Local bar found liable for patron's condition

A family was awarded $1.3 million from One-Eyed Jake's, which served the defendant

> By Brendan Brown The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City bar One-Eyed Jake's was ordered to pay more than $1.3 million in damages for serving alcohol to a man who later injured andowa family while driving drunk.

After a week-long trial, One-Eyed Jake's, 18-20 S. Clinton St., was found liable for the injuries suffered by the Mullen family of Brooklyn, Iowa, in the two-car collision on Interstate 80 in September was struck by Jamie Johnson of Oelwein, Iowa, a drunk driver coming from One-Eyed Jake's, while they were changing drivers on the side of the highway. The worst injuries were sustained by the Mullen's oldest son, Bradford, who was blinded in the accident.

All four members of the Mullen

The plaintiffs successfully argued that One-Eyed Jake's was responsible for the intoxicated con-

About 400 UI students attended, generating $26,000 more than original aspiration

After 30 hours of constant dancing, this year's Dance Marathon participants generated $106,000 for children with cancer Friday and Saturday, more than doubling the amount raised last year.

About 400 UI students, Iowa City residents and families of cancer patients square-danced, bellydanced and ballet-danced their way past their original goal of $80,000. Dance Marathon raised $50,000 last year for young cancer patients being treated at UI Hospi-

Organizers and executives did not find out until the very end of the marathon the total amount that had been raised. Director of Finance Shelly Schaefer expressed concern about reaching the goal throughout the event.

After spending her first night at a bar in downtown Iowa City, 19vear-old Sara woke up at 11 a.m. the next morning, lying on her back in the bathroom of a Coralville hotel room, naked, alone and con-

It was January 1996. The bathroom door was open and Cindy Crawford's voice on MTV's "House of Style" could be heard throughout the empty room. Sara identified immediately her location as a hotel because of the two double beds, a television set and a Bible.

She gathered the clothes that were spread around her and dressed, feeling uncomfortable about awaking in the nude. She walked out of the bathroom to find the hotel room door open to a parking lot heaped with snow and only two cars.

Sara's first thoughts were that because of the snow, but other than

The only thing she was sure of was that she had been sexually assaulted, and was convinced the "date rape" drug Rohypnol was to blame for her condition.

Rohypnol, also known on the street as roofies, rophies, R2 or roches, is prescribed by physicians in more than 64 countries to treat patients suffering from chronic sleep disorders and is used also as a pre-anasthetic in surgeries. Its effects are comparable to the sleeping pill, Valium. However, Rohypnol has approximately 10 times the Council to discuss parking problems

Strategies to improve downtown parking are focus of City Council work session tonight

By Emily Shack The Daily Iowan

Multiple considerations for downtown parking changes both pain and please UI students and Iowa City residents, who complain of short time limits and high meter

Plans to tackle the parking problem will be discussed at the Iowa City City Council work session tonight. The changes under consideration are: a rate increase for onehour parking spaces, a time limit increase for 30-minute spaces and increased enforcement of meterfeeding violations — particularly those committed by students.

The council will base its discussion on the Downtown Iowa City Parking Study, prepared by the Johnson County Council of Governments Transportation Planning

The downtown parking situation is terrible, Iowa City resident Richard Allen said.

"Iowa City deserves what it's going to get when the mall opens in Coralville," Allen said. "Many people won't be faithful to downtown businesses because of the parking problem.'

The study reported that Iowa City parking ramps only have 70 to 75 percent usage during weekdays, but fill to capacity on weekends. Although the study found the perception that there is no place to park downtown to be inaccurate, the perception alone can be enough to chase people away from the downtown business district.

"From a business perspective, this is a problem because people can't find places to park when they shop," Councilor Ernie Lehman

Iowa City resident Heather Morrison said she works downtown and finds parking to be a daily problem. "I'd rather park on the street because it's cheaper than the ramps, but of course, you can get ticketed, too," Morrison said. The weekday accessibility of the

Friday Night

At the time, Sara was a college freshman in Des Moines, with plans to transfer to the UI in the fall. She had never experienced downtown Iowa City before, so she and a friend decided to drive up for the night, visit some friends and go out to the bars.

Sara and her friend arrived in Iowa City in late afternoon and went to Hillcrest Residence Hall to meet two of their friends, both whom they had known since kindergarten.

The four girls arrived at a popular downtown bar around 11 p.m. Just like most bargoers, they took a lap around the bar, searching for people they knew. Sara was making her way around the bar when a darkhaired man, who she estimated to be 23 or 24, grabbed her by the arm.

Tim introduced himself to Sara and asked her if she wanted a drink. Sara describes herself as a social person, so she wasn't unnerved after being approached by Tim.

Sara accepted the drink and took a seat with Tim and his friends. He was there with three other guys, and they were engaging in "casual bar conversation" when two of her friends came up to her and told her they wanted to go back to Hillcrest to meet some friends.

Sara decided to stay there and hang out with these guys, knowing that another one of her friends was staying also, so she wouldn't be alone.

"It was my first time at the bars, and they were buying me drinks and I was meeting a lot of people, and having a really good time," Sara said. Sara was still talking to the guys when she said "10 minutes turned into an hour," and her friend was nowhere to be seen. By this time, Sara had finished her second drink and Tim wanted to dance and introduce her to more of his friends.

Sara followed him to the dance floor where he bought her another drink. She describes herself as an experienced drinker, not confused by the amount of alcohol she was consuming, although slightly buzzed.

However, making her way through the crowded dance floor, Sara said she started to feel very dizzy and disoriented. Tim whispered something in her ear, and she remembers tilting her head back to laugh, but after that ... nothing.

"It's not like I remember bits and pieces after that, it's completey black," she said. "Everything seems to be erased from my memory."

Her memory is missing for the next 10 hours of her life, leaving her unaware of how she got out of the bar, who she was with, or who took her to the Coralville hotel room.

Saturday Morning

When she awoke, she had vomit in her hair and bruises scattered across the middle of her back, on the back of her head, arms and thighs.

She knew alcohol wasn't to blame for how she felt that morning, because she has been drunk and hung over before. This was different.

"I am convinced without a doubt that it was Rohypnol or some other drug with the exact same effects," she said.

She called the front desk and asked the clerk what hotel and what city she was in.

"The front-desk clerk at the hotel really helped me out that morning and helped me get it all together,"

He told her she was at a hotel in Coralville, not far from Iowa City, and where the dormitory was where her friends were, and he provided her with a shuttle back to the dormitory. She made it back and immediately took a shower.

Reaction

Not until she made it home to Des Moines later that day did she explain fully the events of the night to another person. She was dressed in shorts and a T-shirt, ready to go back to bed, when her roommate noticed the bruises that covered her legs and arms.

Obviously, there was physical pain and discomfort, but I could deal with that," Sara said. "But the hardest thing to deal with was the extreme mental discomfort."

Sara told her roommate every-

Actions to Take if You've Been Drugged

If someone has been raped, sexually assaulted, or drugged they should: Go to a safe place and call a rape crisis center for support and information.

- Call the toll-free rape crisis hot line: 1(800) 656-4673 ■ Someone who experiences dizziness, confusion or other sudden and
- unexplained symptoms after drinking a beverage should call a family member, friend the police, a doctor or 911 for help in getting them to a hospital. If someone has been raped, sexually assaulted, or drugged they should:
- Determine whether or not they want to report to the police. If so, they should not shower, bathe, douche, change clothes, or straighten up the area until the medical and legal evidence has been collected.
- If they choose to report, they should first go to the police and then go to the hospital to have the medical evidence collected.
- Go to a hospital, clinic, or private doctor for treatment of external and/or internal injuries, tests for pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases,
- Request a urine test for the presence of sedating substances immediately. The screening test should include Gamma Hydroxybutyrate (GHB), flunitrazepam (Rohypnol) and other drugs. Every hour matters: Get samples as soon as possible after substance was ingested.

thing she knew about what happened the night before, but said she refused to go straight to the hospital or to the police. "I just kept telling myself, 'I am just going to forget about this and just go on because that's how I deal with it,' " she said. "It's how I've always been, and I was scared about what would happen.

