and Ohio State come to Carver-Hawkeye Arena on Friday and Saturday, respectively. Both matches are scheduled for 7 p.m.

A couple weeks ago, most of the Iowa defense had probably never heard the name Ron Dayne. By Saturday, the Hawkeyes were sick and tired of it. "That's all we heard about all week, 'Ron Dayne this, Ron Dayne that," Iowa nose guard Aron Klein said. "I was definitely getting sick of it and it makes me happy that we were able to do what we did.'

What the Hawkeyes did was hold Wisconsin's freshman tailback to a season-low 62 yards rushing, just one week after he pounded out 297 yards on the ground against Minnesota.

There was no doubt what Iowa's game plan was Saturday — Stop Ron Dayne.

"Everybody swarmed to the ball and tackled him low. We weren't going to let him run over us," Iowa defensive lineman Jared DeVries

DeVries got in the first two licks and set the tone right away. Dayne's first carry went for two yards and his second was for no gain. DeVries made both stops. "I challenged myself personally," said DeVries, who led the Hawkeyes with nine tackles. "I didn't play well last week; I didn't play the way I'm capable of playing and I wasn't about to have any of that this week."

Bouncing back strong

If there was any question that this Hawkeye squad is different that past teams, Iowa supplied an answer for the third time Saturday. The Hawkeyes have now followed up all three of their losses with a win this

That's a pretty remarkable statistic for a team that dropped five straight games in 1993, five straight in 1994 and four straight last season. "We have a lot of character on this team aspect.

team," Jared DeVries said. Nobody Everybody's throwing the ball wants to lose. It just so happens we've gotten beat a couple times, but we bounce back.'

Shaw assaults record books

With his 143-yard, three-touchdown performance Saturday, Iowa running back Sedrick Shaw hit one milestone, tied a second and came closer to another.

Shaw now has 32 career touchdowns, which ties former Hawkeye Ronnie Harmon's mark. Shaw's 196 total points are the most ever by a non-kicker in Iowa history.

And with 105 or more yards next week in Minnesota, Shaw will become only the eighth back in Big Ten history to surpass 1,000 yards in three consecutive seasons. Of course, anyone who knows

Sedrick Shaw, knows he doesn't much care for personal recognition. "No one should measure a team or a person by their statistical measures," Shaw said. "(One thousand yards) is not the most important thing. The most important thing is to keep winning. What's the purpose of running for 1,000 yards and we don't win the game?"

Another milestone for Shaw came Saturday - his 23rd birthday.

DeVries snatches early honor

Football News came out with its 1996 All-American teams Saturday and named Iowa sophomore defensive lineman Jared DeVries a thirdteam All-American.

DeVries, from Aplington, Iowa, has 57 tackles this season and is four shy of the Hawkeyes' single-season record for tackles-for-loss with 18. He has 10 sacks so far this year.

"It feels real good," DeVries said when he learned of the honor. "Personal recognitions are good, but I don't ever want to get away from the

Unlike most weeks, Iowa quarterback Matt Sherman wasn't the only one who got his name in the passing statistics Saturday. In fact, Sherman was one of four Hawkeye quarterbacks who threw the ball.

Backup Ryan Driscoll relieved Sherman in the fourth quarter, where he completed four-of-six passes for 61 yards. Junior wide receiver Tim Dwight was 0-for-1 on the day. He overthrew Sherman on a trick pass play after taking the handoff on a reverse in the second

And the fourth "quarterback" was bit more successful. Punter Nick Gallery faked a kick in the second quarter and hit Dwight for 17 yards. Unfortunately, Iowa needed 18 yards for the first down.

Shutout a new experience

Only the fifth-year Hawkeye seniors were around when Iowa recorded its last shutout victory -14-0 at Indiana on Nov. 7, 1992. Iowa hasn't shut out Wisconsin since 1968.

Knight moves up the charts

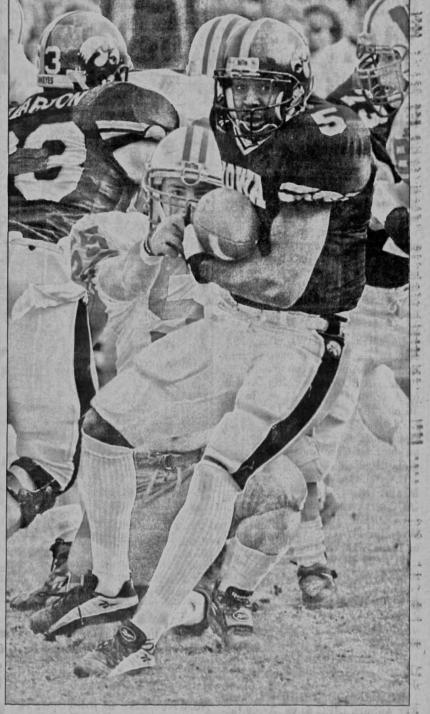

Iowa senior defensive back Tom Knight pulled down his fourth interception of the season Saturday to boost his career total to 10, putting him sixth on Iowa's all-time list.

