UI Liberal Arts professors who schedule exams before finals week violate the policies of the college, which explicitly state that finals are to be held only at the time specified in the UI Schedule of

James Lindberg, associate dean of the Liberal Arts Academic Programs Office, said if students are upset with a rescheduled final, they should contact his office.

"The college policy clearly says finals are to be given during finals week," Lindberg said. "When we get complaints from students, we follow up with them with the department. The professor is asked not to give early exams another time.

There is no reprimand process, Lindberg said. Each semester, he said, there have been relatively few complaints, no more than two or three.

"It depends on the particular circumstances," he said. "I think it's important that we adhere to the public examination process and students are not disadvantaged by exams that are given at irregular

More than 2,000 students spoke and members of the UI science faculty listened.

A proposed environmental science major by the geology, geography and biological sciences departments will be considered by the Iowa state Board of Regents early in the next spring semester, geology associate Professor Luis González

"A few years ago there was a petition that over 2,000 students signed in favor of an environmental sciences major," González said.

The proposal is now in the hands of UI Provost Jon Whitmore. It will then go to the regents, biology associate Professor Steve Heard said.

Regent John Tyrrell said he is not sure when the regents will review the proposal.

"I have not heard about it," Tyrrell said. "We will see it eventually, but I don't know what the time table is."

There are many students who want to know when this major may be implemented, Heard said

"I have had several underraduate students ask me when they can switch their majors," he said.

UI junior and geology major James Goodrich said he has interest in the new major, but it is too late for him to change his

"If I was an incoming freshman, I definitely would have hopped on that ride and a lot of people I talked to would have done it as well," Goodrich said. "But if I wanted to do it now, it could possibly be another semester or year.'

In spring 1997, Introduction to Environmental Geology will change to Introduction to Environmental Sciences as the first class for the new major. It will remain a General Education Program class.

Cowlings: Simpson is guilty of abuse

Linda Deutsch Associated Press

SANTA MONICA, Calif. - O.J. Simpson's best friend reluctantly testified Tuesday that he took Nicole Brown Simpson to the hospital after a fight with her husband and she told him he hit her.

Called to the witness stand by plaintiffs in the wrongful-death suit against Simpson, Al "A.C." Cowlings gave mostly one-word "yes" and "no" answers as lawyers tried to get him to counter Simpson's sworn claim he "never ... never ... never" hit his wife.

Other witnesses groomer-turned-Playmate and a pharmacist - testified they saw Simpson hit his wife in the 1980s.

Cowlings was the most avidly awaited witness after Simpson himself. Boyhood friend, football teammate and Bronco driver, he appeared uncomfortable on the stand, particularly when confronted with a much-displayed photo of Brown Simpson's bruised face taken after a fight with Simpson New Year's Eve 1989.

Cowlings said he had been called to the house and took her to the hospital that night because he feared a concussion.

Volunteer Watch

Here are a few of the many organizations that are looking for volunteers over the holiday season:

- Crisis Center Food bank volunteers work providing food and emergency assistance services.
- Domestic Violence Intervention Program — Volunteers needed to gather community donations for battered women and their children.
- Project Holiday Volunteers needed to prepare and distribute food baskets to low income or disabled residents.
- Iowa City Senior Center Volunteers needed to help with gift wrapping, serving refreshments, and escorting children through their shopping experience at their seventh annual holiday bazaar.
- Visiting Nurse Association Volunteers needed to perform reception duties, filing, organizing library materials and copying articles.

Lottery miracle rescues town

ROBY, Texas - Don't expect to see exotic sports cars zipping into the gravel parking lot at the cotton gin, even if 7 percent of this town's people are on their way to becom-

"Some of these people didn't know if they'd be able to farm again next year," said Peggy Dickson, bookkeeper at the Terry Cotton Gin and organizer of the spurof-the-moment lottery pool.

Many of the shareholders have debts. Four straight below-average cotton crops and abysmal cattle prices have depressed Roby, which has about 600 residents, and scores of Texas towns like it this decade.

"I've seen two new pickups around town," said Rex Beauchamp, who plans to dedicate part of his bounty toward the Circle D convenience store he opened last summer. "And once we get all the paperwork done, I'll probably buy one myself."

Many winners may wait to splurge. Each will receive about $37,500 a year after taxes, meaning they don't plan to quit their day jobs

Beauchamp, for instance, doesn't see an end to his seven-day weeks behind his store counter. He does see the note on his 4-month-old business disappearing.
"It's really better the way it worked out," Beauchamp said as he rang up a customer's root beer. "Nobody really is rich here. Just well-off.' Roby is a pocket of homes and trees amid a vast landscape of pasture and crop land about 180 miles west of Dallas. Terry Gin is cattystoplights.

Dickson decided the morning of Nov. 26 to create a lottery pool in anticipation of the state's secondlargest jackpot. She and her 41 compatriots bought 420 tickets -10 each at a dollar per ticket from Jimmy Carson, owner of Longhorn Liquor Store in Sweet-

The lottery's computer randomly chose the lucky numbers: 13, 20, 21, 24, 41 and 45.