One of the effects of Rohypnol is the amnesia-like state it produces, and in Sara's case, she was and is extremely scared about what happened to her in the 10 hours following her last drink. Not knowing caused a barrage of questions. "I think not knowing is the worst part about it," Sara said. "I have no idea who was there, what were they doing to me, were they taking pictures, how did I get out of the bar, how many people were there, why did I have bruises all over?

"I think it might be worse to know about what did happen to me for those 10 hours," she said.

The thought that the rapist(s) probably considered her an easy target embarrasses her, Sara said.

"I just felt all these things, so I wanted to put it out of my life and not go back to Iowa City for a very long time," she said. "I just wanted it to be buried and I wanted to live my life."

Sara went to Planned Parenthood but refused to seek counseling there. All she wanted was medical attention and nothing more.

'My biggest regret is not calling the police the moment I woke up in that hotel room," Sara said. "It's the major thing in the world that I wish I could change." Sara regrets also not leaving me again."

with her friends that night. Howevto change anything.

"No amount of regret in the world can change what happened," she said. "So I need to quit regretting, because it can never make me have gone home with my friends that night.'

"What's done is done, and now I can learn from it myself and try and help other people learn something from it so they can be aware that this happens," she said.

She said when people are put in unfamiliar situations, they always should keep track of their friends and who they're with, because anyone is a potential victim.

"It shouldn't happen; it's ridiculous that it ever happens," she said. Women should be able to go out to the bars with their friends and have a good time and not have to worry about being raped on the bathroom floor of some hotel."

Sara suspects she was targeted because she thinks she looked younger at the time, and wasn't familiar with the bar scene.

"Guys who have the drug with them and plan on doing that to someone, I think are more than likely to target girls who look younger and possibly girls who are acting all crazy and will talk to anyone," she said.

Throughout the ordeal, Sara said she doesn't want to put blame on

As far as I know, no one from this bar and no one from this hotel could have possibly known what was going on," she said. "How are the people at the hotel to know what goes on in those rooms?'

Sara, now 20 and a UI sophomore, has learned to be aware of possible dangerous situations after her experience from last January. She still frequents bars, but she doesn't accept drinks unless she watches it from the time it's being made until it is in her hands.

Also, she realizes there is a possibility she will see Tim, or one of his friends again.

"I really don't know what I would do if I saw him again, because of course I want to physically hurt him - but more than that, I want to do something to him to ruin his life without actually touching him," Sara said. "Not that he ruined my life, but he could have, and I just don't want him to get to anyone else and ruin their life."

Recovery

Rohypnol has been a popular subject on newscasts and in the papers, Sara said, but she hopes by hearing her story, others will be aware that its use happens not just in the headlines, but in Iowa City.

"I think it's very common and I think it happens all the time," she said. "I have my reasons why I didn't report it - so I can't judge others who don't report it, but I wish I would've and I encourage others to."

Instead of letting the events of that cold January night dwell in her mind and weigh on her con-science, Sara said she has come out of it a stronger individual, with a determination to stop this from happening again.

"I feel I am stronger, physically and mentally," she said. "I feel like no one will ever be able to do this to

Difficulties in Detecting Konypnoi

Since Rohypnol is such a potent drug, it creates problems with drug testing and investigation, Steven Eck, a criminalist with the Division of Criminal Investigation (DCI), said.

"It's a very potent drug. Therefore it requires such a small amount to achieve the effect, so it's harder to detect because there is less in the body," Eck said.

According to a report from the DCI, there is a low probability of detecting processable levels of Rohypnol from blood samples collected two hours after suspected dosage and urine samples collected within six hours after a suspected dosage. Therefore, urine samples are preferred, but getting either one can be a problem for victims.

The best advice is to go to the hospital as soon as it's practical and have the test," Beth Barnhill, director of Iowa Coalition Against Sexual Assault, said. "However ... for many people (it) isn't practical, given the effects of the drug."

Julie Harders, a law student at Drake University in Des Moines, went to a party last July while in New York visiting a friend. She had drank only a few beers and then blacked out, only to wake up in a strange bed with her clothes messed up.

She took the next available flight back to Iowa, went to a local hospital and reported to health officials what had happened. It never was chemically proven through the hospital there was Rohypnol in her system, but she also is convinced the "date rape drug" had a play in what happened to her.

DES MOINES - Gov. Terry Branstad will sign the first taxcut measure approved by this Legislature today, and lawmakers will quickly turn to the spending side of the state's $4.6 billion budget.

The governor opens the week by signing into law a $45 million inhe ance tax cut today in a ceremony, marking the opening shot of the GOP controlled Legislature.

Having rushed that cut through the Legislature, Republican leaders must turn to a far more bigticket item. They hope to decide by the end of the week on spending

While those targets are often considered arcane, they are the biggest decisions lawmakers make and will test the ability of Republicans who run the House and day. Senate to get along.

Suspect charged in I.C. burglaries

A Cedar Rapids man was charged Friday for burglarizing several lowa City businesses last year and is being held on a $7,300

Ron V. McKinney, 33, is being held in the Johnson County Jail, accused of breaking into nine businesses, and may be responsible for more than 10 burglaries last summer and fall.

McKinney is believed to be responsible for break-ins that occurred at Brenneman Seed & Pet Center, 1500 S. First Ave.; Dairy Queen, Fun Zone, 105 S. Dubuque St., La'James College of Hairstyling, 227 E. Market St.; Norma Jean's, 336 S. Clinton St.; Pawsitively Pets, 400 Kirkwood Ave.; Sportsman's Barbershop, 1291/2 E. Washington St.: Teedo's Salon, 336 S. Clinton St.; and Varsity Cleaners, 910 S. Gilbert St., all between Aug. 18 and Dec. 31.

I.C. man arrested for several area robberies

An Iowa City resident was arrested and taken to the Johnson County Sheriff's Office in connection with several thefts and burglaries in the Iowa City area.

Eddie Lee Carey, 1131 Third Ave., was arrested Feb. 7 after the Iowa City Police Department received a phone call from Big Ten Rentals, 319 S. Gilbert St., reporting that a robbery had occured at about 9:45 a.m.

The ICPD was informed by a Big Ten Rental employee that a man in his 40s, wearing a dark stocking cap had entered the business and stolen an item. When the employee attempted to detain Carey he fled on foot to a nearby business, where officers then arrested him.

ICPD informed of possible sexual assault

An unidentified female went to Mercy Hospital for a sexual-assault examination on Feb. 8 at about 6:00 p.m., Iowa City Police Department officials say.

The ICPD received a phone call. from the hospital reporting the female had been examined but left before the detectives could question her.

According to hospital policies, it is mandatory to inform the police when a woman is examined for a sexual assault. However, the ICPD won't investigate the assault until the victim is ready to file a report, Sgt. Mike Brotherton said.

Since the beginning of the school year, six rapes have been reported in the Iowa City area. Although police have suspects in some of the cases, no one has been

Lots of snow this winter means floods this summer, forecasters say

DES MOINES — Flood forecasters already are predicting recordhigh water for parts of northwest lowa this year and huge snows in " Wisconsin will make an "interest-" ing" flood year for the Mississippi River as well.

The biggest snows of an unusually fierce winter in the Upper Midwest have fallen north of Iowa, creating spectacular drifts and enormous amounts of snow cover in the ' Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

lowa may have dodged the storm bullet so far, but when spring comes, all of that moisture will be moving south, most of it in the Missouri or Mississippi rivers.

"We can already say that, based. on the amount of snow in the Dakotas, some areas to the northwest are going to have record flooding," said John Feldt, director" of the National Weather Service's office in Des Moines.

"It's rare to be able to predict that this early in the year. Other parts of the region, including some places in lowa, may be looking at a tough situation as well," he said.

"All that snow, when it melts, goes into the St. Croix and Chippewa and Eau Claire River and the other tributaries that flow into the Mississippi," said Matt Menne of the Wisconsin state climatologist office. "It will be interesting to see what happens when it melts."

Marching forward on the death penalty

t an Iowa basketball game recently, among the gleaming brass of the pep band I noticed an electric bass. Why an electric bass, I wondered, and not an electric guitar? Then I realized I was asking the wrong question. Why all the gleaming brass to begin with?

