Counselors approve Old Capitol Taco Bell

Melanie Meares

Volunteering is on the rise here at the University of Iowa.

Volunteer Coordinator Bethany Eby said the program "is only getting bigger every semester." It's on the rise because of the demand.

The University of Iowa Counseling Center recently announced that they will approve Old Capitol Taco Bell to serve as a volunteer site.

Volunteer Watch

Here are a few of the many organizations that are hiring volunteers for the holiday season.

- Crisis Center - Food bank volunteers with providing food and emergency services.
- Domestic Violence Intervention Program - Volunteers needed at certain community shelters for battered women and their children.
- Project Holiday - Volunteers needed to prepare and deliver food baskets to low-income or disabled veterans.
- Iowa City Senior Center - Volunteers needed to help with gift wrapping, event planning, and welcoming visitors through holiday experiences.
- Black Student Union - Volunteers needed to perform various duties, including helping with the annual Holiday Bazaar.
- Iowa City Community Action - Volunteers needed to partner with local groups to provide toys, food, and clothing.

New major proposed on UI campus

More than 2,000 students spoke and members of the UI student Senate listened.

A proposed environmental science major is being pursued by the campus, geography and biological sciences departments to meet many of the needs expressed by students.

The proposed course is now in the hands of UI President John Whisnant. It will then go to the regents, biology associate professor Robert Keim said.

Regents chairperson Gary Goodrich said if the students and faculty agree with the proposal, the regents will review the proposal.

"I have not heard about it," Whisnant said. "We will see it eventually, but I don't know what the time table is.

The students and faculty should put forward their major, or this may be implemented, through their major.

"This has seemed under-developed in the past, but if they can get it lined up in a major, they can switch their majors," he said.

Gary Goodrich, professor and department chairperson, said even the campus would not be able to do it unless the students put forward their major.

"If I was an incoming freshman, I would not be able to do it unless it was in the majority, I would not be able to do it unless it was a majority," Goodrich said.

"But if I wanted to do it, I would not be able to do it unless it was a majority," Goodrich said.

In 1995, Introduction to Environmental Science was approved by the regents for the new major. It will be sold in a General Education Program class.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They may not much in common to appear right up and make it seem Pamela Anderson, who has long been close to the public eye and in the spotlight, is expected to speak at the 'Save the Whales' concert this weekend. The event aims to raise awareness about the plight of whales and marine life in general. Anderson, a well-known animal rights activist, has been an advocate for animal welfare and environmental conservation. She has been involved in numerous campaigns and has received numerous awards and recognitions for her work. Anderson's participation in the event suggests her ongoing commitment to these causes. The concert is scheduled to take place on Saturday, and fans are excited to see Anderson perform and learn more about the important issues that are being addressed through this event.

Clinton administration promises to fight AIDS

Associated Press
WASHINGiON — Two days after the Democratic convention, the Clinton administration pledged to keep up its fight against the spread of AIDS, promising that it will "be relentless in the fight for better health care, better science, better understanding of the ways to combat this terrible disease." "We'll continue to fight for better health care, better understanding of the ways to combat this terrible disease," Clinton said at an AIDS conference in Denver. "We'll fight for better health care, better understanding of the ways to combat this terrible disease."

Bargaining a tax cut was at the top of everyone's list.

According to the Associated Press, the administration plans to take a "fair" and "equitable" approach to tax cuts, but didn't work out details.

University of Iowa seniors are being encouraged to take HIV tests.

UI senior Josh Abellon will be the first in his family to get an AIDS test.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," Abellon said. "But I want to know what's going on."

AIDS tests are most accurate when the results have been confirmed.

"Every time I go into the military, they do a test. They're good for whatever's going on."

Abellon said he has been tested for HIV.

"I've been tested four times," Abellon said. "They're fine."

The university plans to take place at the Northwest Room of the Union.

State legislators want to see 100 million tax cut

Mike Glover

Two days after the Democratic convention, the state legislators in Iowa voted to reduce the state's tax rate.

"This is the right thing to do," said state Rep. Mark Withrow, a Republican from Burlington.

Withrow said the budget cuts are needed because of the state's budget deficit.

"We're not getting anything for the state," Withrow said.

The Senate also voted to reduce the state's tax rate.

"We're not getting anything for the state," said state Sen. Tom Miller, a Democrat from Coralville.

Miller said the budget cuts are needed because of the state's budget deficit.

"We're not getting anything for the state," Miller said.

The House also voted to reduce the state's tax rate.

Fish: Good for you, bad for planet

You're decided to go out for dinner among the restaurants in town. There are many options to choose from.

Many people don't fish because they feel it's too much trouble and too much effort.

So, what do you do? Do you go to the nearest restaurant or do you try to find a healthier option?

Today's fishing methods destroy the oceans. Thailand has tried to prevent this by implementing fishing bans.

One of the most destructive types of fishing is the "fishing boom", which has been legally allowed for over 10 years. However, the impact on the ocean floor is devastating.

International fishing regulations have been in place for over 30 years to limit the destruction of the ocean floor.

In the ocean, a large and complex system is maintained.

Recent villains have been getting a lot of exposure in their own comic books, such as Venom, Carnage, and Abomination.

In the industry, characters are known for being heroes in the comic industry.

Batman was probably the hero that started this trend. Although he has been known for his personal and personal powers, he has been using them and his own.

Other heroes have begun appearing in their own comic books, such as Spider-Man, Doctor Strange, and Dr. Strange's powerful powers.

You can tell them apart by their names.

The unoffended Susan is found in "The Amazing Spider-Man" or "Uncanny X-Men".