Beauchamp said the other 449 tickets yielded just $24. The winners plan to get their legal affairs in order before travelng to Austin in a few weeks to col-offered to pay all related legal fees. Seventeen of the winners are working farmers and ranchers.

"These are hard-working people with tractors, land and equipment to pay off," said Tim Riggan, a financial planner in nearby Snyder whose wife is related to 21 of the winners. "It will take the first year or two to get back up on their feet. But now they can plan to have paid college educations for the younger people, and the others can take care of their retirement over the next 20 years.'

Mayor Cecil King, longtime president of the local First National Bank, estimates the average Roby resident's income will jump from $20,000 to $41,000.

No Texas town might have needed this more than Roby, bank vice president John Davis said.

Clinton administration promises to fight AIDS

WASHINGTON - Two days after the commemoration of World AIDS Day, the Clinton administration pledged to keep pressing to stop the spread of the virus that causes AIDS.

"We'll continue to fight for better and more affordable prevention strategies, vaccines" and bacteria that can fend off HIV, Vice President Al Gore said Tuesday during a photo-taking session in the Oval Office. He was joined by administration officials who briefed President Clinton on progress in the AIDS fight.

Clinton, who deferred to Gore because of severe hoarseness, said only that he was pleased with progress made against AIDS during his first term and added "I'm determined to keep pressing until we get a vaccine and ultimately a cure."

AIDS is now the fourth leading killer of American women ages 25-44, and twothirds were infected through sex.

Gore noted the promise of research on microbicides, bacteria in the form of a gel or cream women could use as protection in sexual intercourse with someone who might have HIV.

With our partners in research, we will continue to knock down every barrier to the development of successful therapeutics, vaccines and microbicides until we knock down the last barrier of all, the HIV virus itself," Gore said.

The AIDS activist group known as ACT UP issued a statement questioning the Clinton administration's commitment to AIDS research. Tuesday's photo-opportunity in the Oval Office was an attempt by Clinton to create the illusion that he is fostering more public-private coordination in AIDS research, said Steve Michael of ACT UP's Washington office.

Michael said Clinton could take a useful step by elevating the Office of AIDS Policy to Cabinet level and appointing a prominent person to take the post.

Gonzalez said the home tests require three drops of blood taken from the fingertip and are easy to use. The blood sample is then sent to a laboratory where it is tested four times for the virus. In seven days, the customer is given a pin number and can call for the results.

"If the test is negative a recorded voice will usually give the results; however, a live voice does not mean a positive result, Gonzalez said. "All positive results are given by a highly trained counselor."

Linda Yannely, the HIV Coordinator at the Free Medical Clinic, 120 N. Dubuque St., said the HIV test kits are fine for people who are putting off being tested because of fear, but anyone who has a positive result from the kits should have it confirmed in a clinic.

Yannely said anyone who has had unprotected sex is at risk for HIV and should be tested.

"The earlier the diagnosis of the virus means an earlier opportunity for treatment, which means the longer you will live and have a better quality of life," Yannely

Author Barbara Bradford, on why she believes Princess Diana might not have the best prospects for another marriage

My family and other diseases

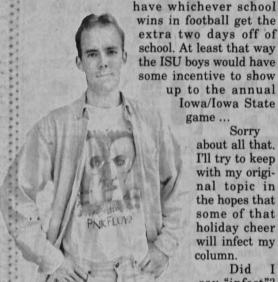

·t's the holidays, and that can only mean one thing: bloating, pain and disease. (OK, that's three things ... leave me alone; I'm a liberal arts major.) We all put on this face and try to make believe the holidays are some sort of worldwide love-in, but when you get down to it, most of my holidays are spent in some condition I otherwise couldn't be paid to be in.

Still, we love the holidays. Mostly I think this is due to having another excuse to not work. It's the same reason we love the summer, in spite of the heat, sunburn and mosquitoes. We get that week of vacation somewhere in the middle of the summer where we can avoid responsibility and get hot, sunburned and itchy.

Still, I love the holidays, mostly because the Iowa state Board of Regents had the vision to give us an entire month off school. I mean, we college students can't exactly complain when you consider the fact that we get four months off each year. That's only two-thirds of the year that we absolutely have to work. And, if you want to get technical, we only spend five-sevenths of that time in school, and less than half of that in the classroom. Yet, I can't help but wonder what the logic was behind giving Iowa State University those extra two days for Thanksgiving. If you want to get technical, ISU gets four more days off than us (or the University of Northern Iowa, for that matter), because they get that extra weekend, too.

Why is ISU so special? We could at least be fair. Give those days to all the schools or don't give them to any. Or, if we want to be nasty, we could have whichever school

Seems like every time my family gets together, one of us starts out sick, and before you know it, we all have some unpleasant disease. And it's not just the winter holidays I'm speaking of here. We manage to do this no matter when we get together.

This summer was a perfect example. All nine Keller kids (Yes, nine, and I'm the youngest) congregated in Massachusetts for my brother Charlie's wedding. Having more germs than a pile of rusty nails, at some point or another each and every one of us managed to contract a particularly virulent flu.