The pep band and its bigger brother, the marching band, are curious anachronisms. The marching band survives as a remnant of late 18th century warfare, designed to keep troops marching in perfect rhythm into the grapeshot and massed musket volleys of the enemy. Now the marching band serves to fire up football squads and fans, but the 18th century military uniforms remain.

Granted, Napoleonic armies did not have batontwirling women in tight, sequinned bodysuits, and the playlist is more modern—if you are old enough to consider Styx modern. But the marching band serves to inculcate the values of an earlier century: obedience and discipline, tramping in step to die for King and Country. Certainly it would be no great musical loss if the rows of florid-faced youth puffing away lugubriously on their tubas and trombones were to be replaced by four skinny longhairs with > a monster drum kit. Just like marching bands, the death penalty is another throwback to earlier times: pre-Enlightenment justice, an eye for an eye. Opponents of the death penalty point out that the United States is the > stacks of Marshall amps and only modern industrialized nation to continue atavistic, barbarous practice, and the American Bar Associanation's largest organization of lawyers, has just

The ABA's action is not a rejection of the death penalty itself, but rather a call for more fairness in its implementation. Race and economic status seem to be greater determinants in sentencing than the crime itself. Meanwhile, new mandatory sentencing laws for crimes such as drive-by shootings are sending an ever greater number to death row: 310 in 1995, according to the U.S. Department of Justice. And the rash of new statutes enacted in the last few years is sure to increase this number substantially.

voted for a moratorium on capital punishment.

Gary Levine

While more people are going to death row, the number of actual executions is relatively small; only 56 inmates were executed in 1995. Given this rate it would take 53 years just to kill off those awaiting execution now, without adding any more to the list. At some point, authorities will be forced to either commute sentences or to hold mass-executions- hardly likely.

For all the ink and newsprint devoted to the subject, capital punishment is a non-issue. Fifty-six people a year is a tiny percentage of the deaths in this nation, barely higher than the number of people alleged to be victims of spontaneous combustion. So why all the fuss?

Whether the death penalty is cost-effective or serves as a deterrent are hotly debated issues, and both sides produce reams of evidence to support their case. Either way, it doesn't matter. In the long-run the cost difference is negligible, while it is the likelihood of getting caught that tends to deter criminal behavior. The increasing frequency of murder by strangers, and the increasing percentage of unsolved cases are really the driving force behind the flurry of new capital sentences.

Like marching bands, the death penalty makes us feel good. Though lethal injection may not be as dramatic as the electric chair, there's a sense of finality about it. No longer will the sexual predator lounge in his cell, fondly recalling his victims' screams and gurgles. The victims' families can sleep, knowing that no legal technicality will ever release this monster into the world again.

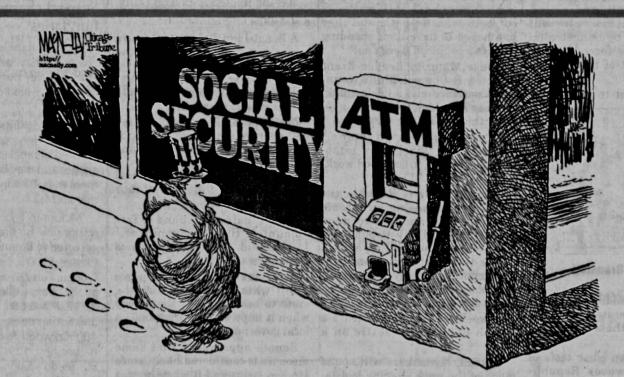

And what's wrong with feeling good? Which is why I propose a new television program, tentatively titled "Community Justice." Bypassing the laborious appeals process, "Community Justice" will ensure fairness by appealling directly to the nation. After opening with live shots of three inmates in their cells, I.V. drips affixed to their arms, the show will present dramatic re-enactments of their crimes. Viewers can vote by a 900 line, or over the Internet, (proceeds to go to education). The computer tallies the result and turns the tap on one of the prisoners. As he froths and shudders, the other two inmates automatically have their sentences commuted to life. Who knows? Maybe it will replace marching bands as a form of halftime entertainment.

Your security or the landlord's?

f many possible unpleasant experiences related to renting living space in Iowa City, one is guaranteed to happen: paying the security deposit. Although a deposit arguably is necessary to insure the tenant's commitment to leasing the property, deposits are often higher than need be. Worse, according to Iowa law, ant on that sum. According to Iowa's Uniform Residential Landlord and Tenant Law, under section 532A.12, "Any interest earned on a rental deposit during the first five years of tenancy shall be the property of the landlord." The same section also states, "A landlord shall not demand or receive as a security deposit an amount or value in excess of two months' rent."

Fortunately, many of the larger rental agencies in the Iowa City area, such as AUR Downtown Apartments, Keystone Property and Lincoln Management, do not require a deposit as large as the equivalent of two months' rent. Unfortunately, the amount they do require is larger than need be to secure a lease commitment, thus burdening the tenant unnecessarily. Keystone and Lincoln, for examAlthough a deposit arguably is necessary to insure the tenant's commitment to leasing the property, deposits are often higher than need be.

On the other hand, U.S. West Communications, when it requests a security deposit, is required by the state to pay interest on it at a rate of 7 percent. What factors differentiate U.S. West from local rental agencies? Perhaps the difference lies in that U.S. West is considered a monopoly, and rental agencies are not.

First, the words of praise: Larson created quite a hullabaloo last week when he released a report highlighting the number of hours liberal arts professors spend teaching undergraduate classes at the UI and the two other state-run schools.

Full-time professors at the UI's College of Liberal Arts spend, on average, 4.8 hours a week in the classroom teaching students, according to Larson's report, which uses the UI's own figures

In comparison, professors at Iowa State University spend 5.8 hours a week in class and professors at the University of Northern Iowa about 11 hours a week.

Larson goes on to say that when class sizes. parents and students pay tuition to attend the UI, they expect a topnotch education. That's a laudable goal, and few would disagree with it. Larson should be praised for wanting to make the UI a better school and a better value.

Now, the words of criticism: Larson's report is somewhat misguided and very misleading.

It's misleading because few should believe UI professors are as lazy and inaccessible as the figures used by Larson would suggest. Professors act as advisors, hold office hours and stay current in their field. Many of the professors who do not teach are administrators or researchers. None of that is reflected in Larson's bare-bones report.

It's misguided because many of the problems Larson says he wants UI professors should climb down to correct arise out of having huge academia, that is insulting. from their ivory towers and out of lecture-style classes, not out of their cloistered offices and step into having professors teach one class a a classroom more often, Larson con- week instead of two or having TAs Byron R. > Without smaller classroom sizes, having actual professors in classes would do nothing to increase the interaction among students and teachers. Although one-on-one access with a tenured professor may be preferable, it is impractical at such a large school as the UI.

While Larson's criticism is misleading and misguided, it also is insulting.

Larson says he thinks professors, not teaching assistants, should be in classrooms. Larson implies that graduate students are not qualified to teach such courses as pre-calculus and biology labs.

Asking the question of sexual identity

'm having an identity crisis.

All of my adult life, I have defended my conviction that women and men are essentially the same, that the differences among women (or among men) far exceed the differences between the groups. I have maintained, in fact, that sex/gender is an arbitrary, and often destructive, means of dividing humans into two seemingly mutually exclusive categories that, in reality, are not mutually exclusive at all, nor are there merely two of them. Despite these convictions, however, I have always thought of myself as

Now, I am not so sure. How, really, do we know what our sex/gender is? Is it divinely granted, does society assign it to us, or is it a decision we make ourselves? My empirically oriented, scientific readers out there (if I have any) will say that, of course, it is our physiological chromosomal makeup or our role in the reproductive process that determines our classification. That seems easy. Definitions like that always do,

But what about people with "ambiguous" physiological secondary sex characteristics, like women with hairy faces or thin, "androgynous" bodies? Or men who are infertile? Are these people not "real" women and men? What about Dr. McCloskey, who has the chromosomal makeup of a male but has newly acquired some female sex characteristics? And what, dear readers, about people (most of us) who have never had a chromosome test, like the kind they do at the Olympics? I've certainly never had one. So how can I be sure I am a woman? Wouldn't it be easier if there were no "male/female: check one" boxes on identification forms, if we could be just people in all of our infinite (a number much larger than the "two" of male and female) vari-

Readers of my column who can't be bothered with a question like how do we know what gender we are (if I have any) might say "we know one when we see one." To them, the question does not make sense: Of course we know who the boys are and who the girls are. Consider this description from a recent article about Dr. McCloskey: "Her thin, blonde bangs fall just above blue-lidded, carefully outlined eyes. Beringed fingers periodically tug at the bottom of her black, knee-length skirt and the sleeves of a dark print blouse." Surely, those who "know one when they see one" would see

But what about "women" who don't look like this? For example, my eyes are neither blue-lidded nor carefully outlined and my fingers are not "beringed." McCloskey also has, according to this article, "practiced the smooth, swaying walk of women" in order to become more convincing. What the heck is the "walk of women?" I certainly do not walk like this, and I know plenty of other "women" who don't either. Are we not women? And, now that I think of it, plenty of guys I know can swish pretty darn well. If anyone wants to practice walking "like women," they'd be better off modeling their gait after someone like Ru Paul, and not someone like me.

