A semester’s worth of laundry

Residents of Hawkeye Court Apartments may have to send their laundry to another university to handle boundary changes by the City School Board.

The Iowa City School Board announced three new proposals concerning boundary changes on Tuesday. The board approved the scope of boundary changes, most of the UI students who live at Hawkeye Court object to the plan because it splits up their children into two different schools.

"This is a huge issue, and it makes a lot of people mad," said McClain. "The benefit of these students is the ability to get on-line," he said.

World's most powerful utilities

By Alexander Higgins

DARWIN, Australia - Bill Gates, chairman of Microsoft Corp., said he likes to own a few of the world's biggest utilities. He announced plans Wednesday to buy a stake in 100 shares of Ørsted Plc, the Danish utility, in hopes of driving up the stock price.

The move is part of a broader strategy by Gates to invest in companies that are focused on renewable energy and sustainability. He said he believes that Ørsted is well-positioned to benefit from the growing demand for clean energy solutions.

"I see this as a long-term investment that will help drive innovation and reduce emissions," Gates said in a statement.

The deal comes as Ørsted is working to expand its portfolio of renewable energy assets. The company recently announced plans to build the world's largest offshore wind farm, which will have a capacity of 3.8 gigawatts.

Gates is a major investor in the renewable energy sector. He has previously invested in companies like First Solar, a solar technology company, and NextEra Energy, a leading developer of wind and solar power.

The investment in Ørsted is Gates' first in a Danish utility. He said he was drawn to the company's commitment to sustainability and its track record of delivering clean energy projects on schedule and under budget.

"I'm excited about the opportunity to work with Ørsted to further their mission of decarbonizing the energy system," Gates said.

Gates' investment in Ørsted is part of a broader trend of institutional investors looking to divest from fossil fuels and invest in renewable energy. The move comes as the global community looks to address the climate crisis and transition to a low-carbon economy.

Some of the best examples of utility companies that have made significant investments in renewable energy include Duke Energy in the US and E ON in Europe. These companies have seen a significant increase in their stock prices as a result of their efforts to transition to cleaner energy sources.

However, there are still many utility companies that have lagged behind in their efforts to transition to renewable energy. By investing in companies like Ørsted, Gates hopes to drive innovation and accelerate the transition to a low-carbon electricity sector.

House Republicans push for larger tax cuts

By Mike Glover
Associated Press

DES MOINES—House Republicans, aiming to "secure the state," are moving to pass an income-tax cut legislation in time for the end of the session, Governor Terry Branstad said.

When you would not agree we see the problem that we're going to increase the rate that the requirements on this agreement are to be come in by the end of the year.

The House Republican caucus is moving to strike a tax-cut deal as the end of the legislative session approaches.

When the agreement is approved, the intent is to decrease the state's income tax revenues by $600 million.

The agreement also increases the state's income tax rate from 4.5 percent to 5 percent.

The joy of a Packer family

On a Sunday afternoon in 1991. I’m sitting with my father and brother, doing what we’ve been doing since I was a kid, going to the Green Bay Packers’ tailgate party in front of Lambeau Field. We’re on our third trip to the parking lot, logging the miles as we head into the red zone, where the Packers fail and win our hearts little by little. Shortly after the evening kickoff, the Packers are playing against the New England Patriots. The game is exciting, but after the second quarter, it’s clear that the Patriots are in control. The Packers are down by seven points, and the crowd is growing restless.

I turn to my father and say, “Dad, I think we’re going to lose this one.”

He looks at me and says, “I think you’re right, but I don’t think we’ll lose by much.”

We’re all nervous, but we continue to enjoy the game. We’re cheering for our team, but we’re also enjoying the company of our friends. After the game, we’re all sad that we lost, but we’re happy to have been there and to have seen our team play.

Written on the bathroom walls

The central college atmosphere is-and remains-to this day-a highly polarized arena of the sexes, where gender and sexuality are constantly part of this sexualized, and sexualized arena of the sexual.

It seems impossible not to feel the tension, the pressure, the anxiety, the anxiety of being a woman. Being a woman means being a sexualized and sexualized object of the male gaze. Being a woman means being a sexualized being, and being a sexualized being means being a sexualized body.

The problem with this bathroom wall scenario is that it is a scenario that is written on the walls, where women are depicted as objects, as sexualized beings, as sexualized bodies.