The bride spent the wedding night with it, and a few days later, I got to have it in two different airports ... on my 21st birthday, no less.

And so, any time you get a quorum of Kellers together, by law of averages, one of us is bound to Still, I love the holidays. I mean, if I spend a week with "the fam," then I have three more weeks to recover. I couldn't imagine it any other way. And seriously, I got lucky. I have a great family. Very supportive, just not as germ-free as maybe one might hope. Still, the benefits of having so many older brothers and sisters outweigh the possible downside.

I don't remember getting sick all of the time when we were all living under the same roof. And this is especially incredible when you consider that we only had one and a half bathrooms. How we managed, I'll never know. (Let's not forget that we also had two parents to consider.)

Yeah, I was lucky. Seems you can't turn on the television or open the newspaper without someone blaming their family for backing over the family pet with the station wagon and causing irreparable psychological harm or even "accidentally" leaving a brother at a Perkins in Nebraska and being half way to Denver before anyone caught on. The fact that only one of three of these things has happened to my family is nothing short of miraculous. (In case you're wondering, we forgot to take a head count on one of the annual family vacations, and Jerry got left behind.)

So, this holiday season, try and be thankful for what you have. And be especially thankful for what you don't have. Chances are you'll get it eventually. By the way, if you see Jerry, tell him we send our

o you've decided to go out to dinner, and you're trying to Odecide among the entrees offered by the restaurant.

Don't order the fish. Many people eat fish because they think it is healthier than eating red meat. While it does have oils that may be better for you than the fat in red meat, fish still has fat. Crustaceans like shrimp are brimming with cholesterol.

Not only is it not healthy for you, but it is really bad for the planet. Today's fishing methods destroy the ocean. Tracks left by trawls are visible on the ocean floor. Most of the commercial fishing stocks of cod, haddock, pollock and flounder have been so depleted that it is not worth the time to fish for them anymore. Some fishers who used to fish near the shore now have to travel more than a hundred miles and fish at depths of 1,200 to 4,000 feet.

Commercial trawls and dredges scrape the bottom of the sea floor and drag along anything that does not filter through the net. Ten to 20 pounds of tube worms, sponges, anemones, hydrozoans, sea urchins carcasses are tossed overboard for methods.

The undisturbed ocean floor is covered with animals. Sponges grow to enormous sizes, and colonial animals, which are like corals, flourish and provide hiding places for young fish.

After a rock-hopper plows through, most of these animals are dead, except the starfish. Hardy little animals, 99 percent of starfish survive. Unfortunately, starfish are predators and eat the other animals that survived the rock-hopper.

It may take a century for the sponges and colonial animals to regrow, but fishers will not waitthat long. They have to fill the demand for cod, halibut, haddock and shrimp.

You create that demand. You demand they trawl every time you order the fish or shrimp in a restaurant.

We all try to be good little environmentalists and recycle our soda cans or office paper, at least when it is convenient.

New comics' heroes killers and villains eadpool" is a new comic being published by Marvel Comics. The cover of the first issue reads, "Premiere Issue Of Marvel's First Merc-With-A-Monthly!"

"Merc" is an abbreviation for mercenary, which in the dictionary means someone "motivated solely by a desire for monetary or material gain" or "hired for services in a foreign army."

Although Marvel still adheres to the comics code (which basically gives comics a rating and makes sure they are OK for all age groups), in the comic book universe a mercenary kills the villain with an assortment of weapons. Although it is not bloody, Deadpool kills a squad of Bolivian revolutionaries the first issue, and "Deadthe character is "closer to being a villain than a hero."

This is not a new trend at Margetting a lot of exposure in their very own comics. Venom, Carnage, The Abomination, The Green Goblin, The Punisher ... all these characters are known bad guys, and all have been getting a hero's welcome in the comic industry.

Marvel is not alone. The other major comic companies, DC and Image, have been presenting characters for the past several years who kill their enemies rather thanbeat them up and send them to Batman had to be sworn off guns

Recently, villains have been getting a lot of exposure in their very own comics. Venom, Carnage, The Abomination, The Green Goblin, The Punisher ... all these characters are known bad guys, and all have been getting a hero's welcome in the comic industry.

Batman was probably the hero who started this trend. Although he was created way back in 1939, his personality and arsenal were precursors for the modern hero: dark, gritty, having no superpowpool" editor Matt Idelson admitted ers and just willing to take out the bad guys with whatever he had. Most people know the origin of Batman. While walking home from vel. Recently, villains have been the movies one night, young Bruce Wayne saw his parents shot and killed by a criminal. Wayne then swore to dedicate his life to avenging their deaths by combating

Many people do not know, however, that combating criminals did not mean killing them. In the first issue of Batman, the hero is shown with a gun fighting criminals, and the public outcry was so harsh that for decades.

Other heroes began appearing over the years with very limited powers. They included Robin, Daredevil and the Blue Beetle. These heroes had to rely on brains and weaponry (although never lethal until recently) to fight crime.