So who's the better woman? Ru Paul, the biological male who has the smoothest legs of anyone over age 2 and rivals Miss USA in his knowledge of make-up techniques? Or me, a person who can make babies but has thick, dark hair on her legs and does not know an eyebrow plucker from an eyelash curler?

If that's what being a woman is, Ru Paul can have it. I have more important things to do than But the problem remains. Who gets to count as a woman, and who decides?

f we did not live in a culture where gender was the most important part of our identity ("Is it a boy or a girl?" is the first question people asked about you when you were born), then questions like "who is a woman?" would not make sense. It just wouldn't matter. People would be people, some of us walking smoothly, others clomping along, some painting our faces, others eschewing makeup, some wearing skirts, others wearing chaps, and still others wearing both (that would be me).

In this world that I imagine, there would still be gender - just as much, if not more, than there is now. The difference would be that one's gender would not be predetermined by what our little, newly born bodies were shaped like. No one would ask "is it a boy or a girl," but "is the new baby healthy?" The gender of the hild would develop as the child grows and learns what it likes. No enforced pinks and blues, no ballet/baseball divisions based on the presence or absence of a tiny little protrusion under the

In that world, we would not concern ourselves with what it means to be a woman or a man. We'd be too busy being human.

You've been forced to memorize boring facts about science. Atoms have a nucleus, and electrons go around the nucleus at certain energy levels, like distances. DNA is a double helix. Gravity makes planets orbit the sun.

These are models of how the Universe works. These are how scientists think things work. To some extent, these are all wrong because they are too simple. Our meager human minds, intent on imposing order on the Universe, oversimplify what is really there.

All models are wrong, but some models are useful.

Though most models are wrong when you push them to their limits, extending the metaphor, many models are useful.

Atoms bond with each other and make molecules predictably. The number of atoms in the molecule and shape of the molecule are easily explained by electron orbitals and by how many electrons are in outermost orbital. This model is

But it's wrong. Electrons do not whip around the nucleus in perfect orbitals. Those are where the atoms are most likely to be. The electrons might be in Cleveland. It's more like statistics than count-

When you hear about new research and the logical extensions of science, be skeptical. Consider whether the results are logical, or whether the scientist is pushing the metaphor too far and has discovered how the model is no longer useful, but wrong.

I wish to comment on a recent DI the Grade," written by Chris Snider. I preface my comments by saying that I vious articles and consider him to be a

However, I think your comments regarding Jess Settles struck about six inches below the belt. Jess Settles has played a total of only 54 minutes this year. By what measure have you judged his performance at a "C" level? At the very least, Jess should be accorded a "W" for withdrawal and entitled a chance to come back next

But if you must judge his performance, do so objectively. During his 54 minutes, Jess has scored 34 points, collected 10 rebounds, and 6 assists. For the sake of comparison, let's extrapolate Jess' performance during those 54 minutes to, let's say, 30 minutes per game for 21 games. Jess would be averaging almost 19 points, 5.5 rebounds and over 3 assists per game. This would put Jess at 3rd in scoring and among the top 25 in rebounding and assists in the Big Ten; certainly such figures would warrant an "A" rating in most people's books.

What about the athletes in the "nonrevenue" sports? Is their training not like a full-time job? What about distance runners who are in season all but one month of the school year? How can . they be expected to work? Might they be under even MORE temptation for extra money, especially since they have almost no chance for a lucrative pro contract? I consider this article just another example of how narrow-minded the football enthusiasts here are, and it's a pretty pathetic situation.

But the whining doesn't stop here. According to Kevin Doyle's Feb. 4 article about Michael Waytenick falling off the Burlington Street bridge and suffering a skull fracture ("Students: Bridge must be safer"), we are supposed to at least consider that the fault might be on the part of the city. I have to give Doyle credit for even-handed coverage, representing the view that students should be more responsible about drinking. I would like to ask anyone who thinks the city holds responsibility in this case why someone THREE YEARS UNDERAGE was out drinking, and then question where the real issues of responsibility lie.

And then there is Clancy Champanois' Feb. 4 article about the high cost of housing near the UI ("lowa City's costly housing complex"). Has he never heard of the realtor's maxim "Location, location?" I am sorry to say, but it is the right of the property owners, the "haves" if you will, to set the prices that students, the "have-nots," must pay if they want an apartment. It has been like this for the history of the world. Champanois should be thankful that with the opportunity for a college education, he will get to be a "have" someday.

The only legitimate complaints in the paper were intelligently represented by David Schwartz in his Feb. 4 editorial ("On cops, COGS and the news biz"). I was just in Whitey's Saturday night, and 1 agree, I was nearly blinded. I thought my pupils were going to constrict to nothing! I also agree that Alanis Morissette should be kept to a minimum, preferably nothing. I am also curious what Schwartz might have to say about the trend for guys to bend the brims of their baseball hats so conically that it is utterly comical.

Mardi Gras celebrations not limited to Big Easy

By Janet McConnaughey Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS - It's Mardi Gras time! In Seattle, St. Louis, Galveston and Pensacola. In Dunedin, Fla., St. Mary's, Ga., and Norman, Okla.

NOR-man, Okla-HOMA?

Yep. It seems anymore that every Tom, Jacques and Harriet wants in on the fun.

Jeanne Flanigan, owner of Flanigan's Costumes and head of Norman's Mardi Gras, burst into laughter when a reporter called from New Orleans. It's a common reaction among people who run the lesser-known celebrations.

"It's kind of dinky compared to what's going on there," Flanigan conceded. "We wanted something to cure the winter blues, so we created

"We started off with about 35 people in the parade and 35 people watching it. It goes around the block, so our crowd of people fol-lowed us around the block the first

"Now we have about 200 people in the parade and maybe 3,000 or 4,000 people watching. We have a full-blown ball after the parade now instead of private parties.

Mardi Gras parades and balls have been fixtures in New Orleans and Mobile, Ala., for generations. Seattle is celebrating its 20th annual Mardi Gras, St. Louis'

But even Mobile, which claims to have been celebrating Mardi Gras since the 1700s, and New Orleans, where a disorganized street procession was noted in 1827, are late to the parade.

After all, the Louisiana Territory wasn't claimed for France until 1682. Binche, Belgium, dates its first Carnival celebration to 1394.

In Rome, they say Carnival from the Latin for "farewell to the flesh," in preparation for Lenten austerities - dates to the second century, when Bacchus and Venus were deities for many people rather than Carnival parade groups.

These days, in New Orleans, Carnival is a thoroughly secular bacchanalia, a drunken $440 million party attended by millions. Private groups in New Orleans and surrounding parishes put on dozens of parades in the two weeks leading up to Fat Tuesday, and a half-dozen on the day itself. People who ride the krewe floats buy plastic beads, aluminum doubloons and other trinkets to toss to the miles and miles of crowds.

Other cities around Louisiana hold parades or "courirs du Mardi Gras" - drunken horseback rides around the countryside to gather chickens, sausage and other ingredients for a community gumbo. Mardi Gras is a state holiday.

In Mobile, a study five years ago estimated spending at $20 million,

Toy makers will rely heavily on Hollywood in '97

By Rachel Beck Associated press

NEW YORK - Hollywood studios aren't the only ones counting on new blockbuster movie releases this year. Toy makers, too, are depending heavily on these megaproductions to drive up sales.

