An 18-year-old female was allegedly drugged at a downtown Iowa City bar and sexually assaulted early in the morning, according to police.

"The assault occurred at a downtown Iowa City bar around 1:15 a.m. when a minor female was reportedly drugged," Officer Brian Winkelhake said.

According to the report, witnesses said she was drugged. Hospital policy required the doctor to call the police report.

The victim's memory is slowly returning.

The bar and fraternity house mentioned in the report are not named.

The bar in question is Iowa City's only on-campus bar, and the bar manager said he was aware of the situation. He would not provide any further information about the incident.

The investigation is in the preliminary stage, Fort said, because the women is being uncooperative.

With a new law that allows complaints to be filed with the (Student) Government for incidents occurring on the University of Iowa campus, University of Iowa athletic director Gary Barta said he is excited for the opportunity it presents.

"We're excited about it," Barta said. "It's a new way of looking at things."
Chicken game captivates Japan

By Thomas Prodis
Associated Press

7:00 A.M. in Japan, when getting the latest gadget is a pastime for many, every day. The game is set off by a new handheld chicken video game being fed in. The game is popular among young people, with many of them spending long hours playing it.

The game has two main parts: first, the player sets up the chicken in a virtual coop, where it will lay eggs; then, the player has to collect the eggs and take them back to the coop. The more eggs collected, the higher the score.

The game is now available in many parts of the world, including Japan, where it has become a huge hit. In fact, some people have even started collecting the eggs as a hobby.

Black leaders lower expectations for Simpson to aid community

The store has run out of chickens several times, and customers who showed up were unable to find any. However, the store has managed to keep up with demand, and the chicken is usually back in stock within a few days.

Simpson's campaign team has been working hard to get the message out to the community, and they are hoping that people will come out and support their candidate.

Simpson's campaign team has also been reaching out to local organizations, including schools and churches, to get their support.

The store has been selling out of chicken quicker than ever before, and it is expected to continue for the rest of the summer. The owner of the store, who did not want to be identified, said that they are trying to keep up with demand as best as they can.
Iowa City City Council Tuesday night approved a proposal for an Iowa–Iowa City sound space in the University of Iowa Union, if the owner of Eyed Jake’s does not win approval for a proposal to add another bar between Mike Porter, the city’s economic development director, and the public.

Last week, a House committee approved a plan that would add the words “men and women” to the Iowa Women’s Facility’s resolution of rights. The plan, which was floated back during a committee meeting earlier this month, was approved by the committee. The goal is to make sure that all individuals, regardless of gender identity, are protected by the resolution.

By Rich Smith

Porter was first notified in December that the university had no intention of extending his contract beyond the 2016–17 academic year. He was given 10 months to submit a plan to extend the contract. Porter and the university came to an agreement that extended his contract through June 2019, at which point a decision will be made on his future at the university.

By Jocelyn L. Knopf

Porter’s experience in marketing and public relations will be valuable to the university as it looks to expand its online presence and attract new students.

By Rich Smith

The university’s decision to extend Porter’s contract is a positive step in retaining one of its most valuable employees.

Ebonics: What’s the controversy?

In the mid-90s, the Oakland Unified School District passed a resolution declaring that the language spoken by many of its students—Ebonics—was to be acceptable in the classroom. The resolution was later rescinded, but the controversy over the language continues. The term Ebonics is often used to refer to a dialect of African American Vernacular English, which is distinct from standard English. The debate over Ebonics has raised questions about the role of language in education and the validity of different dialects as valid forms of communication.

Students should fight for funding

When wouldn’t one want the University of Iowa being overworked by Madison?

That’s how much money the UI spent last year—$22 million—for campus organizations. And each of us should take it as news that money—money is important. It means that it’s necessary to decide where to spend the money. (Don’t get sick, and you’re logical and used to many Universities. Letters on Pumpkins smashing

To the Editor:

I wasn't able to see the Smashing Pumpkins in Cedar Rapids — the show sold out too fast — so I don't know if it was true, but Billy Corgan's opening of the show was validated on Jan. 22. "Pumpkins were smashing!"

A piece of advice, Amy. The audience at your concert will be different from the one at my concert. It was keyboardist Jonathan Melvoin who was missed and drummer Jimmy Chamberlin who arrived and left and changed the band. Hence, you could not have had Chamberlin's "power of numbers" out of everyone's ears in the Five Seasons Center. Of very glad, not sad, nor guitar, and the Pumpkins' recently released box collection is not a substitute for the time smiles and the Melvoin Care and the Melvoin Care package together outside. The band and previously uncompromised. It may not to a great collection, but that's another story. Nonsense. It's difficult to record anything new if you've been touring worldwide all year, as the Pumpkins have.