Knight is the Hawkeyes' career leader in interception return yardage with 237 yards.

Ennis-Inge comes just short

Iowa senior defensive end Bill Ennis-Inge stymied the Badgers with four sacks Saturday, but he wasn't as impressive as Leroy Smith was against Ohio State in 1991. Smith set a Hawkeye record with five that year against the Buckeyes.

Ennis-Inge now has 24 career

Pete Thompson/The Daily Iowan

With 143 yards rushing against Wisconsin Saturday, Iowa senior running back Sedrick Shaw (5) came within 105 yards of the 1,000-yard barrier this season with one game remaining. Shaw could become the third-ever Big Ten back to rush for 1,000 yards in three seasons.

Iowa tallied just three yards on its first two possessions, settling for a field goal despite great field possession on its second drive. But from that point on, the Hawkeyes played both consistently and efficiently.

Iowa's first touchdown drive covered 70 yards on eight plays. Twice the Hawkeyes extended the drive by converting on third down - once on a 6-yard spinning run by Shaw on 3rd and 1, and another on a Wisconsin penalty. Shaw capped the drive with a 29-yard dash into the end zone.

Narrow victories secure lineup spots

For the time being, at least, the lineup for the defending national champion Iowa wrestling team

The top 10 positions were decided this weekend at the team's preseason tryouts, which were held in the wrestling room in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The closeness of several matches made it clear, however, that things could change before the sea-

Three of Saturday's matches were won by just one point. On Friday night, one of two preliminary matches was also decided by a single point. Iowa coach Dan Gable said close battles are typical in a preseason environment.

"Tryout matches are difficult sometimes, especially when you're a new kid coming up," Gable said. "A lot of guys are a little tight. It's hard to tell because sometimes you're afraid to make a mistake in these matches.

The first match Saturday morning pitted freshman Wil Kelly against Mike Mena at 126 pounds.

Mena, a three-time All-American at 118, scored a takedown with 45 seconds left in the third period which helped him hold on for a 5-4 victory. "In the morning, it's always harder to get going,"

"For me, it's a rough measurement. (Wil) is a young kid, obviously he's very talented. But I was in on some shots that I didn't finish, so the score was a little closer than I anticipated.' Mena, who plans on graduating in December, said he's looking to move back to 118 later in the season. He's currently focusing more on his academics, which he hopes will make wrestling easier during the second semester. Mark Ironside had no problems disposing of his 134-pound opponent, Bill Kucinski. Ironside, who finished third last year at the NCAAs, pinned Kucinski with 45 seconds left in the third period. At the 142-pound division, freshman Kasey Gilliss held off junior Eric Koble, 1-0. Gilliss scored his only point on an escape in the second period.

The 167 and 177 matches were not quite as competitive as the rest of Saturday's matches. Mike Uker, an all-American last year at 150, at 190.

defeated Justin Decker, 7-4, to take the 167 match. Tony Ersland was in control throughout most of his 177-pound contest against Lee Weber and won,

Mike Christensen and Wes Hand squared off in the heavyweight match to end the morning session. What transpired was both exciting and interesting at the same time.

Neither of the heavyweights scored in the first two periods. Late in the third period, Hand chose to take the top position and was able to get the 60 seconds of riding time that are required for a point. It turned out to be the only one of the

"That was an unusual call," Gable said. "You don't see that very often. (Hand) knew something I didn't know."

"I felt pretty confident in riding him," Hand said. "That isn't how I want to win every match, but if I have to do it, I will."

The remaining four weights are presently uncontested: Jessie Whitmer at 118, Lincoln McIlravy at 150, Joe Williams at 158 and Lee Fullhart Why wait for bowl pairings?

From the Rose Bowl to the Las Vegas Bowl, postseason matchups are being drawn up even though the season still has a few more impact games to go.

With the creation of the bowl alliance last year, the pairings are simple once the season ends, but who wants to wait?

Only the Rose and Las Vegas bowls have been determined.

As of now, here's the way the bowl lineup is shaping up, taking into consideration the bowls are not obligated to go strictly by conference standings with their selec-

Texas Tech's Byron Hanspard, with 257 yards and four TDs in a 56-21 win over Southwestern Louisiana on Saturday, became the sixth major-college player to break 2,000 yards in a season. ... Washington's Corey Dillon set a onequarter NCAA rushing record with 222 yards in the first quarter of the Huskies' 53-10 win over San Jose State. ... Iowa State's Troy Davis had 138 yards in a 49-14 loss to Nebraska to move within 40 yards of becoming the first major-college back to rush for 2,000 yards twice. At Gainesville, Fla., Danny Wuerffel was 11-of-34 for 290 yards, but threw two TD passes and Fred Taylor had three TDs - two in the fourth quarter - for the Gators (10-0, 8-0 SEC).

