Smoke Out celebrates 20th year

Lara Hanesker

The Daily Iowan

Doctors have to half and pull to know all of the odds in this birthday cake. They told him to promise not to light it up Thursday, the day of the Great Smoke Out. If he did light it up, he could win a prize for kicking the habit.

The Great Smoke Out (GSO) is a national effort to decrease tobacco use. Every year, thousands of people participate to encourage smokers to give up smoking.

The event is organized by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and is held annually on the birthday of the United States Department of Health and Human Services.

The GSO aims to increase public awareness of the dangers of tobacco use and to provide resources and support for individuals and organizations seeking to reduce smoking.

Visitors to the event can participate by signing a cake and committing to not smoke for a day. The cake is displayed in various locations across the country.

The GSO has also provided a variety of resources and tools to help people quit smoking, including quit lines, text messages, and online resources.

The GSO is a collaborative effort involving a wide range of organizations and individuals, including tobacco control professionals, public health experts, and community leaders.

The event has been recognized for its success in reducing smoking rates across the country, with many states and communities reporting significant decreases in smoking prevalence.

The Great Smoke Out has been celebrated for over 20 years, with each year building on the success of the previous one.

In conclusion, the Great Smoke Out is an important effort to raise awareness and support for tobacco control efforts. It provides an opportunity for individuals and communities to come together and make a difference in the fight against tobacco use.

Dear Editor:

What's behind 'The Crucible'

Neil was unhappily married and a visitor to Salem, Mass., and in need of a diversion. The neighbors, after all, were about to be发病 from the panic of the witch trials. Both Miller, the playwright, and Arthur Miller, the husband of actress Marilyn Monroe, have said that the play was inspired by the Salem witch trials of the late 17th century.

The crucible is a device used to test the strength of metals, and it is also a play by Arthur Miller about the Salem witch trials. The play is set in the town of Salem, Massachusetts, in the year 1692, during the height of the witch trials. The play follows the story of John Proctor, a farmer, and his wife Elizabeth, as they are accused of witchcraft and are put on trial.

The play has become a classic American drama, and it is often studied in high schools and universities. The play is a commentary on the nature of power and the dangers of mob rule. It is also a commentary on the vulnerability of individuals in a climate of fear and suspicion.

The play was first performed on Broadway in 1953, and it won the Pulitzer Prize for Drama. It has been performed all over the world, and it continues to be studied and performed today.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

LOS ANGELES -- Kris Lavin started into Steve Lavin's office Tuesday to check on the building of UCLA's new basketball team. "Coach, so are you nervous?" Lavin asked.

"No, I just can't wait to play the game," Steve answered.

"Oh, me too, so nervous I can't eat as you usually do," Lavin said.

Actually, Lavin hasn't had much time to be nervous since taking over from John Wooden five years ago for taking over an expansion program.

Actress Sherry Stringfield

set to leave 'ER'

Stringfield is shedding her white coat and gun for a high and pristine lifestyle, according to sources close to the program. Stringfield has negotiated an exit package worth $70,000, plus an appearance on the show's final episode. She is reportedly moving from Los Angeles to New York City, where she plans to open a clothing line and open a restaurant.

Dole: Presidency's loss is TV's gain

Former GOP presidential candidate Bob Dole (left) during the opening skit with actor Norman manic, who portrays Dole, during the dress rehearsal of "Saturday Night Live" Saturday.

"It's sort of like the 1996 presidential race all over again," manic said after filming the segment. "You can tell by the包装 it comes in that as we go into the next election, it's going to be a lot of fun." manic said, referring to the "Brooklyn 40 Minutes,"

"We're more interested in the administration's response to issues like Medicare, Social Security and the deficit than the packaging it comes in," said manic, who is known for his dry sense of humor.