Spider-Man was another. He had spider powers, but was hardly invulnerable. His motto: "With great power comes great responsibility." To this day he staunchly refuses to take a life, even if the villain is Carnage, an evil serial killer who murders for the fun of it. Spider-Man is fighting a losing war among his fellow Marvel "heroes": He tries to tell them killing is wrong, but more and more they laugh at him and call him naive. Who is right in the Spider-Man/Deadpool debate? Nobody. It's just a comic book. One is simply more realistic than the other. One superhero deals with the villain with radiation-spawned powers, the other with a gun.

Many comics today don't even go by the comics code, and that's a good idea. These comics can be as graphic as they want to be. If the Marvel heroes are going to kill, they need to abandon their attempts to stay within a certain nta may come slithering this year. In his yearly public service report, Rev. Christopher Rose has compiled a list of the 10 most warped toys on the market. This year, preteen boys will be tearing the Christmas wrapping off the buxom Xena doll, complete with big breasts, a shapely butt, a slinky outfit and voluptuous skin. The package suggests: "Remove Xena's princess warrior outfit." Kids will also be treated to the erotically dressed Tiffany the Amazon, complete with removable bra.

asks. Rose "What is it teaching little boys about women?" Well, objectification and date rape come mind.

Also shelves this year is the action figure Freak. He is a derangedlooking homeless person, reminiscent of Disney's Steve the Tramp, another homeless person doll. Steve is described as "a lout who would just as soon take your life as your wallet ... and will use and abuse any young, helpless prey he comes across." Freak comes with tattered clothes and a bag full of

Rose considers Steve the Tramp and Freak tasteless renditions of the homeless. It's hard to dis-

The toys may be warped, but, hey, warped stuff sells. Earlier this year in Milwaukee, a group sold Jeffrey Dahmer's murder tools for millions of dollars. Fortunately, one person bought them all to keep them off the market. The tools would have made poor stocking stuffers.

The buyers of Xena and Freak surely will be interested in purchasing more toys of a similar nature. Here's what we may see next year:

Domestic Abuse Barbie

She comes complete with a black eye and a broken rib. Her dress will be torn, and like the Xena doll, it easily comes off. Barbie makers may finally crack the doll market wide open by appealing to misogynists everywhere.
O.J. Simpson and Nicole Brown Simpson

Action Figures

The two action figures will come with a miniature white Ford Bronco, a bloody glove and a butcher knife. Kids of all ages will love re-enacting the crime of the century again and again. Once the civil suit is over and there is no more O.J. on television, something has to fill the void.

Fabulous Fabio

Young girls will love the muscular Fabio doll with removable T-shirt and jockstrap. His muscles are rippling and his sex organs are well defined. Comes in three sizes: regular, large and well-hung.

Inner City Action Figures The first line will carry three originals. There is the teen-ager, who carries an assault rifle and a bag of crack cocaine. Included is the Deadbeat Dad, who comes with a "Wanted" poster and a rap sheet. Kids won't want to miss the Welfare Mom, either. This sure-to-be favorite comes complete with food stamps and a handbook called "How to Cheat the Government.'

Like Arnold Schwarzenegger in the new hit movie "Jingle All the Way," this year's buyers of Xena and Freak may battle it out in stores next year for these yet-to-exist toys. Sure, they are deranged, but that has never stopped anyone. America is ripe with consumers who have more money than ethics.

Those who will quibble with Rose's deranged toys list are the same people who claim a child is unaffected by seeing thousands of senseless killings on television by age 7.

For once I would like to see holiday shoppers answer corporations with a resounding "No" and refuse to buy twisted toys. Stuff the corporate stockings with lumps of coal.

It would be a shame if all stores went the way of Wal-Mart and only sold items that reflect milk and cookies wholesomeness and "Leave it to Beaver" values. But seriously, folks, we should think about what we buy for little kids. Having a drooling 8year old tear the clothes off a voluptuous, bigbreasted warrior princess just doesn't seem appro-

Hawkeye Apartment Cambus issue is political (DI, Nov. 22, "Still waiting for he Cambus"). There is precedence for political issues and the Hawkeye partments. Last year, the superintendents of the Iowa City school district proposed to divide Hawkeye Court elementary-school students, sending the students to two different elementary schools. I believe the "politics" in the Cambus issue are the same.

Upon inspection of the facts in the chool district's proposals, it soon became clear the stated primary reason to divide Hawkeye Court's students was unfounded. The problem was overcrowding at the school, and not an illegal level of minority students as the school superintendents had initially stated. I think Cambus has been denying full service to the Hawkeye Apartments for the same "political" reason the superintendents of the Iowa City school district thought they could sacrifice Hawkeye Court children through fallacious claims. Hawkeye Apartment residents tend to be international students without the right to vote or familiarity with the political process. The Hawkeye Apartments become an easy sellout to appease Iowa City property owners, the Iowa City transit

When confronted with the facts, the Iowa City school board was big enough to reject these "politics." How big is the Cambus?