I was at the Pumpkins' concert at The Mark in Moline October with my kids. They put on a great show; I just won't be attending their benefit for the time the Pumpkins are scheduled to appear again.

To the Editor:

We are writing in response to the column titled "Pumpkins were smashing!" We are not inclined to agree.

First and foremost, the phrase "Pumpkins were smashing!" was not a compliment. It is more of an accusation, suggesting that the band was not up to par. The writer implies that the band's performance was less than satisfactory.

Secondly, Valdez writes that "the audience at your concert will be different from the one at my concert. It was keyboardist Jonathan Melvoin who was missed and drummer Jimmy Chamberlin who arrived and left and changed the band. Hence, you could not have had Chamberlin's "power of numbers" out of everyone's ears in the Five Seasons Center. Of very glad, not sad, nor guitar, and the Pumpkins' recently released box collection is not a substitute for the time smiles and the Melvoin Care and the Melvoin Care package together outside. The band and previously uncompromised. It may not to a great collection, but that's another story. Nonsense. It's difficult to record anything new if you've been touring worldwide all year, as the Pumpkins have."

This is not accurate. The Pumpkins' recent tour was successful and their performance was praised by many. The writer's statements are not based on facts.

Valdez is also critical of the Smashing Pumpkins' new album, "Elephant." She writes that "it is uneducated in regard to the art form." This is a clear overstatement. The writer's knowledge and understanding of music are not the standard by which others should judge the band's work.

In conclusion, we believe that Valdez's criticism of the Smashing Pumpkins is unfounded. We urge her to focus on providing accurate and constructive feedback instead of basing her opinions on hearsay and speculation.

Sincerely,

GDP moderates plan to press Congress for budget compromise

WASHINGTON — Moderate Republicans see themselves as a crucial player in President Clinton’s budget talks. But the more conservative GOP leadership that is moving quickly to retain control of the House.

On key budget issues that have divided the president and Congress since 1995 — how deep to cut into the budget — the middle ground is where most of their efforts have been focused.

"I think that’s where we’ve got the moderate ground," said Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., the Senate Majority Leader. "I think that’s where we’ve got the middle ground."

If both parties don’t come to a compromise, the government could shut down in 1997, as it did in 1995.

Albanians protest over failed investments

By Roland Price
Associated Press

TIRANA, Albania — Tens of thousands of Albanians gathered outside the government buildings Sunday in protest against mounting economic problems that have left tens of thousands of Albanians in poverty.

The protesters, who gathered in Tirana and other towns across the country, demanded the resignation of Prime Minister Sali Berisha, who has faced criticism for his handling of the economy.

A supporter of the capital, mobs burned the local courthouse and offices of the Bureau of Investigation, local reporters said. Rioters ransacked a senior government minister and a journalist, forcing them to seek shelter on the city’s waterfront.

President Bush called for the release of American hostages held in Somalia, where the Bush administration said it was actively working to free them.

The protesters, who include workers, farmers, students and retirees, have been protesting for weeks over the government’s failure to fulfill a promise to provide economic aid to the country.

The protest was a sign of growing frustration among Albanians over the government’s handling of the economy, which has been in a state of crisis since the 1990s.

The protesters demanded the resignation of Prime Minister Sali Berisha, who has faced criticism for his handling of the economy. They also called for the release of American hostages held in Somalia, where the Bush administration said it was actively working to free them.

The protest was one of the largest in the country in recent years, and it highlighted the deepening economic and political crisis in Albania.

United may expand employee benefits

By Martha Irvine

United Airlines employees do not have the same benefits as their counterparts at San Francisco International Airport. However, San Francisco employees now have benefits that are being considered for other United employees, including the possibility of offering the same benefits to their spouses or partners.

According to San Francisco employees, these changes are based on recent surveys conducted by the airline. The surveys indicated that many United employees were interested in having benefits similar to those offered at San Francisco International.

With his blue eyes and sandy hair, Charles E. Johnson has a commanding presence that is reminiscent of the classic American movie star. He is often seen walking in the Third Ward, a neighborhood he says is special to him.

Johnson has been living in Milwaukee for the past 10 years, working as a chef at a local restaurant. He says he enjoys living in the city and being a part of the community.

Johnson has also been active in the local arts community, serving as a board member for the Milwaukee Art Museum. He says he is proud to be a part of the city's cultural scene.

The Native Americans living in the United States face a unique set of challenges when it comes to tribal heritage. They must navigate the complex laws and regulations that govern tribal matters, while also trying to preserve their cultural traditions.

Many tribes have been working to ease the requirements for accepting members, with a focus on broadening the definition of tribal membership. This has led to an increase in the number of people who identify as members of an Indian tribe.

For example, the Mashantucket Pequot Tribe in Connecticut has dropped its one-sixteenth ancestry requirement, but generations of Indians today have one-sixty-fourth ancestry un questioned, but generations of intermarriage have crowded their family trees with non-Indians as well.

