Albright named secretary of state

By Suzanne Schaefer
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton on Tuesday nominated Madeleine Albright as the nation's first woman secretary of state and former UN ambassador.

Clinton offered Albright the post last week to replace Colin L. Powell, who resigned in September because of the need for a vote in Congress to confirm his nomination.

Albright, 57, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was expected to be confirmed easily by the Senate during Clinton's first four years in office.

Albright appeared grateful for the opportunity to serve.

"I think he wants me in his government — I mean, your confirmation," she said.

Senator Dick Lugar, R-Ind., who chairs the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said this was the best possible candidate for secretary of state.

President Clinton was quick to say he was pleased with his own choice. Albright also had the full support of the Office of Management and Budget, which oversaw the administration of the nation's foreign policy and national defense.

Sen. Joe Biden, D-Del., said the Senate would consider Albright's nomination on Wednesday and vote to confirm her on Thursday.

Pulitzer Prize-winner Taylor Branch speaks to a UI crowd about young people's role in the civil rights movement

By By Eric Neubauer

The Daily Iowan

Without the noble efforts of students in the 1960s, Martin Luther King Jr. wouldn't have made such strides in the civil rights movement, Taylor Branch said.

Branch told a UI crowd Wednesday night about the activities of about 100 people in honor of King's birthday and Human Rights Week. He is the author of "Pulitzer: America in the King Years, 1954-63."

Branch said this letter made no difference to King.

"He was just not interested in the plight of non-privileged at-large as a form of protest," Branch said. "The thing he wanted was what happened with the government. What he did was get the attention of the children." At first, college students were not taken seriously by adults, Branch said.

"What would we think here in Iowa or anywhere else if college students took a continuous effort to say that they have a solution to the most vexing problems of our society?"

Branch said he went on to see and anywhere else if college students took a continuous effort to say that they have a solution to the most vexing problems of our society.

Decrease in use forces hospices to close doors

By Robin Estrin

BLOOMINGTON. - The beds in the Hsin at Mission Hill are empty, but the hand-knit blanket isn't folded, no matter how often the file holds the bed stood guard overnight.

The story continues about 2,000 men and women who made the converted brick building their home for the past two years. The former military barracks house only 17 beds now, with some using them for hospitalization or long-term care.

In the hurried times, as many as two a night might stay the night, sometimes finding needles in their linens, freshly prepared on clothes racks.

Study targets Gulf War for medical problems

By Jennifer Cassell

The Daily Iowan

Iowa veterans who served in the Gulf War said on Monday they support a higher rate of medical and psychiatric problems seen among Gulf War veterans who served outside the Gulf region.

The Iowa Persian Gulf Research Project, conducted by UI College of Medicine researchers, showed a total of 14.7 percent of Persian Gulf War military personnel vs. 6.8 percent of non-Persian Gulf War military personnel had symptoms of two or more psychiatric problems and 6.9 percent of Persian Gulf War had symptoms of two or more medical and psychiatric problems.

Construction inhibits student bustle

By Eric Neubauer

The Daily Iowan

Students dashing to class across the intersection of Clinton and Jefferson streets have been stopped in their tracks recently by the construction hammers of narrowed streets and slowed traffic.

Inconvenience in crossing streets and long waits at red lights are some of the problems UI students are encountering during the construction project, which has come above or below campus between the Pentacrest and Pappajohn Business Administration Building.

UI Replacement Dylan Pankhurst, who has assisted in the project, said his bus stop near the intersection is the only bustle he has seen lately.

Donations sought to aid in food, shelter of monkeys

By Charlotte Shy
The Daily Iowan

Members of the UI Animal Conditioning Program have raised $9,000 toward the cost of sending 10 monkeys to a new facility. The monkeys were taken from their former residence due to poor weather conditions.

Those wishing to donate to the program can make contributions to the following address:

Ten of the monkeys are still at the Animal Care Facility awaiting new residences in several new and animal sanctuaries around the nation.

Dr. Paul Cooper, a veterinarian at the center, said costs of keeping the monkeys run about $3 per animal each day for food and labor. Cooper said the UI spent around $100,000 in 1994 to feed and house them.

Woodson said donations to the fund have dropped off significantly in recent months.

"It was no-it's old news and people have forgotten about it," Woodson said.

Iowa profits from federal welfare reform

By Mike Glover
Iowa City Press-Citizen

"Iowa had taken on the pro- cess of having welfare reform in place. We were able to take advantage of that," Dennis Prouty, head of the Legislative Fiscal Bureau, said.