Freeing Emancipation from bad review

To the Editor:

This is in reference to Katharine Horowitz' review to the artist formerly known as Prince's new release Emancipation (EightyHours section, DI Nov. 21). I wonder if she actually listened to the release. I have been listening to the three CDs nonstop since I got them and I still haven't even begun to reach all the intricate layers that are woven in the music. What makes Horowitz think she can comprehend the entire 'album in a couple of days?

It seems that she expects Emancipation to be like Prince albums of the past. Emancipation is about growth and the true art and freedom of music. What she seems to think are "sappy, overly repetitive love songs" are actually deep soul reflections of the immense life changes the Artist has experienced lately. These songs are more down-toearth and real than anything that has hit the charts in a long time.

sent a broad spectrum of style and artistry. I've never heard "gag-worthy elevator music or cheesy jingles" that sound as skilled and poetic as this. Art is creating through experimentation and life experience. Skillfully intertwining new styles with the old while keeping things in perspective.

Emancipation is a viable representation of all of these. I think Horowitz should take a closer listen because she overlooked the absolute genius of this compilation and unfairly judged it too soon.

Praise for BASSment from teacher who has been there

To the Editor:

Let this letter serve as strong applause for the owners and board of directors of the BASSment, 13 S. Linn St. These outstanding contributors to our community have provided Johnson County with a type of venue that all cities should be eager to provide their young citizens. The BASSment, in operation since this fall, gives our local youth a safe place to enjoy a variety of live entertainment, to dance, to socialize and to eat in a drug-free and alcohol-free environment.

Moreover, the BASSment is amply staffed with people committed to guiding youth along a positive and healthy path and to serving as adult mentors and role models for their teen customers. Along with running the BASSment, the owners are employed full time by such commendable organizations as Youth Homes Inc., the UI Hospitals and Clinics and the Iowa City Community School District.

Surely, at this past districtwide Parents' Association meeting, Dean Gorrell, associate vice principal of Northwest Junior High School, had no basis for his slanderous comment in regard to the BASSment. In fact, his comment, printed in the Nov. 14 edition of the DI, is antithetical to the lifestyle the BASSment is promoting. It is highly unlikely Gorrell has ever visited the club, or that he is aware of who its owners are. Next time he chooses to give parents advice The songs on this compilation repre- as to what their sons and daughters should or should not do in their free time, I suggest he set a good example for his students and research the situation first before commenting.

As a teacher at Washington High School in Cedar Rapids and a strong supporter of the BASSment and for what its owners stand, I was appalled at Gorrell's statement. I have been to the club a number of times and I urge anyone involved with the local schools to visit, have a sandwich and talk with the owners. Your time would be well-spent.

Deputy State Attorney General Rick Eichor insisted the judge and the state Supreme Court misread the state constitution and the state

"The law does not discriminate on the basis of sex," he said. "It makes distinctions on the basis of sexual orientation, not sex.

The state Supreme Court had sent the case back to a lower court to give the state a chance to show a compelling public interest in allowing such discrimination.

In a two-week trial in September, Eichor argued that Hawaii's marriage law is intended to promote the best environment for the procreation and rearing of children.

He said children thrive best when raised by biological parents, and contended that legalizing same-sex marriages would open the door to demands that bigamy, polygamy and consensual incestuous relationships be licensed as well.

Both sides presented testimony from a parade of expert witnesses on family and child development, who gave conflicting opinions on whether gay couples could provide an equally nurturing environment.

If the Hawaii ruling is upheld, gay activists would try to build upon the success and sue to overturn the federal Defense of Marriage Act, said David Smith, spokesperson for the Human Rights Campaign, a gay rights group based in Washington,

U.S. SENATE

Senate re-elects Lott, Daschle as leaders

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Senate Republicans re-elected Sen. Trent Lott Tuesday as their majority leader for the next Congress. The Mississippian immediately promised cooperation with President Clinton — plus tough investi-gations of alleged campaign finance violations by Democrats.

Shortly after being chosen without opposition as majority leader, Lott told reporters the GOP and Clinton could work together on balancing the budget, cutting taxes and other issues.

"We look forward to working with the president to get legislative achievements signed into law," Lott said.

But he also said the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee would hold hearings on allegations of illegal fund-raising by Democrats during the recent campaign. Attorney General Janet Reno's decision to not appoint a special prosecutor to investigate the charges makes a Senate investigation "even a greater necessity," he said.

"It's looking more and more like we have got to get into it and find out what happened," Lott said. "So we have a responsibility to do

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., also re-elected Tuesday as leader by his colleagues without opposition, said Democrats would make campaign finance legislation their top priority next year. He said Democrats would support hearings into alleged fund-raising abuses if they are "broad-based" and included GOP infractions, which he refused

A 55-year-old conservative with a penchant for cutting compromises, Lott will guide a Senate whose membership leans further right vote than it has in years. But complicating Lott's job, this is also a time when politicians from both parties say voters want partisan cooperation, not confrontation. Lott replaced Dole as GOP leader last June, when the was a mirror of what happened in Kansan resigned to concentrate on his failed presidential bid. But Lott inherited a chamber whose members were eager to quickly complete their work so they could plunge into the campaign season.