The Gamecocks (5-5, 4-4) trailed 35-22 with 51 seconds left in the third period after Troy Hambrick's 2-yard TD run. Hambrick, with 120 yards, was the first back to break 100 yards against the Gators.

No. 2 Ohio State 27, Indiana 17 The Buckeyes are in the Rose Bowl for the first time in 12 years after Matt Finkes' 45-yard fumble return for a touchdown with 6:18 left gave them a 27-17 win over Indiana in Bloomington, Ind.

"Finkes made the most important play of his career," Ohio State coach John Cooper said. "I know it's the most important play of my career."

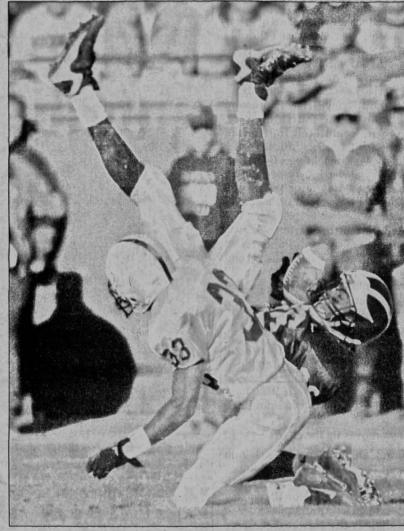

The Buckeyes (10-0, 7-0 Big Ten) were tied 10-10 before their fortunes turned. Jay Rodgers, scrambling for a first down, was stripped of the ball by linebacker Andy Katzenmoyer and Finkes grabbed it and ran untouched into the end

Pepe Pearson carried a careerhigh 37 times for 130 yards, while freshman David Boston had 13 catches for 153 yards to help the Buckeyes.

No. 3 Florida State 54, No. 25 Southern Mississippi 14

At Tallahassee, Fla., Warrick Dunn scored three TDs - one on a 77-yard pass play - as the Seminoles (9-0) rolled up 548 yards.

With a win next week by FSU against Maryland, both the Seminoles and Florida would bring unbeaten records into their game Nov. 30. Southern Miss fell to 8-3.

Davis needs 40 yards next week against Kansas State to become the first major-college back to rush for 2,000 twice. Iowa State (2-8, 1-6) lost its sixth straight.

At Boulder, Koy Detmer and Herchell Troutman scored TDs, and freshman cornerback Damen Wheeler had two interceptions as the Buffs (9-1, 7-0 Big 12) set up a key conference matchup against Nebraska on Nov. 29. The winner clinches a berth in the Big 12 title game as the league's North Division

Kansas State (8-2, 5-2) managed only 228 total yards as its big bowl hopes faded with the loss.

The loss damaged Alabama's (8-2, 5-2) big bowl chances if the Tide fail to win the SEC title.

Welcome to "Space Jam," the latest and greatest promotional tool for Jordan. Forget the cologne, forget the Big Macs this is publicity at its height with all the big names: Jordan, Bill Murray, Charles Barkley, Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck, to name a few. It's a field day for the stars and their younger audience.

A modern day Bugs Bunny and his Looney Tunes friends are in danger of being kidnapped by the alien Nerdlucks and taken to Moron Mountain, a failing amusement park located somewhere between the moon and Mars. In an effort to save themselves, Bugs Bunny and company challenge the Nerdlucks to a basketball tournament.

After the Nerdlucks secretly steal the talent from NBA players like Barkley, Patrick Ewing and Muggsey Bogues, Bugs kidnaps retired NBA player Jordan while he is playing golf. Bugs persuades

Jordan to take up the sport again for the sake of human-kind and his kids' afternoon TV shows, and the training and competition

Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" this movie is not. With the opening shots looking like a bad TV show, the line between believe and make-believe is badly drawn over, literally.

This is no surprise, however, since director Joe Pytka's previous credits include the "Bo Knows" commercials and DuPont Stainmaster ads. His saving grace is that the movie is designed for children, who can't tell the difference between bad animation/ directing and bad acting.

The only things Jordan does well throughout the movie (besides a carefully crafted basketball game) are his trademark, generic facial expressions of surprise, curiosity and doubt.

However, after seeing countless advertisements with the same stupefied expressions, "Space Jam" is like a really long attempt to see if Jordan can keep up that Nike smile for an hour and a half, while at the same time palling around with a cartoon. Nope, doesn't work.

Animation/live action has changed since the good old days of a few loony romps with Tune

In order to entertain the reluctant adults who have been dragged to the theater by their kids, "Space Jam" consists of overused adult jokes about superstar scandals and other movies. Some of these work, some don't.

To scare off the aliens, Yosemite Sam and Elmer Fudd make a quick-change as John Travolta and Samuel Jackson from "Pulp Fiction." They strike a pose complete with the tuxedos, sunglasses, guns and soundtrack.

Murray, who must be realizing by this point his career has just about had it, makes his cameo appearance on the golf course ("Caddyshack" anyone?) wanting
