Simpsons’ craze hits UI students

Carla Sakowski

The Daily Iowan

Weekdays at 3:30 p.m., the UI has synchronous lectures delivered in 103 Chelsea through an online class for the series of six.

"It's a way to see the show and still have that interactive part," said Paula Rodman, a 22-year-old junior from Des Moines.

"We get pretty happy when The Simpsons is on," said Rodman. "It's hopefully more something that's a little more relaxed." She said she was ready to watch the show on her own.

"You know, this is something that she was able to create for us," said Doug Simpson, a 21-year-old junior from Des Moines.

Simpson was also able to create the show's characters for the series of six.

"I couldn't associate with Bruno the Magli shoes," he said.

OFFICERS CRACK DOWN ON SPEEDING

Friday, November 22, 1996

At midnight on Friday, the Hawkeye State Police began their annual Thanksgiving weekend crackdown on speeding.

"This is our 21st year of enforcement, and we're expecting to catch a lot of speeders," Lt. Richard Peterson said.

According to Peterson, who heads the Iowa Highway Patrol, the crackdown will last until 6 a.m. on Sunday.

"We're focusing on the areas where we've had problems in the past," Peterson said.

These areas include the Des Moines metropolitan area, the Cedar Rapids area, and the Iowa City area.

"We're also going to be looking for speeders on the interstates," Peterson said.

In Iowa, the speed limit on interstates is 70 mph, and on highways it is 60 mph.

Peterson said that the crackdown is necessary because of the high number of deaths and injuries caused by speeders.

"Last year, we had 115 people killed in speed-related accidents," Peterson said.

The crackdown is also designed to reduce traffic fatalities this year.

"We want to make sure that everyone is safe on the roads," Peterson said.

The crackdown will be conducted by state troopers, who will be out in force to monitor traffic.

"We're going to be looking for speeders, and we're also going to be looking for other violations," Peterson said.

These violations include drunk driving, seat belt violations, and failure to use turn signals.

"We want to make sure that everyone is safe on the roads," Peterson said.

Predicting the fall guy for Indogate

As many of you probably know there is a story in the administration about the Clinton administration. Referred to as the U.S. Postal Service's marketing campaign to attract customers away from the newspaper. The story involves the administration's efforts to expand its presence through increased distribution through pressure on the postal service to carry political advertising. The scandal 围绕着U.S. Postal Service's Chief of Operations, John Romig, has raised questions about the extent of the administration's involvement in decisions affecting the Postal Service's operations.

Still waiting for the Cambus

Many see the Cambus as a problem, but few see it as a transit solution. For some, the Cambus is a problem because it has been around for a short time and is not yet fully integrated with the existing transit system.
Others see it as a problem because it has not yet been proven to be successful.

Texaco’s racism is another example of a very real problem in America

The current endorsement of the antidiscrimination and anti-hate clause should serve as an opportunity for the academic community to make some questions about whether or not the presence of racist or sexist campus environments is inherently a problem, or simply a problem that should be handled with a more neutral approach.

The assessment of black students, white students, and even minority students to the extent that they have been asked to do so, and have been asked to do so.

Therefore, it is to say that, on the one hand, we should think about the consequences of our actions, and on the other hand, we should think about the consequences of our words.

So, let Jeannine Brown, who is not a Robert King, or the Las Vegas Gazette, who is not the "judge", be just the person meeting the responsibility that her name, and her life, and the life of someone else, who has been asked to do so.

Breaking down affirmative action arguments

On Coach Beglin’s comments

T.J. (Nov. 12) in "Is the "affirmative action/quote has done" the right thing for society with affirmative action-based academic opportunities?"

I have a few questions about this argument. What does "affirmative action" mean? What is the purpose of this argument? And, what is the purpose of this argument? If affirmative action is the purpose of this argument, then we should question the idea of affirmative action.

In conclusion, I believe that affirmative action is a good thing for society. I hope that affirmative action is a good thing for society.

Campus routes
The new schedule includes the following routes, which will begin Monday:

- Inter-Departures: Buses from Students Union to the new Student Union at 6:45 and 7:45 a.m.; from Student Union to People’s Building at 6:45 and 7:45 p.m. Monday through Friday;
- Cambridge: Bus from Student Union to the new Student Union at 6:45 p.m. Monday through Friday;
- Mayflower: Buses from Student Union to the new Student Union at 6:45 and 7:45 p.m. Monday through Friday.

McClellan said the student assistants, Associated Roadside Halls and MAVOY, the governing body of Mayflower, all assisted in formulating the new plan.

“Brutha brought their needs to us and everyone worked separately,” he said.

Riverside Halls resident and UI Symphony Brooker Harrison said she believes Mayflower residents need the Cambus service more than west side residents halls, but it has concerned the same type of problem might occur at the west side.

“The bus gets a week packed,” she said. “If they don’t have an inter­ diction system on the hour, it might be a problem.”

But Harrison said she wasn’t upset by the change.

“She’s just making sure I catch the blue route,” she said.

Lord said the university has been taking actions, however, because these are critical times.

After 40 years of teaching students in the Fine Arts school, University of Iowa Symphony Orchestra director James Dixon is stepping down from the position in May 1999. Dixon, 75, will retire in 1999, according to a letter he sent to his students in April. Although he is stepping down, this past spring's a cappella concert was his last, according to his letter. The concert took place on May 8, where he directed the UI Chamber Chorale in their final concert. Dixon's last concert will be his 75th anniversary recital, which will take place on May 20. The concert will feature the UI Symphony Orchestra, the UI Chamber Chorale, and the UI Wind Ensemble. Dixon has been a long-time member of the UI faculty, and has made many contributions to the university and its students. He is widely known as a talented conductor and a dedicated teacher.

Hawkeye bowl-rush

Wayne Drees
The Daily Iowan

In the beginning of the 3500 football seasons, Minnesota coach Hubert H. "Oscar" Chamberlain, said in 1987 that "they are always going to be the ones who want the opposition." That was the year before starting quarterback Rick Duren rushed for 297 yards. That was during that same season, when coach Randy Peterson, then of the Fighting Illini, said of the Hawkeye, "the team that is being our main competition.

"But I don't want to say it that way," Peterson added. "We can't say that we are going to lose and then say we are going to win. We have to be better than them." And that was the way it was for the Illini. They were 0-3 in conference play, but they were 3-1 in the Big Ten. And they were going to be the ones who want the opposition.

"They are very tough, very versatile, very good. If they lose, we lose. We lose, they lose," Peterson said. "And sometimes, we lose and they win." And that was the case for the Illini, who lost to the Hawkeyes, 55-32, in the Big Ten.

"They are very tough, very versatile, very good," Peterson said. "Every time you go against them, you are going to lose." And that was the case for the Illini, who lost to the Hawkeyes, 55-32, in the Big Ten.