The soft-spoken Daschle, who will turn 49 next Monday, will begin his third year in the job. He won his post by a single vote two years ago over Sen. Christopher in past years. As a result, the Sen-Dodd, D-Conn., and has steered a ate, traditionally the more modercourse that has mixed cooperation with partisan attacks.

The meetings come exactly four weeks after an Election Day that saw voters expand the GOP's 53- vote majority that could give GOP 47 Senate majority to 55-45. Members of both parties have said voters — who re-elected Clinton and GOP congressional majorities want compromise, but Republicans are already ruling out helping the president ease parts of this year's welfare overhaul.

for keeping his own counsel. Aides 'A significant reforming or undermining the welfare bill, no," Senate Majority Whip Don Nickles, R-Okla., said Sunday on Luntz, who is close to Gingrich, to NBC's "Meet the Press."

Nickles retained his position Tuesday, while Connie Mack, R-Fla., was chosen for the No. 3 job of conference chairperson. Mack replaces Thad Cochran, R-Miss., who promised not to seek the job again last April after Republicans approved a new rule limiting terms. In June, Lott defeated Cochran for the top job by a 44-8

"It is a problem that is underestimated in many studies," she said, and that could be significant since some found only a small increased risk for cancer among women who had had abortions.

Rookus and her colleagues interviewed 918 breast cancer patients and a like number of healthy women. They asked both groups about their reproductive history the number of pregnancies and the outcomes - and about their use of oral contraceptives. The researchers then compared the rate of breast cancer vs the rate of abor-

Rookus said that difference reproductive history and then use between the regions suggested a reporting bias among the healthy

To test this, the researchers then compared the women's responses to questions about oral contraceptive use with medical records that reflect the true use of these drugs.

Rookus said the researchers found that women in the conservative areas were likely to underreport their use of contraceptives.

Dr. Douglas Weed, a National Cancer Institute researcher, said the Rookus study was important because "this is one of the first pieces of hard evidence that recall bias is actually present.'

Many researchers, said Weed, have been concerned about the possibility of reporting bias in the

"If it is true, then the results are systematically biased," said Weed. "They would show an increased risk when there is none."

He said it was reasonable to use

Olivia Gans, an official with the National Right to Life Committee, said the study does a disservice to women because it suggests there is no connection between abortion and breast cancer while this disconnection has not been proven.

"If one were to finally prove that even if only 100 women out of two million will get breast cancer as the result of an abortion," women have the right to know it, Gans said, adding, "We don't think the number is that low."

Rookus and Weed said more research needs to be done and the issue of breast cancer and abortion is far from solved.

But for women now facing a decision about abortion, Weed said he believes "there is insufficient evidence to claim that a true association exists between breast cancer and induced abortion."

"I don't think they should take the risk of breast cancer seriously in making their decision about whether or not to get an abortion," Rookus said. "Other considerations are much more important."

They use a spiral scanning pattern, which they said offers a better picture. Instead of administering X-ray dyes orally or intravenously to illuminate the area, they insert dye directly into the colon. And thirdly, they scan only the region of the appendix, not the entire abdomen.

Rao said the test costs about $230 and is cost-effective when compared with the $4,700 cost of surgery. Costs of traditional diagnosis vary depending on the technique involved.

Bombing terror returns in Paris

Elaine Ganley Associated Press

PARIS - A bomb tore apart a packed subway car in the heart of Paris Tuesday, killing two people, wounding dozens and evoking fearful memories of a bombing campaign that terrorized the city last

"It's starting again," said Estelle Campos, clutching her 6- and 12year-old sons tight near the subway station. "It's always the same people who pay."

The bomb was fashioned from a 28-pound gas canister - the signature bomb used in the 1995 attacks that killed eight people and injured

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the rush-hour bombing. It happened at 6:05 p.m. at the Port-Royal station on the RER regional line that shuttles thousands of commuters in and out of the French capital. The station is near the famed Latin Quar-

Transit workers ushered people who thought they had family members in the blast into a bus, serving them hot chocolate and questioning them. Some were crying.

"In the days to come, public officials will have to help people deal with both the psychological and social impact," said Francoise Rudzetski, head of SOS Attentats, a terrorist victims' group.

When asked if he was afraid, the owner of a cafe yards from the station said, "Of course I'm afraid. I take that line every day."

The smell of smoke hung over the city for blocks. Dozens of ambulances, fire trucks and at least 30 buses carrying silver-helmeted riot police surrounded the station. An anti-terrorist investigation squad

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia -Authorities muzzled two independent radio stations Tuesday and lashed out fiercely at the growing opposition to Slobodan Milosevic, even as more than 100,000 protesters rallied against the Serbian president and sharpened their Demonstrators hurled snowballs at the state-run media buildings in the 15th straight day of protests against Milosevic and his decision to annul Nov. 17 local elections that appeared to have been won by the opposition. Police still kept their distance, but one report said reserve police officers were being mobilized nationwide.

Milosevic's propaganda machine, which at first ignored the protests, went on the offensive, dismissing the demonstrators as terrorists, vandals and a "handful" of desperate people.

Minutes before the protesters were to begin their march through the capital Tuesday, independent radio station B-92 and the studentrun Radio Index went off the air.