Expect to see lots of movie-related paraphernalia on toy shelves this year, including "Star Wars" laser games, muscular "Hercules" action figures and "Batman and Robin" vehicles.

"Lots of licensed products are what we'll be seeing out there this year," said Gary Jacobson, an analyst at Jefferies & Co. "Every big movie will have products tied to it."

While the big-screen hype was everywhere at the annual American International Toy Fair, manufacturers also were lifting from the smaller screen and promoting their classic lines

Army to reconsider suspension policy ed soldier, has denied sexual

By Darlene Superville Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Army Secretary Togo West said Sunday the policy that left the Army's senior noncommissioned officer on the job despite allegations of sexual misconduct undoubtedly will be reconsidered.

West said it was Army policy that relieved drill instructors of duty at a base in Maryland after they were accused of sexual harassment but left on the job Army Sgt. Maj. Gene McKinney, who now is under similar fire.

It is "a policy we do not have with respect to other commanders or leaders of the armed forces," West said on ABC's "This Week."

The woman who accused him, an Army sergeant major who worked with McKinney, described the policy as "a different system of justice." McKinney, the Army's top enlist-assault allegations by retired Sgt. Maj. Brenda Hoster, who said his actions forced her to leave the service after 22 years. He appears in an Army video in which leaders declare war on sexual harassment but has stepped down from a panel studying sex abuse in the Army.

"We, as a matter of policy, suspend drill instructors for any allegation, whether sexual harassment or something else affecting their duties, immediately" because of their close relationship with male and female trainees, West said.

Asked whether high-ranking soldiers such as McKinney also should be suspended, West said: "We've considered it, and we will undoubtedly consider it again."

In a separate program segment, Hoster complained about what she said was the Army's unequal treatment of McKinney and the drill

"I just want everything to be done fairly," she said, noting the immediate suspensions of drill sergeants at the Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland. "The way l see it right now, there's different standards.'

"It seems like people in a higher position and at a different level are exempt from those kinds of things because the sergeant major of the Army is still performing his duties," Hoster continued. "I don't understand why he gets a different system of justice.

Two members of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Sens. Rick Santorum, R-Pa., and Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, said the Army should punish those accused of the same crimes equally.

"Certainly, everybody should be treated the same," Snowe said. "If they're facing charges, they should be placed under suspension.

Clinton to visit statehouses to seek support for new education policies

By Sonya Ross Associated Press

WASHINGTON - In what amounts to a preemptive political strike, President Clinton is taking the ambitious education policies he unveiled before Congress last week to statehouses around the country.

Clin hopes the personal appear es will win over state lawmakers to help him prevail against critics in Congress who complain his program is too expensive and would rob parents and educators of control.

The president begins his trek today in Annapolis, Md., with a short visit to the Maryland General Assembly. In the visit of a few hours, he intends to deliver a speech before legislators and chat with Democratic Gov. Parris Glen-ub

The White House says the trips are designed to allow Clinton to discuss the role states will play in shaping a transformation in public education as well as in helping Clinton change what he considers objectionable parts of last year's welfare

"There has to be a real partnership here, with the states and with local governments and the private sector," White House spokesperson Barry Toiv said. "The states do play such a real role in addressing the Internet linkage for all public problems he's focusing on this year."

They serve also to build support outside the Washington Beltway, where disputes over balancing the federal budget threaten to bog down the president's educational goals.

Gene Sperling, chairperson of the National Economic Council, told "Fox News Sunday" that even the president's critics would have a hard time using the budget to argue against his schoolhouse reforms.

The real story right now is that Bill Clinton has proposed a balanced budget plan that at the same time includes a major mobilization on education," Sperling said. "Virtually everyone in this town now says the president has the right priorities, the right idea.

Clinton's education program would make families earning less than $100,000 annually eligible for a $1,500 tax credit for each student's first year in college. They would be eligible for a second year if the student maintains a B average and avoids a drug conviction. Clinton offers also a phased-in $10,000 deduction for college tuition or jobtraining costs.

The president also is seeking a 20 percent increase in education spending to introduce such changes as prekindergarten for 4-year-olds, reading tutors for third graders and Republicans in Congress say Clinton's goals are laudable, but the tax breaks may disappear if the budget deficit swells past current projections. They say they would rather allocate current education resources more efficiently and allow parents to have greater say in which schools their children attend.

"I think most of us believe that the federal government should not be paying more," Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla., chairperson of the Republican Senatorial Conference, said on Fox. "What we want to do is give moms and dads more ability to make the decisions about what schools their children go to and to accumulate the necessary savings in order to be able to pay for that education.

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Texas, chairperson of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, told Fox that Congress should not block Clinton's attempts to carry out reforms that voters have shown

"It's clear that the public wants us to spend money on education," Frost said. "What the president has done, both in terms of higher education and in elementary and secondary, are important things we ought to do."

SANTA MONICA, Calif. Dumped by Hertz and NBC, O.J. Simpson had to look elsewhere, anywhere, for money, and the journey for dollars led him to the oddest places - like a cemetery.

Among the 19 contracts he signed after the killings of his ex-wife and her friend was a $1 million deal for post-verdict pictures of himself, including $100,000 for "The Cemetery Photographs," presumably taken at his ex-wife's grave.

There was, for instance, the deal for O.J. Simpson birthday cards that came with an audio greeting from Simpson himself.

He inked also deals to sign thousands of trading cards, prepaid calling cards and football helmets, both full-sized and miniature, and lent his name or image to such things as statues, gold medallions and a limited edition set of color lithographs.

And all this was in addition to his much-publicized deals to co-write the jailhouse tome "I Want to Tell You" and to star in his own video, "O.J. Simpson: The Interview."

Some money-making opportunities have yet to be finalized. A witness at Simpson's civil trial said Simpson was trying to sell the suit he wore the day he was acquitted of murder charges.

Simpson also has applied for trademarks for scores of goods yet to be produced, including, of all things, cutlery.

In total, plaintiffs estimated, Simpson already has made nearly $3 million off the publicity linked to charges he slashed to death his exwife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman on June 12, Simpson's post-murder earning potential is among the issues the urors in his wrongful death trial have to consider when they return today to decide punitive damages. The panel already has levied $8.5 million against Simpson in compensatory damages.

LIMA, Peru - Peru's president said Sunday that preliminary talks between the government and leftist rebels holding 72 hostages could begin as soon as

"There's a team working on this hostage problem and they are advancing," Fujimori told report in London, where he is attend g a forum on British investment in Latin America. "Next week, probably on Tuesday, they will start preliminary conversations.'

Fujimori said he still was hoping for a peaceful resolution to the crisis, which began when Tupac Amaru rebels stormed the Japanese ambassador's house on Dec. 17.

"We will exhaust all pacific measures so that the way out will not be using force," he said, adding that he would consider using force only if hostages are Fujimori's announcement came just as some of the hostages' relatives were beginning to lose hope. Relatives of one ailing hostage marched outside the ambassador's residence here Saturday evening, begging the armed rebels to let him go so he can get medical help.

"Respect the life of Juan Mendoza," read signs carried by some of several dozen marchers. Mendoza, Peru's deputy minister of energy and mines, has a hernia and requires immediate attention, his wife Enriqueta said.

Fujimori made no mention of Mendoza's condition Sunday. He told reporters the hostages are in good health, and that he was sure they would not be harmed.

Meanwhile, a separate rebel group apparently bombed a private office building Sunday morning, in a reminder of the guerrilla violence that was prevalent in this Andean country in the 1980s. The blast at 5:30 a.m. caused major damage but no injuries.

Police said they found pamphlets at the scene indicating that rebels from the Maoist Shining Path group had planted about a pound of dynamite, Radio Programas said.

QUITO, Ecuador - In a deal worked out with Ecuador's powerful military, Congress named the vice president to the top executive post Sunday, ending a political crisis that threw this small Andean country into chaos.

Lawmakers selected Rosalia Arteaga, 40, as Ecuador's president early Sunday to replace deposed chief executive Abdala Bucaram. Congress ousted Bucaram on Thursday for "mental incapacity," and his refusal to step down sparked a crisis in which three people claimed the presidency.

Congressional leaders and military commanders worked out an agreement early Sunday that puts Arteaga "temporarily" in power until Congress amends the constitution to clarify who succeeds a deposed president.