Freeing Emancipation from bad review

In the Editor:

This is in reference to Katharine Graham's memoirs to the point whereby she is dying. Eighteen pages, 12-point Times New Roman without indenting.

The story begins with a letter written by Mr. Bruce Dunford to the state, saying he is a convicted felon and is right there in the Brady law system. The Brady law requires background checks before a person can purchase a firearm, but Mr. Dunford believes it works in reverse. He argues that the federal government is asking states to provide a national system to prevent immediate background checks, and he questions why the federal government needs power with the federal government.

Mr. Dunford is challenged by Attorney General William Barr, who questions the notion that the federal government needs power with the federal government. He argues that the Brady law requires the federal government to conduct background checks by requiring a three-day waiting period before a person can purchase a firearm. Mr. Dunford argues that this is a denial of his rights and that the Brady law does not require the federal government to conduct background checks.

Mr. Dunford also raises the issue of the federal government's requirement that states provide a national system to prevent immediate background checks. He argues that the federal government is asking states to provide a national system to prevent immediate background checks.

The story continues with a discussion of the implications of the Brady law on the right to marry. The state of Iowa is considering a law that would deny federal crime funds to states that do not comply with the Brady law. The state of Iowa has already asked the federal government to reconsider this requirement.

In the final analysis, Mr. Dunford believes that the Brady law does not require the federal government to conduct background checks. He argues that the federal government is asking states to provide a national system to prevent immediate background checks, and he questions why the federal government needs power with the federal government.

This is a clear example of how the Brady law has implications on the right to marry, and the state of Iowa is considering a law that would deny federal crime funds to states that do not comply with the Brady law. The state of Iowa has already asked the federal government to reconsider this requirement.

Bombers claim imminent attack on port

Christiane Toufexis Associated Press

GOA, India - Rebels said Thursday that they plan to take over three cities in northeastern Tamil Nadu and were preparing inepensively to launch an attack on one of them - Kollam - the country's major port.

"We will destroy their people and their army," the Tamil National Liberation Front said in a statement.

More than 500 rebels had deployed in large numbers near the port, according to a local government official.

Kollam's flotilla could not be reached by reporters.

But two aid groups and the U.N. children's agency reported that the port was not under the control of Tamil rebels.

The port supplies 700 miles to the capital of Colombo because of the deteriorating security situation.

The attack is expected to worsen the tension between the two sides.

In addition, the Tamil Tigers are said to have taken control of a third port - Valparai - long held by the rebels and making the port a prime target for attacks.

The security situation in the area is tense, with government troops on high alert.

The rebels are said to have taken control of a small town near the port and have been attacking government forces in the area.

The Tamil Tigers also have been carrying out attacks on government forces in the area, includingándose in the town of Vavuniya.

The rebels have been carrying out a series of attacks on government forces in the area, including in Vavuniya.

Devils halt Panther win streak in shutdown

Associated Press

NEWARK, N.J. - Mike Gartner scored 41 seconds into the third period in his New Jersey Devils' second consecutive victory over the Florida Panthers yesterday, sending the Panthers to a 3-1 loss.

The Devils improved to 2-1-0 in the season's first three games. Florida was left with its first left in the third period, giving the Devils a 9-0 lead in the series.

Mike Vernon had his ninth NHL shutout in a row before leaving Sunday's game at 4:14 after sustaining a knee injury. He was replaced by Martin Brodeur, who made 25 saves.

The Panthers were 9-0-2 in their five previous games. Vernor's goal at 48:42 gave the Devils a 2-0 lead. Vernor's lead was 2-0 after two periods, the first time in three games.

Florida's last win came on Oct. 13, 4-1, against the New York Islanders. The Panthers have allowed 29 goals in their last four games and have allowed at least five goals in their last three games.

The Panthers have scored seven goals in their last three games, including two key 3-pointers in the fourth quarter, as Jordan hit a jumper with 35.0 seconds left in the game.

The Panthers played their second game in 11 days and were without a win in their last four games against the Devils.

Despite being a two-goal lead in the first period, the Devils scored three goals in the second period and went on to beat the Panthers 4-0 in overtime.

The Devils won for the 14th straight time in 15 games, the third time in four games. Fichaud's three goals were the second time in his career he has scored a goal in a game. Fichaud had scored in his last 10 games, including two key 3-pointers in the fourth quarter, as Jordan hit a jumper with 35.0 seconds left in the game.

On the 15th of every month,_{your name}_ publishes a magazine that features stories about the supernatural. The December issue, which is a double-size, full-color issue, features horror-film type tales of the paranormal. One story tells of a young couple who believe that their new home is haunted, while another story describes a distant relative who insists that the house in which they live is inhabited by the ghost of a former resident.

"This Old Home" features a article about a couple who believe that their new home is haunted. The couple, who have recently moved to Iowa City, reside in a house that was once the residence of a family who disappeared without a trace. The couple, who have been experiencing strange occurrences, such as unexplained noises and unexplained temperature changes, are convinced that the house is haunted.

"The Hostess with the Mostest" features a story about a woman who is believed to be a witch. The woman, who is known for her cooking skills, is said to have the ability to cause harm to those who cross her. The story describes a young couple who are invited to a dinner party at the woman's house, only to find that the food is magically altered and the guests are left with injuries.

"Dennis Franz and Miss Piggy are subscribers" features a story about the popular puppetry duo, who are known for their unique sense of humor. The story describes a local resident who has received a letter from the duo, offering to help with their holiday special.

"Iowa Women's Hawkeye Basketball Team!" features a story about the team, which is currently ranked among the top in the nation. The story describes the team's recent victory over a rival team, and the players' reactions to the win.

TV specials, movies spread holiday cheer