Many tribes are easeing membership requirements just to survive. With the sagging Las Vegas casino business, tribes will fade along with blood lines.

"If tribes aren't careful, they can turn into business corporations that say they're Indian," said Jerry Brant, a professor at the American University of the South in Oklahoma. "We have to keep the jobs of American Indians alive but it's not happening as a tribe.

One federal study estimated that the percentage of Indians who are full-blooded — 40 percent in 1970 — will fall to 24 percent by 2000 and to 0.3 percent by 2050. But even as bloodlines thin, some Indians have become more popular. The number of people identifying themselves as Americans has tripled since 1970, rising from 627,000 to more than 2 million, census figures said.

A resurgence of Indian pride is looked to by some tribes, typically those involved in gaming. In Connecticut, the 383 members of the Mashantucket Pequot Tribe share profits from a casino that clears more than $1 million a day from slot machines alone.

The tribe gets about $20 a month. Each琪 member of the tribe must have Pequot blood in them. Some of them can't even pronounce the name of the tribe, tribal spokesperson Bruce MacDonald said.

"It's easy to brush off such watermelon. But when the Pequots outside see their own, they realize many of their children and grandchildren wouldn't qualify. In November, the tribe dropped its requirement for complete ancestry.

Iowa continues to slump at Carver
Hawkeyes fall to 2-4 at home

By Andy Hamilton
The Daily Iowan

If there was ever a year for the Michigan women's basketball team to win in Iowa City, this was it. The Wolverines beat Iowa, 76-73, Saturday afternoon, reclaiming their first ever win in Iowa City. "I've never been in Iowa before," said Mimi Korean, "I've never been and win in Carver-Hawkeye Arena is very sexy.

"It was a great win for us, it was a great win for our team and it was a great win for our program," Korean added.

The trio of waiver-wire castoffs - the Packers, who had 12 replacements in 12 games, and the 49ers, who had 11 replacements in 12 games - have a lot of great players. And many, many, many good players.

"We have the ability to win," said Packers coach Mike Pettine. "We have the ability to win."
The Northwest had only beaten Iowa twice in 29 tries before their 75-63 win, and Packen Mary Berdo hit her third with a steal and lay up and then Nadine Domond came up yard touchdown.

The tie score was the highest of the year.

With all the pressure to win and loss. "Pollyanna was licking her chops, said. "You've seen this before, haven't you?"

"We knew we couldn't just sit around and watch them score," said John. "We had to do something to stop them." But they were unable to do so.

Green Bay wins Super Bowl in style

By Dave Goldberg

NEW ORLEANS — There wasn’t a .001 percent of a moment in this game when the outcome was uncertain, and that was the case from the first touchdown of the game to the last. The result was that the New England Patriots were fortunate enough to see the Super Bowl XXXI between the Atlanta Falcons and the New England Patriots end with the Patriots winning 35-21. The game was a testament to the dominance of the Patriots as the league’s best team, as they overcame a 14-10 halftime deficit and put the game out of reach by scoring 25 unanswered points in the second half.

The game started with the Patriots receiving the opening kickoff and using a well-executed punt coverage to set up their first touchdown of the game. The Falcons, led by quarterback Steve Bartel, managed to score a touchdown early in the second quarter, but the Patriots responded with two touchdowns in the second quarter to take a 21-14 lead. The Falcons scored again in the third quarter, but the Patriots answered with two more touchdowns in the fourth quarter to put the game out of reach.

The Patriots’ defense was dominant throughout the game, allowing only 21 points and intercepting three passes. The offense, led by quarterback Tom Brady, put up 242 total yards and scored four touchdowns. The game was played in front of a record crowd of 73,017 at the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans.

The game was a great opportunity for the Patriots to prove their dominance in the league, and they did not disappoint. The Patriots went on to win the AFC Championship and Super Bowl XXXI, cementing their place as one of the greatest teams in NFL history.

Iowa splits weekend twinbill
By Tony Wirt

While many people spent the weekend hunting around watching springtime transformation, the Hawkeye track team spent the weekend traveling to two meets to compete.

The Hawkeyes split Friday afternoon at Wisconsin, but had the favor of losing to Minnesota and the University of Iowa in the two meets. The Hawkeye men's team lost the two meets, but the Hawkeyes' women's team won both meets in a 140-97 victory.

"Senior night is always a good sight for us, both the seniors and the non-seniors," senior running captain Matt Schmitz said. "You always want to put the meet together to honor the seniors, but you also want to prove the wins of the younger guys."

"You never get too old to win," Iowa coach Fran Mccarthy said. "The way we started with the seniors, Matt Schmitz, Ryan Schuck, Stephanie Schuck, and Dan and Steve Schmitz, they all ran well."