At that point, Arteaga would return to being vice president and Fabian Alarcon, Congress' original pick for chief executive, would become interim president. Elections would be held within a year year term in August 1998.

Arteaga's selection as president is a rarity in Latin America, which has seen only two female presidents before her - Violeta Chamorro in Nicaragua and Isabel Peron in Argentina.

"She is an ambitious woman," Bucaram said after learning of Congress' decision.

The unanimous vote in Congress brought relief to Ecuadoreans, who watched street protests against Bucaram become increasingly violent and culminate in a nationwide 48-hour strike last week. People had feared the military might

Police on Sunday removed the barbed wire that had kept protesters away from the government palace, and families again wandered through the area, enjoying a quiet day in Quito's colonial center.

Bucaram continued to insist he was the constitutionally elected president, but conceded he had lost power to "conspirators" supported by the armed forces.

"What is being formed in Con-

"Remember me," he said. "In a short time, these same people are going to beg me on their knees to come back.

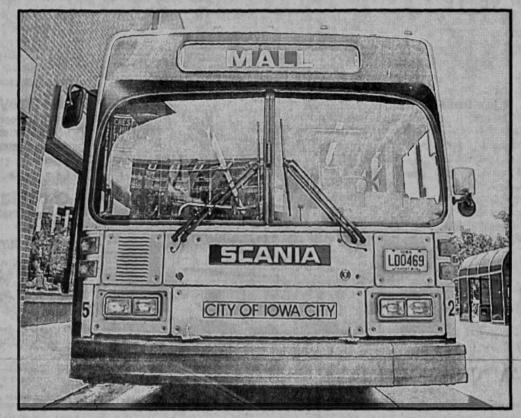

Bucaram, a fiery public speaker who campaigned as the "force of the poor" and called himself "El Loco," saw his popularity plunge from 65 percent to 12 percent in the last two months. His critics accused him of corruption, nepotism, autocratic methods and outlandish, embarrassing behavior that disgraced the office of the presidency.

Harsh austerity measures that sent the electrical, water and telephone rates soaring were the spark that set off violent street protests in January.

Congress dismissed Bucaram on Thursday and named Alarcon to succeed him. Both Bucaram and Arteaga disputed Congress' action. The armed forces warned of the chaotic consequences of a power vacuum and urged the different gress is a civilian dictatorship," he parties to find a peaceful solution.

Illini avenge prior loss

No. 25 Hawkeyes begin second half of conference season with 66-51 loss at Illinois

By Matt Kelley Associated Press

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. - Although most eyes were on Kiwane Garris and his 21 points, it was Jarrod Gee's season-high 11 rebounds that got the highest praise from coach Lon Kruger after the Illini's 66-51 win over No. 25 Iowa on Sunday.

"I think the key today was (Chris) Gandy and Gee rebounding the ball inside. Rebounding has been tough for us all year," Kruger said.

Illinois (17-6, 7-4 Big Ten) shot just 40 percent from the floor but outrebounded the Hawkeyes 45-29 to get their third win in a row. It was only the second time this season Iowa had fallen behind on the boards

"Our young kids looked like they were glued to the floor at times," Iowa coach Tom Davis said.

Gee said he finally focused on the boards and let Garris, the Big Ten's second-leading scorer, and Gandy take care of the scoring. "I'm tired of feeling like I wasn't a factor for my team," Gee said. Illinois had started the second half with a 17-6 run to take a 20-point lead, 50-30, on Gee's second basket of the

The Hawkeyes (16-6, 7-3) responded with a 17-6 run of their own to pull within 9, 56-47, with 4:42 left on a 3pointer by Andre Woolridge. But Iowa could manage only four more points down the stretch.

Garris also had 10 assists for the Illini. Chris Gandy added 14 points and 10 rebounds.

Both teams used zone defenses to force perimeter shooting. While Illinois responded by making 11 of 25 3-pointers, Iowa only made 7 treys and shot a dismal 33 percent from the floor.

The Illini defense also blocked 9 shots and held Woolridge, the Big Ten's

Hawkeyes win in what could be Dan Gable's last home meet as Iowa's coach

> By James Kramer The Daily Iowan

An emotional standing ovation almost got the best of Iowa wrestling coach Dan Gable Saturday night.

In what may have been his final home match as the Hawkeyes' coach, Gable received thunderous applause from the 5,280 fans in Carver-Hawkeye Arena prior to Iowa's 28-12 victory over No. 9 Arizona State. Earlier in the day, the secondranked Hawkeyes handled No. 5 Illinois, 25-10. Gable - who has hinted at retirement after this season - did not attend that match, but was matside when his team took on the Sun Devils.

"I tried not to think about this being maybe my last time in here as the head coach," Gable said after the match. "It's possible that this might be my last dual. I had to think about other things when I was first down here, because I was about this close (motioning with his thumb and finger) to

Hawkeyes bounce back from Friday loss

By Wayne Drehs The Daily Iowan

A lack of defensive intensity, poor rebounding and a low field goal percentage have hurt the Iowa women's basketball team all season long.

But Sunday afternoon against Northwestern at Carver-Hawkeye Arena, the Hawkeyes used those facets of the game to their advantage, beating the Wildcats, 80-56.

See box score, Page 2B

The scoreboard wasn't the only place the Hawkeyes dominated. They out rebounded the Wildcats, 45-31, and their defense forced Northwestern into committing 20 turnovers, while shooting just 32 percent from the field.

This was an all-time whipping," Northwestern coach Don Perrelli said after the game. "They beat us with their defense, they beat us with their offense, they beat us with their rebounding. Just every phase you could possibly think of."

Angie Hamblin, in just her second game back after suffering a hamstring injury, came off the bench to score 18 points and grab 12 rebounds to lead Iowa's balanced attack. Tangela Smith also had a double-double, with 12 points and 10 rebounds. Four Iowa players finished the game with double figures, and 10 scored.

coach Angie Lee said. "Everybody was shooting the ball well, and going to the

This team did a very good job of really backing each other up, believing in each other, and going out there and executing.

Iowa didn't execute well Friday night, losing to Purdue, 53-48, despite a 14-point first half lead. Lee left the team alone in the locker room prior to Sunday's game to talk about Friday's loss and prepare for Northwestern. "We stressed a lot just to have fun," for a lay-up and is pushed out of bounds during the Hawkeyes' game against Northwestern Sunday afternoon in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

breaking up emotionally."

As Gable stood in the center of the mat before the dual, publicaddress announcer Phil Haddy listed many of Gable's achievements as Iowa's leader. These included 14 NCAA Championships, 20 Big Ten Championships, 40 national champions and 144 All-Americans.

"He got a little carried away from what I wanted," Gable said. "The hard part was the crowd really gave me an ovation when they saw me here. My heart started getting real heavy.

The Hawkeyes went on to win six of 10 matches against Arizona State (12-4). Iowa was victorious in seven weight classes against Illinois, which fell to 10-1.

Iowa (14-1) won its first four matches against Illinois in jumping to a 16-0 lead. At 158, defending NCAA champion Joe Williams defeated No. 2 Ernest Benion, 5-4, in a rematch of last year's championship match.

"I don't like any close matches," Williams said. "But if they are close, you still have to win them. You still gotta score when you have to, and that's what I did.

Benion, a former NCAA champion himself, fell to 0-4 against Williams, but his reverence for the top-ranked Hawkeye was apparent.

"I know I respect him and I hope he's got a little respect for me," Benion said. "He's a great athlete, a great competitor and a great with a 10-7 victory over sixthranked Lindsay Durlacher. Whitmer (16-4) is ranked fifth in the nation and has solidified himself as a solid contender at 118.

That was a match we knew we had to win if we were going to win this meet," Illinois coach Mark Johnson said. "That and 142, and we didn't win either one of them." Kasey Gilliss knocked off No. 11

Jon Vaughn at 142, his fourth straight victory. Gilliss (13-8) needed a takedown in overtime to get the win. Other Iowa winners against the Illini were Mike Mena (126), Mark Ironside (134), Mike Uker (167) and Lee Fullhart (190).