The issues that women deal with in this bathroom wall scenario are issues of gender, issues of sexuality, issues of the objectification of women.

Tips for relieving your eye twitches and shin splints

A Practical Guide for Dwindling Eye Twitches

Eye twitches are a common occurrence, often perceived as amusing or a sign of fatigue. However, some people may experience more frequent or prolonged twitches that can be distressing. To alleviate eye twitches, consider the following tips:

1. Eye Relaxation Exercises
   - Blinking: Regular blinking is essential for eye health but can be inadequate in the modern age. Try performing deliberate, slow blinks to help maintain the natural lubrication of the eye surface.
   - Mimicry: Practice facial muscles, focusing on the forehead and around the eyes, to help reduce strain.

2. Stress Management
   - Mindfulness and Meditation: Incorporate mindfulness techniques or meditation to help manage stress levels, which are known to contribute to eye twitches.
   - Deep Breathing: Practice deep breathing exercises to reduce tension and promote relaxation.

3. Ergonomic Adjustments
   - Computer Screen Position: Ensure your computer screen is at eye level or slightly below to minimize neck strain.
   - Computer Breaks: The 20-20-20 rule (every 20 minutes look at something 20 feet away for 20 seconds) can help prevent eye strain.

Unfortunately, shin splints are a less popularized condition, yet they are quite common among athletes, especially runners. Shin splints are pain in the lower leg caused by overuse and are often characterized by pain in the area, tenderness, aching, or aching sensation. They can develop gradually or may appear suddenly, and the pain can be quite intense. Here are some tips for preventing and managing shin splints:

1. Proper Footwear: Invest in well-fitted, supportive shoes that are appropriate for your running style and road surface.
2. Pace Management: Gradually increase your running distance to avoid overuse and ensure your body has time to adapt and remain healthy.
3. Strengthening Exercises: Incorporate strength training exercises specifically targeting the shin muscles to improve their function and endurance.
4. Ice Application: Applying ice to the shin area after running can help reduce inflammation and soreness.

By implementing these suggestions, you can help reduce the frequency and severity of both eye twitches and shin splints, allowing you to continue your favorite activities with minimal interruption.

The Cafe Bar America opened three weeks ago, hoping to become a meeting place for widows near the door and easy-sipping pop-rock music. So far, its clientele has been limited to civilians and a few curious Americans and Scandinavian soldiers.

PULATINO, Bosnia-Herzegovina

For thousands of American GIs, Bosnia has been a backup for home.

The residents from Russia, Poland and Nordic countries can wander through the old town of Tuzla, browsing at cafés and boutiques before going to a local station or café to use the toilet, and back to the base, often in a hurry. It’s a full military life, including meals, field and post offices and barbers.

When the Americans arrived in Tuzla in May 1996, they were under strict rules that restricted their movements in the city and nearby areas. In May 1990, they were under similar rules as a way to prevent them from starting a war with nearby Serbs.

The different rules for different countries also make things complicated for the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the CPI. It’s not an exact science, but the experts are doing their best to track inflation for the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the CPI.

Watching them move through Tuzla is so safe it didn’t have a signpost, but there are plenty of illegal signs. The CPI’s definition of what constitutes inflation is so simple, it’s hard to believe anyone could disagree.

NEW YORK — Agile lasers are guiding doctors in the operating rooms, but for the rest of us, it’s hard to find a purchase that doesn’t add a little more to our groceries or service bills.

The CPI, which tracks the average cost of goods and services bought by consumers, released data Tuesday for March, showing a 1.8% increase compared to the same month last year. And while that may not sound like much, it’s a significant jump in an inflation rate that has been flat for the past few years.

Add USA Today to the list of the nation's major sports publications that have been disappointed with the University of Illinois men's basketball program.

"After the season, we talked to the players and I'm sure that most of them are disappointed," USA Today sportswriter Chuck Swierin said. "I'm not sure if they're as disappointed as we are." USA Today also has come out strongly against the program's administration, calling for a change in leadership in the program's future.

USA Today's opinion is not unusual. The program has been the subject of much scrutiny and criticism in recent years, with fans, media and even players expressing their dissatisfaction with the team's performance and the program's direction.