A government ministry statement said B-92 had been shut down for operating without permission. The station, always critical of Milosevic's autocratic rule, had applied several times - without success - for an official frewith the women she helps.

"I like volunteering because I get the feeling that I'm a part of something, that I'm helping welfare reform for women," Correia said.

Kristie Fortmann Doser, education coordinator for DVIP, said the program needs more volunteers to pick up donations this time of the year, which is hard for students because many are busy with final exams and school.

"We rely too heavily on students. We want to recruit more in the community because students are going to be leaving," she said.

Before leaving for winter break, many students can be found volunteering for community service projects through their residence halls. Volunteer work in the residence halls ranges from blood drives to food drives.

Celine Hartwig, education coor-Amy Correia, a UI graduate stu- dinator for UI Residence Services, said the Associated Residence Halls (ARH) has been very active this semester with community service projects.

"We really encourage these projects through our office and have had a lot of activities this year,"

Along with food and blood drives. ARH has actively donated to the Salvation Army, helped the Wesley Foundation with food donations, decorated boxes of cookies and brought them to retirement homes and done other community service projects. Faculty and staff members also contribute to the gamut of volunteering in Iowa City.

Lori Giannini, a secretary in the UI Department of Sports, Health, Leisure and Physical Studies, convinced her colleagues to forfeit the annual department's Christmas party and donate to Project Holiday instead.

"We've got boxes of food around here that everyone has donated," Giannini said. "We're giving to people who need it. It's better than stuffing our faces with cookies."

Mary Ameche, director of the volunteer program for the UI Hospitals and Clinics, agreed.

Ameche said one reason people volunteer is because it's so rewarding in so many ways.

A lot of (volunteers) are here because it feels good," Ameche said. "(Volunteering) is a feel good, wonderful thing."

But for nearly 20 years, UI journalism Professor Joseph Ascroft has given his final for Social Scientific Foundations of Communication before finals week, and uses the final exam time to review the test with his students.

"You can't just give a test and walk away," Ascroft said. "Students are more satisfied with the grade they get when any grading anomalies are cleared up."

Ascroft said he doesn't feel administering his exam in the week preceding finals is a breach of rules, because he holds class durng the designated exam time.

"It would be wrong it you held the test earlier and didn't meet at all," Ascroft said.

UI religion Professor Jay Holstein said he is giving his final exams in the time designated in the Schedule of Courses. He said rescheduling them would be unfair to the hundreds of students in his class who, from the time they register for the class, depend on having the final at a particular time. UI junior Dennis Kim said his final exams are all during the established finals week. He said rescheduling them can cause problems for the students.

"If all the teachers do all the finals early it gets kind of messy,"

UI senior Andy Lasswell said he likes to have a week without classes to devote to studying for his exams, but is ambivalent about taking finals early.

"I think it's good they're done eary, but it's also bad because I feel like I'm robbed of an entire week of preparation," Lasswell said.

Lasswell said although the week before finals is like midterms week, finals are more demanding and they are difficult to juggle when they are mixed in with a week of regular classes.

UI senior Chris Greiner said his final exam on the Friday evening of finals week will keep him in town longer and he wishes it had been rescheduled for the week before.

"I prefer them early so there's more time for vacation," Greiner jersey, although Davis said he will. "Darryl Moore continues to be a real story," Davis said of his 6-foot-2 guard from Chicago who was actually recruited to try out for the Hawkeyes while playing a pick-up game at the UI Fieldhouse.

But Davis remains unsure what role Moore will take on when the Hawkeyes return to full power.

"At the very least, he's somebody that's going to be a factor," the Iowa coach said. "But you just don't know with a young guy like Moore what kind of consistency he can come with."

Consistency wasn't part of Drake's forte Tuesday. The Bulldogs scored just five points in the first 11 minutes and never pulled closer than a 16-point deficit from there. Iowa used a 19-0 run to build a 29-7 lead with eight minutes left in the first half. Moore set the tone early for the Hawkeyes, scoring 11 points and pulling down eight rebounds in just nine minutes of action during the first half. Kent McCausland and Ryan

Bowen, both of whom missed the last three games with illnesses, came off the bench to combine for 20 first-half points — 13 coming off the shooting hand of McCausland, who hit three-of-five first-half three-pointers.

Iowa saw its 50-22 halftime lead slip to 54-36 eight minutes into the second half before Andre Woolridge revived the offensive attack. Playing with four fouls, Woolridge scored eight points in the next seven minutes to extend the Hawkeye

"Andre had those two quick fouls (in the second half), and those really took him out of the game," Davis said. "But I thought as the game went on, he played better and bet-

Rucker scored six points to go with eight rebounds. "We were pretty fired up tonight," Bowen said. "We just came out hard. What we need to work on is coming out like that in the second half. If we can do that, we'll be tough.'

Settles sat out the game with a heel injury suffered in Maui. Davis was unsure if Settles, who did not make the trip to Des Moines, would be available this weekend when Iowa hosts Grambling State in the first round of the Super Chevy Shootout.

came. When Michigan pulled off the upset and spoiled the Buckeyes' chances at a national championship, they also pulled the final plug on Pace's shot at being named the top college player in America.