Iowa did not look quite as sharp against the Sun Devils, losing two overtime matches. In the featured match of the evening, Mena fell to Shawn Ford, 3-1 in OT. Mena is 0-2 against Ford this season, also losing to him at Midlands in Decem-

Mena had several good shots on Ford throughout the match, but was unable to finish. Ford scored a takedown 21 seconds into overtime

"(Mena) almost scored about four or five times," Gable said. "Even though we were doing the initiation, the other guy was tougher than we were in that position.'

Three Iowa wrestlers pinned their Arizona State opponents. Whitmer won by fall in 4:25, Ironside in 6:38 and heavyweight Wes Hand in 2:17. Gilliss, Williams and Fullhart were the other Hawkeye

Two-time NCAA champion Lincoln McIlravy missed his sixth 118-pounder Jessie Whitmer of straight dual as he recovers from Iowa continued his banner season concussion symptoms. He is not expected to wrestle at Iowa State next Sunday in Iowa's final regularseason action.

Hamblin said. "We get down on ourselves a lot and that takes away from our momentum.

Northwestern jumped out to a 11-8 lead early in the game, but a 10-0 Iowa run capped by a Nadine Domond lay-up, put the Hawkeyes up 18-11, and gave them a lead they wouldn't lose.

A 7-0 run late in the first half pushed the lead to 38-24, and demoralized Perrelli, who didn't know what changes to make.

"I wanted to throw out everything," he said. "In fact, I wanted to go home. Basically, that was my adjustment because we were really

"They just took it right to us early, and that was basically the game."

The Hawkeyes now sit in the middle of the Big Ten pack, hoping for a top five seed at the Big Ten Tournament. The top five seeds only have to win three games to be the tournament champs, the others have to play four.

"We really need to get that and make sure we get a first round bye," Lee said. "It would be nice knowing we have three games we need to win and not four.'

Kristina Divjak led all scorers with 19 points for Northwestern.

WOMEN'S COLLEGE ROUNDUP

Connecticut cruises past Notre Dame

STORRS, Conn. (AP) - The matchup between two ranked teams, both undefeated in the Big East, had all the makings of a big game. Instead, it turned into another blowout for top-ranked Connecticut. The defense-minded Huskies held No. 15 Notre Dame to 27.7 percent shooting Sunday, shut down down Fighting Irish career scoring leader Beth Morgan and came away with a 72-49 win.

No. 18 Illinois 95, Minnesota 76 CHAMPAIGN, Ill. - Point guard Ashley Berggren had 20 points, 10 rebounds and five assists to lead No. 18 Illinois to a 95-76 Big Ten women's basketball victory over Minnesota

Although Minnesota went out to an early 5-4 lead in Sunday's game, the Illini went on an 11-0 run and broke to a 15-5 advantage. Illinois led by as many as 22 points in the first half.

No. 24 Michigan St. 72, Ohio St. 64 EAST LANSING, Mich. - Reserve Maxann Reese scored 15 points and Kristen Rasmussen grabbed 15 rebounds as No. 24 Michigan State beat Ohio State 72-64 Sunday.

Michigan State (18-4, 10-2 Big Ten) led 32-24 at halftime and extended the lead with an 11-2 run to open the second half.

No. 12 Kansas 82, Iowa St. 78 LAWRENCE, Kan. - Tamecka Dixon scored 20 points and Jennifer Trapp added 13 as No. 1 Kansas beat Iowa State 82-78. No. 10 Virginia 91, No. 25 N.C.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. Tora Suber scored 23 points and Monick Foote added 22 and 10 rebounds Sunday as No. 10 Virginia defeated 25th-ranked North Carolina State 91-66.

No. 7 Alabama 87, South Caroli-

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. - Yolanda Watkins scored 17 points and No. 7 Alabama scored the first 22 points Sunday in an 87-38 rout over South

No. 9 Tennessee 104, Mississippi

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. - Abby Conklin scored 19 points and ninth-ranked Tennessee used a hot shooting performance to clobber Mississippi State 104-39 Sunday. Nebraska 62, Texas Tech 57

LINCOLN, Neb. - Junior guard Jami Kubik hit a pair of free throws with 54 seconds left and her freshman sister, Nicole, made two more from the line with five seconds remaining to seal the win.

No. 2 O. Dominion 94, American 57 NORFOLK, Va. - Nyree Roberts scored 17 points and Clarisse Machanguana had 15 points and 14 rebounds Sunday as No. 2 Old Dominion limited American to 20 percent shooting in the first half of a 94-57 victory.

No. 20 Duke 66, Maryland 57 DURHAM, N.C. - Tyish Hall, hit in the head by a ball during warmups, came off the bench to score 20 points and lead No. 20 Duke in a 66-57 come-from-behind win over Maryland.

Jordan makes history on history-making night

By Chris Sheridan Associated Press

CLEVELAND - Glen Rice and Michael Jordan kept the halftime ceremony from being all anybody would talk about at the NBA All-

An NBA All-Star game that was billed as "one for the ages" was one for the record books, too.

Jordan had the event's first triple-double, Rice broke two scoring records to win MVP honors and the East had one of the best comebacks in All-Star history in beating the West 132-120 Sunday

Simply put, the NBA couldn't have asked for much more in the showcase event of its 50th season even with the absence of injured All-Stars Charles Barkley, Shaquille O'Neal, Alonzo Mourning, Clyde Drexler and Patrick Ewing.

And it all happened in front of the greatest collection of basketball players ever assembled in one arena.

"I was in awe pretty much the whole time," said Jordan, who had 14 points, 11 rebounds and 11 assists in his first triple-double since coming out of retirement 23 months ago.

Rice scored 20 points in the third quarter, breaking Hal Greer's mark of 19 in the 1968 game. The Charlotte forward also set a record of 24 points in a half, breaking Wilt Chamberlain's mark

"It was very special," Rice said. "My teammates did a great job of getting me this award. Guys kept telling me: 'Get the ball and shoot it.' (Jordan) came in and told me: "Keep stroking. I'm going to get you the ball."

Watching it from the stands were the two men, Chamberlain and Greer, whose record would eventually fall. They, along with 45 others on the all-time greatest list, took part in a halftime tribute that "I was very nervous, and I haven't been nervous in these situations for a long time. I was like a fly on the wall, looking at all the players who have paved the way for me in the game.'

would have stolen the show at Gund Arena if not for Rice and Jordan.

The parade of greats was a moment of showtime that has never been seen before and will never be seen again. One after the other, out came the legends of the game.

Jordan was first. Chamberlain stood alongside Bill Russell and George Mikan. Isiah Thomas bodied up his own rival and buddy, Magic Johnson. Pete Maravich's two sons, Jaecen and Joshua, stood in for the only deceased member of the 50 greatest.

'I was very nervous, and I haven't been nervous in these situations for a long time," Jordan said. "I was like a fly on the wall, looking at all the players who have paved the way for me in the game.'

On and on it went, the crowd eating it up. There were roars for Larry Bird, Julius Erving and Lenny Wilkens, boos for O'Neal - the only active player to miss the gathering. Dave Cowens turned to his wife in her front row seat, grinning like a man who realized he was experiencing one of the proudest moments of his life.

The 20,562 fans gave them a standing ovation when the introductions were complete, and the game seemed like an aftermath history of his own. when it eventually resumed.

Rice, however, changed that tone rather quickly.

He made three consecutive 3pointers as the East, playing with only one starter, opened the second half with a 13-0 run.

Rice added yet another 3-pointer before the quarter was even three minutes old, and suddenly the East, which had trailed by as many as 23 points in the first half, was ahead by 15 points, 78-63.

By the time Jordan checked in for Rice with 52 seconds left in the quarter, the MVP question had been answered. Moments before handing Rice the trophy, NBA commissioner David Stern called the event "one for the ages."

Jordan, meanwhile, made more

He entered the fourth quarter . BAKED BRIE . SALAD NICOISE . SEAFOOD FETTUCINE . FRENCH DIP . QUESADILLAS with 12 points, nine rebounds and six assists, and he quickly went to work at getting two of the totals into double digits.

His 10th rebound happened early in the quarter, and he got his ninth assist on 3-pointer with Penny Hardaway with 4:28 left.

Jordan was set to go to the bench during the next break in play, but East coach Doug Collins stopped him before he got to the bench.