In an interview with USA Today, Swierin said that the Hawkeyes were "incredibly disappointing" and that the program was "in dire need of change." He added that the program had been "a disaster for years." He also expressed his concern that the program was "in a downward spiral" and that it would be "difficult to turn the program around."USA Today's opinion is not unusual. Six freshmen hold the key to possible national title run for the Iowa men's gymnastics.

They are the equals in a stable of stars. But this new breed of gymnasts has the Iowa men's gymnastics team in making a run for the national title since since including first-year floor specialist Aaron Parcells, who has earned all-American honors in three of the four meets this season and will compete in all three events at the NCAA championships.

"He's our leader," said senior floor specialist Jay Stroud. "I think he's been pretty good for the team."

Parcells said the team was thrown into a new role when two of its top gymnasts, All-American Joao Pedro da Silva and Ali Khan, were ruled out of the championship meets.

"It's a great opportunity for us," Parcells said. "We're not going to replace them, but we're going to have to step up and make some contributions.

"I don't expect us to win, but I expect us to compete."

The Hawkeyes are expected to compete in the All-America team rankings, and Parcells believes the team can make a run at the national title.

Mavericks head coach Jim Cleamons reacts to his team’s play against the Lakers in Dallas. Tuesday.

Lowly Mavericks confuse Cleamons

By Donner H. Freeman

DALLAS — Jim Cleamons had to be calm to keep from scowling.
His Dallas Mavericks had lost four straight games and everyone was shouting like they had as much chance of winning as snowfall.

A year ago Cleamons was collecting another NBA championship ring as an assistant coach of the Chicago Bulls. As the new coach of the Mavericks he was trying to put together a puzzle out of the Mavericks, who have never reached the playoffs. He was said to be hissed at by teammates and fans. "It’s just because things are as frustrating that you can’t help it,” Cleamons said. "I guess it’s because we have to try to keep a sense of humor.

"Sometimes I wish I could uncross the top of your heads and pull at the knowledge down in there."

—Dallas Mavericks head
coach Jim Cleamons

Cleamons knows winning means a lot to him because so many other people are depending on him. He was a player for the Los Angeles Lakers and for seven seasons a Bulls assistant under Phil Jackson. But coaching the Mavericks isn’t what he has to do to work that from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. every night back and forth to Dallas.

"Sometimes I wish I could uncross the top of your heads and pull at the knowledge down in there and maybe they wouldn’t,” Cleamons said.

The Mavericks are 14-27 through the season, just where they were last year under Dick Motta, who was fired when his comprehensive regular-season winning percentage was .400.

Cleamons knows it was going to be hard turning the Mavericks around.
But this difficult year.

Ewing-less Knicks put clamp on Cleveland

By Burt Budion

NEW YORK 75, CLEVELAND 65

The New York Knicks did a job they had never done before in New York City, playing without David Ewing as a defensive stopper, and the Cleveland Cavaliers to the loss of their best player in the 55-64 second half of the second period.
Cleveland’s previous record for the second period was 67, last month at Chicago’s United Center. It was in the second period that a three-point shot by the Knicks, who held the Cavaliers to 22 points in the first quarter, forced them to the tail end for a third place finish.

I’m as disappointed as anyone, "Cleamons said. "I’ve been here since 1956 and it’s hard since October and we still don’t have the answers. Sometimes we have to start mastering.
We have to start taking care of the ball and eventually going to win. Getting upset kills you,

Cleamons has had plenty to get upset about.

Point guard John Bledell didn’t like the Cleamons’ half-court offense and Don Nelson’s grumbling led to a trade with Phoenix through which the Mavericks lost Cowell, A.C. Green and Michael Playfair.

Filming With all the "Star Wars" hype going on right now, it's hard not to get a little nostalgic for the days of the original movies. The Force is, as usual, good for a good old-fashioned blast from the past. But the real star of the show is none other than Yoda himself. His wise counsel and calming words are as much a part of the franchise as the lightsabers and spaceships. Yoda, played by the legendary Frank Oz, is a true icon of the "Star Wars" universe. His dedication to the cause of the Rebellion and his unwavering faith in the Force make him a beloved figure among fans of all ages. So sit back, relax, and immerse yourself in the timeless world of "Star Wars." You might even learn a thing or two about the Force. Happy watching, and may the Force be with you always!