The state was well-positioned to gain because legislators revamped the welfare system a few years ago. They put in a plan to ensure that welfare payments would not continue past the end of September. Iowa had taken on the project of having welfare reform in place, Prouty said. "We were able to take advantage of that," he said.

Lawmakers have said they want to decrease this year's welfare rolls because of "savings," a system where benefits are denied to families with young children that can't go to school. Despite that, there may be other factors that have contributed to the budget cuts.

The state has experienced declining welfare caseloads for three consecutive years, due in part to an economy that has been healthy throughout that time.

A main feature of the federal welfare reform law is the state block grant to each state. The money is used to help states build and fund the welfare system.

Lawmakers say the goal is to set aside any money that isn't used as long as the money is not used in case the economy worsens and welfare caseloads increase.

The odd couple of the GOP

I was a lead investigator of ethics charges against the speaker with the rank of major in the Iowa National Guard. I recommended to Speaker Gingrich that he be censured and required to repay a $3,700 expense claim by a donor. The House ethics committee largely adopted my recommendation. I also wrote for the Iowa City Press-Citizen.

My name is Jim Leach, and I was the representative for the first congressional district of Iowa. I was a Republican from 1983 to 2007. I represented the Midwest but had to stand up for Congress anymore. Leach was either confused or history.

Iowa City’s own hardworking politician, Jim Leach knew the Speaker from a little-known advice column in the mid-1980s. But even though the House took this momentous action, it wasn’t exactly sex, lies and videotape.

The late January 1995 is one of the more unremembered events of the 104th Congress. In fact, the debate over the Gingrich ethics complaint will be the least tiptoe covered by Congress against him.

A new target for their wrath is the 10-year war on Congress, including the House Ethics Committee, my representatives, Jim Leach. Of course, Leach knows the House doesn’t make any sense, but he may be too attached to a woolly dreamer’s notion that the Congress is working for the poor.

There are some trends that Leach leaves the Republican Party, despite his consistent record. Afterward, the House Ethics Committee will clean up the worst of the ethics scandal that began in January 1995.

Frostbite can freeze your drunken face off

Q: During winter break there was a lot of warnings about going outside and exposure to the cold. What is frostbite really? And do I have to worry about it when walking to class?

A: Frostbite occurs when skin is exposed to very cold temperatures and the skin and underlying tissue freeze. The areas most likely to get frostbite are the hands, feet, nose, and ears. Frostbite can cause a hazy,aching pain. As the frostbite gets worse, the skin may turn red and painful.

Every year, people get frostbite from drinking alcohol. Alcohol actually makes your body lose heat by dilating the skin's blood vessels. It also depresses your body's ability to warm up and will contribute to frostbite and hypothermia.

If you do get frostbite, get out of the cold right away. Warm your hands by tucking them into your armpits. If you see, pain, or tingling, get medical help. The skin will turn white and you will experience numbness. If it turns blue, has a mottled pattern, or is numb, you need treatment immediately. Do not rub the area to try to feel sensation, which means the tissue is damaged. Frostbite can turn into frostnipped area thaws, the skin may be red and painful.

Use these tips to minimize your symptoms:

1. Put on gloves, a scarf and hat. The doctor will warn you about other clothing.
2. Don't drink! Instead, wait for help. If you are already drunk or walk home in a drunken state. Passing out in the cold can result in frostbite and other serious health issues.
3. Wear proper clothing. The areas most likely to get frostbite are the hands, feet, nose and ears. Frostbite causes the skin and underlying tissue to freeze. The areas most likely to get frostbite are the hands, feet, nose and ears.
4. Start warming up. If your feet are affected, instead of walking, sit down and do extra for panic disorder.
5. Drink warm fluids. If your hands are affected, instead of rubbing, sit down and drink warm fluids.
6. Get medical care. If the area remains frozen, you need medical care. Frostbite can be thought of as the result of a lot of serious medical issues.

Student HealthLog

Q: When I was home, I went to the doctor because I was having a lot of problems with diarrhea and a few other embarrassing symptoms (you, know, constipation at times). It happened in a strange way. I would feel sick, but really I was just diarrhea. Anyway, my doctor told me to isolate a specific color. Can you tell me more about what that means?

A: Isolated rectal activity of the intestinal wall. Symptoms include abdominal pain, change in bowel habits, alternating diarrhea and constipation, heartburn, and sometimes nausea. The cause of IBS varies, but it may be aggravated by certain foods. Many times people with IBS experience the symptoms when passed or scared, which may be associated with stress, though more so in women than men. As a result, many may have IBS. However, some people need to suffer in silence, so it is hard to know the exact number. It is thought to be the second-leading cause of absenteeism in the American workplace.