"Doug said I needed one more assist for the triple-double. I wasn't attuned to it until that moment," Jordan said. The 10th assist finally happened on a two-on-one break as Jordan fed Chicago Bulls teammate Scottie Pippen for a breakaway layup.

McCall's corner knew nothing of strategy

By Tin Dahlberg

LAS VEGAS - If Oliver McCall was employing some bizarre strategy to beat Lennox Lewis and win the WBC heavyweight title, he forgot to tell his corner about it.

McCall's claims that he was playing possum in some altered version of Muhammad Ali's famous "rope-adope" rang hollow not only with Nevada boxing regulators but his

"Lennox was in there with a lunatic," McCall's trainer, George Benton, said. "Any man in his right mind wouldn't act like that."

Benton stood, arms folded and a disgusted look on his face, as his fighter first refused to return to his corner after the third round, then refused to fight in the fourth Friday night at the Las Vegas Hilton.

After standing in the ring crying between the fourth and fifth rounds, McCall took a few more punches to the head before referee Mills Lane finally stepped in to stop the fight at 55 seconds of the fifth round.

"They did not give Oliver the opportunity as a fighter to play out my fight game," McCall said Saturday, claiming that throwing only two punches in the fourth round and letting Lewis hit him at will was part of his strategy to win the fight.

"The man's mind just wasn't there," Benton said of his fighter, who is in drug rehabilitation for the third time. "It started a long time ago and it finally caught up to him." Lewis, who had thought for a few minutes that McCall was trying to trick him, agreed.

"McCall is just plain mad," the new WBC champion said.

Just like a champion thoroughbred, Ohio State kicked into overdrive when it had to.

Much to the dismay of the Iowa men's gymnastics team.

The Hawkeyes hung with the No. 1 team in the nation for the first two events of their showdown in Chicago Saturday, but strong performances by the Buckeyes' Blaine Wilson and Drew Durbin helped Ohio State pull away for a 230.900-227.425 victory over No. 2 Iowa.

Iowa did salvage a split in the triangular meet with a win over host Illinois-Chicago, which finished with 222.775.

The Hawkeyes set new seasonhigh scores on the vault, rings, horizontal bar and pommel horse, but that wasn't enough to overcome the Buckeyes, who won all seven events.

"We started off strong but we had trouble on the high bar and the parallel bars, which really hurt us,"

Wilson lead in the still rings, tying with Iowa's Tyler Vogt with a score of 9.850. He also won the all-around, high bar and the parallel bars.

Iowa junior Travis Rosen grabbed a first place finish on the vault, sharing it with for ther Buckeyes with a 9.650. H. keye

The bars were where the Hawkeyes struggled. On the horizontal bar, freshman Lou Datilio was Iowa's top finisher with a 9.575, good enough for third place. Junior Chris Camiscioli finished sixth on the paralell bars with a 9.250.

Dunn said his team is going to have shore up those events if it wants to make a run at the NCAA title.

"We're just going to have to work harder and get better, it's that simle," Dunn said. "We need to have 1996 Olympian, Blaine Wilson, better showings in those events if showed his All-American status, win- we want to be successful."

Iowa qualifies four for NCAA Championships

State Classic, Iowa men's track and field coach Larry Wieczorek knew his team had a chance to qualify several runners for the NCAA indoor championships.

The Cyclones' over-sized 300meter indoor track is known to yield faster times, and the 20-team field was loaded with stiff competition. Wieczorek's intuition's held true, as the team qualified four events, and set season bests in nearly every

The 4x400-meter relay led the way, as the combination of Chris Davis, Bashir Yamini, Ed Rozell and Monte Raymond scorched the qualifying mark (3:12.20) by almost four seconds, finishing in 3:08.49.

In individual competition, George Page qualified in the 200-meter dash with a season-best time of 21.20 seconds. Overall, Page finished fourth in the event.

Ed Rozell lowered his season-best time in the 400-meters by nearly a second and a half to finish under the NCAA qualifying mark in 47.48

"Rozell was big," Wieczorek said. "He really reestablished himself in the 400 with his performance."

Saturday, he added the 60-meter hurdles to his list of events with a time of 7.87 seconds.

There is a good chance that these times will hold up and these guys will get into the NCAAs," Wieczorek said. "But they are going to get better and those times should get even lower. Particularly in our 4x400 relay, which I think can still get their time down by a second or man Michael Layne had an impressive performance in the 800-meter run, finishing third overall in Ten competition." 1:51.04. Layne's time was less than a second away (.74) from the provisional mark.

After this weekend's performance, Iowa has qualified six events for the NCAAs. Last week, Trowers qualified in the 55-meter hurdles while Yamini made the mark in the long jump.

Director Doug Pray was less than enthusiastic when propositioned to make a documentary film covering the madness of the Seattle grunge scene. In fact, he thought it was the worst idea he had ever heard of.

"In 1992, filming the Seattle scene was a bad idea," Pray said in a telephone interview. "Horrible. I mean, it was already so hyped up to death, why would you want to make a documentary about it? Grunge was on the cover of Vogue magazine! And when something is on the cover of Vogue, you know it's dead."

Despite the craze and the fashion magazine spreads, producer Steve Helvey persisted and Pray decided to give the idea a chance. With the help of a few friends and the lack of a Hollywood name, Helvey and Pray created "Hype!" - the critically acclaimed, in-your-face documentary of the origin and the mainstreaming of grunge music. While Pray and his film may be receiving fame and stardom now, he credits his ability to even make the film with his originally unknown

"If some television station or film industry wanted to ing them. But actually, I probably come in and make a documentary never would have gotten the calls about 'The Seattle Scene,' they returned if I was from L.A.' wouldn't have had any access With a name and a reputation as because they were perceived as Hol- unheard-of as the bands he interviewed, Pray and his crew set to work. Over a period of three years, an all-local crew from Seattle filmed 17 different bands booked into five clubs over a six-day period, interviewed everyone from Eddie Vedder to secretaries at Seattle-based Sub-Pop Records and shot hundreds of rolls of concert footage.

With filming wrapped up in the fall of 1994, "Hype!" crews had 50 on the shores of the Mississippi Rivhours of footage, 27 live perfor-"All the research was done in mances, 40 interviews, 500 media Iowa," Pray said. "Including all the clips and stills and hundreds of phone calls. It was hilarious. I don't songs. It took a year to complete know what the guys in Seattle must editing, during which time Pray was have thought. Here's pressed to release the film before this guy from the fad was over. Despite the pressure, the result was a no-style, but easily paced documentary that seemed almost to direct itself. With no overlying narrative, the footage of bands and interviews carries the film through to the very end. However, there was no definitive plan to the shooting of "Hype!", Pray said.

We had no idea the film would turn out the way it did," he said. "We wanted to do something different than the mainstream media was doing. And as we began, what became clear and what became fascinating was the concept of hype. What was once underground and precious and untouched by the outside now all of a sudden gets into the spotlight."

However, Pray has no concern that the success of "Hype!" may fall victim to its own success.

"'Hype!' is still a documentary, no matter which way you look at it," he said. "And not everyone goes to see documentaries. They're hard to get out there. I'm still really proud and excited about it. It was a great story to

James Bond versus the volcano

By Stacey Harrison The Daily Iowan

Twisters, floods, volcanoes ... oh,

The stakes have been raised in the realm of the disaster movie. Tornadoes were fine last summer, but audiences are hoping to move out of the Midwest this year for their man-against-nature struggles. For instance, the Pacific Northwest, in a little town with the conveniently ominous name of Dante's Peak would be a good place to start.

Pierce Brosnan ("Goldeneye") stars as volcanologist Harry Dalton who, after the movie's very "Twister"-like prologue, is sent to the tranquil Idaho town to investigate a long-dormant volcano. There to show him around is the town's mayor and could it be, love interest? - Linda Hamilton ("Terminator 2").

'Star Wars' retains box office crown

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "Star Wars" held its ground against the volcano disaster film "Dante's Peak" to place first at the weekend box office with $22.7 million in ticket sales, according to industry estimates Sunday.

Its projected gross was down 37 percent in its second week but such dips are typical even for the most adroitly hyped new film.

With a total gross of nearly $392 million, "Star Wars" is within striking distance of becoming the all-time domestic best-seller. The current title holder is 1982's "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial" with