So who really deserves the trophy? Well I'll give you a hint, his initials are T.D. and he lives in the state of Iowa. Sit down Mr. Davis, I'm talking about Tim Dwight. In my opinion, Dwight represents the type of player the Heisman was created to reward. He is a multidi- about politics.

mensional player. He makes the hits on special teams, runs past defenders on punt returns, blocks, catches the ball and can even throw an occasional pass or two. He's capable of making big plays every time he touches the ball.

And even though my vote means absolutely nothing, maybe if we all join forces and start the campaigning now, he'll be on the list next year. Because when it comes down to it, the Heisman Trophy is all

MILWAUKEE - Michael Jordan scored 40 points and the Chicago Bulls, on the strength of a 19-5 run to start the fourth quarter, beat the Milwaukee Bucks 107-104 Tuesday night.

Bulls reserve forward Jason Caffey frustrated the Bucks with a season-high 12 points, including the first six in the Bulls' fourth-quarter spurt that gave Chicago a 14-point lead with about four minutes left.

After Steve Kerr's 3-pointer made it 99-85, the Bucks made it close thanks to Vin Baker, who finished with 20 points and 16

But Milwaukee never got closer than three in the final minute as Jordan hit a jumper with 35.5 seconds to make it 105-98 and two free throws with 11 seconds left that made it 107-102.

HOW TO PLAY AFTER CLINCHING EARLY

itka quite familiar with Denver dilemma

Dave Goldberg Associated Press

Mike Ditka, the last NFL coach to be in Mike Shanahan's position, has some perspective on how the Denver Broncos should play their three meaningless regular-season games: Go all out. "I think the worst thing you can do is rest people," said Ditka, whose 1985 Chicago Bears clinched home-field advantage in the playoffs with three games left, just as the Broncos did last Sunday. The Bears, who finished 15-1 and went on to beat New England 46-10 in the Super Bowl, were the only other team in the Super Bowl era to clinch the best conference record this early.

Chicago went on to win its final three games after the clinching game, which ironically came the week of its only loss - a 38-24 defeat in Miami. The Dolphins were motivated by the prospect of keeping the 1972 Miami team the only one to go through a season unbeaten.

Still, the Bears used all their Ditka isn't exactly telling Shanahan how to coach. But he suggests the Denver coach leave it up to John Elway, who has a sore hamstring, whether to start at quarterback against Green Bay on Sunday and in the final two games against Oakland and San Diego.

"You don't play people who are injured," he said. "We had no choice but to rest Jim McMahon. But I believe in playing all out. Buffalo is the worst example. They've rested their best guys after they've clinched and they've lost four Super Bowls." Not that the Bears didn't relax a

PREDICTS THREE TOUCHDOWN WIN

Texas QB not scared of Huskers

Chip Brown Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas - Texas quarterback James Brown has done the talking. Now, the Longhorns' offense has to deliver against Nebraska in Saturday's Big 12 championship game.

After Brown predicted a three-touchdown victory over the third-ranked Huskers (10-1, 8-0 Big 12) on Monday, the Longhorns (7-4, 6-2) were left to figure out a way to move the ball against the nation's fourth-ranked defense.

"Defensively, they bring so much pressure on the quarterback and the run game, it's going to be a full day's work,' Texas tight end Pat Fitzgerald said.

winning tradition. That day's work got even longer for the Longhorns after Brown was asked about being a near-three touchdown underdog and replied, "I think we're going to win by three touchdowns."

Brown made the statement to reporters in a surge of confidence that also included the comment, "Nebraska tries to intimidate people with their crowd and with their winning tradition. They have to beat me to intimidate me."

me.

What's surprising is that Brown made the statements after having watched tapes of the Nebraska defense harassing Colorado quarterback Kov Detmer in a 17-12 victory Friday that clinched the Big 12 North title for the Huskers.

"They have big, strong athletes," Brown said. "They just overpowered Colorado's offensive line. They just pushed them back in the backfield. They sacked Detmer on three-step drops and five-step drops.

We might get in the shotgun some plays, but if they play us man-to-man, they're going to have to hold Wane (McGarity) and Mike (Adams), and with receivers like that, it's easy to beat man-to-man."

The Nebraska front seven is led by ends Grant Wistrom and Jared Tomich, tackle Jason Peter and linebackers Jamel Williams and Jon Hesse.

When Texas coach John Mackovic was asked if he thought Nebraska would go heavy on the blitz Saturday, he said, "Who needs to blitz when they send four guys and they're in the backfield all the time?"

The Longhorns figure to use short drops and quick passes to tight end Fitzgerald and to running backs Ricky Williams, Shon Mitchell and Priest Holmes. But the key may be Brown's ability to scramble away from pressure and get up field.

'I watched the Colorado game and they sacked Detmer every other time he dropped back to pass," Brown said. "To sack me, they're going to have to catch me. If I have to run, I will. Otherwise, I'll stand in the pocket and pass."