It is very important to see your doctor if you experience these symptoms to rule out more serious illnesses. There are three tips to minimize your symptoms:

1. Put attention to your diet. A high fiber diet including fresh fruits, vegetables, or fiber supplements can reduce the severity of symptoms and diarrhea. However, if you have diabetes, consult with your doctor before taking any fiber supplements.
2. Drink plenty of water. This can help keep the area thaws, the skin may be red and painful.
3. Watch out for stress. Avoid stressful situations that can stimulate muscles and increase bloating and discomfort.

Capital awakenings to Inaugural Day debris, revelers’ complaints

By Carolyn Skorneck

WASHINGTON — Some free advice for the Inaugural Day cleanup crew: Don’t let the area turn into a trash heap, and don’t let revelers party too hard.

And don’t let participants to remote parking lots by offering free shuttle service to the ball and handing out the event tickets when that really means until 6 a.m., when reality sets in with partiers leaving.

Andrews Air Force Base, site of the Mid-Atlantic Ball, that police were called to calm a horde of partygoers to claim their worn.

“We want our state — now,” the guards chanted two hours after the president and first lady had left the ball. With 6,000 trips to be made, revelers in a few at a time to pick up their suits. Some simply walked out anyway.

For many, too little space, explained the contractor running the coat check.

"Dont change in the president’s conduct... in the second term we... the first term is that we won’t be... not what is happening in Congress or what is happening with legislation."

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said.

As an example of the tests, the science project number two that held them to higher standards, preferably ones that reflect working with people through their work.

Ban on sale of porn at military bases ruled unconstitutional by federal judge

Democratic critics had warned that the bill's wording could result in the ban to be stretched to affect married couples or the Sports Illustrated swimsuit issue.

"I think Judge Scheindlin has given the First Amendment a new spit shine by rejecting the military's position," said Bob Gccione, publisher of Penthouse.

In an opinion, the judge wrote, "Bob Gccione, publisher of Penthouse, in his brief filed in support of the Pentagon's position, said, 'I was pleased with the ruling. 'I think Judge Scheindlin has given the First Amendment a new Spit Shine by Rejecting the Military's Position,'" he said. "The First Amendment, in short, is the ammunition of freedom, and the application of the ban's loose wording threatens not only to strip the soldiers of their rights but also to create a culture of fear."

Loss of Clayton hurts Hawkeyes

Bo Wayne Dehn

Iowa City Press-Citizen

Karen Clayton concluded her playing days last March with the Iowa women's basketball team relatively unscathed in the average fan. But nearly two months after her departure, the player with a career scoring average of 18.2 points per game is still being remembered.

Clayton and transfer Stacey Francis are the only two players gone from last season's 27-4 squad. Without the duo this year, the Hawkeyes find themselves in the middle of the conference.

“Your game to show how important it is to have a point guard who is the top,” head coach Angie Lee said. “They are an extension of the coach on the floor.”

A lot of people want to know Karen Clayton because she didn’t hit the head side of a ball, but she was able to get herself in position to make the shot. She understood possession, tempo, initiating plays and making decisions.

If she was in the game tonight, she would be dancing into the end zone.

“This year, our defense didn’t play well enough to defeat opposing offenses. Every game was a battle for the defense’s flash and we took it personally.

“Without the second half of the season, we’re in a hole. We’ve given up many points in the first half of the season, our defense didn’t play well enough to deserve respect. Every game we’ve given up more points than we’ve scored.”

Big Ten Showdown

By Chris Sidler

The Daily Iowan

A month ago, the Iowa men’s basketball game at Minnesota hardly appeared to be a marque matchup. But when these two teams met in the city of Minneapolis, the game will be nothing but a national treat.

Iowa enters the game 14-4 on the season, Minnesota is 16-2 and ranked No. 8 in the nation. Both teams are 3-0 in the conference.

The Hawkeyes will be trying to improve their best half of the season. They’re coming off a loss to Michigan State. Iowa coach Tom Davis said that loss will only get more difficult against the Gophers.

Minnesota has more depth and more overall experience than Michigan State. The Gophers have not only been successful in Big Ten games, but also have taken four of their last five against top teams.

All five Gopher starters average more than nine points per game and four of them average more than five rebounds per game. Mark Titus and Anthony Peluso are the big men for the Gophers. Peluso is a 6-foot-11 beast of the court who is the top rebounder in the Big Ten.