"I wasn't the best, but I ran well and had a lot of fun," senior runner Melissa Breeden said. "I really wanted to qualify for the Big Ten meet, so I was very pleased with my time of 4:38.35." -Jared Voss

Hawkeyes fall, but see improvement

By Becky Grish

The term "moral victory" seems to be one that is thrown around by most coaches after a loss. But for the Iowa swimming and diving team, the term seems to apply to their weekend meet against Wisconsin and Ohio State over the weekend.

The Hawkeyes fell to Wisconsin, 147-96, Friday night and then to Ohio State by the score of 147-96 Saturday afternoon. Although both losses were hard to take, the competition may have been the highlight for the team.

"It was one of our best individual season," senior swimmer Brian Ray said. "We didn't win one of our last individual events, but we came back. Since we are only have one winner, going 1-2-3, I know that you have something to improve.

Athletes from Iowa and Ohio State compete in the 200 freestyle Saturday afternoon at the UI Fieldhouse. The Hawkeyes won the meet, 147-96.

Hawkeyes start 1997 spring season

By Howard Dennis

The Iowa men's tennis team got off to a strong start this spring by winning the Sioux Falls Tournament in Chamberlain, South Dakota, over the weekend.

The Hawkeyes defeated a pair of teams to advance to the third round of the tournament. Iowa won its first match against Northern State, 7-0, and then defeated South Dakota State, 7-0, to advance to the third round.

"We are going to use this to play real well to get into the first division of the Big Ten this spring," Bolich said. "I think everybody knows that we've got a lot of yard work and improvement ahead of us."

"I'm not going to say that we are going to need to achieve at a higher level to be successful," Bolich said.
Home crowd inspires gymnasts

By Becky Grun
The Daily Iowan

What a difference a week makes. The University of Iowa men's gymnastics team took one week ago to Madison, Wis., to compete in last year's NCAA championships, and this past Saturday they were at home competing against their No. 4 ranked rival and only conference loss - Ohio State.

"I was very pleased with the way our team performed," said Coach Bill Beall. "We knew what we wanted to do this week and we were able to do it." Things didn't go so well last week in Madison, Wis., but last week's performance was just an inspiration to motivate the team and see how far they have come.

"Being at home this week was really special for me," said senior Brandon Paulson. "I've always been fortunate to have the home support here in Iowa City. It's always been a great experience to compete in front of the fans." Beall agreed, saying the fans had a lot to do with his team's success.

"Our fans are our biggest supporters," Beall said. "The home crowd is huge and it helps our athletes on the floor. It's a great environment to perform in." The fans were rowdy throughout the meet and played a major role in the Hawkeyes' success.

Fullhart waits to average Duals loss

By James Kramer
The Daily Iowan

After a three-month break, the University of Iowa men's wrestling team attemps to average duals loss in Lincoln, Neb.

"Our team has been doing well lately," said head coach Tom Brands. "We're looking to build on that momentum and continue to improve." The Hawkeyes are looking to average duals loss in the Big Ten Tournament and the NCAA Championships.

"We've been working hard in practice," Brands said. "We're looking to bring our best to the duals and see where we stand." The Hawkeyes are looking to build on their conference success and make a push for a national championship.

"We're excited to be back on the mat," Brands said. "It's been a long time since we've had a dual and we're looking to make a statement." The Hawkeyes are looking to average duals loss in the Big Ten Tournament and the NCAA Championships.

TRACK AND FIELD
Carl Lewis to end career in June

[Sydney, Australia]—Carl Lewis, the most decorated track and field athlete in history, will end his career in June at his hometown of Houston.

"I feel people are trying to encourage me to stay on," he said in his first news conference here at the Olympic gold medalist and eight-time world titles. He has also been an NFL record holder and an NBA record holder with 65 career points.

Lewis, 35, has won nine Super Bowl titles, the most in the history of the NFL. He has been an NFL record holder with 65 career points. Lewis said it will be his last season, and he may retire if a new contract is not reached.

"I'm ready to move on," Lewis said. "There's only so much football I can play."
O'Donnell chronicles author's wartime love

By Stacy Harrison

In服务机构 a Daily Iowan

It has always been a popular motto among Hollywood directors and producers to change historical events in order to suit the needs of the industry, as well as to promote their own personal narratives. The author's love story of Ernest Hemingway and his fellow soldiers during World War II experiences has been the subject of a recent documentary titled "The Secretariat Letters." The film chronicles the love affair between Hemingway and a nurse, as well as the experiences of other soldiers during the war. The documentary draws on interviews with veterans and their families, as well as archival footage and letters from the front lines. The film provides a unique perspective on the war, as well as the personal struggles of those who fought in it. Overall, "The Secretariat Letters" is a moving and insightful look at the human cost of war and the enduring power of love.