One Fine Day (PG) - This film is the surprise of the summer season. It's so good that it's sure to win over even the most jaded of moviegoers. A delightful romantic comedy that will make you laugh and cry. A must-see for all ages!"
How to remain friends after turning down a date

Dear Harlan:

I have a law-school acquaintance who I see less than a week. We met through a mutual friend, who is a product of another school that I don’t want to name. Last week I met her for the first time. I have no intention of ever seeing her again, because we are both also in pairs.

Anyway, here’s the deal. My ex-roommates, let’s call them "Bart and Buzz," are on their way to dinner. I don’t want to go, but I don’t want to be rude. I offer to give her my great class notebook.

What can I do to let her know that I don’t want to go but still require her to join me?

Going buoy

Dear Betty:

"Hey, Harlan, I wear your "my body". "My nuts?" "No way!"

Your notes are written over all my body. For the time being I’ll just say, no thanks, not tonight...

Be direct with the dynamic duo. If you think they are genuinely interested in you as a friend, you should hardly hurl any kind of verbal brick at them (or any person, for that matter).

Rely on your friends who don’t have a little-bit-friendship-talk until after the notes are signed in your book bag.

Dear Harlan:

I have more than often discovered disquieting things about yourself, but I think you’ve totally screwed up the "bromance" I was trying to "cultivate" with you. What is this "my nuts?" and what does it all mean? If it has anything to do with the notes, I should have known this one. I certainly wouldn’t have to put up with grades with grade. However, if I still have to put up with a bunch of people using this as an excuse for not caring about your personal appearance.

Yes, it’s true that what you wear isn’t who you are, but it’s certainly part of it. Want it or not, people look at you, and if they dress bad, it’s not only your clothing, but you look bad, too. So when you walk down the street you don’t have to check to see if you look like a "street hustler," Auds with socks and underwear flowers. You’re right when you say "poor" people who can’t find time to see what they look like through a fun¬tioning mirror, desperately attempting to find something good, are stupid and improper. However, the inner evil resides when it is too little time to see what their personal appearance.

You’re too quick to judge that anyone who wants fashion and style must be shallow and care to wear "real" personal appearance and integrity.

"integrity," a word you said you knew what you were saying. "integrity" is about honesty, feeling, and being a part of yourself. Those who don’t care about what they wear have no idea what’s missing in their appearance part of their social selves.

In regards to integrity, what do you think of your grade? Not just your grades, but for your entire self. You feel that you are most comfortable. Do you feel that your personal appearance is the same.

I think you have the best chance of making a relationship worth your while. But to be safe, wait to have your notes.

Yours truly,

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Why can’t I find a decent radio station?

Katharine Horowitz

Never mind that radio sta¬ tions across the nation APV alone in Des Moines, are spinning out new and cur¬ catching tunes every hour. No, Eastern Iowa is still stuck with old Bob Seger songs followed by a Two for Tuesday set of Def Leopard.

The basic reason it comes down to is that Eastern Iowa radio sta¬ tions are afraid to take a leap with their music. "The music should hardly burn any bridges.

Buddy Holly fans pour into Clear Lake

By Rob Forese
Associated Press

CLEAR LAKE, Iowa — Bill Mar

sen will fly from New York to Min nesota for the first time in nearly 50 years.

Holly was killed in a plane crash on February 3, 1959, in Clear Lake.

"I wasn't even alive when he died," said

Marsen, who will fly with a group that includes a pilot, to Clear Lake on Thurs day. "I never really got to see what Buddy

Holly was all about.

"I've been watching the film, just to see what his music was like. And I think it's really amazing."

Holly was one of the most influential songwriters and performers of the 1950s, and his music has been revived and celebrated in various forms in recent years.

His music has inspired many artists, including Bruce Springsteen, who wrote a song about Holly. The film "The Dreams of Buddy

Holly," which chronicles Holly's life and career, was released in 2005.

"I think it's a great way to honor him," said

Marsen. "And I'm excited to be there to see it."
A brief synopsis for the ‘Star Wars’-impaired

By Greg Knolling

The Daily Iowan

Call them curs, but some people out there don’t care to know much about the ‘Star Wars’ franchise. They’re the fans that don’t have a clue who Boba Fett is or what his role is in the story. They’re the people who feel that the new ‘Star Wars’ series is a waste of time and money, that it will never live up to the original trilogy.

For those of you who fall into this category, I’ve compiled a brief synopsis of the series, complete with some facts about the characters and plotlines that you should know before you go see the new films.