Wisconsin’s longest streak of 11 straight wins against Iowa will come to an end tonight.

Iowa coach Fran McCaffery said he was pleased with the team’s performance against Michigan State.

“I’d like to see our team have a secondary,” McCaffery said. “I’d like to see our point guard use his talent to help his teammates.”

First-year coach leads Hawkeye women

By Tony Wirt

The Daily Iowan

Last season Iowa didn’t turn out as well as the Hawkeyes’ women’s track team had hoped.

With two of the Hawkeyes’ top runners, Shaneen Clay and Tyra Beal, injured, the team ended the season with a disappointing finish of 10th out of 11 Big Ten meet.

This past season, Coach Huskins has put a lot of pressure on the team to improve on last year’s performance. The team is looking to end a three-year conference streak.

“Expectations to be high, but half of the battle is understanding who is the best,” Assistant Coach Marla. Clay said.

Karen Clayton was the team’s top scorer last season, she was the Iowa women’s track and field team’s top scorer last season, she was the Iowa women’s track and field team’s top scorer last season.

With the loss of Clayton, the team is hoping to put a few more points on the board.

The team’s top scorer last season, Maggie Griffin, was also announced as the team’s top scorer last season.

With a 15-game schedule, you're not going to lose very often, and with the top 100 Steele transferred, it's going to be a tremendous talent. Steele got the chance to lead, and I know he's ready to run the show.

Every national championship team starts with a great point guard, according to Lee, and replacing Clayton Harris, who has every spot, isn't an easy task. Harris will get the unenviable task of guarding Iowa's Andre Johnson, one of the best point guards in Iowa, on a regular basis. Harris will be the point guard on the team that has scored 24 or more points per game.

With that kind of game, you have to be great in the district, and that's what Lee talked about. Lee said, "We're going to be a tremendous talent. Steele got the chance to lead, and I know he's ready to run the show."

Favre again player of the year

By Bill Barnard

It's a two-time MVF. Now, he's a two-time player of the year.

Brett Favre, whose 20 touchdown passes gave him the third-highest total in NFL history, was awarded the award Wednesday for the second consecutive year. On Tuesday, the Packers' fullback defensive tackle, has his own sandwich at the Green Bay area Burger Worlders, who know no boundaries when it comes to betting ideas for the Superbowl. McMahon knows that his chances of winning the Super Bowl are relatively low, but he's not willing to bet against a team that's been playing well.

Jordan's help invisible

By Mike Nadel

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan was all over the floor, and the Bulls’ fate was his.

He was the Vermont native. He was the man who carried his home team out of the game with 15 points in coming to Chicago in one of the most visible seasons in basketball history.

Where's the rest of the world's greatest talent? Where's the rest of the world's greatest talent? Where's the rest of the world's greatest talent? Where's the rest of the world's greatest talent? Where's the rest of the world's greatest talent? Where's the rest of the world's greatest talent? Where's the rest of the world's greatest talent? Where's the rest of the world's greatest talent? Where's the rest of the world's greatest talent?

There were signs of the past. There were signs of the past. There were signs of the past. There were signs of the past. There were signs of the past. There were signs of the past. There were signs of the past. There were signs of the past. There were signs of the past. There were signs of the past.

The Bulls’ Michael Jordan scored 78 points last night. But where’s the rest of the world’s greatest talent? Where’s the rest of the world’s greatest talent? "I don’t have a problem taking a more aggressive role," Jordan said. "I was prepared to do whatever it took to win the game." If the Bulls had any other options, Jordan said, he would have asked to play more often. But over the past three games, the Bulls have given him the ball by his savagery.

"I’m not sure it’s the best thing for the team," Jordan said. "But it’s the only way we can win." If I got a feeling the other players..."
Lee expects her team to respond the way they're not out of the picture. "We want to be in the league and not just be a part of the league," Lee said. "We want to be a part of the league and not just be a part of the league."

Flurry of activities abound to keep busy in frigid temps

By Katherine Heintzel

It's not because it's cold outside, it's just that you better make some plans to go out and enjoy the snow. The weather outside gets frightful, bundle up, why not enjoy the winter sport activities. You might even make a new friend.

If your winter break was spent catching up on sleep, wasting money and keeping warm, then cross-country skiing might be just what you need. Why not try it this weekend than the next one? Cross-country ski rentals are available at Active Endurances, 1135 Cherry St., for $20 a day with a $80 deposit, refundable upon return. Be sure to check out the race track behind the Trail Center. The trails range anywhere from easy to difficult, and all overlook the lake or the Coralville Reservoir. To get to the recreation area, take Dubuque Street heading toward North Liberty to County Road F-28 heading north.

Still, they are the lead actors of the film, and their performances are well worth watching. The opening scene sequence and sets ("Nun's",) whose representation is the only substance that the movie, is quiet yet, powerful, and her interpretation of the role is likely the best moment in the film.

"The Manchurian Candidate" (PG-13) - In the end, this is no, Fox, but all the center of the big confrontations, leading in a lot of women who can only watch, but fail to do anything about it. Matter of fact, all of the film doesn't really make a sense of the film's plot, and this is the only number that the two compelling don't make much sense. The film, in many women, are being laughed at or think that they are funny. And while the courtroom scene is by far the best confrontation, resulting in the moment in the film.

"The People vs. Larry Flynt" (R) - Director Milos Forman's "Amadeus," One Oscar for the films most memorable scene, and a second for the year's best composition. While it's true, some are (wrongly) calling his best performance, is the oft-prosecuted courtroom scene in years.

"Better Homes & Gardens" (PG-13) - Sportscaster turned author, Renee Zellweger herself seems incredible in this kind of role. Equally impressive to Renee is Jonathan Pryce, who plays on a character that contains some embarrassing details. At the end of the film, in the true-life romance that was never seen, and the only thing he is going to do is to be called a "Beverly Hills Ninja" (PG-13) - Chris Farley's "Super Bad" blunders his way through one of the year's most anticipated comedies. With a premise that in itself is a)
Coping with Comedy Central's cancellation

Patrick Keller

I'll miss staying up late on Sunday nights to watch whichever show Comedy Central deemed worthy of showing us. Do you?

Jan-Erik Gustafsson

It may be a matter of time before we start a new show up from home, but every week, we are getting closer to the end of the show. So, what do you think of the show so far?

SDM

The second show that I've watched was the "Politically Incorrect" segment. It's done so well it is as if it's the best of what is worthwhile. It's funny, but then it's funny.

CD Reviews

Debut album from British alternative rock band

The 'show spawn imitation, and they do it well. The numbers on the tracks are so well done that it is as if they were the best of the lot.

Jaimieoni transports listeners back to '70s

While the late-1970s continue to be labeled as one of the least cumbersome in rock, the Jaimieoni band has continued to experiment with sound and style. They transport listeners back to the '70s with their new album, "Back to '70s." The album is filled with tracks that are reminiscent of the era, and the sound is as authentic as can be.

Play explores fury of domestic abuse

By Greg Kirschling

The Iowan

Mixing "Three Sisters," an Anton Chekhov play, with the brutal violence of the O.J. Simpson trial, the Broadway Ham­merson Company's "Harry's Way" is meant to examine domestic violence (among other things) using broad and often shocking con­trasts.

Dr. Carol Steiner, the show's director, is no stranger to the subject of domestic violence. She is a professor at the University of Illinois at Chicago, which is the site of "Harry's Way," but Steiner said Tuesday, "That's not to say the show isn't about life. For example, there are exterior settings and a lot of space and portraying the setting to the unreal­ity, the natural effect, live sound effects and special effects..."
Bad Company returns with new material, old favorites

By Kirk Billa

PHILADELPHIA -- Bad Company's new album, "Bollywood," sharply veers away from the pop/rock sound that made the band a top-10 act in the late '70s and early '80s and instead harks back to the classic English hard rock that inspired the group and its fans.

It's a bold move for a band that became well known in the U.S. with the poppy single "Bad Company" and the rockier "Can't Get Enough." Those hits were part of the classic English hard rock scene of the late '60s and '70s, which included Led Zeppelin and Deep Purple.

It's a risky move for a band that has seen its popularity decline in recent years, but "Bollywood" is a bold and ambitious effort that could help Bad Company regain some of its lost glory.

The album opens with the title track, a driving rocker that showcases singer Robert Plant's vocal power and the band's ability to create a strong, memorable sound.

The song then moves into a more laid-back, acoustic-driven style, highlighted by the single "Slowburn." The guitar work on this track is particularly impressive, with lead guitarist Dave Amato delivering a guitar solo that is both melodic and powerful.

The album also features a cover of Fleetwood Mac's "Landslide," which adds a unique twist to the band's sound. Bad Company's version is more rootsy and earthy than the original, and it's a nice change of pace.

Overall, "Bollywood" is a strong album that shows Bad Company is still capable of creating great music. It's a welcome return to form, and it's a testament to the band's talent and dedication to their craft.
